MEDICINE HAT BY-ELECTION IS LANDSLIDE FOR PROGRESSIVE CANDIDATE

Medicine Hat, June 28.—The majority of Robert Gardiner, National Progressive party, in the by-election held yesterday, had tonight reached 7,228, with 35 polls still to hear from.

The majority grows like a snowball as it rolls. It is expected now that the majority will be over 8,000 The final vote will not be known until next week. Col. Spencer has lost his deposit. The majority in the city for Gardiner is 278. Only five polls gave Col. Spencer majorities.

Redcliffe, a suburb, gave Spencer a small majority, where he expected several hundred. Eagle Butte also gave him a majority. All other places went the other way, with the Government candidate sometimes getting only about two votes, as against 180 for his opponent. Some very good examples follow: Bush Centre, Gardiner 115, Spencer 1, Ridsell Vale, Gardiner 125, Spencer 2; Golden Valley, Gardiner 176, Spencer 4. All rural polls are practically the same.

HEIRS ATTACK WILL

FUND OF $200,000 FOR WAR WIDOWS BEFORE COURT

Mr. Justice Middleton was asked in the weekly court at Osgoode Hall Toronto for an order construing the will of Mrs. Kathleen Saunders Hammond, who died at Saranac Lake, N. Y., on September 30 1919, and who left $200,000 to be applied by her executors to charities, particularly dealing with the young widows who had been bereaved by the late war. Mrs. Hammond was widowed by the war, her husband being drowned when the Lusitania was torpedoed.

The soldiers aid commission of Ontario is making a claim for this bequest, and wishes to devote the money to helping war widows of Toronto and district, who number around one thousand.

The order before Mr. Justice Middleton was asked by the National Trust company, acting for the executors, W. B. Cook and Harold de Pass, of London, England. His lordship was asked by W. Lawr acting for the company, to construe the meaning of the clause dealing with the bequest for the war widows, and to state to whom this money should be paid. Other clauses in the will are also to be construed. His lordship reserved his decision on the matter, and as he is expected to begin his vacation shortly, it is not thought that any decision will be given until next September, when the courts re-open after the long vacation.

The argument on the matter lasted for about two hours. A. J. Thompson, appeared for Mrs. Hammond's heirs, contended that the bequest failed, as there was no general intention. His contention was that it became void through uncertainty, no specific legatees being named, and that a condition of intestacy ensued. For this reason he urged that the fund should be distributed among the heirs.

C. M. Garvey appeared for the soldiers aid commission, and claimed that under the existing provincial legislation a bequest of this kind devolved upon the commission, and therefore he moved that an order be given directing that the amount of the bequest be paid over to his clients.

ARREST FOR MURDER SEVEN YEARS AGO

Vancouver, B.C., June 30.—Tom Williams, an Alert Bay Indian, has been arrested and committed for trial on a charge of having murdered Ernest Jack, a young fisherman and hand logger, at Nearter Bay, Dickson Island, September 2, 1914.

The finding of Jack's body by two loggers two years later, in a hollow log covered with an Indian mat, gave the first clue of the young fisherman's mysterious disappearance. He had been shot through the head. A forest fire swept the camp of the two loggers before the police could be communicated with, and all trace of the location of the body was lost.

Vast Crowds Witness Dempsey-Carpentier Fight

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

New York, July 2.—New York and the entire metropolitan area, which reaches out and embraces the now famous "Boyle's Thirty Acres," in Jersey City, seethed today with a frenzy of excitement wholly unprecedented in the annals of sport as the hour rolled slowly on for the fistic clash for the world's heavyweight championship between Jack Dempsey, the United States title holder, and Georges Carpentier, idol and champion of Europe.

New York's mansions and her gorgeous hotels early began disgorging brilliant parties of men and women intent on threading in ample time the cluttered automobile highways that lead to Tex Rickard's mammoth arena in Jersey City. Less opulent fans had begun the scramble towards Jersey City hours earlier by ferry, by flivver and train; but even the earliest arrivals this morning found themselves out-generalled by the advance guard of about three hundred men and boys who spent the night in line waiting for the first crack at the $5.50 unreserved seats.

The day opened with a brief flash of sunshine, but by nine o'clock the sky was overcast and a threat of rain was in the air.

Champion Dempsey, primed and eager, awaited the hour to defend his title in a Jersey City residence, to which he had been spirited from his training camp at Atlantic City yesterday.

Carpentier left his quarters at Manhasset by automobile shortly after breakfast for Port Washington, where a yacht awaited to bear him to the fight city.

Betting on the Dempsey-Carpentier fight opened briskly at Paris this morning. Several large bets were made with Dempsey the favorite at 3 1-2 to 1.

"Never felt better in my life," remarked Jack Dempsey, as he sat down to a light breakfast in a private home here where he had spent the night. The champion slept without interruption from ten o'clock last night until seven o'clock this morning. Dempsey's breakfast consisted of two boiled eggs, toast and a pot of tea.

Yukon to Take Plebiscite

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

Ottawa, July 2.—The Yukon Territory will declare for or against the importation of liquor by a plebiscite to be held on July 11, in accordance with the proclamation issued on September 18th last. All the returns will be taken on the one day, and a sufficient proportion should be on hand within 24 hours to decide which way the wind has blown. The final figures will not be available for several days later. Robert Craig, of Dawson City, is the returning officer.

DIRIGLE AIRSHIPS LOSING CASTE

London, June 30.—Dirigible airships appear to be in little demand here. A number of them that cost the British government a mint of money to build are now practically going begging.

The Air Ministry announced some some time ago that it was prepared to give up airships if they were not taken over by private persons for commercial purposes. It now states that it has been decided that unless an offer that amounts to somthing is received before August 1, all its airship activities will be discontinued.

The airships, stations and material will then be handed over to the Disposals Board to get rid of, as the Air Ministry, it is stated in the official report, "does not feel justified in continuing expenditure on this service."

The Air Ministry offers to sell the R-80, R 33, R-36, R-37 and the former German airships L-71 and L-64.

Bolshevik Leaders Consider Safety First

Reval, Esthonia, June 30.—According to recently intercepted correspondence from Communist officials in Moscow to Communist agents abroad, advising them of the "inside situation" in Russia, South America is looked upon as a final haven of refuge by many of the less hope Bolshevik leaders in event Russia becomes too hot for them.

One of these letters, recently published in a Royal newspaper, the Posledine Novosti, advises one of the official's friends, who now is apparently in Germany, to 'convert your valuables into dollars as frequently as you can, or, better still, into South American currency."

"The Octobrists", the letter adds, meaning by them those Communists who participated in the October, 1917 revolution, "are frequently sending their families abroad. Soon, it may be, I shall send my wife across to you, in which case try to put her up as best you can."

Referring to the political situation, this Communist wrote: "Illitch (meaning Lenine, that being his middle name by which he is popularly known in Russia) is weakening. Zinovieff has grown too fat. Trotzky alone remains as of old the unrecognized Napoleon, but he is 'evolutionizing' also".

In connection with the sending abroad of the families of the "Octobrists", this letter goes on: "Will you kindly keep a detailed account of their arrivals and of their names? Further, by a decision of the military department of the party, I want you to withdraw from the banks all the deposits at your disposal and put them in safe hands. Bring to Switzerland one-third of the 'iron fund' and hand it to B——. The rest can be left in Germany for any eventualities."

The writer constantly refers to the ruling councils of the Bolsheviki as "the Olympians", and remarks that "our Olympus is going the pace too fast."

"From January", he says, "the situation in the council of the party and in the Central Committee has come to a point to the last degree. The result of these conflicts was the expulsion of Comrades Krylenko, Bontch-Bouroveitch, Dubov, Blumenthal and many others. This was the last gesture of the gay party gods. For a word said against Illitch, Krestinsky or Zinovieff, even not in public, ostracism is imminent."

FORMAL OPENING OF BRIDGE GREATEST DAY SINCE BRIDGE WAS ORIGINALLY OPENED

Barriers Removed—No More Tolls to Pay to Enter Belleville From Prince Edward County Nor to Enter Prince Edward County From Belleville and Hastings County.

The Highways and the Bridges and the Waterways of Canada Must be Free and all Shackles Upon Progress, Prosperity and Expansion Shattered and Shaken Off.

An event fully as important, and more so in the opinion of many, than the great original enterprise of progressive pioneers of Belleville and Prince Edward County in building and throwing open for traffic the great bridge which spans the Bay of Quinte and unites the Peninsula of Prince Edward with the County of Hastings and the City of Belleville, was the formal ceremony declaring that the bridge now belongs to the people and is free to man, beast and vehicle. No more will tribute in the form of tolls be levied upon the citizens of the Bay of Quinte district who wish to visit their neighbors or buy or sell goods in the transaction of daily business.

Toll roads and toll bridges have long been repugnant to the progressive spirit of enterprising Canadians, and these tribute-taking stations on the highways of the land, with their harsh challenge of "Thou shalt not pass without paying cash tribute" have almost entirely passed away in the march of progress which in this new nation is sweeping away the old-time handicaps.

It was a wonderful and impressive scene which met the eye on the Bay Bridge early Friday morning, July 1, 1921, a moving scene representing the modern march of progress and a scene of beauty in the magnificent sweep of island-dotted blue water stretching far to the east toward Lake Ontario with its ever-widening banks adorned in the verdure of its brilliant carpet of green, shaded by countless trees with their wealth of foliage, while westward the narrowing channel glistened invitingly, and the rippling waves called insistently to the spirit of adventure to come and explore the lovely winding channels and reaches, even unto the sinuous Trent threading its way through the north country to Simcoe's wooded banks and beyond to the mighty waters of Georgian Bay. Nearby the tall spires of many churches and the smokestacks of commerce betokened a Christian city and a hive of industry.

With such a glorious setting is it any wonder that the early risers were thrilled with the spirit of the occasion? and as hundreds of automobiles passed over the bridge, some gaily decorated for the occasion, the scene was one never to be forgotten. Beautiful and impressive as was the scene and symbolic of a Greater Canada and a Greater Bay of Quinte district, the occasion would have lacked something without music, the spice of life and the inspiration to all great and noble enterprises, and music was furnished by the band boys of Rednersville, who seemed to enter into the spirit of the occasion and breathed into their instruments a stirring note of progressiveness.

Hundreds of people were present and everybody was wearing the smile of achievement, indicating the pride of progress, and citizens of Belleville and Prince Edward County mingled together in genial fellowship and made stronger the bonds of friendship which have always united them as neighbors, now closer than ever before.

Now that the bridge belongs to the people any repairs needed should be attended to at once and this public utility made as efficient as possible. The roadways leading to the bridge need immediate attention, and improvement, particularly that stretch of road leading to the bridge from the Belleville end. This should not be allowed to disgrace the progressive city of Belleville any longer than is necessary to make the repairs needed.

It was a great day for Prince Edward County and Belleville, and the county and township, city and provincial officials who have helped to make a free bridge possible can feel justifiable pride in having added a splendid page to their book of public achievements.

A NEW ERA

July 1st, Dominion Day, 1921, was a red letter day in the history of Belleville and the county of Prince Edward, as it marked a new epoch, namely, a free bridge between those two municipalities. The erection of the superstructure of the bridge was commenced on November 10th, 1890, and was completed on April 15th, 1891. From that day until the hour of 8 o'clock on the morning of Friday Dominion Day, persons travelling on foot, in carriages or in autos, were compelled when reaching the toll house to contribute for the privilege of passing over the bridge. This restriction has at last been removed, and from henceforth all who desire to use the bridge can do so as freely as they use the travelled highway. The toll sign has been removed and will find a place in the archives of the Legislature buildings at Toronto.

Whilst no elaborate program had been arranged for this noted event, hundreds of citizens from the adjoining County and Belleville were present to take part in the proceedings and were anxious to be the paying a toll.

The First Car

The first car to pass over the bridge from the city side to Prince Edward side was driven by Col. Dr. Wilson of this city and associated with him in the car was Major R. D. Ponton, F. R. Wotten and C. Skinner.

Before the hour of 8 o'clock there was a good gathering in the vicinity of the toll house situated on the Prince Edward shore, and among the first arrivals was Mayor Hanna, Chief of Police Kidd, Sergt. Boyd, and Police Officer Vanmeer. The duties of the latter were by no means onerous.

At the entrance to the bridge from the Belleville side dozens of cars were parked and at a signal from Chief Kidd they were allowed to pass over the bridge in single file, as soon as the hour of 8 o'clock had arrived. Many of the cars were adorned with flags and bunting.

Members of the City Council, Chamber of Commerce and prominent citizens were seen to cross the bridge in autos. Previous to a brief speech making those assembled on the roadway near the toll house were treated to a number of tuneful selections by the Rednerville band. At 8 o'clock speech making was in order.

Mayor Hanna

Mayor Hanna was the first speaker, and in a few well chosen remarks, referred to the pleasure it was to be present upon such an occasion. The barrier between Prince Edward County and the City of Belleville, namely the toll upon the bay bridge had been removed and the structure was now free to cross. He extended a hearty welcome to residents of Prince Edward to visit the city. The last toll gate in the Province had this morning been removed. He regretted Hon. Mr. Biggs, Minister of Highways, was not able to be present, but had sent a representative in the person of Mr. Hogart, chief engineer of Provincial highways. Hon. Mr. Biggs had done much to make it possible to have a free bridge.

Hon. N. Parliament

Hon. N. Parliament, Speaker of the Legislature Assembly and M.P.P., for Prince Edward County said that all were delighted to take part in this important and pleasing ceremony. It was befitting that this event should have taken place on Canada's Natal Day, namely Dominion Day. It carries out the spirit of the day, namely freedom and uniting more closely together two municipalities. No more fitting day could have been cho en to make the bay bridge free. Th Hon. Speaker in referring to tolls s it was not a matter of sentiment, it seemed almost a crime (if he co be allowed to use that expression) have a toll collected upon a publ highway. All our roads and bridg should be free to citizens who desi to use same. This event was m possible by the Provincial Gover ment making it a Provincial highway from the bridge way to the Town at Picton, the capital of Prince Edward County. This would no doubt redound to the credit of the Provincial Government. Whilst he was present to speak in regard to the free bridge he also desired to say a few words in regard to Prince Edward County. He had no hesitancy in stating that there was no place in Canada that could compare more favorably than this (Prince Edward County) in scenic beauty. This fact was not perhaps so much appreciated by its citizens as it is by tourists and residents outside of the County. We to-day take a great step forward and all will appreciate the tolls being removed from off the bay bridge. By this act the last toll gate has been removed in Ontario. The board designating the toll will be taken down and sent to Toronto to be placed in the Highways Department in the Parliament Buildings. He was pleased that the Government had designated this a Provincial Highway and he hoped that work upon it woul be completed as soon as it was possible to do so. This highway would place Prince Edward County upon the map as never before. In speaking of highways, Hon. Mr. Parliament said that whilst a lot of fault is found by some on account of the large expenditures by the Government on highways, it was a necessity, a greater necessity than hydro radials, though he was by no means opposed to the latter. There should be no friction whatever between cities and urban municipalities. We should all work together with one ideal in view, and that ideal should be to make a greater and better Province, a Province of which all are justly proud, as it was the banner Province of this fair and belove Dominio Canada is destined to country under the sun work together in harmony, be boosters not knockers. Canada was truly and honestly a great country and it behooved all to work harmoniously together to make it the home of the free.—(Applause.)

Provincial Engineer

Mr. George Hogarth, Provincial Engineer of Highways was the last speaker, and in his opening remarks referred to the pleasure it gave him to be present upon such an occasion, namely the freeing of the bay bridge of tolls. It was a structure uniting two great counties, namely, Hastings and Prince Edward. It had cost $85,000 to purchase it, which expenditure has been jointly shared in by the Provincial Government, the City of Belleville and the County of Prince Edward. Aproximately $17,000 was collected yearly in tolls. The speaker spoke of the Government making the road from the bridge to Picton to a Provincial Highway which would no doubt prove advantageous. On behalf of the Government of Ontario he declared the bridge free of tolls.—(Applause).

Hon. N. Parliament and Mayor Hanna then removed the toll board which for years had occupied a place on the side of the toll house. This act caused cheers to be given for a free bridge.

The Parade

This concluded the ceremony and a parade was formed. The Rednersville Band on foot marched across the bridge playing a lively air and was followed by a number of the members of the Lions' Club of Belleville on foot. The first auto behind the club members contained Mayor Hanna, press representatives and police officers. Decorated autos from Prince Edward County and the City brought up in the rear. The autos paraded over to the city and the line of masch included going up and down Front street.

Over And Under

A car gaily decorated with flags and bunting with a streamer across the front bearing the name "Rossmore" attracted considerable attention. Many other cars were decorated.

Hundreds of autos and vehicles crossed the bridge during the day to attend a demonstration that was held at Rednersville to commemorate the event.

Motor boats, skiffs and other crafts were in evidence in considerable numbers about the bay near the swing of the bridge during the ceremony.

Owing to a misunderstanding some of the Aldermen of the city were held up with their cars at the city end of the bay bridge, and did not reach the toll house in time for the speech making. The President and Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce were also among those who were delayed.

The last motor vehicle upon which toll was collected was driven by Mr. T. G. Thompson, baker at Rossmore, who crossed the bridge coming to the city.

The last nickel collected as toll was paid by Mr. A. E. Phillips, a well-known yeoman of Ameliasburg Township, who passed the tol house paid his fare and walked a few feet upon the bridge.

Many copies of the special bridge edition of The Intelligencer were distributed to the assemblage about the toll house and eagerly mopped up.

Zwick's Island, the people's park, looked wounded and forlorn with its scarred water front, a glaring momento of commercialism triumphant over sentiment, and its few and scattered trees, mutely eloquent of the necessity and wisdom of the City Fathers making an annual appropriation for improvements to this breathing spot of the people.

Dr. Fox, of Ameliasburg, it is understood, will be superintendent of the bridge, now that it is operated as a public utility.

Let the celebration continue with souvenir collecting, and the greatest collection of souvenirs, useful, ornamental and otherwise, are massed in the stores of the enterprising merchants of Belleville, who have issued invitations for a four-day get-together jubilation marked by a host of bargains guaranteed to make everybody forget for a time the war and signalize the beginning of the obsequies of Old High Costa Living, who will be buried under an avalanche of joyful bargains.

Overheard on the Bridge—"Do you remember the night the old steamer Passport came down the bay, ignored the open draw and meandered through the next span taking a good section of the bridge along with her? The bridge had to be closed for repairs but the Passport kept right on doing business at the old stand. Nobody hurt but a damaged nose and some powerful language."

Lou Terwilligar was among those present when the bridge was first formally opened to traffic in July 1891, and Lou was also prominent among those present when the bridge was formally opened free of tolls on July 1, 1921. Mr. Terwilligar claims the distinction of having been the first citizen to drive across the bridge during the construction and when completed. Every day during construction he drove on the bridge as far as the planking had progressed until the work had sufficiently advanced to make the entire crossing with his horse and buggy. On this occasion Lou crossed the bridge in his horseless buggy, the ubiquitous automobile having succeeded the horse in his affections as one evidence of the changes wrought in the lives of men during the thirty years which have passed since that other memorable bridge event.

Joyous speeches, ringing cheers, patriotic band music, laughter and the merry melody of friendly greetings marked the mingling of a great host of neighbors from both sides of the water at the long-looked for opening of the Bay Bridge, free of tolls, but a new element was injected into the rejoicing and merry-making in the roaring of the Lions which signified that the occasion was indeed a Royal one when with all humanity glad the King of Beasts could also voice his pleasure. "Roar, Lions! Roar, Lions! Roar, Lions! Eat 'Em! Eat 'Em! Eat 'Em!" rang out vociferously across the waters as the members of the Belleville Lions' Club, always in the forefront of progressive movements, lined up and roared their approval of the people's bridge in vigorous junglese fashion. Belleville Cubs are all right and a real, live force in community progress and service.

Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pen
Stands Supreme

WATERMAN'S Ideal Fountain Pen is the product of an organization that for the past thirty-six years has been making fountain pens exclusively. To-day the line of Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pens covers every proven advance in fountain pen construction.

It includes the regular and safety types of dropper-filled and pump and lever filling devices of the self-filling types.

Being pioneers and recognized leaders of the industry, we are the natural market for inventors with ideas that in their judgment would improve our product.

No one is or has been keener to investigate these claims than we are, because it has been our intention from the first that if ever a better fountain pen than Waterman's Ideal was made we would make it.

It has happened and will happen again that fountain pens appear on the market with "talking point" devices that during our far greater experience we have already experimented with and found either impractical or inferior to devices of our own intended for the same purpose.

The man, woman, or child who buys Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pen gets 100% fountain pen efficiency, because every material, process or device included in it has been proven by the longest years of experience and experiment as unequaled for its purpose.

Back of every Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pen is a world-wide service to assure its enduring satisfaction.

STEVENSON'S IMMORTAL STORY HAS BEEN GIVEN NOTEWORTHY PHOTO-PRODUCTION

Robert Louis Stephenson's immortal story, "Treasure Island," has reached the screen. Maurice Tourneur produced it for Paramount Artcraft release and it will be the feature attraction at Griffin's this Monday to Wednesday. All the color and spirit of high adventure that is in the Stevenson classic has been retained, and the photoplay has been mounted with Mr. Tourneur's mastery of artistic production. The story, which is familiar to all, has been followed closely in the screen version. Jim Hawkins, Bill Jones, Long Silver Ben Gunn-all the familiar characters appear in the life in the picture.

The picture opens in "Benbow Tavern," where at Bill Jones' death young Jim comes into possession of the chart showing the location of Captain Flint's treasure. From there sails the old brigantine in which the squire and his mutinous crew leave on the treasure hunt. Battles with the pirates, the kidnapping of Jim, the fight in the stockade, and the final success follow. GREAT LAKE CRUISES

A voyage over Lakes Huron and Superior, those great fresh water seas, makes one of the most popular of vacation trips. The fleet of the Northern Navigation Company (Grand Trunk route) sailing from Sarnia to Saulte Ste. Marie, Port Arthur, Fort William and Duluth, offers the maximum in comfort, service and safety. From Toronto special Grand Trunk steamboat trains make direct rail connection with the vessels at Sarnia, Ont. The round trip over the Great Lakes occupies six days. The traveller finds each hour filled with ever-changing interests. There is the charm of the daily life on shipboard, the thrilling experience of passing through the locks at Saulte Ste. Marie, the day ashore at Canada's Twin Cities, Fort William and Port Arthur, and the visit to Duluth, the city built upon the mountain side. WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Every day something out of the ordinary is seen by somebody. Let us hear about it. Phone 36, or write The Intelligencer.

When the "What Did You See?" column was started in The Intelligencer we had no idea what we were let in for. It was started for a news novelty with a possible life of a week or so, but it has become so popular that like the Irishman holding the Wildcat who needed no help to hold on "but plenty to let go", the interest seems to be increasing and "What Did You See?" is a favorite topic of conversation everywhere The Intelligencer is read and that about covers the civilized world. But listen Lester, and all others, the "What Did You See" editor is going on his vacation soon, and if the readers desire to keep the light burning brightly in the "What Did You See?" observatory, it is up to them to use their eyes and the telephone and furnish the readable paragraphs of little happenings of the day, just a wee bit or a big bit out of the ordinary. Thanks, I knew you would. See you later.

Make 'em short and snappy, funny if possible, and cut out the personalities. Things that hurt our neighbors are better left unsaid. Thanks, we knew you would keep the beacon burning. Look around and look up and see all the beautiful and strange things hidden to the many without vision and imagination.

Notable Victory For Grand Trunk Baseball Team

G. T. R. 3—OSHAWA 2

It is within the range of possibility that in the town of Oshawa an auto can be built which is in some ways superior to that of other makes of autos, but the town cannot produce a baseball team which is superior or equal to our Grand Trunk Railway team. This was fittingly demonstrated here on Friday afternoon, Dominion Day, when a Central Ontario Baseball League game was played between these two rival teams. It was anticipated that it would be a great game, in fact the game of the season and such it proved to be. Mr. Kay of Peterboro, umpire on strikes and balls stated to representatives of the press who were present, that this was the fifteenth game of ball he had umpired in as many days, and in different leagues, and it was without doubt the best game and could not be surpassed by any amateur teams playing in the province. This statement is from a person who is well qualified to judge. It was a record crowd that assembled at the Agricultural Park to witness a ball game, estimated at 2,500. The game had been scheduled to start at 3 o'clock but as the umpire and visiting team desired to catch a train before 5 o'clock, it was started at 2-45, with Oshawa at the bat. Freddie Goyer was, if possible at his very best and the first three batters who faced him were retired in one, two, three order to the delight of the vast assemblage. It would be unfair to singlize the play of any one member of the G.T.R. team as every player played his position to almost perfection. There may possibly have been one or two inexcusable errors, but fortunately they were not of a costly nature. When the smoke of battle had cleared away, the score was 3 to 2 in favor of Belleville, a glorious victory. Of the three runs secured by the G.T.R., Vernon Weir was responsible for one, when in the fourth innings, after two strikes had been recorded against him he hit the horse hide for a homer. It was a long drive to centre field between second and third bases. During the game Goyer had 8 strike outs to his credit, whilst Dainty had six. Both are left hand pitchers. The game by innings was as follows.

Gov't Report on Crop Conditions

The following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Hay is being cut much earlier than in ordinary seasons. The average yield for clover and timothy will be comparatively light, some representatives putting it at about half a crop.

Alfalfa and sweet clover have been giving more satisfactory results for the first cuttings.

Kent is of the opinion that some fields of fall wheat will be ready for harvesting in about a week, and says that there is considerable Hessian fly in a number of the early sown fields. Rye is also coloring for ripening.

Oats, barley and other spring grains are likely to be short in straw this year unless timely showers come.

Early potatoes are doing well in Lincoln. The representative reports that he marketed some on June the 17th. They have been bringing $3 a bushel in Essex, where the crop has also been unusually early.

Heat Good For Corn

The hot weather has been just the thing for corn, but like the other field crops, it would be the better for more moisture.

Essex reports that outdoor tomatoes were ripening during the week, and have been selling at $3.75 a basket.

Lincoln reports that peach trees in cultivated orchards are recovering from leaf curl.

Blight on Berries

Blight and the hot, dry weather have been lessening both the yield and the length of the bearing season of strawberries in nearly every fruit district. Speaking of the former trouble the Lincoln representative observes: "Expert opinion is divided on the injury caused to strawberry patches. Some contend that it is due to blight, while others contend that the injury has resulted from late spring frosts damaging the roots and so arresting flow of sap."

Raspberries are promising a good yield so far.

Bacon Hogs

Prices of bacon hogs are holding well around $12 a cwt., although a representative in eastern Ontario speaks of a shipment purchased at $10. Young pigs are scarce and dear. The Port Arthur representative reports sales at the weaning age from $10 to $12 each. Brant, however, quotes them as selling at $12 a pair.

Cattle upon the grass are practically at a standstill, as the very warm and dry weather prevailing has been affecting the pasture. There has been a noticeable falling off in the milk flow, but not so seriously as some feared.

During the week cheese has been selling on local boards at from 15 3-16 cents to 17 cents a pound.

The Lambton representative says: "The following incident is typical of the cattle situation as it affects the farmer of this county. One farmer in relating his experience says that he purchased $4,005 worth of stockers last fall, fed them all winter the crop that grew on 170 acres of land, and sold them about a month ago for $4,023. This shows how the farmers have to take their losses."

Price Slump

The Simcoe representative reports: "At a recent sale in this county, of pure-bred live stock, prices showed quite a slump from those of last year, although as far as the bulls were concerned in most cases they brought full value, ranging from $71 to $120 for ordinary year-olds. The cows being a little better bred, brought more; but they were really under value in most cases, the highest price being $202 and the lowest $65."

Lambton, states that a number of married men with families have been placed at wages averaging about $400 a year, with cottage, etc.

4TH LINE SIDNEY

The Lawn social which was held last Friday evening was a decided success. The Foxboro band provided splendid music during the evening others enjoyed them selves with sports such as shipping tug-of-war baseball etc. The proceeds of the evening amounted to $87.00.

WAR ON TUBERCULOSIS EVERBODY ENLISTED.

Tuberculosis is a disease which only the rich, with assured means to defray expenses, can fight without requiring to take advantage of the facilities which are afforded in an institution equipped to combat the dread malady.

To people of moderate means, who live close to their incomes, consumption is a terror, with its slow, long-drawn-out, lingering, torture. The man without any income other than his salary or wage, can not lay off work when he feels the early symptoms of the disease. He has to stick at his job, growing weaker and thinner, while his body cries for rest, relief and air.

When it is too late, when consumption finally makes it's sudden, crimson assault, the salary man or the wage earner, finds himself on his back, with no means to pay for the long, weary, expensive period of battle and slow recovery.

Then is the time when the need of free hospitals to fight the deadliest enemy of man is emphasized.

Typhoid is over in a few weeks; fevers, appendicitis and the commoner ailments of man are of more or less short duration. Money for such emergencies can usually be scraped together with great trouble.

But consumption is a disease that may last for months, if not for years. It brings straightened circumstances and poverty into homes that have usually been free of want.

For this reason as well as for patriotic motives which all must feel in regard to tuberculosis, the National Sanitorium Association is expecting a very substantial response from the salary and wage earners of the province in its Consumptives' Emergency Million Dollar Fund campaign which is now in full swing throughout Ontario.

The emergency arises through the destruction by fire of the Muskoka Free Hospital last November. There about the ruins of the old hospital, where thousands of Ontario folk have made their winning fight, are clustered the tents and cottages in which patients have spent the winter.

A new hospital is urgently needed; and while they are at it, the National Sanitarium Association plan to erect a hospital that will, as nearly as possible, meet the requirements of, and fight the tuberculosis problem in Ontario to a successful issue. The building which it is proposed to erect is not an elaborate and costly fitted up one. It is to be of the simplest and most economical fire-proof construction. The money to be spent is going into size and equipment of building that will accommodate as large a number of consumptive cases as possible.

The wealthy men of the province have responded to the appeal for funds in a generous spirit, but those who are not of the wealthy class have the greatest interest at stake in the new institution.

In this connection it is worthy of special mention that all sections of labor have endorsed the Association's appeal for funds. Labor is represented in the committee by John Doggett, secretary Builders' Trade Council and J. T. Gunn, secretary, Canadian Electrical Trades' Union.

At a recent luncheon held in the King Edward Totel, Toronto, Mr. Doggett, in addressing the gathering said he could not emphasize too strongly the claim the Natilonal Sanitarium Association had upon the working man. He considered the work carried on by the association at their sanitariums and at the Gage Institute in Toronto as highly patriotic and humane and voiced his personal approval of the appeal. He said he would urge every working man to see that he did his bit. "The working man never lets down on a worthy cause and you can rest assured he will not let down on this one," concluded Mr. Doggett.

The war on tuberculosis is being waged for rich and poor alike; every citizen is looked to for real support in the attack.

President Harding is one of the supports of the new high tariff wall the U. S. has raised against Canada. This wall practically puts an embargo on certain lines of Canadian products. And in face of this the Crerar-Drury party are asking Canada to tear down her tariff walls and give American goods the freedom of Canadian markets. A country that emphatically declared against reciprocity will know what to do with proposals that would give everything and get nothing in return. Even the farmer whose cattle and grain are cut off from the U. S. market will realize the value of tariffs as necessary weapons in commercial warfare. And yet the workingmen, who would be swept out of their jobs by the flood of Yankee goods of the Crerar-Drury policy were put in force, are asked to line up with the Farmers' party in West York.—Toronto Telegram.

Of thirteen men and women tried at Toledo for conspiracy to rob the U. S. mails, which were robbed, eleven have been found guilty by a jury, and will be sentenced in due course when others party to the crime have passed the ordeal of the court. The amount involved was over a million dollars, and postal employees were concerned in the job. The stake was a big one; but the gain of the thieves was not permanent. A Government cannot allow a big steal from the post office to pass unpunished.

Hon. Peter Smith, treasurer of Ontario, who is a steady borrower of millions for the use of his government's many construction schemes, feels discouraged because bankers he approached in connection with making still another loan of $20,000,000, think the bonds should be issued at a price to return the purchaser 7 1-2 per cent. interest. This is startling even when the soundest of securities have to pay well over five per cent. to secure their being quoted at par. Some of the trouble, however, seems to be in Ontario rather than in the market. In fighting private enterprise the province seems to be depressing its credit as well as hoisting its debt.—Montreal Gazette.

It is said that the railways contemplate removing the watchman from the bay bridge crossing and substituting a mechanical alarm system. With the abolition of the tolls upon the bay bridge the traffic, already heavy, will be materially increased, and Belleville and Prince Edward County authorities should resist any innovation which would tend to make this crossing less safe for vehicular traffic.

THE LEAGUE'S SECOND BIRTHDAY

Springfield Republican

Centennials are usually necessary in order to arouse a minimum of interest in anniversary celebrations; if a thing is 1,000 or even 500 years old, so much the better. The League of Nations is only two years old, and it is assumed to be deader than ancient Carthage by the Government of our own country; yet 50,000 people in a great foreign capital give it a birthday party at which no less than forty-eight nations are represented! Mr. Harding's new association of nations is yet to be born, and one is inclined to wager that nobody will live to see a great popular celebration of its second birthday.

There are some very respectable business names connected with the Sell Now League, which has been organized for the purpose of encouraging "intensive seling by manufacturers, sales executives, and merchants at the present time." As we understand the aim of the new organization the idea is to combat the sit-tight state of mind which is still prevalent among too many business men who will not recognize that the prices of 1919 are gone with the snows of 1919 that losses must be taken, that goods must be moved, and that the only way to stimulate demand and production is to give up waiting for better times, and to make better times.

THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD

"Unto you that fear My Name shall the Sun of Righteousness arize with healing in His wings."—Malachi iv., 3.

"The people that sat in darkness saw a great light,—and to them that sat in the region and shadow of death is light sprung up."—Matthew v., 15-16.

'O, Sun of Righteousness, arise
In glory, healing, love and might,
Drive fogs of earth from Christmas skies,
And scales of sin from human sight,
Through all the dark, distressful years,
While warfare raged from shore to shore,
Men bowed their heads, and checked their fears,
And crowned Thee King forevermore!

But—with the peril passed—we know
How earthly dreams their ambush laid.
And human hearts were all too slow
To keep the pledge in danger made!
Past, too, the stern and bitter need
That ranged the nations side by side;
Came jealous strife and selfish greed
Their hearts and purpose to divide!

Yet is Thy mercy, still unspent;
No barrier-line in Thee we trace,
For—boundless as the firmament
Thy Christmas message shows Thy grace!
Though war still draws his blood-stained sword,
And misery follows in his train,
Thy world shall yet confess her Lord,
Thy mercy shall not call in vain!

And they who still in darkness pine,
Shadowed by Death, and Sin and Wrong,
Shall they not hail the Light Divine?
Shall they not learn the Angels' Song?
The song of Love that will not die,
The Song of Peace and promise bright,
That, brought by angels from the sky,
Rang through the earth's first Christmas night.

House of My Heart

With glossy boxwood, green and prim
To hedge it all about,
Tall, pointed poplars in a row,
A door-stone broad and wide and low,
O'er which the feet of children go
A-dancing in and out.

Along its patterned garden ways
The red rose nods, the white rose sways
In every passing breeze;
Straight ranks of martial hollyhocks
Stand guard where drowsy four o'clocks
And scented mignonette and stocks
Give harbor to the bees.

Ah, little house all white and trim,
Within your box and poplars prim,
Soft lawns and garden nook,
I figure and I plan and scheme
To find some way to make you seem Less like a deftly painted dream
Within a garden book.

Not a Fighter

Bergdol is said to be real angry at the United States, but from what we know of that bird it isn't likely he'll get mad enough to fight.

But They Bark

Have you ever noticed how polite the trees are? They always bough before leaving.—The Wisconsin Octopus.

Thin, Watery Blood Means Ill Health

RICH, RED BLOOD BRINGS BRIGHT EYES AND ROSY CHEEKS

The girl who returns home from school or from work thoroughly tired out will be fortunate if she escapes a physical breakdown, because this getting tired so easily is probably the first warning symptom of a thinning blood that must not be disregarded if her health is to be preserved.

When the blood becomes thin and impure the patient becomes pale. She not only tires out easily but often suffers from headaches, palpitation of the heart, dizzy spells and a loss of appetite.

In this condition Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will be found to have a beneficial action on the blood. Miss Delima Lafreniere, St. Ambrose, Man., has proved this in her own case, and advises others to use these pills. She says: "Before I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I felt like a complete wreck of my former self. My blood was poor and thin. I suffered from faint and dizzy spells, and had backaches and headaches almost every day. I decided to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial, and by the time I had used three boxes I felt much better and I continued taking the pills until I felt as well as I ever did. For what they did in my case I cannot recommend these pills too highly."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be obtained from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The farmer who has his farm bought and paid for requires a policy different from the one carried by a farmer with a mortgage to pay off.

The "Little Black Book" contains Mutual Life plans for everybody. It contains plans of insurance with which you are not familiar—one of these unfamiliar plans might be the very best for you. Consult the Mutual Life Agent.

TANATED CALOMEL

The Only Drug Known That Acts Upon the Liver

Excellent for Headaches, Indigestion, Constipation, Rheumatism, Pimples, Etc.

You no doubt have been taking all sorts of medicines for your particular ailments, but you only get temporary relief and sometimes no relief at all. The reason for this is due to the fact that none of the things you have taken act upon the liver. The liver is the cause of 99 per cent. of the ailments susceptible to the human system. When the liver is inactive and does not excrete bile, the intestines become clogged up with poisonous waste, and this poison is carried to all parts of the body, causing all sorts parts of the body, causing all sorts of of ailments, as headaches, indigestion, ailments, as headaches, indigestion, constipation, rheumatism, etc. Doctors recommend that you take one Tanated Calomel Tablet about 15 minutes before meals, or two at bedtime, and in 1 or 2 days you will feel 100 per cent. better. The reason that Tanated Calomel is better than any other form of Calomel is because it acts without griping, and is self-eliminating, and no salts, castor oil, or seidlitz are necessary to remove it from the system.

Save The Children

Mothers who keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house may feel that the lives of their little ones are reasonably safe during the hot weather. Stomach troubles, cholera infantum and diarrhoea carry off thousands of little ones every summer, in most cases because the mother does not have a safe medicine at hand to give promptly. Baby's Own Tablets relieve these troubles, or if given occasionally to the well child will prevent their coming on. The Tablets are guaranteed by a government analyst to be absolutely harmless even to the newborn babe. They are especially good in summer because they regulate the bowels and keep the stomach sweet and pure. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Salaries of ministers in Provincial government and indemnities of members of Provincial Legislatures are liable to income tax.

RADIUM IN MEDICINE.

Doctors Are Making Use of Rare Element.

If purchases can be taken as an indication, it would seem that medical men are approaching unanimity of opinion with reference to the use of radium, which at one time was held to be without value by at least one important group. Recent heavy purchases of the rare element by medical men indicate the tendency and emphasize the necessity of conservation.

It is estimated that there have been between 105 and 110 grams of radium recovered from the ore thus far, of which 70 grams were from American ores. The European reserve stocks were practically exhausted for war purposes, being used principally for luminous dials and elsewhere in forms which mean its absolute loss to science. Competent authorities estimate that there are probably between 20 and 22 grams in the United States at the present time, part of which is that owned by the Bureau of Mines and loaned for medicinal purposes.

The necessity for conservation becomes more evident when it is understood that the ore bearing the radium occurs in pockets, that the surface pockets have been practically exhausted, and that future supplies must come for the most part from those pockets which can be located by drilling. It is evident that this carries a considerable degree of uncertainty and while authorities differ as to the amount of radium that will possibly be recovered from now on, conservative estimators place it at a total of 100 grams.

According to a bulletin of the United States Geological Survey, the widest-known deposits of the minerals furnishing the bulk of the world's radium are in Colorado and Utah. Radium ores, we are told, are generally found in connection with granite masses—that is, in places where granite forms at least part of the rock of the country.

Radium is described as having a white metallic lustre. It has been isolated only once or twice, and few persons have seen it. It is ordinarily obtained from ores in the form of hydrous sulphate chloride, or bromide, and it is in the form of these salts that it is usually sold and used. These are all white, or nearly white, substances, whose appearance is no more remarkable than that of common salt or baking powder. Radium, radium salts and radium minerals are not generally luminescent. Tubes containing radium salts glow because they include impurities that the radiations from the radium cause to give light.

Radium is found in nature in quantities so exceedingly small that it is never visible when the material is examined with a microscope. Radium ore ordinarily carries only a small fraction of a grain of radium to the ton, and radium will never be found in large masses, because it is formed by the decay of uranium—a process that is wonderfully slow; and radium itself changes to other elements so rapidly that it does not accumulate naturally in visible masses.

Farming In the Philippines.

Grass cannot be cured in the Philippines, because of the great humidity. As a consequence it is cut fresh every day and brought into the towns and cities for sale at a stipulated price per cargo, two bundles weighing about 125 pounds. It is cut with a small home-made knife, and washed in running water before being placed in the bundle. American horses cannot live on it, but native horses eat it and grow fat. Guinea grass and Bermuda are the commonest kinds of grasses grown for horses in the islands. For American horses and mules hay is imported into Manilla. On account of excessive rains oats cannot be grown in the islands; rust affects it. Corn grows well; Filipino farmers can harvest three crops a year from a single piece of ground. To keep it, it is necessary to leave it in the husk, otherwise weevils destroy it. It is tied in bundles and hung on bamboo poles and husked and shelled as needed. Corn mills are now being established in the Visayan Islands, where the natives prefer cornmeal to rice as a staple food.

Substitute for Wood-Wool.

Sea-grasses are suggested as a packing material in place of wood-wool. The fibres of sea-grass are light, elastic, non-inflammable, odorless, and non-rotting; advantages which are of considerable importance when perishable foodstuffs are being packed. It is stated in the Bulletin de l'Institut Oceanographique, that the elasticity of this material is three times as great as that of wood-wool, which means that notwithstanding the fact that the cost of production is somewhat higher, the use of sea-grass fibre would be twice as economical as the most economical packing hitherto employed. This material is slightly lighter than wool-wood.

"Rain of Blood."

The "Rain of Blood," a curious phenomenon of South France and Italy, occurred recently at Monte Carlo and Mentone. After the downpour ceased the roofs, roads, gardens and shrubs of the Riviera were covered with sticky crimson. The superstitious inhabitants of the gambling metropolis were much terrified. There is, however, a scientific explanation which is perfectly satisfactory. It is that the rain clouds had been saturated with red sand from the Sahara Desert.

A Forcible Negative.

Manager—"Trimble won't give us any more orders, eh?"

Traveler—"Well, he didn't say so in so many words, but that's what he gave me to understand."

"How so?"

"He kicked me out."

Steer Clear of Mutts

ONE-MINUTE ESSAYS ON HEALTH BY DR. WM. P. REDICK

There are Mutt ideas in health as in every other line of knowledge, and the principal thing in steering clear is to understand that health methods divide into three classifications — the chemical, the mental and the mechanical.

Doctors of the chemical classification use drugs and serums; those of the mental school use mental suggestion; and those of the mechanical school (chiropractors) correct diseased conditions by restoring mechanical alignment of the spine. The "mutt" idea to avoid is that any one of these methods can consistently be used to correct all diseases inside or outside of its classification.

Chiropractic spinal adjustments are removing the cause of diseases in the head, throat, lungs, heart, stomach, liver kidneys, intestines and lower organs of the body.

A LITTLE JOURNEY

The following is from the March number of "Organization" published by the Porte Publishing Co., Salt Lake City. It appears in "A Little Journey" by R. T. Porte, who goes over the country teaching printers how to use a "cost system."

"After an all-night ride and a change of cars at Albia, Iowa, arrived at noon at Kirksville, Missouri, and was rushed by automobile to a meeting of the Rotary Club, where all the principal business men of Kirksville sat at luncheon. Here, I discovered that Dr. George A. Still, the celebrated osteopath and noted surgeon, was president of the Rotary Club, and after greeting me as a stranger from away out west, I was given the privilege of addressing the Rotary Club on costs, and explaining the bases of the prices in the Franklin Printing Price List. Questions by various business men present were answered to their apparent satisfaction.

"In the afternoon visited some of the shops of Kirksville and the celebrated American School of Osteopathy. Was examined by Dr. Still for what ailed me. After being X-rayed inside and outside, upside and downside and given the once or twice over by the doctor and his assistants, he said he would write me when I returned as to what was the matter and what to do.

"I cannot speak too highly of this institution and the thorough manner in which it is being conducted. Always being an admirer of osteopathy, and especially from the fact that they treat the backbone—that is something which almost every printer needs adjusting and treating—I admire it more than ever after seeing the institution and the thoroughness with which the courses of study are conducted and the method of applying science to the treatment of human ills."

THE SUBSTITUTE

By Will. N. Harben

"That's right, shoot at me, you dirty coward," said Buckley defiantly. "Here I stand in the light, and I can't pick you out in the dark. Shoot, you cowardly sneak!"

"Put that gun down," cried a determined voice in the throng. "You harm George Buckley an' I'll put daylight through you."

There was a sound of a struggle, stifled oaths and the clash of a revolver as it struck the pavement. It was followed by grumbling words, hot disputing and—silence.

"You are a set of cowards," said Buckley, "running like a pack of wolves after a poor boy for what he said and did when he was drunk. Now, clear out, the last one of you! You know who I am—and you know if there is any one of you, or any three, that want to hold me responsible for this step I'll be on hand. Has any one here any row to pick with Jeff Truitt, then let him speak up. I'll represent him. I'm in a fighting mood tonight and will satisfy just as many as will apply."

"An' he'll do it, too, boys," said an admiring voice. "Buckley's got the right stuff in 'im! Come on, let's go home. George seems friendly to the cuss, an' any friend o' his is safe as fur as I'm concerned."

"Same here," joined in another voice. "Buck, yo're all right, but that's a dern slack wad yo're takin' up fer, as shore as yo're knee high to a duck."

"Well, he's my friend, and I'm his mother's friend," said Buckley. "A mob like yours shan't send his corpse home to her if I can help it."

"He'd be about as much use to 'er that a-way as in his natural condition," laughed a man near the front. "But ef she hankers after 'im, an' Buckley wants 'im to live on, I'll withdraw my claim. This is the sort of rabbit hunt I don't much like nohow."

A laugh rose and went round. It was a favorable sign. George lowered his revolver. "Go home, boys," he said wearily. "I'm sorry I spoke as I did just now. You are all my friends; I can see that. Good night."

They stood for an instant as if uncertain what step to take, but Buckley's last words had completely disarmed them. Slowly they disbanded and straggled away. When they were all lost in the darkness George closed the door and locked it. Just then Jeff Truitt emerged from the darkness in the interior of the building and, with hanging head and downcast eyes, drew near.

"Oh, George," he faltered, "I wish they had killed me. I'm a coward. I was afeard of 'em—afeard of 'em!"

"It wasn't that, my boy; don't you believe it," said George consolingly. "You were simply stampeded. The best soldiers are that way when they see overwhelming numbers approaching. You've got grit, but they tell me you have to fill up with whisky to float it."

"But you wasn't afeard of 'em," wailed the boy.

"Yes; I was—at first," said Buckley. "I shook all over, and then I got drunk with rage, just like you do on whisky. It's the same thing—just as wide as it's long. Don't you bother; you'll fight, Jeff. If I'd thought you were a coward I'd never been the friend to you I am. My Lord, don't I remember, away back at the log schoolhouse, how Press Tiffton bullied you all day, pinching you, calling you names, and finally, when he began to bump your head against the wall, you turned in and gave him the worst licking he ever had? He had black eyes and puffy jaws for a week. Some men are that way—just don't like trouble and stay away from it till it's shoved on them. How did they happen to come here for you?"

"They went home after me, I reckon," said the boy, "an' when they found out I was here they come on to get liquor an' settle with me. Ef you was me, George, what would you do—go home tonight? You know the folks will be a-worryin'."

"No; you stay here and sleep with me," said George. "I'm not going to risk you anywhere else tonight."

They went back to the bedroom, Buckley carrying the light. As they passed the big fireproof vault in the office Jeff said, "Looks like it would be resky to leave jest one man here with a whole lot o' money in a safe like that, George."

"It has a combination lock," Buckley told him. "It would take an expert burglar several hours to open it, and the noise would wake me. That's why I sleep here. Nearly all the poor people in the mountains and here in town deposit their savings with us. It's a big responsibility, but the safe and vault are the best in the state. They are better than those at the bank uptown, an' that's why the people want to deposit with us. It's a lot of trouble, but Mr. Hillyer likes to accommodate them."

"And thar's always a lots o' money in the safe, I reckon," said Jeff.

"Thousands of dollars, my boy," replied Buckley; "but it's fireproof, and the risk is very little, as I told you. I am in this room every night, and when I go away Kenner sleeps here."

"But thar's another thing you hain't thought of," said Jeff. "Robbers sometimes slip up on a man, git 'im well covered an' then force 'im to open a safe. What would you do in a case like that, George?"

Buckley laughed. "I haven't thought of that, I'll admit," he answered; "but, with the responsibility on me like it is, I believe I'd die fighting rather than voluntarily give in."

"That ud be foolishness," said Jeff. "What's money—even a fortune—to a man's life?"

"It's different with me, my boy." George placed the lamp on the little table. "You could give in and many others could and nothing would be said about it, but if I did it they would say it was—my father's weakness cropping out in another generation. That would be the general verdict, Jeff. Folks are that way."

VOL. LIV. NO. 142. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, JULY 4, 1921. PRICE TWO CENTS

THE EAST IN THE WEST

If we were only visiting the East—my wife and I—we would probably say nothing. First, because there are certain conventions which even we Westerners recall, but more likely because the East would still be showing us that mask of smiling indulgence which it wears for the benefit of the plainsman—and we should never have guessed its real forbearance underneath.

But having been brought here, so to speak, by royal command of an Eastern head office, and having been given the inestimable boon of enduring the most interfering traffic police and the most acquiescent criminal police in the world, we are accepted as Easterners! There is no longer any mask. This enables us to speak, as it were, within the family circle, with the mask hanging on a peg behind the door.

Western Irreverence

Eastern universities feel just a little dismayed at the irreverence with which the Western student addresses himself to some of the age-old problems of metaphysics or natural science, and the breeziness with which he takes off his coat, makes his rough preliminary measurements, and proceeds to deal with that problem as cheerfully as though nobody had ever tried it before and failed! Undoubtedly this is a little crude, and the boy will probably fail and never have so much courage again, but his way, this Western way, will ultimately solve more problems than the way of the head shaker and the doubter who cherish as holy relics the traditions of other men's failures.

Among the bank people her in the East there is an attitude of restrained wonder. Well-well! What will the West do noxet. Three-quarters admiring—and a little bit afraid.

Colossal Sacred Books

And in railway circles I know high officials with whom, after a conversation at Saturday lunch, I have been invited back to empty offices to be shown colossal sacred books that showed—there was no doubting it—how poor Bill Langley's head for figures had gone wrong again! How Bill, in public addresses before the Railway Commission, solemnly swore that he had shipped—let me see—1,800 bushel of oats and only made $250 because, forsooth, the railway rates had gobbled up the rest. Well, the railway rates hadn't done this gobbling up the rest, it seemed. There were the books, and there were the pages, and there were the columns—and there the figures. If Bill's oats had been of the lowest grade, and if they had been shipped on the longest haul at the highest rate and sold for the lowest price in the year he was talking about—why Bill must have got at least $522 for his 1,800 bushels instead of the $250 which he told the world about. And if his oats had been high-priced oats, he would have had nearer $700. But he said, said the railwayman that he got only $250 and that the railways had taken the rest.

Oats for Instance

I could have told these Eastern railway officials even worse examples of election-time arithmetic than this one. There is far more careless addition and subtraction right here in the East. But if they wanted Western cases—there was that farmer mentioned by Bill Langley, who claimed that 6,000 bushels of oats on which he paid 13 cents a bushel freight rate, would not net him more than 11 cents after paying for threshing. Well if his oats had been of the lowest grade, and sold at the lowest price that is 42 5-8 cents, he must still have had 18 cents a bushel with which to pay the thresher. Of course every farmer knows that no thresherman ever got 18 cents a bushel. The inference in this case was that once more the railways were getting it.

Cost of Binder

There was also the case of Mr. Brown of the United Farmers of Manitoba who says that the cost of a binder laid down at Pilot Mound, Manitoba, is now $48 higher than it was last year, and that the railway rates are to blame for $22 out of the $48. I happen to know from an implement manufacturer that the entire freight costs of a five-foot binder if shipped in carloads from Hamilton, or Toronto to Pilot Mound in the spring of 1920 was $12.16; in April 1921, $16.40 an actual difference of $4.24. If carried in carloads to Winnipeg and reshipped as an individual binder from that point to Pilot Mound the total freight cost in 1920 was $19.25, and in 1921 $25.25, a difference of $6. Mr. Brown's estimate of the increase alone was greater than the entire cost.

Western Arithmetic

But could you explain to Eastern railway officials that poor Bill Langley's figures, and poor Mr. Brown's figures must not be mistaken for Western arithmetic. That because Langley was a cabinet minister the Western farmer was not fooled into thinking that two and two make five, simply because Bill sometimes thinks so. Surely the East has seen just such foolish examples of arithmetic in the strain of election fighting. There is no higher level of native intelligence anywhere in this world than among the people I come from, the kind that had the courage to march up to a new country and say: "Here! I am going to tame you," and stick to it, although that country might still send all its forces of snow and wind and old-time loneliness to try to drive them back. As proof of the fact Langley was defeated in the Saskatchewan elections—rejected along with his arithmetic.

Eastern Investors

But leave the railways out of it. Among the small Eastern investors—the kind with whom my business brings me in frequent contact—I find what I might almost call sublime conceit in supposing that they can see through the charlatan and discover the fraud out West twice as quickly as the West itself. "No," quavers one of these very nice people with perhaps $1,000 to invest "I don't think I care to hold any more western school debentures" or city bonds, or whatever it is "until I see." There is a bit too much demagogery out there. Too many young lawyers strutting around and flitting with parlor Bolshevism. Not just the O.B.U. strikes in Winnipeg, though that was bad enough—but I heard of a case etc.," I wonder how many of the well-informed easterners know the amount of buncombe of that kind is talked among the little investors in the East and in England, timid people to whom the loss of the interest on even one debenture would mean some bill unpaid, some comfort done without?

West and East

The West is just as sane as the East, it sees through its own demagogues just as quickly and perhaps a little more quickly than the easterner. The western farmer is the last man in the world to tolerate Bolshevism. If, as I suppose, the basis of this eastern distrust is due to sometimes extravagant attacks on the railways by western orators, the East should remember that one of the surest ways a young lawyer can take for getting into the public eye out West, and winning a good constituency is to quote Scripture and rag the railways. It is always better for a family doctor to tell a lady patient she has XYZ-ism of the A.B.C. than to tell her the truth that she is really suffering from run-down nerves, unwise eating, late hours, too much coffee, worry over her children, and acidosis of the temper. She would never recover. So these popular and wise young doctors of state flourish the sword of scriptural quotation and shout "have you troubles good people? Stop worrying. Your public ailments are really very simple. You think you have many, but you really have only one—railway rates. "If explained the whole combination of economic conditions that cause this or that unpleasant symptom he would put the wise men in his audience to sleep, and the rest would be frightened to death. But the West, which is mostly wise, is not fooled even by his promise to bring low the great. It winks and enjoys the fire-works. It knows very well when he quotes the Scripture to liken the Winnipeg Board of Trade to Judas Iscariot, that he had to ask a Methodist preacher to look up the quotation, because the leaves of the office Bible, used for swearing affidavits, are pasted together to keep it from falling open and embarrassing some client in the middle of a perfectly good deal. These youngsters get up and talk about the psychology of the farmer—as though any self-respecting farmer would admit having such a thing, and as though these young orators had ever heard the matutinal roster or sweated behind a binder. The West knows that when this lad gets to Parliament and his party is in power, responsibilities will sober him up. It knows that he knows that nobody understands better than the West the importance of having railways prosperous enough and ambitious enough to carry on as leaders in the development of the whole country.

Of course it is foolish to pretend that demagogery is not dangerous. It is. Fragments of rash speeches, traversing wires and cables, have often frightened shut the pocket-books of people who have never seen a prairie sunrise over the harvest fields. But westerners are no more given to this vice than anyone else. Free speech is a British heritage and it is up to the intelligent easterner or old countryman to make enquiries or to suspend judgment before deciding that the West intends to wreck the C.P.R. in order to get rails to build fences.

Happy Children at Play Grounds Opening

FORMAL OPENING OF EAST BELLEVILLE PLAYGROUNDS A GREAT SUCCESS

Between three and four hundred kiddies having the time of their lives, groups of mothers enjoying a respite from the blistering heat in the cooling shade of the big trees, swings, slides, sand boxes, and other playtime accessories, together with a booth from which the ladies of the East Belleville Playground Association were handing out ice cream cones, cooling drinks and candies, made up an animated and attractive scene at the official opening of the East Belleville Playground Association Saturday afternoon. Any citizen who visited this splendid playground Saturday afternoon was well repaid for the visit by sharing in the contagious enjoyment of the children and the contentment reflected upon the faces of the mothers present.

The East Belleville Playgrounds Association working under the auspices of the Women's Institute, is composed of the following officers: Mrs. John McFee, President; Mrs. R. B. Chadwick, vice-president; Mrs. D. V. Sinclair, secretary; Mrs. W. Boyes treasurer.

Miss Bessie Ketcheson is the supervisor in charge.

Mr. Thos. Ritchie is largely responsible for the financing of the playgrounds, paying the salary of the supervisor, and this philanthropic gentleman also pays the salary of the West Belleville playgrounds.

Two slides, seven large swings, eight baby swings, two giant strides, two sand boxes, a tennis court, tether ball, basket ball and teters, make up the present equipment of the play ground and it is proposed to add an ocean wave to give additional pleasure to the children.

A pleasant feature of Saturday's opening was the fact that fourteen children from the Children's Shelter were among the throng of happy kiddies enjoying every minute of the occasion. The Shelter children were in charge of Miss Harris, the matron. Among the Shelter children present were three healthy looking boys who until they came to the Shelter recently had never seen a bed and had to be shown how to use one. Their little lives thus far had been spent in the most primitive of surroundings, few clothes, little food and their bed the floor of a shack which did duty for a home. They had never seen a swing before and had to be instructed in the use of this favorite recreation of childhood. Another little chap present with an ice cream cone in one hand, an all-day sucker in the other and a smile of supreme content on his wee face, is a mute, life being to him one long silence, relieved only by the soundless music of the flowers, and trees and beautiful things of the world which speak to him through his eyes, so aptly described as the windows of the soul.

The City Fathers should visit the playgrounds and see the great community service being rendered there to children and parents. Such a visit would prove what an excellent civic investment the playgrounds are and the wisdom of placing lights in the grounds and a water service. At present there is no water service which is a great handicap to the efficiency of the work. Lights are also necessary as the plant is often damaged by night prowlers who work unobserved in the dark.

Children are the chief asset of any community, the future citizens, and every effort should be made to improve their recreation facilities, give them places to play under efficient supervision and thus develope the foundations of a healthy, vigorous and moral citizenship which will help to make a bigger, better and more beautiful Belleville in the days to come.

Well Dressed Women Pose as Robbers

SIX OF THEM IN MONTREAL IN GANG, USE FINE CARS AND DAINTY "GUNS".

Montreal, June 30.—Women highway robbers, armed with dainty revolvers, richly dressed, and driving luxurious automobiles, are now plying their trade in Montreal, and are succeeding in extorting money from their victims by new methods, according to the story of one who escaped their toils.

While walking home from Dominion Park recently, a citizen was overtaken by a respectable-looking woman driving a high-powered Cadillac. She asked him if he would like a lift. He assented and asked to be driven to the Windsor Hotel. Instead of taking him there, however, the woman drove to a deserted house in the country. She invited him to enter, and the citizen accepted her invitation. As soon as they crossed the threshold his companion pulled out a revolver and demanded his money. A struggle followed, terminating in a victory for the man.

The woman then made a strange confession. She said that she had robbed several citizens in this way, and was one of a gang of six women engaged in a similar occupation. The affair ended in her driving him to the Windsor Hotel, where he saw the last of her. However, he reported the matter to the police.

Admiral Sims Speak Plainly About Military Matters

ATTITUDE OF UNITED STATES REGARDING ACTUAL WARFARE CONDITIONS COMPARED WITH OTHER COUNTRIES—CRITICISM SOMETIMES REWARDED IN OTHER COUNTRIES.

NEWPORT, R.I., July 4.—The attitude of the United States, which he said not only had always neglected to provide for public criticism of officers and armed forces, but has actually forbidden it, was contrasted with that of some European powers by Rear Admiral William Sims in an address today here, in which he urged public discussion as a safeguard to public interests. In some continental powers, he declared, criticism was recognized as so vital to efficiency that it was rewarded when it proves beneficial.

The people of the United States, Admiral Sims said, know less about the elements of warfare and less about the actual condition of their military forces than the people of any other great power.

Tornado Demolishes South Dakota Town

ONE MAN KILLED WHEN HOUSE IS TORN FROM FOUNDATIONS

Aberdeen, S.D., July 3.—A tornado struck Frederick, South Dakota, last night, killing one man and causing over $100,000 damage.

Practically every building in the town was demolished.

Arne Anderson, who was assisting his family to the basement of their home, was killed in his effort to escape when the house was torn from its foundation.

The storm broke here at 8-45 o'clock last night, accompanied by an eighty-mile-an-hour wind. Nine injuries, not considered serious, were reported to-day over practically demoralized lines of communication. Damage here is estimated at $350,000. The storm came as a climax to ten-days severe heat, and although it caused great property damage, agricultural authorities believed crops would be saved as the result of the moisture, which was badly needed. A string of 19 cars was blown out of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul yards at Ipswich.

TRIED HYPNOTISM TO GET BACK HUSBAND'S LOVE

Fortier was arrested some time ago on complaint of Mrs. Poitras following an unsatisfactory attempt to recover her husband's affection through the hypnotic aid of the accused.

His honor severely castigated Fortier's claims in this case. By guaranteeing the return of the truant husband, Judge Decarie said, he was putting forward a claim which he was incapable of justifying.

AERIAL PAGEANT

London, June 30-(By Canadian Press)-Canadians here are taking a keen interest in the Aerial Pageant, in aid of the Royal Air Force Memorial Fund, to be held at Hendon, Saturday. A large crowd of Canadian men served in the Royal Air Force during the war and interest has been added to the event through the fact that they will participate in the benefits. Last year the pageant provided $35,000 for the fund and it is expected that a greater amount will be realized this year. Preparations have been made on an elaborate scale.

Many sides of warfare in the air will be depicted by skilled flyers, including fighting in the air, air raids and a realistic and elaborately staged representation of the bombing of a village by a fleet of airships.

Royalty will be in attendance at the spectacle. The objects for which the fund is being established include the building of a monument; the establishment of places of education for the children of airmen and assistance for officers and men of the forces during sickness. Of the 400,000 pounds sterling needed, about 1-3 has been raised.

The fund was started on the initiative of Air-Marshal Sir Hugh Trenchard, to commemorate the services during the war of the Royal Flying Corps, to which all Canadian airmen were attached; the Australian Flying Corps; the Naval Air Service and the Royal Air Force.

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Every day something out of the ordinary is seen by somebody. Let us hear about it. Phone 36, or write The Intelligencer.

Here is the opinion of one reader of the "What Did You See? column: I think your "What Did You See? idea is splendid, and I am sure that little reports from people on unusual things which they happen to see, would offer several useful suggestions which would perhaps prove helpful to the betterment of conditions in general.—R.

No Flag on City Hall

R.—Friday was Dominion Day, a day on which all true Canadians should display their loyal thoughts by adding some little decoration to their homes and places of business, perhaps at least one little Union Jack. I saw a large flag flying on the Government Dock also one on the coal boat "Lyman M. Davis", the "Grace M. Filer" also showed her loyalty by flying the Old Flag, it certainly did look nice and it proved to us that some persons wished to call to our memory, the Day on which our beautiful Land of the Maple was made a Dominion. I was very much surprised to see that there wasn't the sign of a flag on our City Hall or Court House, it seems a shame to put our visitors from other towns and cities under the impression that our beautiful Ideal City, which they read of our boosting so much, cannot afford to buy a flag to decorate our prominent buildings, when we can afford to squander so many thousands on the Bay Bridge, unfortunate isn't it?.

Dance of the Mosquitoes

J.X.L.—Many and widely different were the ways in which the people of the city and vicinity celebrated the freeing of the Bay Bridge. One young married couple, I think are deserving of mention in this column. A rumor reached the ears of the husband that a great dance was going to be held on the Bay Bridge at night to complete the celebration of the day. He, of course, told wifey and the two walked way over to the Bridge. Behold! The Bridge was dark and dreary mosquitoes alone danced the hours away on that Bridge. The remarks that little wife made to her most respected spouse are not to be repeated, but they were spicy and direct.

New Fashions in Church

P.C.R.—Those attending church on Sunday felt the heat keenly, especially those who attended 11 o'clock service. Several gentlemen evidently placed their earthly comfort above all other things, as they appeared in church minus the usual coat. Is this the beginning of a new era in Sunday costumes or simply a slip?

Boy Scout News

The 1st Belleville Troop received a letter of thanks from the chairman of the Million Dollar Emergency Fund for the Free Hospital for Consumptives. This shows the citizens of Belleville that the Boy Scouts of this city are ready and willing to take part in any good public cause. The Scout motto is "Be Prepared," and the 1st Belleville Troop is always on the alert to do a good turn. In other cities and towns the citizens line right up behind the Boy Scout movement and keep the fires burning; but in Belleville the citizens have not yet wakened up to the fact that it is their duty to take part in boys' work; and the various organizations whose aim it is to help boys' organizations in this city, haven't realized that there is one organization in this place which has done more public work than any two other organizations and is in need of public support.

NOTES.

There will be a baseball practice tonight at 6.30 at the High School grounds of both senior and junior teams. Both teams will go to Twelve O'Clock Point on Wednesday, July 6, to play the Trenton Scouts.

The Trenton Scouts are coming to Belleville in a big motor launch to take the scouts up. They will leave the government dock at 8 a.m. sharp.

A scout meeting will be held Tuesday night, July 5th, at 7.30 sharp. Bugle practice the same night.

The troop will go across the bay Thursday morning, July 7, for a three-day camp and full training in scout work, leaving troop headquarters at 9 a.m. All scouts going should be at the scout meeting on Tuesday night.

The Junior team beat the Life-Saving Scouts of this city in a game of ball on Dominion Day at Twelve O'Clock Point.

PIRATE SHIP IN "TREASURE ISLAND"

If you want to abandon for a while your workday worries the Irish skirmishes, and the warm weather, and the like and to be transported into another world of high adventure, pirates and fights on the sea and land, go to Griffin's Tonight and see Maurice Tourneur's motion picture made from Robert Louis Stevenson's classic "Treasure Island." In a truly remarkable degree this producer has preserved the romantic flavor of Stevenson's novel. He has created a true-to-life atmosphere and given the various roles in charge of players who enact them with sympathy and spirit Shirley Mason imparts a charm and piquancy to the part of little Jim Hawkins that no boy actor could hope to duplicate. Lon Chaney, "The Frog" of "The Miracle Man", is a master of malignity in the dual roles of Pew and Merry. Charles Ogle is inimitable as Long Tom Silver.

George Seitz and Marguerite Courtot in the second chapter of the gripping mystery serial "Velvet Fingers," 2 reel western drama, "Poor Innocent" an original and amusing 2 reel comedy and a Burton Holmes Travelogue are also being exhibited on the same program.

300,000 Canadian Motorists Can Benefit
By Goodyear's 2 New Anti-Skid 30 x 3½ Tires.

In Canada alone 300,000 Motorists use 30 x 3½ tires, and a great number of them are farmers. Their ideals of tire qualities vary. Road conditions and weather conditions vary. But every one of them wants long mileage. So every Goodyear Tire is built for full mileage.

For years the road-grip and mileage of the Goodyear All-Weather Tread 30 x 3½ Tire have made it the most widely used tire in Canada—and in the world. It has appealed particularly to the man who must drive on country roads.

But Goodyear learned how to make it better. And in the Goodyear institution every known betterment must be used. So the Goodyear All-Weather Tread Clincher (30 x 3½ and 31 x 4) is now made rougher and tougher, bigger and handsomer. It is a new tire in Canada, with new economy qualities—tested and proved on thousands of cars in other countries.

But many motorists do not require the extraordinary gripping power of the All-Weather Tread. They prefer a saving in cost. For them, over 4,000 Goodyear dealers will recommend the new "Goodyear Non-Skid" 30 x 3½. A tire of full Goodyear quality for mileage, with a tough, rough tread of parallel bars. Several hundred thousand new cars the world over have introduced motorists to this new tire of heaping value.

FOOTBALL

Belleville G.T.R. vs. Trenton

This game was called for ten o'clock Friday morning at the fair grounds in Trenton. Mr. W. H. Ireland, M.P.P., kicked-off before a large crowd, as this was the start of a big programme for Citizens' Day. Belleville won the toss and from a free kick Anderson was called on to save. Ford and Payne then made headway on the right and Taylor cleared. Midfield play followed and by good combination Harvey got through and Anderson cleared. Trenton was soon at the other end and forced a couple of corners which were well placed by Houston, but without results. End-to-end play followed, Ingram defending well. Then Scott had a shot at the goal, which went wild. Trenton kept up the pressure, and Knott had to handle several. times. From a scramble Robinson had to give a corner, which was cleared, but it was a narrow save for Belleville. The Belleville forwards now got going and Joe Potts checked at the right moment. The ball was going from one wing to the other and some nice footwork was shown. Trenton again attacked, but could not beat the Belleville defence, which was hard pressed. At half time neither team had scored.

During the interval the finish of an eight-mile bicycle race was witnessed.

The second half was now resumed and both teams meant to put over the winning goal. White tried a long shot, which was cleared, and Gorman passed to Knott, who made a good run, but Ingram relieved. For a time the Trenton defence was kept busy, Hickin putting in a shot which struck the crossbar. Then Lancaster forced a corner, which was cleared, and Trenton went to the other end and Onyon put in a hot shot, which Knott saved only by a great effort. Trenton still pressed and Smith shot just a little wide. Belleville now made desperate efforts to put one across and Gill shot hard, which Anderson cleverly saved. A free kick was awarded Belleville, but nothing resulted. The home forwards now tried hard and by nice dribbling kept Taylor busy and a corner was taken. Once when Taylor slipped Smith had a great chance, but kicked over. Grant put in a hard shot for Belleville and midfield play followed until Smith put his side going, but Robinson pulled them up by heading away. Both teams tried hard to notch a goal, but the whistle blew for time with no goals scored. Both goalies gave a clever exhibition by keeping out some hard drives. It was a very good game, to say that this was Trenton's first game. For the home team, Ingram, Smith and Joe Potts were the pick. Mr. Hodgson of Trenton was referee and handled the game to everyone's satisfaction. McWaters and Coates were linesmen. The return game will be played at Belleville at a future date. Trenton are anxious to secure dates with Oshawa, Campbellford and other teams.

"I Know What I'm Talking About"

HUNNEYSETT SAYS HE'S TRIED IT AND KNOWS WHAT IT WILL DO—TROUBLES OVERCOMT

"Nobody can tell me anything about Tanlac, I've tried it myself and know, for I gained twenty-three pounds in weight on four bottles,' said Samuel Hunneysett, of 206 Hunter street, West, Hamilton, Ontario.

"I had indigestion so bad I dreaded to see meal-time come and for breakfast I couldn't eat a thing. I fell off twenty-five pounds in weight and didn't know where it was all going to end. My stomach just stayed sour and upset all the time, and I had pains that were about all I could stand. I had a stubborn case of constipation and every few days had a terrific headache. My sleep was all broken up and I felt weak and no-account all through the day.

"This was over a year ago, but Tanlac fixed me up in fine shape and did the work so well I have been feeling fine ever since. My appetite came back in full force and I regained my lost weight and to this good day have been in the best of health. I know what I'm talking about when I recommend Tanlac, and I'm not afraid the fellow who takes my advice will ever regret it."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville at Ostrom's Drug Store and by the leading Druggists.

POETS' LICENSE AND PROPHETIC VISION.

Most imaginative poetry comes off second best when tested by the inelastic foot rule of science. In Engineering and Contracting (Chicago), R. Fleming of New York, submits some engineering criticisms of poetical statement. A man with technical training, Mr. Fleming notes, may at times have an enjoyment peculiarly his own in wandering through the realms of poetry. A few such instances are given:

Swift of foot was Hiawatha:
He could shoot an arrow from him,
And run forward with such fleetness
That the arrow fell behind him!
Strong of arm was Hiawatha:
He could shoot ten arrows upward,
Shoot them with such strength and swiftness,
That the tenth had left the bow-string
Ere the first to earth had fallen!

These lines from Longfellow are quoted by Merriam in his 'Elements of Mechanics,' followed by the problem, 'Compute the running speed of Hiawatha in miles per hour, assuming he could shoot ninety arrows per minute, and that when shooting forward he aimed at an angle of 45 degrees with the horizontal.' The answer is given, 'About forty-six miles per hour.' 'Hiawatha must have been some runner,' remarked a student.

Every moment dies a man,
Every moment one is born.
—Tennyson, 'The Vision of Sin.'

It is said that Babage, the inventor of the calculating machine, wrote to Tennyson that if his statement were true the population of the world would be at a standstill, that the true ratio was about one to one and one-sixteenth, and that he should change his lines accordingly.

The stars shall fade away, the sun himself
Grow dim with age, and nature sink in years.

'Nor is there known to science any natural powers whereby this cosmic doom may be either averted or repaired by exterior reversal,' comments one writer. On the other hand, another says, 'This is a kinematic rather than a dynamic conclusion, and it is dynamically controverted by the fact that the velocity of light, the velocity of electro-dynamic action, and the velocity of the gravitating time-integral of solar rotation are eacgh equivalent to the thermal unit of velocity at the centre of our system which is indicated by Laplace's principle of periodicity.'

Be not the first by whom the new are tried,
Nor yet the last to lay the old aside,
—Pope, 'An Essay on Criticism.'

"No progress in engineering, nor in anything else, would be possible if this advice were followed by everybody. Somebody must be the first to try the new.

For I dipt into the future, far as human eye could see,
Saw the vision of the world, and all the wonder that would be,
Till the war-drum throbbed no longer, and the battle-flags were furl'd
In the Parliament of Man, the Federation of the World.
—Tennyson, 'Locksley Hall.'

Did the Poet Laureate anticipate by seventy-five years the League of Nations?

Soon shall thy arm unconquered Steam! afar
Drag the slow barge, or drive the rapid car;
Or on wide-waving wings expanded bear
The flying chariot through the fields of air.
Fair crews triumphant, leaning from above,
Shall wave their fluttering kerchiefs as they move;
Or warrior bands alarm the gaping crowd,
And armies shrink beneath the shadowy cloud.
—Erasmus Darwin, 'The Botanic Garden.'

The foregoing lines by the grandfather of Charles Darwin were written late in the eighteenth century. What a vision of aviation this author must have had! 'Warrior bands' have alarmed 'the gaping crowd,' and the time may be near when 'fair crews' shall 'wave their fluttering kerchiefs as they move.'

Nobody can study the events of the last three months without the gloomiest forebodings, for they signify either a fatal want of imagination in our rulers, or else a motive principle, conscious or subconscious, that is not less disastrous. It would be a curious ending to our industrial leadership of the world if the successful conversion of our industries to the needs of the Great War proved to be our last great triumph. At present it looks as if the reconversion of our industry to the needs of our life might prove to be beyond our power.

The Poets' Corner

REMINISCENCE

In the old village, bells of night are ringing,
The low, sweet winds around the schoolhouse croon,
And from the drowsy clover fields are bringing,
A breath of fragrance, and the river's tune;
The children play; the hills are green, old places
My childhood knew so well are very fair;
But youth is gone; I miss the friendly faces
That happy wandered by the old St. Clair.

Hark! by the muffled waters winds are sighing!
Young flowers are musin' neath the Summer skies;
They seem the very soul of time defying,
But over all the scene a shadow lies;
The years have come and gone; and one is dreaming
Whose constant courage made my heart feel brave,
And pensive shades are in the sunlight's gleaming,
Since she has gone, and Youth is in the grave.

A Laugh or Two

When Silence Was Dangerous

A merchant was recently persuaded to purchase an excellent parrot. This one had travelled far and could jabber in several foreign lingoes. He ordered it sent home. That same day his wife had ordered a fresh spring chicken for dinner. On leaving the house she said to the cook: "Mary, there's a bird coming for dinner. Wring its neck and have it fried hot for Mr. Richards when he gets home." Unfortunately the parrot arrived first and Mary followed instructions. At dinner he was duly served. "What's this?" exclaimed Mr. Richards. Mary told him. "But, for goodness' sakes, Mary," he said, "this is awful. That bird could speak seven languages." "Then, phwy the devil didn't he say something?" asked Mary.—Exchange.

The Drawback

An American tourist in Scotland took a great fancy to a handsome collie he saw, and offered to buy it. The owner asked some questions, and on learning that it was the would-be purchaser's intention to take "Jock" to America he refused to part with the dog.

Just then an English tourist came along and he also made a bid for the collie, which, though less than the first offer, was accepted. The American was annoyed, and when the Englishman had departed, he said: "You told me you wouldn't sell your dog."

"Na, na," replied the canny Scot. "I said I couldna part wi' him. Jock will be back in a day or two, never fear. But he couldna swim the Atlantic."—London Opinion.

Nine Reasons Why Spinal Neglect is a crime

1. The backbone is the foundation of the body.
2. It is composed of 26 joints, 24 of which are movable.
3. From between these joints radiate the nerves of the body.
4. When these joints are in alignment the nerve openings are full sizes and the nerves deliver 100% of their power.
5. A nerve under pressure at the backbone opening causes disease in the part it serves.
6. Chiropractic removes the pressure by an adjustment by hand, and this adjustment opens the way for health (free nerve energy).
7. If chiropractic seems too simple to do all that it can do, remember that every phenomena of growth is caused by as simple a thing as heat.
8. To neglect the backbone invites disease, which is a crime because it is in violation of Nature's laws.
9. Don't be a criminal.

Do Your Headaches Make You Ashamed?

MONDAY HEALTH TALK No. 34
By WM. P. REDICK, D.C. Ph. C.

Do your headaches come at times that cause you embarrassment and annoyance? The victim of headaches is nearly always sure to be "knocked out" just at the climax of some effort, as in the hurry to get ready for daughter's wedding, or a lawn party, or a vacation trip.

Headaches are due to various causes, and the chiropractor who knows his business will not promise immediate relief, though he is quite often able in one adjustment to stop the ache. There are stomach headaches, billous headaches, etc., and in each case the cause is the same, namely, weakened transmission of nerve impulses to the organ at fault. By chiropractic spinal adjustments the cause is removed, and the victim of chronic headaches once more enjoys health.

"Constant belching of gas made my life miserable. I was told I had heart trouble. My left arm at times felt asleep. I had headaches almost continually. Chiropractic spinal adjustments for two months and the belching of gas is gone, heart symptoms have left, and the headaches also. For this I thank chiropractic.—Mrs. L. City and Country

ATTENDED DIVINE SERVICE

Members of the various Orange and kindred societies in the city on Sunday morning attended divine service at the Tabernacle church. Despite the excessive heat there was a good turnout. The parade was headed by the pipe band of Camp Rob Roy, Sons of Scotland, and the members presented a fine appearance in their new kilted uniforms. Music furnished was in keeping with the day. Rev. W. Elliott, Pastor of the Church and President of the Bay of Quinte Methodist Conference preached an appropriate sermon. His text was from 1st Cor., 16th chapter, 13 verse: "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong." During the service the choir rendered two selections, and a mixed quartette rendered a suitable number in a manner that was most pleasing.

EXCESSIVE HEAT

During the past two days the heat has been excessive, the thermometer hovering around the 90 mark. At an early hour this (Monday) morning a thunderstorm passed over the city, but did not apparently have the effect of having cool weather follow in its wake. On Saturday the maximum temperature was 90, minimum 67. Sunday maximum 89, minimum 72.

SECOND COMMUNITY CAMP

The first camp at Camp Community Moira Lake, under the management of Mr. A. Buchanan of the Y.M.C.A. broke up this (Monday) morning and the second group went out to camp to-day. The second group is composed of boys from Holloway street St. Andrew's and John street churches.

COMPOUND FRACTURE OF ARM

Mrs. Henry Graham, residing on Forin street, on Dominion Day had the misfortune to break her right arm in two places. She was with friends enjoying an outing near Deseronto and in getting a pail of water from the Bay, slipped upon a mossy stone with the above result. Mrs. Graham was taken to a physician at Deseronto who reduced the fractures.

GOOD STANDING

St. Andrew's team of Belleville—the Ape of the Trail Rangers—stood fourth for all Canada in the Trail Rangers' Championships, in competition with six or seven hundred groups. This was the statement made by Boys' Secretary A. Buchanan, on Saturday. He has received word from head-quarters. In Tuxis for Ontario, the Aritipoi of Christ Church stood 11th out of 230 groups.

CAMP OPENED

The Cadet Camp for this city and outlying districts opened this (Monday) morning at the Agricultural grounds with a goodly crowd in attendance. The officers of the camp are Camp Commandant Lieut.-Col. Hodgins, D.S.O., A. A. and Q.M.G. Capt. McManus, Sergt.-Major McDonald; Quartermaster-Sergt. Carter; Orderly Sergt. D. M. McManus; Y.M.C.A. Officer, Grant Maidens; Camp Adjutant, Asa Yeomans. The various schools and attendance will be: Belleville, 150 cadets; Messrs. Barragar, Mott and Simpkins, instructors; Trenton High school; 150 cadets; Lieut. A. Mowatt, instructor; Cobourg Collegiate Institute; 20 cadets; Mr. L. M. Shultz, instructor; Picton C. I. 40 cadets; A. E. Adams, instructor; Stirling H. S., 20 cadets, Merle Todd, instructor; Campbellford H. S., 50 cadets; F. E. Moffatt, instructor; Tweed H. S. 15 cadets; A. H. Irwin, instructor; Madoc H. S., 15 cadets; E. T. Naylor, instructor. The Padre for the camp will be Mr. Simpkins.

ARRESTED ON RETURN

William Ingles and Geo. Puffer were committed for trial by Magistrate Miller at Colborne on a charge of stealing an auto from Clarence Cole, near Wooler last April. At that time they jumped bail and went to the United States. They recently returned home and were arrested again. For the second time they attempted to escape but were overpowered.

ONTARIO ROAD GUIDES

The Ontario Road Guides by Appleton, of two sections, separate Eastern and Western Ontario which have recently been issued are well worth considering. All main roads secondary road, every side road and concession, Every Railroad City, Town and Village with County and Township Boundaries, is clearly shown on these guides, all main roads being marked in red, thereby making it the work of a moment to ascertain the right road. These guides also contain a Synopsis of Motor Vechicle Laws and License Regulations for the Province of Ontario which details every motorist should understand thoroughly. The price of this Guide is very reasonable, the many necessary facts contained therein make it well worth double the money. The Ontario Road Guide is published by the Museon Book Co., Limited, Toronto.

LOG CABIN VAMPS

ALGONQUIN PARK, ONTARIO

In Nominigan Camp and Camp Minnesing the Grand Trunk has created log cabin camps similar to those of Maine of world-wide fame. There is a large central lodge or meeting place, and in close proximity to it there is a series of log cabins, all built of cedar logs with the bark on, chinked with cement and moss and thoroughly in keeping with the natural beauty of their location. The central lodge and the cabins are simply comfortably furnished and have modern conveniences, with bathrooms and hot and cold water. In the Ojibway language Nominigan Camp means "the camp amid the balsams," and it is a very appropriate description, for the region is rich in this aromatic growth. Nominigan Camp is situated on the eastern shore of Smoke Lake, seven miles by stage from the Highland Inn, one of the largest and most attractive of the Park lakes. Camp Minnesing in the Ojibway language means "Island Camp" and is situated on Island Lake 10 miles north of the Highland Inn. Illustrated descriptive literature telling you all about those camps can be had on application to any agent Grand Trunk Railway System, or to, C. E. Horning, D.P.A., Toronto, Ont.

WESTERN COMEDY

TWEED 5—ST. MIKE'S 0

Again the St. Mike's were made to come home without their colors flying high. Dominion Day in Tweed made that old town boom. Madoc, Tweed and St. Mike's were supposed to play off for a cup donated to the Trent Valley League, and as Madoc didn't show up it was between St. Mike's and Tweed. The game was not as snappy as might have been, although each team worked hard, and it was through two breaks that Tweed scored their five runs. The fielding of Hagerman, Clapper and Cornell was unsurpassable and Morton, Lesage and Murray put up the same game. With Kelleher on the mound for three innings and Harold for the last six, the game looked safe, but Watson, pitching for Tweed, worked hard, and it was mostly due to his efforts that the game was won. Bill Myles on second and Percy Cornell on third kept the game tightened up, and Jack Smith at the receiving end of the line kept the game at a standstill. Armstrong as shortstop is another Weir. The line-up of the teams was as follows:

Belleville — Hagerman, c.f.; Myles, 2nd; Clapper, r.f.; Cornell, l.f.; J. Smith, c.; Percy Cornell, 3rd; Armstrong, s.s.; Young, 1st; Kelleher, p. Duesberry, H. Smith and Cap. Smith, subs.

Tweed—G. Morton, r.f.; R. Elliott, s.s.; C. Brown, 1st; S. Wagar, 2nd; A. Geraldi, 3rd; S. Lesage, l.f.; Murray, c.f.; B. Houston, c.; K. Watson, p. G. Thompson and Baker, subs.

"Cannonball" Scott, pitcher on the Hillcrest team, and now lies unconscious in the Western Hospital.

CLEMENTS—JONES

A quiet wedding was solemnized at Holloway St. Methodist Parsonage when Rev. A. H. Foster united in the holy bonds of matrimony Miss Bessie H. Jones and Mr. Charles T. Clements, both of this city. The happy couple left for an extended motor trip to Toronto, Niagara and points west. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Clements will take up their residence in Belleville.

Three Killed in Auto Crash

TWO GIRLS AND MAN DIE WHEN TRAIN HITS CAR AT CROSSING

Montreal, July 3.—Two young women and one man were killed and one man was injured this evening when an automobile was struck by the Canadian Pacific Railway Boston train on a crossing near Delson Junction. The train must have been in full sight of the occupants of the car, for it is stated that the crossing is an open one, there being no cruve and nothing to hide it at that point. Going at the rate of 30 mile an hour, the train completely demoeished the automobile.

The victims are: Florence Poissant, aged 18; Bertha Poissant, aged 17, sisters, and Herve Letourneau, aged 20, all of St. Edouard, near Delson Junction.

Gaston De Rome was flung out on the track in a stunned condition, and would of been run over by the Halifax train following if it had not been flagged to a stop, just in time. His injuries are not thought serious.

Five coroners appointed to conduct all Toronto inquests.

"Do you reckon so, George?"

"Yes, that's the way of the world. Now git in bed, Jeff."

Truitt hesitated and flushed. "Jest le' me lie on a pile o' sacks on the floor," he said. "I don't want to crowd you, George."

"You think I'd be above sleeping with you, my boy." Buckley laid his hand on his shoulder and turned him forcibly to him. "You've heard all that talk out home about my being stuck up, but it is a lie out of whole cloth. Jeff, Jeff"—Buckley's breast rose high and fell—"I'd give all I have to feel as good in the eyes of the world as you are. There's a stain on me that nothing will remove. Yes, I'd freely give up my life to prove that I am not naturally a thief."

Awed to silence by the strange manner of his friend, Jeff Truitt undressed and got into bed. George turned out the light. Jeff heard him undressing, and then all was still for two or three minutes, after which Buckley rose from his knees and got in the bed.

"Been sayin' yore prayers, George?" Jeff asked in wonder.

"Yes, Jeff; I try not to neglect it once a day. It seems to be about the only thing that keeps me straight. Good night, Jeff."

"Good night, George."

CHAPTER XVIII.

"THEY say the old junk shop was turned into a reg'lar fort last night," Kenner jested as he slouched into the office the next morning after breakfast, a bundle of letters in his hands.

George and Hillyer exchanged glances and smiled.

"You'd have thought something was wrong if you'd been here," George answered lightly.

Hanks was at his desk munching a piece of cracker and now and then taking a sip of water from a thick, unclean tumbler. He had no comments to make. If the building had been half demolished during the night he would have inspected the ruin with supreme indifference, for it was not his personal property. Half an hour later a man and a woman came down the street and entered the warehouse. The woman was short and fat, wore a black sunbonnet and a heavy gray shawl. The man carried a worn Confederate flag in his left hand, in his right a battered army bugle.

"Jeff's mammy an' daddy," Kenner said. "My Lord, they got here quick! I reckon somebody must 'a' told 'em the news last night."

"Come on in, old woman," Truitt said to his wife. "Nobody hain't a-goin' to hurt you." He took the chair Kenner was proffering and placed it near the stove. Then he leaned unsteadily on the short staff of the furled flag. The bugle rattled on the brass buttons of his long overcoat as his arm hung down.

"The camp meets today," he said huskily, "but I hain't blowed a note yit, an' I hain't stuck up the flag. The boys will wait on ol' Bas this mornin'. I wish some o' my tried comrades could be here to listen to what I got to say. George Buckley, I'm goin' to speak to you, sir."

George had flushed all over with embarrassment. His profile was to the door, but out of the corner of his eye he had caught a glimpse of a woman's figure in the main doorway. The thought flashed through his brain that it was Mrs. Hillyer or Hortense Snowden, and he wanted to direct Hillyer's attention thither, but with set, expectant features the merchant was staring at the speaker.

"Jeff told us jest how it happened," Truitt went on, his earnest eyes half full of tears, "an' me an' my old woman felt like we wanted to see, to look at, the man that saved our child. Thar he is, Matilda; thar he is! Thar's the chap that stood up in the teeth o' that ragin' mob an' said ef they got our boy it ud be over his dead body. George Buckley done it. He"—the old man's voice sank so low for a moment that it was scarcely audible—"he done it! I wish God would help me talk, but he won't, an' I cayn't. I had lots to say, but I cayn't talk. I want to show what I feel, but I cayn't. I 'lowed that a—a man that fit fer Jackson an' Lee an' Davis was good enough, but a man blessed by a high place in the world that stoops down an' offers his life fer a pore, weak, scared boy is better'n a soldier. He's more like God than a soldier. He's actuated by love an' pity, while the soldier is fightin' fer spite. I—I jest wish God would give me a chance to show what I feel. Matilda, ef you want to say anything, say it. Yore old man's made a fool of hisself!"

"Oh, don't, don't, Mrs. Truitt!" George protested as the old woman pushed back her bonnet and began to speak, but she went on.

"I cayn't say what I want to, nother," she sobbed, "but I kin pray fer you, George, an' I will. I hope the Master will shower blessings down on yore head. I've knowed 'im, gentlemen, sence he was a little boy, an' he always was one o' the best children that ever lived. God knows he's had trouble, but it jest seems to 'a' sanctified 'im. Folks says he hain't a happy man, that he has lots to contend with here in town an' that it looks like he cayn't git all he wants, but he will, God bless 'im, ef my prayers kin do any good. I'm a-goin' to ask the Lord A'mighty to give 'im peace an' all he wants!" She drew her bonnet over her face and fell to sobbing aloud.

Truitt stood his flag in a corner and led her to the door, and, as all eyes followed him, George looked and saw Lydia Cranston and Kitty Cosby standing a few feet from him. They had heard all. In Lydia's eyes great tears stood, and in her face shone a kindling

DEMPSEY RETAINS CHAMPIONSHIP

New York, July 3.—Jack Dempsey is still heavyweight pugilist champion of the world. A crushing right swing from his fist shattered the titular aspirations of Georges Carpentier in the fourth round of the so-called "Battle of the century" here on Saturday afternoon. The pile driving blow landed flush upon the jaw of the Frenchman, flooring Carpentier for the second time in a trifle more than a minute of fighting in the final and decisive round.

Although he had staggered to his feet after the initial knockdown he was unable to survive the second knockdown and was motionless when Referee Harry Ertle tolled off the fatal ten counts.

Dempsey Aims at Head

Round Two—Carpentier missed with a left and clinched. Carpentier backed away and Dempsey hooked him with a right to the jaw. Dempsey followed after him, beating him around the head with rights. Carpentier was short with the left hook. But he staggered the champion with six rights and lefts to the jaw. Dempsey staggered back a bit and split the Frenchman's left eye with a hook. The cut was under the eye. Carpentier missed a right swing. Dempsey missed a right swing. They exchanged body punches as the bell rang.

Hits Carpentier at Will

Round Three.—Carpentier ducked a left hook. Dempsey backed into the ropes and hit him with a short right. Carpentier landed two uppercuts to the body in a clinch. As they clinched Dempsey punished Carpentier in the body. Carpentier nearly fell down when he missed a right swing. They missed lefts to the head, and Dempsey punished Carpentier viciously in infighting. Jack landed a left and right to the head without a return. They exchanged left hooks to the chin. Carpentier's right swing was short and Dempsey clubbedhim on the jaw with left hooks in the clinch. Dempsey battered Carpentier into a corner with rights and lefts at the bell. The bell saved Carpentier from a knockout. Dempsey's round.

Carpentier Takes Count

Round Four.—Dempsey rushed Carpentier to the ropes and a left to the body made him wince. Carpentier landed a right to the head and tried to hang on. Carpentier was floored. Count: one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine—Carpentier up. Dempsey measured Carpentier with a right smash to the jaw when he arose and Carpentier took the full count and was assisted by Dempsey to his corner.

THE MISERY OF BACKACHE
Removed by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Meaford, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for backache, and I also had a female weakness. I felt dizzy and nervous, and was without energy. I had to force myself to do my work, and was always tired. Saw a Pinkham advertisement which induced me to take the Vegetable Compound, and my back gradually stopped aching and I felt lighter in spirits. I am recommending the Vegetable Compound with pleasure to all I meet who complain as I did."—MILDRED BROOK, Meaford, Ont.

nada's Welcome to Lord Byng ttawa, July 2.—Once every five rs the people of Canada bid an af- tionate farewell to a governor-gen- , and with a great warm-hearted- s immediately welcomes the incom representative of His Majesty, the g. In that welcome there is much form and ceremony, curiosity and rtape, but under it all there lies remendous desire to assure the governor-general that he is right come. Perhaps history will never rd a more determined attempt to e a governor-general feel "at e" than the welcome that will be nded to Baron Byng of Vimy, sol and statesman and the popular honored leader of the Canadian ps in France and Flanders.

he ships bearing His Excellency Duke of Devonshire to England Lord Byng to Canada will, as is l, pass in mid ocean. With the val of Lord Byng at the port of rkation—either Halifax or Que- —the serious business of installing new governor-general will com- nce. The docks will be lined with ps, flags will fly, guns from the bor forts will thunder forth their te. It is not a simple ceremony, s governed by the rules of proced- and the table of precedence.

eaving the boat the Governor-Gen will be taken to the provincial slative chamber where he will be rn in", sign the Oath Book, is- his proclamation bidding the Gov ment continue to function, after ch he will board a special train for e again welcomed and cheered be- proceeding to Government se.

t has been customary in the past members of the government and Chief Justice of the Supreme rt to meet the Governor-General he dock and to escort him in state the legislative chamber. In the mber the Governor-General will his seat upon a dias with gov- ment members and representa- s of the army and navy standing the right and left. Guests stand be the table of the assembly house. y will be there because their nes appear on the table of prece- ce. It is a curious fact that only unmarried daughters of those on table are invited. The invita- ns are issued in the name of "His jesty's Canadian Government."

he table of precedence includes names of senators and members the House of Commons and legis- ive assemblies and the civil offic- s of the debarkation port. In ad- ion to this men prominent in busi- s and in public life are also invit- with their wives and unmarried ghters.

When Baron Byng has taken his seat clerk of the Privy Council, Ro- lphe Boudreau, will take up the ble, and, bowing to the Governor- neral, will hand it to Sir Louis vies, chief justice of the Supreme urt of Canada and deputy governor neral. On Sir Louis receiving the ble Baron Byng will step down from dias and wall take the Bible from chief justice and will duly repeat oath. Now, the oath is really di- ded into three sections and in them governor general affirms that he ll bear true allegiance to the King; minister Canadian affairs impartial- and execute the office of Keeper of Seals.

The special train on which Baron yng will travel will undoubtedly be orthy of notice. "In the past railway ficials have "sat up nights" making re that no hitch would occur. That ey have been successful is testified to letters of appreciation which several ading Canadian railwaymen have nging in their offices. The train om the seaport to Ottawa will be pre- ded by a pilot engine and every pos- ble care will be taken to see that the urney is accomplished in complete fety and comfort. One of the odd atures of this journey is that the ainmen connected with it are solemn- y and duly paid $5.00 as a gratuity.

In Ottawa formal greetings will, it expected, be extended by the prime inister, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen nd by Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, ader of the opposition. It is also kely that a state dinner, probably at he Country Club, will be included in he welcoming ceremonies. While aron Byng is not expected to come Canada for some weeks, yet the of- cials of the Department of States are lready scanning old files, brushing up n procedure and in fact, laying the round work for one of the most important ceremonies in the history of Canada.

Mental Processes Prolong Life Beyond The Average Span

NEW YORK EDUCATIONIST HOLDS THAT PSYCHOLOGY AND NOT MEDICINE, IS THE SECRET OF LONGEVITY, AND GIVEN PROPER CONDITIONS ONE'S MIND MAY MAKE HIM A CENTENARIAN.

New York, July 4.—"Your mind may prolong your years. Psychology and not medicine is the secret of longevity." This statement was made today by Dr. Arthur Gates, head of the Psychology Department of the Teachers' College here. Dr. Gates explained:

"Given proper conditions, such as lack of predisposition to organic weakness and susceptibility to disease germs, mental processes may prolong life greatly beyond the average span. I believe we might become a nation of centenarians without difficulty."

Here are the laws for insuring this enjoyment: "You must cultivate equanimity; practice such supercourage that you will forget the name of above grief, melancholy and sadness—emotions twined with human ties; carry out worry—vampire of the spirit."

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

London, July 5.—General Jan Smuts Premier of the Union of South Africa, left for Ireland last night and was expected to arrive in Dublin early today. It was understood here this morning that the purpose of his visit to Ireland was to confer with Sinn Fein and Unionist leaders of south Ireland preliminary to the resumption of their conference next Friday. The Unionists and Sinn Feiners had a brief meeting in Dublin yesterday and reports received here indicated that they had reached an understanding as to the matters to be discussed at the future conference.

Premier Drury Will Protect Our Provincial Rights

Winnipeg, July 5.—Premier E. C. Drury, of Ontario, in a letter addressed to the Winnipeg City Council, says the government of Ontario and the people of that province will fight to the utmost of their power, control by the Dominion Government of Winnipeg and English rivers, within the province of Ontario, in view of the fact that the western provinces wish to obtain entire control of their natural resources. "The action of the Dominion Government is an unwise one from the viewpoint not only of Ontario, but also of the western provinces," the letter adds.

YOUNG LAD IS KILLED WHEN UNLOADING LOGS

Kitchener, July 3.—The life of John Wanner, 18 years old, of Strasburg, was snuffed out suddenly. He had taken a load of logs from his home to Halman's sawmill, about two miles north of New Dundee. He was unloading the logs, when, it is believed, one rolled on him and smothered him to death. Other men were only a short distance away, but they heard no scream. Soon after they found him dead. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Wanner, Strasburg.

Bold Buccaneers Live Again

STEVENSON'S FAMILIAR CHARACTERS LIVE AGAIN IN "TREASURE ISLAND"

The bold buccaneers of "Treasure Island" live again in Maurice Tourneur's remarkable photoplay production of the Stevenson classic, which opened a three-day engagement at Griffin's last evening.

Mr. Tourneur is a master when it comes to turning great Sea stories into motion pictures. He proved it in "The Life Line", and Conrad's "Victory". "Treasure Island" confirms this conviction. The famous producer has retained on the screen all the romance and villiany of the Spanish Main that Stevenson knew so well how to portray.

In excellent realistic detail he has reproduced the old Benbow Tavern, where lived young Jim Hawkins and his Mother. The coming of Bill Bones the raucous sea captain, and later, of Black Dog; the fight over the sea chest and the capture of the chart showing the location of Captain Flint's treasure by Jim; the expedition to seek the buried gold; the mutiny, the battles with the pirates at the stockade, and the final success—all the absorbing episodes that have made Stevenson's book a delight, live vividly on the screen.

In the role young Jim Hawkins, Shirley Mason gives a more charming performance that any boy actor could hope to offer. Lon Chaney is a master of malignity as Pew and Merry. Charles Ogle, Al Filson, and Sidney Dean do fine work. But the chief credit must go to Mr. Tourneur. He has made of this Paramount Artcraft production a picture no one, screen lover or not, can afford to miss.

VISITORS INTERESTED IN PHILIPPINE DISPLAYS

London, June 17.—Visitors to the Fifth International Exhibition of Rubber and Tropical Products here have paid generous attention to the displays of the Philippine government which occupy a large booth.

Fidel A. Reyes, director of the Bureau of Commerce and Industry in the Phillippine administration, who is in charge of the exhibition said the experiment was proving very worth while.

"I am positive that the work and expense of bringing the exhibition to England has been more than justified," said Mr. Reyes. "We have been overwhelmed with inquiries about the possibilities of trade and industry in Philippines and with requests for information about exports. Our experiences warrant my saying that new markets certainly will be established for certain products which England wants."

Products on display in raw state include hemp, sugar, tobbacco, cocoanut and cocoaoils. Of finished articles there are hats, embroideries, buttons, slippers, basketries and furniture.

The large show cases filled with women's gay colored kemp hats caught the feminine eye and very early in the show were sold out.

Furniture manufactured from native woods has attracted much attention especially a circular dining table of Narra wood, the top made from a single piece measuring five feet in diameter. This species of wood is dark in color, something similar to mahogany and takes a beautiful polish.

Lamp shades made from the shell of the Kapis, a mollusc similar to the oyster, are ondisplay representing, it was stated, a new industry now getting a foothold in the islands.

Butter The Subject at Rotary Lunch

MACK ROBERTSON TELLS THE ROTARIANS A FEW THINGS ABOUT BUTTER

Butter was the subject for discussion before the Belleville Rotary Club Monday at the weekly luncheon held at Hotel Quinte. Mack Robertson, President and Managing Director of Belleville Creameries Limited, with creameries at Belleville, Bancroft, Napanee and Sharbot Lake, was the speaker of the day and told the Rotarians some interesting facts about creamery butter, its history, ingredients and difference from the common or garden variety of butter. Creamery butter is made from pasteurized milk, heated to such a degree that all germs are killed, then the butter passes through stages which eliminate all dirt and produce a perfect article of pure food. The process of manufacture, testing, etc., were explained by the speaker with a practical illustration of the Babcock test now generally used. The Ontario Government has inspectors to check up the creameries and see that the farmers are getting paid for their cream upon honest tests. These inspectors do not advertise their coming but drop around any old time and take samples for testing. Recently cream en route to the Sharbot Lake factory of Belleville Creameries Limited was quietly inspected by a government inspector who took samples unknown to the creamery staff. The result was such that the firm had asked for a copy of the report to send all their patrons.

Value of Skim Milk

Farmers selling their milk to the creameries are farther ahead for they get back the skim milk which is so valuable for their growing stock and poultry and without which it is impossible to raise young stock properly and profitably.

Agriculture is admittedly the most important industry of all and the foundation of all industry and the best kind of agriculture can only be carried on in connection with dairying. In all Canada the best and finest farms and rural homes are to be found in the sections where dairying is carried on.

Zarilla Clothilde 3d

There is a gerat difference in cows and this was strikingly illustrated by the speaker in citing the highest producing cow in 1920 with a production of 23,145 pounds of milk and 924 pounds of butter fat made by the Holstein Friesian cow Zarilla Clothilde Third, (De Kol 14,887), owned by the Colony Farm, Essonville, B.C.

The highest producing cow in 1921, is owned by T. A. Banon, Brantford, produced 23,000 pounds of milk and 1,250 pounds of butter fat.

Equal a Herd

The speaker pointed out that it would take a herd of nine or ten ordinary cows to equal the production of one of the cows mentioned, which proved the wisdom of keeping good stock and giving them the best of care.

Creamery History

The first creamery was started in Teeswater, Ontario, in 1875 by John Inglis; in 1877 Moses Moyer started a creamery at Breslau in Waterloo County; Isaac Wenger started a creamery in Grey County in 1879; Vickers Chown creamery, Frontenac County, started in 1880; Sprague Creamery was started in Ameliasburg Prince Edward County in 1881 and the first Alpha cream separator was put into this creamery in 1884. The Graham's at Belleville used a Burmeister and Wain Danish separator in their dairy in 1883.

Butter Both Sides

Ontario produces so much creamery butter, which never quite catches up with the demand, that it is open to question if the world is not buttering its bread on both sides with Ontario butter. Ontario's production for 1919 was 81,900,000 pounds, in a total production in Canada of 103,890,707 pounds, there was an increase in 1920 to about 110,000,000 pounds valued at fifty-five million dollars.

Many facts hitherto unknown to Rotarians en bloc were revealed by Mr. Robertson who described every phase of the industry in brief, pointed and interesting manner, and gave some striking facts in connection with the probudtion of Better Belleville Butter. He was introduced by Mr. John A. Kerr, himself a veteran dairyman who made humerous references to the dry butter of early days and the wet butter of to-day, saying that he himself preferred the hard stuff.

Torrid Heats General Over all Ontario

SEVERAL DROWNINGS RECORDED IN EASTERN CANADA—DEATHS IN HOME AND FIELD DIRECT RESULT OR HASTENED BY HIGH TEMPERATURE—CROPS BURNING UP.

TORONTO, July 5.—Ontario—and, indeed, the whole of Eastern Canada—sweltered through another trying period of oppressive heat yesterday.

Tragedy, in several cases, marked human efforts escape the scorching atmosphere on land. Drownings are reported in the waters of Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces.

MERCURY SOARS HIGH.

Although generally the sun's rays were slightly obscured by a veil of murk which gave a brazen hue to the sky dome, the heat was, greater in Toronto than the preceding day by four degrees. It reached a maximum of 96 degrees in the shade, approaching within seven points of the high record of 103 degrees in the shade, recorded in July, 1911. It was the hottest day recorded this year. The minimum in the morning was 72.

With the mercury at a record height for the year, the residents of the city were driven to many and varied expedients vainly trying to keep cool.

The heat was rendered more oppressive in Toronto by reason of the amount of humidity in the atmosphere. This was recorded as reaching 29 degrees. London has the distinction of being the hottest place in the Ontario district, the maximum reaching an even 100 degrees in the shade.

Drowning accidents were reported from Sarnia, Cobalt, Sherbrooke, Three Rivers, Brantford and St. John's, N.B.

At London, Ont., a new high record was reached when the century mark was passed by the mercury, and the climb stopped at 100.5. This is the highest point reached here in several years. Rain is badly needed. One fatality was reported tonight. George Leaman, aged 50, a farmer residing near London, was found dead in his field, and doctors who were called declared that death had resulted from sunstroke.

Brantford and Sarnia reported deaths as the result of the heat.

Slayer of Boy to be Extradited

DAVIS IS LIKELY TO BE BROUGHT TO TORONTO IN A FEW DAYS

Toronto, July 5.—Negotiations for the extradition of Fred Davis, alleged murderer of Philip Goldberg, have reached the stage where it is confidently expected that the accused will be brought to the city in a few days. Davis is at present in Auburn Prison, New York, serving a sentence of four years on a larceny conviction.

The circumstances under which extradition proceedings are being carried out have raised an interesting point of international law. The question being, if Davis were acquitted on the murder charge in Canada, could be afterwards be re-imprisoned on the larceny charge in New York? Apparently this would be a matter for special arrangements between the State Departments of Canada and the United States. In some quarters the belief is expressed that, pending such arrangements, Davis might have a chance for his freedom.

According to Inspector Wallace, if Davis were acquitted he would be immediately deported as an undesirable. Once on the other side he could be released from Auburn on conditional or unconditional parole, the violation of which would involve his immediate rearrest.

VALUABLE PAINTING STOLEN

Naples, June 15.—Six masterpieces of Italian painting were recently stolen from the church of Jesus and Mary. They included works of Bernardino Siciliani, Paul Di Maio and Sannino. The thieves entered the church at night and opened four heavy barred and bolted doors before reaching the canvases but the thieves left no trace.

Visitors present included Mr. Wm. Parker, manager of the Royal Bank, his brother-in-law, Mr. D. H. Hurd, of Watertown, N.Y., and Dr. McCreary, of Montreal, who is visiting his brother, Rotarian W. R. McCreary. Each of the visitors spoke briefly.

Mention was made of the fact that Rotarian George Appell will probably be stationed in Montreal in the future and this elicited many expressions of genuine regret as George has been a hard and earnest worker in Rotary and a worthy exponent of how the spirit of Rotary should be lived in every day life. Upon motion of Rotarian W. L. Doyle and Stephen Burrows the club's appreciation of Rotarian Appell will be suitably expressed and forwarded to him.

Bob Wray reported that the Rotarian Special had left that morning for Moira Lake with another bunch of boys for the Community Camp, and asked that more motor cars be provided for the next hegira on July 25.

Rotarian Gordon Moffatt occupied the chair.

Milk and Butter Record For World By Brantford Cow

Brantford, July 4.—A new champion of the world is crowned for a year's production of butter. Bella Pontiac in a year gave 1,587.70 pounds of butter and 27,190.25 pounds of milk, thus displacing Duchess Skylark Ormsby, whose record of 1,506.35 pounds has stood at the top since 1905. In making this record-breaking showing, Bella Pontiac produced an average per cent. of 4.66 per cent. butter fat.

Boy Attempted to Save Father

UNABLE TO SWIM PLUNGED INTO CREEK AND BOTH WERE DROWNED

Sudbury, Ont., July 3.—A double drowning of an unusually tragic nature occurred at Pike Creek, near Webbwood, at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of Dominion Day, when Robert S. Brown, of Sudbury, and his six-year-old son, Robert, were drowned before the eyes of Mr. Brown's mother, Mrs. Geo. Brown, of Webbwood. The child gave his life in a heroic but fruitless attempt to save his father, who had got into difficulties while bathing in the creek. Neither could swim.

Accompanied by Mrs. Brown, the ill-fated pair had driven out to Pike Creek on Dominion Day afternoon.

After splashing about in the water for some time the boy came out and sat on the bank while his father remained in the water. Suddenly Mr. Brown was stricken with cramps and went under. His mother was powerless to render assistance, but the boy, although he could not swim a stroke, and had only been in the water a few times in his life, jumped fearlessly in. Both struggled for a few moments and then went under for the last time. Dragging operations were soon under way and at 6.30 that evening both bodies were recovered.

Mr. Brown was employed at the post-office for some time and then became an employee of the Dominion Express, being a clerk at the local branch for the past seven years.

Mrs. Brown and three young children survive.

LOCAL OPTION BEGUN

Geneva, Switzerland, June 15.—Gustave Ador, former president of Switzerland, associated with a number of doctors and professors, has started a movement in favor of local option in the sale of alcoholic beverages, to the exclusion of wines, beer and cider.

The movement has for its object to obtain the right of communes and cantons to vote upon the question separately. The sale of alcoholic drinks is a state monopoly.

Michael Collins, M.P., Is Most Sinister Figure In the Irish Situation

MICHAEL COLLINS, M.P., chief of the "Irish Republican Army" and minister of finance to the "Republic," is the most sinister figure connected with the Irish republican movement. He is the most "wanted" man in the world. No character in fiction has surpassed his record for audacity and there is no man living about whom so many tales of narrow escapes can be told.

It is probable that when history comes to be written his name will sink into insignificance, for he is not a statesman and does not believe in a peaceable solution to the Irish problem.

"Stop talking and get on with the job," was his message to Ireland when peace overtures were suggested a few months ago.

But to-day his name is mentioned in whispers throughout the land of Erin and he holds complete sway over several thousands of young men who, having taken the oath of allegiance to the I. R. A., dare not disobey his orders. Even loyalists are forced by sheer terror of his name into helping the republican cause.

Details of his early life are little known. He was born 33 years ago of humble parents in County Kerry. He had an ordinary elementary school education and after working with his brother in the grocery business entered the postal service. At one time he was employed at the G.P.O. in London as a sorter, where he astounded every one by his extremist views on the Irish question. He is a man of more than average height, rather strongly built. His face is at once intellectual and cruel, he has a square jaw and his eyes are strangely piercing.

A man who saw him recently walking openly in the streets of Dublin, described the incident as follows:

"As he drew level with me I was struck with the remarkable resemblance he bore to the official photographs of Michael Collins circulated throughout Ireland. For a moment I allowed my eyes to linger on his, fascinated by their penetrating gaze, but suddenly the air became electric and I realized the danger of turning round to take a second look. His own right hand was in his pocket and behind him were five or six men, all at different distances from one another, all with their right hands in their pockets and all with their eyes glued in unwavering stares upon me.

"I walked straight on for about a quarter of a mile before I dared to turn round, for I knew that quite accidentally I had seen and recognized Michael Collins and his bodyguard at large in the streets of Dublin."

He was first heard of officially in connection with the Sinn Fein movement in October, 1914. He became notorious in the rebellion of 1916, where he commanded part of the rebel army of which P. H. Pearse (executed May 3, 1916) was commandant general.

Like all other Sinn Fein M.P.'s, he has never sat at Westminster, but is an important member of Dail Eireann, the Irish republican parliament.

By his very boldness he succeeds where other men would fail. He is a past master in the art of disguise, and it is said that he never goes into the street without a bodyguard of six gunmen. He employs a large number of scouts and intelligence men, who keep him supplied with information regarding the movements of the crown forces.

He has escaped several times by disguising himself as a woman, and on one occasion he traveled in the uniform of a colonel of the British army and was saluted several times by the troops themselves. It is known that he has entered Dublin Castle recently in disguise, and when the auxiliaries raided a house in which he was sleeping he escaped through a back window in his shirt and was proved afterwards to have dressed and walked down the street as one of the crowd and watched the progress of the raid.

Information was received some time ago that he was attending a wake in the Dublin district, and when the house was raided he evaded capture by taking refuge in the coffin after removing the body. The military, out of respect for the dead, made but a cursory examination of the room containing the coffin.—New York Herald.

Gambling in India

Although the natives of India do not operate on the stock market, they have adopted a unique form of gambling for which the cotton market reports are responsible. Every day the quotations are cabled from New York announcing the cotton situation. The natives look upon this as a direct invitation to them to establish a simple but none the less absorbing form of gambling. The gambling is said to consist simply in guessing what the five figures will amount to, and the man getting nearest to the right amount takes the stakes.

Difficulties

The young married couple were dining out. In the middle of their meal a tall and beautiful woman passing near their table gave the young man a look of recognition and a dangerous smile.

So dangerous was the smile that the young wife said, "John, who was that woman?"

John held up his hand.

"Now, for goodness' sake," he said, "don't go bothering me about who she is. I shall have trouble enough explaining to her who you are."

Draped in Crepe

The toll sign which was removed from off the toll house of the Bay Bridge on Dominion Day is for the present adorning one of the windows of the Walker Hardware Company. It is draped with black crepe, denoting that it is destined now to rest forever in oblivion. No tears were shed at its passing from the toll house to its final resting place, unless they were tears of joy at our present glorious freedom.

Pleasure Before Duty

S.S.—At the Sand Banks on Sunday more Bellevillians were to be seen than, we venture to remark, were to be seen in some of the city churches at any of the two services. A free bridge no doubt attracted many across the placid waters of the Bay of Quinte to the famous lake shore resort, we think the terrific heat in the city was really the deciding factor in so many taking the trip to this famous beach and sand hills.

Cooling Thoughts

R.N.—It made me chuckle to notice, while watching the Ball Game at the Agricultural Park on Dominion Day, an ice wagon painted a brilliant red, drawn up in line with cars. The sight of that wagon gave me one cool thrill at least, as the day was excessively warm and even the thought of ice was welcome.

Bleachers at Ball Park

It was a delight to the many followers of Baseball in the city, who usually stand on the base line at a game, to see the new bleachers all ready for use (when you paid your 15c.). This improvement in conditions for the fan who likes to rattle 'em, meaning the opposing pitcher, etc., and they were surely well-filled on Dominion Day. It makes it look as if Belleville is really striving to be an ideal City.

Saskatoon, Sask., June 30.—In fifty-seven minutes last night Dr. A. L. Lynch, of this city, flew 70 miles in a airplane to Humboldt, Sask., where he had been called to attend a man stricken by heart trouble. The physician arrived in time to save the patient's life, and flew back to Saskatoon in 52 minutes. The same journey by train would have occupied more than a day. Lieut. Harvey N. Syslop, late of the Royal Air Forces, was pilot.

Printers Wanted

We have vacancies for a few good Ad. men, stone men and one experienced linotype operator.

Our business offers splendid advantages for promotion and development. Many former employees in our Mechanical Department are to-day occupying highly paid positions on our Editorial and Selling staffs. The General Manager himself was formerly a Compositor, which is evidence of the fact that the opportunity for advancement is practically unlimited.

Our plant is splendidly equipped with new model linotypes, non-distribution system, and a bright airy Composing Room. We carry group insurance on our employees as follows:

Foremen of Departments $2,000.00
Journeymen 1,000.00
Apprentices and Bindery Girls 500.00

We also maintain a nurse in our establishment to take care of minor accidents and to call at the homes of any who are away through illness.

The "MacLean Club" gives many entertainments during the winter and picnics during the summer, and our people have every opportunity of becoming well acquainted with one another.

Our men struck on June 1st last, but we are gradually building up a new staff. Some departments are now sufficiently manned to take care of our present requirements. On the Composing Room Staff, there is steady employment for a few additional men.

Our sixteen publications enable us to give steady employment the year round to competent, efficient workmen.

We have definitely adopted the open shop principle and neither now nor in the future will any discrimination be shown against non-union employees.

Men who have worked anywhere from two to five years at the printing trade and who are now employed at some other work may want to take this opportunity of getting back to the printing business.

If you want to work under these conditions, come to see us or write us fully, giving particulars of your experience to

NEW VICEROY CHANGES CUSTOM

Dublin, June 17.—Lord Fitzalan, the new Irish Viceroy, will not take up his residence in the state apartments of Dublin Castle. Normally the Castle besides being the seat of government in Ireland is the official residence of the Lord Lieutenant, and the Viceregal Lodge is merely a sort of rural rest house.

The Viceregal Lodge is at present being redecorated and furnished for the reception of the new Viceroy. He will have no other residence unless, as Lord Dudley did, he rents one for himself somewhere in the provinces.

After the first year of the war Dublin Castle was turned into a military hospital. The state rooms became domitories and operation theatres. The hospital is now gone.

But the official residence has been absorbed by the growing necessities of Irish government. The place now swarms with clerks far exceeding in number any formerly employed in Irish civil service but for the most part from across the Irish Sea.

All the most important officials live in the Castle. It is not safe for many of them to leave it since men employed there have been shot dead in the streets. There is, therefore, no room for the Lord Lieutenant.

It is understood that he intends to entertain much more freely than Lord French, but he will do so at the Viceregal Lodge. There will be garden parties and musical parties instead of the old-time formal functions for which the Castle was famous.

2nd "VELVET FINGERS" WESTERN COMEDY

NO LONGER REFLECTS SOUND

Defect Which Made Supreme Courtroom "Whispering Gallery" Has Been Remedied.

According to the Washington Star, the "whispering gallery" of the United States Supreme court has been eliminated. It was Chief Justice White who called it a "whispering gallery." In a letter to Elliott Woods, superintendent of the capitol he said:

"The situation is at times almost unbearble, a result which will be readily appreciated when it is understood that from one end of the rostrum to the other there exists what may be described as a whispering gallery, by which speech in the most modulated tone is magnified and carried from one end of the bench to the other, so that a statement by one judge at one end to his neighbor is magnified and spoken into the ear of a member of the court at the other end."

The acoustic properties of the Supreme courtroom have been very bad since 1902, when the roof of the central portion of the capitol was fireproofed and the ceilings of the statuary hall and the present Supreme courtroom were fireproofed. The character of the material used made the surface sound-reflecting. The Supreme court has had a great deal of trouble from that time with the reflection of sound from the spherical ceiling. This defect has now been remedied at a cost of $10,000.

LOOKED LIKE SURE TROUBLE

Little Wonder Courtroom Was in Panic Over Colored Woman's Spectacular Appearance.

During a trial of a colored man in the criminal court recently on a charge of murder, there was considerable nervous tension in the courtroom, the result of remarks that had been made that some one was "going to start something," regardless of the outcome of the case. The courtroom was crowded to capacity, and several police officers were stationed about the room.

At an impressive moment, while the defendant was on the witness stand, a commotion was heard at one of the courtroom doors. Into the midst of the nervous spectators walked a large colored woman who carried in one hand a formidable-looking rifle. Policemen and detectives seized her and rushed her into an outside room, where they began examining the weapon. It was not loaded. She explained that she had been in juvenile court in a case in which the rifle had been used as evidence.

Before going home, she said, she decided to hear some of the evidence in the murder case. She and her rifle were sent out of the building, and the murder trial was resumed.—Indianapolis News.

Power from Volcanic Steam.

In 1905 Prince Ginori Conti, general director of the Larderello works at Larderello, Italy, decided to experiment with the natural steam springs of Larderello for obtaining motive power. His experiments were so successful that the company built a large power station at Larderello with three units of 2,500 kilowatts each. The work, says The Illustrated London News, was begun in 1914, but was delayed by the European war. The first unit was started in 1916, and the power station was completed in the same year. Four overhead lines at 36,000 volts carry electric current to Siena, Leghorn, Piombina and Massa. The holes bored to the natural steam pockets, which vary in depth from 198 feet to 495 feet, are lined with iron tubing sixteen inches in diameter. The steam is cleared of gas before it is carried to the turbine generators.

Clemenceau and Heaven.

The latest Clemenceau anecdote that is going the rounds of the boulevards is to the effect that the premier was annoyed because a tree in the neighboring garden overshadowed his. The tree was the property of some Jesuit fathers, on whom M. Clemenceau called, politely explaining that his attitude to the church was unchanged, but he would regard it as a personal favor if the Jesuit fathers would cut down the tree, "because it prevents me from seeing the heavens." The Jesuit father who received him was very courteous and was much flattered by the premier's call. He promised that the offending tree should be speedily removed, but he added, with the suave smile of the ecclesiastic: "I am afraid, M. le Premier, that, just the same, you will not see heaven."—London Morning Post.

His "College."

During debate in the New York state assembly one day, when Gov. Smith was a member of that body, another member arose to a question of personal privilege and announced that Cornell had won the boat race at Poughkeepsie, adding that he was a graduate of Cornell. This started a reminiscence meeting, other members arising to tell the name of their alma mater. Smith finally rose and announced:

"I am a graduate of the F. F. M."

"What college is that?"

"Fulton Fish Market."—World's Work.

PROTECTIVE COLORING.

In Arctic Regions Animals Match the Snow.

Nature has a wonderful way of helping her creatures. In the Arctic regions, when the snow is dense, the fox turns his tawny coat into a white one, so that he may prowl about unseen, his fur exactly matching the color of the snow. His prey, too, have the same gift. They, in turn, become white, so that they may have more chance of escaping from their natural enemies.

A hare, when squatting in a newly-ploughed field, is practically invisible, so well does her coat tone with her surroundings. She knows this, too, and is wise enough to remain absolutely still until any danger is past.

The leaves of rose bushes are often riddled with holes made by a tiny green caterpillar, exactly the color of the food it enjoys so much; in consequence, it is extremely difficult to detect.

The stripes of the tiger are for protective purposes. It lives in the jungle, and its stripes look like shadows amidst the tall grasses.

Have you ever tried to find a plover's nest? You might walk over the same stretch of shingle time after time and not discover the eggs, so closely do they resemble the stones amongst which they are laid.

The hawk is very fond of young grouse, but if they keep quite still in the heather he is likely to be disappointed, for from the height at which he hunts the bird's coloring renders it practically invisible.

Alberta Looks Ahead.

The Government of Alberta and the people in the southern part of that province, who have become convinced during the past few years that irrigation pays, are not disposed to wait for the next cycle of rainy seasons to retrieve past losses through drought. The Lethbridge Herald announces that bids for the earthwork required in connection with the construction of the Lethbridge Northern Irrigation System will be called for at once, and that it is hoped to make marked progress before the close of the season. The Alberta Government will float the necessary bonds in Canada. They will bear six per cent. interest, and it is hoped that a price not far short of par will be realized.

Of the value of irrigation in increasing the yield of cereals and providing plentiful pasturage during dry seasons no one who visits the irrigated areas in Southern Alberta can remain in doubt. The rich soil, with water laid on, can produce three cuttings of alfalfa between May and October and enable stockmen to handle far more cattle than can be cared for on an equal area of land under any other system of cultivation.

The Lethbridge Northern ditch is evidence of how Albertans propose to front and overcome the recurring setbacks that are encountered under dry-farming conditions in the southern part of the province.

Delicious Fruits.

Among the productions of the Philippine Islands are two delicious fruits almost unknown in the rest of the world. One of these is the durian, whose remarkable qualities were descanted upon by Alfred Russell Walace during his explorations in the Malay Archipelago. It grows on a lofty tree somewhat resembling an elm, is about as large as a cocoanut, has a shiny shell, and contains a creamy pulp which combines some of the flavors of a delicious custard with those of a fine cheese. To eat durians, we are told by those who know, is a new sensation worth a voyage to the East to experience. Americans in the Islands call the durian "the vegetable Limburger cheese." The other rare fruit spoken of is the mangosteen, said to be the only fruit that the Governor-General of the Islands has never tasted. The exquisitively flavored liquid it contains can not be preserved for shipping abroad.

Differences.

Bimperton was not fond of riddles, but he "bought" the one that inquires which is the longest word in the English language. "Smiles," said the man who had asked him; "because there's a mile between the first letter and the last." Bimperton sighed; then he said, "Now, I've got one for you. Are you interested in politics?" The man said he was. "Well, then, what's the difference between Great Britain and the United States?" "Three thousand miles," said the man, triumphantly. "You're miles out," said the other. "It's only a League."

Learning Composition.

The junior reporter was writing a marriage notice. Finally he brought it up and laid it on the editor's desk: "Mr. and Mrs. Blank announce today the marriage of their daughter to take place next Monday——" "Oh," grunted the editor, "you can't say they announced a marriage yet to take place." Again the junior tapped at his typewriter. And when he brought his notice back this time it read: "Mr. and Mrs. Blank predicted to-day the marriage of their daughter."

New Use for Hides.

Carloads of good hides are being sold for glue stock, a condition scarcely ever known before in the hide market. Instead of being converted into good leather the hides are freed from hair, cut up by machines like those which chop ensilage and then converted into a gelatine from which moving-picture film is made.

MINISTER'S WIFE DEFENDS SHORT SKIRT

London, Ont., June 30.—In an address delivered before the Chesley Avenue Mothers' Club, Mrs. McIntosh, wife of Rev. W. R. McIntosh, pastor of King street Presbyterian Church, said that the short skirt problem should be settled by the women, and not by the men. Notwithstanding all that has been said against it, Mrs. McIntosh declared the short skirt to be more sanitary and an improvement on the old fashioned garment, which trailed in the dust and gathered with it all the microbes off the sidewalks and pavements.

FATAL ACCIDENT

Parry Sound, Ont., June 30.—Mrs. Lorne Fraser, of Humphrey Township, about 20 miles from this town, accidentally killed herself with a 32-calibre rifle on Saturday when returning from a search for cows which had gone astray. Apparently she was climbing a fence when the rifle was discharged. The bullet entered her neck just below the chin and came out at the base of the skull. Her husband was working with a neighbor at the time and it was not until some hours after Mrs. Fraser's death that her body was found. She was 40 years of age.

GERMAN FARCICAL TRIAL OF WAR CRIMINALS.

Seven judges in violet robes upheld the German policy of frightfulness when they acquitted Naval Lieutenant Karl Neumann of sinking the English hospital ship Dover Castle. Such is the view of the Providence Bulletin and editors the world over. The Lieutenant's defence was that he merely obeyed orders, and the judges of the High Court at Leipzig, where the trials of German war prisoners are being held, acquitted him accordingly. "If this ruling is to be considered a general precedent, no submarine commander, no field commander, no military governor of occupied territory is likely to be brought to punishment whatever may have been his crimes. Nevertheless, the subordinate who would sink a hospital ship or a Lusitania, with its hundreds of non-combatant men, women and children, is not one whit less a murderer than his superiors who would order it; Neumann is freed by a German court, but by his own confession he and the government he served are branded as murderers."

The long-delayed trials of German war criminals, originally intended to bring some one in authority to book for some of the major crimes committed in the war, began with the trial and conviction of a sergeant charged with brutal treatment of British war prisoners. Ten months' imprisonment was his portion, but, as the Tacoma Ledger puts it, "he was only one of the goats; the big criminals are the important items on the list." Next came the case of a commandant of a prison camp, who, according to the diary of a British prisoner, was "responsible for the deaths of hundreds of Tommies." Another British witness against Herr Commandant said the German officer liked to amuse himself "by riding horseback into groups of sick prisoners too weak and helpless to get out of the way." Six months, said the seven judges in violet robes. A second non-commissioned officer, for striking prisoners with a rifle-butt, knocking them down, and continuing to strike them, was found guilty and sentenced to six months' imprisonment; then came the trial of Lieutenant Neumann. This was the crucial ease of the four selected by the Germans to prove that they could render justice. But "it was not Lieutenant Neumann who was on trial; it was the whole German people, whose government had ordered ruthless submarine warfare," declares Arno Dosch-Fleurot in a dispatch from Leipzig to the New York World. In this correspondent's opinion "it made no difference whether Neumann was convicted or acquitted, he was not the real criminal before the bar. The German Admiralty was on trial; yet the decision of the court had nothing to do with the guilt of the Admiralty. The question really before the court was whether the Admiralty had the moral right to sink British hospital ships, although the court could decide only whether Neumann was guilty.

"The trial consisted in Neumann explaining that he only carried out explicit orders to sink British hospital ships, of which the Dover Castle happened to be one. He gave a cold recital of how he waited for six hours near the Dover Castle while it zigzagged in flight until the opportune moment to strike. His orders were read in court and the case came to an end. There were no witnesses because they were at the bottom of the sea."

Editors and correspondents remind us that Germany promised at Versailles to hand over to the Allies for trial an imposing list of indicted German war criminals. There are 573 of them listed in a French 'Who's Who of Atrocity'," including the names of Von Hindenburg, Prince Rupprecht, Von Mackensen, Von Bulow, Von Tirpitz, and Prince Eitel Friedrich. Even the former Kaiser was to be no exception. Germany, however, did not keep her promise, and the Allies have permitted Germany to try the prisoners herself. Leading London papers call the trial a farce, as do the Milwaukee Journal, the Providence Journal, and many more United States newspapers. Yet, notes the Baltimore American, "an impartial effort by the Germans to fix the guilt of their countrymen is contrary to the laws of nature; the pot can not sincerely call the kettle black."

The worst criminals are the men higher up, the field marshals and statesmen.

Says the New York Tribune: "It follows that real responsibility for ruthless submarine warfare, the sinking of hospital ships and merchant ships, neutral or allied, carrying non-combatant passengers; for the bombing of unfortified towns and land hospitals, the slaughter of enemy civilians and the wanton destruction of property outside the zone of battle rest with the German higher-ups, who determined that war should be waged upon a new basis. The German policy was deliberate and cold-blooded. It was predicated on the assumption that the fighting was to occur mainly on foreign soil and that Germany would be fairly safe from reprisals. She had no merchant marine on the high seas.

"Will the court go after the high command which framed the German policy of ruthlessness on lard an sea and place the guilt where it belongs, even if the trial leads to Tirpitz, Falkenhhyn and Ludendorff, and to the once Aller-Hochtse, now a crestfallen, cringing exile in Doorn? Or will it be solemnly adjudged, should they be brought into court, that they were not guilty because they took no personal part in the atrocities?"

It does not appear that the Leipzig court has any intention of trying the higher-ups. In fact, the spirit of Germany is the same as it was under the rule of the Kaiser; it is as full of deception, evasion, trickery, and assumption as ever."

THE FIRST WOMAN BARRISTER

London Daily News

Miss Clapham, of the Middle Temple, is the first woman student to qualify to be called to the Bar. It is a sign of the times that the announcement has not called forth any questionings or misgivings as to woman's efficiency in her latest profession, but only doubts as to what will be an appropriate dress for her to wear in the Courts. The black robe would adorn her, but the horsehair wig is unthinkable. The suggestion that she should wear the traditional stage costume of Portia herself is a happy one, except that it would seem to place opposing male counsel at some disadvantage. Will the Benchers of her Inn of Court decide this delicate point, or is it the Lord Chancellor's personal privilege?

FAULTS ON BOTH SIDES

Westminster Gazette

The reduction of 5s 7d per shift would still leave the miners with earnings 128 per cent. above their pre-war earnings. No one desires the miners to submit to a reduction of 5s 7d per shift, but there is sufficient margin here to give the industry relief and to leave the miner in a substantially better position than before the war. It is all a question of restoring pre-war output. How to do that is a problem which concerns the owners as well as the men, and the organization of transport in addition to both of them. The owners are certainly not without responsibility for the slow development of new seams and other forms of slackness on their side have certainly contributed to the deplorable result.

LABOR'S DEFEAT IN NEW ZEALAND

Auckland News (N.Z.)

The feature of the municipal elections throughout New Zealand this year has been the setback sustained by the Labor Party. In Auckland the representation of the party has been reduced from three to two and the successful candidates are much further down the list than they were two years ago. The lesson for Labor is that it is under the grave suspicion of the electors. A genuine working-class movement would meet with a great deal of sympathy from all classes, and would be assured of fair representation on local bodies, but the official Labor Party in New Zealand so grotesquely distorts the aspirations of the average working man that it invites no tolerance from other sections of the community. It offends the sentiments of the patriotic, prudent citizen at almost every turn.

REFUGEES PETITION TO RETURN

Riga, June 14.—The Bolshevik paper Novy Put says that during the past few days about 1,500 refugees who took part in the Kronstadt revolt have returned from Finland to Petrograde. Some weeks ago Bolshevik airplanes flew over the refugee camps near Terioki and they dropped leaflets promising amnesty to all Kronstadt citizens who wished to return home except the ringleaders of the revolt.

The Finnish government protested against this breach of "air neutrality" by the Soviet but about one-third of the refugees have petitioned to be allowed to return.

HEAT KILLS HORSE

A horse the property of the Smith Hardware Company was yesterday afternoon being driven to a delivery waggon when it fell and expired. The excessive heat was the cause of the animal's death.

SPOILING THE DRIVEWAY

When turning off the roadway at the bay bridge to go to Zwicks Island there is a road that leads to the centre of the island, and for some reason apparently a number of loads of gravel have been taken from the middle of the road leaving a considerable excavation to drive over or go around. Why was the gravel taken from this articular spot when it could have been taken from a portion of the island that is not a driveway.

TRIPLE DROWNING

Québec, June 30.—Georges Patry, a well-known grocer of this city, doing business at 22 Fabrique street, was drowned in the Jacques River, at Tewkesbury, while his daughter, Georgette, aged 18 years, and his son, Henri, aged 10 years, also perished.

The party motored to Tewkesbury, about 25 miles north of the city, this afternoon, and while the girl was standing on the bank of the river she slipped and fell into the water.

The father endeavored to reach out to rescue her, and was held by his young son, but he also slipped and dropped the boy in with him.

The other members of the family including Mrs. Patry, were waiting in the motor car at some distance, but did not hear the cries of the three victims. It was only after waiting a logn time that they became anxious and going to the river to investigate, they discovered the triple tragedy.

Forest fires are raging at several northern points.

Bride Accidentally Killed by Husbapu

Kingston, July 4.—A very sad shooting accident occurred yesterday afternoon at South Lake, when Mrs. Thos. Marshall was accidentally and fatally shot by her husband with a double-barrelled shotgun. For some time past a hawk had been bothering their chickens in their yard, and Mr. Marshall went out with his gun to shoot it. He shot and wounded it, and brought it to his wife to show it to her. He was standing talking to her, showing her the wounded hawk, when the second barrel, which Mr. Marshall did not know was loaded, accidentally discharged, the shot entering the left knee of Mrs. Marshall and shattering it.

The best possible attention was given and word sent to this city for an ambulance. One was dispatched to the scene of the accident in a comparatively short time and was on the way to Kingston with Mrs. Marshall, when she passed away near Brewer's Mills, death being due to loss of blood and shock.

The shooting is one of the saddest recorded in a long time and the sympathy of the whole community is extended to the bereaved family. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall had been married only seven months and they were living happily on their little farm at South Lake when the tragedy occurred. She was only thirty-two years of age.

DROWNED NEAR COBALT

Cobalt, July 5.—The third drowning fatality that has occurred in this district within the last few weeks claimed as its victim Joseph Arthur Press, a local young man, aged 20, who met his death while swimming in Peterson Lake yesterday afternoon. With two other youths, he was standing on a ledge, when he slipped into a depth of 30 feet of water.

THE SUBSTITUTE

(Copyright, 1903)

light upon which her very soul seemed to breathe. Covered with embarrassment, Buckley went to them.

"I'm very sorry," he began, but Lydia put up her gloved hand and stopped him.

"Don't, don't!" she said gently, almost reverently, as she looked straight into his eyes. "Don't!"

He had not been introduced to her companion, and the fact seemed to have escaped her. The three walked to the door.

"I am Miss Cosby, Mr. Buckley," Kitty said sweetly. "Lydia has completely forgotten that we don't know each other."

"I am delighted to meet you," he faltered, red in the face. "This is a rather rough and tumble camp meeting reception to offer you the first time you honor the old warehouse with your presence, Miss Cosby," he managed to get out, "but we are an emotional people and"—

"Hush!" suddenly exclaimed Lydia, facing him with her great, wondering eyes. "Don't speak lightly of that." Then her voice sank into ineffable sweetness. "Show me, Mr. Buckley, where it happened. I mean from which direction did the mob come, and is this the door—where the poor boy—where you stood—this here?"

"Show me, Mr. Buckley, where it happened."

George grew redder; he essayed a light laugh, but she was persistent. She laid her hands on his arm. "Tell me," she urged, "is this the very spot?"

"That's right, miss," said Truitt, coming up. "The gang come runnin' right down that walk after Jeff. He hain't a plumb coward, but a mob o' fifty bloodthirsty men would rattle any boy that's been made a pet of all his life. They was all right on his heels, an' he seed George Buckley's open door an' made a break fer it. George let 'im in an' then stood right on that sill thar an' dared one of 'em to pass 'im. He had a gun, but they could 'a' ground 'im to sausage meat. One man cocked a revolver, an' George heard it an' yelled out an' dared 'im to shoot 'im while he stood in the light, an' bemeaned 'im fer a coward an' all he could think of. His pure grit, an' the respect they had fer 'im, shamed the gang, an' they left. But that's a hero, miss. You young ladies study about leaders of great battles that are this an' that, but I'm a old soldier, an' what George Buckley done last night was the bravest thing I ever seed or heard tell of."

"We thought Major Cranston was here," Miss Cosby explained when Truitt had gone. "We have been looking all over town for him."

George accompanied them to the carriage and helped them in. He was still flushed and embarrassed. Lydia was quiet and thoughtful.

"You must come up and see us very soon," she said. "I want you to know Kitty."

Buckley turned back to the office, angry with himself, the Truitts and everything pertaining to the recent happening.

"Oh, what an ass I made of myself," he thought—"what a deplorable, helpless ass!"

He had just seated himself at his desk when Jeff Truitt came in. "George," he said, "Kenner has offered me a job at the compress, and"—

"Well"—George looked up from his work, with a frown—"that's all right, I guess."

Their eyes met, and Truitt's fell to the ground. He turned out of the door, meeting Kenner on the sidewalk.

"I made George mad jest now," he said to Kenner. "I wouldn't 'a' done it fer the world, but"—

"You didn't make me mad, old boy," said George, coming up, with a smile. "I was worried about a calculation I was making. I hardly knew who was speaking to me."

"Well, I'm glad," said Jeff, with a smile of relief. "I wouldn't bother you fer the world."

"I'll bet he was mad," said Kenner to himself as he moved on. "George Buckley's as hard to understand sometimes as a woman. He didn't like the way the Truitts carried on 'fore them young ladies. Lord, he don't know which side his bread's buttered on! Ef I live a hundred years I'll never forget Lydia Cranston's face while old Truitt was a-talkin', an' George is as blind as a bat—kickin' himself right now."

He went into the office a few minutes later. George was at his desk, a dry flush still on his face. "I met Bob Hanks uptown awhile ago," Kenner observed.

George did not seem to hear.

"He's put on a new two horse delivery wagon, painted up with his sign on it, jest like city wagons."

Buckley was still inattentive.

"By the way, the little devil told me he was goin' to let up on that schoolgirl racket o' his. He told me of his own accord, so I reckon my talk did some good t'other night."

"I suppose it did," said Buckley, with a start, and he went to work. Kenner stood watching him for several minutes. The flush remained on Buckley's face all that morning, and he seldom answered when spoken to. Even Hillyer remarked upon his strange conduct.

"He's a quar boy," said the old man. "I don't pretend to understand 'im, but I bank on 'im jest the same."

"I think I understand 'im," replied Kenner. "I kin see through a plank when thar's a knot hole in it." But that was as far as the cotton buyer would commit himself.

CHAPTER XIX.

On their arrival at home that morning the two girls separated in the hall, Lydia going up to her room with a grave look on her face, and Miss Cosby turning into the parlor to take off her wraps. Mrs. Cranston joined her immediately.

"I was in the summer house and saw you coming," she said eagerly. "I thought I'd give Lydia a chance to go upstairs, for I am crazy to hear what you have to say. Well, did you meet the paragon?"

Miss Cosby rubbed her kid glove down from her wrist toward the tips of her slender fingers. "Meet him?—by a large majority, I assure you. We walked right into his den. Your scheme worked, Mrs. Cranston. As soon as we missed the major uptown I told Lydia that you said he might be down at the grain warehouse, and she ordered the carriage there. I have one thing to ask you, Mrs. Cranston"—Kitty was smiling—"what are the rates of board in this town?"

"Rates of board?" exclaimed Mrs. Cranston. "What on earth do you want to know that for?"

"I'm going to pay my board while I'm with you," said the girl, with mock seriousness. "I know you invited me down here to help you out of your mess, and I have washed my hands of the whole business. I'm out of it from now on—out. Do you understand?"

"Oh, Kitty, do be serious—don't be silly."

"I'm out of it, I tell you," persisted the girl, pulling at the other glove. "I won't work for anybody that don't tote fair. Why didn't you tell me this Buckley was a regular Apollo in a business suit? Why, I never felt in my life as I did with him. I may be romantic, cracked, soft or something, but I simply stood and stared at him, unable to say a thing that was sensible. Besides, we were all upset—excited to death, and"—

"Excited!" gasped Mrs. Cranston. "Why, what about?"

"Oh, about that White Cap affair down there last night. You never heard half of it. The major hinted that it was only some drunken mountain rowdies, personal friends of Mr. Buckley's, when it was—oh, only a little thing like a great, tall god of a man standing in a door daring a mob of fifty strong to pass in after the man they were pursuing! The man in the door with the revolver and the blazing eyes was George Buckley, and the little, dried up man he was offering his life for was no relation to him and a man he could not be congenial with."

"Kitty, you surprise me," said Mrs. Cranston.

"You'll be more than surprised before this thing is over with, if I'm any judge of human nature," Kitty laughed. "Why, Mrs. Cranston, you are battling with Niagara falls in a dugout when you are trying to keep two people like Lydia and that young man from admiring each other, especially Lydia or any real woman." She then proceeded to describe minutely all that had taken place in the office. At times her voice would clog and her eyes fill to overflowing. "And the beauty of it was," she ended, "that the hero of it all was mad enough to kick the people who were sobbing out his praises."

"Lydia heard all that!" said Mrs. Cranston.

"Yes, she heard it all. You have always thought she was proud and haughty and cold. Huh! She melted all over and ran out at the eyes. She doesn't know she's in love with him. She doesn't comprehend it any more than a baby comprehends life. He followed us outside to apologize—just think of that—apologize! He tried to laugh it off. I introduced myself. I had to. Lydia was acting as if she were in a dream. She was asking questions about the exact spot where he had stood, as reverently, Mrs. Cranston, as a girl looking for the grave of a soldier lover. Then the father of the rescued boy came out and went all over it again. I've been to plays that moved me, but always, away down in my heart, lay the knowledge that it was only acting, but that this morning was the real thing. They say all the world loves a lover. I was asked to thwart that pair, but when I saw those two together—he with his great, hungry, dreamy eyes that seemed full of eternal suffering with love for her actually burning in their depths, and she with her sweet, wondering face—I—I felt like an egg sucking dog! I wanted to put out my hands and draw their heads together. Love is beautiful always. It was like a glimpse of heaven this morning. I always considered Lydia a strong woman. I admire her more now than ever. All along she has seen what there is to this man and been trying to give him simple justice."

Mrs. Cranston groaned aloud and sat down, covering her face with her hands. "I reckon we'll have to send her off," she said.

Southern Alberta had several hours of rain.

It was always understood that the meanest man in the world was the one who used the wart on the back of his neck as a collar button but some chaps in Lindsay can go this fellow one better. Last Tuesday the game at Lindsay with Oshawa had to be called in the second innings on account of rain. Rain checks were issued and a number of the fence climbers applied at the ticket office for their rain checks.

BALL HITS CLOCK

Boston, June 30.—Boston hit hard and defeated Philadelphia 8 to 1 in the closing game of the series. Welch made the longest single within recollection at Fenway Park, in the sixth innings, when his long drive struck the clock that is elevated over the left-field fence, and bounded back so sharply that the batter had to be content with one base.

More Bloodshed in Ireland Six Are Shot to Death

FIVE MEN TAKEN FROM THEIR HOMES AND SHOT—WOMAN KILLED WHILE DEFENDING HER BROTHER—TWO CONSTABLES SEVERELY WOUNDED.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

BELFAST, July 6.—Five men were taken from their homes in the district of Newry, 44 miles south of this city, this morning and shot. Their bodies were left in a heap by the roadside by the men who had put them to death.

A school teacher, Miss McAnuff, was shot and killed yesterday at Newry while attempting to shield her brother. Two of the dead men were brothers and were sons of former Sergeant of Police Reilly.

This is the most serious incident that has occurred in the Newry district since disorders have begun in Ireland.

Two men snatched revolvers from the holsters of two constables on a street here this morning and shot the officers, who were severely wounded. The men who made the attack escaped.

Lonely Camper Arrives in City

Jack Taylor Pitches His Tent in Rear of Post Office.

Gentle reader, this local was set by hand in 12-point Antique by Jack Taylor, the Lone Camper, who is walking between Toronto and Montreal, and return to Toronto, walking and Camping ALL the way.

He was setting the type in 12-point at so rapid a pace that the metal in the case went into a melted mass, and they had to switch him over to a case of 10-point. It is really not often that a local item in a city paper gets the advantage of so much display as is here given, with the result that at first sight this local will take on some of the ear-marks of a Prince Edward County auction sale of blooded farm stock, and other articles too numerous to mention.

Just here there comes a gentle hint from one of the Powers That Be, that owing to heavy pressure of matter for the Foreign Cables' Page, this highly promising news item will have to close on this line.

Jack arrived in Belleville on Tuesday pitching his tent in rear of the post office by permission of post master Gillen. Jack is a printer and is writing for the Sunday World, Toronto. He is making a "hike" from Toronto to Montreal this time. Mr. Taylor shoves his belongings along on a bicycle frame with a board on top for a shelf and allows his dog to rest thereon also. "Jack" Taylor is a well known newspaper character and has made many long trips on foot. His specialties are walking and writing about it.

France is Selling Boots by The Pound

Paris, July 5.—Selling boots by the pound may seem strange, but it is what the French Government is up against in the liquidation of the two largest French army camps. More than $2,000,000 worth of the stoutest footgear is going begging because some one put over a lot of freak sizes which couldn't be worn.

The boots are made of the best leather, but as they would require cutting in order to use even the soles or heels, the offers received were all too small, and it was decided to sell by weight.

Speaker Rhodes to Quit Politics

REPORT SAYS HE WILL CONTINUE FOR PRESENT PARLIAMENT ONLY

Halifax, July 4.—Although he will continue to discharge his duties as Speaker of the House of Commons during the life of the present Parliament, Hon. E. N. Rhodes, M.P. for Cumberland, N. S., is retiring from political life to become General Manager of the British-American Nickel Corporation, with the headquarters at Ottawa, according to an Amherst despatch to The Halifax Morning Chronicle tonight. Mr. Rhodes will leave Amherst for Ottawa within a few days, the despatch added.

"No one, apart from those directly concerned, knows the demands that are made on a man in the service of the public. I will be delighted to have the mantle of office fall to another," said Mr. Rhodes, announcing his retirement.

Survives Sleep of Three Years

KANSAS CITY PATIENT WILL NOW HEAR WHO WON THE WAR

Kansas City, Mo., July 4.—Jim Eslinger, world's champion long-distance sleeper, who ended his long nap last Friday, has apparently decided to keep an open eye on the world which did so many things while he slumbered. Jim is sitting up to-day in his room at the County Hospital talking to a few friends and relatives.

Eslinger is apparently gaining strength, and his chances for recovery of normal faculties appear to be good. His complete awakening is considered as remarkable as his long sleep, for physicians here believe his case is unprecedented in medical history. Though there have been other cases of protracted sleep, there is no record available of a nap of three years' duration. Eslinger was a sufferer from pellagra when he came to the hospital eight years ago. His wife died of the disease, and he sank into a slumber about three years ago. His appetite remained with him through his sleep, and his color appeared normal, but he was apparently unconscious of all that occurred.

In about a week Eslinger will be told of the winning of the war, prohibition and other events for the first time, providing he remains awake.

Business Affected by Intense Heat

GROWERS IN ST. CATHERINES DISTRICT SAY RASPBERRIES ARE COOKING ON VINES

St. Catharines, July 5.—Ninety-nine in the shade was registered today. With no breeze the suffering has been intense. Business has practically been suspended and the factory men had to quit work.

The heat is a very severe menace to the fruit, which is literally burning up. Growers say raspberries are cooking on the vines, and the drought is especially damaging to potatoes and tomatoes.

The third was the death of a man on his way to a football game. He fell on the street and died on his way to the hospital. The thermometer in the sun today registered 110½.

London Canadians Keep Dominion Day

BANQUET IN BRITAIN'S METROPOLIS ATTENDED BY MANY DISTINGUISHED PERSONS

London, July3.—The Dominion Day dinner was the largest and most successful ever held here. Sir George H. Perley, Canadian High Commissioner presided, and the speakers included Prime Minister Hon. Arthur Meighen, the Duke of Connaught, the Japanese Ambassador, Sir Arthur Currie and the Hon. Hugh Guthrie.

Premier Meighen pointed out the difficulties with which Canada had to contend, owing to the fact that it included many races, but he expressed the opinion that she would succeed in the mission before her. The Japanese Ambassador, whose presence at the gathering was regarded as significant, in view of the position taken by Hon. Mr. Meighen at the conference of Premiers, paid a great tribute to the Dominion and hoped that the two countries would continue in friendly co-operation.

NO DISAGREEMENT

Chicago, July 5.—Railway Union leaders went into session to-day, the fifth of their conferences over the wage cut which went into effect July 1, with a prospect of winding up meetings to-night. "There is no essential disagreement, and all that remains to be done is to settle the phraseology of our action", Dan Corrigan, veteran officer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers said today.

Conference on Irish Problems and Peace

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

London, July 6.—Observations between Government leaders and prominent Irishmen relative to some plan by which peace may be obtained in Ireland, continued here to-day. Earl Middleton, South Irish Unionist leader continued the conferences he began following his arrival in London yesterday and Sir James Craig, Premier of Ulster was expected to meet government officials after reaching London this morning.

Hold-up Men at Deseronto

TWO ARMED BANDITS DEMANDED AND SECURED HIS MONEY AT REVOLVERS' POINT

At Deseronto on Monday night, two armed bandits held up and robbed Mr. Barker of Kingston, an agent of the Metropolitan Insurance Company of $160. The hold-up was porpetrated before 9 o'clock.

Mr. Barker is the agent for Deseronto and surrounding district for the Metropolitan Company and he went into Deseronto Monday night on his canvassing trip and hired a horse and rig from the Allen livery, shortly after eight o'clock. From the livery stable Mr. Barker drove to the home of Mr. E. Martin at the west end of the town, near the Smelting Company's plant. He arrived there at 8-10 and after being there for a few moments he started back for the home of Mr. Brad. When he had gone a short distance past the Smelting Works on the return trip, two men rushed out from the side of the road, one on either side and they covered Mr. Barker with their revolvers and threatened to shoot him if he moved. They demanded that he hand over all the money he was carrying and with two revolvers staring him in the face, Mr. Barker was forced to hand over the money which he carried, amounting to $160.

One of the men then held the revolver to Mr. Barker's head while the other searched him. After they had got what they could, the robbers disappeared into the bush at the side of the road, leaving Mr. Barker unharmed but terrified. He seems to be unable to describe the men except that one man is taller than the other. He cannot remember whether they wore masks or not.

Mr. Barker drove into Deseronto and in an exhausted condition told the men at the livery stable what had happened. Chief of Police Bowen was then notified but the police have little to work on and it will be hard to apprehend the offenders.

U.S. AUTOS AT THE FALLS ARE STREAMING INTO CANADA

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 5.—Traffic on the bridges to-day has been abnormal at both bridges. A continuous stream of United States automobiles has crossed on the upper bridge. The average for all day has been three hundred an hour, and Government and bridge officials report that all records for traffic have been broken for American cars coming into Canada.

Asiatic Cholera Raging in Russia

IMPERIAL CASTLES AND COUNTRY HOUSES TURNED INTO HOSPITALS

Stockholm, July 5.—Asiatic cholera is spreading rapidly in the whole of European Russia, according to the Public Health Recorder. There were 6,000 cases reported up to June 25.

Towns are more subject to the infection than rural districts. Recently Petrograd and Moscow have become infected, the disease spreading rapidly and being propagated by the unusually hot weather and refugees who have fled from the famine districts.

According to the Aosta News Agency in Moscow, all the imperial castles and country houses of the nobility in the Crimea will be converted into hospitals.

Excellent Crops in North Sask.

WHEAT IN GOOD CONDITION AND OTHER GRAINS FILLING-OUT —IDEAL WEATHER

Saskatoon, Sask., July 5.—Ideal weather, warm with light occasional showers, has marked this district for the past week, and as a consequence crop conditions are reported as being excellent. Wheat is now coming into the head and in some places is over three feet high.

Some districts report light hail storms but no damage resulting. The ravages of the grasshoppers have been neutralized by the use of a large amount of poison bait.

Vanscoy, in the Kindersley sub-division of the Canadian National Railway, and most of the stations along that line, report a need of rain. A severe hail storm swept Vanscoy itself at the end of last week and caused some damage to gardens and crops. Wakawa, to the east of Prince Albert, is the only place complaining of too much rain, all others report ideal weather and crop doing exceptionally well.

No Warlike Intentions

Smyrna, July 6.—Greece has no warlike intentions towards Soviet Russia, despite statements to the contrary which have appeared in the European press, according to George Chitcherin, Bolshevik.

Japan to Hold Peace Exhibition

CANADA IS URGED TO PARTICIPATE IN TOKIO FAIR NEXT YEAR

Ottawa, July 5.—Tokio, Japan, is to hold a Peace Exhibition next year, opening on March 10 and holding out until July 3, A. E. Bryan, Canadian Trade Commissioner at Yokohama, writes in the Trade and Commerce Weekly Bulletin. Its objects are the promotion of Japanese industry, as well as international trade. It will have 10 departments, the most important being the industrial, the food and the foreign trade departments. In the last-named the industries of China, the South Pacific Islands and South America are to be represented. The expenditure on the exhibition is estimated at 6,000,000 yen.

Mr. Bryan is of the opinion that Canadian firms interested in the Japanese market should participate in this exhibition, which will be the most important ever held in the Orient. Japan has a market of 60,000,000 people, who have already bought large quantities of Canadian wood, pulp, timber an metals, as well as a certain amount of dried fish and provisions.

Exhibitors will be given special freight concessions, and exhibits will be immune from duty, unless they are sold.

Ardendale Child Killed by Train

LITTLE FREDDIE FLOOD TODDLED INTO PATH OF PASSING FREIGHT TRAIN

Freddy Flood aged two and a half years was on Monday night instantly killed at Ardendale, Frontenac County when he was struck by a westbound C.P.R. freight train. The little lad was the son of Charles M. Flood, operator at Ardendale, and he had been playing around the house at the station. About 5.30 he ran out of the door at the station to the tracks as a train was passing through. The cow-catcher of the big engine caught the little fellow, hurling him fifty feet from the tracks where he was picked up dead with his little head crushed by the blow.

Rose Bureigh, day operator, a former resident of this city, made a heroic effort to rescue the little lad from in front of the engine and in doing so was almost struck by the engine himself. He realized the plight of the lad as the train bore down upon him and he jumped to the centre of the track and made a grab for the boy and then jumped to the other side of the rails. He missed the boy, and the next instant the cow-catcher struck the lad and hurled him from the track.

Two Young Men Suffocated Fleeing From Forest Fires

LARGE TIMBER AND PULPWOOD LOSS—HOUSES BURN AT LARDER LAKE—PROSPECTORS' AND SETTLERS' BUILDINGS AND STRETCH OF TRANSMISSION LINES ARE DESTROYED.

Cobalt, July 6.—News of the first casualties from the bush fires which are raging in the Northern timber forests reached here to-day through train men coming from Porquis Junction. At Holland, a station a few miles north of here, two young men, whose names have not yet been learned, were smothered by smoke while attempting to escape the flames, having sought refuge in a dugout.

These two fatalities are the first to occur as a result of bush fires since 1916.

At the Lower Abitibi yesterday forest fires attacking piles of cordwood are reported to have destroyed over fifty thousand cords. Fear is growing that a wind will spring up before rain arrives, and if so the rapidly-approaching fires will create a serious menace to Northern towns of considerable size, including Timmins and Iroquois Falls.

Apart from timber losses the property loss so far reported includes a number of houses at Larder Lake, the destruction of a mile and a half of power transmission line at the Associated Goldfields' mine at Larder Lake, and a number of buildings belonging to prospectors and settlers.

Continental train No. 2, southbound on the tracks of the T. & N. O. and Canadian National Railways was two hours and a half late reaching here last night, the delay being caused by the spread of a forest fire to some pulpwood and freight cars on a siding at Hearst Station.

The C. N. R. tank car was engaged for nearly three hours fighting the fire, while the Continental was forced to wait at Hearst Station.

Forest fires north of Englehart are being aggravated by the excessive heat, which yesterday reached a record in the North for the past 28 years. The official thermometer readings at Haileybury showed a maximum of 102.2, the nearest approach to this temperature having been on July, 1910, when the thermometer read 101.1. The bush in these sections is literally withering under the heat, and nothing more than a slight wind will be necessary to fan the fires into a forest conflagration of serious dimensions.

Fires of more or less severity are now ranging from Thornloe and Uno Park as far north as the Abitibi Lakes, about 20 miles east of Cochrane. The whole country is praying for rain.

Work is Resumed in British Mines

MANY COAL PITS, HOWEVER ARE IN BAD CONDITION FOLLOWING STRIKE

London, July 4.—There was a general resumption of work to-day throughout the coal fields, even in Lancashire, where to the last the miners had rejected the terms offered by the owners.

Many pits, however, are in bad condition and some are likely to be closed permanently. Many thousands of workers will be unavoidably idle for some time to come, while the mines are being placed in working order.

The Board of Trade has announced immediate removal of the restrictions on export of coal and coke. Normal service is being generally resumed on the railways.

HINDENBURG "IDOL" SOLD FOR FIREWOOD

Germany's iron Hindenburg, which during the war was to epitomize the German spirit, has gone the way of the rest of war-time German things.

An advertisement in the Berlin papers announces the demise simply:

"IRON HINDENBURG:
"For sale, in whole or in parts, for firewood. Apply, Ruuolf Moose, Berlin, W. 8, Leipziger street, 103."

The gigantic statue—a wooden Hindenburg—was erected during the war at the end of Berlin's Avenue of Victory.

It was to be covered with nails, driven in one by one by patriotic Germans, who, for the privilege of putting a bit more iron into the field marshal, were to pay a small contribution to German war charities.

The idea flivvered. Long before the war ended what was at first a popular pilgrimage and tired Berliners, and the statue remained, its woodwork rotting in huge uncovered patches and its scattered rash of nails rusting.

About a year ago, the statue, always an eyesore, was removed. No one was sufficiently interested to ask about it. Its fate was not known until Herr Mosee inserted his ad.

Disastrous Blaze at Guelph

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

Guelph, July 6.—A fierce fire was discovered in a pile of lumber at Robert Stewart Campany's yard early this morning with damage roughly estimated at $50.000. Ten other buildings in the vicinity were also destroyed. Blaze is believed to have been caused by combustion.

Sunken Liquor Found at Windsor

BATHERS STUMBLE ON SOME ONE'S CACHE OF WHISKEY AND BEER

Windsor, Ont., July 4.—Sunken treasure, considered by many as valuable as that of the golden hue, was brought to the surface by bathers along the shore of Lake St. Clair, near Tecumseh, Sunday. A woman bather was the first to make the discovery. Stepping on a smooth object, she dived and brought up a bottle of whisky. As many as twenty pairs of feet could be counted protruding from the water when the word was passed along. Quite a number of bottles of whiskey and beer were recovered. It is thought that it may have been a cache of someone who desired to hide the supply from the police.

Warships to Guard U.S. Oil Interests

CRUISER AND GUNBOAT ORDERED TO TAMPICO BY WASHINGTON GOVERNMENT

Washington, July 5.—To protect American oil interests in the Mexico fields at Tampico, where labor troubles growing out of the unemployment situation are menacing, the United States has ordered two warships to the scene.

The cruiser Cleveland and the gunboat Sacramenta have been ordered to Tampico, and it is believed that the latter reached the Mexican port from Galveston this evening. The Cleveland was ordered from Cristobal, Canal Zone, and probably will not reach Tampico before Thursday.

Both vessels are assigned to the American special service squadron in South and Central American waters, commanded by Rear-Admiral H. F. Bryan.

[illegible] Yarns [illegible] Yorkshire

One of the most genial men in Yorkshire, Sir Swire Smith, the well-known cotton spinner and late M.P. for Keighley, was fond of a good story. At election times people were sure of hearing something funny when he was called upon to speak.

"Even the wisest legislation can't be expected to please everybody," he [illegible]. And then he told this story. "When wet weather came at the right time a farmer said, 'This rain'll fair lift things out o' t' ground.' And his friend looked glum. 'Ah hope not,' he replied. 'Ah've three wives buried i' yon cemetery!'"

Another occasion was one of those [illegible] when one thing is wanted and another offered. "It [illegible]," said Sir Swire. "It reminds me of the parson who didn't like to see a man out with two dogs. 'Surely, my man,' he said, 'two pigs would be better for you!' 'And a bonnie fool I should look goin' round wi' two pigs!' was the reply."

[illegible] one of Sir Swire's [illegible] a couple who had been courting for years. The young man got "no forrarder." One night he ventured to put his arm round [illegible]. After a time he said, "Mary, do you think I'm making progress?" She looked up into his eyes and said, "Aye; you're holding your own."

[illegible] of the retort of a [illegible] Yorkshireman [illegible]. "I'll tell ye what, maister," said this acquaintance, meeting him one morning, "you're gettin' owder." "Aye," the old man replied, "and [illegible]"

"What kind o' gettin' owder?"

"Aye, lad. But if I worn't gettin' owder I shouldn't be here!"

[illegible] a [illegible] man how [illegible] to whom £200 had been [illegible] "fool" was the [illegible] "Our [illegible] leading t' life of a [illegible] drinkin' an' [illegible] the night."

The [illegible] humour of Yorkshire [illegible] by the story of a timid passenger in a cart. The horse bolted. "[illegible] five pounds to [illegible]," whispered the passenger. [illegible] "Don't be so daft wi' thi brass. [illegible] for nowt in a minute."

Although Sir Swire's father was a rich man, he did not look it. A stranger with whom he chatted while [illegible] a Turkish bath, spoke of Swire Smith, and asked the old boy if he knew him. "I should do," said he. "I live i' t' same house." And the stranger said, "I suppose you'll be the butler, then."

Sir Swire was fond of recording miscellaneous jokes and stories in his diary, writes Mr. Keighley Snowden in "The Master Spinner." "Why is [illegible] like creation?" he wrote. "Because it's made of nothing and God knows it's good"; on one page was this limerick:

There was an old lady of Cheadle,
Who sat [illegible] church on a needle.
Though deeply embedded,
[illegible] luckily threaded—
[illegible] promptly pulled out by the beadle.

Sir Henry Irving had a great influence [illegible] Sir Swire. The famous actor [illegible] blind mendicant [illegible] Braille with his fingers [illegible] Bridge. "There are few [illegible] of the great style in [illegible]," said Sir Henry. "[illegible] the other day, I was [illegible] by his musical, rich tones, [illegible] 'And the Lord said unto Moses'—the poor fellow had some difficulty with his Braille, and turned back—'The Lord said unto Moses'—the delicate fingers brushed the surface [illegible] and at each repetition his voice rose in fuller and [illegible] volume: 'The Lord said unto [illegible]. With the [illegible] has [illegible]?'"

Sir Henry would then wave his hand lightly. "An actor—like the [illegible]."

Many are the stories told of collies' sagacity, one of the most remarkable being the rescue of one [illegible] in Ettrick, Scotland. What [illegible] forest of Ettrick was this night only a dense sea of [illegible] fog. The shepherd in despair exclaimed to his dog, "Sirrah, my sheep they're a' awa'!" He gave no command to the dog, in fact he only spoke for sympathy. But the [illegible] dashed off into the mist, and the next morning the 500 missing sheep were gathered in and Sirrah was standing guard over them. How the animal got them in the dark was beyond comprehension of the [illegible], and he adds: "If all the shepherds in the forest had been there, they could not have affected it with greater propriety."

A Practical Bishop.

There is nothing conventional about Canon Temple, the new Bishop of Manchester. It is related that once it fell to his lot to examine a class of over thirty girls at a high school. He made his appearance with a big [illegible] bag, which to their amazement he opened, and produced a heap of socks that wanted mending. He explained to the head mistress that he knew they would be quite excellent in the usual school subjects, but he wanted to see if they were learning to qualify themselves for married life.

Didn't Like Gavotte.

[illegible]—"Would you like a gavotte now, Mr. Wild?"

Mr. Wild—"No, thanks. I don't care much for those foreign dishes. A plain ham sandwich is good enough for me."

THE TEMPERATURE

From 10 o'clock yesterday morning until the same hour this morning, the thermometer registered 94 maximum, minimum 72.

King George's Family Name.

"What is the King of England's name?" is a question that is often asked. On this point, "The Private Life of King Edward VII." says: "It is a popular error to suppose that the surname of the Prince of Wales is Guelph because that is the family name of the house of Brunswick, from which the present sovereign is descended. When the Queen (Victoria) married, she, by the law of the land, changed her name, as do the humblest of her subjects. The Prince Consort, who came from the house of Saxony, bore the surname of Wettin, and the Queen by marriage with him took that name. The Prince of Wales, therefore, and his children, though Guelph by descent, are really Wettin by name." This surname, however, was changed by a royal decree, issued in 1917, which reads: "Our house and family shall be styled and known as the House and Family of Windsor, and all descendants in the male line of our grandmother, Queen Victoria, who are subjects of these realms, other than the female descendants who may marry, or have married, shall bear the same name of Windsor."

Where Trees Are Milked.

In British Guiana and the West Indies, particularly on the banks of the River Demerara, there grows a tree known to the natives as the "Hyahya," which yields from its bark and pith a juice slightly richer and thicker than cow's milk. The tree is about forty feet in height and eighteen inches in circumference when full grown, and the natives use its juice as we do milk, it being perfectly harmless, and mixing well with water. The Cingalese have a tree they call "Kiriaghuma," which yields a fluid in all respects like milk, while in the forest of Para grows a tree called the "Massenodendron," which gives a milk-like juice. It can be kept for an indefinite time and shows no tendency to become sour. On the other hand, certain trees in the valleys of Aragua and in Canagua yield a similar fluid, which, when exposed to the air, begins to form a kind of cheese which very soon becomes sour. In the Canary Islands there is a tree called "Tabaya Dolce," of which the milk, thickened into a jelly, is considered a delicacy.

Letters to The Editor

HINT TO BATHERS

To the Editor of The Intelligencer—

As the season is now on for bathers in the open bays and lakes, I thought a few words of caution would be of great benefit to those who cannot swim. Quite a number know and everyone should know, the bottom of the bays and lakes along the shores, are veritable death traps to all bathers who cannot swim, on account of the unevenness of the bottom. There are a great many drowning accidents, in the summer season, the greater part of which could be avoided.

First of all, I would say to those who bathe in the bay or lake: Don't wade out deeper than breast high, unless you are accompanied by a swimmer, as there is great danger of getting drowned, by stepping suddenly in deep water. Swimming cannot be easily learned in less than three or four feet of water. Every young person should be taught to swim, as many a life would be saved from boat wrecks.

In using cork jackets to learn swimming, care should be taken to have them well adjusted, and securely strapped on, if in deep water, as one, breaking loose suddenly or slipping down too far on the body, might cause drowning. Water wings holding compressed air are not as safe as cork jackets.

In closing I wish to give a hint or two to swimmers who have their heads under water considerably. Never do that without first plugging the ears with cotton batton, so as to keep the water from entering therein, as you are in danger of injuring your ears and possibly losing your life. I wish to state here, that many lives lost in the water, supposed to be by drowning, through cramps in one or more of the limbs, is nothing more than water in the ears which bursts something I believe in the inner ear, rendering the person unconscious suddenly, consequently he sinks at once without calling for help.

Anyone taking cramps in the water remains conscious and with the great pain, would call loudly for help.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

MARION DAVIES IN "THE RESTLESS SEX"

Pretty Marion Davies is fast gaining a name for herself as the "Robert W. Chambers' girl". Her beauty, expressive eyes, and piquant characteristics fit her ideally to portray the society heroine made famous by this popular writer. Her latest appearance is at Griffin's to-morrow to Saturday in the Cosmopolitan production, "The Restless Sex". "The Restless Sex", declared by many to be Mr. Chambers' most brilliant novel, unfolds an appealing romance around a young woman's ambition to be more than a wife and achieve a niche for herself in the world of art. Carlyle Blackwell and Ralph Kellard are included in the supporting cast.

Tom Moore appears on the same program in a splendid adventure tale "Adventures at Briarcliffe", a 2-reel Mermaid Comedy "Dynamite", Fox News Weekly, Vode-Vil Movies and other plays of interest are announced for exhibition.

GET-AWAY DAY FOR "TREASURE ISLAND"

Maurice Tourneur ransacked practically every prominent antique shop in California to secure the choice assortment of cutlasses and ancient pistols that appear in his big screen production of Stevenson's "Treasure Island", which is being exhibited at Griffin's to-night for the last time. As readers of the famous classic of adventure know, the story is crowded with fights between loyal sailors on the treasure ship and the mutineers and between the treasure-seekers and pirates. It is declared that the most meticulous screen fan won't be able to pick an historical flaw in the Tourneur photoplay.

Shirley Mason plays the role of the hero, Jim Hawkins, and is said to do it better than any boy actor could. Lon Chaney, "The Frog" of "The Miracle Man", dispenses a double villainy in the dual roles of Pew and Merry. Charles Ogle is Long John Pew.

A 2-reel Western Drama, an interesting chapter of the popular "Velvet Fingers" serial, and a 2-reel comedy being shown in addition to the above feature offering.

Diamond Wedding Marriage Ceremony

AGED COUPLE ACT AS BRIDESMAID AND GROOMSMAN AT WEDDING

On June 26th, 1861, Edward Bennett was united in marriage to Eostatia Burgess. After sixty years of married life the diamond wedding anniversary was celebrated at their home at Madoc Junction last Wednesday in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. Since 1865 they have lived on the farm in lot 1, concession 1 of Rawdon township. They are the parents of thirteen children, of whom eight are living: Taylor lives on a ranch at Springridge, Alta.; Charles, at Moyeston, Alta.; George is a butcher at Stirling, Ont.; Porter, a Methodist Episcopal minister at Sidney, Nebraska; Dakota, McDonaldville, Alta.; Mrs. M. J. Smith, of Belleville; Mrs. Sarah White, of Toronto; Mrs. P. Irwin, of Belleville.

After the diamond anniversary a surprise was given the guests when Mr. Alvin C. White and Miss Florence L. Lyons, both of Toronto, were united in marriage by the uncle of the groom, Rev. T. Porter Bennett of Sidney, Nebraska, assisted by Rev. Geo. McQuade, of West Huntingdon. The beautiful ring ceremony was used. The bride and groom were assisted by the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Bennett, the "bride and groom of sixty years ago." The bride was dressed in blue silk while the groom wore conventional black. Mrs. Armour Bennett played the wedding march.

After congratulations had been extended all the guests were seated at a table that had been beautifully decorated in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bennett and the new bride and groom.

During the afternoon many of the neighbors came in and extended congratulations. Very few people have a wider acquaintance than Mr. and Mrs. Bennett, and all join in wishing them many happy returns of the day.

Nothing Particular

A member of the staff of a large business house entered the manager's office and asked permission to take a few days off.

"But you know that we are busy just now, Mr. Jones," said the manager. "Is it for anything particular that you want this holiday?"

"No, sir," was the reply, "but I'm going to get married, and I'd like to be there, that's all."

London, July 6.—Reparations payments by Germany and plans formulated by Allies in connection with indemnities were discussed by the Imperial Conference to-day. Hot Weather Rules For Horses Load lightly and drive slowly.

Stop in the shade if possible.

A sponge on top of the head, or even a cloth, if kept wet, is good. If dry it is worse than nothing.

Water your horse as often as possible. So long as a horse is working, water in small quantities will not hurt him. But let him drink only a few swallows if he is going to stand still.

When he comes in after work, sponge off the harness marks and sweat, his eyes, his nose and mouth, and the dock. Wash his feet but not his legs.

If the thermometer is 75 degrees or higher, wipe him all over with a damp sponge, using vinegar water if possible. Do not wash the horse at night.

Saturday night, give a bran mash, lukewarm; and add a tablespoonful of saltpetre.

Watch your horse. If he stops sweating suddenly, or if he breathes short and quick, or if his ears droop, or if he stands with his legs braced sideways, he is in danger of a heat or sun stroke and needs attention at once.

If the horse is overcome by heat, get him into the shade, remove harness and bridle, wash out his mouth, sponge him all over, shower his legs, and give him two ounces of aromatic spirits of ammonia, or two ounces of sweet spirits of nitre, in a pint of water; or give him a pint of coffee warm. Cool his head at once, using cold water, or, if necessary, chopped ice, wrapped in a cloth.

If the horse is off his feed, try him with two quarts of oats mixed with bran, and a little water; and add a little salt or sugar. Or give him oatmeal gruel or barley water to drink.

Clean your horse at night so that he can rest well, and clean him thoroughly. The salt dandruff drying on his skin makes him uncomfortable, and often produces sores under the harness.

Do not fail to water him at night after he has eaten his hay. If you don't he will be thirsty all night.

If it is so hot that the horse sweats in the stable at night, tie him outside with bedding under him. Unless he cools off during the night, he cannot well stand the next day's heat.

FARM CROPS IN FRANCE HURT BY LONG DROUGHT

Paris, July 5.—A Government crop report, under date of June 1, covering about 37,000,000 acres of farmland and pasturage, shows the average condition is about 11 per cent. poorer than that of 1920, but that there is a 6 per cent. increase in acreage on twelve articles, including potatoes, corn, and sugar and fodder beets.

This unsatisfactory showing, after the early optimism, is attributed to the prolonged drought, the damage from which an immediate rain would remedy only slightly.

FOR FUTURE HISTORIANS.

Preparing Information for Men Who Live 3,000 Years Hence.

The manager of a huge building that is being erected in England has, says the Manchester Guardian, been considering the idea of a foundation-stone casket to be embedded in the great mass of ferro-concrete on which the building is to stand. As a reader of Mr. Wells' Outline of History he has been struck by Mr. Wells' difficulty, through lack of significant material, in dealing with the world's history 3,000 years ago. As he was told that the concrete foundations would last at least that time, he thought that it might be of use to the Mr. Wells of A. D. 4921 if he found the information about our time neatly prepared for him. Accordingly he wrote to Mr. Wells and asked him to suggest what would be the most useful things or messages to be placed in the cavity. Here is Mr. Wells' reply:

"Difficult to make suggestions. Probably commonplace things with their current prices will be of as much value as anything. Safety razor, cotton reel, bottle of pickles and that sort of thing. A mail order catalogue, pre-war medicines and what they profess to cure. Dietary for ordinary citizen; typewriter, a sewing machine, and so forth. Dressing bag with fittings. Current book on How to Behave. A kinema reel of current events. Whitaker's Almanack and Bradshaw's Continental timetables (pre-war and post-war), Baedecker's England. Town maps and plans."

It was typical of Mr. Wells' splendid public sense that he should have answered so readily to this appeal. It now lies with the company to get the opinion of experts as to the durability of these things, even in an air-proof chamber. The subject is an exciting one, and one on which no two people have the same views. Suppose it is only a question of leaving a message punched in aluminum, or whatever is the most permanent form for messages in air chambers, what is the truth of our time that would be most significant for the angels that are to live on this earth 3,000 years after us?

Secrets of Stonehenge.

The first stage in the "restoration" of Stonehenge is now completed, and the lonely landmark on Salisbury Plain is now free from scaffolding and cranes. A report on the work has been published by the Society of Antiquaries, whose experts have been in charge of the excavations, and the report states that many relics at the base of the monoliths, including roughly-worked flint instruments, and fragments of pottery of the bronze age and the Romano British period were discovered. At the base of the slaughter stone they found a bottle of port, left there apparently by a previous investigator, Mr. Cunnington, who examined the stone in 1901. The latest discoveries appear to bear out the theory that Stonehenge was built in the latter part of the Stone Age, between 1600 and 1800 B.C. This theory of the date was advanced by Prof. Gowland, who was in charge of the restoration of Stonehenge in 1901. He based his assumption on the fact that a large number of crude flint tools were found at the base of the stones, as if left there by workmen. No bronze implements were discovered at the time. The absence of any tools other than those of flint is again noted by the later investigators.

What's In a Name?

Mosenstein walked into his lawyer's office and announced that he wished to change his name.

"Certainly, Mr. Mosenstein," said the man of law, "but it takes time, you know, and costs money."

"And what is your new name to be?"

"I vant to be called Murphy."

In the course of a few weeks he received a letter, addressed to Isaac Murphy, Esq., announcing that all was well.

A week later he was back in the lawyer's office.

"I vant to change my name to Macpherson."

"But you've only just changed it."

"I know that. I don't care how much it costs. I vant to change it again."

"Very well, Mr. Murphy," said the lawyer; "it's unusual, but I can do it for you. But do you mind telling me why you want to make another change?"

"Vell, suppose a man come up to me and say, 'Halloa, Ikey, your name vasn't alvays Macpherson?' I answer: 'No, it used to be Murphy'."

Held Up Business.

The unemployed workers in Brisbane decided on a novel method of obtaining public attention. Having failed to receive practical sympathy from the harassed members of the Labor Government, the workless ones agreed that each man should go to a high-class cafe, order a penny bun and eat it for an hour, thus tying up the business of the cafes. A similar method was adopted in another Australian state by some out of work men, but in this case they were checkmated by the waitresses, who quietly removed the cloths and left the visitors facing empty tables, while round the room stood amused police.—Christian Science Monitor.

In a Thirsty Place.

A countryman was inscribing the name of a highly-respected, recently-departed deacon on a tombstone. The stone rested on an empty beer-barrel in his shop.

A friend of the late worthy called called in to see how the sculptor was proceeding with the work, and objected to his friend's tombstone resting on a beer-barrel, remarking: "Do you know, John, that my dear departed friend never drank a drop of beer in his life?"

"Well," replied John, "I bet he would give something for a pint now!"

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Sunday Bathers.

L.D.—I see that the Moira River, at Ford's Dam is a favorite place for bathers. Sunday afternoon and Monday evening saw large crowds enjoying themselves in the deep water above the dam, rejoicing in a few moments respite from the dreadful heat now prevalent in the city and country.

A Contradiction

Q.—I saw the Union Jack flying from the Court House on Dominion Day so my friend R. is decidedly wrong in censuring the County officials for neglect in this regard. Look up and lift up old chap, and forget that wheeze about "squandering" money on the bay bridge, remember only the greatest good to the greatest number, service above self and other modern ideas which are going to chase the ugly god of selfishness plumb out of this world.

Through Visitor's Eyes

X.L.—Recently a stranger entering our progressive, picturesque city for the first time, was coming into the business section via Mill and Station streets. When he was passing Memorial Park, he asked what it was, and on being told, nearly fell out on the street through being so astonished at the appearance this park now presents. He thought he was being fooled when told that that beautiful crop of thistles and wild clover, wild mustard, an assortment of wild batchelor button, covered the site of Memorial Park, which, if our memory does not play us false, was dedicated to the memory of those who suffered so greatly that we might retain our freedom. Is the condition of this plot of ground to be allowed to stand, or is it going to be livened up with shrubs and flowers? I'm sure each and every person will willingly contribute one shrub or plant at least to start the process of beautifying this spot. Think it over.

Language of Bathers

L.E.—Several times during the bathing season I have been disagreeably surprised, during my walks around Victoria Park, to hear the disgusting talk that issues from the mouths of some of the bathers there. In one instance I noticed several men with lady companions in canoes on the water, pulling their hardest to get out of earshot, and were evidently disgusted. Surely something should be done to put a stop to the nuisance.

HEAT VS. BATHERS.

C. H.—During the exceptionally hot weather we see many things that do not surprise us at all, but on a recent evening the following account of what I saw will, I think, surprise a good many who also were suffering from the heat on that evening but lacked the nerve to take the same means of cooling off. A touring car with three boys and girls in it came to a stop in front of a small grocery. All descended from the car, and entered the store where ice cream cones and pop were dispised of. It was the costumes of the young ladies, however, which drew comment from those who noticed them, for they were attired in their bathing suits on their way home from a dip.

CANADA'S EXPORT OF BACON

The Dominion to Offer Prizes for The Encouragement of Boys' and Girls' Pig Clubs

During recent years, and particularly during the war period Canada's export bacon trade developed very rapidly. This is proven by the fact that last year exports of bacon from the Dominion amounted in value to $34,000,000 and that our killings of hogs in eight years doubled in number, while those of Denmark and Ireland decreased considerably. With the return to normal conditions, vigorous efforts will have to be made in order to maintain this position. The Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture has entered upon a special campaign to stimulate the production of hogs of the bacon type. In co-operation with the provincial departments, an arrangement has been made to offer attractive prizes to members of boys' and girls' pig clubs who exhibit at local fairs, both for quality of product and ability in judging. Where such clubs do not exist, attempts at organization will be made. The idea is not only to stimulate and sustain production, but to circulate knowledge of actual market requirements and thus to create a standard type of bacon hog for the entire Dominion. When it is stated that the British market imports annually 500,000,000 pounds of bacon, understanding is possible of the value of the trade that is at stake. It is hardly necessary to suggest that the hearty co-operation of farmers and every one interested is hoped for. Rules and regulations governing the competition may be obtained from the Dominion Live Stock Commissioner at Ottawa.

PICK UP YOUR LOAD, BROTHER.

TOMORROW'S A NEW DAY.

If you at the age of 50 should become an invalid, flat on your back, unable to move hand or foot or turn your head, would you give up?

All these happened to Jesse Tyler Dingee, of Brooklyn. Despite his handicaps, Dingee carried on a business of a size seldom attained by great men in good health. From his couch, with a telephone strapped to his head, he dictates letters and keeps office forces on the jump in the three business concerns in which he is interested. Successful? After five years of invalidism, he has just bought a $50,000 house. "That's because I still have my head," says Dingee. "I have full use of my mind—which has always been the only really important part of the human body."

Why be discouraged?

Hal Ebrig, of Chicago, has been confined to bed for seven years. His left arm is the only part of his body he can move. An automobile accident afflicted him with paralytic nerve shock. Most men would have become bitter—given up the fight. But Ebrig laughed at his handicap. Right-handed, he trained his left hand to handle a brush. His paintings sell for $150 and upward each.. He also has produced several successful songs and orchestra-numbers which he picked out on the piano with one finger. "I'm successful," says Ebrig, "because I didn't lose interest, will power and ambition."

Why be discouraged?

Harry K. Ronne, sightless and partly paralyzed, is known as "the wonder man" in Lushton, Neb. Ronne went blind in 1902. Then came paralysis. Handicapped, he trained himself to be a telephone operator. He makes connections rapidly. Says no two rings or buzzes sound exactly alike, hence he knows instantly what number is calling. Ronne is successful. "That," says he, "is because there is no handicap so great that it cannot be overcome."

Why be discouraged?

Sometimes the battle for a living makes you discouraged. Sometimes it seems that no matter how hard you try, everything goes against you. Sometimes it seems that you never will get ahead. But Dingee, Ebrig and Ronne have proven that if you keep the right state of mind and grit your teeth, you can overcome handicaps compared with which your present ones are mere shadows. Pick up your load, brother. Tomorrow's a new day.

FROM JANITOR BOY

TO BANK PRESIDENT.

Years ago a penniless boy from Shelby County, Ohio, drifted into Washington and go a job in the Treasury Department clearing ashes from the fireplaces, polishing doorknobs, filling the water coolers and sweeping the floors. His name was Milton E. Ailes.

Today he is president of the Riggs National Bank in the capital city. His rise has been phenomenal.

While he was plying a broom and a polishing rag, young Ailes was keeping his eyes open on all that went on around him. He spent his evenings studying finance.

When John G. Carlisle became Secretary of the Treasury young Ailes was appointed private secretary to one of Carlisle's assistants. When Lyman G. Gage took charge of the Treasury portfolio he met young Ailes and found that young man's knowledge of Treasury affairs so complete that he asked President McKinley to name Ailes as an assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

"The only thing against his appointment, Mr. President," said Gage, "is that he is a Democrat."

"That," said McKinley, "is not important. If you and I, Mr. Secretary, had been raised in Shelby County, we'd be Democrats, too. He simply can't help it."

So Ailes was appointed. As Secretary Gage's chief assistant, he conducted the principal Treasury operations, including the financing of the Spanish-American war. Meanwhile he took over the job of drilling the set of young men Gage brought to the Treasury, among whom were Frank A. Vanderlip, and others who are now national figures. After enjoying an intimate friendship with McKinley and Roosevelt, Ailes left the government service to become a banker. Since then his rise has been steady, until now he is president of the Riggs National Bank.

DISARMAMENT AND COMMON SENSE

New York Tribune

But let us beware of trusting too much to the leadership of pacifist perfectionists. Such are a pest. It will not be easy to find a common denominator and even less easy to arrange varying numerators. The problem bristles with difficulties. Germany, though at present nominally disarmed, is still a menace, and well-armed Russia openly threatens trouble. But with a proper will a way may be found. At least an effort is well worth making. Rival nations have been cynically compared to fellow travellers in a wood, each armed and each suspiciously watching the other. The world is not at one stroke to get rid of this habit. No good result will come from intoxicating ourselves with vague sentimentalism or from dwelling solely on what should be. But it will help much if the two travellers, as a result of a friendly talk, each draws a bullet from his pistol and throws it away. It will mark the birth of a new spirit of trust, and trust grows and subdues distrust when given a chance.

PROHIBITION IN INDIA

Times of India

How Mr. "Pussyfoot" Johnson will handle the question of Prohibition we do not know, but it appears that his advance guard will consist of great masses of propaganda and that he will base his case on what has been achieved in the United States. "Better sober than free" is the motto which the United States has adopted, and that is the ideal which is to be held out to India on the threshold of her freedom. Will he confine his attention to alcohol and leave alone drugs which are freely taken in India, the bhang, which some find a cooling drink, and the opium which others find necessary to their health? Will he ignore the question of revenue which some seek to solve in the most casual manner by saying: "Tax salt or anything you like, so long as you abolish alcohol and the revenue from it?" The excise policy of Government he will naturally condemn as not being thorough enough and over slow in its effect; he may even refuse to acknowledge the good intentions of Government, maintaining that if they pave the way to Hell it is alcohol which sets them as in cement.

The Poets' Corner

TO THE OLD FOLKS

It is oft-times hard to see eye to eye
With the younger folks around you,
And to bear your lot with never a sigh,
"Or a jibe at the fate that's found you,
"We're old and useless," so each complains,
"And burdens the youngsters name us;
They don't understand our aches and pains,
And it's time that our deaths should claim us".

Do you think you know better than God, then friend?
Do you feel by the Lord Forsaken?
Your work on this earth hasn't reached its end,
Or surely you would be taken.
No. There's vital work in the world for you;
You have lived, time has made you wiser,
That the lads and lasses may come to you
To act as their tried adviser.

"A laughing lass," once remarked a sage,
"Is good; but a sight yet better
Is a smile 'neath the snow-white hair of age,
A brave heart time has failed to fetter."
So crush that peevish complaint, that whine,
You're needed, so do not fret;
You're the veteran pick of God's fighting line.
An there's life in the old dogs yet!

The Same Old Story

A sister was paying a visit to her brother at a University, and contrary to the rules, visited his room when they heard someone coming to the door the sister was put in the clothes closet. It happened to be an old student who used the same room during his college days. He asked permission to view the room which was granted. "The same old room, the same old view—and going to the cup board, saw the girl—same old game; my sister, sir, said the young man, same old story, replied the visitor."

Cruel Brute!

She sprang up angrily.

"Here, I've spent all day," she cried, "making you that beautiful silk soft pillow. And now—"

The tears came to her eyes—

"And now you lie down and put your head on it!"

CATTLE MARKETS

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, July 5.—Live stock receipts at the Union Yards yesterday were 1,337 cattle, 234 calves; 1,237 hogs, 336 sheep.

Cattle prices held barely steady in a sluggish trade at the Union Stock Yards yesterday. The receipts were decidedly light, but despite this the trade continued dull. The quality of the offerings failed to attract the buyers, but the abattoirs were also reported as having their coolers pretty well filled. Several hundred head of cattle bought last week were not killed on account of the hot weather and this was a factor against heavy buying.

Fair to good butchers sold about steady, but the thin common grassers were almost impossible to sell. The packers in the early trading were picking out the best of poor offering and an odd load of fair quality butchers were found. Cows were in fair demand and bulls held steady. There was no movement of stockers or feeders.

The demand for hogs weakened and the price became easier. Outsiders were not buying and the big packers did not appear to want many. Values broke about 50 cents per hundred, sales of selects on the fed and watered basis being made from $11.50 to $11.75.

Veal also met a poor demand. A few tops brought $8 and $8.50 in a draggy trade. The lamb trade was better, however, at slightly improved prices. A few extra choice lots brought $12.50. Ewes sold from $2 to $5.50. The sheep trade was very slow.

WINNIPEG LIVE STOCK.

WINNIPEG, July 5.—Receipts from Thursday noon last consisted of 1,030 cattle and calves, 350 hogs and 25 sheep and lambs. Bidding on the cattle market showed no improvement from the close of last week, all classes and grades being decidedly hard to move, with prices weakened a full 25c. Choice killing steers were quoted $6.75 to $7.25; butcher stocks, $5 to $6; feeder steers, best, $4.50; stocker steers and heifers, $2 to $2.50.

Hogs opened weak with a decline of 25c. Sales, $10.75. Sheep and lambs, dull; heavy mutton sheep, $2.40.

Get Under Water to Escape Heat.

NEW YORK, July 5. — Terrific heat, coupled with oppressive humidity Sunday, caused several heat prostrations and drove the great part of the city's population to the city beaches. The weather bureau reported a temperature of 91 degrees, which continued from after 2 until 6 o'clock, while the humidity hovered between 50 and 55.

Police estimates placed the attendance of three Long Island beaches at nearly one million. At Coney Island, after every available waterfront bathhouse was filled, the crowds stormed the pools until the police were called out to restore order.

It was estimated that 100,000 of the 400,000 visitors went into the ocean. One hundred and six lost children were reported during the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brunt and Mr. Smith received injuries, but not seriously.

MAY RESTORE SIGHT BY EYE GRAFTING

Vienna, July 5.—Successful eye grafting was described today by Dr. Koppanyi in a lecture before the Biological Society here. He said that they had transplanted new eyes in blind fishes and rats, successfully joining the optic nerve so that the subjects regained sight. Dr. Koppanyi sketched a method by which he said it would be possible to restore partial sight to blinded soldiers if others could be found willing to sacrifice an eye for the purpose.

LADY ENGAGES DIVER TO RECOVER LOST RING

Detroit, Mich., July 5.—To lose a diamond platinum ring valued at $1,200 while swimming a mile from shore, and to have it recovered by a diver, is the experience of Mrs. Sophie Keywell, 1889 Delaware avenue.

The ring, with another, slipped from Mrs. Keywell's finger Sunday afternoon when she was in the St. Clair River twenty miles from Detroit. One ring fell into the boat from which she was diving, but the other went into the water

She had given it up as lost forever when someone suggested that she obtain the help of deep-sea divers.

This was done, and a diver, after two hours' search in 30 feet of water, recovered the diamond today half buried in sand on the bottom.

It Paid Me Well, Says Mrs. Valin

Toronto Woman Gains 12 Pounds And is Restored To Perfect Health Taking Tanlac

"It has certainly paid me well to try Tanlac, for four bottles of the medicine have set me right and feeling better than I did before I ever got sick," said Mrs. John Valin, of 188 Bain Ave., Toronto.

"I was in good health up until about a year ago, but then I began to lose weight and fell off from one hundred and twenty-five to one hundred and fourteen pounds. My appetite was very poor and I had awful attacks of biliousness. My head would ache until it felt like it would split open, and I was so dizzy that at times I could hardly keep from falling. I was in a terrible nervous state, too, and it was just all I could do to get any good sleep at night. I had awful weak spells and would have to stay in bed for a day or two at a time, and although I was continually taking different medicines I could find nothing to help me.

"I read so much about Tanlac I decided to give it a trial, and after the very first bottle I had a splendid appetite and could eat just anything I wanted without a particle of trouble. I kept taking the medicine until it built me up twelve pounds in weight and put me in as good health as I ever enjoyed in my life. I sleep like a child every night and feel just fine all the time, I think Tanlac is the grandest medicine in the world and am more than glad to recommend it to everybody."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville at Ostrom's Drug Store.

YOUNG GIRL FINDS RELIEF

Wants to Tell Other Girls All About It

Evansville, Ind.—"I am eighteen years old and have been bothered for several months with irregular periods. Every month my back would ache and I always had a cold and felt drowsy and sleepy. I work in a millinery shop and I went to work everyday, but felt stupid and would have such cramps. I had seen Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and had heard several women talk of it, so mother got me some. This Vegetable Compound is wonderful and it helped me very much, so that during my periods I am not now sick or drowsy. I have told many girls about it and would be glad to help anyone who is troubled with similar ailments."—STELLA LINXWILER, 6 Second St., Evansville, Ind.

Some girls lead lives of luxury, while others toil for their livelihood, but all are subject to the same physical laws and suffer in proportion to their violation. When such symptoms develop as irregularities, headaches, backaches, bearing-down sensations and "the blues," girls should profit by Miss Linxwiler's experience and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

OLDEST AMERICAN BANK.

Institution at Yorktown Dates Back to English Days.

Within twenty miles of where the first English settlement in America was made at Jamestown is the scene where Capt. John Smith records the story of his rescue by Pocahontas, the daughter of the Indian chief, Powhatan. Within a circle of twenty miles is to be found the oldest Protestant church in America; the kitchen where Martha Washington cooked in good colonial style; the college which has graduated three Presidents; Bruton Church, in which more men of historical importance have worshipped than in any other church in America—and Yorktown, where Cornwallis surrendered to Washington.

Although Yorktown has a population of less than two hundred, it has two banks, both of which are working in what are probably the two oldest buildings used for banks in America. One of these banks, operating under state and trust company laws, is housed in the historic oldest custom-house built in America—erected in 1715. Here the ships for Philadelphia were once compelled to enter and clear. Here at one time was the gathering place of the financiers of the early colonists. Wall Street has taken away the financiers, but has left the same old building with its same old walls of English brick.

To-day the cashier welcomes the visitor with true Virginia hospitality. There is no rush—nobody hurries in Yorktown. Every one has all day to-morrow not yet touched.

Friendliness and hospitality are more important in Yorktown and Virginia than profits—except when some outside profiteer has entered upon his field of work in Virginia. The average Virginian thinks more of the past than of the future and more of friendship than of profits. The modern automobile is doing more to change the Virginian from his good old easy-going way than anything else in America.

Just across the street from the old custom building is another building housing the work of the First National Bank of Yorktown. The town and surrounding country are so prosperous that there seems plenty of business for two banks. The building appears more quaint and ancient than even the custom-house building erected in 1715.

Both of the buildings are priceless souvenirs of a past age and time of colonial glory. To change the outlines of either would seem like sacrilege and disloyalty to the Colonial Fathers. It is well that they are used as banking institutions until such time as wealthy lovers of history shall buy them and hand them over for preservation to some historical society.

A church in New York City has solved its financial problem in a measure by the operation of a garage which is made use of by its members. The congregation consists of persons who come from a distance generally and during the services the street in front of the edifice was blocked with cars. Now they are stored in the garage at a nominal rate and the money collected in this manner and that received from repairs and accessories helps materially in meeting the expenses of the church.

THE SUBSTITUTE

"Send her off? Where to? Send her to Mars, and she'll still see his eyes and hear his voice and—and know she has wronged him for something he can't help. Think of that! You know, after all, he can't help what his father did. Huh! If a man like that adored me as he does Lydia Cranston and wanted me to marry him I'd do it if fifteen powdered and perfumed princes stood with their arms stretched out to me, and—yes, if he had fathers looking out of jail windows on every street corner in proud old Richmond. Oh, I've thrown up my job! I'm not the man for it. The weight of a hair would make me work on the other side. You'd better send me away. My own heart is hopelessly in danger.

"I have never met the real thing in man form before. Think of it! There's Charley Mason, at home, who will talk to a girl by the hour about how he was obliged to call Delaney out for insulting Richmond girls, and if Delaney hadn't humbly apologized shots might have been exchanged, with the accent on the 'might.' That's the fashionable, bouquet courage. The real thing is where a man acts like this Buckley did last night and then gets as mad as the dev—as mad as the very dickens when it is mentioned in his presence. Mrs. Cranston, I believe you have been trying to keep God from doing a beautiful piece of work so that you can do an ugly one—hideous except to the sight of narrow, squint eyed people. I may be getting crooked mentally for not espousing the governor's cause, but after what I've seen this morning, after seeing that couple together and reading their throbbing hearts, I can see it only one way."

"The son of a convict!" groaned Mrs. Cranston. "Never, never! Lydia will not do it. She respects our feelings too much. You say she doesn't yet realise that she's in love with him?"

"Not yet, but she's a light sleeper, Mrs. Cranston. Somebody will throw cold water in her face, and she'll open her eyes. I fancy if you and the major were to begin to urge her marriage to Governor Telfare that she'd rub her eyes and wonder if she had a nightmare. She wouldn't talk driving home. I took her hand. It was as cold as ice, but her face was on fire. I had spent the whole morning sneering at everything we came to—the little law offices and stores and the clerks coming to wait on us without their coats—and as we approached the warehouse I laughed at its dingy appearance and told her I didn't see how she could stand to live in such a town. On the way home she looked up at me and said: 'You may as well quit running Darley down, Kitty. I have found more real worth and nobility of character here than in any city I ever visited.' There you are, Mrs. Cranston! The first thing a woman begins to do in falling in love is to justify her choice, and your daughter can justify hers like a judge on the bench."

"There is one thing that will make her hesitate," said Mrs. Cranston, looking up with a steely stare. "Her father's heart is set on her marrying Governor Telfare, and the major's health is failing. I really believe if she should not obey his wishes—if she were to do such a dastardly thing as to marry this Buckley, it would kill him."

"I can see it only one way."

"That situation may influence her," admitted the Virginia girl. "A woman will often marry a man she doesn't love to gratify those she does. But if Lydia does marry Governor Telfare, she'll carry an ideal of another man into his home and down to her grave, even if she lives to give her husband grandchildren. But, oh, Mrs. Cranston, I wish it could be otherwise. I wish, with all my heart, that I could walk down this minute and call that man out and tell him I'd come to give Lydia to him, to have and to hold forever. And when the divine fire blazed up in his manly face I'd like to kiss him and assure him I was not a spy working against him, but his friend. The dear fellow thought he had made himself ridiculous before us this morning, when he had simply tangled himself up in our heartstrings and left them bleeding in his favor."

"Don't, don't!" Mrs. Cranston rose and stood frowning. "I see I can't count on you, Kitty; but, at least, you will not—you know what I mean?"

"No. I shall have nothing to do with it either way," said Kitty, with a smile. "I can promise you that—at least, I think I can."

CHAPTER XX.

One morning shortly after this Mrs. Hillyer met Jim Kenner on the main street of the village near the warehouse and paused to chat with him. "I'm still workin' on yore case," she told him. "The only trouble is that you are too backward to help. I serve you up with different gravy at every meal an' keep you on the sideboard to eat cold 'twixt meals, but ef you don't come up some time an' take a hand she'll want a change o' diet."

Kenner's honest face reddened. "I'm afeard I'm gittin' too old, Mrs. Hillyer," he laughed in high pleasure. "I give you my word, I worry all the time about my age."

"Worry?" she laughed. "What does age amount to? The older a man gits in this life the younger he is in the next, an', from all accounts, the next is better an' keeps a body at a standstill. Lord, you don't look like a feller that worries about anything unless it's fer the lack o' some devilment. Mr. Hillyer's told me how you love to gag old Hanks. I reckon since Bob's done the way he has you'll have it in fer the old man, or, rather, he'll have it in fer you all, beca'se Mr. Hillyer says Hanks predicted from the first that Bob ud come to no good. I hain't seed Mr. Hillyer since Mrs. Dugan told me about it, but it'll worry 'im like rips, fer, you know, jest day before yesterday he let Bob have another two thousand to enlarge his business on. Enlarge, I say. A boy o' that age ort to be spanked fer what he's done—jest when folks was braggin' on 'im, an'"—

"Why, Mrs. Hillyer"—Kenner's eyes were wide open in astonishment—"what are you talkin' about?"

"Talkin' about? Jim Kenner, do you mean to tell me that you, the biggest man gossiper in Darley, don't know what Bob Hanks has gone and done?"

"I'm at the fust of it, Mrs. Hillyer."

"Well, he simply got that little orphan gal, Dora May, some'n' or other, from Louisville, out o' Mrs. Styles' boardin' school last night an' driv 'er in a buggy to Springtown an' got a country preacher to marry 'em."

"Good Lord, Mrs. Hillyer!"

"That's what he done," went on Mrs. Hillyer. "They spent the night at the preacher's house, tuck breakfast, an' driv back to Darley. They've put up permanent at the Johnston House. Mrs. Dugan went up and seed whar Bob had registered 'R. O. Hanks and Lady,' bless you! An' that chit of a gal in short dresses hardly below the knee! Mrs. Dugan says while she was thar a-lookin' old Hanks come in as yallar as a squash an' axed if they had ris yet. The clerk told 'im no—that the bridegroom had told 'im to say that he was not at home to any callers, an' ef it was about business they wanted to see 'im to refer 'em to his head salesman at the store. Did you ever? Is it any wonder his daddy wouldn't set 'im up in business? The wust big head on earth is the sort that young boys has when they think they can start in to raisin' a family. Bob couldn't stand prosperity, I reckon. Mrs. Dugan says Mrs. Styles has dismissed school fer the rest o' the week an' is walkin' about the campus on her hands with 'er feet in the air. It seems that the gal was put in Mrs. Styles' care by some kin o' her'n, an' the old lady don't know what she's to do about it. Thar's some secret about who an' what the gal is anyway. Mrs. Styles is afeard it will bust up the institution. Mrs. Dugan says it will help the school—that folks will send the'r scrub gals thar to git 'em married off. Hain't they heard it at the warehouse?"

"They hadn't when I left about twenty minutes ago, Mrs. Hillyer."

"Well, I won't stop you. I see Mrs. Stillman leanin' over the fence without a bonnet or shawl in this wind. I'll go an' ease 'er up. I know yo're aechin' to tell it to yore gang."

A few minutes after Kenner had exploded his information at the office old Hanks came in. He was pale, and his skin looked as dry as old parchment, but he was eating roasted peanuts, breaking the husks with steady, pronglike finger nails. He sat down without a word and dropped a handful of hulls into the stove.

"Jim," he said suddenly to Kenner, "what did you ever do about that account Bill Haskill was a-owin' you?"

"I got it yet," said Kenner, throwing a knowing smile around the room.

"Well, ef you'll discount it enough to make it interesting, I'll buy it. I've got 'im tied up with a piece o' land o' his'n, an' I want the land."

"I reckon we kin make a deal," said the cotton buyer as he wiped a smile from his facile mouth with his long hand. "I reckon you heard that Bob had taken to hisself a helpmeet?"

The group hung on the old man's reply. Hanks crushed another peanut in his hand and raised the best part of it to his lips.

"I don't care what he does," he said. "I told you all you'd make a fool of 'im, an' now I reckon you see I was right." He was staring accusingly at Hillyer. "You started it," he blurted out. "Thar ain't one boy in forty million that kin keep from gittin' the big head with sech responsibilities put on 'im all of a sudden, but I hain't a-carin.' I reckon you know how to git yore money back."

"Oh, I don't know that this means absolute ruin," said Hillyer in his own defense. "Somehow I've got faith in Bob yet. A boy full o' puppy love will sometimes act reckless, but it may end all right."

At this juncture Bob Hanks himself came in. He wore his best clothes, and his boots had been freshly polished. His glance, a rather frank one, Kenner thought, rested dubiously on his father's face.

"They told me at the hotel that you wanted to see me, father," he said. "If I'd known you"—

"Yes, I called an' left my cyard," answered Hanks, with a sneer, "but I wasn't in no hurry. I jest called on a little matter o' business. You sorter got me to promise a week ago that I'd [illegible] in that stock o' dry goods,

Four Injured When Car Overturned on Provindial Road

AUTO ACCIDENT NEAR HOUSE OF REFUGE—VERSIONS OF THE AFFAIR ARE CONFLICTING — A BELLEVILLE MAN HURT.

At about six o'clock Wednesday evening an auto accident occurred on the provincial highway in the vicinity of the House of Refuge, just east of the city limits. While three men were injured, fortunately their injuries are not serious. From versions given of the affair it is difficult to state who was to blame.

Mr. Charles A. Smith, of Trenton, reported the affair to the police, and his version of the accident is that while he was driving his car westward on the Kingston Road he attempted to pass a Ford car, permit No. 1730, also going westward, and in doing so the driver of the Ford car crowded him into the ditch, with the result that Smith's car turned over, throwing him and four other occupants of the car out on the roadside. The driver of the Ford car, who refused to give his name, gave assistance, and Dr. Cronk was summoned to attend to the injured men, who are: Everett Bell, Trent road; Joseph Hart, Belleville, and Ellis, of Trenton. The injured, after receiving first aid, were taken to their homes and Dr. Cronk states that he does not think any onf the party are dangerously injured.

Later in the evening the owner of the Ford car, who is a prominent citizen of Toronto, was located in the city and taken to police headquarters, where he gave his version of the affair. His story differs materially from that of Mr. Smith.

Owing to the nature of the accident the driver of the Ford car was placed under arrest but was subsequently allowed out on bail to appear before Magistrate Masson when the affair will be investigated. The injuries to the occupants of the overturned car consisted of cuts about the face and head, while one man had a severe cut upon the leg.

Horses Burned on Nun's Island

FIREMEN SENT FROM VERDUN BUT NO APPARATUS COULD GO

Montreal, July 7.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed one of the stables at the Congregation of Notre Dame farm on Nun's Island at 10-30 this morning, causing damage estimated at between $10,000 and $15,000. Twelve horses were burned to death and a large quantity of hay was consumed. The outhouses of the farm were insured. When the fire was discovered an alarm was sent to Montreal and Verdun. Owing to the lack of a bridge between the island and the mainland, no apparatus could be sent from either city. Chief Chevalier, of the Montreal Fire Department, sent officers of the Point St. Charles Station to the island to help fight the flames. Captain Roy and one fireman were sent from the City of Verdun. The firemen had to cross in a ferry. The flames were under control soon after 11-30.

Picnicking is forbidden on Nun's Island and campers cannot, therefore be blamed for the outbreak.

FRUIT CARGO WAS QUICKLY HANDLED

Toronto, July 6.—What is believed to be a record in the transportation of cooling citrus fruits, from Sicily to points in Quebec, Ontario and the western provinces, has been made through the agency of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, Limited, and Canadian National Railways according to an announcement sent out from the head office of those companies here today.

The Canadian-built ship, Canadian Miller, of the C.G.M.M. fleet, sailed from Messina, Sicily, on June 10. She arrived in the port of Montreal on Jue 28, discharging there in perfect condition a cargo of lemons, lemon extract, filberts and liquor, for many points in Canada.

Forwarding conditions were in the hands of agents of the National Railway within three hours after the arrival of the ship at Montreal, and a trainload of lemons, consisting of 22 cars, for points in Ontario and the Canadian West, reaching Toronto on the morning of July 1. Quantites of the fruit were on sale in stores throughout Ontario on July 2, or within 22 days from the date of loading in Sicily.

The points served by this shipment were Montreal, Quebec, Sherbrooke, Toronto, Guelph, Brantford, Hamilton, London, Ottawa, Kingston, Belleville, Port Arthur, Brandon, Moose Jaw, Medicine Hat and Edmonton.

The Canadian Ranger, of the C.G. M.M fleet, which cleared from Messina June 22, is also bringing a large shipment of lemons to Canada.

How Wilson Wrote Famous Document

COMPOSED IN PYJAMAS IN LIGHT OF MOON ON WHITE HOUSE PORCH

Atlantic City, N. J., July 5.—(United Pres.) — President Wilson's famous war message was written on the back porch of the White House by the light of the moon in the small hours of the morning, as the President, clad in a bath-robe and munching crackers and milk, jotted down the words he had sought in vain during days and nights of constant thinking.

The history of this celebrated document was revealed here on Monday by William C. Redfield, Secretary of Commerce in Wilson's Cabinet, who is a guest at the Hotel Ambassador. The finished message was dictated in the President's office, but the circumstance under which it was composed throws a new interesting light on the events leading up to this country's participation in the great war. Mr. Redfield, in describing the birth of the message, said:

Words Wouldn't Come

"The President had thought and worried for days over this message, but it seemed the words for which he yearned would not come," said Mr Redfield. "One evening he retired, quite discouraged, about midnight. Two hours later he was awakened by the force of his inspiration. At last he realized he had within his grasp the thoughts that had been eluding him.

"He switched on the light, sat on the side of the bed, and jotted down stenographically the swiftly coming thoughts. When he had the message well under way he put on his bathrobe and took his pencil and paper to the back porch of the White House.

"About an hour later Mrs. Wilson was awakened by the light President Wilson had forgotten to turn off. She looked for him and finally discovered him on the porch. He assured her that he was alright, but a little hungry. She went to the kitchen, not disturbing the maid, and delved into the Three hundred million pounds refrigerator. She took out some milk and some crackers, which she carried to the President.

"So this wonderful message, of which the strength, inspiration and beauty will keep it alive as long as the world endures, was written in the wee small hours, with the moon shedding its only light, while its author, in a bathrobe, sat on this back porch, sipping milk and munching crackers."

Quebec, July 6.—It was officially announced to-day at the Governor General's headquarters that his Excellency the Duke of Devonshire would not meet Lord Byng and the members of his household in mid-ocean, according to custom. The departing Governor-General will reach England before his successor will have left for Canada.

Smash Constable in Free-For-All

WILLIAM CULLING HAD TWO FINGERS BROKEN IN EFFORT TO ARREST CRAP-SHOTERS

Oshawa, July 6.—Interrupting a game of dice, which is known in the vernacular as "crap-shooting," Constable William Culling, of Oshawa, stirred up a peck of trouble, not only for himself but for about eight young men, who were engaged in watching the ivories roll. The game was in progress on the green sward of Lakeview Park, and it was evident that the gambling was supplemented by some illicit drinking, and the air was filled with expressions profane and otherwise.

Culling tried to stop it and in proceeding to carry out his job, he nicely got two of the culprits under control and was about to slip the handcuffs on, when a blow from a foot broke two of his fingers, loosened his grip, and made the constable fit for a hospital. The entire bunch got away, while Culling was taken to the hospital, where he was found badly bruised as well as having two fingers fractured, the bone in one protruding.

SINN FEIN HONORS PRINCE OF WALES

Liverpool, July 6.—A remarkable feature of the visit of the Prince of Wales to Liverpool to-day was the display in many streets in the Irish quarter of Sinn Fein flags intertwined with Union Jacks.

A prominent Sinn Feiner questioned as to whether any significance was to be attached to this, replied:

"All I can say is that the order to do this came from Dublin."

Coal Strike Cost 18 Million Extra

London, July 6.—(Canadian Associated Press.)—Seventy million working days lost to the nation, and eighteen million pounds of extra expenditure incurred by the Government, are the official estimates computed in connection with the situation caused by the coal dispute.

The defence force army of reservists cost seventy million pounds, against the State for May alone. The ravage on the State coffers is demonstrated by the surprise announcement in the Commons that a new and unlimited issue of treasury bonds at 97, and bearing interest at 5 1-2 per cent. interest, is urgently needed to meet obligations maturing in the next few months

Three hundred millions pounds debts have to be dealt with instead of the one hundred million originally budgetted for. The new bonds will run for eight years, thus giving time for a gigantic funding operation at a more reasonable opportunity.

Last Minute Telegraph Briefs

Gen. Smut's Mission

London, July 7.—Prime Minister, Mr. Lloyd George stated in the House of Commons to-day that he understood Gen. J. C. Smuts, South African Premier went to Ireland Tuesday last, on invitation of Eamonn De Valera, the Irish Republican leader. Asked if he had conferred with General Smuts before the latter went to Ireland, the Premier replied laconically: "That he was seeing General Smuts constantly.

Burning Fatality at Toronto

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

Toronto, July 7.—Mrs. Ida Porter, aged 35, formerly of Peterboro, Ont., died this morning as a result of burns received at her home, 26 Wolsley street. Her husband, Isaac Porter, a ship builder, was also burned and is now in a local hospital.

Rainmaker Nearly Won His Contract

JUST OVER HALF AN INCH DURING JULY TO WIN $8,000

Lethbridge, Alta., July 7.—"Over the top" is the song Hatfield, Medicine Hat's rainmaker, is singing today.

The week-end storms which covered the whole prairie from the Rockies to Winnipeg, did not pass him by, though he claims it took a lot of coaxing to get them to come this way. During Saturday night and Sunday Hatfield got .71 inches of rain, bringing his total officially up to 3.36 inches, so that he has left only .64 inch to go during the remainder of July to get the four inches his $8,000 contract calls for.

Hatfield thought on Saturday morning that he was a gone goose. They had rain all around, but had no rain there. Lethbridge, Calgary, Regina and Winnipeg all reported heavy rains Friday night, but Jupiter Pluvius was still holding off. Saturday evening, however, the rain fell. Hatfield had promised an inch of rain last week; At Medicine Hat he did not quite live up to his predictions, but at Gros Ventre, twenty miles northeast, the skies opened and over two inches of rain fell in a torrential downpour.

The farmers are not so sure that Hatfield brought the rain. Seeing that it rained everywhere else before it rained in Medicine Hat, they have a sneaking feeling that it might have rained even though Mr. Hatfield had taken a holiday. However, they do say he is a pretty fair prognosticator, since he promised them a week ago Saturday they would have an inch of rain in a week and then on the last day of grace produced it.

The crops in the Medicine Hat district as a result of the storm will produce a fair yield. It will be better than a year ago, but a long way from a bumper. In fact, it will hardly be a fair average but it will be better than nothing at all and Mr. Hatfield is likely to walk on July 31 with $8,000 in his pocket. The dry spell has been broken and the job of producing two thirds of an inch of precipitation this month will be easy.

POLICE GET BIG STILL IN OLD RIFLE RANGES

St. Catharines, July 5.—A big illicit still, supposed to be the source of supply of liquor on the Hydro Canal, was seized by Revenue officers on the old rifle ranges on Lake Ontario, a few miles from St. Catharines. In the concrete "cellars" used by the markers while the soldiers were shooting at the targets was found a complete still, the largest yet discovered in this district, and capable, Inspector J. W. King thinks, of turning out ten gallons of whiskey a day. There were five barrels of mash under fermentation, made of prunes, sugar and yeast. The officers lay in wait to catch the owners of the still, but the owners had apparently taken fright.

French Government Take The Offensive

Paris, July 6.—The French government has taken the offensive against Bolshevist propaganda in educational institutions. Leon Beard, Minister of Public Instruction, has issued a circular in which college professors and public school teachers are warned against the promulgation of extremist ideas in their work.

"Republican France", he says, "can not look with indifference upon a propaganda that recommends violence and the suppression of universal suffrage, with the consequent annihilation of national representation and liberty."

It has been noticeable since the extremist agitation became active throughout France that the Communist forces were recruited principally among youths and young men from 15 to 25 years of age. Some have inferred from this fact that boys did not come out of the public school or college with healthy ideas of government.

Some of the most violent extremist agitators have been public school teachers.

Truce Will be Proclaimed Formally in Ireland Friday

IMPORTANT FACT DEVELOPS FROM CONFERENCE HELD IN LONDON YESTERDAY — DECLARATION TO BE COINCIDENT WITH RESUMPTION OF DUBLIN PARLEY.

LONDON, July 6.—A truce will be formally declared in Ireland on Friday, when the Sinn Fein-Unionist conference meets again at the Mansion House. This tremendously important fact develops from the conference held at the Constitutional Club today, in which the following participated: Premier Lloyd George, General Jan Smuts, Premier of South Africa, just returned from conferences in Ireland; Sir James Craig, Premier of Ulster; Lord Middleton, representing the Southern Irish Unionists; Sir Hamar Greenwood; Chief Secretary for Ireland; Lord Birkenhead, Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain; Home Secretary Shortt, and Arthur J. Balfour, Lord President of the Council.

The meeting was hedged about with the most rigid secrecy, all members being bound by an ironclad agreement not to give the newspapers the slightest indication of what happened, this being due to the Government's anxiety not to imperil the peace negotiations.

But Eamonn de Valera is in a very difficult position in this connection. He and Arthur Griffith, Dail Eireann vice-president, are prepared to test Premier Lloyd George's profession of an earnest desire to complete a peace, going even to the extent of agreeing to a suspension of hostilities, but it is an undeniable fact that de Valera is staking the reputation of the Sinn Fein leaders when he enters into negotiations for the truce. Therefore, de Valera wants guarantees that the Sinn Fein political demands will be met before he orders a cessation of hostilities.

And it was this aspect of the situation which was discussed in London today, and assurance has been given that the result of the deliberations was to point positively that there will be a formal truce on Friday.

No official announcement will be made to enlighten the world of the progress toward peace until the next Dublin conference meeting is concluded, but the outlook for peace is the brightest.

Privately the belief is expressed that the men now interested in the Irish question are actually engaged in working out a settlement of the century-old problem of Ireland.

The publicity department of the Dail Eireann denies that Lord Middleton took with him to London a sealed letter from Eamonn de Valera answering certain enquiries Lord Middleton had been authorized to make in behalf of the British Government.

A rumor has been current in usually well-informed quarters in Belfast that the Sinn Feiners have abandoned their demand for a republic. This is not confirmed in any way, and the members of the Ulster Cabinet are without direct knowledge of today's events.

TWO WOMEN SAVED IN NIAGARA RIVER

Niagara Falls, N.Y., July 6.—One woman was overcome with heat today and tumbled into the Niagara River a short distance above the American Falls, and another, fainting from excitement, followed her. Both were rescued.

The first woman, Mrs. Joseph Raines, of this city, was seated in the state reservation, on a ledge near the water's edge, with a woman companion. Persons resting near the Goat Island bridge saw Mrs. Raines and then the other woman slip into the river, and sounded the alarm.

Several men responded and fished Mrs. Raines' companion out of the water before going after her. Meanwhile she had been carried 15 feet from the shore and was being borne along towards the falls when a man, who later refused to give his name, seized a rope and waded out after her.

Edward Hager, of Wrightsville, N.J., had obtained the rope from his automobile The unidentified hero, taking one end, ran along the shore, passing the woman as she was being carried downstream.

Then he moved out directly from shore, with the other end of the rope held by George Healey, of this city. Then he seized the woman when she reached him and towed her to shore.

Dr. Fred Blanker, of Columbus, Ohio, standing with the sightseers, gave first aid treatment to the two women.

Alleged Cannibals In Caribou Tribe

WHOLESALE SLAUGHTER OF CARIBOU WIPES OUT FOOD SUPPLY OF NORTH TRIBE

Fort McMurray, Alta., July 6.—A terrible tale of starving Indians of the Caribou tribe has just reached the headquarters of the Mounted Police at Fort Smith. Human bones were brought in as evidence of cases of cannibalism. The Mounted Police have left to investigate. A few years ago caribou were so plentiful that the Indians ate only tongues, which they held as a delicacy, slaughtering the animals in thousands. The prophecy was then made that the caribou would disappear in that district, and this has happened, hence the starvation.

Liquor short circuiting becomes illegal on July 19.

Dog Bit off Nose of Little Baby Girl

Lindsay, July 7.—Crazed by the heat, a dog to-day snapped the nose off the two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Casey of Scotch Line. The little tot was toddling across the lawn when the animal flew at her and, putting its feet on her shoulders, bit through the tender flesh of her nose, leaving it hanging by a slender thread of skin. Dr. Sutton of Peterboro' dressed the wound temporarily and rushed the little girl to the hospital. The dog was killed and its head sent to Toronto for examination.

HOW YOU CAN REMOVE EVERY TRACE OF HAIR

(Toilet Talks)

A stiff paste made with some powdered delatone and water and spread on a hairy surface about 2 minutes will, when removed, take every trace of hair with it. The skin should then be washed to free it from the remaining delatone. No harm can result from this treatment, but be sure it is delatone you get and you will not be disappointed. Mix fresh as wanted.

BANDITS APPLIED TAR AND FEATHERS

Ayer, Mass., July 7.—Percy England, of Pepperell, victim of a tar and feathers assault told of it in the local court today. As a result, Grover, C, Robbins, principal of a preparatory school in Pennsylvania; Roger S. Robbins, of Lawrence, his brother, and Robert R. Meredith, of Pepperell, were sentenced to serve three months in the House of Correction and fined $100 each. All appealed.

To support his charges, England bared his back, showing welts where he had been struck with a whip and burns from the hot tar. His head still held traces of the tar and feathers application and one eye was blackened.

England, a chauffeur, said he was returning last night to his boarding place at East Pepperell with Mrs. Loretta Lavender, daughter of his landlady, when two masked men attacked him. Mrs. Lavender substantiated his testimony. She said one of the men took a flashlight from her, after which she obtained a lantern and unmasked the man, who then took the lantern away.

The assailants overpowered England, trussed him and put him into an automobile, firing a shot from a revolver, with a threat to kill him if he sought to escape, he said. They took him to a nearby pasture, the property of Meredith, it was testified, where they were joined by the third man, who brought a pail of hot tar, feathers and a whip.

England's clothes were torn from his body down to the waist, he said, he was beaten and the tar and feathers were applied. He testified that his assailants ordered him to leave town.

Reminiscences of Bay Bridge Opening

The recent ceremonies attendant upon the freeing of the Bay of Quinte Bridge as a means of transportation, minus tolls, between the counties of Prince Edward and Hastings, recalls the opening of other similar projects in the history of Belleville.

L. R. Terwilligar had the honor of being the first citizen to drive over the bay bridge with his horse and buggy when it was completed just thirty years ago. There lives in Belleville another resident who was the first to cross the lower bridge spanning the Moira river on Bridge street. This iron structure was completed about sixty years ago and it was desirable to put the flooring to a severe test previous to throwing it open for traffic.

The late Isaac Brock Ostrom, who was then a well-known farmer on the front of Sidney, drove one of the heaviest and handsomest teams in the country. The animals were splendid specimens of horse flesh, weighing about 1,500 or 1,600 lbs. each and grey in color. Mr. Ostrom was requested to try the bridge with his sturdy team and lumber waggon, and as soon as the last plank was laid, he was ready to cross. On that occasion he was accompanied by his daughter, now Mrs. F. M. Van Blaricom, 19 Highland Ave. That lady recalls with interest the large crowd which had gathered to watch the trial passage. When it was made in safety, a great cheer went up from the workmen for Mr. Ostrom and his magnificent team.

The next man to cross was the late Ketcham Graham, ex-M.P.P. for West Hastings, father of ex-Mayor R. J. Graham. Then came other well-known residents of the front of Sidney, but those who followed were called upon to pay a "toll", which was not exactly a legal levy. In the days of over half a century ago it was considered quite de rigueur to make a levy of a dime or a quarter upon well known citizens in order to "set them up for the boys." From a barn-raising to a bridge inaugural, nearly every public undertaking was a wet occasion, and all joined whole-heartedly in the proceedings. That era has long since passed as have other social customs and practices associated with the pioneer period of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties.

The late Isaac Brock Ostrom was often referred to as "General Sir Isaac Brock," but more frequently called "Uncle Brock." He lived to be well over 85 years of age and was given his Christian name by reason of Sir Isaac Brock, of Queenston Heights fame, dandling him on his knee away back at the beginning of the last century.

The hero of Upper Canada was passing with his troops from Kingston to York (Toronto) and stayed overnight at the old Ostrom homestead on the Trenton road. The General was greatly taken up with a new-born baby boy, which had not yet been christened, and so the child was called "Isaac Brock" Ostrom. He was the father of three daughters—Mrs. James Knox of Sidney Township; Mrs. L. D. Elliott of Carbon, Alta., and Mrs. F. M. Van Blaricom of Belleville. The latter is the only surviving member of the family. Ald. G. F. Ostrom of Belleville is a grand-nephew of "Uncle Brock" Ostrom.

Until the present substantial steel and stone structure was placed in position at the mouth of the Moira river, several bridges in the early days were carried away by the spring debacles.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

FEMINISM IS THEME OF "THE RESTLESS SEX"

Feminism is the underlying theme of "The Restless Sex", the Paramount Artcraft photoplay at Griffin's to-night to Saturday, with a matinee Saturday. However, the photoplay, which is the film version of Robert W. Chambers' recent novel of the same name, has nothing to do with suffrage. It treats of the woman who, having a taste of independence, wishes to become more than merely a wife and to attain a place for herself in the world of art and letters.

Marion Davies, the pretty young star, plays the role of the heroine, an impetuous society girl. Her love of excitement leads her away from the man she loves into an unfortunate marriage but later true romance asserts itself and the ending is a happy one. Ralph Kellard and Carlyle Blackwell have the leading male parts. "The Restless Sex" has been filmed upon an unusually elaborate scale. A ballroom scene in which over six hundred people take part, a thrilling automobile accident, and scenes in a Millionaire's mountain camp are features.

Lloyd Hamilton in a highly amusing 2-reel Mermaid comedy "Dynamite", Vode-Vil Movies, with its usual talented and varied vaudeville bill, Fox News Weekly, and Tom Moore in a peppery adventure story "Adventures at Briarcliffe" will also be exhibited on the same program.

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Answer to Riddle

H.J.—At the G.T.R. Depot the other day, I saw a rather peculiar thing in that a piece of brilliant-hued confetti appeared to be following a train. On the train were a bridal couple who entrained at this point and had been liberally sprinkled with confetti prior to getting on the train, by friends. Some bug or other apparently became infested with the spirit of the moment and that answers the riddle as to how the confetti was following in the wake of the train, Mr. Bug picked it up and started on his way.

Some Moose

W.N.—I saw a copy of the Toledo Blade in which was a cut depicting two members of the Moose organization meeting in that city, exchanging greetings. One was attired in a palm beach suit whilst the other was an Alaskan clad in Reindeer furs. The party in the Palm Beach suit was none other than our well-known citizen Lorne Green of the Government Employment Bureau. Lorne certainly presented a cool appearance in his hot weather outfit.

Warning Signs Needed

M.T.—In making the detour necessary to reach the Trent road, or en route to the Bay Bridge, motorists find a very bad turn to be made. Within the last week it was only by a miracle that the lives of several ladies and children were saved. Warning signs would surely be beneficial near this turning until the regular route is open.

Gov't Report on Crop Conditions

Following is a summary of reports made by Agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Heavy showers during the week did much good to field crops, although the intense heat during the same period also left its effects. Essex says that some sections of that county had their first good rain in five weeks.

The fall wheat harvest is on. Some fields have been cut in Essex. The heads were filled with plump grain, but the straw is rather short. Kent also reports cutting, and speaks of injury from the Hessian Fly. Harvesting will be general in a few days. Oxford is complaining of rust in the fall wheat.

Spring grains are filling well, but there is a comparative short length of straw, generally speaking.

Hay cutting is well on. In most instances the yield per acre is only a little better than half a crop. More millet and buckwheat are being sown on account of the shortage of hay.

Pastures were revived somewhat by the generous showers during the week but not sufficiently to carry over either beef or dairy cattle satisfactorily.

Sweet clover fields have been supplying fair pasture during the drouth, but some of the crop cut for hay is regarded as being cut too late for best quality. A good deal of sweet clover will go into the silo. A few farmers are saving some fields for seed.

Corn has been bounding along in growth with the heavy showers and prevailing warm weather, which has been ideal for the plant.

Potatoes and roots are also doing well where properly attended to.

Fruit prospects are favorable. The "June drop" was rather heavy, but there is still a fair yield of apples and other tree fruits left. While strawberries proved disappointing after their wonderful promise when in blossom, raspberries are likely to do relatively better. Essex reports this fruit as a fair crop, selling at $8 a crate. Middlesex says that Marboros have been on the market for a week.

The prolonged heat since about the middle of June, even with occasional rainfalls, has been trying to pastures, and there has been a noticeable falling off in the milk flow. Some farmers, good dairymen, are becoming discouraged at the dwindling milk values. Lennox and Addington reports that a leading dairy company is paying $1.90 a cwt. for 3.3 per cent. milk while a local creamery is giving 27 cents a pound for butter fat.

The Peterboro representative says: "One man has advised me that he made more money in selling cream in two months last year than he will probably make in the season this year."

Wellington says that owing to the low prices of cream, a number of farmers are letting their calves suck.

Oxford says: "Mr. W. W. Fraser, the Live Stock Commissioner from Manitoba, was very much impressed with the great abundance of feed in Oxford County this season. He attributed the excellent condition of the cattle to this fact, and stated that he had nowhere in the past month seen better farming conditions than in Oxford."

Hogs are holding to their recent increase in value, prices ranging from $10 to $12-50 a cwt. The Simcoe representative says of the swine and general live stock situation: "There seems to be quite a considerable shortage of hogs throughout the country owing to the fact that many farmers did not arrange to keep very many over the summer, and now that the price has gone up, they are wishing they had more. Many farmers have very largely disposed of their sheep and others are contemplating getting rid of every one. The rest of the live stock is practically normal in numbers."

Leeds says that local buyers have recently paid as high as from $200 to $250 for any kind of fairly good draft horses.

Middlesex reports that forty men from overseas were placed with farmers during the week.

A Seamless Oven

Sixty years' experience in stove and range building infallibly guided McClary's to correct principles in constructing their Electric Range oven.

Heat for the oven of a coal or wood range is generated in the fire pot and conducted to the oven.

Heat for the oven of a gas range is generated from an open, oxygen-consuming flame.

Heat for an electric range oven is generated from an element inside the oven.

That means you can economize in electric current, can turn it down to "low" or "medium" and still maintain the temperature of the oven, as the heat is held in the oven until the door is opened.

McClary's Electric Range

Heated air exerts pressure. This air pressure will force vapors and odors through any kind of joint or seam, and lodge them in the insulating packing between the outer and inner walls of the oven.

So McClary's make the inside of their Electric ovens in one piece, without a joint or seam. No vapor can be forced into the lining, and no heat is lost.

Belleville Hands a Trimming to Port Hope

The game was not to the liking of some people and a few of the class who like to grumble were there with their mouths wide open. The game was handled by Mr. Wilson on strikes and balls. Although Dear worked hard he couldn't seem to get the twist and when the game was over Belleville had 9 runs and Port Hope 2.

BELLEVILLE 18—TRENTON 2

Wednesday afternoon the Belleville Boy Scouts journeyed to Twelve O'Clock Point where they met the Trenton Boy Scouts in a game of baseball. Although the juniors were defeated by a score of 11 to 7, the seniors made up for this by administering a crushing defeat to the Trentonians. At the end of the eighth innings the Belleville boys had secured such a lead that their brother scouts decided to quit. The junior boys were defeated owing to an accident which forced their young pitcher, Ross Forster, to retire from the game. However, they were not disgraced, and hope to turn the tables on their opponents when they meet in Belleville. Wilbur pitched the remainder of the game but was given rather poor support.

Buskard was on the mound for the seniors and turned in a good game, he having eight strike-outs to his credit. He was given air-tight support by his team mates, only one or two errors being chalked up against them. Curry was behind the platter, and put in a good game, nipping a number of runners who attempted to steal. The game was not quite so one-sided as the score indicates, but in the seventh innings our boys shoved seven runs across the pan, which cinched the game. Gerow in the fourth innings slammed a two-bagger, with two on bases. This player also made a number of other hits which aided greatly in winning the game. Emerson, on first, was pulling them down in great style and bids fair to become a good first-sacker. Clare at the keystone sack also made a number of nice plays. The fielders, Jordan, Follwell and Buskard, although they did not have much to do in the garden, did good work with the willow. Too much cannot be said of Rigby, the little shortstop. Picking up hot grounders was like eating ice cream to him. He did not make an error, and his throws were perfect.

One accident marred the game. A Trenton boy was hit by a pitched ball, but luckily his injuries did not prove to be of a serious nature. Johnston went the whole route for the Trentonians, but was given rather ragged support. The ball games somewhat livened up the picnic and the First Belleville Troop wish to thank the Tabernacle Sunday School for the privilege of playing their games. A return game will be played in the near future. Chief interest in the city lies with our famous G. T. R. team, but the fans must not forget that the kids hope to be ball-players some time and that everything should be done to promote the summer pastime among the youths.

Bing Hayes umpired bases and Trenton Scoutmaster balls and strikes. Both gave entire satisfaction to all concerned.

STOWAWAY WANTED

New York, July 6.—A middle-aged man giving the name of Jacob Gronvold, who arrived as a stowaway on the Scandinavian liner Frederic VIII. to-day, is said by officers of the ship to be suspected of an embezzlement in Russia of a sum approximating $1,000,000. He was taken into custody at quarantine by agents of the Department of Justice and secret service men of the Treasury Department, de Ellis Island to be held for investigation.

Gronvold boarded the Frederic VIII. at Christiania, Norway. He wanted to buy a ticket and displayed plenty of money, but had no passport. Captain Gotche refused him a ticket and Gronvold disappeared saying he was going to his hotel for his passport.

On the second day out from Christiania, Gronvold appeared on deck. He was taken before the captain, where he said he had lost his passport. Captain Gotche sent a wireless to Christiania, which brought the reply that no passport had been issued to Gronvold. Subsequently a wireless from Christiania stated that Gronvold was an embezzlement suspect.

Norwegian passengers say Gronvold spoke German on the voyage and that when he tried to speak Norwegian he betrayed but scant knowledge of that tongue, although he did drop expressions in Russian. Beyond insisting that he is a Norwegian, Gronvold refused to talk about himself.

The New Improved Gillette Safety Razor $5.00 everywhere

NEVER was a success more dramatic or complete. Men everywhere are marvelling at the radical improvements introduced in the new razor—the ease and luxury of the new shave.

Seldom does an inventor perfect his own creation. The Gillette Safety Razor is the exception to the rule.

More than three hundred types of safety razors have been made since the introduction of the original by the Gillette organization, but it has remained for the inventors to consummate their own work, and carry it to the heights of perfection by the introduction of the New Improved Gillette and the era of micrometric precision.

Call in at any store displaying the Gillette Safety Razor or window cards! Whether or not you wish to buy, the Gillette dealer will be glad to show you the new razor and tell you all about it. Count on courtesy and service. His methods are right and his store is a good one to know.

NOTE:—The Gillette Company assumes full responsibility for service of Gillette blades when used in any GENUINE Gillette Razor—either old type or New Improved. But with IMITATIONS of the genuine Gillette, it cannot take responsibility for service of blades.

A SECRET WALLED UP IN SCOTCH CASTLE FOR CENTURIES.

The grim walls of Glamis Castle, in Scotland, have concealed a mystery for a number of centuries—concealed it so well that no hint of what it is or what was its origin has ever been definitely brought to light. But that the existence of the secret is well known throughout the kingdom is apparent from Sir Walter Scott's reference to a secret chamber in the castle which "by the law of custom of the family, must be known only to three persons—the Earl, the heir and the third in the line of succession." "The popular version," adds the famous novelist, "is that there is some horrible remembrance connected with the secret which has existed for the past two or three hundred years."

One writer claims that the mystery concealed in the secret chamber was a human being—half frog and half man—and recounts the story of the Countess of Glenshirt, who finally succeeded in penetrating to the hidden room, only to die of horror at what she found there. This story, while apparently well authenticated by writers of the period, has little foundation in fact—apart from the detail of the sudden and unexplained death of the Countess, who may have come to her end in any one of a number of ways, and in order to cover up the manner of her assassination or accidental death, it is more than possible that the story of the "chamber of horrors" was spread broadcast through the surrounding country.

Another version of the secret of the castle appears in an old history of Scotland where it is stated that "there is one chamber in the castle in which, some centuries ago, two gamblers were walled in and condemned to continue their ghostly play, and where the rattling of the dice is stilll to be heard. The Earl of Strathmore and his eldest son, Lord Glamis, must each hear this once, and it is related that the present lord has not forgotten the effect it had upon him."

But, unless stage-managed in a manner worthy of Belasco—with bluish lights, skeleton hands, and a dice-box suspended in mid-air—it is hard to see how the mere sight of a room where a not unusual torture was practiced centuries ago, could have such a profound effect upon those who visited it, nor how it would lead to such extreme measures for the preservation of secrecy.

Still another story, and one which appears to possess elements of horror and at least an approach to plausibility not to be found in the other legends, is that which appeared in print in England only a few years ago.

"In the Castle of Glamis," stated the writer, an eminent authority on such subjects, "is a secret chamber which holds (or is reputed to hold) a monster which is heir to the title and property, but who is so hideous that it is necessary to keep him out of sight and possession. The secret is known to only three persons, as the deformed man is the rightful Earl of Strathmore, he must be concealed in order to safeguard the title of the present Earl, but the same misshapen aspect which renders his imprisonment essential has also prolonged his life far beyond the appointed span.

"That there is a secret room in the castle, is a fact well known, not only in the neighborhood, but to all who have an examination of the structure. Placed below the level of the ground, it is apparently reached through a staircase, concealed behind the panelled walls of one of the many large rooms on the first floor. Those who retail the story of the monster supposed still to inhabit this chamber, declare that it is half reptile and half human, thus accounting for the fact that it has survived far more than the usual span of a man's life—while others declare that the creature died years ago, but that its mummified body remains as a warning to the new heirs that their tenancy of office is founded on deception, for the tales about the chamber agree in only one particular, that its occupant is the true Earl of Strathmore."

The truth or falsity of these suppositions has never been settled, but the fact remains that Glamis Castle hides a secret of some kind, which will never be disclosed until the old pile is torn stone from stone.

GERMAN CAPITAL OVERRUN WITH PROFITEERS BENT ON A GOOD TIME.

The ancient joke that Berlin is on the spree is the truth today, writes Harry J. Greenwall, the London Daily Express correspondent, for Berlin is very much on the spree. Since the schiebers came to town they have speeded up the hours of joy in the German capital. Their women folk walk about like perambulating jewellers' shops, but their walks are not longer than from a gorgeous motor car across the pavement and then a waddle through the spacious vestibules of Berlin's most expensive hotels. Literally, a schieber means a pushing fellow, but in plain English it just means war profiteer, with a dash of the peace profiteer.

"Having met English and French profiteers, I thought I knew something about the genus profiteer, but I find profiteering is only in its infancy in London and Paris," writes Greenwall.

"A young German who two years ago was very happy to run errands and make himself generally useful for a modest salary now tours Berlin in an auto. He told me that in his first year of schiebering he made 100,000 marks. The verb to schieber may be declined as follows: I schieber, thou schieberest, he or they swindle. It is always the other fellow who grinds the faces of the poor. You and I trade manfully. But, my word! if the Kaiser could see Berlin today he would take the first train back to Doorn. He would perhaps have to receive the assurance of the Lord Chamberlain that it really was Berlin.

"The Friedrichstrasse is a cross between Blackpool and Brighton. Numerous cabarets have sprung up, and one finds the tingle-tangles everywhere. The gambling fever has bitten the Berliners badly. Not only do they bet on German horse races, but there is a great following of racing in France, and at the corner of the Friedrichstrasse and Unter den Linden there is a kiosk which does its principal trade in selling tips and books of 'form at a glance' for racing in France. Numerous shops are turned most openly into gambling establishments. One such place in the Friedrichstrasse was crowded with young errand boys betting on a form of 'little horses' at which the minimum stake is two marks.

"The schiebers are the principal backers of Berlin's night life, for they are the only ones who can pay the price. Although the Germans hate the French with a fiery hatred, they name all their places with French names, such as Mascotte, Scala, Frou-Frou, Palaise de Danse, to name a very few. Nominally, all the places shut at 11.30, but as one leaves when the 'police hour' strikes a cadaverous hireling of Berlin's underworld slides out of the shadows and murmurs the name of a night club for which he is the tout. Of such places there is an immense choice, ranging from the establishment to opium-cum-cocaine, or a little gamble by way of a change."

THE UNEARTHLY PARADISE

London Daily Mail

To Communists rendered anxious by the drying up of the golden stream from Russia, we recommend the news of that country which filters through as the more fortunate inhabitants make their escape from their native land. Such members of the Soviet Government as can contrive to get away without their departure without their bags of platinum exciting too much remark appear to be making an intelligent use of their opportunities. Only six now remain to carry on the great work of regeneration by bankruptcy.

NO COLOR LINE IN THE EMPIRE

London Daily Telegraph

The British Empire has no color line. It is an Asiatic, as well as an American, Australasian and African integration. "Our foreign policy can never again range itself upon the differences of race and civilization between the East and the West." If these differences and divisions exist, it is the function of the British Empire to throw a bridge across them. To admit that Western Powers cannot enter into close and equal relations would be to proclaim the political inferiority of Asiatics, and so to divide the Empire itself.

A Laugh or Two

Had To Be Careful

A fastidious friend dropped into a restaurant for lunch. It was a rough, ill-smelling place, but he thought he could manage to get down a cup of coffee and a doughnut, so he ordered them. The waitress brought his coffee in a thick, heavy cup.

"Where's the saucer?" inquired the fastidious friend.

"We don't give no saucers here," replied the girl, turning her wad of gum. "If we did, some lowbrow would come blowin' in and drink out of his saucer, and we'd lose a lot of our swell trade."—Detroit Times.

Comforting

When the crowds at the station were at their height, a small man was hustled up to the ticket office by a very large wife, backed up by four children. The man's hands were full, and he appeared to have parcels tied all over him.

His expression when he tried to get at his pockets for the fare money was pitiful. It was so very pitiful that a lounger near by removed his clay pipe from his mouth and said with a grin "Cheer up, governor. A holiday's soon over.

What Bothered Him

"What's the matter, little boy?" said the kind-hearted man. "Are you lost?"

"No," was the manful reply; "I ain't lost; I'm here. But I'd like to know where my father and mother wandered to."—Tit Bits.

Life Sentence

The Poets' Corner

SONG

Because the rose must fade,
  Shall I not love the rose?
Because the summer shade
  Passes when winter blows
Shall I not rest me there
In the cool air?

Because the sunset sky
  Makes music in my soul,
Only to fail and die
  Shall I not take the whole
Of beauty that it gives
While yet it lives?

Because the sweet of youth
  Doth vanish all too soon,
Shall I forget, foresooth,
  To learn its lingering tune;
My joy to memorize
In those young eyes?

If, like the summer flower
  That blooms—a fragrant death,
Keen music hath no power
  To live beyond its breath
Then of this flood of song
Let me drink long!

Ah, yes, because the rose
  Fades like the sunset skies;
Because rude winter blows
  All bare, and music dies—
Therefore, now is to me
Eternity!

DIAMONDS WORTH $175,000 STOLEN

New York, July 7.—Theft of a hand bag containing $175,000 worth of diamonds from a Pennsylvania train was reported to the police here early today by Joseph Haskell, a Maiden lane jewel merchant.

Haskell left here for Pittsburgh last night, preliminary to a selling trip through the west. He gave the handbag to a Pullman porter, who placed it under his seat. He missed the diamonds after the train had left Trenton, N.J. He went on to Philadelphia, where the police advised him to have the New York authorities direct the search.

After reporting here, Haskell went to Trenton, to take up the search there.

Windsor, July 6.—A declaration of recovery for property valued at $1000,000 granted the Hupp Motor Car Company ten years ago by the city is to be sought by the city of Windsor from the Essex County Judge.

The property, 3 1-10 acres, south of Wigle Park, is wanted by the corporation to enlarge that park. The city asserts the motor company has lost its rights in the grant by failure to employ as many men or build as large a plant as first proposed.

HEAT WAVE GOING ON

The heat wave continues with no prospect of abating. Judging from the predictions from the meterological office at Toronto there will be no drop in the temperature for the next 24 hours. In other words there is not the least sign anywhere on the horizon that the hot wave is to be broken in the immediate future, and the officials do not take much hope from the fact that a surprise thunderstorm visited the Sault Ste. Marie district yesterday afternoon and left behind it .14 inch of rain. The storm, it would appear, was a vagrant one, which seems to have worked itself out easily without any particular prospects of swinging down this way. The temperature as recorded in this city for the past 24 hours was 95 maximum, and 74 minimum. Last night was exceptionally hot, in fact the warmest night of the heated spell.

Change in Chinese Affairs Probable

Peking, July 6.—The Chinese newspapers are freely and openly discussing prospects of a far-reaching change in Chinese affairs which they have declared is possible and even probable this summer.

One of the dominent figures to whom all experienced observers look for an initial movement in bringing have to accept part of their salaries about the predicted change is General Chang Tsilin, military governor of Manchuria, whose influence in the capital is now paramount.

The prevailing belief is that General Chang is favorable to the restoration to the Chinese throne of the boy Emperor who has long been a prisoner in the Forbidden City.

There was widespread expectation that Chang would inaugurate in the spring or early summer a movement to put the boy Emperor back on the throne but it has not thus far materialized.

This in turn has given way to internal dissensions between Chang and other leaders. Cabinet changes have ensued and there has been talk of suppressing the independent movement at Canton.

While the newspapers discuss the whole subject quite freely yet there is nothing authoritative and little opportunity to substantiate the reports so freely circulated.

Many observers attribute these movements and counter movements to the well-known shortage of funds from which the military leaders in China are suffering. The fate of the government in China hangs to a larger extent than Westerners would suppose upon the attitude of the three military governors of the northern provinces who virtually control everything north of the Yang-tse River. Recently they held a meeting in Tien-tsin and entered upon some kind of an arrangement for the division of authority between them. The Premier and several of the ministers made repeated journeys to Tien-tsin to confer with them and a shake-up in the cabinet was made to suit these military commanders.

The Premier who is opposed to making any further loans has proposed a program of retrenchment which covers disbandment of troops. The military governors refused to permit their troops to be dismissed and those of the Ministry of War cannot be disbanded without paying up the arrears of pay which the government seems unable to do.

There has been talk of a military movement to oust the President, Hsu Shih-chang, and restore Li Yuan-hung to the Presidency.

The shortage of funds is so great that even the cabinet secretaries have to accept part o ftheir salaries in bonds which they cannot possibly sell. The government's schools are all closed and the Minister of Education and all teachers have resigned because the government cannot pay over a sufficient sum monthly to make sure that salaries and expenses will be met.

Toronto, July 5.—When Joseph Daoust, iceman of Ottawa, made his will, he signified his intentions by squeezing the hand of a person at his bedside, and yesterday at Osgoode Hall the extremely unusual form of will was declared null and void, and the conveyance of property to his two sons was set aside.

"The circumstances under which the will was executed," says Mr. Justice Orde, "were quite unusual." Daoust made his will on March 18, 1905, and died on March 3, 1906. He was asked if he wished to give his wife a life interest in the property, his two sons to to squeeze the hand.

Wedding Bells

HOLMES—WHITE

On Wednesday June 22 over one hundred guests gathered from Madoc, Stirling, Picton, Trenton, Belleville and Toronto at thelhome of Jay White's Sidney to witness the marriage of his only daughter Annie Laura to Albert C. Holmes eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Holmes, Belleville.

The nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. Wallace, and Mr. Jess Rowan of Toronto played the wedding march and Mrs. Gordon Billinghurst, Toronto sang, "O Promise Me."

The many gifts were most beautiful and costly showing the high esteem in which the young couple are held. A unique feature of the wedding guests was the presence of three pairs of grandparents. The young couple left for Buffalo, Niagara and Grimsby amid a shower of confetti and good wishes and on their return will reside on the groom's farm.

Presentation

On Thursday June 30, the night of their return they were met by over sixty friends at their home. During the evening order was called by Mr. C. Bowers, superintendant of the Sunday School, and Miss Faye Ketcheson read an address and Misses Jennie Bowers and Helena Hinchcliffe presented them with a handsome chair, in appreciation of their active part in church and Sunday School, and hoped that their united efforts would still continue.

A few short addresses were given and the evening was spent in games and music. The guests departed after singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows.

CANTENARIAN DEAD

New Liskeard, Ont., July 5.— Samuel Gilmour, aged 100 years, five months and one day, succumbed here in the Lady Minto Hospital yesterday. The late Mr. Gilmour was born in Cornwall, Ont., and eighteen years ago moved to the north country, where he has been residing with his son at Kenabeek. The intense heat of the last few days is believed to have hastened the centenarian's death.

THE SUBSTITUTE

but I find out that my present intentions won't permit of it. When I thought favorably of it, you was a unmarried man, with jest yoreself to look after an' yore board paid by another party, but now you've tuck the best quarters at the hotel an' got a high priced dressmaker runnin' round to put hems on yore wife's skirts to kiver up yore folly, an' it's different. No; I won't put a cent in that business o' yore'n, an', moreover, I want to say right now that as soon as Mr. Trabue gits back from the country he'll stick a clause in my private papers that'll keep you an' that schoolgal from benefitin' by my death."

"Oh, I knew all this would come," Bob said in a regretful tone to George, who was eying him in slow wonder, "but I hain't the fool I look, George. Make Jake go out o' the office, an' I'll tell you folks all about it."

The negro did not have to be informed that he was not wanted, and with a sly laugh, half of apology, he hurried out into the warehouse.

"You could be a big enough fool fer any use an' not be as big a one as you look," said old Hanks, with a sneer.

"Look y' here, young man," demanded Kenner, "didn't you tell me t'other day that you was goin' to let up on that racket?"

"I remember tellin' you I wasn't goin' to steal the girl out fer any more buggy rides," said Bob, with a smile. "There will be no need of that in the future, I hope."

"So that's what you meant?" laughed Kenner.

"Yes; that's what I meant."

Bob drew one of the high revolving stools up near the stove and got up on it, his heels resting on one of the rungs. His new broadcloth trousers glistened in the light from the window.

"I see I'll have to tell you all about it from the first," he began in a strangely confident tone. "I don't ask anybody any odds, an' wouldn't bother to explain to most folks, but I'll acknowledge I want you fellows down here to think well of me, for you are all business men and I'm a business man."

"That you are," snarled Hanks. "Thar's business men o' yore grade in every pore house an' asylum in America."

"Now, you keep quiet if you want me to tell about this thing," said Bob. "I am a business man. I know how to make money. Everything I've put my hand to since I got a start has turned out a fair profit. If I couldn't make money faster than you, father, I'd take in my sign. You've always been afraid of big deals. 'Go slow' has been your motto, an' it's hunting you to your grave. Now, this is the way the whole blamed thing come up. I'm old enough to marry, and that girl"—

"Old enough the devil!" broke in Hanks. "You look like you are with that fuzz on yore lip."

"I reckon a man ought to be his own judge as to whether he is old enough for a step o' that kind," Bob said, with sudden dignity. "It begun this way. There was three sophomores at Mrs. Styles' school and they all seemed bent on seeing which one could make me like 'em the most. They was all pretty enough an' sharp enough, an' I reckon it was just human nature for me to carry on with 'em a little. I don't know as I liked one better than another at first. It was just the fun of seeing 'em wrangle," Bob laughed out impulsively. "They pretended to be as thick as molasses in the winter, but they hated one another like snakes. Then they got to telling lies on each other. I knew they were lies because I caught up with 'em. Finally I saw that Dora May"—

"Do you mean Mrs. Hanks?" asked Kenner, with mock solemnity.

"Yes, my wife," replied Bob. "As I say, I finally saw she was just the girl I was looking for, and I made up my mind to get married and be done with it. Thinking about her and trying to see her took up too much time. I told her my folks would object to it, but she advised me to go ahead. She's as independent as a hog on ice, an' she can afford to be." Bob paused for a moment, twirling his fingers between his knees, and then he went on: "I reckon I'll have to tell you all something. I don't know as I'd tell it now, but father is raisin' such a row over my marryin' that it puts me in a bad light and hurts my business. My credit won't be worth shucks if it gets out that my daddy has gone clean back on me—that is, until they know about my wife's connections. The truth is, Dora May's got plenty of money."

"Money?" echoed Kenner and Hillyer in a breath.

"That's what I said," answered Bob calmly.

"Then you married her fer that," said Kenner sternly.

"No, I didn't," replied Bob. "The truth is, I liked her before I knew about it. She suits me tiptop, and I can't help it if she is well off. She's what would be called big rich in this part of the country. Her father left her several blocks of business houses in Louisville. The rent on one batch alone is something over five thousand a year and will all come to her when she's of age. Her guardian didn't think it would be best for it to get out down here before she was done school, an' so he got Mrs. Styles not to mention it an' made Dora May promise not to tell it. But, of course, when me an' her got engaged, and"—

"You let a gal in short frocks tell you a cock an' bull story like that," broke in Hanks, his sallow face working visibly, "an' you swallowed it, like the sucker you are."

"I had no reason to doubt it," retorted Bob, with a flash. "But I found out afterward that it was all true. I know a tobacco drummer from up that way. He gets all my trade in that line. Me an' him are pretty friendly, an' I confided in him. He told me he knew all about the family and substantiated everything Dora May had said an' added a lots more about investments of hers that she didn't even know about."

"But why were you in such a hurry?" asked Kenner, who seemed to be the only one in the group capable of ready expression.

"Well," Bob hesitated, and a frank flush spread over his face, "there are some boys in this town that would run after a rich girl, and Dora May would have been entirely too popular to do her any good. Oh, you needn't worry about me an' her! I tell you we know what we are doing. She's business from head to foot an' knows I can manage her affairs all right. There ain't a bit of harm in a fellow marrying money if he loves his wife and has the ability to make some himself. I believe I'm a born money maker. I reckon I got it from father. I believe if he'd 'a' had a fair chance and not been afraid he'd 'a' been the richest man in this state. He married a poor woman and had no start, and yet he's done well—that is, pretty well—for his chances."

"There ain't a bit of harm in a fellow marrying money."

"Ef he ever is about to starve you mought give 'im a job collectin' Dora May's rent," said Kenner, who was bubbling over with enjoyment.

Then silence fell. They were all waiting for Hanks to speak, but he had nothing to say. He rose and went outdoors, his scrawny hands in the pockets of his trousers.

"The Lord only knows what he'll do," said Bob. "But the die is cast, an' I feel sorter independent of him. Look here, Mr. Kenner," turning back from the door, "you must get the idea out of your head that I did this thing just because Dora May was well fixed. I tell you she's just what I was looking for. She's pretty, not a bit lazy and thinks that what I don't know ain't worth learning. She's been so much interested lately in my business that she wasn't studying good at school anyway. She's give me a great many pointers, I tell you. She helped me write all them ads. that folks said was so good, especially them with the poetry in 'em. I'm a bad speller, and she corrected all of 'em before they was printed."

"Did you ever?" Kenner said when Bob had gone. "I'll swear I don't know whether to kick or congratulate 'im."

As George was going home to dinner he saw old Hanks leaning on the fence of a vacant lot waiting for him. George paused. "That ground ud make good turnips," said Hanks, spitting over the fence. "I believe I'll make Trotter an offer for it. I could pasture my cow on it in the spring."

George said nothing. He knew the old man had waited for him to speak of Bob's marriage.

"Went up thar to see Mrs. Styles." Hanks nodded in the direction of the schoolhouse.

"Oh, you did?"

"Yes. Found 'er with 'er head all tied up in rags an' smellin' like a drug store. At fust she kept up sech a screechin' she wouldn't let me say a word, but she quieted down after awhile, an' me 'n' her sorter come to a understandin'."

"An understanding? That's good," said George.

"Yes. We both sorter come to the conclusion that if she'd write to that guardeen that Bob was an only child an' could naturally expect something at my demise that, maybe, he would not raise a row."

"Then the girl really is rich," said George.

The old man spat over the fence again. He avoided George's glance. "Yes, she's pretty well heeled," he said, "an' not a fool by a long shot. She was up at Mrs. Styles' this mornin', the old lady said, with a long dress on. She talked pretty straight—didn't intend to have nobody meddlin' with her affairs—ef anybody had anything to say agin Bob Hanks to send 'em to her, an' so on. Blamed ef I hain't sorter curis to see 'er. Somehow I always wanted a gal in the family, an' one with plenty o' scads is about as acceptable as any other sort—safer in the long run."

"When Mrs. Hillyer was told at the dinner table that day of the outcome of Bob's marriage, she said: "Well, I don't know as Bob Hanks is sech a hard case after all. The highest in the land is a-doin' jest what he done—marryin' with the'r eyes open. The only difference is Bob don't make no bones over it. He admits he's struck a good thing an' has too much business pride to underrate his investment."

"Nevertheless, Martha," said Hillyer over his poised coffee cup, "I'd a little rather see Bob make more over the girl than he does."

Keep Your Line of Communication Open

ONE-MINUTE ESSAYS ON HEALTH BY DR. WM. P. REDICK

Lincoln rejected a plan of campaign submitted by McClellan in civil war times because McClellan had left an opportunity for his line of communication to be cut off.

When by pressure upon spinal nerves due to misplacement of spinal joints "the nerve line of communication to the stomach" is cut off, it is just as effective in starving you to death as being cut off from food. Many are suffering a partial paralysis of some organ of the body because of pressure on spinal nerves cutting off the line of communication.

Chiropractic spinal adjustments remove the cause of disease in the head, throat, lungs, heart, stomach, liver, kidneys and other organs of the body.

Nurses Graduation Exercise at Belleville Hospital

SIX YOUNG LADIES, TWO OF WHOM ARE SISTERS, RECEIVE THEIR DIPLOMAS—PRIZES AWARDED FOR EFFICIENCY IN CERTAIN SUBJECTS — PLEASING PROGRAMME PRESENTED.

The graduation of nurses in connection with Belleville hospital took place on Thursday afternoon in the nurses' assembly room at the institution. The room which was filled with visitors was beautified by fragrant flowers and had it not been for the intense heat the graduating exercises would have been much more comfortable and interesting. The proceedings were, however, marked with brief addresses by those who took part, which was much appreciated. Six young ladies graduated namely: Misses Ina Josephine Richards of Seeley's Bay; Effie Matilda McMullen of Thurlow; Mima Diamond of Lonsdale; Hilda Minnie Collier of Meaford; Alice Catherine and Helen Irene Fargey of Belleville, two sisters.

Judge Wills presided over the proceedings in his usual affable and capable manner, and associated with him on the platform were Miss Taite, Lady Superintendent of the hospital, Mrs. W. C. Mikel, President of the W.C.A. and other lady officers and Rev. Dr. Cleaver, Pastor of Bridge street church.

The proceedings opened with the singing of the National Anthem and the repeating of the Lord's Prayer led by Rev. Dr. Cleaver.

Chairman's Remarks

Judge Wills stated that owing to the heat his remarks as chairman, would be brief. He referred to the hospital and the good work which was being accomplished. It was an institution that was of great value to the citizens of Belleville and the County of Hastings. One and all should help the hospital and assist in making extensions as necessity required. The ladies have done a noble work for the hospital and the younger ladies of the city should come forward and offer their services so as to assist those who for some time have borne the burden of managing it. The hospital had been carried on by voluntary work on the part of a noble band of ladies, and we were looking forward to others to come forward and assist. There had been some legacies and bequests and a grant of $1,000 had been made by the County Council of Hastings County, and a further grant would no doubt be made. The citizens of Belleville and the County must maintain the institution whatever the cost may be.

Mrs. McKinnon sang a solo in a manner that was most pleasing.

Hospital Pins Given

Hospital pins were presented to the graduating nurses by Mrs. W. C. Mikel, who referred to the pleasure it gave her to make the presentation. The graduates had gone through strenuous times during their course of training having passed through two epidemics of the flu and a change in the hospital staff. On behalf of the Board it was a pleasure to present the pins for faithful services.

Diplomas Presented

Miss Taite, Lady Superintendent presented the diplomas to the nurses and also administered to them a pledge of their services as nurses.

Address to Graduates

Dr. Emma Connors delivered the following address to the graduates:

There can be no more eventful day in the life of a nurse in training than this, her graduation day. And I esteem it a great privilege to be permitted to say a few parting words to you young women as you go from this school into the field of duty equipped for service.

For three long arduous years you have been looking forward eagerly to the time when the goal of your ambition should be reached. You have counted the months, the weeks and the days. You have passed triumphantly through your last test and now with the clouds of uncertainty, anxiety and fear that hung over the heights cleared away, and with the sunshine of success crowning your final efforts you stand at the portal of the future looking down its enchanted corridors.

You are done with the past, except where it serves to inspire you to greater and nobler effort. For if you are leaving these halls with a true conception of your privileges and your responsibilities, and if you are animated by the desire to make the very best of your lives you have much work to do. Each one of you must become the architect of her own fortune.

All are architects of fate
  Working in these walls of time,
Some with massive deeds and great
  Some with ornaments of rhyme.
Build to-day then strong and sure
  With a firm and ample base,
And ascending and secure
  Shall to-morrow find its place.

Do not think your education complete with your present attainment. Keep what you have and reach out for more. Cultivate studious habits. Read along the line of your work to deepen your enthusiasm. And to afford mental refreshment. For recreation I should like to advise you to read only the best books and there are so many best books that we do not need to seek refuge for diversion in worthless fiction. Do this for the next three years and you will never do otherwise.

Storing your minds with gems of literature, with history, with travel, with nature study, will open to you broader avenues in life, and you will find that the time you devote to self culture will be a profitable investment.

In the words of Phillips Brooks: "Sad will be the day for any man when he becomes contented with the thoughts he is thinking and the deeds he is doing, when there is not forever beating at the door of his soul some great desire to do something larger which he was made and meant to do."

As you go on your way through life you will find many difficult places, pitfalls, stumbling blocks, but with courage and vigilence and perseverence these obstacles to progress will be milestones on the pathway to success.

Your training in the Belleville General Hospital will enable you to meet many emergencies with a cool head and a steady hand. You will be able on account of it to bring to the bedside of your patients that practical knowledge which is the master key to every difficult situation.

You will have acquired the quiet assurance, the patience, the gentleness of touch that go to inspire confidence and admiration and respect. You will never under any circumstance forget your high calling. Respect it as you do your country's flag.

The uniform you wear is a pledge of your sincerity. Your hospital sends you forth in good faith with the privilege of practising one of the most exalted, most sacred of professions going, as it does, hand in hand and step with step with the medical profession, and the hospital expects each one of you to do her duty.

You have attained a dignity which has come to your profession through the evolution of scientific medicine. In the old days predating the microscope and the laboratory the necessity of asepsis was unknown and training was of the crudest sort. Nursing was then performed by the ignorant class, and in all countries where there still lingers remnants of the feudal system to which the late war has given a dying blow, the nursing profession has been slow to receive that respect and consideration that it has received on this side of the water where democracy exists.

Charles Dickens has in his Martin Chuzzlewit made us acquainted with the type of nurse then in existence, in the persons o fthe immortal Sairey Gamp and Betsey Prig, whose sickroom technique consisted in administering the doses ordered by the doctor in a manner not now in vogue. For instance, he tells us Mrs. Gamp's method with an unconscious patient was to clutch his windpipe to make him gasp and then to pour the draught down his throat. And during the long hours of the night, when the patient tossed and raved with fever, the Betsey Prig school of nursing ordered him to keep quiet and stop his noise.

Sairey Gamp's method of treating a nervous case consisted in taking him by the collar of his coat and giving him some dozen or two hearty shakes backward and forward in his chair, that exercise being considered by the Prig school of nursing as exceedingly conducive to repose and highly beneficial to the performance of the nervous functions.

COMMON STOCK NOT WORTH A DOLLAR

Montreal, July 7.—"The common stock of the Grand Trunk Railway is not worth a dollar," declared W. N. Tilley, K. C., counsel for the Government, as he closed his argument today before the Board of Arbitration sitting here to inquire into the value of the common and preferred stock of the system prior to its acquisition by the Government. The Grand Trunk Pacific occupied the greater part of his discussion, and he claimed that, apart from the growing deficits of its subsidiaries, the Grand Trunk itself in time would go into liquidation. It is expected the hearings will be concluded today, when Grand Trunk counsel will present final arguments in rebuttal.

Drury Cabinet Piling up Debt

HON. MR FERGUSON SHOWS CAPITAL EXPENDITURE JUMPED $36,000,000 IN 1920.

Beeton, July 6.—Hon. G. H. Ferguson, leader of the Liberal-Conservatives in Ontario, addressed an enthusiastic meeting here today. He pointed out the many pledges made by Premier Drury to the people of the province that have been either entirely ignored or ruthlessly broken, and vigorously dealt with Mr. Drury's oft-repeated assertion that the old party system had broken down because of lack of sincerity on the part of its leaders.

"No other Prime Minister since confederation," said Mr. Ferguson, "has shown such an utter disregard for his pre-election professions, or so constantly broken his promises to the people."

Mr. Drury says the two-party system is gone forever. In the present age the public will not tolerate insincerity and unfaithfulness in its public men, and because the leaders of the old parties, while in office forgot entirely all promises made to the people, the electors have discarded the old party system, and a new situation has developed in our political organization.

Continuing, Mr. Ferguson said, it was natural that the public should examine closely the record of a man who posed as a censor of the public conduct of all other public men, to see just how far the gentleman from Crown Hill measures up to his own professed standards. When campaigning against the old Government, and after coming into office Mr. Drury was very profuse and emphatic in his statement of the many reforms he proposed to bring about.

He gave his pledge that there would be a reduction in provincial expenditures, and he glibly told his hearers on platforms all over the province of the waste and extravagance of which the old Government had been guilty, that must be eliminated if the province was to be saved from bankruptcy. Now, in the light of all these promises, let us examine the Drury record.

In Drury's first year the capital expenditure jumped from $17,000,000 to $83,000,000 in 1920. This appalling sum is more than our capital expenditure in any other two years combined in the history of the province, and is an increase of $36,000,000 over the year 1919. This added thirty-six millions dollars means a mortgage upon the province of fifteen dollars per head upon every man, woman and child in Ontario, and now we have this economist Prime Minister coolly announcing that he will spend one hundred millions this year.

When Mr. Drury took office he found five million dollars in cash in the bank, and legislation on the statute books and legislation by the old Government which brought in during their first year in office over five million dollars more in revenue than had ever before come into the public treasury in any one year. One would have thought that this disciple of economy, pledged to retrenchment and burning with zeal to display his prowess managing the business of the province, would have been able, at least, to run his first year's business with this five million dollars addition to his income. Relying on his statements on the public platform the people naturally expected the most rigid economy and retrenchment. It came as a rude shock to the people to hear from the treasurer at the end of the very first year in

Indians to Lay Case Before King George

DELEGATES ELECTED TO INTERVIEW THE KING—ALLEGED TROUBLE WITH DEPT.

Brantford, July 7.—After an election in the Six Nations Council, which lasted nearly a week, announcement was made to-day that Dr. Thomas Miller and D. S. Hill, former clerk in the Indian Office, had been elected as delegates to interview King George in regard to the troubles which the Indians claim they have had with the Indian Department.

The delegation will present some of the difficulties which it is claimed exist over the enfranchisement of the Indians.

Nearly 1000 Deaths From Yellow Fever

Lima, Peru, June 14.—Nearly 1,000 deaths occurred from yellow fever during the last nine months in the departments of Lambayeque and La Libertad, in northern Peru, according to statements published here attributed to Doctor Henry Hanson, an American physician, who is in charge of the sanitation campaign directed against the fever by the Peruvian government and the Rockefeller Foundation.

The Rockefellow Foundation contributed $20,000 to fight the epidemic which is now reported to be decreasing as a result of the campaign and the approach of the winter season. It was estimated there was about 10,000 cases in the affected area. The feature of the campaign has been the war against the stegomyia mosquito and the closing of water containers and stagnant pools in which mosquitos breed.

Doctor Hanson's staff is composed of three supervising inspectors, five Peruvian physicians and 100 inspectors. It is believed the affected districts will be entirely rid of the fever by the end of the year.

Well Known People Arrive in Canada

AMONG THOSE ON BOARD THE CARMANIA WAS BRITISH GOLF CHAMPION

Halifax, N.S., July 7.—Seven days out from Liverpool via Queenstown, Ireland, the Cunard liner Carmania arrived here late this afternoon, landed 165 passengers and sailed for New York to-night. Distinguished passengers who remained aboard were:

Hon. Sir, Edgar Rennie Bowring, first high commissioner of Newfoundland, who expected to land at Halifax and proceed to St. Johns, but found it necessary on disembarking to immediately re-embark to go to New York en route to Washington on official business. Their royal Highnesses the Prince Youssef Kemel and Haidar Fazil, who will visit New York before making a tour of Canada, and Jock Hutchinson, who won the British open golf championship at St. Andrews, Scotland, on June 25 last.

Other American golfers on board the Carmania are: Thomas Kerrigan, E. French, C. Hoffner, C. Hackney, F. McLeod, G. MacLean and Walter Hagen, all bound for Chicago.

State Ball Held at Buckingham

FIRST FUNCTION SINCE 1914 WAS IN HONOR OF KING AND QUEEN OF THE BELGIANS

London, July 7.—The first state ball at Buckingham Palace, since 1914, was held to-night in honor of the King and Queen of the Belgians. It had an air of unusual brilliance owing to the comparative novelty of the affair, a very large number of the 2,000 guests attending such a function for the first time.

Another contrast with pre-war functions of this kind was to be found in the change in character of the costumes, the rather rigid heavy style of etiquette formerly demanded giving way to light gossamers and heavy embroideries to adornments of vaporous texture. Still another novelty was the large number of ladies wearing war orders, and there was also a regal display of jewels.

The state quadrille was danced in the customary manner, the King leading with the Queen of the Belgians and Queen Mary with King Albert.

OFFICIAL REPORTS ON FIRE SITUATION

North Bay, July 7.—The following official reports were received by the T. & N. O. Commission on the fire situation in Northern Ontario:

No fires between North Bay and Mileage 57; small fire there.

No fires between Mileage 57 and Cobalt.

Heavy rains from Haileybury to Swastika; all danger passed.

Fire along by Bourkes similar to yesterday.

Yorkston—Light rains, clear day.

Matheson—Several fires; no danger unless wind rises.

Porquis Junction, Iroquois Falls and Cochrane—Several fires in this vicinity, and if no wind rises there will be no danger.

Connaught—Few fires in vicinity.

South Porcupine—Some rain last night. Fires out.

Schumacher and Timmins—No fire near towns from up the river; no danger. Conditions today very much improved from yesterday.

Writer Describes Conditions in S Rusia

Riga, Latvia, July 7.—The chaotic conditions and daily tragedies that followed upon resumption of free trade in South Russia are described graphically by a writer for the Moscow Isvestia, who has just made a trip through the Ukraine.

The peasants, he says, carrying sacks of grain or other food to the cities are literally overwhelming the railways. He thus describes the appearance of one of the trains coming into Kiev.

"Along the tracks is crawling a huge grey caterpillar—a train covered all over with grey masses of food-carriers. From beneath these masses neither cars nor locomotives can be distinguished. The grey mass covers everything, the car roofs, the steps, and even the spaces between cars. Every available nook is occupied. Everything is filled up. Only when the train begins to slow down, nearing Kiev station, it begins to shed its grey fleece. Litle by little, while yet in motion, the locomotive and car roofs begin to uncover.

People Pasted on Trains

"At Kiev all out-bound trains are literally pasted all over with people. On the locomotive, cars, fire-wood truck, water tank and under the cars—anywhere that it is at all possible—people fasten themselves to every hook, nail or crevice. Those who have been fortunate enough to get a place on a brake platform are looked upon as favorites of fortune, who are comfortable for their whole trip.

"The departure of every train is accompanied by lamentations, wails; crying, shooting and all kinds of accidents. When the train is beginning to get in motion, those who were not able to board it and those who have been forcibly removed from it start mad rushes for it again. The military detachments, whose duty it is to maintain order during the boarding of trains, run after the trains, pulling down some of the surplus passengers who have managed to fasten on to them, while from others caps are pulled off and so on.

"One of the results of this state of affairs is that porters take 50,000 to 75,000 of rubles for a 'guaranteed' place on the train.

"Another result is that the Kiev railway shops every month have to make about 300 coffins for food-carriers who have been run over by the trains."

M. Dzerzhinsky, head of the "Cheka", or Committee to Combat Counter-Revolution, known as one of the most efficient men in Soviet Russia, has been appinted by Lenine as Commissar of Railways to regulate this traffic of food-carriers.

DARING NIAGARA RESCUE WORK OF PERTH CITIZEN

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 7.—Douglas Moodie, who rescued the woman upon the brink of the Falls, is a Canadian and a native of Perth, Ont. The Superintendent of the State Reservation calls it the most daring act of heroism in the annals of the Falls.

Conference Resumed at Dublin to-day

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

London, July 8.—Representatives of Sinn Fein and Unionists of South Ireland met at Dublin to-day to continue the conversation which it was hoped, would develop some basis for peace negotiations, which would end the era of bloodshed that has prevailed in Ireland for some months.

Everybody interested in a settlement of the Irish situation was anxiously watching for news from Dublin, but English political writers in this morning's newspapers seemed to believe the prospect of an agreement should be regarded more with hope than faith. In many quarters, indeed, the situation was viewed as giving little occasion for optimism. This view was based largely on the belief that Eamonn De Valera, Leader of Sinn Fein, adhered unalterably to his demand for the establishment of an Irish Republic, and that the British Government, as well as Ulster, took its stand upon the Irish act, recently passed by the British Parliament. It was stated that Earl Middleton, South Irish Unionist Leader, who was in London to confer with Premier Lloyd George and others, who had returned to Dublin last night, had taken with him an intimation that a settlement must be in harmony with the Irish act in accordance with which the Belfast Parliament was created.

The conference between Irish Republicans and Southern Unionists, called by Eamonn De Valera, Republican leader, begun in Dublin July 4, was resumed here to-day. The personnel of confrers was the same as that of Monday.

Greek Marines Slaughter Turks

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

Constantinople, July 8.—The Allied Commission of Inquiry into recent developments in Ismid District to the East of this City, where depredations were alleged to have occurred during successive occupations by Greeks and Turkish Nationalists, returned here to-day and reported that Greek marines had slaughtered several hundred Turks in Ismid area.

STRUGGLE STILL GOES ON

Rome, June 19.—The struggle between buyers and sellers still continues in Italy, as it goes to the heart of the Italian shopkeeper to reduce those prices which have made his fortune since the war.

A large quantity of wool has been sent to Italy from Australia, and consequently the Italian woolen merchants find a difficulty in disposing of their goode, the fine woolen stuff can now be produced for $10 a yard. The shopkeepers, however, refuse to sell this cheaper material until they have exhausted all the dearer but inferior quality cloth which they have in their shops and continue calmly to charge from $100 to $200 for a suit of clothes

WALKS TIGHT ROPE AND DROWNS

Lindsay, Ont., July 8.—A young lad named Smith, whose parents reside at Minden, was drowned in Gull river while trying to walk a taut rope over the water. He was a good swimmer and it is believed he was a victim of heart failure.

Russian Papers Not Always "Rosy"

Reval, Esthonia, June 19.—Those who have the idea that Bolshevik newspapers printed in Russia say only rosy things about the country could quickly be disillusioned by perusal of the papers themselves. During the past four months, the principal Moscow and Petrograd newspapers have been startlingly frank about some of the conditions that Communism has produced.

The Moscow ECONOMIO LIFE not long ago wrote the following description of conditions on one of the Communist "model" farms:

"The farm presented a picture of complete desolation. For years there have been no repairs. Windows are broken, walls are falling in, and some of the buildings are in ruins. Workers live in terrible, dirty rooms, black from smoke. In one of the rooms there lives a calf, placed there by the foreman despite protests of women tenants.

"There are neither potatoes nor vegetables for the workers. In the summer no one has bothered to store them. People are starving, cattle are starving. In the farm there are 32 persons, of these six are officials."

The old program of the Bolshevik government called for an increase in the number of these "model" farms. The new program by which the peasants are given nine years tenure of their land, practically does away with them.

No less frank were more recent admissions in the Moscow newspapers about the economic state of Russian factories some of which were shown to be producing less than five per cent. of what they produced before the war.

Sudden Death at Napanee

MARSHALL McCUAIG IS FOUND DEAD IN CAMPBELL HOUSE —INQUEST TO BE HELD

Napanee, July 7.—Marshall McCuaig, aged about 50, was found dead this morning in the basement of the Campbell House, where he retired to rest last night. There will be an inquest held by Dr. Cowan and a jury to determine the cause of death.

Deceased is survived by his wife and two daughters, one of whom is at her parents' home and the other, who is married, lives in Belleville. The family have resided here but a short time.

GROUP INSURANCE

Winnipeg, Man., July 7.—Group insurance, one of the concessions asked for by the Manitoba Civil Service Federation as the result of their receiving no bonuses during the war, will likely become effective during July when it is expected $1,800,000 will be issued to the 1,200 civil servants who have been in the employ of the government for a period of six months or more. The cost to the government for slightly over $30,000 annually. Those benefitted by the insurance will be given the right to continue their insurance in force should they leave the government employ, it is planned. The insurance premiums would then be paid by themselves at the age they had attained when leaving the service.

The scale runs from $500 for those in the service for a period of six months to one year with a maximun of $5,000 for employees with ten years' service.

Belfast The Scene of Wicked Battle Last Night

ONE CONSTABLE MORTALLY WOUNDED IN FIGHTING—SINN FEINERS SAID TO HAVE SUFFERED HEAVILY — POLICE WERE FIRED ON BOTH FROM STREET CORNERS AND HOUSES WHICH HAD BEEN PICKED FOR THAT PURPOSE.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

BELFAST, July 8.—The Union and Kent street areas of Belfast were the scene of wild excitement at midnight last night, heavy firing going on for twenty minutes. A constable was mortally wounded and the Sinn Feiners engaged in hostilities are reported to have suffered heavily. Many dead bodies are said by the police to have been carried into houses nearby.

The trouble started when a police searching party called at a house in that district. Fire was opened upon the party and in response to the police "hurry call" reinforcements were rushed up. A battle ensued and the police were fired at from street corners as well as from houses which had been picked to guard against surprises from the Crown forces.

Nurses Graduation

For fainting, bite a person's thumb or turn their fingers the wrong way, and they comes to wonderful. "Lord bless you."

The undertaker at that time struck a blow at the nursing profession and paid a rather ambiguous tribute to Mrs. Gamp when he said that "her intellect was immensely superior to her station in life, and that she was a woman whom one would almost feel disposed to bury for nothing, and do it neatly too."

But the darkest hour in nursing was just before the dawn and at the same time in a beautiful English home there was growing up a little girl who played with her dolls in quite a new and startling fashion. She used to pretend that they were ill and nursed them or that frightful accidents had happened to them and she would bandage their arms and legs with strips of linen and treat them with great care. As she grew older she used to go to the cottages of the peasants round her father's estate and if she found any of them ill, she would take care of them. She was intensely fond of animals and her first patient was a dog.

This person was no less than Florence Nightingale. When she grew up she was taken to London to be presented at court. At that time she visited the hospitals which was more to her liking than court functions, and was shocked by the roughness and stupidity of the nursing there. So she went to the training schools on the continent for a time and on her return began to improve the London hospitals.

While she was engaged in this work the Crimean war broke out and when the frightful tales of the sufferings of the wounded soldiers reached England, she started with less than forty nurses for the scene of action. When she arrived there the deaths had been forty out of every hundred wounded and soon after this was reduced to two out of every hundred. There was no chloroform then and Florence Nightingale stood by the men and helped them with her cheerful words to bear their sufferings.

As many as ten thousand soldiers came under her care, and she used to go slowly between the beds at night carrying a lamp in her hand, and on account of this they named her the "Lady with the Lamp." Her name they found could be transposed into the words, "Flit on cheering angel", and that was what she was to those soldiers. The fifty thousand pounds she received as a gift for her services, was used by her for founding a training school for nurses and that is why to-day it is possible for you to receive diplomas from a recognized training school. That is why the Sairey Gamp and the Betsey Prig methods have become obsolete and the nursing profession has risen to the honorable position it holds at the present time.

And so it has been down through the centuries, the few have been endowed with the clear vision, the steadfast purpose, the dauntless courage. Witness Columbus standing on the deck of the Santa Maria,

Behind him lays the great Azores
Behind the gates of Hercules;
Before him not the ghost of shores,
Before him only shoreless seas.

The good mate said, "Now must we pray,
For lo' the very stars are gone.
Speak, Admiral! What shall I say?"
"Why say, sail on and on,

And so in spite of opposition and discouragement Columbus went on.

And pale and worn he kept his deck,
And through the darkness peered that night,
Ah! 'darkest night', and then a speck,
A light! a light! a light! a light!

It grows, a starlit flag unfurled;
It grew to be Time's burst of dawn,
He gained a world; he gave that world
Its watchword—On and on.

As children your first problems at school were addition. You have grown by addition; your minds were developed by the same process; knowledge grows from more to more; your characters are formed by addition. Success that is substantial is built up by degrees. Remember that it is the small things in life that count.

We have asked you to keep daily before you a few of the addends which in the sum of life give the total success. But we must not conclude without warning you to employ another process in your lives also, viz. that of subtraction. The subtraction of your faults from your work and your character and the difference in this case will give the same result. Success. And in this connection a few of the little "Do Nots" that you have been hearing during your training may well be repeated.

1. Do not disarrange any household by your presence. (We frequently used to hear it said that trained nurses were "such a trouble," "that they required a servant to wait upon them.") But that was a good while ago.

2. Do not allow your friends to call you upon the telephone when you are on duty unless it is unavoidable. They may be interrupting you in the performance of your duty or putting some member of the family to inconvenience.

3. Do not betray the confidence of a patient. The fact that a nurse can keep a secret stamps her as a superior being.

4. Do not shirk the smallest item in the treatment prescribed by the doctor without his knowledge and sanction.

5. Do not relate your family history or harrass your patients with tales of your own illnesses.

6. Do not talk to a patient about their own illness. Allow them to forget, compel them to lose sight of it through their interest in things outside of themselves.

7. Do not fall into the error of advising the use of patent remedies to your patients. It is a symptom of professional senility. You have forgotten your training.

8. Do not commercialize your profession.

9. Do not carry gossip from patient to patient.

10. Do not blame the patient if you fail to please. Blame yourself. Find out where your fault has been, and correct it.

Remember these commandments and they will help you to think of others. Be firm and steadfast and true.

There is no chance, no destiny, no fate,
Can circumvent, or hinder, or control
The firm resolve of the determined soul.
Gifts count for nothing; will alone is great;
All things give way before it soon or late.

Apply yourselves with earnestness and diligence to the task immediately before you, make the most of each day's opportunities, go forth with courage and purpose to your appointed work and be worthy of your high calling.

Plan For Future Success

Many young people leaving school do not at first realize that special training in a special line of work is absolutely necessary in all the most desirable positions. To do the kind of work that pays best they must have practical, thorough training. Business is probably the most attractive field; no other offers greater rewards or wider opportunities. Foreman Walker Offers Evidence

St. Thomas Railroad Man Says He Knows From Experience What Tanlac Will Do

"I know from experience what Tanlac will really do, and that's why I am recommending it," said J. R. Walker, of 21 Miller street, St. Thomas, Ont., section foreman for the Canadian Pacific Railway.

"I almost underwent a complete physical breakdown, and before Tanlac put me on the road to good health I was simply in a terrible condition. I had dreadful rheumatic pains in every joint in my body and would come home from work entirely fagged out. My appetite was so poor I just had to force myself to eat the little I did, and of mornings I would feel as bad as when I went to bed. I was in a mighty miserable fix, and hardly knew which way to turn for relief.

"I saw a statement in the local paper about Tanlac that just seemed to hit my case exactly, so I began taking it and it's really wonderful how the medicine has helped me. Although I have only taken two bottles I eat three big meals every day and am no longer bothered with that draggy, worn-out feeling, and am almost entirely rid of those rheumatic pains in my joints. I'll tell you I think a heap of Tanlac, and am going to take another bottle or two to straighten me out completely."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville at Ostrom's Drug store.

RAILWAY BOARD GRANTS GALT BRANCH LINE RAILWAY

Ottawa, Ont., July 6.—The Board of Railway Commissioners to-day granted the application of the Corporation of the City of Galt, Ont., for an order directing the Lake Erie and Northern Railway Company and the Grand River Railway Company to construct and operate a branch line railway in the vicinity of the southernly limit of the city.

"Ship it on the 5.15 train you have just time to catch it," he telephones by Long Distance, at Station-to-Station rates.

Manufacturers order new parts by Long Distance to take the place of broken equipment, thus preventing costly delays.

HISTORIC PLACES

Up to 1816 only a very few people had taken up their abode at the place where the mouth of the River joins the Bay of Quinte and which was called Myers Creek, and sometimes Thurlow Village. Dundas street was then the northern limit of the settlement. Beyond that were farms and woods. There was a bridge running across the river connecting Dundas Street west upon which the stage from Montreal to Toronto made the crossing as well as other traffic. Shortly after this about fifty U. E. Loyalists settled in the little place and a Post Office was established with Samuel McNabb the first Postmaster. The place where the first Post Office was opened is not now known but the site of the first hotel is known to have been at the corner of Front and Dundas Streets and a part of the building is still standing

With The Boys in Camp Community

Forty boys landed in Camp Community on Monday, July 4th. Several prominent citizens, Mrs. A. R. Symons, Messrs. R. J. Wray, W. Patterson, J. Cook, J. G. Moffatt, G. T. Cole, W. H. Gilbert and W. McCreary, donated their cars for transporting the boys. They arrived at the camp about eleven o'clock and the boys were assigned to their tents. When the cars returned to Belleville they took back the sixteen boys who came to the camp on June 20th. After dinner the boys spent the afternoon building a large swimming raft. In the evening four baseball teams were organized, and there is brisk competition for the championship. Two games are played each evening and all teams are playing good ball. After the games were over the boys gathered around a large campfire and made their plans for the next two weeks. Tuesday afternoon a baseball team went to Madoc to play the High School team there and were badly defeated by a score of 13 to 2.

Wednesday afternoon the boys were allowed to go to Madoc, and on their return completed the raft and built a large diving tower on top of it..

The masons are through building the fireplace and chimney in the dining hall and the carpenter expects to be through in a few days.

NOTES ON WEDNESDAY'S GAME

It would be useless to describe the actions of each individual player. The score shows that.

The Belleville fans were present in large numbers and gave vent to their feelings often and loudly.

During the game Weir and Ross collided and both were hurt, Ross being unable to play the last inning.

The Port Hope crowd are a heartless bunch. They'd cheer if a man broke his neck. You should have heard them when Ross hurt himself.

Freddy and Peeney were in great shape, no bases being stolen on Peeney and Freddy having ten strike-outs.

It seemed as if there was a contest between a couple of players to see who could bring in the most runs.

Wilson is an impartial umpire; a few ticklish decisions he gave didn't seem to satisfy the crowd—but it's all in the game.

The way Weir snaps them up is a wonder, while Casey making a hundred yards dash into field and catching the ball is still as good.

Young Peeney on first is still in the game, and believe me, very few get by him.

Williams on second is the coming man, his batting and fielding being A1.

Frank Goyer never loses his old whip down to first and the way he swats the old pill is a terror.

Meagher and Ross in the garden let nothing past them, catching flies with the greatest of ease.

Drury Cabinet

office that they had spent not only the extra five million dollars income collected during the year, but had actually spent two of the five million dollars left them in the bank as well, and still had a deficit of eight hundred thousand dollars. In other words, the Drury economists used seven million dollars more than had ever been used by any other government to run the business of the province for one year and even then were eight hundred thousand dollars behind. The Prime Minister is having a busy time this summer trying to explain, and evade, and dodge these figures, but there is no escape from the truth.

Another great reform was to be brought about in the Drury regime. The number of civil servants had grown out of all proportion to requirements of the province, according to Mr. Drury, and the cost was excessive. The service was congested with political friends of the old parties. There must be a reduction in number and cutting down the cost of the service.

How did Mr. Drury keep his pledge?

In answer to a question the Prime Minister was forced to admit on the floor of the House that during the first year in office there had been some five hundred additions to the civil service, with the consequent increase of cost of administration to the public.

A favorite theme of Mr. Drury was his abhorrence of the evils of patronage, and repeatedly he solemnly pledged himself to wipe out the last vestige of this vicious system. What is his record on the patronage question?

Mr. J. B. Clark was elected member for East Kent; he resigned to give his seat to Mr. Doherty. He was afterwards appointed Registrar for the County of Kent. W. D. Gregory arranged a seat for the Prime Minister in Halton. Mr. Gregory was made chairman of the Public Service Commission. Mr. Hellyer gave up his seat in East Wellington to Mr. Raney; subsequently he is appointed to a commission. If either of the old parties had manipulated these matters Mr. Drury would have denounced each one of them as corrupt patronage. We are assured, however, by the Prime Minister that in these instances the sacrifice was made without any hope of reward and was entirely public spirited unselfishness on the part of these gentlemen, but the reward was forthcoming just the same.

Eleven Conservatives in Alberta Fight

PROVINCIAL ELECTION ON 18TH NOT MANY ARE FARMER CANDIDATES

Calgary, Alta., July 7.—The Conservatives have now eleven candidates in the field for election on July 18 Five of these are in Edmonton, five in Calgary and one in Stony Plain. Labor candidates in the field number nine up to now, and it is not expected there will be any more. Three are in Calgary, three in Edmonton, one in Medicine Hat, one in Lethbridge and one in Rocky Mountain. These are straight in Labor nominations. A Solialist is in the field in Calgary.

SOME TRAMPER

Prince Rupert, B. C., July 7.—A longing for the sea caused John Davidson, a Finnish ex-sailor, to set out on a tramp to the Pacific Coast from Jasper, Alta., equipped only with a sack of salt, a packet of matches and two one-pound plugs of tobacco. He became lost and wandered around for five months, according to his story to the local police who picked him up near here recently. He had lost all sense of direction and was heading back in-land at the time.

Davidson's story smacks of the miraculous. He says he never begged a meal nor slept under cover since leaving Jasper in midwinter. For the last eleven days of his journey he subsisted on twigs unripe berries and grass. His pdecious tobacco giving out long before, he used Skeena River Moss.

Once, near an old construction camp, he found some tinned milk of the vintage of 1912. When he came into the mountains he became exhausted and fainted from hunger. With a heavy pocket knife, his only weapon, he killed a porcupine, eating the flesh raw, he said. Later he was able to vary his menu when he came on a frog pond.

ARRANGEMENTS CONCLUDED

Regina, Sask., July 7.—Arrangements have been concluded with the British government for the admission of Saskatchewan barristers to the standing solicitors in England on complying with the same requirements as exist in Saskatchewan, according to an announcement made by the Benchers' Association. In consequence the rules of the new order-in-council which it is expected will be put through in the near future.

D. Murray's Canadian rink won the Association Trophy at Niagara-on-the-Lake.

First state ball since 1914 held at Buckingham Palace.

One thousand Canadians are attending the C. E. convention at New York.

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

For The Humane Society

D.B.S.—I have lately seen an unusual number of cases of thoughtless (we prefer to think of it as thoughtless) cruelty to horses, caused by that instrument of torture, the tight check rein. During these days of intense heat, the lot of the horze is surely hard enough to bear without unnecessarily adding to it. Drivers, both men and women, under an awning or in the shade of an umbrella, will sit complacently driving a sweating and jaded horse, which, even to the most casual observer, is suffering intensely the tortures of an unnaturally strained, cramped and aching neck; the rein pressing directly on the brain. Just watch a horse wearing one of these devices, vainly trying to relieve its aching neck by twisting its head, first to one side, then to the other, and note the look of dumb suffering in its eyes.

An Alert Officer

W.T.R.—It has been noticed with great pleasure and rejoicing that a ladder is now in position at the east end of the Government Dock for the swimmers who frequent this portion of the Bay during the hot summer months and especially during this intense heat now prevalent. This is through the alertness of Mr. B. L. Hyman, Chairman of the Harbor Commissioners, who saw the need of such a convenience was very great indeed, and acted promptly, with the above result, which is a great improvement and comfort.

Cooling Off Little Tots

U.S.—It seems when our attention is directed to them that quite a few of our well-known and popular citizens are the possessors of great hearts and well-filled pockets, which they are not afraid to empty in the cause of the lonely little tots of our city. One instance worthy of mention in our now popular column for things you and I have noticed along life's pathway is the following—A well-known citizen on a recent boiling hot evening loaded eight tired and warm kiddies into his car and took them over to Zwick's Island where they enjoyed to the limit the joys of the cooling water. This citizen also remained on guard during the time the youngsters were in the water to see that no accidents occurred, then brought them back once more to the city feeling much refreshed after their lovely dip in the waters of the Bay. I'm sure their benefactor felt as much refreshed as they, through being able to do a kindly act.

Kiddies and Ice Cream

T.G.R.—It was a delight to the eyes of those privileged to see what I saw, and that was Mr. Geo. Evans, one of our well-known and large hearted citizens, over at Zwicks' Island on Wednesday evening freely distributing ice cream to the children. It did not make a particle of difference if the child happened to own wealthy parents or poor ones, they had the pleasure of filling their little tummies with the delicious, cooling treat provided by Mr. Evans. What joy was given by the kind thoughtfulness of this citizen, perhaps you or I, Mr. Reader, could be the dispenser of much happiness to the wee tots if we would just ruffle up that grey matter which has lain dormant for so long now. Just try it and watch for results.

DID GERMANY WIN THE WAR?

Evidence multiplies, says the New York Times, that an old and distasteful question is to be revived in a form still more repellent. What if, after all, it was Germany that won the war? Even at the peace conference, as Mr. Baruch records in his volume, it was foreseen that if the supposed loser were to buckle down and pay anything like the justly chargeable indemnity she would emerge from the task trained like an athlete for commercial conquest. Within a few years thereafter she would be more than ever able to achieve the commercial supremacy of the world which her arrogant rulers threw away in 1914.

This view assumes that the Allied Powers would fall asleep at the switch. But is not that, more or less, what they have done, and are doing? According to the best available advices, the miners' strike in England, with all its inconveniences to British trade, was a repercussion, which should have been foreseen, of the delivery of German coal to France. Coming at a time of declining industry, the coal was not requisite for French manufacturers and was thrown on the markets of the world. The result was a displacing of English coal which rendered the English mines unprofitable. A shrewd government threw back the mines to the owners, and they were not able to meet expenses without a severe reduction of wages. This is only one of a number of foreseeable repercussions that were not foreseen.

Our cable despatch from Zurich has painted the other side of the shield. In Germany 450 new commercial companies were formed last year, with a total share capital of nearly 1,500,000,000 marks, and old companies increased their capital by a total of 6,741,000,000 marks. In competition for an Italian contract, a German firm underbid the lowest Swiss estimate by one-half, and this difference, as a Swiss commission declares, is characteristic of German production in general, even when Germany establishes factories in Switzerland. The commission predicts that German trade with Europe and the United States will soon approach what it was before the war.

All this chimes in with what General Smuts said lately in London. "The greatest military empire that ever existed in history" is "reduced to a peace establishment of 100,000 men," whereas her rivals still stagger beneath the burden of armaments the need of which has largely disappeared. If this were to continue, "we should be severely handicapped and in the end we should have the fruits of victory lost to us by our post-war policy." Who was it really that triumphed over the Kaiser—they who promised themselves that they would gayly hang him, or Germany, that sheds a sentimental tear, perhaps, but has already emerged as a republic, self-determined, sober, intelligent, hard working, and already in the way to prosperity through peace?

TIN CAN TOURISTS ARE WELCOMED TO FLORIDA.

For many years the "tin can tourists," so-called, were a standing joke in Florida, but the tune has changed. Now the cities are bidding for the campers and tin can tourists and are encouraging their coming in every way possible.

Nearly a hundred cities and towns in Florida have established free motor car camps for touring parties, many of them providing electric lights, sewerage and other conveniences, and while they may not receive as much from this class as they do from hotel guests, they have come to a realization of the fact that the campers and the tin can tourists are indefatigable advertisers and they never tire of telling of the glories of Florida and the good times they had in this State and especially they tell of the places that treated them the best and showed them some special attention.

THE FUTURE OF PALESTINE
London Daily Chronicle

Jew and Arab can in reality be of great service to one another, and every pains should be taken to help them towards a spirit of co-operation. From the narrower standpoint of the British Empire's interests Palestine, through its nearness to the Suez Canal and the Red Sea, is the more important area. The Jews can develop it as a prosperous and self-defending country; and nobody else can.

UNCLE SAM'S SHAME
Chicago Tribune

The blackest stain on America today is the hideous neglect of disabled soldiers. These poor, helpless beings suffer tortures while bureaucrats and political appointees wrangle over the new form of political patronage they furnish. The victims have not dared to tell the truth to the public for fear of offending the officials in whose hands they lie. The truth being known, the remedy will not be delayed.

THE VALUE OF COMMUNITY SINGING
Minneapolis Daily News

The better you know your neighbors and the better they know you, the less likelihood will there be that either will believe evil of the other. Mutual acquaintance means mutual understanding, and mutual understanding means mutual co-operation. As President Harding says in his letter to Minneapolis park singers, "the neighborhood is the original source of friendliness, mutual understanding and co-operation" and that sort of relationship springing from the community co-operation in singing will inevitably lead on to co-operation in larger things.

HEAT BECOMING SERIOUS

Belleville and district in common with most of Ontario and eastern Canada has been sweltering under the terrific heat of the last two weeks. Thermometers are registering from 95 to 100 mark every day. The crops are suffering. Hay is light. Oats are short straw and only about half filled. Berries are cooking on the vines, and tomatoes and potatoes badly need moisture. Peas are ripening fast, so that canning factories will have a short output of green peas. Last night was the warmest night of all the thermometer registering 77 as the minimum. During yesterday and up to noon today 95 and 100 was the maximum.

Prince Rupert, B. C., July 7.—A baby seal, following its rescue from a vicious attack by four eagles, adopted its rescuers, Captain J. McGregor, V.C., and his three companions. On the way to Prince Bupert the seal was put overboard, as it was thought that was where it belonged. But the little fellow thought otherwise and followed the boat right into port. It is now a very indulged pet.

Called by Death

GRACE E. DODDS

After a brief illness of two days, Mrs. Grace Emiline Dodds, wife of Mr. Joshua Dodds, former bay bridge lessee, passed away this morning, at the family residence, Mountain View, P. E. County. Deceased was a daughter of Mr. J. Smith of Northbrook, where she was born 27 years ago, and had lived in Prince Edward County for the past six years. Mrs. Dodds was a member of the Methodist church, and a lady much respected. In addition to the husband, an infant son, John Alexander, survives, also two brothers and two sisters.

INTOXICATION FROM DRINKING STRONG TEA

It may not be generally known that next to water tea is the beverage most widely used the world over. In 1918 161,000,000 pounds was imported into the United States, making a pound and a half for every person, and as this is an increase of 40 per cent. over the importation of 1913 it is evident that the use of tea in the United States is increasing rapidly.

Acute cases of tea poisoning, writes Dr. M A. Starr in the Medical Record, are extremely rare. "I can find only one acute poisoning in recent literature. The following is an example of less acute poisoning and makes an interesting story!

"Some time ago the captain of a college football team brought three members of the team to me in a state of great nervousness. These young men were well nourished—each weighed nearly 200 pounds—but were suffering from marked tremor of the hands, restlessness, insomnia, loss of appetite, indigestion in spite of every careful and rigid diet of the training table, and nervous apprehension and depression of spirits.

"They had been treated for two weeks for indigestion by tonics containing strychnine, and the captain, having looked at the prescriptions, thought they were being poisoned by strychnine purposely given by the physician, who was an alumnus of a rival college about to play the team.

"On careful investigation I found that the athletic trainer had been giving the team large doses of tea and they were suffering from tea poisoning.

"I subsequently learned that it has been the custom of athletic trainers in many colleges to give strong tea before contests in tennis or ball or rowing.

It is well known that Swiss Alpine guides carry tea and urge its use in climbing mountains.

During the first hour after an appreciable dose of strong tea there is a marked increase in muscular power and endurance. This began about twenty minutes after the tea was taken, reached its maximum in an hour, and lasted several hours. It would be foolish to assert that this is in any way harmful in moderation. But an occasional case of tea intoxication may occur.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

WOMAN'S CRAVING FOR EXCITEMENT THEME OF "THE RESTLESS SEX"

The reasons for Robert W. Chambers popularity as a writer of brilliant society stories are demonstrated anew in the picture version of "The Restless Sex" which came to Griffin's last evening for a three nights run, with a matinee Saturday. Pretty Marion Davies is the star. The lively romance and elaborately artistic backgrounds make the production unusually pleasing.

"The Restless Sex" is of course, the feminine, and the story centres around Stephanie Cleland, a society girl with an inborn craving for excitement and ambition to experience life in the full. She is the adopted daughter of John Cleland, a millionaire, and it comes as a shock to her at the latter's death to learn that his son, Jim, her lifelong companion, is not her real brother. Following a midnight adventure at a roadhouse, Stephanie is led into an unfortunate marriage and subsequent unhappiness, how she extricates herself from this alliance, and wins complete happiness to reveal here would spoil the spectators enjoyment of the photodrama. Ralph Kellard and Carlyle Blackwell are prominent in the cast supporting Miss Davies. It is a Paramount-Artcraft picture.

Tom Moore in an entertaining photoplay "Adventure at Briarcliffe", a interesting Fox News Reel, and Vod Vil-Movies with a very talented and varied vaudeville bill preceded the feature offering.

CARUSO'S OLD VOICE GONE

New York, July 6.—That Enrico Caruso, who has delighted Metropolitan Opera audiences for eighteen seasons will not sing again before the American public in his old voice was the news brought from Italy today by Captain Charles Anthony Fulton, of the U.S.A. army intelligence service, who arrived from Naples on the liner President Wilson. Captain Fulton, who was stationed at Sorrento for the summer, said that he saw Caruso in Naples, and that he seemed in very poor health. The tenor expressed his belief to the army officer that he would never again sing as heretofore, and almost broke down as he said it, Captain Fulton added. Captain Ettore, commander of the Presidente Wilson, said that opinions throughout Italy in musical circles were pessimistic about Caruso recovering his voice.

The famous tenor did not sing at the ship's concert on the eastward voyage as had been reported, but his voice poured forth from a phonograph while he remained in his suite on the promenade deck. Caruso had been asked to sing because it was an Italian holiday, but the doctor said his health had not sufficiently recovered. During his long career in grand opera Caruso has rarely sung at concerts given on board ship, but he has always given instead a substantial cheque to the Seamen's Widows' and Orphans' Fund, as he did on his last voyage across in the Presidente Wilson.

In a statement given out before Caruso sailed for Italy, Mr. Catti-Casazza, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company said: "Doubtless Enrico Caruso, the great Italian tenor, will return to the Metropolitan next season in his old form." No one connected with the management of the company could be located today.

THE SUBSTITUTE

(Copyright, 1903)

"Oh, I don't know why the boy should go about 'fore that gang down thar with his feelin's on exhibition, an' even ef it's jest a cut an' dried business deal on his part it will end a sight better, I bound you, than a lots o' slobberin' love affairs that run dry a month after the knot's tried. But I don't somehow think Bob an' his gal will end up bad. Thar's a sunny, cheerful way o' lookin' out fer yourself, an' them two young uns may jest laugh the'r way into happiness an' tote it with 'em through a long, successful life. I hope so. I don't begrudge 'em anything they've got or may accumulate. I met that gal once at the school exhibition an' tuck a likin' to her. She looks like she's been well raised. I drapped my handkerchief, and she scrambled to pick it up, an' when I said, 'Thank you,' she said, 'Yo're welcome, ma'am,' an' didn't giggle like some do when they say anything unusual."

CHAPTER XXI.

GEORGE was now Hillyer's partner in business. The winter passed, and a bright spring dawned. The Cranstons had spent the Christmas holidays in Virginia visiting relatives and were back again at Darley that the major might superintend the planting on his farms in the vicinity and recuperate his failing health.

It was the first Sunday morning after their return. Hillyer was having a confidential talk with his wife in the sitting room; George was smoking on the veranda.

"Yes, I seed he was bothered," the old man was saying, "an' havin' heard the governor was expected on the 6 o'clock train this evenin', an' knowin' George had an engagement to call on Miss Lydia tonight I put two an' two together an' got at what ailed 'im. Me an' him talks pretty confidential sometimes, an' I axed 'im ef that wasn't what he was thinkin' about, an' he admitted that it was an' openly axed my advice as to what he ort to do under the circumstances. I told 'im I'd study over it an' let 'im know later."

"Why, tell the boy to go on, governor or no governor," said Mrs. Hillyer. "He's got as much right to call tonight as any night. Huh, I say!"

"That's about the way I put it up," said the merchant in a tone expressive of considerable relief, and he went out to George.

"I look at it this a-way, George," he began, leaning on the banisters and crossing his fat feet. "Thar railly hain't but one way a gentleman could act under them circumstances. You see, she hain't never released you from yore engagement, an' fer you to presume that you was out of the game jest beca'se you'd heard from Mrs. Dugan an' her kind that another feller was due would make you seem sorter green. No; as long as Miss Lydia hain't axed you to excuse 'er thar hain't but one thing fer you to do, an' that is to go, an' when you git thar don't you let Telfare root you out, nother. Ef he is the governor, I'd have my rights."

"Oh, I had decided to go," George returned quietly, "but I feel that it may be unpleasant. I met him once since I was introduced to him, and he looked mad enough to bite my head off. I happened to be leaving the major's just as he was coming in, and we passed on the walk. He scarcely nodded."

"Well, you bet I'd go," said Hillyer, and he went to his room to prepare for church.

The following evening was a pleasant one, and as George entered the gate at the Cranstons' and started up the walk he saw Governor Telfare walking to and fro on the grass near the house smoking a cigar. Hearing the latch of the gate click as George closed it, Telfare paused, stared at George for an instant and then came toward him, meeting him when he was half way between the gate and the steps of the veranda.

"I want to speak to you, Buckley," he said coldly. "Let's walk over to that summer house."

"Very well," and George and he moved across the grass and entered the nearest compartment of the vine grown building. The governor seated himself on one of the benches and nervously puffed at his cigar, round flashes of red light showing intermittent glimpses of his dark, cruel face. George read it intuitively and was prepared for what was coming. His young blood was already at a boiling point. Indeed, the governor's insolent manner of addressing him had been in itself an insult.

"I simply want to say to you, Buckley," Telfare said, with a sneer, "that you and I cannot visit under the same roof."

"Ah, that's bad!" retorted the younger man, his fierce stare bearing down defiantly on his antagonist through the half darkness. "I'm sure I shall miss you. Going abroad?"

Telfare looked at him in astonishment. It was as if he had not dreamed that Buckley would dare to make anything but the most civil, even a humble, reply, considering his power and what he intended to propose.

"You know what I mean," said the governor, waxing more angry. "You know well enough why I will not sit as an equal in the same drawing room with you. You know what you are."

"My knowledge also extends to some most contemptible creatures, Governor Telfare—to an occasional meeting, at least, with one man, whom I certainly would consider beneath notice if I did not meet him under the roof of most respectable, if blind, people."

Telfare smothered an oath and stood up, his short figure appearing dwarfed beside the athletic young giant.

"You say this to me?" he gasped. "To me?"

"Oh, no; I didn't intend it for you," said George. "How could I say such thing to his excellency the governor of Georgia?"

In the deep silence that followed George could distinctly hear Telfare's violent panting.

"I've got a proposition to make to you," the governor gasped in a final effort at calmness, as he sank to his seat. "I'm in the position to do you a favor—to grant something that any man, situated as you are, would be glad to accept. But we have begun wrong. Perhaps I ought not to have been so outspoken, but seeing you here suddenly provoked me. Sit down a minute and let's plainly understand each other."

"I think, myself, that we have begun wrong," said Buckley, who remained standing. He placed one of his feet on the bench beside the governor and leaned over him. "At any rate, I am wrong now, for I ought to slap your face. And I want to say to you I would do it but for the respect I have for the people you are visiting; that's all that saves you, sir. I've met contemptible, cowardly curs before, but you"—

"You can say what you wish to me," Telfare panted. "I shall not resent it. Men of my class do not fight men of yours. You can't insult me, Buckley. What you say does not affect me in the slightest. Men of honor"—

"You have no honor to lean on," burst from Buckley's lips. "No man has honor who deliberately insults a man who is as helpless to resent it as I am in this case. You would strike a woman. You are a cur, Telfare!"

Telfare was panting again, but his eyes fell beneath George's fierce stare. It looked as if he were actually afraid Buckley might suddenly strike him in the face.

Struggle in Congress in Full Swing

Washington, July 9.—(By Canadian Press)—The struggle in Congress over the permanent tariff bill is now in full swing. Practically it was begun in the House last week when Chairman Fordney of the Ways and Means Committee introduced the new bill, but certain formalities which had to be gone through with delayed actual consideration of the measure until this week.

For the next three months, the United States will have a daily diet of tariff talk. Indications are the measure cannot pass both houses and be signed by the President until late September or early October. The new bill is surcharged with political possibilities, because it will defeat the party in power, if it works out badly in practice and, as to its commercial and industrial possibilities, it is a good deal of a conjecture as to what will result from it in view of the unsettled situation in Europe and the uncertainty what the competition of foreign countries will be able to effect.

Some striking stories are afloat that German manufacturers are laying down certain of their products in this country at prices so low that even the proposed high tariff rates will not bar them out. It is not easy to say just how much of truth there is in such reports. It need not be said that the advocates of high tariff have not been slow to circulate them.

The Political Danger

Broadly speaking the political danger to the Republican party and the Harding administration in the new bill is that it will cause such an increase in living costs in the cities as to arouse a wave of feeling which will be expressed in the elections for Congress next year. Democratic leaders, including former Governor Cox, democratic candidate for president last fall, are planning to make the utmost of any false steps of the Republicans on tariff, as well as taxation.

From the standpoint of the relations between the U. S. and Canada, the pending bill will have unusual interest. The high tariff elements in Congress would raise a high barrier against Canada, just as against other countries. On the other hand, the feeling in congress is more pronounced than ever before that trade between the two countries ought to be promoted as much as possible and that trade barriers should be erected just as little as possible. This sentiment will be much heard in the debate and in the consideration of particular schedules.

It looks now as if Canadian lumber would be admitted free. It is doubtful if either house on a 2test vote would stand for a tariff on lumber. The proposition of the House bill to make it optional with the President whether to impose a duty on lumber will encounter opposition but even if it is retained it is not expected that the President will impose a duty.

The wheat duty of 25 cents per bushel in the new bill is one of the features so far as concerns importations from Canada. The present emergency tariff is 25 cents. This is looked on by some Republicans and most Democrats as being too high. Efforts will doubtless be made on the floor to reduce the rate, but it is doubtful if they succeed for the agricultural group will not consent to any lowering of it.

The present reign of high railroad freight rates in the U. S. has a distinct bearing on the tariff and importations. In many cases, freight rates are so high that importations cannot be successful except in the case of imports sold in cities close to the border. U. S. manufacturers and producers have not only the protection of high tariffs, according to the new bill, but the protection of extremely high railroad rates. It does not appear, however, the high railroad rates have been taken into account by the Ways and Means Committee.

MAY EXPORT SKELETON

Washington, July 8-(By Canadian Press)-The Canadian who has a skeleton in his closet and wishes to export it will not be prevented from doing so by the new U S., tariff bill.

Paragraph 1651 of the new U.S. tariff measure places skeletons in the free list. In putting skeletons on the free list the ways and means committee had in mind also other anatomical specimens. Turning from the grave to the gay, it is discovered that the tariff on poker chips has been reduced 10 per cent.

Woman Fights Man Two Hours

YOUNG SCHOOL TEACHER BATTLES TO SAVE SELF AND FAINTING SISTER

St. Phillippe, Que., July 7.—Struggling for two hours on Tuesday with a half-crazed human beast, her clothes torn to shreds and her sister in a deep faint a few feet away and with no help in sight, Florida Savage, 25, a school teacher at St. Cloud, is to-day suffering from severe shock at the home of her father, the Grand Trunk station agent at St. Phillippe.

Adelard Poelander, 19, is at present in jail at St. Johns, awaiting enquete next Monday on a charge of assault against the two girls.

Miss Savage and her sister, Isolde, were walking the tracks toward St. Cloud to fetch some clothes from the school where the former is a teacher, when a man suddenly appeared, flourishing a knife. The younger sister, Isolde screamed and ran away, but had not gone far ere she fell unconscious. The man then grasped Miss Savage and she fought him off for two hours under the blazing sun until at last he gave up and made his escape.

She then went to the assistance of her sister, revived her, and the two made their way to the nearest house, where their father was notified of the outrage.

Mr. Savage got into communication with Chief of Provincial Police Lorrain, who told him to organize a search party and arrest the man. After a long search Poelander was located in a field and could not give a satisfactory account of himself. He was brought to St. Johns, where Miss Savage identified him as her assailant.

Feeling is running high in this district in connection with the affair.

Haze in Sky Troubles N.Y.

BLAMES ONTARIO FOREST FIRES FOR PECULIARITY OF ATMOSPHERE

New York, July 9.—Unusual atmospheric conditions gave New York another day of stifling heat, in which temperature and humidity competed to keep uncomfortable millions in their grasp. The mercury halted its climb at 86, and while there the humidity registered 65 per cent. This figure for humidity in conjunction with high temperature was said at the local weather bureau to have been the worst this summer.

The day's discomfort was heightened by the peculiarity of the sky, which, although cloudless, was overcast by a haze, partially obscuring the sun and giving it the appearance of being viewed through smoked glass. Weather bureau officials suggested this may have been due to the forest fires in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, as smoke from such fires has been known to travel five hundred miles.

Several prostrations were reported by the police. Transportation lines to the seashore were jammed in the search for relief.

Quebec Threatened by Caterpillar Pest

NOW DESTROYING FORESTS OF N.B. AND THE NORTHERN STATES

Quebec, July 8.—The invasion of caterpillars, which are now destroying some of the forests of New Brunswick, Vermont and Maine is becoming imminent. The intending visitors are about thirty miles from the boundary, according to George Maheux, official entomologist of the Provincial Department of Agriculture, and means are being taken to prevent their entrance to this province.

Predatory insects which destroy the caterpillars are now being distributed at the boundary line and with the help of the public it is hoped that they will not reach here.

According to the same officials, orchards and gardens are at present menaced by the resident caterpillars, which have greatly developed on account of the dry weather and all possible means should be taken to prevent their spreading.

-Costly fire at Toronto Jail Farm caused by a lightning bolt. Loss twenty thousand, two prisoners escape.

Good Apple Crop Likely in Canada

WILL BE BETTER THAN LAST YEARS' EXCEPT IN ONTARIO

Ottawa, July 7.—Reports from Canada's six apple-growing provinces point to a crop of this staple fruit generally in excess of last year's. There was a very heavy "drop" in June, however, which, if it continues much longer, will materially reduce the prospects.

According to the July fruit and vegetable crop to the Department of Agriculture, British Columbia orchards, as well as those in New Brunswick, and Quebec, offer promise for a 10 per cent. increase over 1920 Ontario prospects are for a 20 per cent. reduction. Spits, Baldwins, MacIntoshes and Russets, heavy, but Ben Davis light, Prince Edward Island expects a big crop of all varieties. In Nova Scotia dry weather and a heavy drop reduced the outlook. Baldwins and Kings are set heavy, and a total crop is expected of some 10 per cent. in excess of last year's.

British Columbia expects a fair to good crop of peaches, but Ontario only looks for 35 per cent. everage. Yellow St. John's best, Elbertas and Crawfords light.

Plums promise well in Quebec, but Ontaria and Nova Scotia will probably produce only a 50 per cent. crop. In British Columbia a fair to good crop is anticipated.

Pears in Ontario and Nova Scotia also promise a 50 per cent. crop, while the prospects in British Columbia are generally good.

ENGLISH FRUIT CROP PROSPECTS

Apples.—There has been a heavy drop on account of the prolonged period of drought which still continues, and if no change takes place in this connection the crop may be considerably diminished. Present indications, however, are still for a crop above the average. The south eastern counties, the most important divisions, from a competitive standpoint, report present apple prospects satisfactory. The west midland counties, next in importance, report apples generally above average, though much fruit has fallen owing to drought and cold winds. The south western counties report that the fruit has set well and a heavy crop is expected. Other sections, much less in importance, average to good crops, with some districts below average as a result of drought.

Pears and Plums.—Crops generally very light on account of early frosts and no more than a quarter of a crop hoped for.

Berries.— Strawberries have been seriously affected by the drought, which will also shorten the season. Crops are generally below the average. It is, perhaps, fortunate that it is so as jam manufacturers on account of the general trade depression are not buying their usual quantities. Raspberries will also be affected, though to a lesser estent by the drop. Currants vary from a fair crop to one considerably below the average as a result of drought and frost.

Drowning Accident at Trenton

A YOUNG FISHERMAN FALLS FROM DOCK, LOSING HIS LIFE

A drowning accident occurred at Trenton on Wednesday when Augustine Scaletta, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Scaletta, lost his life. The victim who was 10 years and 10 months old, went fishing on Col. Bywater's dock, just below the swing bridge. He had caught a sun fish as is evident from the pole found on the dock. A small boy had seen him fall in, but was scarcely credited by the passers by. At 4 p.m. it was reported to the police. Grappling irons were used and finally a boy named Cox located the body by diving. The body had been caught in a cable and was recovered about 8 p.m.

How The Weather Man is Ruling

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press, Limited

Toronto, July 8.—The heat wave still continues and no immediate sign of relief is in sight, although thunder storms are forecasted by the weather man for some districts. He fails, however, to specify how, when or where, the heavens will let loose the floodgates and only a few of the specially favored districts will benefit.

At nine o'clock this morning the thermometer registered 83 degrees, a single point higher than the same time yesterday. The highest temperature yesterday was 97, the humidity this morning holds at 78, unchanged from yesterday. The official forecast from the Observatory reads: "Moderate Southerly to Westerly winds; thunderstorms in many places but mostly fair."

Business at a Standstill in Constantinople

Constantinople, July 8.—Business is at a standstill here owing to uncertainties of the Russian and Turkish political situations. Normally the importing and exporting centre for the Near and Middle East and partially for the Balkans, this city is now a commercial islet, its warehouses filled with merchandise of every description for which there is no market.

Everybody owes everybody else, with nobody paying bills. A financial crash would have come months ago but for the fact that no firm can afford to demand payments of its bills. To do so would throw the debtor into bankruptcy, force more unsaleable goods on the market at sacrifice prices, and the firm forcing payment would in turn be called on to pay bills which, under present conditions, it cannot meet.

There is an increasing number of trading ships going to South Russian ports, mostly British, Greek and Italian. To date, no American ship has gone, partly because of the lack of trade and, in the case of Shipping Board vessels, the decision of the management not to permit any of its ships to touch Bolshevik ports.

Ventures Are Failures

These vessels that do go to Black Sea ports of Russia claim the ventures are failures, yet keep on going, apparently finding enough business to pay ship expenses.

Other than American tobacco buyers, many merchants find the risks of trading so great, partly because of fluctuating exchanges, that they prefer to speculate in axchange. They claim the risks are smaller. Banking business for the present consists in good part of such speculations on the part of customers.

In the face of such a situation, Constantinople remains the dearest of world capitals, from the point of view of living. Retailers of foods and clothing have formed practically a trust to keep up prices. They claim they bought their goods at high prices and must sell them so. As there is no such thing as price controls or public opinion here, retailers are permitted to gouge the refugee population. at will.

American wholesalers in many cases have preferred to take their losses on merchandise sent here on consignment and reship to the United States. Other wholesalers attempted to get rid of stocks locally by organizing refugee Russians into street vendors of articles like tea and chocolate and small drygoods, but the plan hasn't worked well because the vendors, in many instances, failed to make returns.

Business is expected to improve when such a government is established in Russia that it can obtain longtime credits.

THREE YEAR OLD GIRL A WEEK IN BUSH

Regina, Sask., July 7.—Weak and exhausted, but still alive, three-year-old Emma Kotsie, of the Hazlewood district, who was believed to have been shot and killed by her 13-year-old brother, Joe, was yesterday found alive by neighbors, lying in the bush 100 yards from her home. She is believed to have been wandering in the bush since last Thursday. After her disappearance, her brother told the police officers he had killed her and thrown her body in a slough.

Apple Shippers Hold Convention

NEW YORK INTERESTS FIX RATES ON CANADIAN STEAMSHIPS

Presque-Isle Point, July 7th.—The Ontario Apple Shippers Convention here yesterday was one of the largest gatherings in the history of the organization. Representatives of all the transportation companies, interested in the apple traffic, both railways and steamship, were present. At the morning session the officers for the ensuing year were elected, Mr. R. J. Graham, Belleville, President; W. J. Bragg, M.P.P., Bowmanville, Vice-President; Mr. R. B. Scripture, of Brighton, Secretary; and Mr. Montgomery, M.P.P., Brighton, Treasurer.

The afternoon session was particularly interesting. The President, on behalf of the shipper's pressed the steamship representatives for an ocean freight rate not exceeding $1.25 per barrel, instead of the prospective rate of $1.75. One after another of the officials assured the Convention that they would use the best offices to secure a low rate. Amid good natured interruptions of "that means nothing" the President asked "who is here representing the Canadian Merchant Marine, and what are they going to do for us?" The representative replied that they had to retain fairly heavy taxes because the government vessels had cost three of four times more than they were now worth, and they had to make good on this large capital expenditure. After several interesting passages between the President and the representative of the Merchant Marine, the latter frankly admitted that the rates would be fixed by the New York Steamship Conference in a few weeks.

The Peace Question Predominates in British Gov't

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer,
Canadian Press, Limited.

London, July 9.—Premier Lloyd George will, it was authoritatively stated this afternoon, accept Eamonn de Valera's proposal of yesterday and meet the Republican leader to discuss a basis for a formal conference. The meeting will probably take place next week. The only thing remaining is the fixing of the date, which Mr. Lloyd George will do in his reply to Mr. de Valera's letter.

The Government is subordinating all other problems of state to the question of Irish peace, and is bending every effort towards preparation for the meeting.

Holyhead, Wales, July 9.—The Earl of Middleton, one of the South Irish Unionist leaders who participated in yesterday's conference at Dublin, landed here this morning on his way to London. He expressed the belief that the terms of Eamonn de Valera's letter to Premier Lloyd George accepting the suggestion of a conference would be acceptable to the Prime Minister. Earl Middleton added that he and his colleagues had achieved their object and that further progress toward peace in Ireland was the question to be discussed by Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. de Valera.

Earl Middleton, South Irish Unionist leader, reached London this morning after having travelled nearly all night from Dublin, and was almost immediately received in audience by King George. It is understood that he reported to the King details of yesterday's momentous conference at Dublin, at which a truce in Ireland was arranged and steps were taken to bring together Eamonn de Valera and Prime Minister Lloyd George.

Military Patrols Withdrawn in Dublin

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer

London, July 9.—Military patrols were withdrawn from the streets of Dublin last evening, says a Central News despatch from that City. Many of the police auxiliaries were walking the streets leisurely, fraternizing with civilians and discussing the prospects of peace in Ireland. Truce between Sinn Fein and Crown forces may, therefore, be said to be already begun, although the time for commencing it officially has been set for Monday noon.

It is understood the armistice will be signed by Sir Nevil Macready and Michael Collins, commander of the Irish Republican army.

Plans Crusade in all Countries

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTION ADOPTS WORLD POLICY

New York, July 7.—Determination of a world policy for the Christian Endeavor was begun to-day by the sixth world's Christian Endeavor convention. Conferences were held and plans made for extending the crusade in behalf of Christianity in all countries

Word was received from Russia that the Greek Church would welcome Christian Endeavor there. The people of Findland, Esthonia, Letvia, Germany, China, Mexico, South America and India, and elsewhere were also reported bidding for the help of the society.

Rev. Samuel M. Zwemer, of Cairo, Egypt, in an address to-night urged that a great evangelistic campaign be started at once to Christianize every Mohammedan and every section of the Moslem world.

Official convention records indicated to-night that the convention was the largest religious gathering ever held in this country, 16,000 delegates from all sections of the world being registered.

Two cities have entered the race for the site of the 1925 convention. They are Portland, Ore., and Desmoines, Iowa.

The large Canadian delegation to the World's Christian Endeavor Convention here has attracted a great deal of attention. The Canadians have been assigned a prominent position in a group at the front of the convention hall, where they can be indentified by the British flags.

The Manitoba delegation plans to put a float in the parade on Saturday. The Manitoba float will represent a western wheat field.

Aim to Develop Trent Waterway

Orillia, July 8.—Great enthusiasm marked the annual meeting of the Trent Waterway Development Association, which was held at the Orchard Point Inn here. The visiting delegates from the municipalities along the route to the number of thirty were entertained to a dinner at the Inn by the Orillia Board of Trade. Following this the business was transacted, the president, Mr. Gordon Fraser, of Barrie, presiding.

In his annual address, Mr. Fraser outlined the work of the association in making known the attractions of the Trent waterways as a summer tourist route. Short speeches were made by Senator Bennett, Mayor Anderson, Mr. Killaby, superintendent of the canal, and Mr. R. B. Rogers, under whom the lift locks were built, and who laid emphasis on its commercial possibilities. It was decided to prosecute the work of the association with even greater energy and to urge the Dominion Government to complete the locks on the Severn River.

The following officers were elected: Hon. Presidents: Senator Bennett, Sir Wm. Mackenzie, Sir Sam Hughes and Sir Edward Kemp; President, Gordon K. Fraser, Burleigh Falls; Vice-Presidents, Francis Kerr, Peterboro, and John C. Miller, Secretary Treasurer, Leon Fraser, Peterboro.

A board of directors, composed of representatives of each of the municipalities comprising the association also was appointed.

Sir Sam Has Another Blood Transfusion

Lindsay, July 8.—Friends of Sir Sam Hughes will be pleased to hear that his condition still shows signs of improvement. Tuesday afternoon he was strengthened with another transfusion of blood from Mr. Walker, a young Scotchman from the Ogilvie firm of Montreal. The transfusion was in charge of Drs. Cavan and Bruce, of Toronto, while Dr. McGibbon, M.P., of Bracebridge and Dr. Mc Alpine, of Lindsay, were also in attendance.

ANARCHIST NOW PRESIDENT

Cold Storage Plant For Apples

ONTARIO GOVERNMENT PURCHASES WAREHOUSE AT BRIGHTON FOR THIS PURPOSE

The Ontario government has purchased an apple storage warehouse at Brighton and is fitting it up for the pre-cooling and cold storage of fruit. Brighton is the centre of the largest apple producing district in Ontario. About 60 per cent. of the apples of the province are grown in Northumberland, Durham and Prince Edward counties. It is expected that the new cold storage will be ready for the fall apple crop. This is a move in the right direction as it will furnish facilities for the proper cooling of fruit before it is forwarded to the market. The weak point in the fruit growing business in Ontario is the want of proper marketing arrangements. Ontario apples beat the world for flavor. But more attention must be given to cooling, sorting and packing if the confidence of the buying public is to be secured. Unfortunately Ontario apples have not a good reputation in our Canadian west and it is only too true that this reputation has been fairly earned. Many carelessly packed apples of poor quality have been put on the market. The western buyer has learned that he can not depend on Ontario apples, therefore he takes no chances. He buys British Columbia apples, wrapped and boxed, and pays a good price for them. The Ontario government is moving on the right lines when it seeks to improve marketing conditions, for the apple growers of this district. The plant at Brighton is only a beginning, however. If the industry is to be really put on its feet, cooling plants should be erected in every apple producing centre.

DUMBELLS MAKE AGREEMENT

New York, July 8.—(By Canadian Press)—Members of the "Dumbells" organization of former Canadian soldiers have reached an agreement whereby no member of the cast is to leave the company for the next two years. New York theatrical producers were quick to note the ability displayed by the veterans in their presentation of "Biff, Bing, Bang" at the Ambassador theatre and nearly every one of the Soldier-Actors received an attractive offer to appear on the stage in the United States. To prevent the falling to pieces of the organization the members agreed to remain, although in two instances producers had announced that members of the company would appear in next season's Broadway production.

As a result of the decision the "Dumbells" will commence their world tour in Boston next fall with all the original members in the cast. They plan to appear in Canada and the U. S. during the winter and later tour the Orient, Australia and Europe.

An indication of the success of the entirely Canadian show in New York, is seen in the proffered engagements. Ross Hamilton has been offered a large salary to appear in Vaudeville as a female impersonator; "Red" Newman offered a prominent part in the Village Follies; Al Plunkett practically engaged as leading juvenile with the new Al Jolson Winter Garden Show; Jimmie Good approached by minstrel managers and Alan Murray, Jock Holland and Fred Fenwick given a bid for vaudeville. Alexander Pantages would place the whole show in vaudeville.

Ability of the war veterans in other lines has been recognized and Jack McLaren was offered a position with a prominent firm of artistic poster designers. Leonard Young has been offered a long term contract with a Fifth Avenue modiste to design ladies' gowns. Ted Charters has been making phonograph records.

REV. H. A. BERLIS GAVE BLOOD TO SAVE LIFE OF A CHILD

Toronto, July 8.—Rev. Henry A. Berlis, pastor of Rhodes Avenue Presbyterian Church, and a member of the Board of Education, yesterday saved the life of a child by volunteering for a transfusion of blood operation. The parents of the little one, who are members of his congregation, asked Rev. Mr. Berlis to drive them with the child, who was seriously ill, to the General Hospital On arriving, it was found that only a transfusion of blood could save the child. The father, a war veteran, offered himself, but he was pronounced physically unfit owing to the effects of war service and several operations, and Rev. Mr. Berlis promptly volunteered.

Will Protect Nameless Babes

ANOTHER of the age-old scandals that have discredited humanity is done away with by the new act for the protection of children of unmarried mothers which the Ontario Government passed last session.

That these little ones, through no fault of their own, should be bitterly neglected from the time of their birth, that they should become inmates of institutions for waifs or adopted at random, that the death rate amongst them should be twice as high as amongst ordinary children, has been considered by respectable generation after generation to be part of the inevitable punishment of wrong-doing.

That this is a practical if not enlightened generation is proved by this new act for the protection of illegitimate children.

Between 700 and 800 illegitimate children are born in Toronto every year. The figures for the Province of Ontario are unknown, but would doubtless be twice that number.

What happens to these children?

From the start they are at a disadvantage. They are not welcomed into the world. Most of them are born delicate. At the earliest possible moment, most of them are disposed of either to institutions or to foster-parents by the flimsiest sort of adoption.

They will undoubtedly grow up to be citizens. What kind of citizenus will they make?

This new act makes definite provision for the early protection of these children. A provincial officer is to be appointed to guard their interests.

The fundamental difficulty in the problem of illegitimate children is the responsibility of the father. A mother with a babe is a helpless woman. The mother of a fatherless babe is the most pitiful creature in life. That is why the illegitimate infant is delicate, why it so frequently dies in infancy, why it is hurriedly placed in an institution or is adopted and handed over to any person, however fit or unfit, who will take it.

This new act strikes at this very core of the problem. The Neighborhood Workers Association and the Social Service Council of Ontario, committees of which, working in co-operation, have for two years been studying the question, submitted to the Ontario Government facts and recommendations upon which the new act is very largely constructed.

F. N. Stapleford, general secretary of the Neighborhood Workers' Association, analyzes the new act as follows:

In less than 10 per cent. of the cases investigated by us did the father of the child make any contribution whatever towards its support.

"The great majority of the mothers of these children are not of the vicious type, but are unprotected girls, not living at home but in cheap boarding places.

"Mental weakness or defect is a strong factor in the situation. There are many girls, still children in mind, whom society has not yet learned to protect.

"In 1919, there were 429 illegitimate births officially registered in Toronto. This is well known to be an under-statement, for many more are not registered at all, while many are registered as legitimate. At a careful estimate, we have set the figure at 700 to 800 a year in Toronto.

"The new act," said Mr. Stapleford, "provides for a provincial officer who shall represent the state. He shall be notified of all illegitimate births. It shall be his duty to obtain all possible information with respect to every child born out of wedlock, and shall do everything necessary in the interests of the child.

"Under the old law, the child was debarred from all rights of inheritance, his mother had to initiate all proceedings in regard to securing support or proving paternity. The burden fell on the mother. And the mother usually being unable to bear it, the child became a charge on the community."

The procedure under the new act is as follows: An "order of affiliation" may be made upon the request of the mother, or of a friend or guardian of the child, by anyone who has supplied medical or other care to the mother or child, or by the provincial officer himself.

This affiliation order is secured through a judge. After the provincial officer has obtained information as to the paternity of the child, the judge hears in his chambers, the evidence as to paternity, and will determine whether the man said to be the father is in fact the father.

The father will then be ordered to pay the provincial officer the reasonable expenses for the maintenance and care, medical or otherwise, of the mother during the three months preceding the birth and for as long after the birth as the judge may decide; a sum of money weekly for the maintenance of the child until it is 16 years of age; or a lump sum in lieu of weekly payments; also funeral expenses of mother or child, in connection with the birth.

In case of the death of the father before the child is 16 years of age, his estate is held liable to the order of the judge. If the father is married and has legitimate children and the estate is small, the legitimate children have prior claim. But it is discretionary.

TUXIS BOYS AND TRAIL RANGERS

C S E T

BY Firelighter

BUILD A WILDWOOD SHELTER

When a boy or a man is outdoors he instinctively feels he must have a roof over his head. He is not alone in this, many birds' nests are roofed over and most animals seek roofed shelter or burrows. The most important thing then is the roof and to see that it is watertight. If the shelter be made with a sloping roof the difficulty of having the roof water-tight is largely overcome, for falling rain striking a sloping area meets with less resistence and is not so likely to penetrate. Then too, the water is led gently off down hill to the ground instead of lying as a weight on level roof.

Arrange two or more slim poles at a convenient distance apart, sloping from the ground at an angle of about forty-five degrees. They can be supported either by stakes crotched at the top or by being lashed to trees. Across these at right angles lay lighter poles lashing them to the sloping ones. These should be about nine inches apart and be laid for the whole length of the original poles just as boards might be laid on the rafters of a roof. Now for the shingling. There are many different kinds of "shingles" to use, depending upon what are most convenient. Piccos or birch bark, or cedar bark, or any bark which may be peeled off in large pieces will serve. Hemlock, pine, balsam or cedar branches are good, as their needles lie flat and can be laid well one over the other. To prevent these from slipping down, cut the boughs so that each has a small twig near the cut end. This can go under the cross pole while the main part of the branch goes over. Then there is no slipping down the roof on the part of the branch.

A roof may also be thatched with grasses, or sedges, tying these in bundles, laying them on as in the case of boughs, and separating the bundles around the pole in the same way to prevent slipping.

In shingling always start from the ground and work up, to insure good over-lapping. It may be that when finished your roof will not look water tight but if it is properly thatched the rain will be led off, runing down from twig to twig instead of dripping through.

If you would have your roof doubly secure lay some light poles at intervals over the finished roof. Although it is desirable to do all lashing with wildwood material, for convenience, it is well to bring stout twine on the trip. Spruce roots, the inner bark of elm, basswood, tamerac and leatherwood are all good natural twines but are not always readily found when wanted.

Attention should be paid to the position and location of the shelter. It is not built for warmth but for shelter, so that it would be folly to build one in an exposed location where wind will sweep rain into it. Generally with the shelter goes a camp fire. There is nothing more cheery than to sit under your own wildwood roof and enjoy your own campfire. Your shelter will do a great deal toward conserving the warmth of the fire but if you would get the full benefit of the fire, reflected right into the shelter, choose a spot near and facing a large walled rock. Against this the fire may be built and none of its genial warmth be lost, for there is nothing like a flat rock for not only reflecting heat but retaining it even after the has died down.

Red Hot July Days Hard on The Baby

July—the month of oppressive heat; red hot days and sweltering nights; is extremely hard on little ones. Diarrhoea, dysentry, colic and cholera infantum carry off thousands of precious little lives every summer. The mother must be constantly on her guard to prevent these troubles or if they come on sudenly to fight them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during the hot summer as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels and stomach, and an occasional dose given to the well child will prevent summer complaint, or if the trouble does come on suddenly will banish it. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Heat The Cause?

Y.O.U.—In visiting the city building Friday morning I saw one of the city offcals who was somewhat exasperated and blaming everyone in sight for the temporary loss of his hat. The ($15?) Panama had been missing since the day previous and the official was of the opinion that some member of the staff was playing a joke on him by hiding the hat. Later it was recovered, having been left by the owner in the office of one of the city fathers. Which goes to show that we may all be mistaken once in a while.

Boys or Girls?

M.E.—It's rather odd, but nevertheless what I saw is so, and here is what I saw: A large number of swimmers enjoying themselves up at the Institute Dock. That fact is not at all peculiar but it was the costumes took my eye. Brilliant hued rubber caps, were in profusion in every direction. I naturally thought they capped a girl's head of hair, but to my consternation, the caps were worn by boys. Now, what do you think of that?

Great Improvement

Z. O. U.—It was a pleasure indeed to travel over the extreme eastern portion of Dundas street on my way to the Hospital on Thursday. This portion of Dundas street previously was a series of nasty holes and bumps. This condition has been remedied in a capable manner by taking very fine stone and filling in. The Public Works Department deserves unstinted praise for their efforts in making this street so much better for motoring and driving. There are quite a few other streets which could stand a little attention. A number of streets are in a deplorable state, the fixing having ended with leaving large, sharp-edged stones scattered all over the road—no roller put on it at all. Something should be done to finish up these streets, for example, Yeomans street and Holloway street.

PROPOSE FLEET OF 1000 AIRPLANES

Paris, July 8.—A fleet of 1,000 airplanes, suitable for war, is proposed in a bill now before the Chamber of Deputies. It is planned to establish and operate these warcraft commercially so that the cost to the government would be little if any more than under its present policy.

The author of the measure, Deputy Paul Benazet, called attention to the large and expensive aviation personnel of the government "which consumes but does not produce."

Strongly advocating the creation of a great, protecting aerial force, M. Benazet urged that the government create a corporation to operate commercially, transporting passengers and freight and establishing air postal routes, thus training aviators, developing aviation, cement relations with the colonies and meantime keeping the fleet ready for immediate conversion to war purposes.

THE BROADWAY OF PETROGRAD

Riga, Latvia, June 19.—The Nevsky Prospekt, the "Broadway" of Petrograd, has been rechristened by the Bolshevik government "25th of October Prospket," that being the date, by the Russian calendar, in 1917, when the Soviets overthrew the Kerensky government. So it is now becomes popularly known, in Russian, as "Oktobrie Prospekt."

CREDITORS ARE PROTECTED

Havana, June 23.—Creditors of the Banco Nacional de Cuba, which suspended payments April 11, last, are fully protected, according to statistics published by El Mundo and credited to Eduardo Durruthy, secretary of the Federal Bank Liquidation Commission which is reorganizing the bank.

It was claimed that only a deficit of more than $20,000,000, would bring less to depositors as the bank which when it suspended operation April 11, had assets fixed at $68,050,000 and liabilities of $57,840,000

The secretary stated that the commission had insituted economies which were resulting in a saving of $70,000 a month. He added that the institution would return to normal just as soon as the nation itself solved its problems and adjusted itself to new conditions.

(First Section)

My loved, my honored, much respected friend!
No mercenary bard his homage pays;
With honest pride, I scorn each selfish end;
My dearest meed, a friend's esteem and praise.
To you I sing, in simple Scottish lays,
The lowly train in life's sequester'd scene;
The native feelings strong, the guileless ways;
What Aiken in a cottage would have been;
Ah! though his worth unknown, far happier there, I ween!

November chill blaws loud wi' angry sugh (whistle);
The short-ning winter day is near a close;
The miry beasts retreating frae the pleugh;
The black'ning train o' craws to their repose;
The toil-worn cotter fre his labor goes,
This night his weekly moil is at an end,
Collects his spades, his mattocks and his hoes,
Hoping the morn in ease and rest to spend,
And weary o'er the moor his course does hameward bend.

At length his lonely cot appears in view,
Beneath the shelter of an aged tree;
Th' expectant wee things, toddlin', stacher (stagger) through
To meet their dad, wi' flichterin' (fluttering) noise and glee.
His wee bit ingle (fire) blinking bonnily,
His clean hearthstane, his thriftie wifie's smile,
The lisping infant prattling on his knee,
Does a' his weary kaugh (anxiety) and care beguile,
And makes him quite forget his labor and his toil.

Belyve, (by-and-by) the elder bairns come drapping in,
At service out, amang the farmers roun';
Some ca' the pleugh, some heard, some tentie (watchful) rin
A cannie errand to a neibor town:
Their eldest hope, their Jenny, woman grown,
In youthfu' bloom, love sparkling in her e'e,
Comes hame, perhaps to show a braw new gown,
Or deposit her sair won penny-fee,
To help her parents dear, if they in hardship be.

With joy unfeigned, brothers and sisters meet,
And each for other's welfare kindly spiers (inquires);
The social hours, swift-winged, unnoticed fleet;
Each tells the uncos (news) that he sees or hears;
The parents, partial, eye their hopeful years;
Anticipation forward points the view.
The mother, wi' her needle and her shears,
Gars auld claes look amaist as weel's the new—
The father mixes a' wi' admonition due.

Their master's and their mistress's command,
The younkers a' are warned to obey;
And mind their labors wi' an eydent (diligent) hand,
And ne'er, though out o' sight, to jauk (dally) or play:
"And oh- be sure to fear the Lord alway!
And mind your duty, duly, morn and night!
Lest in temptation's path ye gang astray,
Implore His counsel and assisting might:
They never sought in vain that sought the Lord aright!"

But, hark! a rap come gently to the door;
Jenny, wha kens the meaning o' the same,
Tells how a neibor lad cam' o'er the moor
To do some errands and convoy her hame.
The wily mother sees the conscious flame
Sparkle in Jenny's e'e, and flush her cheek,
With heart-struck anxious care, inquires his name,
While Jenny hafflins (half) is afraid to speak;
Weel pleased the mother hears it's nae wild, worthless rake.

Wi' kindly welcome, Jenny brings him ben (in);
A strappin' youth, he taks the mother's eye;
Blythe Johnny sees the visit's no ill ta'en;
The father cracks of horses, pleughs and kye (cows).
The youngster's artless heart o'erflows wi' joy,
But blate (bashful) and lathefu' (hesitating) scarce can weel behave;
The mother, wi' a woman's wiles, can spy
What makes the youth sae bashfu' and sae grave:
Weel pleased to think her bairn's respected like the lave (others).

Oh happy love!—where love like this is found!
Oh heartfelt raptures!—bliss beyond compare!
I've paced much this weary, mortal round,
And sage experience bids me this declare—
"If Heaven a draught of heavenly pleasure spare,
One cordial in this melancholy vale,
'Tis when a youthful, loving, modest pair,
In other's arms breathe out the tender tale,
Beneath the milk-white thorn that scents the evening gale."

Is there, in human form, that bears a heart,
A wretch! a villain! lost to love and truth!
That can, with studied, sly, ensnaring art,
Betray sweet Jenny's unsuspecting youth?
Curse on his perjur'd arts! dissembling smooth!
Are honor, virtue, conscience, all exiled?
Is there no pity, no relenting ruth,
Points to the parents fondling o'er their child?
Then paints the ruined maid, and their distraction wild?

"THE RESTLESS SEX" BRILLIANT OFFERING

The brilliant society background for which the novels of Robert W. Chambers are famous, has been faithfully reproduced in the film version of "The Restless Sex," which will be seen at Griffin's tonight. Marion Davies is the star. The story is a romance of impulsive youth and has been picturized on an extremely elaborate scale. A ball room scene, in which over six hundred people take part, a millionaire camp in the Maine Woods, and an automobile accident are feature. Ralph Kellard, Charles Lane, and Carlyle Blackwell are included in the supporting case. It is a Paramount Artcraft picture.

Tom Moore in "The Adventures at Briarcliffe", a funny 2-reel Mermaid comedy, "Dynamite," featuring Lloyd Hamilton, Vode-vil Movies, and Fox News weekly, are also being exhibited on the same program.

BEATIFUL EVA NOVAK AT GRIFFIN'S MONDAY

Eva Novak, the flaxen-haired beauty of the screen, is preparing to add to her army of admirers in "The Smart Sex," a special Universal comedy-drama, which is the feature attraction at Griffin's this Monday to Wednesday. Miss Novak never fails to charm, and is at her best in the role of a barnstorming chorus girl. In this role she blends a spontaneous humor with equally fascinating qualities and gives a zest to the picture which will further endear her to playgoers. Geoffrey Webb, the popular young leading man of the London stage, has the principal supporting role.

A new Toonerville comedy, "The Skipper's Fire Brigade," Screen Snapshots, showing the private and professional life of famous screen stars, and other interesting attractions will be exhibited.

Greet Byng While He is in Mid-Ocean

PLANS FOR ARRIVAL OF NEW GOVERNOR-GENERAL ARE ANNOUNCED

Quebec, July 8.—The following tentative program has been drawn for the arrival of Lord Byng and Lady Byng and the members of their household on August 11, following a conference held yesterday between Sir Henry Drayton and Premier Taschereau.

Their Excellencies Lord and Lady Byng will embark on the Empress of France on August 3. When in midsea they will receive messages of welcome from the Federal and Provincial governments, from high officers of the army and from several cities of the Dominion.

Though the Empress of France is due here late on August 10, Lord Byng and those accompanying him will not disembark until the next day.

At nine o'clock Thursday morning the Lady Grey will proceed to the C. P. R. wharf and the new Governor and party will embark, proceeding to the King's Wharf, while a salute of 21 guns will be fired from the citadel. They will be met at the wharf by the Administrator of Canada, Sir Louis Lavies, and by Sir Chas. Fitzpatrick, Lieutenant-Governor of the Province, Premier Meighen, members of the Federal and Provincial Cabinets, and His Eminence Cardinal Begin, the Lord Bishop of Quebec.

The guard of honor will be supplied by the Twenty-second Battalion and other units, while detachments of the Canadian Mounted Police will be on hand. They will then proceed through Champlain street, Mountain Hill, St. Louis street and Grand Allee to the Parliament building.

Their Excellencies will sit on the throne in the Legislative Council and Cabinet Ministers will take places at the centre table, while on the right of the vice-regal party will be the Lieutenant-Governor, Officers of the Household, members of the Privy Council and Provincial Ministers and judges. The new Governor will then take the oath, which will be read by the Clerk of the Executive Council, and the R.C.G.A. band will play "God Save the King" while a salute will be fired.

Premier Taschereau will deliver an address in French and in English, which will be answered in both languages by Lord Byng. Mayor Samson of Quebec will welcome the new Governor-General and Lady Byng. The party will then proceed to the citadel and at one o'clock the Federal Government will tender a lunch to His Excellency at the Chateau Frontenac, for which about two hundred invitations are shortly to be issued.

At the end of the lunch Premier Meighen will deliver a short address.

In the evening a banquet will be given to Lord Byng by the Great War Veterans at the Drill Hall, and fireworks display will take place. The party will likely leave by special train the same evening for Ottawa where a reception will also be held.

THE MAN WHO REFUSED A LEGACY OF ONE MILLION DOLLARS.

The world was surprised last November when Charles Garland, who lives on a farm on Cape Cod, refused a fortune of $1,000,000 left him by his father. The story of this remarkable refusal travelled for and interviewers sought Garland to obtain his views of the particular philosophy which led to his action.

Recently it was rumored that Garland might become heir to a fortune of an uncle who died in England and interviewers again sought Garland in his retreat. He said that if another fortune were offered him he would refuse it, as he had refused the first.

"I don't think," he said, "that I am doing the best possible for society at present. I hope and am waiting for the thought to come by which I may do the best for the world.

"If I went out and hustled and produced more things for a world that has more things than are good for it, I would be injuring society. There are already enough food and clothing for everyone—if everything was equitably distributed. That is why the present system is futile. When a man who has as much as he wants is wished a fortune of a million, the system by which the situation comes to pass should be abolished."

The man who was talking so glibly of dodging wealth was in his bare feet. His corduroy trousers were frayed and worn. His soiled khaki shirt was open at the throat and unadorned by a necktie. Garland's hands were roughened and calloused. His nails were broken. They were encrusted with the grime which a mechanic acquires and which no amount of washing will remove. He had come for his interview from the gardens and repair shops where he had spent the morning in varied farm work.

Charles Garland's life is at present a paradox. While he declines to accept the fortune left him by his father he is living on the bounty of his mother, now Mrs. Swinburne Hale. He frankly admitted to his interviewer that with his wife and infant daughter he had depended all winter on his mother for support. He lives in a portable house she furnished. He eats at her table.

All the while the money which Garland refused is guarded by the trustees—accumulating for the benefit of the baby daughter, who might now, but for her father's ideas, have many nurses, many toys and a rich nursery instead of a simple farm house crib.

Garland displayed no more concern for the infant's future than he did last autumn.

Apparently Garland is satisfied that he and his tribe will always be taken care of. He asserted that he hadn't heard from the trustees of his father's estate since they came to the Cape Cod farm to hear him refuse the inheritance. He said he hadn't spent a cent of money for himself for months. But he hastened to add that he didn't mean that money wasn't spent on him and his family.

"My present desires are simple," he added. "I haven't any money in my pocket and don't want any."

"Do you believe that your labor on the farm has repaid your mother for what she has spent for you?" Garland was asked.

This is his reply:

"No, I don't figure anything of the kind. I feel sure my productive efforts for my mother haven't been equal to what my family and I have consumed. I have worked some of the time on a farm which a man leases from my mother. That labor hasn't brought her anything.

"I do believe, though, that my efforts toward society as a whole have equalled what I have consumed of the products of society. But that is what I object to—putting everything on a material basis of how much a man puts into and gets out of society."

Garland seems to be as far from a solution of his plans for the future as he was in the autumn. He declares he is watching and hoping for his opportunity. He seems sure it will come. For the present his is a healthy, simple rural life. His wife is living it with him and seems to like it. In contrast, his mother in the manor house is enjoying all the comfort that wealth insures. And there is the baby, Margaret Garland, eight months old, who at present doesn't care, though she has much at stake in the business.

IS CIVILIZATION DECLINING?

New York Sun

Many a boy, under the chagrin of a low grade, goes home bitterly avowing "I'll quit school." In a mood of self-contempt he sees the whole of his education in terms of a flunk. Much of the Western world has been feeling of late a bit like the backward schoolboy. It has had a bad case of the blues. Wounded in a smashup which it believes an exercise of intelligence could have avoided, it is obsessed by a sense of the flunking capacity of the human race. In a crucial test our political ability has come out with a disgraceful grade. Let's chuck it; let's quit school!

MERELY MEN

New York World

It is rather a shock to recollect that Dempsey and Carpentier are quite ordinary men magnified out of all proportion by accumulating rumors. There are men in the United States who might be able to give Dempsey a drubbing if they had taken up boxing as a career. There are men in France who might do the same for Carpentier. Out of the lads of any nation only a few try their hands at professional pugilism. But the legends of these heroes grow like the stories that once gathered around Greek and Irish heroes. Their stature was limited only by the low-roofed heavens. They bore charmed lives. When they fought, the gods took sides. In reality they were probably middle-sized individuals somewhat dazed by their own good luck.

The Poets' Corner

IT'S NOT THE HEAT; IT'S THE H——!.!.!

From earliest dawn of ages palaeontologic and primeval
Upon aestival conversation floats a note inspiring;
Old as human talk itself, modern though mediaeval,
To cheer man's wearying soul beneath the rampant Crab perspiring:
Mid murky breathlessness of close-en wrapped calidity,
It whispers: "Not the heat, you know, but the humidity."

O aged and comforting gag, old when Adam first was kilted,
And in the mid-jurassic warmth, Piltdown Bill's grandfather wilted;
And while the cave-hold brontosaurus hung his pinky-purple tongue out
To Dordorgne Pierre across the English Channel fence he sung out:
As perspiration slopped and dropped with tinkling tepidity,
"Say, Pete it ain't the dog-binged heat you know, it's the humidity! ! !"

Now, his height of fury by the thermic column measured
Still Pagurus ramps the glowing heavens through in copper murk,
Still confidentially whispered, as a cooling charm is treasured,
Old as man himself yet spoken as a new-discovered quirk,
That saying, subtly comforting in all torridity,
"Say, Bill, it ain't the heat, you know, it's the humidity ! ! !"

"Yeah," replied the butcher, "and all I gotta say is—"

"Unwrap it right away," announced the boy. "Kitty's caught a mouse."

Name of New Irish Viceroy Recalls Famous Old Song Aimed at Last Stuart King

LORD EDMUND TALBOT, now Viscount Fitzalan, was sworn in on May 2, 1921, as Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The assumption of this office by a Roman Catholic, especially one who has been known as Talbot, will recall to students of Irish history another of that name and faith who held a like position. He was not, however, a forebear of the present incumbent, whose real name is Howard. Between these two there has stretched a long line of Protestant viceroys during 230 years.

"Lying Dick" Talbot, as the Whig writers called him (the Earl of Tyrconnel, as he afterwards became) was a picturesque figure of seventeenth-century Ireland. The deeds (and misdeeds) of his adventurous career are in themselves an entertaining story, but of these a short summary will suffice. Left for dead at the defence of Drogheda against Cromwell, he escaped in woman's clothes. Going, later, to England, in connection with royalist plots, he was examined by Cromwell at Whitehall. But the resourceful Talbot made the servants drunk, slipped away to the river, and regained his freedom. In 1670 he became chief spokesman for the Roman Catholics of Ireland. On the accession of James II. he raised an Irish army on that king's behalf. His activities were quickly rewarded. In 1686 he was made "lord general" during the vice-royalty of Clarendon, whom he thus virtually supplanted. Not long afterwards he was definitely established as viceroy, completing thus the humiliation of his predecessor.

But interest in the story of this "other Talbot" centres about something far removed from thrilling adventures and royal favors; apart, even, from his notorious amours or his appearance against William at the famous battle of the Boyne. It is a song, a frail piece of doggerel, which history will always link up with the biography of the Earl of Tyrconnel. For if "Tipperary" helped to whistle a kaiser off his throne, an equally inconsequential piece of music has been credited with "whistling a king out of three kingdoms." The king was James. The song was about Tyrconnel. The author was Thomas Wharton, himself later to be a lord lieutenant. The music is attributed to Henry Purcell. From its refrain the piece was called "Lillibullero."

And the music of "Lillibullero," to different words, is now familiar to most people in Canada as "Protestant Boys." No Twelfth of July procession would be complete without it. Oddly enough, the original words had a revival in Canada at the time of the Fenian raid, and veterans of 1866 recall singing them with great enthusiasm, though the application of the old song is not very clear.

That it was no very pretentious ballad may be judged from one of its stanzas which celebrated the departure of Tyrconnel for Ireland as viceroy, a departure which was delayed by a contrary wind:

"Arra! But why does he stay behind?
O, by my sowl, 'tis a Protestant wind;
But see, de Tyrconnel is now come ashore,
And we shall have commissions galore.
Lillibullero, bullen a la."

Another verse ran thus:

"Dare was an old prophecy found in a bog,
Ireland shall be ruled by an ass and a dog.
And now dis prophecy is come to pass,
For Talbot's de dog and Js is de ass."

All over the country the people took to whistling "Lillibullero." It became what is called "the rage." Like "ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay" and other choice songs of sacred memory which have since infected the population, it had a "catching" melody. Wharton was rather inclined to boast that it brought about the downfall of James. But he was mixing cause and effect. "Lillibullero" did not create the spirit of unrest and rebellion. On the contrary, it was the existence of this unrest which popularized "Lillibullero," with its audacious attack upon the king and his favorite. And "Tipperary" did not whistle the kaiser out of Germany. It was the war which "made" "Tipperary."

Knitted In Parliament.

John Cathcart Wason, M.P., for Orkney and Shetland, who died recently, was noted in the British House of Commons for his curious habit of relieving the tedium of waiting for a division—that of knitting socks. He was in the habit of retiring to the tea-room, or other quiet resort known to the whips of his party, and there, taking out his knitting needles and his ball of worsted, made socks for himself while the talk went on in the House. Mr. Wason confessed that his original purpose in learning to knit was to commend himself to the womenfolk of the islands of Orkney and Shetland, whose special handicraft is the making of stockings. At his meetings he would occupy himself with knitting until the time came for him to speak. But as he became proficient in the craft he found it a most soothing occupation for dull hours.

The Livelihood of Thousands Depends on Ontario's Forests

THIS is the first of a series of advertising articles to appear weekly in this paper. These advertisements are unusual in that they will deal with the business of every citizen of Ontario. They are intended to enlist your co-operation in a province-wide campaign to prevent forest fires and to put money in your own pocket.

FORESTS of Ontario are the basis for a very large part of the prosperity of Ontario's people.

The lumber industry of Ontario in camps and mills alone gives employment to 17,000 men with a payroll of $12,000,000 and an invested capital of $45,000,000. Ontario employs one-third of Canada's lumbermen and produces one-quarter of Canada's total annual cut.

The sash and door and planing mills of Ontario, which depend on the 800 lumber mills and the log-making industry for their raw materials, employ 4,000 persons with a total wage roll of $3,000,000 per year.

Pulp and paper mills employ 8,000 persons, and pay $7,000,000 in wages with over $90,000,000 invested.

In addition, there is the railway tie industry, wood distillation industry, cooperage industry and many others. These are the foundation industries for all that immense number of other industries which use their products, so that if you trace it down, directly or indirectly, every citizen of Ontario is affected.

Save Ontario's Forests
They're Yours

ALL these men, all these payrolls, all these industries, depend for their very existence upon the trees standing in Ontario to-day. Tracts of timber, mature and ready to cut, mean immediate payrolls for the logmakers, the river drivers, the saw mill men and the pulp mill employees, for the tie makers and other wood workers, and men of other industries using wood workers' products.

Along with stands of mature timber are tracts of trees which will be big enough to cut into saw logs or pulp wood five years from now; others in ten years; still others in fifteen years, and so on down to the very youngest trees. That is to say, all our forests, all our trees, little and big, represent wealth. They mean money right now or money next year or the year after or in the future. They mean pay rolls and employment. They mean men's livelihood. The preservation and the welfare of Ontario's forests affect every man, women and child in the province.

Every stick of timber, little or big, wasted and burned by forest fire, that greatest of all menaces to the forest and wood-working industries, is a direct loss to YOU.

Your co-operation as a citizen is needed to prevent fire and save Ontario's forests.

Shall He Have A College Course?

THE question is often debated: — Is it worth while for the young man to spend four years in college? Does the expense of a university training pay?

Statistics show that while only two per cent. of the people of America are educated at college, no less than seventy per cent. of the leaders of the nation in politics, commerce and the church come from that little two per cent. of the people—"the college-trained group".

We all know that a college education is necessary for the adequate training of engineers, chemists, clergymen, actuaries and astronomers, but the evidence is also overwhelming in proving that the college-trained man wins in every other line of business endeavor.

Shall your boy become one of the leaders?

The answer depends very largely on his education.

He cannot get that vital college training without your help and encouragement.

"Are you going to send me to College?"

To make sure that the boy will obtain a college education, take out a policy of insurance on father's life that will mature at the age when the son will be ready to enter college. It is not hard to save the money for the college course in installments spread over ten to fifteen years.

There are Ten Year and Fifteen Year Mutual Life Policies that are ideal for this purpose. Ask the Mutual Life Agent about them.

SCHOOLS' BIG PROFIT IN PAPER SALVAGING

St. Louis, July 9.—Pupils in the St. Louis public schools collected and brought to school 494,181 pounds of waste paper during the first quarter which ended recently. This amount represents an average contribution of 4.94 pounds for each of the 100,000 children now attending the public schools. If the rate established during the first quarter is maintained for the balance of the year, approximately 2,000,000 pounds of paper will be salvaged.

During the week of October 17-22 more than 35 tons of old newspapers and magazines were collected by 100,000 pupils in 135 public schools, according to Stephen M. Wagner, chairman of the public school thrift committee. This amount is the largest collected during any one week since the waste paper saving movement started in the schools several years ago, and represents a value of $1,211.10 at present prices paid for waste paper. Receipts for the year are expected to exceed greatly those of last year, when a net profit of $17,308 was realized from the sale of 858 tons.

A 5-ton automobile truck has been purchased by the association to take care of the increased paper collections. This will replace a 2½-ton truck which has been found inadequate for the business.

Saving paper has become a regular part of a well-planned system of education for thrift in the St. Louis public schools, and the children are taught that a great many things that heretofore were thrown away can be made use of and be of real value. The proceeds of this work are credited to the Teachers' Benevolent Annuity Association, an organization of teachers formed for the purpose of aiding those who retire after long service and of relieving members temporarily in need.—Scientific American.

THE ELEPHANT SEAL.

Last of His Race Strays South to Mexico.

During the winter of 1911 an expedition was sent out to make deep-sea investigations. The man in charge decided to go ashore on an island near the Pacific coast, and to his delight they found, on a strip of sandy beach not more than three hundred feet long, and flanked by high, impassable cliffs, a herd of more than one hundred elephant seals sunning themselves.

As naturalists had believed that the northern elephant seals had become extinct, the discovery of such a large herd was of great importance. There was deep water all about the island, and the ship was anchored as near the shore as possible, so that the men could study the animals freely. Six small seals, about a year old, were captured alive and taken aboard the ship. These were for study and exhibition purposes.

The elephant seal is so called because of its great size, and because of its nose, which is very long—sometimes eighteen inches from its tip to the eye—and shaped like an elephant's trunk.

The animals average about fifteen feet long, and ten or eleven feet in girth. Some of the males are longer than that, one animal being recorded as actually measuring twenty-two feet. The newly-born seals, or pups, are about four feet long, and generally very fat. These are black in color, while the adult seals are a yellowish brown. The skin is very thick.

Unless they were actually teased, the seals did not pay any attention to the men, some of them did not even raise their heads. If they were driven to move they would settle down again, first covering their backs with sand, which they threw up with their front flappers.

When those that went into the ocean returned, they got out of the water very slowly, spreading the flappers to get the benefit of each wave. When they are out of the water they crawl great distances. When crawling, they resemble huge inch-worms, for they arch the body, drawing the hind quarters forward, and shifting the fore quarters with the front flappers braced outward.

These seals fight frequently. They crawl slowly within striking distance, and then, rising on their front flappers, draw back their big noses, open their mouths very wide, and strike at one another with their large teeth. Although they wound each other on the neck, they do not do any great harm, for the skin is very thick. The fighting is not of a desperate nature, and does not last long.

Although much has been discovered about these rare animals, the scientists have never been able to find exactly what they eat. The captured elephant seals refused to eat for more than two weeks, but after they reached the aquarium in New York, they lived on fresh fish cut into moderate-sized pieces. It is supposed that the elephant seals live on live squid and sardines.

The northern elephant seal has existed as a race under very hard conditions. Previous to 1865 the animal was killed in very great numbers for its oil.

As far as the expedition has been able to find out, this animal is found only on Gaudeloupe Island. It is slowly increasing in numbers, and it is hoped that it will not be molested by hunters.

The island is not inhabited, and the Mexican Government, which owns the island, has not as yet interested itself in the protection of these animals.

Tom Was Puzzled.

An expedition was sent to one of the Southern States of America to observe the recent eclipse of the sun.

The day before the event one of its members said to an old darky belonging to the house where he was staying: "Tom, if you will watch your chickens to-morrow morning you'll find that they'll all go to roost at eleven o'clock."

Tom was sceptical, but, sure enough, at the time predicted the sky darkened and the chickens retired to roost. The negro, amazed beyond measure, sought out the scientist.

"Professor," he asked, "how long ago did you know dem chickens would go to roost?"

"About a year ago," he replied with a smile.

"Well, if dat don't beat all! Why, perfessor, a year ago dem chickens wa'n't even hatched!"

Sea Otter Almost Extinct.

The sea otter, the animal of most beautiful fur once so plentiful in Alaskan waters, is almost extinct. Traded in by the hundreds of thousands a century ago, pelts offered in 1920 were: one in St. Louis, three in New York and fifteen in London. The fur is so fine, lustrous and durable that a good skin has always commanded from one hundred to two hundred pounds. Last year the pelts were not of first grade; several were taken from the bodies of dead otter found on the seashore; but the average price at London was about four hundred pounds a pelt.

Wireless Telegraphy Wonders.

The waves of wireless stations are unceasingly passing through our houses and our bodies, and we neither see, hear, nor feel them. Yet if there be interposed a few strands of wire, a metal plate, a tiny glow-lamp, and if these accessories be ranged in order the wireless messengers will carry the sound of a voice speaking thousands of miles away.

A Hard Thing to Do.

The schoolmaster was explaining what to do in case of fire. The pupils listened with respectful attention until he came to his final instruction. "Above all things," he said, "if your clothing catches fire, remain cool."

Conservates have only twelve candidates in Alberta.

Noted Traveller on C. P. R. Liner

Peggy Featherston and Captain A. Freer of the Metagama.

With a little doll in her arms which she has christened Mary Ann, a pretty little fair haired girl only three years of age named Peggy Featherstone, left Liverpool for Canada all on her own on the Canadian Pacific liner Metagama. The little girl was all smiles and brought three dolls with her for the voyage, two of them being in her gladstone bag.

Capt. A. Freer, R.N.R., the Commander of the Metagama, made great friends with the little passenger and stated he was extremely fond of little girls.

Peggy was in full charge of the C. P. R. officials and was left in the arms of a kind stewardess who looked after the tiny tot during the voyage. Peggy was not a bit shy, and liked her cabin immensely and was made a big fuss of by passengers travelling by the liner.

Little Peggy who has come to live with her grand-aunt, Mrs. Michael Toner, wife of the superintendent of the Art Gallery, Montreal, seemed very happy in her new surroundings and was anxious to tell about her father and her brother and sisters, whom she has left behind in England.

It was a great experience for this infant girl to have a home on a big ship, for she was cared for just as if she were at home. She says she will always have kind memories of the Metagama. This ship is the last word in ocean vessels from the standpoint of comfort and convenience for the passengers, and strength and stability for navigation and capacity and appliances for cargo. The ship is 520 feet long, 64 feet broad and 41 feet deep. It has a gross tonnage of 13,000 tons, a displacement of 18,000 tons and a cargo capacity of 400,000 cubic feet. Below the level of the main deck the space is devoted to general cargo, three of the lower 'tween decks being fitted for the carriage of refrigerated merchandise. From the main deck upwards through no less than six separate decks the entire space is devoted to passengers. There is room for 520 cabin passengers berthed in large, airy rooms, and for 1,200 third-class passengers, all in large rooms. Counting in the crew of three hundred, the vessel can carry 2,020 people, or as much as the population of a small town.

The dining-room, smoke room, card room, drawing-room, lounge, cafe, gymnasium and other features of the most modern vessels are furnished and decorated in accordance with plans of the best British architects and furnishers.

The decks provide one of the chief features of the vessel, the promenade, recreation, and other decks being so designed so as to provide shelter, amusement, exercise or rest, according to the caprice of the passenger.

The electric lighting system provides for 1,300 lights and the power is supplied for the fans, elevators, submarine signalling and galley outfit. All water-tight bulkheads doors are electrically operated and can be closed simultaneously from the bridge. The vessel is fitted with the well-known cruiser stern which builders claim gives increased capacity, speed and deck area. She is so divided by water-tight decks and bulkheads that she is capable of floating in a seaway with any three compartments open to the sea. There are twin sets of quadruple expansion engines, and steam is supplied by eight single-ended boilers at a working pressure of 215 lbs. which gives a sea speed of sixteen knots an hour on service.

AWARDED DAMAGES.

While returning from Norwood fair last year Mrs. Cora McQuigge, of Marmora village, was injured as the result of the auto in which she was riding having a collision with a car driven by Mr. John Hunter, also of Havelock. An action was entered against the latter for damages and the case recently came up for trial. The defendant was found guilty of negligence and $300 damages was awarded to the plaintiff by a jury at Peterborough Assizes.

AN UNUSUAL ACCIDENT.

Mr. Wm. Hughes of Marmora village had his fine new car damaged as the result of an unusual accident. Mr. Alex. Anderson had been bothered a great deal by birds in his garden which are doing considerable damage. In an effort to get rid of them he fired at them with a shot gun, using B.B. shot. The shot went through Mr. Hughes' garage, striking the back of the car and marring it badly, as well as doing other damage.

SERVICES APPRECIATED.

On the eve of his departure from Oshawa Rev. John Garbutt was banqueted by the business men, manufacturers and professional men of that town, and presented with an illuminated address and a purse of $1,000. In the six years that he has been pastor of the Simcoe street Methodist church he has been connected with practically every organization in that town.

CAR OVERTURNED.

Mr. C. S. Haig, of Marmora had his auto badly damaged one evening this week. He was returning from Campbellford with his family and Miss Mary English, and in passing a rig he lost control of the car in some way and ran into the ditch. The car turned over and the top was damaged, the frame twisted, an axle broken, and other minor damages. Fortunately none of the occupants of the car were injured.

ORPHANS VISIT HAMILTON

Forty-five children from the True Blue Orphanage at Picton accompanied by four of the staff including Mrs. Crockett the matron left today for Hamilton where they will be guests of two Orange Lodges in that city. From Belleville to Hamilton they travelled by special car.

CLOSE SEASON FOR FOX

An order in council which appeared in the Canada Gazette last week said "Fox of whatever color or species may not be hunted, trapped or taken between April 1st and November 15th of each year."

FAREWELL GARDEN PARTY

For some years past a garden party has been held annually at the old people's home, on Moira street, an event which was much appreciated by the aged inmates of that institution. The last one at that place was held Friday evening and attracted a large number of citizens. The committee in charge with Miss M. Connors, matron, did all in their power for the pleasure of their guests. The Argyle Light Infantry band was in attendance and provided a number of tuneful selections, which all appreciated. The demand for ice cream and cake was such that the supply secured was early in the evening exhausted. A fish pond was a delight to the children and it too, was emptied of its contents. The evening was ideal for such an event, and the grounds and building were tastefully decorated and illuminated for the occasion. The ladies of the W.C.A. who had the affair in charge are to be congratulated upon the success which attended their efforts.

UP SIX FLIGHTS
IN A TALL GARAGE

In crowded cities like New York, where the people live in apartment houses and where there is not much room for individual garages, how can you keep your automoile? Space in cities is so costly that only a tall building is practical for a garage, but the use of elevators is undesirable. Ordinary motor-ramps are too steep

Fernand E d'Humy, an American engineer, found himself facing this problem when he moved from a suburban home to a city apartment. He devised and patented a thoroughly practical plan. Imagine a six-storey building built in two sections or units separated by a vertical partition wall. The floors and ceiling of the floor of one corresponds with a point midway between the floor and ceiling of the other.

Thus an inclined passage from the floor of one unit to the floor of the other unit leads only half a story at a step, and the motor-cars can be run easily upgrade without too steep an incline. The motor-ramp can be arranged in the form of a curve, or it can be straight.

MORRIS—EARLE

A wedding of interest to a wide circle of friends was solemnized at Simpson Avenue Methodist Church Toronto on Thursday, June 23rd at 5 p.m., when Olive Hilda, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Earle, Picton was united in marriage with Mr. Elmer Benedict Morris, youngest son of Mrs. Edith Morris, Bloomfield. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. R. Patterson in the presence of a small company of near relatives.

The stately bride who was given away by her father, was becomingly gowned in Canton crepe, pleated overdress, with narrow facing of red gold brocade which also lined the pretty girdle fastened with tassels at either side, and picture hat.

Mr. Morris saw service at the war. Mr. and Mrs. Morris will reside at Chisolm, the latter is well known in this city where she received her early training.

Stomach Trouble Due to Thin Blood

IT USUALLY DISAPPEARS WHEN THE BLOOD IS MADE RICH AND RED

Thin blood is one of the most common causes of stomach trouble. It affects the digestion very quickly. The glands that furnish the digestive fluids are diminished in their activity, the stomach muscles are weakened and there is a loss of nerve force. In this state of health nothing will more quickly restore the appetite, digestion and normal nutrition than good, rich, red blood.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on the blood, making it rich and red, and this enriched blood strengthens weak nerves, stimulates tired muscles, and awakens to normal activity the glands that supply the digestive fluids. This is shown by an improved appetite, and soon the effect of these blood enriching pills is evident throughout the whole system. You find that what you eat does not distress you, and that you are vigorous instead of irritable and listless. If your appetite is fickle, if you have any of the distressing pains and symptoms of indigestion, you should at once take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and profit by the better condition in which they will put your blood.

These pills are sold by all dealers in medicine, or you can get them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BUSINESS MEN CALLED ON

London, July 8.—The postmaster General has called upon the business men of Great Britain to aid him in solving the problem of how to operate the postal, telegraph and telephone services efficiently and without a deficit.

A council of business men has been appointed to assist in the management of the department. H. Gordon Selfridge, the American merchant in London, is one of the nineteen appointees. The others include bank directors, presidents of Chambers of Commerce, railroad managers and other leaders of industry. One is a newspaper proprietor, Viscount Burnham of the London Daily Telegraph.

The postoffice Department estimates for the current year show a deficit of £3,500,000. The postmaster general had proposed to cover this by increasing the rates on the second class mail but now this project has been abandoned.

The question why the department should show a loss has been the subject of much debate in the newspapers. The department has a monopoly in the United Kingdom of the mails, telegraphs and telephone, thus making it the greatest business in the country. Yet, on a combined revenue of £70,000,000 a year it has been run at a loss. One writer has attributed the deficit to the doubling of the penny postage on letters which took place during the war and its retention since.

THE SUBSTITUTE

(Copyright, 1903)

"You have not heard what I intend to propose," he faltered. "I have it in my power to pardon your father, who is now at the coal mines. I can do this simply by signing my name to a paper, and if you"—

"That is what you want to propose?" George shrank back in bewilderment. The awful significance of the proposal stunned him, drove his rage momentarily from his brain, set him quivering from head to foot. He sat down on the bench opposite Telfare and lowered his face to his hands. His father's liberty was within his reach.

Telfare chuckled contemptuously. "Ah, I see I hit you between the eyes! I reckon you are sorry now that you didn't wait till I had finished before you dared to—but that may pass. I simply will not degrade myself, Buckley, by visiting a lady who is receiving a man of your standing—even if she is led only by her sympathies, and if you will give up all claim to her and agree never to approach her on an equal footing again, I will liberate your father. Of course, you understand, I'd want some sort of petition to come to me—only a few names of his neighbors will do—but"—

"And your object?" George asked, looking up.

"Well, that's a private matter," answered Telfare, "but I may as well admit that my object is to marry Miss Cranston, and, as she evidently is actuated by a sort of pity, admirable in a woman, for you in your misfortune, I simply want to remove you from further contact with her without having openly to request the step of her or her parents. God knows I'm not jealous of you! It is not that. It is only the idea of our visiting here as social equals."

George stood up. He had something to say, and it rang in Telfare's ears long after the words were spoken.

"My father, Telfare," he began, "was convicted for stealing, and no doubt justly, but he was an unlettered, ignorant man. He was a thief, but you, Telfare, are lower than he, for, with your opportunities for knowing right from wrong, you degrade your office—the office given in trust to you by the state—to advance your own personal interests. You are more unpardonable than my father. As for my having any 'claim' on the lady you mention, I have none, and it would be dishonorable for me to trade in a commodity I don't possess. But hold on; I am not through. I want to add that if my accepting your proposition meant that I lent the weight of a straw toward making Miss Cranston your wife, I'd refuse with my dying breath. I could not live knowing that the purest and noblest woman God ever made was through an act of mine living with a loathsome reptile like you. If my father stood on the gallows condemned to death and I could save him by allowing you to touch Miss Cranston's hand in lawful wedlock I should let him die."

"You mean to refuse your father's freedom?" gasped Telfare.

"Yes, I refuse. I am trying, Telfare, to show the world by my life that I have not inherited my parent's weakness. I shall not depart from that rule by entering into a dishonorable compact with a man as base as you are, regardless of what it means to me."

"You'd better think this over, Buckley," said the governor. "You are mad now."

"I have nothing else to say," replied Buckley, "and, to show you how little regard I have for your wishes, I shall keep my engagement with Miss Cranston this evening." And, turning, he walked ahead of Telfare to the house and into the lighted parlor. A servant took his hat and told him Miss Cranston had gone into the garden, but would return in a moment. While he was waiting the governor entered the room and sat down. He was pale, nervous and had a desperate glare in his eyes. Then Lydia came in. She was slightly flushed and had a tuberose in her hand.

"I'm so glad you came," she said to George. Telfare had risen and stood trying to appear at ease, but she did not notice him.

"Do you like tuberoses?" she asked Buckley.

"Very much," he replied.

"Then you shall wear this," she said, her voice quite unsteady. She glanced at Telfare and finished: "It's the only one I have. Governor Telfare, if you'd like one you may ring and the girl will supply you." She leaned forward and with her white, deft fingers pinned the flower on the lapel of Buckley's coat.

"Mr.—er—ah—Buckley is to be congratulated on getting his tuberose," the governor said, with a white sneer. "He seems to be something of a favorite, Miss Lydia—at least for the moment."

The girl laughed harshly. George had never seen her so excited. Her eyes shone like diamonds in the light of the chandelier.

"Mr. Buckley and I are true friends," she said. "I respect him more than any one alive, unless it is my father."

"Ah, you do!" Telfare bit at his short, black mustache which he turned inward with his trembling fingers. "The gentleman—I mean Mr. Buckley—is quite fortunate," he said. "I see your father is smoking on the veranda. With your permission I'll join him."

"Yes, do, Governor Telfare," the girl said coldly. "I'm quite anxious to speak to Mr. Buckley alone for a few moments."

The governor stood up, his dark face stamped with fury.

"Your manner has changed within the last half hour," he said significantly. "At the supper table you were quite another little girl, but we shall talk that over later."

When the governor had left the room, George fancied Lydia's face turned whiter. She clasped her hands tensely in her lap and remained silent. An evil [illegible] -session of him

BENEFICIAL EFFECTS OF SCHOOL FAIRS

School fairs are to the boys and girls of the land what the larger are to adults. By this time they should be thoroughly organized: prize lists published and circulated and programmes of proceedings prepared, the two indeed given in one publication. These fairs increase in number every year and are proving of inestimable value in the agricultural education of the young and even in beneficially influencing the more nature. Of course boys' and girls' clubs are the principal feeders of the fairs, but entries are usually accepted from children who are not members of any such organization. Agricultural Representatives all testify to the splendid effect the fairs are having upon farm life and agricultural pursuits generally. One, for instances, writes "I do not know of any one thing which is a greater factor in improving the farm production and the farm industry of the country than the school fairs. In addition to bringing direct, practical results, school fairs have had a very effective influence in encouraging teachers to take up the teaching of agriculture in the public schools." Another says: "The importance of the school fair cannot be overemphasized. It teaches our future farmers how they can take the most out of the soil. It makes our rural people better and happier." In recognition of the truth of the old adage "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy" a programme of sports is usually included in the days list of proceedings.

Fatal Automobile Accident Near Town of Deseronto

REGINALD LEWIS, OF KINGSTON, FORMERLY OF THIS CITY, KILLED—TWO COMPANIONS SEVERELY INJURED, ONE PROBABLY FATALLY—AN INQUEST OPENED.

One killed and two severely injured was the result of an automobile accident which occurred between the hours of 7 and 8 o'clock on Saturday evening. The scene of the unfortunate affair was near the town of Deseronto on what is known as the Marysville road. Mr. Reginald Lewis, of Kingston, who at one time resided at 197 Victoria Avenue, in this city, was the victim.

From what can be gleaned of the accident, it appears that Lewis and two companions named Frank and William Maracle, brothers, whose home is near Deseronto, secured an auto permit No. 141,960 at Deseronto with the intention of taking a ride out into the country. It is surmised that either Lewis, who was driving the car, lost control of it, or something went wrong with the steering gear, as the car collided with a telegraph pole on the side of the road. The result of the collision was that the car was wrecked and Lewis sustained injuries of such a nature that he was almost instantly killed. The two Maracle boys were also severely injured, Frank being hurt more than his brother. His condition on Sunday showed no perceptible improvement, and he was conveyed to Kingston Hospital in an unconscious state, and it is feared that his injuries will result fatally. William Maracle, while partially rendered unconscious, was not so severely hurt as his brother.

Soon after the accident occurred willing hands were present to render such aid as could be given.

The body of Lewis was conveyed to Allum's undertaking establishment, where an inquest was opened. After the jury empannelled had viewed the body it was prepared for interment.

Mr. Reginald Lewis was a married man who had been residing in Kingston but a short time. He had of late been employed as a G. T. R. telegraph operator at Colborne. For some years he had been in the employ of the railway, and those acquainted with him speak in terms of commendation as to his character. It was truly a sad ending to what was intended to be a pleasure ride.

Cauada The First to Make Proposal For Disarmament

London, July 8.—Premier Lloyd George's statement in the British House of Commons that the British Government has proposed an international conference on disarmament and that replies from Japan and the United States are anxiously awaited, confirms the announcement made in despatches last week. In view of the British Premier's statement there can now be no harm in stating that the original proposal for such a conference came from the Canadian Government early in February last. It was then suggested that the Dominion Government, through the Department of External Affairs, be empowered to consult with Washington, to sound it out, so to speak, on the possibility of a pacific conference.

The proposal does not appear to have been accepted at the time, the reason being, it is understood, that there was some difficulty in getting the Pacific dominions to decide what ought to be done, although it was evident from the first that the British Government was favorable to such a step.

However, the idea steadily grew and when at the beginning of the conference Premier Meighen of Canada and General Smuts, South African Premier, advocated such a gathering as a substitute for an Anglo-Japanese alliance they met with almost unanimous support.

What the replies of Japan and the United States may be nobody here pretends to know. It is felt, however, that insofar as the United States is concerned there would be a great chance of its response being more favorable if the Anglo-Japanese alliance had been denounced. Should it be fond that the continued existence of the alliance was standing in the way of a conference, then it is certain that some of the Dominion premiers will press that the necessary twelve months notice of denunciation be given at once. Meanwhile, the British press makes no attempt to disguise the fact that it regards the situation as one of the vastest moment, involving as it does, the whole future of armament and the peace of the world.

WILL ADD TO HOSPITAL

Peterboro, Ont., July 6.—A tender of $142,263 for the construction of an addition to St. Joseph's Hospital here has been accepted, and it is expected that work will be begun this week. The new building will embrace the latest in hospital construction, and double the accommodation of the institution.

Canadian tennis championships begin to-day.

Premier Meighen Returns Home Soon

MORE HONORS IN STORE FOR HIM—WILL RECEIVE FREEDOM OF LONDON

London, July 9.—Premier Meighen has accepted the offer of Edinburgh University to confer upon him the degree of Doctor of Laws, and he will visit that city on July 18. He will also receive the freedom of the city. Last night he was among those who atended the court ball at Buckingham Palace. On July 15 he will be given the freedom of London, and on the 21st will sail for Canada.

Thursday morning's session of the Imperial Conference was taken up with addresses by Lord Curzon and Right Hon. Winston Churchill on Anglo-French relations. They were, of course, confidential, but it is understood they merely elaborated certain points touched upon by Lord Curzon in his outline of the Empire's foreign policy at the opening of the conference. There was no afternoon session.

Falls from Balloon into Lake Huron

ANN RILEY RESCUED BY SARNIA MAN WITH ROWBOAT

Sarnia, July 8.—Unable to swim and the rope from her parachute becoming entangled about her body, Ann Riley, a balloonist, had a narrow escape from death in Lake Huron today, when she dropped from a balloon about a mile out in Lake Huron She was rescued by a local man in a rowboat. When the balloon made its take-off it headed for the that was blowing at the time. Miss that was blowning at the time. Miss Riley cut away over fish nets, but the breeze sent her drifting out in the lake. She hit the water and went under, but was rescued by B. Gurwin, who happened to be about 50 feet from where she alighted.

GREAT BRITAIN PLEASED

London, July 11.—President Harding's message, looking to the calling of an international conference on the limitation of armaments has been received with the utmost pleasure in Great Britain, Lloyd George declared in the House of Commons today.

President Harding's note regarding the conference on limitation of armaments was received by the United States embassy here yesterday and forwarded to Ambassador Harvey, who was in the country. The ambassador went to Chequers Court and saw Premier Lloyd George there. This morning the subject is understood to have been discussed by the British Cabinet here.

Arrange for Meeting over Week-End

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press, Limited

London, July 10.—Announcement of the date upon which Eamonn de Valera, Irish Republican Leader, would meet Premier Lloyd George to discuss the basis on which a settlement of the Irish question might be reached by the proposed conference between North-Irish and South-Irish Chieftains in this city, was anxiously awaited by London to-day.

The fact that a truce between crown forces in Ireland and Sinn Fein would become effective at noon Monday was taken as an indication, in some quarters, that the meeting of Mr. De Valera and Mr. Lloyd George would not be long delayed.

Mr. Lloyd George left for Chequers Court, his Suburban home, to-day in company with General Jan Smuts and other Dominion Premiers who are in London attending the conference. It seemed probable that during the week end at Chequers Court, arrangements would be made for a meeting between the Prime Minister and leading Sinn Feiners.

HORSE CAN'T DIGEST ELECTRIC CURRENT

Cornwall, July 9.—A singular accident happened in the blacksmith shop of M. Bailey, Winchester, yesterday, by which William Link of Cass Bridge lost a valuable horse, worth, it is claimed, more than $200. The horse, which was highly excitable and nervous animal, was brought in to be shod. Above its head hung an electric wire for light. The horse in its nervous state made a snap at the wire and caught it in its teeth, when it immediately fell to the floor, dead. There was no mark of burning about the horse's mouth.

FRENCH WARSHIPS COME TO MONTREAL FOR JULY 14

Quebec, July 8.—The French gunboat Ville d'Ys, arrived in Quebec this morning and was greeted by a salute from the Citadel. She had been doing duty on the Banks, protecting French fisheries rights. The Vile d'Ys, under the command of Capt. du Refida Beaudry, has a crew of 100, with 11 officers She is lying alongside the French cruiser Antares, in the breakwater, and the two warships will go to Montreal for the Bastille Day celebration on July 14.

Earl of Craven Loses His Life

MAYFAIR IS SHOCKED AT THE DROWNING OF NOBLE AT COWES

London, July 11.—Fashionable May fair was shocked this afternoon by the report of the drowning of the Earl of Craven.

The Earl of Craven arrived at Cowes yesterday afternoon in his yacht Sylvia from Southampton, visiting the royal yacht squadron and returning to his own yacht at midnight.

On account of the heat the Earl remained on the deck throughout the night. His valet coming to wake him this morning found the bed of his master had not been occupied.

Early to-day, it later was learned, residents on the shore heard strange moans, and judging from this it is thought the Earl was carried out to sea on the ebb tide and probably drowned off Egpty, a point, situated half a mile from the anchoring place of the nobleman's yacht.

The body of the Earl of Craven was recovered from the rocks two miles from Cowes this evening.

William George Robert Craven was the fourth Earl of Craven, the title dating from 1801. He was born in 1863, succeeding his father to the title in 1883 and married Cornelia, daughter of the late Bradley Martin, of New York, in 1893. He had one son.

STRIKING CHANGES

Rome, June 22.—The new Italian Parliament will have some striking characteristics. The provinces annexed to Italy in consequence of the great war are sending four Germans and five Slavs to their new capitol to sit in the Chamber of Deputies and among the Slavs there is a priest, the Rev. Virgilio Schelz, who has been elected for the Gorizia constituency.

No priest, has sat in the Chamber since 1870, when the temporal power was lost to the Pope. It was said that the Vatican had forbidden this Slav clerical member to press his candidature, but the official announcement of his election is now published.

Prairie Farmers Bid For Hatfield

DEMAND FOR "RAINMAKER'S" SERVICES FROM MANY PARTS

Lethbridge, Alta., July 8.—Rainmaker Hatfield has not brought rain this week in southern Alberta, but his demonstration of real raining ability given last week-end has resulted in a demand for his services from other districts which have been having drought troubles this season. The farmers of Rockyford and Strathmore have been flirting with him during the first few days in an effort to sign him up for next season.

However, the rain-maker has let it be known that the Medicine Hat farmers have the first call on him for the 1922 season and at a meeting of the Medicine Hat United Agricultural Society to be held July 15 they will decide whether they want to retain his services for next year.

Just what their decision will be depends on what Mr. Hatfield does in the meantime. There was quite a reviving of crops after the last big rain and another good rain during the next few days would result in a fair crop in many districts where Hatfield's name was not mentioned above a whisper ten days ago. The indications are good that it will come.

Valera's Instructions

London, July 11.—Irish Office states this afternoon that Eamonn de Valera had issued instructions to his supporters to cease all attacks upon civilians and to discontinue military manoeuvres of all kinds. Instructions from de Valera, Irish Office said, also were to prohibit the use of arms, to abstain from interference with public or private property, and to discountenance and prevent action likely to cause disturbance of peace which might necessitate military interference. The instructions were effective from noon Monday, it was added.

Leipzig Trials Disgust Allies

FRENCH WITHDRAW MISSION AFTER FARCICAL SENTENCES OF GERMAN COURT

Paris, July 8.—The French Government has informed its allies that it has withdrawn the French Mission appointed to follow the trials in Leipzig of Germans accused of violating the rules of civilized warfare.

An exchange of views has been going on between the allied Governments as to the attitude to be taken in view of the verdicts rendered in the cases thus far decided. The French are particularly indignant because of the acquittal, Wednesday, of Lieutenant-General Stenger, who was charged with ordering his troops to kill French wounded and prisoners, and the hostile attitude of the Leipzig crowds toward the allied missions.

The newspapers comment bitterly of the result of the trials, some of them suggesting that, since there is no justice to be obtained in Leipzig, the French troops will remain on the Rhine.

GOVT. SOLVES PROBLEM

Rome, June 22—Somehow the Italian government has solved the problem of a cheap national cigar. Prices of tobacco have been soaring to such luxurious heights that the ordinary cigar smoker could not purchase. According, experts were assigned the task of getting up a new cigar. They have just announced their accomplishments of the task. The new cigar will soon be put on the market and will sell for two cents. It will resemble the Pittsburgh stogie in shape.

U.S. Has Choice of Two Courses

VERSAILLES TREATY WITH AMENDMENTS OR NEW PEACE TREATY

Washington, July 9.—Administration study of the German peace treaty problem has now narrowed to two definite courses of action.

1.—Re-submission of the reaty of Versailles, with specific reservations and amendments, eliminating the League of Nations covenant and other political provisions in which this Government does not wish to become involved, and;

2.—Drafting of a new treaty, but containing the important economic clauses of the Versailles pact.

The President is expected to choose between these two proposals, because, in the opinion of his leading advisers, there could be no other course by which the rights of this country in world settlements could be adequately protected.

Both proposals accept as their premise the belief of the president's advisers that the Congressional resolution means nothing but the establishment of a technical state of peace. Both further accept the point that if American rights in the world are to be properly protected, the specific provisions in the Versailles Treatry under which the Allied Powers are protected, must be embodied in the American treaty of peace.

TO PREVENT SMUGGLING

Hamilton, Bermuda, June 25.—The Colonial Parliament has just passed a special law to prevent liquor smuggling from Bermuda to the United States Anyone putting intoxicants aboard a vessel bound to American ports incurs a fine £25 and the penalty for a second offense of £50. Local dealers who are found to be in connivance with the law-breakers are penalized and may be deprived of their licenses.

This law, which is now in effect, was brought about thanks to the reckless maner of carrying on illicit operations during the past year. Not only were hiding places for "booze" in all parts of the ships utilized, but the smugglers went so far as to open up barrels of potatoes in the hold and insert whiskey bottles.

Discovery of this practice led to an outcry from local produce shippers who foresaw interference with their deliveries entailing delay and money losses. The Bermudians were concerned over the possibility of having the liners held up at New York by Federal agents to the peril of legitimate trade and the interruption of tourist traffic on which local prosperity so largely depends.

The recent capture, off the Carolina coast, of a schooner with 45 barrels of whiskey loaded here at St. Georges, also had its effect in hastening legislation.

Flaming Meteor Explodes in Sky

STRANGE PHENOMENON WITNESSED AT SASKATOON

Saskatoon, July 8.—A terrific hail, wind and electric storm which swept the Canora, Sask., district Thursday evening, damaging crops, flattening garden stuff and transforming roads into rivers of mud, was followed by an astral phenomenon, in the shape of a meteor, which tore through a clear sky in rain of sparks. The big red ball made a whizzing noise as it travelled in a northwesterly direction and exploded, leaving a small cloud in the heavens. The strange sight was visible for a score of miles on all sides of Canora. Damage done by the hailstones, which in some parts measured half an inch in diameter, has not yet been estimated, though farm-

SOMEWHAT COOLER

On Sunuay afternoon and evening thunder storms were general in this locality but no rain fell in the city At Frankford a down pour was experienced water running over the sidewalks and roads. In the vicinity of Foxboro the storm was heavy in the afternoon, but no damage resulted. Some residents who were upon the bay about 9 o'clock in the evening in motor boats and other crafts were caught in a heavy shower, but fortunately the wind was light. There was a drop of a few degrees in the temperature on Saturday and Sunday. On Saturday the thermometer showed the maximum to e 87 and minimum 73. Sunday the reading was 87 maximum and 69 minimum. Today there was considerable humidity in the air.

Orders Made by Both Sides to Make Truce Effective

EAMONN DE VALERA, LEADER OF IRISH REPUBLICANS, AGREES TO CONFER WITH THE BRITISH — PEACE RESTORED AFTER CENTURY OF CONFLICT.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

DUBLIN, July 11.—A truce in Ireland, agreed upon by Government officials and Republican leaders, pending peace negotiations, went into effect at noon today.

In Dublin the complete disappearance from the streets of military police, lorries and armored cars marked the official beginning of the truce.

In Londonderry, according to the terms of the truce, the police at noon were summoned to their barracks and handed in their revolvers, subsequently resuming street duty unarmed.

In Belfast, where disorders began on Sunday and were still continuing in a lesser degree this forenoon, the police were still retaining their arms.

QUIET PREVAILS.

BELFAST, July 11.—Quiet was reported to be prevailing in all districts of the city this morning, following yesterday's disorders and bloodshed. Inquiries at hospitals showed that persons wounded during yesterday's riot were, on the whole, progressing satisfactorily, although a few were believed to be in a critical condition. About sixty persons are still in hospital.

CONFERENCE ON THURSDAY.

LONDON, July 11.—Eamonn de Valera will come to London on Thursday of this week for his conference with Mr. Lloyd George to discuss the basis of settlement of the Irish problem. An official announcement to this effect was issued this afternoon.

A Turkish Joan of Arc Appears

Agora, Turkey, July 11.—A Turkish Joan of Arc, Aishe Hanum, has started a woman's fighting brigade against the Greeks. Her organization, called the Kain brigade, has already taken part in active fighting and she is constantly enrolling new recruits.

This is the first time in Turkish history that a woman has been so militantly active. She has been dubbed by the people of Anatolia, "The Conqueror." Her personality is in distinct contrast to the beautiful Halide Edib Hanum, the writer and graduate of the American Constantinople College, who has been so active in Nationalist politics for two years and fled to the interior in March, 1920, to escape imprisonment by the Allies.

Aishe Hanum is a stern, dark woman of the soil, aged 52 sees visions and believes she is inspired by the Prophet. She wears a veil but has cast aside skirts. She carries a rifle and when not at the front goes through the villages accompanied by her 15-year-old son, urging the peasants to contribute food and money and their able-bodied women to cast out the enemy stranger from the homeland.

As Nationalist soldiers, the uniform of the Kadin Brigade corresponds to that of its leader.

Indirectly, Aishe Hanum is doing as much as Halide Hanum to emancipate the Turkish woman, when she began her work, the Turkish men, who dislike to have women interfere in politics, tried to force her to return to her farm. But, by the courage born of her visions, Aishe Hanum has continued until she is recognized as an aid to the Nationalists.

Two Young Men Drowned at Peterboro

FINDING OF CLOTHES ON BANK LEADS TO DISCOVERY OF BODIES

Peterboro, July 8.—Gordon Roseborough, aged 25, and Roger Trennum, aged 20, of Smith township were drowned in Mississauga Creek at Scott's Mills, about 25 miles north of here Wednesday afternoon, while bathing alone. Their clothes were discovered beside a pool by Stanley Roseborough a brother of one of the vicitims who set out in search of them when they had not returned home Wednesday evening. A further search yesterday afternoon ended in the recovery of their bodies. Both young men were sons of widows and managers of their mother's farms.

SWORN IN TO-DAY

Washington, July 11.—William H. Taft was sworn in as Chief Justice of the United States.

Anxiously Awaiting Message from De Valera

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press, Limited

London, July 11.—Premier Lloyd George was to-day awaiting message from Eamonn de Valera, fixing a day upon which they would meet in this city for discussion of basis of settlement of the Irish problems. Mr. Lloyd George who spent the week-end at Chequers Court with Premiers of British Dominions, returned to London this morning to arrange final details for his meeting with Mr. De Valera, which may mark an epoch in relations of Ireland and Great Britain. A truce between the crown forces and Irish Republican army became effective to-day at noon but there were many apprehensions that extremists on both sides of the bitter controversy in Ireland would be hard to control. Yesterday's rioting in Belfast during which at least fifteen persons were killed and nearly one hundred injured aroused grace fears over incidents which might happen to-morrow, the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne. It appeared to-day that conversations between Mr. De Valera and Prime Minister would revolve around granting of Dominion status to Ireland upon conditions that Sinn Fein demand for establishment of Irish Republic would be abandoned.

Sir Sam Hughes to Resign Seat

SUGGESTS HIS SUCCESSOR BE ELECTED BY ACCLAMMATION

Lindsay, July 8.—In a letter written to Mrs. J. C. McNevin, wife of the late U.F.O. candidate, who was to oppose the Conservative member for the Federal House, Sir Sam Hughes not only extended his sincere sympathy and consolation, but took the occasion to intimate that he was about to retire from active politics,, and suggested that all parties get together and elect a member by acclammation, thus avoiding a by-election, and allowing him to retire with honor. Sir Sam suggested T. H. Stinson, Crown Attorney of Lindsay, as the right man for the position, judging the feeling of the people of both parties.

CURFEW RINGS AGAIN

Belfast, July 11.—Curfew was reimposed here today as the result of the disorders of Sunday. Belfast now is the only place in Ireland under the curfew regulation, despite the truce, by which the curfew was raised generally.

MEMBERS MEET PRIVATELY

Dublin, July 11—All available members of the Dail Eireann, or Irish Republican Parliament, returned at the last election, met in private at Mansion House today.

A FAVORITE SUMMER RESORT

St. Andrew's, N.B., July 11.—While the people of the provinces of Quebec and Ontario during the past week or two have been sweltering under heat and humidity of an exceptional dry spell and the thermometer raising as high as ninety-five in the shade with little possibility of a change residents in St. Andrews have had the satisfaction of an average temperature of less than seventy. On the third and seventh of this month the temperature rose four points higher, and on the first it was down to sixty-two. St. Andrews is situated on a delightful elevation overlooking the Atlantic ocean and the cool breezes that come across the water make it an ideal resting place from the excessive heat of the neighboring western provinces. The effects of the C. P. R. have made it possible for visitors to indulge in practically every form of summer recreation, which means no hardship owing to the wonderful cool atmosphere conditions that prevail. Algonquin Park possesses magnificent accommodation, beautiful golf links which overlook the sea; swimming pool, tennis courts, bowling indoors and out. To say nothing of the wonderful dancing floor of the pretty casino where music is discoursed by one of the best orchestras on the continent. The fishing and boating are very popular and visitors have one round of gaiety from morning until night. The evenings are delightfully cool and sea air is very bracing.

200 EMPLOYES KILLED

Reval, Esthonia, June 20.—The Moscow newspaper, Economic Life asserts that during the month of May more than 200 employes of the Bolshevik Food Department, making requisitions of food etc., in the country, were killed by peasants or bandits.

Toronto Woman Makes Big Gain

Only Weighed 85 Pounds Before She Got Tanlac, But Now Tips Scales at 130 Pounds

"My troubles pulled me down from a hundred and five to eighty-five pounds in weight, but Tanlac has restored my health and built me up to a hundred and thirty pounds and I just can't praise it enough," said Mrs. F. MacInnis, of 119 Wellesley Cres., Toronto.

"Before I got Tanlac by long-standing troubles seemed to have undermined my entire health and I was in a terribly run-down condition. Everything I ate would nauseate me, and I had such frightful headaches and dizzy spells they simply caused me untold agony. I had rheumatism in my knees so bad I could hardly bend them, and was so nervous the least little noise would make me jump. At night sleep was almost out of the question, and I felt as bad of mornings as if I hadn't gone to bed at all. In spite of all I could do I kept getting worse and was just about ready to give up in despair.

"It's nothing less than remarkable how Tanlac has put an end to my troubles and set me right, for it has given me a ravenous appetite and actually built me up forty-five pounds in weight. I digest my food perfectly now, and never feel a sign of rheumatism and sleep like a child every night. In fact I'm feeling fine in every way and am just as thankful as I can be for the good health Tanlas has given me."

Tanlac is Sold in Belleville at Ostrom's Drug Store.

Attorney-General may appoint a new police magistrate for Toronto.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

SKILFUL PRESENTATION OF CLEVER COMEDY-DRAMA

Sparkling comedy is cleverly blended with appealing pathos which leads to a dramatic climax in "The Smart Sex", the Universal comedy-drama which is the feature attraction at Griffin's to-night to Wednesday. Eva Novak, who has made her popularity permanent through her former Universal photodramas is the featured player of the picture.

As the story opens the girl is seen trudging up a railroad track with a goose waddling alongside. They are leaving a theatrical company that has become stranded in the country town. From then on the wayfarers are thrown into serio-comic situations which provide for much rich humor. It all ends well and with a conflicting twang on the heartstrings which will be pleasing to those for whom romance has an appeal.

Frank Braidwood and Geoffrey Webb appear as Miss Novak's principal masculine supporters, while Mrs. Margaret Mann, the gifted interpreter of mother roles, has one of the leading characters parts. Theatregoers who seek the unusual in screen stories will find in "The Smart Set" that satisfaction which comes from a skilful presentation of a clever comedy-drama by players admirably suited to their roles.

"Toonersville Fire Brigade' 'another of the popular 2-reel Fontaine Fox Toonersville comedy series, Screen Snapshots, showing famous screen stars at work and play, the third chapter of the mystery serial "Velvet Fingers" and other attractions will be exhibited on the same program.

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

The Hound Wins

J.C.—I not only saw, but heard the most unearthly howling ever at three a.m. on one of our warmest nights, or rather mornings. After one long-drawn out howl, I got out of bed and went in search of a rock, then I saw the specimen which made the racket a big, mournful-looking hound, sitting on his haunches, nose pointed skyward, mouth opening spasmodically and emitting the awf'lest howls. However, the rock travelled in his direction. Result—hound ran—so did I—he travelled about a block—and sat down in the centre of the road and gathered round him a half dozen of his confreres and Oh, Boy! what a concert—a jazz band is altogether too mild. Their voices didn't harmonize but the air surely moved with all that song. These hounds are useless and are a perfect pest to the entire neighborhood.

Forbidden Fruit

M.M.—One day recently I saw a sign which had been put in Bill John's woods bearing the following inscription "20 dollars fine for any one caught in the act of trespassing." My opinion is that it is a very mean act as the people, that is several of them, of our city have been wont to go to these woods for a breathing spell from the terrific heat of the city, and as far as I have ever heard or seen no damage has been done in the woods. Many children will thus be done out of a cool spot to play and rest and also will miss their cool dips in the water, a body of which is located in this woods.

Bigger and Better?

M.M.—I see in the paper that they want a bigger and better Belleville, our city is a nice city but it makes me sick. The other day a lady trying to rent a house but she was refused because she had children. How is the city going to be a Bigger and Better one without any children, I would suggest an increase in the population and build houses, which are not too beautifully finished to house our children. Look alive you pushers for a Bigger and Better City. Results are wanted, not things that might be accomplished in the next century or so. Get busy and start something.

Good Offer

J.C.M.—I heard a rumor to the effect that two members of the G.T.R. Baseball team received a fine offer from the Madoc team. No names were mentioned but I know Fred Goyer and Bill Mills are not the recipients. After the errors on Saturday, though, we're not surprised. Are you, Mr. Baseball Fan?

Novel House

M.E.—Going down West Bridge street I saw the most novel conveyance I have ever seen. It was a miniature house, door, windows, shingles and tiney chimney, painted cream, trimmed with green, set on a Ford chassis. It had Cream of Barley Soup in red letters on the ends and sides, flowers in the windows and tiny screens. It halted in front of the Post Office and that was the last I saw of it. From what I could see it came from Bowmanville, and is really advertising Cream of Barley Soup. Many people stopped to have a look at it.

Why Gall Stones Cause Suffering

By WM. P. REDICK, D.C. Ph. C.

If ever as a child you hurriedly tried to swallow a bite too big for easy passage intothe stomach, you have some idea of the way suffering is caused by gall stones. The gall bladder tries to pass the stones out through an opening too small.

Gall stones are caused by disturbance of the heating function of the gall bladder, which causes the contents to crystallize. Spinal nerves have a calorific or heating function, and gall stones are caused by disturbance of the calorific or heat function of the nerves. Pressure at the spine causes this disturbance, and chiropractic spinal adjustments removing the pressure, restore health.

GALL STONES SUFFERING ENDS

"It gives me pleasure to advise that after twenty chiropractic spinal adjustments over two years ago, there has been no return of gall stones. Previously I frequently passed these stones, and at such times I had no relief except from the hypodermic injections. My present condition is proof of the great value of chiropractic.—W. H. Mackinnon, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 1271H.

HEALTH BEGINS

When your health begins depends on when you telephone 900 for an appointment.

Nine Reasons Why Spinal Neglect is a crime

1. The backbone is the foundation of the body.
2. It is composed of 26 joints, 24 of which are movable.
3. From between these joints radiate the nerves of the body.
4. When these joints are in alignment the nerve openings are full sizes and the nerves deliver 100% of their power.
5. A nerve under pressure at the backbone opening causes disease in the part it serves.
6. Chiropractic removes the pressure by an adjustment by hand, and this adjustment opens the way for health (free nerve energy).
7. If chiropractic seems too simple to do all that it can do, remember that every phenomena of growth is caused by as simple a thing as heat.
8. To neglect the backbone invites disease, which is a crime because it is in violation of Nature's laws.
9. Don't be a criminal.

HERE THERE AND EVERYWHERE

Peterboro Wins on Errors

We wonder how it was possible that it happened, but it did. Jakie Solomon's slick nine put the far-famed Grand Trunks back a notch. The Grand Trunks lost two easy games at the first of the season and then won seven successive games. Although the Petes came down to our fair burg with the expectancy of winning we never for one moment thought that expectation would be realized, but in the midst of our sunshine we had rain. With our 15c. bleachers packed and the grandstand full we thought the game was well in hand—but we were badly mistaken.

It took nearly all of Jakie's supply of pitchers to win the game—but it's all in the game, and it's tough the Trunks haven't got a few more like our own Freddy. Mr. Rosevear on strikes and balls and the Rev. D. C. Ramsay on bases were both impartial with their decisions, and nothing escaped their eagle eyes. The game was called at 2.45 by Rosevear and the fireworks commenced.

FIRST INNING.

Peterboro—L. Rose grounded to Williams. R. Rose doubled over first, and when Soup Goyer missed the throw, was safe on first. Harrison singled over short and R. Rose scored. Cherritt sacrificed, putting Lowe, who was running for Harrison, on second, being out at first himself. Lowe took third when Freddy uncorked a wild pitch. Ross struck out. One run, 2 hits, 2 errors.

Belleville — Weir walked. Ross raised a pop fly to second. Weir stole second. Casey lined to first baseman and was out, but Weir got to third. W. Mills grounded to third. No runs, hits or errors.

SECOND INNING.

Peterboro—Murray fanned. Jackson tripled past third. Lowe whiffed, also McElroy. Freddy pitched himself out of a nice hole here, with a man on third. No runs, hits or errors.

Belleville—Soup grounded to McElroy. H. Mills grounded to first. Sammy Symons flew to McElroy, who muffed; safe on first. Williams singled over short, Symons reaching second. Freddy walked, filling the bases. Weir walked, forcing in Symons, and the bases were still full. Ross raised a foul, and the Peterboro catcher, after knocking the ump. down, smothered it. It was a glorious chance gone a-glimmering. One run, 1 hit, 1 error.

THIRD INNING.

Peterboro—L. Rose grounded to H. Mills. R. Rose reached first on grounder to Soup. Ross took Harrison's skyscraper for a pretty catch and got R. Rose stealing second.—No runs, no hits, one error.

Belleville — Casey grounded to Harrison, out at first. W. Mills singled over second. Soup sacrificed him to second. H. Mills raised an easy one to Cherritt.—No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

FOURTH INNING.

Peterboro—Cherritt reached first on grounder to Williams. Ross forced Cherritt to second on bunt to Freddy. At this point of the game D. C. Ramsay warned Jakie, our little fat comedian, to stay off the field and quit unnecessary agitating. Ross started to steal second, but changed his mind and was run down by Bill Mills. Murray whiffed.—No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

Belleville — Symons grounded to Cherritt. Williams tried to make first when catcher missed third strike, but no luck. Freddy got a free ticket to first when McElroy tried to bury the ball in his ribs. Weir walked for the third successive time. Ross doubled over second and Freddy scored. McElroy tried to bean Casey, and Casey promptly took first, and with Babe Ruth (Bill Mills) at bat the game looked good. Jakie, using discretion, replaced McElroy with Kearn, and with the bases full Mills knocked the pill for a two-bagger, but the right fielder promptly mopped it up. One run, 1 hit, 2 errors.

FIFTH INNING.

Peterboro—Jackson fanned. Lowe safe when Freddy mussed his bunt. Kearn reached first on grounder to Soup. L. Rose grounded to Freddy. Casey took Rose's fly for the third out. No runs, no hits, 2 errors.

Belleville—Soup grounded to second baseman. H. Mills grounded to Harrison. Meagher, batting for Symons, out at first on grounder to Cherritt. —No runs, no hits, no errors.

SIXTH INNINGS.

Peterboro—Harrison hit first pitched ball a terrific slam over second, and Lowe, running for him, got to second on Ross' overthrow to first. The game was delayed here while our star backstop got his hand patched up. Cherritt bunted to Freddy, who threw to third to catch Lowe, but everyone was safe when Soup dropped the ball. Cherritt stole second and Ross knocked a single over short, scoring Lowe and Cherrit, Ross taking second on the throw in. Murray struck out. Jackson walked. Lowe lined to Weir. Kearn whiffed.—Two runs, 3 hits, 1 error.

Belleville—Williams flew to Cherritt. Freddy grounded to second. Weir grounded to Kearn. No runs, hits or errors.

SEVENTH INNING.

Peterboro—L. Rose singled over second. R. Rose helped his brother along by sacrificing. Harrison slammed a triple over second and L. Rose scored. Meagher mussed up Cherritt's grounder and he was safe and Lowe scored. Ross bunted to Meagher, and when Weir dropped the throw at second everyone was safe. Murray struck out, and Weir misjudged Jackson's grounder, it going over his head, Ross and Cherritt scoring. Lowe grounded to Williams.—Three runs, 3 hits, 3 errors.

Belleville—Ross reached first on a grounder to Cherritt. Cherritt grabbed Casey's grounder, got Ross on second and Casey on first in neat double play. Bill Mills walked, and Soup grounded to first.—No runs, no hits, 1 error.

EIGHTH INNINGS.

Peterboro—Kearn reached first on a grounder to Weir. Freddy let a wild pitch slip and Kearn went to second. L. Rose sacrificed to Williams. R. Rose struck out. Freddy let another wild pitch slip and Kearn scored. Harrison grounded to Williams. One run, no hits, 3 errors.

Belleville—H. Mills flew to left fielder. Meagher singled over first. Williams slid over to the centre fielder and when the c.f. threw wild everyone advanced a base. Freddy singled over second, Meagher and Williams scoring, Freddy stopping on second. Jakie determined not to let the game slip through his hands and again changed pitchers, putting Harrison, best first baseman and all-round player ever invented, on the mound. Weir grounded to Cherritt. Ross hit over third, Freddy scoring. Casey skied to second, ending the rally. Three runs, 3 hits, 1 error.

NINTH INNING.

Peterboro—Weir made a nice catch of Cherritt's pop fly. Ross whiffed. Murray grounded to Meagher.—No runs, no hits, no errors.

Belleville—Bill Mills out at first when Murray knocked down his hard drive. Soup singled to third. H. Mills flew to the pitcher. Soup stole second and Meagher struck out.—No runs, hits or errors.

NOTES.

With three pitchers who couldn't win a game.

The third base seemed to be a Jynx Saturday; no one seemed to get past it very often, and the fielding was not very classy.

We didn't notice many Peterboro fans. They must have been expecting a licking and wanted to be absent.

Each and every invididual player worked hard, and if any player makes a few slips forget it—all players have their "off" days.

Hap Harrison on first seemed to be the object of the comment of all the fans, his magnificent work being A1.

Freddy and Peeney were in the pink of condition and worked hard.

H. Mills on first, Williams on second, and Frank Goyer, who seemed away off color during the entire game, on third, worked hard, and no unnecessary delay was caused by them.

It was rumored that Belleville has the greatest bunch of rooters to follow the team in the C. O. League.

Casey, Symons and Ross in the field mopped up everything in their line, as did Meagher when he was on the job.

Harrison must enjoy a game of ball when he'd play with a knee as big as a watermelon—you know the kind we used to steal from old Hiram Jones' melon patch!

Cherritt is certainly a snappy short stop and Murray on third make a good combination for the infield.

Jakie Solomon is one great manager. His judgment of when to pull a pitcher out was A1.

Peterboro's field is the nearest thing to perfect yet seen here.

Give the Petes our battery and they'd play as a second Baltimore.

Our boys all did their best, but it just happened to be their off day. The fans do not feel the sting of defeat any more than the members of the team. What the field seems to need, as far as we can judge, is more rigid discipline, obey their manager, and swallow their own petty likes and dislikes in an effort to put the G.T.R. team on a pedestal, with the Ontario Trophy and the C. O. L. Trophy. Here's hoping!

CULTIVATION OF FLAX

The opportunity that exists for the cultivation of flax and the probability of a ready market being found for all that Canada can produce is suggested by the fact that the production of Flax in Russia fell from 1,151,98,320 pounds in 1913 to 90,282,000 pounds in 1920, a drop of over a billion pounds. In view of this state of affairs increased attention is being give by scientists in this country to research regarding the growth of flax. A series of plots of new varieties have been sown at Ottawa to be harvested for fibre purposes. Arrangements have been made to carry on the resetting under suitable conditions so that the quality of the fibre may be fairly representative in order that the different sorts can be easily compared. There are two principal grades of flax fibre, warp and weft, which are further divided according to qualities. Warp is generally broader fibred, stronger and more ribbony flax, and the yarn spun from this is used by weavers for the longitudinal threads of the cloth. Weft is soft, more pliable flax, not necessarily so strong as warp and is used for the yarn which grows in the shuttle running across the cloth to fill it up. The value of flax is primarily dependent on its strength. The color should be uniform, but spinners do not attach so much importance to color as they used to do provided that the substance has the required strength and quality. Silkiness and oiliness are essential to a high standard. The removal of all slime and dirt from the flax, especially at the root ends, is another necessity.

Consider This, Canadian Manufacturers

You can buy more advertising for less money in Daily Newspapers than you can buy in any other medium that enters the home.

And, after all is said and done, the place where most of you want your advertising to have its greatest effect is in the home. Isn't that so?

Remember, then, that the daily newspaper is the FUNDAMENTAL ADVERTISING MEDIUM.

That is why so many manufacturers are cutting out the "frills of advertising" and confining their advertising efforts to daily newspapers.

ANCIENT GREECE AND ROME KNEW THE ADVANTAGES OF ADVERTISING.

Advertising is by no means a modern idea, although modern methods have contributed to its vast development. The art of advertising was not unknown in ancient Greece and Rome, and the ruins of Pompeii and Herculaneum furnish examples of the style of making public announcements employed in those days. The walls of the most frequented parts of these cities were covered with notices painted in black and red, and amongst these the featuring of plays and gladiatorial shows is quite frequent, while others extol the merits of salt water and fresh water baths. In still earlier times, especially among the Greeks, a common medium of advertisement was the public crier, and this form of making things known is quite common in the smaller towns and villages of Europe at the present day.

It is supposed that the first bona fide attempt at newspaper work in England was in the year 1642, when the outbreak of the civil war caused an unusual demand for news. This suggested to a bookseller and pamphleteer the idea of printing a weekly newspaper, and in due time he issued a long advertisement, but, like most innovations in those days, his attempt met with an indifferent reception, and was greeted in the literary world with a shower of invectives.

"LOVELY SMYRNA" THE WAR PRIZE.

Until Turkey's flag floats above "Lovely Smyrna" there can be no peace between the Greeks and the Turks, various Constantinople organs declare, while a Nationalist newspaper of Angora laughs derisively at a reported congress of Turks at Rome to secure foreign mediation in the Greco-Turkish conflict. These persons have no mandate, either official or private, from the National Assembly at Angora, according to the Angora Hakimiet-i-Millie, which adds:

"In our view, the fight can be ended only in one way: by the evacuation of Smyrna and Thrace by the Greeks. As long as these Greeks remain in Anatolia they will not find a single Turk who will be willing to enter into direct or indirect negotiations with them. As long as the Greeks are in Anatolia, the only means of talking to them is through the Turkish army, which will express itself in the language of cannon, rifle and sword until its voice is heard in Smyrna Bay."

The Constantinople Turkish daily Ileri recalls on the "second anniversary of the surprise of Smyrna" that the Young Turkish army is only a year old. It is true the Red Ottoman flag does not yet unroll "above the Smyrna quays; the harbor is not yet open, as before, to the commerce of the world; foreigners and natives do not yet enjoy the quiet of old," and poor Smyrna, "like hapless Saloniki, gives the impression of a dried-up spring." But, this journal confidently predicts:

"The dream for which we have been struggling for two years—even in the opinion of the most far-sighted foreign statesmen and the most important organs of the foreign press—is in a fair way to be realized. The Turkish flag will soon be floating over lovely Smyrna."

How this all seems to the Greeks may be judged from the remark of the Greek Proodos to the effect that:

"'On May 16, 1919, Ionia, the centre of Greek hopes for ages, after a slavery of six centuries, began its new epoch of history. It commenced to breathe once more. Since the pan-Hellenic upheaval of 1821, since the constitution of the kingdom, the coming of the Greeks to Smyrna marks certainly the most glorious page in the New Greek restoration. For this occupation was undertaken not simply for the usual territorial advantages. Greece was called to enter Asia Minor by sacred traditions and great interests. The appearance of the Hellenic army on these shores, where the Greek spirit had shone out most brilliantly, was the symbol of a historic return. Greece, by throwing this great bridge across the Aegean, has found once more the road toward national development. Greek unity without Smyrna, Greek security without a firm foothold in Asia Minor, would be artificial and useless."

THE FAIRIES

Say the fairies, "Grief is on Ireland;
wherever we pass,
The glens are full of the moaning of murdered men,
How can we thread our way through the blood on the grass?
How can we ever have heart to dance
again?
Wherever we trip in the night-time
along the green grass
We meet the cold scorn of the moonlight on bayonet blades.
Sorrow and sorrow for Ireland." Say
the fairies.

"Where are the happy grey mothers that, marketing, tired at night,
Trailed home in the starlight and heard us singing and knew
That somewhere deep in the shadow, decked in our green and white,
We were guards of their going and watched their feet in the dew?
Where are the happy maidens, the girls with the laughing eyes?
We hear no sound of sobbing; no harp
on the village green,
Calls to the country dances; the world
is a world of sighs,
And the children are no more seen.
Sorrow, sorrow for Ireland." Say the fairies.

"The beauty is stolen from Ireland.
Munster and Connaught mourn;
Fear is abroad on the Wicklow hills;
red, red is the glen.
We shall sing no more in the marshes we shall dance no more by the thorn,
Till joy comes back to the Irish girls and pride to the Irish men."

He Really Wouldn't

An elderly woman went to the post office clerk in great concern and asked if he would give back a letter she had posted in a pillar-box two miles away. He told her it was impossible and inquired why she wanted it.

"Oh!" said the old soul, "I've done a dreadful thing. I've put the stamp on upside down. Do you think the King will mind?"

WOMAN GAIN FREEDOM.

Turks Find That Their Females Are Growing Modern.

The command of the Sheik-ul-Islam, Vicar of the Sultan, ordering Turkish women not to appear on the stage, is being ignored by them. The German-Austrian and Allied occupations of Constantinople, together with the loss of husbands, fathers, and brothers, and the press of poverty, has brought a new freedom to Turkish women. This is daily seen by their clothing.

They wear their veils still, instead of a hat, but turned back and tied into a pretty knot, after the manner of their Russian refugee sisters.

Because of the high price of cloth, Turkish women no longer wear a multitude of garments, designed in old time to hide the outlines of their figures. Both veil and dresses are a deep sea blue, instead of the dull conventional black once the custom. Some affect the homespun brown dress, the becoming garment designed by Halide Hanum, the Nationalist woman leader.

These changes have dissipated the mystery which once enveloped the Turkish woman and travelers find that she does not differ in looks very much from others. On an average, they are not so good looking as the Anglo-Saxon woman. The difference may be said to lie in their timidity. Even this quality is dissipated quickly when they come in contact with foreigners, as is the case in the mixed receptions given at the Constantinople College for Girls. At such receptions the Turkish girls and women talk brightly and cleverly with British naval officers and other guests, and sometimes take part in the dancing and flirtations.

Queer Ant Antics.

You would think it was hardly possible to know a particular ant from another belonging to the same species.

We can distinguish an individual horse, dog, or cow from mothers of their kind. Shepherds know every sheep in their flock; a huntsman will call any hound in the pack by name, though to untrained eyes all look alike. But we can see distinct differences when they are pointed out to us—differences in coloring, shape, and size.

Amongst ants of the same species we can detect no such differences, even with the aid of the strongest magnifying glass; all appear exactly alike in every way. Yet ants recognize each other, though what hidden sense enables them to do so is not known.

If we take an ant from a nest and replace him after a short time, we shall find that those who are on sentry-go will go up to him and submit him to an examination. One of them stands in front of him and touches him with his "feelers"; he is immediately recognized as a brother and allowed to go on his way.

But if we take an ant from another nest, the case is altered. The sentry, after making his examination, attacks him at once. Any others who are near do the same, and the intruder is torn to pieces by their powerful jaws.

The same power of recognition is possessed by bees and wasps.

Primitive Man and the Screw.

It is no doubt true that nearly all human inventions have been suggested by natural objects. Fremont of the French School of Mines points out an interesting example in the case of the screw, the fundamental idea of which he believes, was suggested to primitive man by the spiral shape of the edible snail. It was not the shape of the shell that suggested the screw, but the spiral motion which it is necessary to give to the body of the snail in order to withdraw it from the shell. This at once showed that an object of a screw shape embedded in a solid powerfully resisted attempts to withdraw it by a straight pull. The hint was enough, and the screw became one of the earliest of man's inventions.

Convicts' Cunning.

Armed with spades, shovels, crowbars, heavy hammers, and all sorts of tools, it may have been wondered why gangs of convicts working in the open do not make organized attacks on the warders set to guard them.

An old convict knows that it is no good attacking a warder. If he kills him he will be hanged; if he hurts him he will be severely punished. He therefore resorts to another method. He persuades a novice to attack a warder, and then fells him with his spade, thereby getting a remission of his sentence.

Dividends From Memorials.

Planting of black walnut trees as memorials to soldiers is recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture. It is pointed out that the black walnut played a valiant part in the world war. The wood was used for gunstocks and airplane propellers, and the nutshells contributed carbon for gas masks, while the kernels were used in many delicacies for the boys in the trenches. Demand for the wood for war purposes depleted the number of fine old trees, and this method is suggested for filling their places.

Austrian Hats.

Of all the industries of Austria, there are few which are dependent to such a small extent on the importation of raw materials as the hat industry. The hair of rabbits and hares, which is used to such a great extent in certain lines, is produced almost entirely within Austrian frontiers.

FACTS ABOUT OUR FURS

AGNES C. LAUT GATHERS INTERESTING INFORMATION.

Although Accurate Information Cannot Be Compiled, the Industry Looks Promising In Canada—When Furriers Find That Correct Names Ae Handicap False Ones Can Be Used.

AGNES C. LAUT has written an important historic volume on "The Fur Trade of America." Miss Laut deals with every phase of the fur trade in the most informing and interesting way. The chapters consist in part of articles which have appeared from time to time in magazines with such corrections and additions as changes in the trade necessitate.

The chapter on Persian lamb, which is not Persian at all, is of particular interest, because of the recent attempt to acclimatize the Karakul in British Columbia. Copious extracts are given from the report of the Animal Bureau of the Agricultural Department at Washington, and from the report of Dr. Young of Texas, who was the first to import and rear Karakul on this continent, and from whose original stock flocks have spread to Texas, New Mexico, Kansas, Maryland and Prince Edward Island. Not only is the fur of value, but the animal will add to our food supply.

"Of all the cursed follies of fashion," declared a great Canadian fur authority to Miss Laut, "this whim for summer furs is the silliest and the most destructive of wild life. I wish every time you have the chance you would hit the fashion on the head as you would hit a rattlesnake. If it lasts for ten years, there will not be left a fur-bearing animal in its natural state. Fox and sable and mink will be extinct as the buffalo, to be found only on fur farms and Government preserves. Whole tribes of Indians will die out for lack of hunting ground, and the wild game life of America will have passed forever."

The world is doing the greatest fur business in all its history. With high power, silent rifles, with newly rich, with the fashion for summer furs, with tramp steamers and free hunters owing responsibility to no man penetrating farthest north and offering crazy Klondike prices to trappers, how long are our furs going to last? "The very note of pessimism in that question answers itself," says Miss Laut. "Beaver have come back. Alaska seal has come back. Silver fox are more plentiful than ever. Buffalo have multiplied from a few hundred in one Canadian park to 5,000 in ten years, and if half a dozen sea otters could be captured unharmed alive, there is not the slightest doubt they could be brought back to a plentiful supply." Closed season, fur farms and game preserves have restored beaver, Alaska seal, fox and buffalo. High markets may stimulate the pursuit of fur-bearing animals, but they also stimulate the preservation of them.

Another interesting chapter is devoted to "False furs and fake fur names." Misleading trade names arose, in the first place, from the ignorance of small furriers, but the second cause was directly due to the public. "There was a day, we all remember it," says Miss Laut, "when coonskin was the official badge of the 'cabby' or the liveried winter coachman. There were cheap, ragged-looking coon retailing at $25 to $45 a coat, cap and gauntlets to match, but that quality of coon destroyed the value of good coon on the market. What matter if a coachman's coon were an unprimed, faded, dirty yellow striped fur, and good prime coon were a fur glossy and silky as silver fox and beautifully striped with black and brown as the backbone mark of some silver fox or the natural stripes of marten? The public did not look twice and would not have coon under its true name; so coon came on the market as 'Alaska bear' and 'silver bear' and sold at three times the price to buyers, who were greedy for its beauty.

"Then there was the time immemorial prejudice against skunk. Skunk as skunk simply would not sell; so skunk became 'Alaska sable' or 'black sable' — though a rose by any other name would smell as sweet — and the salesman could conscientiously assure you it would wear better than Russian sable and had a stronger, tougher pelt as well as deeper pelage. It was no time till, under the new name, good skunk was selling as high as indifferent sable."

"Do you think any ambitious girl was going to pay $20 to $35 for a neckpiece called 'tom cat'? Not she! Tom cat to her was worth about the 50 cents she would pay some villager to shoot an obnoxious bird-killer; but 'genet,' that was different. It might be some kind of sable or strange beast, a relative of the sable. Anyway, other people didn't know what 'genet' was, so she paid $20 to $35 for it." And so Miss Laut continues to explain how muskrat is sold as "Alaska seal," rabbit or plain, common cat for "ermine," rabbit for "Baltic fox," nutria for "beaver," faked rabbit for "chinchilla." As long ago as 1887 the London Chamber of Commerce ruled that 15 misleading names were non-permissible, and that those misnaming furs would be liable to prosecution. The Canadian Conservation Commission report recommends the abolition of 21 names, and from the list it appears that "electric seal," "Red River seal" and "Hudson Bay seal" may be either muskrat, nutria or rabbit.

An acre was originally the amount of land which a yoke of oxen could plough in a day.

THE SUBSTITUTE

(Copyright, 1903)

[illegible]

George Buckley was very human. Misfortune had inclined his nature to suspicion, and the governor's high rank contrasted to his own humble position made him blind to the possibility that he could be more favored on the present occasion. It seemed as clear as daylight to him that Lydia and Telfare had quarreled and that she was simply using him as a tool through which to strike at his distinguished rival. To her evident surprise, he also got up.

"You are not going?" she said.

"Yes," he returned frigidly. "I dropped in only for a moment."

"You are going because, because"—

"Because," he said, drawing himself up to his full height, "much as I should like to accommodate you, I find it quite impossible to serve in the capacity you evidently wish to assign to me tonight." He took the flower from his coat and with steady fingers placed it on the piano. "I must decline, too, to accept your offering. When the moment comes for you and your honored guest to make up your difference, perhaps this little flag of truce may prove useful."

"Then you shall wear this"

"You say this to me," she exclaimed —"to me?"

He bowed coldly. "God knows I did not want to!" suddenly burst from his lips. And he stalked from the room.

For several minutes she stood leaning on the piano, and then she turned from the room to the veranda. She heard the click of the gate latch as it closed after Buckley and the low voices of the governor and her father through the open window of the sitting room. She was calm, but white to the lips. She began to look for her handkerchief, which she had dropped. She returned to the drawing room, looking carefully at the carpet near the spot where she had sat. It was not there. She returned again to the veranda and then went down the graveled walk to the summer house, entering the compartment adjoining the one in which Telfare and Buckley had held their conversation. There on the bench lay her handkerchief. Grasping it in her tense fingers, she sat down and buried her face in her hands.

CHAPTER XXII.

THE next morning, after breakfast, Mrs. Hillyer called her husband aside. He followed her into the parlor, where she led him to get beyond the hearing of the negroes in the dining room.

"What's the matter with George?" she asked him.

"Why, nothin' as I know of," he replied. "I haven't seen him this mornin'. Is anything wrong?"

"Looks like he hasn't slept a wink all night," said the woman. "He didn't tetch a thing on the table, an' his hands shook awful. Do you know, somehow, I believe him an' Governor Telfare quarreled up at Cranstons' last night. I never saw him look like that before. He's up in the company bedroom. I passed through the hall just now an' seed 'im settin' at the window lookin' out. Mr. Hillyer, go up an' see what's the matter with 'im. He'll talk to you."

With his heart in his mouth, Hillyer went up the stairs, sliding his hand on the banister railing. George turned his head as he entered the open door, and rose quickly, as if ashamed to be seen there without a reason for it.

"George, what's the matter with you? Ain't you well this mornin'?" the old man questioned gently.

"Not very, Mr. Hillyer," George said, dropping his eyes, "but I'll feel better when I get to work. I'm going down pretty soon."

"That hain't it, my boy—that hain't it," said Hillyer, his sympathetic eyes resting on the troubled face before him. "Some'n' has gone wrong, George, an' I wish you'd tell me about it. I'd take it as a favor—so I would. I—I—feel a big interest in you. I don't know as I could ever explain how big it is. Tell me, George."

"It wouldn't do any good," the young man replied slowly, "and might disturb you a little—you are so kind hearted."

"I want to know, George."

"Well, I will tell you, Mr. Hillyer. Do you know what is the hardest thing on earth to bear? It is to be insulted, grossly insulted, by a man whom you can't strike." Buckley then told all that had taken place between him and Telfare.

"He said that to you!" cried the old man. "Yes, I know what it would mean to a proud sperit like yore'n, my boy, an' it's simply awful—awful! He's a cowardly dog, but that don't make you feel any better. Men in the northern states don't understand how we kin feel as we do on that line, but it's bred in the bone with us."

Hillyer suddenly turned from the room and went downstairs. His wife heard him going out at the gate and called to him from the veranda, but he walked on without heeding her. At the street corner he quickened his step, going faster and faster till he reached the warehouse. He saw Kenner and Hanks in the office, but he passed on to George's room in the rear. There on the table lay Buckley's revolver. Thrusting it into the pocket of his short coat he hurried out at the side door and went up the railroad to the Johnston House. Going into the office he approached the desk and asked the clerk for Governor Telfare.

"He left on the 8 o'clock train this morning, Mr. Hillyer," said the clerk. "He had us call him at 7."

"Gone?" The old man stared blankly.

"Yes, he got off, but he'll be back next Sunday. He engaged the best room in the house and gave orders that it was not to be used by any one else."

"Gone!" Hillyer turned and started away aimlessly. In the hall leading to the street he was met by Bascom Truitt, who stopped him.

"Say, old man, what's the matter? Sick?" Hillyer stared at him, but made no reply. "Look y' here, what ails you anyway?" The old soldier placed his hand on the merchant's shoulder and turned him into a vacant room on the side of the hall, a room used by commercial travelers for displaying their wares to the village storekeepers. Hillyer sank into a chair and groaned. Truitt heard some one passing in the hall and closed the door.

"I know some'n's wrong," he said. "Some'n's wrong when a deacon in the church an' a man o' yore stamp goes round white as a grave rock with a 44 caliber gun in his pocket an' his teeth chatterin' on as warm a day as this is."

Hillyer told him what had happened to George and his own failure to meet Telfare. He told it in an unsteady voice, his lips quivering as he spoke. Then, with his head down, he added: "Bas, you know I spilt human blood thirty year ago. I've prayed all them years to git God to blot out the crime, an' yet, after all that, if I'd 'a' met Telfare just now, I—I reckon, ef he hadn't apologized to that pore boy I'd 'a' shot 'im dead in his tracks. I was all upset about it. Oh, my God, I'm as bad as I was away back when I was young an' hot blooded!"

Truitt shrugged his shoulders. "Then I reckon it's better fer all concerned that Telfare went off when he did. Now, look here, old man." Truitt bent and took the revolver from Hillyer and put it into his own pocket. "Yo're entirely unfitted to run round with a loaded gun in yore pocket. You take my advice an' go back to yore store. I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll study over this an' try to come to some conclusion what's best, then I'll come down an' see you. I'm interested in George Buckley, an' don't you let that slide out o' yore mind in yore excitement. He's been a friend true an' tried to me an' mine, an' I'll stand to 'im or die. Now, you go on to the warehouse."

"And when will you be down?" asked the merchant.

"Jest as soon as I can see some way out o' the difficulty," said Truitt evasively. "I tell you, you are too excitable—you go off half cocked. That's what got you in the trouble that you say has worried you so much. Why, even ef you had shot the scalawag just now, you'd 'a' done it too quick to've had any fun watchin' 'im squirm. I'd ruther see a dern coward that's wronged me or mine beg fer life 'an to see 'im die. We all die—that's common as pig tracks in wet weather, but only the dirty, sneakin' cowards is afeard of it. You go on now; we are a-losin' time. I'll come down—I'll come down! I ain't no anarchist, goin' round killin' big men in office, but that feller's got to be 'tended to, an' I'll study up some'n'."

When Hillyer had gone back down the railroad to the warehouse Truitt sauntered into the hotel office. "What time does the next train go to Atlanta?" he asked.

"There's another on the Southern in ten minutes," answered the clerk.

CHAPTER XXIII.

WHEN Truitt arrived in the great, bustling passenger depot in Atlanta it was noon. He elbowed his way through the squirming mass of human beings to the street. A dozen cabmen yelled at him and gesticulated with their whips, but he paid no heed to them. Seeing a blue coated policeman on a corner, he approached him.

"Could you tell a feller ef he'd be apt to see the governor at the statehouse this time o' day?" he asked.

"No; I reckon he's out at the mansion about now," replied the officer. "It's dinner time."

"Well, I'll go out thar, then," Truitt said and turned away. It was a twenty minutes' walk through the business portion of the city to the executive mansion on Peachtree street, near the best known and oldest clubhouse in the city. The building was a modern red brick structure standing back from the street on a well kept lawn, and as the gaunt mountaineer entered the iron gate and proceeded up the walk he saw a uniformed negro manservant at the door.

"I want to see Governor Telfare," Truitt said. "Is he about?"

"Yes, he's at home," the dapper negro replied, eying Truitt from head to foot with a contemptuous glance, "but he don't see nobody this time o' day"

City Solicitor's Opinion in Regard to New School

SCHOOL BOARD DID NOT ASK VOTE OF PEOPLE—THIS WAS THEIR RECOURSE AFTER THE COUNCIL TURNED DOWN. THE REQUISITION FOR $140,000 FOR COLEMAN WARD SCHOOL.

At the Council meeting last night a rather lengthy communication was read from City Solicitor Masson relative to the demand of the School Board for $140,000 for the new school in Coleman Ward. The Solicitor, after citing some cases bearing on the matter, says:

"In my opinion the council is not obliged to pass the bylaw until the board has submitted a resolution to them to submit the question to a vote of the electors, nor until the majority of the electors have approved of the requisition of the board.

"Under the Public Schools Act, section 43, chapter 266, R.S.O., 1914, the council of an urban municipality upon the application of the board, may pass a bylaw for borrowing money by the issue and sale of debentures for any one or more of the following purposes:

"'To purchase or enlarge a school site, the erection of a school, drill hall, etc., repairs or other improvements of the school property and the purchase of furnishings, etc.

"'And it shall not be necessary that the bylaw shall be submitted to the electors for their assent.

"'By the same section, sub-section 3, where the council refuses to pass such a bylaw, the question shall be submitted by the council, if requested by the board to the vote of the electors, etc.'"

The City Solicitor cites "The High School Act" for the law regulating the action to be taken regarding the erection of a high school.

"In this case," he says, "the application being for the erection of a public school, the Public School Act, in my opinion, applies; and the council's assent must be by bylaw; and upon the council's refusing to pass the bylaw the board's course is pointed out: if not satisfied, to request a vote of the electors qualified to vote under the Municipal Act, and as I understand it, this request from the school board has not been filed and the bylaw failing to pass, cannot be acted upon."

Female Raffles Confesses to Theft

TELLS POLICE SHE HAD STOLEN $50,000 WORTH OF JEWELRY

New York, July 10.—Finding that she had been scorned and tricked by the man for whom she had stolen jewelry worth more than $50,000 while she posed as a governess in the homes of wealthy stock brokers, Jean Cunningham, 25 years old, confessed to the police today that she had systematically robbed her employers and turned the loot over to her lover.

She also told the police that for all the jewelry stolen by her in New York, Philadelphia and Asbury Park, N.J., she had received only $100, which had been doled out to her by the man for whom she stole.

"I gave him every bit I stole," sobbed the girl. "He was going to save it and buy a home, and then we would have enough to live the rest of our lives."

The girl asked for a slip of paper and a pencil. It was handed her.

Carefully she wrote the name of the man she loved and who tricked her and married another girl. Then she wrote: "You doublecrossed me. You lived a lie. I will never forgive you. I have told the police everything."

The city is being combed for the former sweetheart of the self-confessed female Raffles, but so far not a trace has been found of either the man or the other woman in the case. It is believed they have fled to Canada.

W.C.A. Request Grant of $100 Month for Home

The management of the Women's Christian Association of this city desires the City Council to make a grant of $100 per month towards the running expenses of the home of the friendless. The request was made at the council meeting Monday night by a deputation of ladies and will be considered later, when the estimates for the year are prepared.

Mrs. W. C. Mikel addressed the council requesting that the council make a grant of $100 per month to the W.C.A. for the conducting of the Home of the Friendless.

In answer to an enquiry from Ald. Ostrom, Mrs. Mikel stated that $2,500 yearly was given to the W.C.A. which was for the hospital, Home and Indigent. The ladies had asked for $2,500 for the hospital and $300 extra for the Home last year but the latter was not forthcoming.

Ald. Ostrom thought a stated sum should be granted to the W.C.A. for these branches of their work.

Mrs. Mikel said that this would not be possible for each of the three branches of the W.C.A. work. of the W.C.A. work.

Ald. Ostrom stated that something would be done in the matter when the estimates are considered. The council must support the ladies who are doing a grand work for the city. The council would do all they could to assist the W.C.A.

After some of the Aldermen had spoken to the subject it was decided to consider the request when the estimates for the year are prepared.

Three Cloudbursts H itMiddlesex Co.

WATER LYING TO DEPTH OF EIGHT FEET IN LOW PLACES—BAD WASHOUTS ON RAILWAYS

Toronto, July 11.—Torrential rains—a series of three seeming cloudbursts, each within half an hour of each other—terrorized the people and did damage amounting to tens of thousands of dollars in different parts of the province yesterday afternoon.

Middlesex county probably fared worst. The deluge struck the district between Komoka and Hyde Park with all its fury. At sunset whole fields that in the morning were alive with growing grain and cereals were wide wastes of water. Harvesting of wheat has commenced. The shocked stacks are drifting seepily, with floating debris of all kinds, on the vast murky flood. The uncut grain and corn are beaten into the ground beneath the Niagara from the clouds. Acres of market garden produce are buried under its fall.

Barns and farmhouses stand out like islands on the waters. Scores of trees are cut down or stripped of their branches, and are being carried slowly away or stranded as the flood seeks a level. At some of the lower points the water centralized to a depth of over eight feet.

The Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific Railways from the west, which closely parallel each other heading into London, experienced bad washouts. Masses of gravel ballast were carried down from embankments, while in the cuts trains crawled cautiously through two feet of water. Almost as soon as the storm stayed its deluge, auxiliaries hurried out from the London yards and small armies of track workmen started in to relay ballast and straighten warped ties. Fortunately no part of the steel lines was carried away.

Windsor Carmen Demand Five Cent Wage Increase

Windsor, Ont., July 10.—Windsor street car men made demands Saturday for a five-cent wage increase according to Percy Simser, secretary of the men's union. They will meet Monday night to discuss terms of a new agreement which will be presented to the commission. Should the commission refuse to grant the increase the City Council may be appealed to.

The men are now paid 45 cents an hour for first six months, 50 cents on completing a year's service, while the maximum is 55 cents. The increase was promised a year ago, when the annual working agreement was signed by the commission.

CATTLE KILLED

William Kieth, a farmer of the 5th Concession of Cubrosa, had ten head of cattle killed by one lightning bolt during a recent storm.

First Batch of Mennonites Go After Harvest

Winnipeg, Man., July 10.—Ten thousand Mennonites in Manitoba and Saskatchewan definitely decided to abandon prosperous farm holdings and migrate to Mexico, where they are promised entire freedom in the management of their children's education. The first contingent will leave from here after the harvest this autumn and will prepare the way for other groups who will follow on in 1922 and 1923. Twenty-five thousands of their co-religionists from Russia, who fared badly during the uncertain days of the Soviet regime, plan to join them in the south

They are leaving behind the fruits of 40 years of pioneering too because the Provincial Governments of Canada are trying to force on them the modern public school. The Mennonities wish to control their own primary schools where the main subjects taught are religion, the German language and arithmetic. They are opposed to the teaching of history, geography and other "worldly" subjects. To them worldiness is the cardinal sin because it tempts persons to depart from the precepts laid down in the Sermon on the Mount, the bulwark of their faith.

The migrating element belong to the sect known as Old Colonists. They adhere to the Reinland church and form the most conservative element among the Mennonites. Their customs, manner of dress and speech, have changed only slightly since their arrival in Canada from Russia in 1873. Their villages are replicas of Russian villages — twenty or thirty families build their houses in close proximity along one street and divide their total holdings of land in narrow strips so that one will fare as well as another.

Each village has its magistrate called the shultz, who is under the superintendent or ober-shultz, the general secular head of the whole congregation. The elder or bishop, assisted by a number of untrained and unpaid preachers has charge of spiritual matters. He is a shepherd in the real sense of the word. He protects his congregation from the outside world and from themselves at every turn, and usually is obeyed implicitly.

Arrest Results in General Uprising

Lima, Peru, July 11.—The arrest by the authorities of an Indian chieftain in the province of Climborazo, Ecuador, resulted in a general rising of Indians in that province that spread terror among the inhabitants for more than a week, according to advices received here from Guayaquil. The insurrectionists, it was said, had sworn to liberate their leader.

A newspaper correspondent reported that the villagers had organized defense committees in various parts of the province to protect the families of farmers, a number of whom had been kidnapped and that there had been sanguinary encounters between troops and the Indians.

The advices said additional troops had been sent to the disturbed districts and that it was believed order soon would be restored.

Protection for Religious Minorities

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press Limited.

Paris, July 12.—Ratification of the treaty between the allied nations and Hungary, known as the Trianon Treaty, voted by the French Senate last night. Included in the ratification was a protocol of the treaty which stipulated that protection would be given to religious minorities in Hungarian territory, as well as districts detached from that country and placed under the jurisdiction of Czecho-Slovakia, Rumania and Jugo-Slavia.

FALLIN GOFF IN OUTPUT

Berlin, July 11.—The potash syndicate announces a falling off of 150,000 tons in the output during the first five months of the current year, compared with the same period in 1920. The decrease is attributed to the stagnation of the home and foreign markets.

Men of Vision Get Close-up Of Waterways

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 10.—Embarked upon a friendly voyage of discovery across Canada's inland seas, one hundred men prominent in the political and business life of the United States spent the week-end in Niagara as guests of the Province of Ontario.

Under the auspices of the American Executive Council of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Tidewater Association, the delegation is on a tour of the proposed route of an international deep waterway, and as a fitting prelude to its journey its members devoted Saturday and Sunday to an inspection of the Hydro-electric undertakings centred upon Niagara Falls.

Seldom, if ever, have the wonders of Ontario's achievements in harnessing nature's mighty cataract been so enthusiastically seen and praised. The visitors were astounded. Governors and ex-Governors, Senators, Congressmen and leaders in the industry and commerce of a score of States saw for themselves the things that had been born of vision, courages and engineering genius. They tramped afoot through the deepening ditch of the Chippawa development, they marvelled at the operations of the great Provincial electrical plant, they climbed tall towers to overlook the arena of titanic wrestling with nature, and they went down into the bowels of penstocks and wheelpits in what will be the world's greatest power house. All this they did in order that they might return to their homes with an intelligent conception of one phase of a stupendous enterprise of the New World—the mooted inland channel to the sea.

Hand-picked from the Eastern and Central States, the visiting delegation undoubtedly is the most influential and representative body of United States citizens ever to have crossed the border upon an economic mission. A dozen States are represented by their Governors, while prominent politicians from the Federal and State Capitols rub shoulders with men whose names are household words in the world of American big business. Among those of the party whose repute has travelled far beyond the confines of their own country may be named the following: Governors E. J. Lake of Connecticut, James Hartness of Vermont, E. J. San Souci of Rhode Island, Frank J. Loudon of Illinois, and J. P. Goodrich of Indiana; ex-Governors W. H Harding of Iowa and Carl C. Milliken of Maine. Prominent politicians accompanying the party include Senator Stanley of New Hampshire, Attorney-General Allen, Massachusetts Congressman Nelson, Wisconsin; Senator Lenroof Wisconsin; Senator Townsend, Michigan; Senator McKinley, Illinois; Senator Ramsdell, Louisiana.

Accompanying the party also are scores of technical men, engineers and traffic experts, including H. C Gardiner of Chicago; C. P. Craig, Duluth, President of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Tidewater Association; Col. Wooten, consulting engineer for the United States Government on the waterways project, and his colleague on behalf of Canada, W. A. Bowden of the Department of Railways and Canals.

RAISED PARASOL DURING SERVICE

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., July 11.—Braving convention and the possibility of her sunshade shedding the proverbial showers of blessings, a female worshipper at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church yesterday raised her parasol and kept it hoisted throughout the service to escape the sun which was shining through the windows.

FIND WATER RATES INCREASE NECESSARY

Peterboro', July 10.—The report of W. R. Morris, chartered accountant, who made a survey of the accounts of the local Utilities Commission, following the demand of the citizens and the City Council for the reasons for the 80 per cent. increase in water rates, states from operating the waterworks under the old rates, and that there will be a surplus of $7,500 to $8,500 for the current year, with the new rates effective July 1. Unless economics are effected in operation, however, he sees no surplus from the new rates likely in 1922. He finds the accounting system of the commission adequate, but recommends some minor changes.

Council Reject Request for New Police Car

POLICE COMMISSIONERS RECOMMEND THE PROCURING OF A DODGE AUTO

At the City Council meeting on Monday night a recommendation was read from the Police Commissioners that a Dodge car be procured for the police department in place of the Ford car now in use, caused some discussion.

Ald. French—A year ago a new car was purchased for the police department. He moved that the recommendation be not entertained.

Ald. Bennett was not in favor of purchasing a Dodge car this year.

Ald. Ostrom suggested that the chairman of Market and City Property see Chief Kidd and have the recommendation withdrawn for this year at least.

Mayor Hanna—The Chief was authorized by the Police Commissioners to purchase a new car. He (the speaker) did not support the proposition when it came up before the commissioners.

A motion prevailed that the recommendation be filed.

The Commissioners also request that the market square be designated as a place for the parking of cars.

A motion prevailed that the request be not entertained.

MOTIONS

Moved by Ald. Treverton, seconded by Ald. French, that the clerk publish a copy of notice of the intention to construct a concrete sidewalk on the South side of West Dundas street from Commercial street to the Westerly city limits of Belleville, under Section 9 of the LocalImprovements Act—Carried.

Ald. Ostrom moved, seconded by Ald. Treverton that the treasurer pay at once the $30,000 and interest due the Belleville, Prince Edward Bridge Company on the purchase of the Bay Bridge.—Carried.

Ald Ostrom moved, seconded by Ald. Bennett, that a grant of $100 per month, for July, August and September be made to the W.C.A. for running expenses of the Old People's Home.

Viscount Gray To Lead Delegates

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

London, July 12.—Viscount Grey, of Fallodon, who was British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs when the war began, may, says the Daily Mail, lead Great Britain's delegates in the disarmament conference to be held in Washington as a result of President Harding's proposal to the Allied Nations. The newspaper declares that statesmen of the type of Viscount Grey should be chosen and that he should act with experts from the Dominions at the conference. After the preliminary and technical work of the conference is completed, the Mail says, Prime Minister Lloyd George may go to the United States to attend the final moulding of the agreement. It appears to be the concensus of opinion that the conference will be held during the coming autumn or at the latest during the early months of 1922.

Belfast Centre of Apprehension

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

London, July 12.—The satisfaction felt by the people of Great Britain over the arrangement of a meeting on Thursday between Eamonn de Valera and Prime Minister Lloyd George was tempered today by apprehension over the situation in Belfast.

The rioting which began in that city on Sunday continued yesterday with diminished severity, and while there were acts of violence yesterday forenoon in various parts of Ireland, the centre of apprehension was in Belfast.

MALES PREDOMINATE

Washington, July 11.—There are 2,090,132 more males than females in the United States according to census figures for 1920. The ratio is 104 to 100 as compared with 106 to every 100 females in the period of 1900-1910, the census bureau announcement shows.

Conference Date Thursday To Determine Irish Status

CHEERS GREET MESSAGE FROM VALERA AS READ IN HOUSE OF COMMONS BY LLOYD GEORGE — PARLIAMENT HAS ALSO DECLARED A TRUCE ON DISCUSSION LEST ISSUE BE PREJUDICED—CONFERENCE ON THURSDAY TO DETERMINE IRISH STATUS.

London, July 12.—Lloyd George informed the House of Commons this afternoon that he had received a telegram from de Valera fixing Thursday next as the date for his conference with the Premier. Parliament has, by common consent, decided not to debate Irish matters during the course of the negotiations, but to be content to hear from the Premier himself such reports as he can usefully make to the House.

This decision is unanimously approved, for, whatever views are held in one camp or another as to the possibilities of success which the conference holds forth, it is agreed that at least nothing should be said or done that might prejudice efforts which are being made to reach a settlement.

Reports that the British Government is considering drastic action to be taken in view of the eventuality of the conference proving a failure are only credited in quarters which are unduly prone to suspect the unworthiest motives on the part of political opponents. At present the watchword is, "Hope for the best," and there is no disposition whatever to prejudice the conference by considering questions of preparing for the worst.

"I will be in London for a conference with you on Thursday next.

"(Signed), Eamonn de Valera."

This was the telegram which Prime Minister Lloyd George read to the House of Commons this evening amidst wild cheers from the members.

The Irish delegations to leave Dublin to-morrow, accompanying Mr. de Valera, will include Arthur Griffith, Robert Barton and Austin Stack. Mr. Barton, who has just been released from a British prison, is a Wicklow landowner. Formerly he was in the British army and now he is the "Minister of Agriculture of the Irish Republic." Mr. Stack is the "Republican Minister of Home Affairs." He has been imprisoned several times, and on one occasion made a sensational escape from Manchester Jail.

It is the wish of the British Government that the delegation be its guests, but it is believed in official circles that the Irishmen will probably prefer to live independently.

Optimism reigns in officialdom that the conference will be productive of peace. It was stated to-night that negotiations will probably last over a period of several months, and that the Irish delegation likely will be increased by financial and legal experts, as "intricate financial and delicate constitutional points have to be settled."

Meanwhile, the truce agreed upon last week became effective in Ireland at noon to-day, with the exception of Belfast, which yesterday experienced one of the most frightful days of fighting and bloodshed in its history.

Mystery Ship Again Appears

BRITISH STEAMER MEETS VESSEL WHICH VIOLATES MARITIME RULES

New York, July 11.—An unknown ship which was violating international maritime regulations by running without proper lights and which refused to respond to signals asking her identity was sighted last week 750 miles southeasterly from Halifax by the British steamship Croxteth Hall, which arrived to-day from Hull to Antwerp.

According to a report made by Captain Spence of the Croxteth Hall to Sanderson & Sons, agents, the ship, apparently a small freighter, was first observed ahead of him showing a stern light. The Croxteth Hall caught up with the vessel, which suddenly swerved in her course and then came right at the British vessel. The stranger passed astern, went around and came up again on the opposite side.

The red and green running lights indicating the port and starboard sides of the ship were not lighted, Captain Spencer said, and as soon as the Croxteth Hall came up the single stern light disappeared. Repeated efforts to signal the stranger by flashlight code and by wireless brought no answer. The vessel, after running with the Croxteth Hall a short time, turned away and disappeared.

When the stranger was sighted the weather was rough, but not so thick that the vessel could not be seen clearly by the British captain. His first thought was that it might be one of the ice patrol ships, but failure to answer signals and absence of regulation lights disproved this theory.

Agents of the line, while admitting they were puzzled at the unusual occurrence, said they did not connect it with recent unverified reports that a mystery ship with piratical intent was operating off the Atlantic coast.

TO PROVIDE HARVESTERS WITH REDUCED FARES

Ottawa, July 11.—The minister of labor said this morning that the department intend to make the usual arrangements with the railways to take men at reduced rates from eastern points for harvest work on the prairies. The department also intend this year to relieve the unemployment situation in British Columbia, by arranging similar facilities for men out there to reach the prairie provinces and return after the harvesting and threshing are over.

Donal O'Callaghan, Lord Mayor of Cork, is reported back in Cork from the United States.

Last Minute Telegraph Briefs

French Govt. Accepts

Paris, July 12.—The French Government will accept with pleasure and without reserve the invitation to a conference on the limitation of armaments, according to a letter sent to the U. S. Embassy by the French government.

Irish Leaders Leave

Dublin, July 12.—The Irish Republican leaders chosen to participate in the conference to be held with the British Government authorities in London on Thursday left Dublin this morning for London. They were, Eamonn de Valera, leader of the Irish Republicans, Arthur Griffith, founder of the Sinn Fein, Austin Stack and Robert C. Barton, the last two being Sinn Fein members of the British Parliament.

Five Women Running in Alta. Election

UNITED FARMERS HAVE THE BALL AT THEIR FEET—MAY BE GROUP RULE

Edmonton, Alta., July 11.—It is now generally believed here that Alberta will have group government after the approaching election. The contest is the most complicated, and has brought out the greatest number of candidates, with the most remarkable alliances and cross alliances of any election since the province was created. The result is accordingly the more doubtful. What is considered very likely to happen, with voting day now close at hand, is that the Stewart government will have a substantially reduced majority of seats, if it does not suffer actual defeat. In either case the ascendant power will be that of the United Farmers.

Edmonton and Calgary have each 20 or more candidates in the field, and it has been necessary to make large ballot boxes for the two cities. There are full Liberal and Conservative tickets of five each in both places, as well as three straight Labor candidates. In addition Edmonton has one independent Labor man and Calgary has one Socialist. Medicine Hat and Rocky Mountain are also running a Labor candidate each. Four ultra independent Liberals are contesting Edmonton.

The Conservatives are putting up their main fight in the cities. In two rural constituencies they have endorsed Liberal candidates, and in others

FAMOUS SUIT SOLD

New York, July 11.—A famous suit of gold-decorated armor, made in the last quarter of the sixteenth century, has been sold in London to a New York firm for $25,000 pounds, or about $95,000 at the present rate of exchange. The announcement of the purchase to-day declared this amount was the highest price ever paid for a suit of armor at a public sale. It was made for Henry Herbert, second Earl of Pembroke.

Cooler Weather in Algonquin District

St. Andrew's, N.B., July 12.—One of the most delightful days was enjoyed by the visitors to this favorite new port of Canada, the sun shining all day, and in the cool sea breezes the golf course was studded with enthusiastics, while Kady's Cove, where the sea has been transformed into a miniature lake with a sandy beach for bathers, was swarmed with men, women and children enjoying a dip in the briny. On Sunday a special Sunday evening concert was given at the Algonquin Hotel by the hotel orchestra, consiting of very classical music, and thoroughly enjoyed. Among those present were Lord Sahughnessy, Mr. H. C. Beauclerk and the Hon. H. W. Shaughnessy, Mr. C. R. Hosmer, Lady Allan, Miss Martha Allan, Judge and Mrs. Greenshields, Sir Thomas and Lady Tait, the Hon. Mrs. Rodmand, the Hon. M. Shaughnessy, all of Montreal, and other well known society leaders; also Sir David and Lady Watson, Quebec, and Mrs. A. C. McMaster, Toronto.

Information of temperatures reports that Quebec and other provinces are still in the throes of the excessive heat wave, although there was a slight intermission over the week-end from the nineties; but St. Andrew's is still as cool as a cucumber, and the nights are the most pleasurable. A magnificent program for the golfing season has been mapped out and is now on the press. The various competitions for the handsome cups donated by enthusiasts commence in real earnest about the 21st of this month. The motor roads in the vicinity are in remarkable condition and an afternoon from the old town of St. Andrew's out over the hard packed road in a car to the wooded heights above St. Croix and thence to St. Stephen is one of the delights of this part of the country. About two o'clock the thermometer registered 72 here and in Montreal it was eleven degrees hotter, while poor Ontario was still sweltering in the glare of the sun, registering ninety-one.

Humor and Thrills Aplenty at Griffins

HUMOR SKILFULLY BLENDED WITH THRILLS IN "THE SMART SEX"

Humor is skillifully blended with thrills in "The Smart Sex", the Universal comedy-drama which opened last night at Griffin's with Eva Novak in the starring role and a barnyard goose strutting in support.

The heroine of the story is a stranded show girl who walks the railroad tracks to the city accompanied by "Arabella", a goose. Trying her luck at an amateur theatrical performance, the girl and the goose win first prize and start for the country to economize until the opening of the theatrical season. There she meets Fred Vaughn, a rich young fellow who helped her win the amateur prize with his applause. They fall in love but their happiness is clouded by a daring robbery of which the girl is accused.

How she exonerates herself and wins the love of everyone with whom she comes in contact is told in a forceful climax which gives a brilliant contrast to the humorous under-current of the story.

INCREASE IS SURPRISING

Paris, July 11.—An increase in the exportations of wines and liquors from France in the first quarter of this year as compared with the same period of 1913 is a surprising discovery.

In the meantime France has lost two of her biggest customers for wines and brandies, Russia and the United States. Of the brandies and liquors Germany took about half; Argentina, Turkey and England followed in that order.

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

New Walk

M.E.—I see that a new granolithic walk is being laid on the south side of Catherine Street between Isabell and Octavia streets. A gang of men were busy first thing Monday morning digging, laying stones, etc. This walk has long been needed and as the motto of our city now is "A Bigger and Better Belleville' the walk is going to be. Naturally the citizens directly affected are rejoicing.

About Showers

I.E.—Driving west yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock I saw some peculiar clouds which looked much like wind and rain. We drove on and seemed to go away from it and we drove on to the lake and turned round and drove back. One mile north of Brighton we saw there had been a sprinkle of rain. When we arrived in Brighton they had had an absolute downpour. Two miles out of Trenton you would not think there had been any rain, when we reached Belleville we found there had been a shower. The apple crop and other fruits and vegetables about Brighton will be greatly benefitted. I wonder when our shower will register?

(Toilet Tips)

A safe, certain method for ridding the skin of ugly, hairy growths is as follows: Mix a paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface about 2 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is entirely harmless and seldom requires repeating, but to avoid disappointment it is advisable to see that you get genuine delatone. Mix fresh as wanted.

SEEK RECIPROCITY PACT WITH AUSTRALIA

Ottawa, July 11.—The government has entered into negotiations looking towards the bringing about of a reciprocity pact. The country with which the negotiations are being carried on, however, is not the United States, but Australia, which commonwealth has but recently adopted protective tariff.

Sir George Foster, minister of trade and commerce, has communicated with Premier Meighen by cable requesting that the latter take up with Premier Hughes the question of reciprocal arrangements between the two dominions.

By the Australian tariff to which legislative effect has recently been given a preference is granted to Great Britain, which preference, it is held here, operates to the detriment of Canadian trade. Provision is made, however, for entering into reciprocal arrangements with other countries. Hence the present negotiations.

Canadian trade with the commonwealth has fallen off of late owing to difficulties of financing. In normal times, however, Canadian imports from Australia comprises Wool, fruits chilled meats, dairy products and certain types of lumber. Canada exported agricultural implements, automobiles and other machinery, wood pulp and paper, etc.

WORKMEN BURIED IN SAND ON HYDRO CONSTRUCTION

St. Catherines, Ont., July 10.—Robert Morelli, aged 24, was killed on the Hydro construction at Queenston yesterday by being buried in sand. Morelli was assisting in shovelling sand into a pit from which it was being carried away on a belt, the sand being dropped from cars twelve feet above. He slipped into the hole and, being of large stature, blocked the outlet and was immediately buried by the sand above.

It was one hour and forty minutes before his body was recovered. The remains were brought to St. Catherines.

BLIZZARD-PROOF CATTLE.

Experiments Tried in Crossing Buffalo and Domestic Cows.

In the far north of Canada, according to an Ottawa official report summarized in the London Post, there are vast ranges of fertile lands on which it is extremely improbable that domestic cattle can ever be reared with any chance of success. This is the result of the necessity of providing them with winter shelter. Where the prairie buffalo would face the wildest blizzard and live through it, domestic cattle will drift with the storm. If their progress be hindered by such an obstacle as a wire fence, they will huddle against it and freeze to death. Where cattle will starve on account of their inability to get food, the buffalo will root into the snow like a pig and thrive.

Not many years ago the ranchers in the United States tried the somewhat haphazard experiment of allowing their range cattle to run with the buffalo under wild conditions in the hope of producing a hybrid combining the usefulness of the domestic type with the hardiness of the indigenous stock. It was the late Mr. Mosson Boyd, of Bobcaygeon, Ontario, who first made any real progress in the direction of segregating the hybrids that resulted from these random efforts with the object of eventually breeding to a fixed type from them.

His first experiments took place about twenty-five years ago when he crossed a buffalo from the Government herd at Banff, Alberta, with a variety of domestic cow. Mr. Boyd died six years ago and his herd—twenty hybrids and "cattaloes"—was purchased by the Canadian Government and shipped to the experiment station in Saskatchewan. The advantages characteristic of the new type as set forth by the director of the experiment station are four:

"In the first place the hide, in durability, thickness and warmth closely resembles that of the buffalo, and buffalo robes are practically coldproof. There is no covering so fitted to defy the keenest blizzard as that with which nature has endowed the hardiest of the aboriginal denizens of the prairie. The coats of the new type, in length and thickness of hair, in curl and luster, in durability and in richness of color, promise to run the original stock close, if not to surpass it. It is calculated that, with furs at their present price, cattalo skins might be easily worth $100 a piece.

"Secondly, these animals seem to inherit all the ruggedness of the buffalo sire. They face the storm and do not drift like the domestic cattle; they are never cast on hillsides, as the latter often are, and, so far, they have never developed any form of infectious disease.

"Thirdly, they are splendid grazers and can thrive on poor pastures where the domestic cattle would starve. Only in very exceptional circumstances and in the severest weather, has it been found advisable to give them supplementary rations of hay from stacks, and no winter shelter of any kind has been provided for them. The year 1919 was one of poor pasture, as the result of an exceptionally dry season, and their condition was excellent, conspicuously better than that of the domestic cows on the same range.

"Fourthly, while it must be acknowledged that in dressing percentage, or in actual quantity, the meat cannot compare with the choicest domestic beef, still it is hoped that a large proportion of the pure-bred beef animals of poor type which are now to be found in the northern parts of the prairie provinces, may be considerably benefited by an infusion of stouter blood."

Yaks cross readily and safely with domestic cattle. The yak comes originally from the plateaux of Central Asia, and is zoologically the connecting link between the bison and cattle. He is about the same size as the Aberdeen-Angus, usually black in color, though sometimes white or brown. The hair is very long, specially so on the tail, which resembles that of a horse. He is naturally a wonderful ranger, and is hardy enough to withstand extreme cold, and, furthermore, is as adept at rustling for his own food as is the buffalo. He has already been domesticated, and is apparently free from disease. The meat, except that it is fined grained, apparently approaches much more closely to beef than does that of the bison.

The "Cabinet."

From the earliest times the King of England was assisted in his government by a body of men known as the "Privy Council"—men whose advice was sought in the gravest and most delicate affairs of state. But, with the gradual increase of the democratic character of Parliament, the real government of the nation became more and more vested in the King's Parliamentary Ministers, while the rank of Privy Councillor came to be bestowed as a purely honorary distinction upon men to whom little was confided. As a result the sovereign resorted for advice to his principal Ministers and hence arose the custom of selecting the leading parliamentary members of the party in power. When the Canadian Government was formed this idea of giving the ruler assistance and advice of a group of picked men was borrowed from the British system, while the word "cabinet" was taken from the French, where it signifies a small cabin or room—kings and other potentates being accustomed to consulting with their Ministers in a private room or "cabinet."

Children Need Food.

Actual starvation is being experienced in Montreal to an extent which the public little dreams, according to a statement just issued by the Family Welfare Association. Cases of children being unable to attend school for lack of clothes are common. Malnutrition is becoming terribly frequent.

Davis Cup Waiting For The Day

New York, July 11.—With a travel record of 100,000 miles established the famous Davis cup is safely locked in the vaults of a Fifth Avenue jeweller in New York waiting the day, soon to come, when it will be brought forth from its wrappings polished and put on display. Strangely enough, it has done all its travelling without mishap and is to-day as shapely and clean cut in every line as when first it was chosen as a fine example of the silversmiths art.

The mileage record of the cup itself throws a significant sidelight on the magnitude of the contest. Last year, for instance, the U.S., team that brought the cup home from Australia where it had rested for six years, travelled 27,000 miles. "Billy" Johnson had to go from San Francisco to New York, then to London, then back to San Francisco by way of New York, then he sailed from Vancouver to Auckland, New Zealand, dashed off a thousand miles or so to Sydney, put in another thousand miles in Australia and then embarked again for San Francisco and home.

The other members of the team, of course, had to cover the same ground so it was not surprising that when they got back, Sam Hard the captain said he had had all the globe trotting he wanted for a while. The teams record was for one season only, while the cup has been in more or less steady circulation for 20 years. Great Britain, Australia, and the U.S. have shared the honor of holding it during that period. It needs only a glance at the map to gain some idea of the distance it had to go whenever it changed hands.

Another notable thing is that the silver sides are now so closely covered with the names of men who have played on the various teams, that space for additional engraving must be found. Consequently Dwight F. Davis, the donor, has asked Black, and Frost to design a pedestal on whose sides further inscriptions can be made. It is likely therefore, that when the cup makes its next appearance it will differ somewhat from the shape that has grown familiar to the public through a score of years.

What the Port Hope Guide says of the Central Ontario League Games played on Saturday.

Belleville Game

There is gloom in Belleville to-day for on Saturday their old time rivals Peterboro trimmed the Goyer-Mills combination to a standstill. Fifteen hundred spectators witnessed the battle and a more disappointed crowd never left a ball field. Goyer pitched a good game but his brother at third fumbled everything at third base. The score was 7 to 5.

Oshawa had their work cut out to defeat Lindsay winning by the narrow margin of one run, the score being 3 to 2.

Port Hope Game

Port Hope dropped another game on Saturday when they were defeated by Cobourg by a score of 5 to 1. As both teams were hopelessly out of the running not much interest was shown. Manager Sheehan should have a real shaking up of the team before commencing the second schedule.

TOO MANY VIRTUES.

French Women Married to Soldier Who Went to France.

Wherever you go in Northeastern France you will meet Canadians who have married Frenchwomen recently and settled in the country.

These couples are following all sorts of occupations, but the majority have some sort of business in which they can assist each other, such as the running of an hotel, estaminet, shop, or garage.

All the writers upon the subject have commended the numerous virtues of the French wives. Their industry, frugality, affectionate disposition, and good cooking have been lauded to the skies.

This praise seems to cast a slight on our own countrywomen by suggesting that they do not possess these virtues, at any rate to the same extent. Now this is not fair to Canadian women. Most men thus married to daughters of France will agree that they possess all the good qualities with which they have been credited. They will also admit that their countrywomen have not developed these qualities so highly.

But they do not mean this as a slur on Canadian girls. Far from it. They mean it as the highest praise. For their experience of French wives has taught them that they can have too much of good things. Many will tell you that their wives' virtues are carried to excess, and we all know that virtue carried to excess becomes a vice.

The writer, who has been traveling in this part of France for the last two years, has seen the results of many such marriages. They are usually satisfactory. But there is no doubt that the men find these virtues of their wives very trying at times.

Take an incident that occurred in a village not far from Boulogne.

An English-speaking husband is sitting in a cafe smoking and chatting with a friend. The clock in the bar shows it is 7 p.m. A young Frenchwoman enters and pours a stream of shrill reproach over him. Judging by her tone and manner, he has been guilty of some very serious offence. All eyes are focused upon the pair, and without a word he rises and goes out with her, apparently cowed.

But he isn't cowed. A few minutes later he returns and resumes his seat.

"I'm not going to be made a fool of like that in public," he explains to his friend, "so I've told her I'm not going home for another half-hour. She made all that fuss because she said I was ten minutes late. I'm not really—but our clock at home is town time, and that is twelve minutes ahead of this clock, which is railway time. I'm not going to have a fuss like that over ten minutes, anyhow.

"She wouldn't do it if it wasn't for her cooking. She's always cooking, and if I'm not in to the minute she complains that I've spoilt the meal. I'm fed up with it—should be glad of cold meat for a change."

"My missus is much the same. I believe they are all alike," says his friend.

So much for good cooking. The affectionate nature also has an effect which the Briton finds very trying. It's owner will not let him go anywhere alone, if she can possibly help it.

Not understanding the game, she will go with him to a football match. That is, if admission is free; otherwise her frugality forbids the waste of money. If he does go out alone she expects every minute of his time to be accounted for.

One husband having met a friend at a football match got into trouble because he did not get home till half-past five, the match having finished at four! And after that it was some weeks before his wife could be dissuaded from waiting for him outside the ground. Affection of this sort has its drawbacks.

The frugality of the French is proverbial. Yet here, again, the British husband often feels that there can be too much of a good thing. For, when husband and wife are in business together the wife must know how every sou is spent, and she views with horror the spending of a single one on what she regards as luxuries. One man remarked that his wife was always doing housework; he said it was like spring-cleaning all the year round.

Still, these are only temporary troubles. The Frenchwoman makes a spendid wife in spite of her virtues.

A New Syrup.

A new extraction process converts the juice of even the most intensely acid varieties of apples into a sweet, rich syrup, which is entirely suitable as a base for flavoring extracts and for many other purposes. A valuable by-product of the process is a compound, known as calcium malate, which is identical with the so-called "sugar sand" hitherto derived from maple syrup exclusively. This compound forms the basis of malic acid, and was valued at $1.50 a pound and more before the war. At present, the only plants employing the process are located in Nova Scotia, but, as it utilizes a fruit which is now being allowed to go to waste to the extent of hundreds of thousands of tons a year, it is to be expected and hoped that the method will come into wide general use within the near future.—Popular Mechanics.

Back to the Land.

In Canada 25,500 ex-service men have thus far taken up farms under the soldiers' re-establishment act. The total amount of land held by the soldier settlers is at least 3,335,000 acres.

Nightmare.

While nightmare is said to be capable of causing death to a physically weak adult, this has never been known to happen to a child; yet children are more subject to nightmare than adults.

German Socialists likely to unite.

Ravages of war etc., has depleted the Russian population by twelve million according to the latest census figures.

Seven Years' Lease.

It had been a somewhat dull evening of after-dinner speaking when an American guest, just arrived in London fom New York, was called upon to "say a few words."

A tall, lean man uncoiled himself in a far corner of the room, and said, in a melancholy cadence, as though about to burst into tears:

"Gentlemen, I am here because I have looked forward all my life to makin' this trip to Europe and to shaking hands with the greatest living Englishman, George Meredith. I saved up for it for long, long years—I pinched and scraped every dollar that came within reach.

"Just as I had booked my passage, George Meredith flung a bomb that shook Noo York to its foundations, and the States lying adjacent thereto. He said that marriage should be a lease for seven years."

Everybody had now settled down in their chairs with a resigned sigh for a dull homily on the sanctity of the home, when the melancholy voice paused, and added with sad deliberation: "Now, gentlemen—seven—years—is—a—vurry—long—time."

Square Dealing.

A certain motorist was as conscientious as he was reckless. One day, passing a farm, he ran over a hen. He stopped the car at once, and examined the bird.

"How old was she?" he asked the farmer's wife.

She told him.

"Laying well?"

"The best bird I ever had, sir."

The motorist took out his notebook and made a rapid calculation. Then he wrote a cheque.

"There!" he said. "I reckon that represents the value of the bird, estimating the number of eggs it would have laid in the course of its natural life, the value of its carcass afterwards, and deducting the cost of its keep. I've put the sum at one pound fourteen shillings."

The astonished woman took the cheque, and decided to be equally honest.

"Excuse me, sir," she said, 'but you've made out the cheque for one pound fourteen-and-sixpense."

"That's for the trouble of cooking the bird," explained the motorist. "I shall be back this evening to eat it!"

At a Disadvantage.

A greasy, flat-chested little alien had been raked in by the Conscription Act.

He pleaded every type of disease, from hereditary insanity to housemaid's knee. But it was useless, and the medical officer was about to scrawl the fatal word "Fit."

"V—v—vait a m—m—meenute," he whined. "D—d—don't you n—n—notice as 'ow I stutters?"

"What has that to do with it?" snarled the M. O.

"L—l—lots!" spluttered the prospective hero. "A b—b—bloomin' Sherman c—c—could run me through the t—t—tummy before I vos able to shout 'K-k-k-kamerad'!"

Whistling Trees.

Travelers in Nubia and the Soudan have heard many weird stories of the whistling tree that is heard when the wind blows, but investigation developed the fact that on the soft shoots at the extremity insects lay their eggs, the development of which leaves a small opening through, which the wind makes a sound that gave rise to the belief that the tree had a musical property.

Serum for Appendicitis.

Recent experiments of injecting appendicitis patients with serum are said to have been so successful that operations with the knife may soon be abolished.

Home Made Bread

Home made bread is without doubt the cheapest and most healthful food that can be produced for human consumption. It is the most completely digested solid food in the world, over 90% of it being transformed into health and strength. It yields nearly twice as much nourishment as rice or potatoes, and is ten times as nourishing as an equal value of meat. No bread is more truly wholesome or more perfectly satisfactory than that baked at home in which Royal Yeast Cakes are used.

ROYAL YEAST CAKES

It was known many years ago that yeast is an excellent thing for constipation, ænemia, boils and pimples. Lately eminent scientists have been investigating the matter thoroughly and their conclusions point to the fact that the beneficial effect of yeast has been overrated. The yeast treatment is very simple and economical—and altogether harmless.

Before each meal eat a Royal Yeast Cake, or take a cake dissolved in water or fruit juices. The scientific investigators say that the curative elements in yeast are the vitamines and nuclein which it contains. It is certainly well worth a fair trial by those who suffer from any of the ailments mentioned above.

GERMAN SOCIALIST HISTORIAN SAYS KAISER BETRAYED THE GERMAN PEOPLE.

New impulse has been given to the debate in Germany over the question "Who Began the War?" by an article by Karl Kautsky, independent Socialist historian, who edited the foreign office documents while the radicals were still in power and wrote the most important condemnation of the Kaiser that has appeared in Germany since the revolution.

An outsider can hardly understand how pressing a question this matter of responsibility for the war has become to the Germans. At every new difference with the Entente the conservatives come to the fore with their one stubborn argument that the worst paragraph in the Versailles treaty is the one which establishes that the Germans deliberately provoked and desired the war. Without this paragraph, they argue, the Germans could not morally be bound to fulfil the remainder of the treaty. And it was one of the guiding policies of the Wilhelmstrasse under Dr. Walter Simons to try to change the world opinion about Germany's culpability.

Not the conservatives alone, but such men as Dr. Paul Rohrbach and Count Max Montgelas, who have been leaders in the democratic movement, are among the spokesmen for this "revise the world opinion" movement. Their aim is not to free Germany of responsibility but of guilt. That is, they draw a distinction between bad judgment having resulted in the war and the deliberate intention of having forced it.

In view of this discussion, which to Germans appears to be the most important they can bring to the world's notice, the evidence of a radical historian like Karl Kautsky is regarded as having supreme authority. And in recent political meetings the conservatives have made a great play of the fact that Kautsky himself revised his opinion about the Kaiser's war guilt.

Kautsky has been on a trip to Georgia, hence his contentions had to be defended by his Socialist colleagues. But now that he is back in Berlin he takes the stand in his own behalf. What he offers, while it is a technical refutation of the charges that he changed his opinion, remains one of the strongest statements to the credit of those who draw the distinction between responsibility and provocation.

Kautsky's answer to Professor Delbrueck contains the statement: "I can make a confession that there was a time when I did the German government an injustice. I was greatly astonished when I came to examine the foreign office documents. My original contention proved to be untenable."

But in the same pamphlet he says: "All of Prof. Delbrueck's critical attacks do not move me to change a single word of what I have written."

In an article in the Freiheit he now tries to bring these apparent contradictions into harmony. Kautsky's earlier opinion, he states, was that Germany must have known what she was about when she lent unequivocal support to Austria, so he concluded that Germany desired the war and deliberately provoked it.

"But the foreign office documents," he now explains, "showed that William II. was wholly without a clear consciousness of the most obvious consequences of his conduct. He provoked Russia in the strongest manner in supporting the Austrian ultimatum and trusted that the Russian colossus would retire in the face of the Central Powers without drawing the sword and so the peace of Europe would be preserved.

"He supported himself in this bluff by calculating that Italy and even Roumania would aid Austria in a war of conquest and that England would remain quiet while France was being destroyed, and so Russia would retreat, he thought. No moderately sober individual could have shared these expectations. But William conducted himself in July, 1914, quite as he did on an earlier occasion when without much thought he insulted and provoked a great power and then collapsed when that power made a gesture indicative of war in reply.

"He collapsed also in July, 1914, when the inevitable fruits of his deeds became apparent and Germany was threatened with war against the world. He would gladly have retreated, but this time he came too late to a decision. He failed to whistle Austria back, for the criminal idiots who made the Austrian policy in the Ballplatz were rejoicing over the fact that at last they were to get their war against Serbia.

"They were not able to accompany William on his leaps from defiant inconsideration to timid despair. They remained true to their narrow minded urgencies. In the meantime William's policy resulted in mobilization by the whole world because each side feared an attack from the other. William's stupidity thereupon reached a climax. While the others mobilized but did not declare war so as not to destroy the last hopes for maintaining peace he believed the mobilization of the others forced him not only to mobilize but to declare war, and so he brought war to pass.

"This conception is the one I obtained from documents, and one which I have already expounded. But to repeat it, I declare that the archives convinced me that I hitherto had done the German government an injustice for I had wrongly assumed that it went ahead systematically, deliberately with full consciousness of what it was doing, whereas in reality we find the policy of opportunism based on impressions of the moment without question as to the eventual consequences and with reliance on good luck. And then when things went badly there was a loss of self-command and grasping at the last straw.

"This policy was purely personal and William bears the entire responsibility, not the German people, who were themselves betrayed."

AN EMBARGO ON BRAINS

New York Evening Post

Congress, which has a traditional tender spot for infant industries, will presumably not turn a deaf ear to the appeal of an infantile industry. That may be the hope, added to the urge of necessity, which has impelled the movie managers to march upon Washington with the demand for a 60 per cent protective tariff on German films. This time it is not a question of defending American open hearths and modern homes against the pauper labor of Europe. German film stars are not working for starvation prices, even when measured in paper marks. The German motion picture business is itself passing through a crisis, due in large measure to enormous salaries and lavish production costs. Protection is now soliciting against superior German art and craftmanship. The movie interests are asking for an embargo on brains.

ACCIDENT DAY

Cleveland Plain Dealer

One with a statistical turn of mind and time enough to consult police reports for some months past might figure out with fair accuracy how many automobile accidents will occur in Cleveland and vicinity between sunrise this morning and midnight. The number will, of course, be large. In all probability there will be some deaths, more will be injured and property damage will run into many dollars. All this has come to be a regular part of Sunday. Knowing the facts, then, why not avoid the losses. These are penalties of carelessness, in large part. Some of to-day's accidents will be caused by individuals who think they are in a hurry and take desperate chances. Others will be caused by people who think they can get over the crossing before someone else reaches it. Speeding will take its particular toll; Skidding of cars out of control will account for a few smashes; taking bad turns at too high a speed, neglecting to signal the machine behind; in short, taking hazardous chances of one kind or another is what gives Sunday its character as accident day. The recipe for an accidentless Sunday is simplicity itself. Be careful; that's all.

The Poets' Corner

KEEP SMILING

I often think my outlook pale,
Because I've not a load of kale,
I do not own a limousine,
At high class shows I'm never seen;
But I've enough for any need,
No poverty you'll hear me plead,
For there is always some poor soak
Who's always very badly broke.

I often call myself a wreck,
Use salves and ointment by the peck,
Because I have a trivial pain,
Or sniffle when it starts to rain,
But after thinking hard, my soul
Is thankful that my body's whole;
So o'er my ailments I won't cry,
'Cause there are some worse off than I

And so, in this our little world,
As in life's wuirpool we are whirled,
Reverses will be met, that's true,
Whatever we may think or do;
But when our luck is very bad
And little comfort can be had,
We must not tear our hair or cuss
Because there's some worse off than us.

TREASURE ON SILVER ISLET.

Old Mine in Lake Superior Was Once Canada's Greatest.

Ordinarily the shipping of an outfit of hoisting engines, mine buckets and compressors to the site of a mine is not a remarkable circumstance. In the active mining districts of Canada it is a more or less frequent occurrence. But the announcement from Port Arthur that equipment of this kind is being shipped to Silver Islet is something decidedly beyond the ordinary.

Silver Islet was for about fourteen years the site of one of the world's most remarkable silver mines. But that period lapsed thirty-seven years ago. Silver Islet was the greatest silver-producing mine Canada had known before Cobalt was discovered. And while it was being worked nickel, now Ontario's leading mineral product, was first discovered.

Silver Islet is near the head of Lake Superior, about a mile offshore, and a short distance northeast of Thunder Cape. The discovery of the silver contents of the little islet was a mere accident. A survey was being made of the mainland in 1869, and the island was included. A surveyor was driving a stake when his eye caught a glimpse of a vein of the white metal protruding from the surface. Tracing it, he found that after crossing the islet it ran over the side into the deep waters of the lake.

A group of Montreal capitalists attempted the following year to develop the property. But the turning of it into a mine was no easy matter, the islet being only a few feet above the surface of the water.

Finally, after the expenditure of many thousands of dollars in the erection of breakwaters, development work was carried on, American capital was interested, and the property became a big producer.

One vein to which particular attention was given proved to be a perfect bonanza. It had a depth of 1,200 feet, and the 1,154,537 pounds of ore which were mined therefrom up to the season of 1872 yielded silver that averaged $1,322.44 to every ton of ore produced. For a distance of sixty feet the working ran through the centre of a deposit of solid native silver. By the time the vein was worked out in 1874 it had yielded silver to the value of $2,000,000. The total yield of the mine up to the time operations were discontinued in 1884 was $3,250,000.

Discontinuance was not due to exhaustion of the silver resources of the property. True, production had been on a much smaller scale than during the early years of operation. But it is said that the work was not carried on according to the principles of scientific mining. Its owners had no intention of making it a permanent mine. All they aimed at was to get out the silver in the bonanza veins.

There being in those days no convenient railway lines, the camp had to depend on the supplies that were brought in by sailing vessel. The supplies intended for the winter of 1884-85, went astray and failed to reach their destination before the close of navigation. So the mine was closed down, and never reopened.

The attempt at bringing back to life a mine that has been dead for a generation is being watched with considerable interest, and particularly by the people of the near-by "Twin Cities" of Port Arthur and Fort William.

Fish In Tank Scows.

In Norway and Holland huge tank scows, which are in effect floating aquaria, have long been used to fetch fishes from the fishing grounds to market. Thus they reach the latter alive and in fine condition.

The idea has been newly adopted for use on this side of the ocean, and several such scows have been built for traffic between Canadian waters and the United States northern seacoast cities.

They are built of wood, their hulls, which are long and narrow, having a number of compartments to hold the fish. The compartments are perforated with holes in order that the sea water may flow freely through them. Water-tight bulkheads at bow and stern keep the craft afloat.

Some of the fishes inevitably die or sicken in the course of so long a voyage, and these are scooped out with long-handled nets and thrown away. The scows are sailing craft, but it is planned to equip them with gasoline engines for faster travel. One of them, twenty-four days out from Quebec, reached New York the other day with a cargo of 1,000 tons of eels, caught in chicken-wire traps in the St. Lawrence river, which were delivered alive and wriggling at the Fulton fish market.

No Gold on the Gatineau.

The clamor which was made early in May about a rich gold discovery at Kazubazua, on the Gatineau river, which was promptly named "Quebec's Klondike," has proved a tempest in a teacup, according to the report of the investigation made by Mr. Theo O. Denis, Quebec Superintendent of Mines, who affirms that none of the assays of samples collected by him at Kazubazua showed any trace of precious metals, and all the analysis gave blanks in gold and silver.

ANOTHER LIFE LOST ON LEVEL CROSSING

Brantford, July 10.—Another life was lost in a level-crossing accident Saturday afternoon, when George Gee's car was struck by a Grand Trunk train on the Paris road. Gee was driving and was accompanied by Charles Bedford. Bedford saw the train coming and warned Gee and jumped. Gee was trapped, however, and the locomotive struck the car head-on. Gee was wounded seriously and his right arm and leg broken. A passing radial car was halted and Gee rushed to the hospital, where he died within an hour of admittance. Bedford, who jumped, was scarcely scratched.

LIQUOR CASE DISMISSED

A party from Marmora was Monday morning before Magistrate Masson charged with an infraction of the O.T.A. License Inspector Conners was the prosecutor in the case. It was alleged that a quantity of liquor was consigned to a party at Bonar Law which gave a ficitious name and that it was in reality for the accused, case was dismissed. Mr. Carnew represented the Inspector and Mr. C. A. Payne for the accused.

COOLER WEATHER

A maximum temperature of 95 degrees at Brockville on Saturday was chased away yesterday by the cooling east wind, which bought the thermometer down to a maximum of 87 degrees During last night the thermometer dropped to 69 degrees, being the first from the sweltering heat in over three weeks. Indications this morning pont to the being another scorcher.

It begins to look as though 1921 was going back on the good record made in the early months of the year when automobile fatalities were considerably reduced from the 1919 and 1920 figures. The Safety League reports a total of five motor deaths in Toronto for June, 1921, which is the same figure as June, 1920. The total for the preceeding five months in 1921 was twelve, or seventeen in all for the first six months of this year. This compares favorably, however, with the figures of the preceeding two years, as there were twenty-seven automobile fatalities in 1920 and twenty in the first half of 1919. These figures are particularly interesting in view of the large increase year by year in automobiles registered.

DROWNED IN RIVER

Walter Rives Malby, aged 28, of Elizabeth, N.J., youngest son of the late Congressman George R. Malby, of Ogdensburg, lost his life by drowning on Saturday evening in the St. Lawrence about three miles east of Ogdensburgh. Mr. and Mrs. Malby and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wells were caught in a small boat which was capsized by the force of the winds and heavy seas. Malby, who was unable to swim, lost his life after giving up his place in the boat to one of the women and attempting to reach shore with the support of an oar. His widow and two sons survive, as well as his mother.

MARKET PRICES

A fair crowd of buyers were present at the market this (Tuesday) morning. A moderate amount of produce was offered for sale by the farmers in this vicinity. Prices received were still high, peas bringing 25 cents a quart, and cherries and red raspberries 2 boxes for 25 cents. Some garden produce was offered, new potatoes being $2.25 a crate.

RIVER DRIVER DROWNS

Arthur Blaney, employed for the past three months as river driver by Ferguson & Findlay, on the Madawaska River, was drowned in Savigne Rapids, near Calabogie, on Thursday Blaney could not swim, and while wading in the river, lost his footing and was swept by the current into the deep water. His fellow-workmen tried in vain to rescue him. The body was recovered and the remains were shipped to Centre View, Hastings county, where his parents reside. Blaney was twenty years old.

A TOKEN OF RESPECT

The flag from the city building is floating at half mast out of respect to the late ex-Alderman John Canning.

THE GLORIOUS TWELFTH

Whilst there was no celebration in Belleville to commemorate the battle of the Boyne, there were gatherings in the immediate vicinity. At the village of Stirling there was a large gathering of lodges from Centre Hastings and other places. The Argyle Light Infantry band of this city was present, heading the parade. The members of the Orange Societies here went to Brighton to take part in a walk in that village. The True Blues Lodge of the city took part in a celebration at Picton.

FIRST CASE TRIED

The first case tried in the Belleville police court under an act passed by the Dominion Parliament in aid of Provincial Legislation prohibiting or restricting the sale of intoxicating liquor was disposed of yesterday, when Magistrate Masson dismissed a charge preferred against A. T. Neal of Marmora for bringing intoxicating liquor into the Province of Ontario on the 20th November, 1921, from the Province of Quebec to be thereafter dealt with in violation of the law of Province of Ontario. Wm. Carnew for the crown, C. A. Payne for the accused.

Five Women

they are giving their support to the Farmer candidates. A few more Conservatives will probably be nominated, but apart from the cities the opposition is making a much less general effort than in the previous election. The explanation is that the main fight with the government is being left to the Farmers.

There will be 35 or more United Farmer candidates in different parts of the province. All the Cabinet Ministers are likely to be opposed on this ticket, even Premier Stewart escaping the necessity of a Farmer opponent by a close margin. Hon. J. R. Boyle, attorney-general, is being opposed in Sturgeon by an agrarian, and is contesting an Edmonton seat in addition. Similar opposition is to be given to Hon. G. P. Smith in Camrose, Hon. J. L. Cote in Gruarn, Hon. C. R. Mitchell in Bow Valley, and Hon. A. J. McLean in Taber, while Hon. Duncan Marshall in Olds, is likely to have a contest on his hands from the same source.

Monday was nomination day, and voting will be one week later. Everywhere there appears to be a determination on the part of the Farmers' organization to see the thing through.

The agrarian candidates are reported from both north and south to be a good type of men, all of them being qualified under the terms of the U. F. A. political constitution as Farmers on their own account. They have not found it necessary to do a great deal of platform campaigning, for it seems to be taken for granted that they will poll a nearly solid Farmers vote. It is practically certain, at any rate, that there will be many more Farmers' seats in the next legislature with even a possibility that the agrarians will have the balance of power.

In the meantime the Liberals and Conservatives are continuing their fight largely on the question of administrations and finances.

Five women candidates have thus far entered the contest. Two of these are on the Liberal ticket, one Conservative, and two for the Farmers' movement. Mrs. L. C. McKinney, the first woman legislator in Canada, is running on the U. F. A. ticket in Claresholm, and Mrs. Nellie McClung, the author, is on the Liberal ticket in Edmonton, emphasizing especially a prohibition platform.

A wedding of much interest locally took place at the Tabernacle Church this Tuesday at High-Noon, the Rev. W. Elliott officiating, when Miss Maud Etna Foxton of this city was united in marriage to Mr. Bertie Woodington of Stratford. Mr. and Mrs. M. Howe of Demorestville were witnesses of the marriage.

Upon the conclusion of the ceremony the immediate friends and relatives of the bride repaired to the home of the bride's parents, Herchimer street where a dainty wedding dinner was served.

Mr and Mrs. Woodington left for Buffalo, Niagara Falls and other western points on their honeymoon. On their return the happy couple will reside in Stratford.

Two Islands Offered City for Bathers of Belleville

The members of the City Council were last night in a talkative mood, despite the fact that the Council chamber was by no means a cold storage plant. The session was prolonged to such an extent that the time had to be extended one hour when eleven o'clock arrived, and at 11.15 they were still going strong. With all the talk the business transacted was not of a voluminous nature.

The members present were Mayor Hanna, Aldermen Treverton, French, Bennett, Adams, Wensley, Fisher.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Reports of committees, communications, etc., were laid on the table, and the Council went into committee of the whole on reports, etc., Ald. Adams in the chair.

The accounts recommended to be paid by the various committees were passed, also the following recommendations:

A recommendation prevailed that a sanitary sewer be built on Burton street.

GRANT TO C. A. S.

A recommendation was presented that a grant of $300 be made to the Children's Aid Society.

Ald. French moved in amendment that the grant be $150 as there was only one city child in the Shelter at the present time.

Ald. Wensley spoke in support of the recommendation that the grant be $300.

Upon a vote being taken it was a tie, three voting for the recommendation and three for the amendment. Ald. Adams voted for the recommendation.

COUNCIL THANKED.

The Council was thanked for the use of the agricultural ground for holding the cadet camp.—Received and filed.

A NUISANCE.

A deputation of ladies and gentlemen were present to protest against the dumping of garbage on Memorial Park at the junction of Cannifton Road and Station Street. It was a nuisance and should be stopped. From the remarks of some members of the deputation decayed fish and meat were being deposited thereon in the garbage and at times the odor was unbearable.

Mayor Hanna spoke in support of having the nuisance stopped.

Ald. French stated that he would look into the matter and have the nuisance abated.

A communication was read from Col. Gillespie thanking the council for its grant to the Cadet camp which was held in the city last week.—Filed.

BATHING SITE OFFERED.

Tickell & Sons offered Dickson's and Fairman's islands, across the bay to the city to be used as bathing places. The donors stated that a pontoon bridge could be built to reach the islands from the Prince Edward shore.

This matter, with the bequest of the late Senator Corby of $5,000 for a bathhouse, was placed in the hands of Ald. Bennett, chairman of Parks, to look into.

PROVINCIAL HIGHWAYS.

Mr. W. A. McLean, Deputy Minister of public highways, wrote the council relative to some provincial highways which would be constructed in Sidney and Thurlow townships adjacent to the city.

Mr. Thos. D. Ruston, Inspector and Secretary of the Children's Aid Society, asked the council for a grant of $500 to the Society to assist in carrying on their work. The council agreed to give $300.

A request for a walk on the east side of Ridley avenue was referred to the Public Works department.

NOT COMPELLABLE.

Mr. S. Masson, City Solicitor, wrote the council that it would be impossible for the council to pass a bylaw to compel milk vendors to have their names blown into the bottles.

BAKERIES INSPECTED.

Mr. B. R. Quincey, inspector of bakeries, reported that he had made an inspection of the bakeries of the city and found them in a sanitary condition.—Received and filed.

The committee rose and reported. The report was received and on motion that it be adopted Ald. Fisher moved in amendment that it be not adopted, but referred back to the committee for reconsideration of the grant of $300 to the C. A. S., that it be $150.

After some discussion a vote was taken on the amendment to make the grant $150, with the following result:

Yeas—Bennett, Fisher and French,

Nays — Mayor Hanna, Aldermen Adams, Ostrom, Treverton and Wensley, 5.

The report was adopted and a grant of $300 will be given.

Under the head of enquiries a number of questions were asked and answered.

PREFERS MUSIC TO ETHER

Boston, July 11.—His music so soothes Oscar J. Kelley of South Boston, that he preferred it to ether while hospital surgeons were probing for a bullet in his thigh. When the doctors started to put Kelley under the influence of the anaesthetic he objected strenuously. Then he called for his harmonica, jumped on the operating table and played gaily while the bullet was removed.

Berlin, July 11.—Unemployment is being gradually reduced throughout Germany. The number of persons supported by the State fell off 40,000 in May to 358,000, while partial support was being given to 440,000, according to official figures.

THE SUBSTITUTE

(Copyright, 1903)

"Oh, that's it!" And, to the evident surprise of the servant, the mountaineer, without removing his broad brimmed slouch hat, passed by him into the hall. "Well, you tell 'im thar's a feller out here that wants to see 'im, an' that dern quick."

"But I told you"—

"I know what you told me, you black idiot! You tell 'im what I told you, an' be in a hurry about it!"

With the whites of his rolling eyes decidedly in evidence the negro backed out of the hall mumbling something Truitt could not catch. He came back in a minute.

"The governor says he's occupied just now an' ain't at home to nobody. He was just lyin' down to take a nap. He won't let nobody disturb 'im at this time o' day."

"He won't, hey?" Truitt sneered. "Well, you tell 'im I said a man wants to see 'im that kin beat the hind sights off'n 'im in the next election ef he wants to. You tell 'im that a man wants to see 'im on a matter o' life an' death. Tell 'im that, you black fool, an' see what he'll say."

The negro was absent about three minutes, and then he came back and sullenly motioned Truitt to enter the door on the right of the hall. Telfare was standing at a green covered writing table and frowned and stared impatiently at Truitt, who had not yet removed his hat.

"I believe I do not recall your face," he said, extending his hand, "but I meet so many friends in going about over the state. You are Mr."—

"Oh, about as common, thank you—a little headache, that's all. How do you come on?"

"I'm very well, thank you, but I did not catch your name."

"Oh, my name? It's Bascom Truitt."

"Well, Mr. Truitt, to be plain, you must know that I'm a very busy man, and if you will tell me right out what you called to see me about I'll see if we can get around to it. My private secretary usually meets visitors and makes a note of what they wish, but he is always out at lunch at this hour."

Truitt laughed. Taking a plug of tobacco from his pocket, he tore off a piece and put it between his teeth. "Lord bless yore soul," he said, "no private secretary couldn't 'tend to this job fer you."

"I don't understand you." Telfare was waxing impatient; his frown had deepened on his dark brow.

"Well, it's jest this a-way, governor," Truitt replied. "It seems that as much as you want to please yore constituents you've made one of 'em up at Darley as mad as thunder at you."

"To whom do you refer?" Telfare was staring blankly.

"Why, I 'to whom' to a young feller—to George Buckley, who, it seems, you made sorter mad t'other night over at old man Cranston's house."

"And he has sent you to me?" sneered Telfare.

"No; he never mentioned it to me. But it seems—at least it seems to me from what I gather—that you insulted 'im like a dog—told 'im right out that you 'n' him couldn't breathe the same air, walk under the same sky, an' so forth."

"What I said on that occasion was quite a private matter," said Telfare, "and, to be plain with you, I don't intend to discuss it."

"But, you see, governor"—Truitt was chewing his tobacco slowly and eying his victim like a cat watching a mouse—"you see, another feller up thar, that hain't got a thing agin his record—a feller that never had no kin in jail, nur any hung, nur none in state politics—a feller that fit on the right side all through the war—that feller hain't satisfied. He don't feel right to set still an' let you demean a pore boy that's doin' his level best to raise his head up."

Telfare turned pale. He looked as if he were about to fall.

"You came to bring a challenge?" he gasped.

"Well, I've come to do some'n'," said Truitt evasively. "It looks powerful like you've got to take prompt action in the matter. You've made fine speeches all over the state about the equality o' men, an' it would be a big joke on you to have it get out that your blood was too rich to come up agin one o' the most honorable young men in the state o' Georgia, jest beca'se his daddy went wrong."

Telfare sank into his leather cushioned chair. He was very nervous, and his pallor had extended even to his white hands.

"Who is the—the man that is dissatisfied?" he faltered.

"Me," said Truitt simply.

"You?" The governor could only stare in bewilderment.

"Yes, me, Bas Truitt of the Forty-second Georgia, under Colonel H. F. Pierson. My record's all right. At least ef it hain't, you kin show why it hain't. Yes, I've come here fer some sort o' settlement, an' I'm goin' to have it, or I'll turn the governor o' Georgia across my knee an' spank 'im black an' blue. No dern, fluted shirted skunk kin insult a brave, pure hearted friend o' mine an' leave 'im writhin' under it, an' go off an' chuckle, jest beca'se of a flimsy excuse like you put up to him. No, siree; you've got to git a move on you. What I would advise is a gentlemanly apology."

"Apology? You must be out of your mind, sir," said Telfare angrily. "I can't send an apology to that man."

"You say you cayn't, you pup," thundered Truitt. "Stand up! What you settin' down fer?" And Truitt actually took the governor by the ear and twisted it as he raised him, squirming like an eel, to his feet. "How do you like that, curse you?"

Telfare, beside himself with fear and excitement, tore Truitt's hand from his smarting ear and furiously 'rang the silver bell on his desk. The servant in the hall quickly appeared.

"Call a policeman!" Telfare panted. "There's one on the corner."

"By gum! I hadn't calculated on that move o' yore'n," said Truitt coolly. "I reckon the cop 'll slap me jail, but I've always heard they feed purty well thar, an' I'm as hungry as a bear."

Telfare made no reply. Truitt was between him and the door or he would undoubtedly have made his escape. As it was, he only stood at his desk, white as death and quivering from head to foot.

There was a clatter of feet in the hall, and a policeman, rather slight of build and a head shorter than the mountaineer, entered hastily.

"What's the trouble, governor?" he asked.

Telfare swallowed and was about to speak when Truitt broke in. "Oh, it hain't nothin', young feller, but a little 'lection dispute me 'n' Telfare had. He fell agin that bell accidentally jest now, an' that flat nosed A-rabb 'lowed he was bein' assassinated an' run fer you. Do you reckon yo're big enough to keep anybody in yore beat from bein' injured?"

The officer looked up at the gaunt mountaineer towering over him and then at Telfare, who seemed unable to speak.

"That—that nigger said Governor Telfare wanted me," the policeman stammered.

"Well, he's got dern bad judgment ef he'd want you in a time o' need. Are you a married man?"

"Yes."

"Carry any life insurance?"

"No, I don't, but what's that got to"—

"Well"—Truitt stroked his beard—"I believe I'll take pity on yore widow. I thought at fust I'd mash you 'twixt my thumb an' forefinger, but I won't. Git out o' here. I've got some'n' private to say to Telfare."

Truitt actually took the governor by the ear and twisted it.

The officer, with a flushed face, looked from one to the other of the two men, his inquiring glance resting last on the white, rigid countenance of Telfare. But the governor seemed to have actually lost his presence of mind and could only stare blankly.

"I jest wanted to ax you, Telfare, how you felt about havin' the whole thing writ up in the newspapers," Truitt said in the pause. "I know mighty nigh ever' newspaper reporter in the state an' some adj'inin' states. They will print anything I give 'em. We got sorter chummy at our last reunion. Yes, they will publish my side of this, an' of course you'll have a chance to have yore say. As fur as I'm concerned, I'd railly like to have it git around to all the veteran camps in the state. Most of 'em know Bas Truitt by reputation, an' when they hear about this they will jest break the'r necks to vote fer you next election. You barely got in by a squeeze last time, but they'll rush you in like the woods afire when this tale gits out."

"Governor, I'm waiting your orders," said the policeman, who seemed to feel that a mistake had been made and that he was overhearing private matters.

"Wait in the hall," Telfare said. "I'll ring if I need you. This man's been drinking."

"Huh!" sneered Truitt as the door closed after the policeman. "I'm dry as a chip, an' I reckon you got some o' the best settin' round, an' yet you hain't offered a feller a drap."

"Now, what do you want?" Telfare asked, doggedly miserable, defeat written all over him.

"Nothin' now," answered Truitt. "I'm goin' back an' tell George Buckley that I pulled yore year fer you. He's felt this thing purty bad—a proud man naturally would—but when I tell 'im what I done an' that you tuck it like a dunce at school, why, it's my opinion he'll jest feel sorry fer you. I do, I know, an' I'm free to confess I feel a little grain ashamed myself, but that will wear off, I reckon. God Almighty ort to provide a different way o' pullin' skunks down from the'r perch, but it seems he hain't. That's all I have to say. Good day, yore excellency."

Truitt left Telfare sitting at his desk, sullenly, desperately silent, and went out. Through it all the mountaineer had not removed his hat, and his chew of tobacco was still in his mouth.

CHAPTER XXIV.

THE next day Truitt slouched into the warehouse, finding Hillyer and George at their desks working over some bills of lading of a big shipment of cotton they were making to eastern mills.

Veterans Who Did Yeoman Service for Their Country

LOCAL HISTORY MADE BY BELLEVILLIANS IN THE TROUBLESOME TIMES OF 1836-37 AND 1866 — DESCENDANTS STILL RESIDING IN OUR COUNTY.

It will no doubt be of great interest to our readers to recall the names of some of the men who did good service for Queen and country in the troublesome times of 1836, 1837 and 1866, many of them identified with our local history and progress and many of them having descendents still resident in our County. Biography and history are always interesting and have a sentimental value. To Col. Ponton we are indebted for the following information:

Midnight Blaze Burns Barn & Car

MR. H. BROWN HAS CAR BURNED, THE SECOND ONE THIS SEASON

At a few minutes after the midnight hour last night a fire broke out in a frame barn owned by Mrs. E. J. Ross, corner of Victoria and Foster Avenues, and when the fire brigade arrived upon the scene the structure was enveloped in flames. The firemen directed their efforts toward preventing the spread of the flames to adjacent buildings, and in this they were successful. Stored in the burned building was a new McLaughlin runabout, the property of Mr. Harvey Brown, which was a total loss. Mr. Brown has been most unfortunate this year as this is the second car he has had destroyed by fire. A few months ago, while en route home from Trenton, his McLaughlin car, it is thought from a short circuit, caught fire on the Trent Road near the Belleville cemetery and was a total wreck. The cause of the fire last night is not known. The loss sustained is only partially covered by insurance. A large number of citizens were attracted to the scene of the fire, as the reflection indicated that a serious blaze was in progress.

Attempt Made to Kill President

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

Copenhagen, July 13.—A despatch to Berlingske Tidende from Warsaw to-day says it has been learned that an attempt was made to assassinate President Pilsudski of Poland, and that the police have run down a plot to overthrow the present Polish government. Authorities, says the message, are maintaining the utmost reserve with regard to the affair, but it appears that a man forced himself in to President Pilsudski's room and fired several shots. A number of arrests have been made.

LICENSE NOT NEEDED TO SHIP CANADIAN AUTOS TO ITALY

Ottawa, July 11.—The Italian Government, it is announced by the Department of Trade and Commerce, has withdrawn restrictions against the importation of Canadian motor cars into that country. Trade Commissioner W. L. Clark writes from Milan that following on representations made, Canada has been placed on the same footing as Great Britain.

Wallaceburg Cirl Drowned In Auto

CAR PLUNGED INTO RIVER FROM FERRY AND HER GRIP COULD NOT BE LOOSENED

Chatham, Ont., July 12.—Miss Ida Goodman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Goodman, of Wallaceburg, lost her life in the Sydenham River last evening, when the automobile in which she was riding plunged into the river off the Becher ferry, about five miles north of Wallaceburg. The other members of the party were Miss Jessie Bailey, a young man named Fox and another young man who is the latter's cousin.

The party were returning from Port Lambton, got on the wrong road, and thinking the ferry was a bridge, attempted to drive over it. The two young men rescued Miss Bailey, but Miss Goodman had taken a death grip on the windshield of the car, and it was found impossible for either of the young men to unloosen her hold, although they dived down to her several times.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE FOR WASHINGTON

London, July 12.—Premier Lloyd George will attend the Washington disarmament conference, it was officially announced this evening. Premier Briand had already informally announced his intention of participating personally in the conference, and with the precedent set by Lloyd George it was believed that Italy and Japan may also be represented by the heads of their governments.

It is believed that A. J. Balfour and Winston Churchill will attend with Mr. Lloyd George.

The Central News says it learns that General Smuts has been approached on behalf of the U.S. government with the view of having him participate in the conference. Gen. Smuts has not yet decided whether he will accept, the Central News adds

HOLD WORLD CONFERENCE

London, July 11.—It is planned to hold a world conference of the Irish race. Art O'Brien, secretary of the Irish Self-Determination League has issued an announcement that the league has taken the first steps to organize the conference. An organizing secretary is about to take office in Paris. O'Brien says he hopes representatives of the Self-Determination League will be chosen from each of the states of America.

Conference Will Seriously Affect Political Plans

Ottawa, July 12.—The coming conference at Washington on the question of international disarmament in which Canada's part as an intermediary will be important, is viewed at Ottawa as likely to have an incidental effect upon the relations between Canada and the United States and to tend to remove any irritating differences between the two countries in either a national or fiscal sense. While the question of disarmament has little or no connection with trade the sentimental atmosphere developed by such a gathering, especially if it be productive of favorable results, will, it is believed, stimulate a more friendly relationship between the two countries. Conceivably, it may overcome some of the fiscal hostility to Canada apparent in the tariff legislation, under discussion at Washington.

The Washington conference will probably be held this fall and owing to the magnitude of the undertaking it will presumably be long, unless the agenda is predigested. This fact will not be without influence upon the domestic political situation. For one thing it would preclude the possibility of a fall session of Parliament, of which there has been considerable talk. It would tend furthermore to accelerate the by-elections which it is believed will likely be brought on in September. In the case of two of them—St. Antoine and West York—the six months' limit will be up by that time. Brockville, Durham and Maple Creek became vacant much later and there is no statutory necessity for hurrying the contests. It is nevertheless considered probable that the Prime Minister will wish to clean off the slate before he goes to Washington. He has announced his intention of going there as the representative of Canada.

The general impression here has been that, if the by-elections result adversely to the Government, dissolution would be precipitated. Without reference to their outcome there is now talk of endeavoring to arrange an understanding between all the parties for another session to enact a redistribution bill with the idea of an election in the spring.

L.O.L. Parades in Many Places

IDEAL WEATHER FAVORS THE LARGE TURNOUT OF ORANGE SOCIETIES

At various places in Hastings and adjoining counties the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne was on Tuesday commemorated by Orangemen and kindred societies.

Stirling

Two thousand Orangemen representing 30 lodges in Centre Hastings walked in Stirling village, and 6,000 persons entered the fair grounds and heard addresses by Mr. H. C. Hill, M.P.P. of Ottawa; Deputy Grand Chaplain, A. E. Smart; Past Grand Master W. E. Tummon, and Rev. Mr. Bennett of Stirling. Hopes were expressed for a happy solution of the Irish peace negotiations. A past Grand Master's jewel was presented to Mr. Tummon. Resolutions were passed of loyalty to the Crown; of belief in the principles of the Orange Order; of sympathy to the Irish brethern in their fight with the Sinn Fein; of proferred assistance from Centre Hastings if need be, and of encouragement for national schools.

Brighton

At Brighton village there was a large turnout of Orangemen. In the afternoon a parade was held and a mass meeting held at the driving park. Mr. F. M. Clarke of Belleville, Grand Secretary for Eastern Ontario Grand Lodge was amongst the speakers.

Picton

It is estimated that upwards of 1000 Orangemen and True Blues were in the procession at Picton. Lodges in Prince Edward and Hastings counties were represented. Addresses were given by prominent members of the Order.

London, July 12.—The Prince of Wales has declined all public engagements during August and September in order to obtain a much needed rest before his visit to India. Last week during the celebrations in Lancashire Lord Derby declared that the prince must for his health's sake lead a less strenuous life for a time.

Beats Wife Cruelly, Then Kills Himself

THOUGHT TO HAVE BEEN INSANE—BODY FOUND IN WELL

Kitchener, July 11.—Herman Steppler, Walter street, wanted for beating his wife, was found dead in a well at his home with his throat cut this afternoon. It is alleged that about five o'clock this morning he beat her severely, leaving her in a serious condition, with face swollen, one ear torn and several teeth out. The matter was reported to the police, who immediately began a search for Steppler. His body was found this afternoon. The circumstances surrounding the affair are not known, the woman's condition is too serious for a statement to be secured, but it is thought that the assault and suicide were the result of a temporary fit of insanity. It is believed that Mrs. Steppler will recover.

Tired of Life, Boy Attempts Suicide

CONSTABLE SAVES HIM AND BRINGS HIM BEFORE THE JUVENILE COURT

Montreal July 12.—A boy of 15 years of age brought before Judge Choquet at the Juvenile Court yesterday morning for attempting to take his own life pleaded guilty to the charge and said that he was tired of life. His father, he said, had driven him from his home.

The lad, who is tall and healthy looking was seen by a constable on the top of some railings. In his hands he had a strap, which he had tied to the top of the fence, with one end and with the other he had made a noose, which he was about to put round his neck. The constable caught the boy as he was about to throw himself down, arrested him and took him to the juvenile court, where he will be kept until he has recovered from his fit of despondency.

Japan Yet to Be Heard From

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

London, July 13.—Three of the principal allied nations, Great Britain, France and Italy, have officially signified their acceptance of President Harding's invitation to hold a conference on the limitation of armaments, while China has indicated her readiness to participate in a conference relative to Far Eastern questions. Japan is the only one of the Allies that has not placed herself on record as being ready to take part in the Washington conference, but it is expected in official circles here that her acceptance will be communicated to the United States Government soon.

Yukon Reverts to Liquor Sale

PROHIBITION LAW OF 1920 IS REVERSED AT THE POLLS

Dawson, Y.T., July 12.—The Yukon Territory yesterday voted in favor of importation of liquor for beverage purposes. Dawson City gave the "Wets" a majority of 90. The creek polls and White Horse City gave a heavy majority for the "Wets," and outlying polls still to be heard from cannot reverse the majority. Total returns today give the "Wets" more than two to one. In February, 1920, the Territory voted down the sale of liquor within its boundaries.

GIRLS RUN RISK IN POWDERING NOSES

Philadelphia, July 12.—Girls take a perilous risk when they powder their noses hurriedly, it was declared today by Dr. Herbert McGoddard, a noted rhinologist of this city. He said 75 per cent. of the women of the United States are suffering from irritation of the septum, the bony ridge separating the nostrils. It is the result of powder getting up the nostrils.

Sons of South Sleep In Honor

CANADIAN MOTHERS DECORATE GRAVES OF UNITED STATES SOLDIERS

Thorold, July 11.—Besides a flag-draped gravestone in the little village of Thorold was pledged to-day the friendship between the great Anglo-Saxon nations that well may last until the going down of civilization's sun, when the mothers of Canadian boys placed the wreath of laurel upon the stone that marks the sleeping places of the U. S. soldiers on Canadian soil. Tears were upon the cheeks of 100 men from across the border and in 100 hearts there beat with quickened measure the warm red blood of brotherhood.

As the cars bearing the U. S. tourists over the new inland waterway came into Thorold, the delegates caught sight of the grey stone in the nearby field, a stone draped with the twin flags of freedom—the Union Jack and Old Glory—and the Regent of the Thorold Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire was placing upon it the floral tokens of remembrance. A band broke into the British National Anthem, and the little gathering stood in rigid attitude of respect. Then, unexpectedly, the last post was sounded.

"There has been enacted in Thorold to-day something without parallel in the annals of history," said Governor McMaster of South Dakota, who spoke on behalf of the visitors. "This is an act of friendship, an act of love, that will touch every heart in the land from which we come. Here in Thorold many years ago you did a noble and gracious deed when you interred with love and honor the bones of American soldiers who had fallen in the deplorable war of 1812. You not only gave the bones a decent burial, but you erected over them this monument, a monument which stood here for years before many of us knew it had been raised. And to-day your Daughters of the Empire placed upon it a tribute of love and affection. Would that the mothers of these our soldiers had been enabled to know that in days far ahead Canadian women would come to the graves of their sons and place upon them the tender token of remembrance."

In hall or in forum applause might have followed the remarks of the Governor of South Dakota. In that mid-field near Thorold applause seemed out of place. As the delegates departed strains of music fell upon their ears. It was the village band of Thorold and its farewell was the tender sentiment, strangely appropriate: "God be With You Till We Meet Again."

St. Andrews En Fete For Celebration

St. Andrews, N.B., July 12.—St. Andrews was enfete to-day on the occasion of Orange day celebrations and all the Orangemen from the country side drove into town in all kinds of vehicles to take part in the festivities. It is still very cool and comfortable here while the heat wave is still hitting Quebec and Ontario, the golfing fixture for the season includes seventeen interesting competitions for both ladies and gentlemen. Apart from the annual meeting of the Canadian seniors association which is scheduled for September 10 to 13 among the principal competitions are the qualifying round for the ladies' cup presented by Mr. C. R. Hogmer, and the championship cups presented by Lord and Lady Shaughnessy and the approaching and putting competition for which prizes are being presented by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ganong of Toronto as two very enthusiastic golfers now staying at the hotel. Doctors and nurses from various parts of New Brunswick are holding a convention at the Chipman Memorial Hospital at St. Stephens, numbering nearly one hundred, and as diversion, drove into St. Andrews to-night when a special dinner was secured at the Algonquin Hotel and subsequently dancing took place in the Casino to the strains of the hotel orchestra. Quite a number of Americans are coming in daily to get away from the intense heat of the Southern States.

Another series of automobile accidents is recorded in Toronto.

John Goodmeyer of Toronto drowns while wife is helpless on beach.

Final Preparation for Peace Conference being Made

GENERAL SMUTS MAY BE APPOINTED TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN OF THE GATHERING — FIRST SESSION AT PRIME MINISTER'S OFFICIAL RESIDENCE.

LONDON, July 13.—Final preparations for the meeting of Eamonn de Valera, Irish Republican leader, and Prime Minister Lloyd George, to be held here tomorrow, were being made by the Government and the Irish delegation today.

The first conference will be held in the Cabinet room at 10 Downing Street, the Prime Minister's official residence, at eleven o'clock tomorrow morning, but the procedure to be followed had not been announced early today. British officials who have been closely associated with Irish affairs during the recent past were said today to be prepared to join in the discussion with the Sinn Fein delegation headed by de Valera, and it was thought possible that General Jan C. Smuts, Premier of the Union of South Africa, would play a very definite role in the negotiations that would take place. General Smuts has been considered as the man chiefly responsible for the rapid development of the peace moves in Ireland, and late last night it was said that he might act as temporary chairman of the coming conference.

United Kingdom Leads in Ship Building

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

New York, July 13.—The United Kingdom has 2,813,000 tons more shipping under construction than the United States. Nearly sixty per cent. of the world's shipbuilding is being executed by British yards.

According to Lloyd's returns for the quarter ended June 30, world ship construction showed a decrease of approximately 960,000 tons from that of the first quarter, and the latter figures were less than 100,000 below those of the preceeding three months. During the three months ended June 30, United States shipping under construction dropped nearly 400,000 tons, British about 270,000 tons, and other countries combined, with the exception of Germany, for which complete returns are not available, about 250,000 tons.

May be Murder Instead of Suicide

Kitchener, July 12.—What was generally thought to be a case of suicide has taken on an element of mystery and may prove to be a murder.

Herman Steppler's body was found Monday in a cistern with his throat cut. His wife had been badly beaten supposedly by him, earlier on Monday and the first assumption was that Steppler had later committed suicide and thrown himself into the cistern.

Later a pool of blood and a bloody razor were discovered in a clump of bushes nearly 150 feet from the cistern, but no trace of blood on the ground between that spot and the cistern.

A post-mortem examination will be made to ascertain whether the man could have walked that distance with his throat gashed.

An inquest will be held July 22.

Valera and Lloyd George Meet Alone on Thursday

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

London, July 13.—The first meeting between Premier Lloyd George and Eamonn de Valera, Irish Republican leader, will be held at 4.30 p.m. Thurday, at No. 10 Downing Street, it was announced at Sinn Fein headquarters here this afternoon. It is inferred that the conference is to be between these two men alone.

Aviator Hawker Killed at Hendon

WAS FIRST TO ATTEMPT TO FLY ACROSS THE ATLANTIC OCEAN

London, July 12.—Harry G. Hawker, the famous aviator, was killed on the Hendon flying field today. His machine burst into flames as it alighted on the field

Hawker achieved fame in May, 1919, when he attempted a transatlantic flight from the Canadian coast to Ireland but failed, his machine falling into the water in mid-ocean. He was rescued by the Danish steamer Mary. On his return to Great Britain he was decorated by King George.

The transatlantic crossing was achieved a month later by Captain Sir John Alcock, who himself died in Decemeber, 1919, as a result of injuries received in a crash to earth near Cottevard, France.

The proverbial luck of Harry G. Hawker had been the subject of comment. It remained with him for many years as an experimental and test flyer, from which, it was said, he received not less than $100,000 yearly. He held many of the old-time aeroplane records, among them the world's altitude record in 1916 of more than 24,000 feet.

G.T.R. Engineer Killed When Engine Overturns

FATAL ACCIDENT AT MADOC JUNCTION — TENDER LEAVES TRACK, TAKING ENGINE WITH IT — VICTIM WAS RESIDENT OF LINDSAY.

A distressing and fatal accident occurred at five minutes after five o'clock this morning at Madoc Junction on the line of the Grand Trunk Railway, resulting in the death of Engineer David O'Brien, of Lindsay.

It appears that a grain train en route from Lindsay to this city became stalled on a grade near Madoc Junction. A portion of the train was taken on to a siding at the station and the engine was being driven back for the remainder of the cars when, in going around a curve, the tender left the track, causing the engine to overturn. O'Brien was pinned beneath his engine and killed. The fireman and Conductor O'Connor of Lindsay, who were in the cab, jumped, and escaped injury. The auxiliary from Belleville was despatched to the scene of the accident to clear the track.

An inquest to inquire into the circumstances of the accident has been opened.

Engineer O'Brien was a single man, residing with his parents at Lindsay. He was a member of the Roman Catholic Church and also a member of the Knights of Columbus.

LAND WITHOUT FIELD

Rome, July 11.—An airplane capable of landing without the need of a large aviation field, able to rise without a long run beforehand, able to travel more than 300 miles an hour and, if necessary, to meander along at but a few miles an hour, is announced as the invention of an Italian engineer, Epaminonda Bertucci, of Rome.

The inventor claims that he already tried out the machine on a small scale and regards his first experiments as indicative of the success of the invention. The new machine is primarily intended for aerial war chasing and is to be armed with a machine gun. It is a monoplane.

BROKEN BLADE TO DELAY VISITORS' DEPARTURE

Toronto, July 12.—The party of 160 United States senators, governors, engineers, manufacturers and trade experts who arrived in Toronto this morning accompanied by a party of Canadian representatives for a few hours stay to inspect the Toronto harbor works and water front development, may not get out of town as expected today, owing to a broken blade in the "Cape Eternity," the big lake steamer upon which they have been travelling.

The ship's damaged condition was discovered early today upon arrival from Queenston. It was said the trip would be held up indefinitely pending repairs or the chartering of another big boat.

Meantime the party's high spirits are not daunted, and if there is to be any delay Ontario's waters at Sunnyside may serve a useful purpose for the visitors who expressed a keen desire to take a dip some time during the afternoon. A sudden scurry for bathing suits was one of the engrossing activities not on the official program when the party landed at Sunnyside for their luncheon at noon.

In the party of 160 there are no less than sixty representatives from the New England States. The strong opposition to the St. Lawrence development scheme emanating from those states lends particular interest to these representatives. They are here to see for themselves and report back. That they are now rapidly falling in line with the boosters of the scheme is plainly evident.

"The scheme is either an international one or nothing at all," said P. R. Todd, a Toronto born boy who has risen through gradual steps of the transportation business to be president of the Bangor and Aroostook Railway of Maine. "I was born where the C. N. R. offices are now, so I ought to know the transportation business," he said.

WOMAN'S POWER OF SPEECH RESTORED BY LIGHTNING

Lynn, Mass., July 12.—The shock from a bolt of lightning that struck near her home in last Saturday's storm restored to Mrs. Ida Wallstedt her speech and hearing, physicians said to-day. Three months ago the woman lost the use of these faculties through a nervous breakdown. When the bolt struck she screamed: "Oh my baby," and now talks as well as ever.

Winnipeg, July 11.—Mr. Justice Curran, in supreme court chambers this morning, delivered judgment dissolving the royal grain inquiry commission. WEATHER MAN SEES A BREAK SOON

St. John, N. B., July 13.—That the present long curtailed drought is the result of an abnormal distribution of atmospheric pressure and a southward trend of those elements which accompany rain, was the opinion expressed this morning by Sir Frederick F. Stupart, director of Meteorological Service for Canada, who is at present in the city on a trip of inspection.

He expressed belief that there would be a break in the weather in the near future.

Sir Frederick is engaged in making inspections of some of the meteorological observatories in the Maritime Provinces. He had visited Halifax, Sydney and points in Prince Edward Island.

A SUCCESSFUL PICNIC

MUSIC AND DRAMA

PALACE OF DARKENED WINDOWS HAS ALL THE FACINATION OF THE ORIENT

The biggest production yet produced by the Select Pictures Corporation is "The Palace of Darkened Windows," which is announced as the feature attraction at Griffin's to-morrow to Saturday, with a matinee Saturday.

The story, which was adapted from the book of the same name by Mary Hastings, is a colorful and picturesque tale of India. The principal figures are Arlee Eversham and her aunt, two American ladies touring the country, who meet the Rajah of an East Indian province. Also in Benaires they make the acquaintance of Billy Hill and Capt. Falconer and both the men fall in love with Arlee.

In the spirit of adventure Arlee accepts an invitation to visit the home of the Rajah, which is known as "The Palace of Darkened Windows." She is detained there by a ruse and her friends become worried, especially when a Hindoo Fakir intimates that Arlee is being held against her will. Billy Hill and Capt. Falconer go in search for Arlee and after many thrilling adventures in the palace learn that the Rajah has fled to the desert taking Miss Eversham with him. The two rescuers have great difficulty in getting out of the palace and resume their search. From this point the story moves along with a gradually increasing tempo and works up into a climax of great dramatic power.

A 2 reel Buster Keaton comedy "Neighbors," a 3 reel western drama, Fox News Weekly and other selected plays have been arranged for presentation on the program.

EVA NOVAK IN "THE SMART SEX" AT GRIFFIN'S TONIGHT

A goose, a good looking young man, a stranded show troupe, a farm, and a mystery plot. There you have the information on a new screen comedy-drama which is being shown at Griffin's for the last time Tonight. It is called "The Smart Sex." So many so-called screen comedies of the longer variety arouse little laughter. This one really does. For instance, the scene where the goose and the little girl replenish empty stomachs over a quick lunch counter. The goose on the high stool eating from a plate and drinking out of a glass tumbler. It's a clever bit of work.

Eva Novak, golden haired and good to look at, plays her role with all the charm she possesses. A good cast supports the star. Its members include Frank Beardwood, Golfrey Webb Mrs Margaret Mann, does one of her appealing mother-role characterizations.

"Toonerville Fire Brigage" one of the Toonerville trolley comedy series, a Burton Holmes Travelogue "Flander's Field", Screen Snapshots revealing the private life of famous screen stars, and the 3rd chapter of the mystery serial "Velvet Fingers" are being exhibited in addition to the feature offering.

STANDARDIZED STEAM WAGONS

Not nearly so much is heard today as in former years about the alleged neglect of standardisation in British manufacture. For one thing it is now better appreciated that by forming the British Engineering Standards Association, Great Britain led the way in scientific standardisation. For another, British manufacturers had to produce for all the markets of the world and had, therefore, to adopt a variety of designs. Where standardisation is of real benefit to the user of machinery we may be sure that the British manufacturer has not neglected it. The general plan is to adopt a certain number of standards which come close to the demands of the majority of customers. As an example, one of the earliest firms in Great Britain to take a leading place in the manufacture of steam wagons has evolved five standard models. The engine, boiler and other principal parts are common to all five models; only the frame, springs, tires and wheels are altered to suit customers' requirements. Thus the right amount of adaptability is combined with standardisation. Another point of interest is that the chief features embodied in the earlier designs remain in the latest patterns. This is not because of conservatism or too much standardisation: it is due to the fact that the original designs were so good that they have proved themselves satisfactory in practical work all over the world. It is in the details that constant improvement has been carried out.

PRIEST COVERS HIS EYES AS BATHING GIRLS PASS

Shocked By Women Going Through Streets To Beach Scantily Clad

Fredericton, N. B., July 12.—At St. Dunstan's Roman Catholic Church here yesterday morning, Very Rev. Dean Carney made reference to "the disgraceful practise of young women walking from the municipal bathing beaches through the streets of the city, with hardly any clothes on." He said he was driving in his car in the vicinity of the beach the other afternoon and he had to "put his arm across his eyes to keep out the disgraceful sight of half-naked young women coming from the beach.

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Milkman Asleep

I.O.U.—As I was driving along the Trent Road last night I saw a milk wagon ahead and as I wanted to pass I tooted my horn but with no avail. As the wagon was in the middle of the road it was a hard job to get by, but I drove up and here was Mr. Milkman fast asleep. I hope the Trenton paper will notice this and warn their milkmen who are too tired to keep awake. They are a menace not only to themselves but to others who travel the road.

Light Made Useful

T.M.—It would be a great pleasure to the writer, as well as others, to see the old Gas Lamp at the east end of Alexander street made useful. A light at this end of the street is very much needed, and whoever has charge of the light department should take a walk along this street after dark and see for themselves. Even a gaslight would be very much appreciated, although electricity is more up-to-date.

Stone in The Way

R.E.—While driving along the Trent Road last evening I saw about ten loads of crushed stone on the side of the road. This stone has been lying there for some time and from all appearances might be there for some time to come. Will some one kindly tell us what this stone is for, and when it is to be spread? It occupies so much of the road that two cars cannot pass for a stretch of about 100 yards.

Largest Cable in World Laid

GREAT TELEPHONE LINK BETWEEN WINDSOR AND DETROIT SUNK IN RIVER

Windsor, July 12.—With prominent officials of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada and the Michigan State Telephone Company present, the largest submarine cable in the world was laid today on the bed of the Detroit River between Windsor and Detroit. The cable carries 408 pairs of wires, and will make it possible to conduct 600 conversations simultaneously between the two cities.

Half an hour was needed to complete the actual work of laying the cable, the work being done by the barge International, which was towed across by the tug, Samuel J. Dark. When the boats reached mid-stream Judge F. C. Kuhn, President of the Michigan State Telephone Company, and L. B. McFarlane, President of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, shook hands and expressed the hope that the cable would result in cementing more securely the ties of friendship between the two countries.

The cable weighs 50,870 pounds, is 3000 feet in length, and 10½ inches thick.

GIVE FURNISHINGS AWAY

Reval, Esthonia, July 11.—The Petrograd Soviet has decided to distribute to the workmen there all of the household furnishings left in homes abandoned by Russians who have fled from the city, and also to permit the workmen to live in the houses in the best state of repair.

At Moscow recently some 20,000 "brain workers" were moved to less comfortable quarters to permit the "hand workers" to occupy their homes.

NO HIT STAR

Kingston, July 11.—The good showing of "Teddy" Gallagher, local south-paw pitcher, has led his friends to believe that he is deserving of a trial in organized baseball, and an effort is being made to place him with Toronto. Gallagher, pitted against some of the fastest teams in New York State, has beaten them all, among his feats being a one-hit game against Ogdensburg and a no-hit game against Watertown.

Last season Bill Crystall of the Toronto Club saw him in action, but was not greatly impressed, the opposition being weak and Gallagher "fanned" twenty-one men. However, on behalf of the local twirler it is only fair to state that on that occasion he was not hard-pressed and did not unduly exert himself. He has good control and its undoubtedly the star of the local sand-lots

GREB OR GIBBONS FOR CARPENTIER

New York, July 12.—Georges Carpentier to-day signed a contract with Tex Rickard to defend his world's light heavyweight championship during October. His opponent will be selected later, the agreement reading that the French boxer shall meet any light heavyweight named by Rickard.

The bout will be contested either in the Jersey City Arena, where Carpentier lost to Jack Dempsey, or in Madison Square Garden, this city. While the selection of an opponent will not be made until later it was thought that the choice lies between Harry Greb and Tom Gibbons. The second week of October is tentatively named as the date, which probably will be staged on Columbus Day, October 12.

Plans were completed to-day for the sailing of the Carpentier party on the steamer La Savoie, on Thursday. A stay of from two to three weeks will be made at the home of the French boxer, and then the party will return to the United States to prepare for the October bout.

Carpentier's hand, which he injured in the Dempsey encounter, is still swollen and painful, but he expects it to heal within the next six weeks He says it will not prove a handicap in future contests.

WORLD'S LARGEST AIRSHIP

The largest airship constructed in Great Britain is the largest in the world—materially larger than the biggest rigid German airship. While its predecessors were modelled more or less on the lines of Zeppelins, this new one is entirely British in design as well as in construction. As it is intended for naval purposes, it has been made as light as possible in order to enable it to ascend to a very great height. The utmost height attained by a German airship was 24,000 feet, but the new British one will go to about 25,000 feet. There are fourteen gas bags with a total capacity of 2,700,000 cubic feet, and at full speed the ship will travel at 70 miles per hour. Its length is close on 700 feet and it will carry a crew of 28 or 30 men. Everything possible has been done to save weight. For example, in the sleeping quarters there is nothing between the sleepers and the deep sea but a layer of canvas. Experience in building and operating this record airship is expected to be very useful in connection with the development of long-distance transport by air on a commercial basis. It is reckoned that a similar airship, adapted for ordinary work, could be built for about a quarter of a million and would accommodate 40 passengers and two tons of freight. Thus loaded, it could do a non-stop to Egypt in about 48 hours. Huge as this vessel is, however, it is far from representing the limit of British enterprise in airship design. Plans have been prepared for an improved type with a gas capacity of four million cubic feet. This vessel will be able to carry fifty passengers and 13½ tons of freight on a non-stop flight to Egypt in about 40 hours.

Grand Blaze

A genial farmer was driving along a quiet country road when he met the clergyman walking with down-cast head and in a very dejected manner.

"I'm right sorry to hear o' the fire at your house last night," he said. "Was there any serious loss?"

"Indeed there was," said the clergyman, sorrowfully. "Ten years' sermons were completely burned."

A twinkle came into the eye of the old farmer, and he gave the horse a touch with his whip. "Aye," he retorted, as the trap moved off, "they-d make a grand blaze, sir, They were so dry, ye see."

Dear Peggy,
Now fess up — what's happened? Has Jack proposed, or has your pet kitten fallen down the well?
I had a pink tea the other day — out under the big apple tree. And it was just as exciting as those things usually are. But thank goodness Doug provided a little spice near the end. He is such a big overgrown boy, isn't he!
Well, the prize at this little tea was a bottle of Campana's Italian Balm. The poor dear lady thought I was crazy at first but she phoned me this morning to say it was marvelous stuff, and had made her work-worn hands real smooth and white already!
Mil grazie, [illegible]

ELECTRICAL PROPULSION FOR SHIPS

It is stated that the British Admiralty has decided to adopt electrical propulsion on several of the new battleships on its naval construction program. With this equipment the turbines run at constant high speed (therefore at their highest efficiency) and drive electric generators which supply current through cables and control gear to electric motors which drive propellers direct at a low and for propellers—most efficient speed. The advantages of electrical propulsion for ships, and especially for ships of war, were first pointed out by British engineers, and the earliest patents in this branch of electrical engineering were British patents. It is probable that in course of time every large ship in the world's navies will be electrically propelled and that the system will extend to numerous liners and other vessels in the merchant service. Among the advantages of electrical propulsion are higher efficiency, absence of propeller "racing" greater space, economy in fuel, and increased care and efficiency of control. With electrical propulsion it is possible for the officer on the bridge to navigate the ship simply by moving small electric switches.

ELECTRICITY FROM REFUSE

There is really only one sanitary way of disposing of house refuse, and that is by burning it. Many years ago British engineers gave close attention to the problem of reducing the cost of the process by making the best possible use of the fuel value which the refuse collected in many towns happened to possess. The most promising plan was to raise steam for generating electricty; and although rather extravagant hopes were once entertained of lighting a town from its own refuse, there are numerous cases in Great Britain where dust destructors provide quite a large amount of cheap electricity. In Birmingham for example, the current produced at a dust destructor is used to charge the batteries for the electric vehicles which collect the refuse. In Preston, again the destructor provides more than seven-tenths of the electricity required to work the tramways. The dearness of coal and other fuel has, of course, greatly increased the economic advantage of raising steam from refuse, and during the last few years there have been marked improvements in the efficiency of the process, notably through the use of forced-draught for the furnaces.

BRITAIN'S OIL-BURNING NAVY.

Britain's burning interest in oil is easy to understand, according to her facetious critics, because now we know that coal will soon be only a memory in the British Navy. But the announcement by the Admiralty that the British fleet in a short time will consist only of oil-burning ships does not mean a new policy, but the culmination of an old one, which was adopted some years back and has been indorsed by the experience of war. So we are told by the naval correspondent of the London Morning Post, who divines that many people may be perturbed because the British navy gives up as the primary element of motive power the type of fuel which exists at its best in the British Isles, in order to rely on a type of which the home production is practically negligible. Such questioning minds will recall that "at one period of the war, orders were issued limiting ships of the navy to three-fifths speed, except in cases of emergency, solely owing to shortage of oil." Enemy submarines had been taking heavy toll of the oil-tankers, which are vulnerable to attack on account of their great length and moderate speed. Added to this were the delays incidental to shipping in war time. The sole safeguard against such a danger, we are told, lies in the provision of adequate storage and the maintenance of a sufficient reserve. This strategic question is governed by four main considerations, which are specified by the Morning Post's expert as follows:

1. The size of the naval force which will depend on the particular storage, and its calculated average daily expenditure in war.
2. The distance of the place of storage from: (a) Main sources of supply, and (b) auxiliary sources of supply.
3. The routes by which replenishments can arrive during war. Whether these routes are all sea, all land, or a combination of the two.
4. The chances of an enemy holding or gaining local command of the waters in the vicinity of a main source of supply.

This subject is one of the many to be threshed out by the Imperial Conference, and this informant remarks incidentally that the protection of oil fuel depots must also be canvassed, because "Oil fuel tanks are tempting objects for bombardment or attack from sea or land. Shells or bombs bursting on coal dumps do little harm, but in the case of oil it is conceivable that the whole vital reserve might go up in flames. In this connection it will be recollected that when the Emden bombarded Madras she paid particular attention to the oil tanks. The correct placing and adequate protection of oil fuel depots is, therefore, closely allied to the four considerations enumerated above. If full provision be made to assure absolutely a sufficient supply of oil fuel throughout a lengthy war, no thinking persons will question the wisdom of the Admiralty's policy. But no considerations of economy will justify any risk being taken in this truly vital matter."

Oil burning as the evolution of years and not an innovation in the British navy goes back to the days of Lord Fisher, who introduced it in a class of vessels styled "coastal destroyers," and the Morning Post's contributor reminds us that this was at the beginning of the "dreadnought" era, for the Dreadnought herself was fitted to burn oil in conjunction with coal. The preference for oil, we are reminded, is decided on two counts. The first is that the calorific power of oil is greater than that of coal; and the second, that oil is so much more easily loaded into a ship than coal. All destroyers built since the Dreadnought have been oil-burning, and the increase of oil fuel ships of other types is shown in the following table:

CITY ADVERTISING

Kansas City Star

A city can get the kind of advertising it desires. It can make itself known as a clean and attractive place or as a place marked by gaudy signs cheap structures and ugly and dirty spots. Successful business firms have nothing to do with cheap advertising that repels instead of attracts. The really progressive city cannot afford to advertise itself with ugliness.

Labor has many an issue to fight out with the operating officials of the roads, but it now has tribunals before which it can take its economic point of view, with the certainty of an effective hearing there. Its power of influencing public opinion has been tripled through the creation of the Railroad Labor Board. The enlightened and conservative leaders of labor appreciate this factor of public opinion as they never have before, and are not likely to seek the elimination of any avenue of approach to it. More and more will they strive to fight their future battles on this ground.

The Poets' Corner

BECAUSE I LOVE YOU SO

My darling! I'll be true to you
As through this world we go,
And take the bitter with the sweet,
Because I love you so.

If hardship should beset our path,
And life's storm fiercely blow,
I'll place my back against the winds,
Because I love you so.

Then when dark clouds have passed away,
And with them all our woe,
'Twill be a little heaven on earth,
Because I love you so.

REDNERSVILLE

WOMAN'S INSTITUTE

The afternoon of June 16th will long be remembered by our Institute as one of unusual profit and pleasure. Long before 2.30 p.m. the large living room of Mrs. Stanley Wellbanks, "Chestnut Grove Farm" was filled with old-time members and guests, to hear our government speaker Miss Alexander. In the absence of the President the 1st Vice. Pres. Mrs. David Stafford presided.

The subject chosen was "Putting all in Life that Life will Stand," and all were pleased and deeply affected by the speaker's earnestness, deep thought and forceful delivery. A piano solo was ably given by Miss A. Hancock of Centre. Among our guests were Mrs. Helen B. Anderson of Mellville, our County's well-known poetess, who gave a short address and delighted all with the reading of one of her poems. A vote of thanks was then tendered the Speaker, also Mrs. Anderson, and our hostess after which ice cream and cake were served. On July 28th, our annual picnic will be held at Mrs. A. E. Phillips Grove. Come and bring your friends. At our June meeting 16 members paid fees, and $3.60 was taken up in collection.

GAMBLERS AT FALL FAIRS

The law forbidding gamblers at fall fairs which has been practically a dead letter, is to be strictly enforced hereafter. Fakirs will be closely watched in the future. A resolution was passed at the meeting of the Ontario Association of Fall Fairs at Toronto recently to appoint a special constable to prevent admittance or operation of any different classes of fakirs who have been infesting country fairs in the past. Superintendent Wilson stated that if there are any fakirs operating on the grounds the board of directors will be held responsible and the fair will lose its grant from the government in consequence.

MADE A K.C.

By recent appointment of the government of Alberta the title of king's counsel comes to one of our prominent lawyers in the person of Jeremiah Wilfrid Heffernan. We extend heartiest congratulations to this honored member of the legal fraternity.—Edmonton Bulletin, June 27th, 1921. Mr. Heffernan is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Heffernan, Picton.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

The engagement is announced of Miss Blanche Reed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Reed, Picton, and Harold Victor Saunders, Oshawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Saunders, Wellington. The marriage is to take place the latter part of July.

CAUSE OF COMPLAINT

The residents on Highland Avenue and West Dundas street were not in the best of humor the past two days. The reason for ruffled feelings was that Mr. Bumbacco who has the contract for the putting down of the sanitary sewer on Dundas street was conducting blasting at 5-30 in the morning, awakening many from their peaceful slumbers.

RUMORS CIRCULATED

There are apparently in this city some person or persons who take a delight in circulating rumors which are groundless, and which cause not only annoyance but distress to not a few. It was currently reported upon the streets Tuesday afternoon and evening that a well-known city blacksmith and a prominent Orangeman had expired suddenly at Brighton, whilst participating in the Orange celebration in that village. This morning it was rumored that one of our city physicians had passed away. It is needless to state that there was no truth whatever in the reports that circulated.

RUMORS DENIED

"Rumors to the effect that a general closing down of the General Motors would take place in July were set at rest by Mr. George McLaughlin. Mr. McLaughlin stated that, with the changing of the patterns, and the usual quiet at this time of the year, there would be a lull in the McLaughlin division for a couple of weeks, and probably 200 or 300 men would be laid off for a time. The other plants would keep working on the business they could get, and, it is not expected that the lay-off in the McLaughlin division will be of any great duration."

COMPANY MOVES

The Dominion Dustless Sweep Co., has decided to cease operations in Peterboro and resume elsewhere giving as their reason the unfriendly attitude of citizens toward them. The new company has not been selected. This company manufactured motor-driven vacuum sweepers for use on city streets. The enterprise established recently had perfected its patterns and turned out some machines. Employees have been paid off, but the staff is comparatively small. This is the same concern that wanted to locate in Cobourg, the considerations being a site and a paved road built to the plant "connecting up with the other town paved roads."

LAKE HIGHER

Lake Ontario is .07 feet higher than a year ago, .23 foot below the average stage of June of the last ten years, 2.02 feet below the high stage of June 1870, and 1.73 feet above the low stage of June, 1895. During the last ten years the June level has averaged .02 foot higher than the May level, and about the same as the July level.

FRAWLEY—KELLEHER

A pretty wedding took place this (Wednesday) morning at St. Michael's church at 9 o'clock, when Miss Margaret Kelleher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kelleher, was united in marriage to William Frawley, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Frawley, Rev. Father Killeen officiating.

The bride, who entered the church leaning on the arm of her father was daintily gowned in white satin with picture hat to match, Miss Mary Frawley who assisted the bride was attired in a gown of navy blue with navy hat to match. Mr. J. R. Frawley of St. Thomas, brother of the groom, performed the duties of groomsman.

Upon the conclusion of the ceremony, the bridal party proceeded to the home of the bride's parents, where a delicious wedding breakfast was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Frawley left via the 12-15 C.P.R. train for their honeymoon to Quebec city and Montreal. Upon their return they will reside in this city, where both are well and favorably known.

EMPLOYMENT FOR JUNE

Employment reports for the week ended June 4, were received by Dominion headquarters of the Employment Service of Canada from 5,248 firms employing 614,873 workers. For the previous week these identical firms had reported total payrolls of 605,865, the difference representing an increase of about one and one-half per cent. The bulk of this increase was absorbed by railways shops, which reopened after temporary shutdown. But in addition there were moderate gains in other groups, and the upward trend which had been checked in the previous week was once more resumed. Comparing the figures of the week under review with the base week of January 17, 1920 the index number of employment was 87.8. For the previous week it was 86.5, while for the corresponding week (June 5) of 1920 it was 106.2.

A GIANT TIMBER YARD CRANE

The fixed power type of crane—in which a long horizontal arm, balanced by a counter weight, swings round ish firm has built about two hunliar in shipbuilding yards. One British firm has butilt about two hundred of them for this purpose. As this crane can lift loads of five tons to a height of over fifty feet anywhere within a radius of fifty feet one can see that it will do practically all the work of a large timber yard. All the movements of hoisting, racking, and slewing are carried out by independent motors controlled from a small cabin suspended near the centre of the horizontal arm.

Citizens Raid Black Handers

ITALIAN COLONY IN BEAVERDALE PA., DRIVEN INTO THE HILLS

Johnstown, Pa., July 12.—Wild disorders last night, during which every Italian resident of Beaverdale, a mining town eight miles east of here, was driven to the hills with high-powered guns spitting steel-jacketed bullets after them, followed the determination of American residents to rid their community of "Black Hand" criminals who have been terrorizing the community for over a year.

After the Italians and their families had left town several mobs of Americans proceeded to dynamite five places of business owned and operated by Italians, who, it is alleged, were connected with the workings of the "Black Hand" in the vicinity. The loss in property destroyed will exceed $28,000. The prompt arrival of the State troops prevented a massacre.

While no casualties were reported this morning, it is said that several persons were struck by bullets during the firing which was carried on through the night.

LEANEST THEATRICAL SUMMER

New York, July 11.— New York City is having its leanest theatrical summer in a number of years. Only sixteen of Broadway's fifty-seven theatres are now in operation, whereas it was freely predicted a month ago that the number would never fall below thirty. No new productions are scheduled to arrive for several weeks. Of the productions now running, two have abandoned all matinees during the hot months. The present condition, according to theatrical observers is due to the general leanness of the season just closed and the spell of hot weather that began two weeks ago. Of the productions now running nine are musical. It is estimated that about half a dozen of the sixteen are paying ventures while the others are operating at a loss. Despite the fact that theatres are a drug on the market at the present time, there will be few, if any, available when the new season gets under way in August, it it declared.

NANCY OPENS DOORS

Nancy, France, July 11.—Nancy University, under fire throughout most of the war, has plugged the holes in its walls, enlarged its facilities and is opening its doors to American and Allied students. Immediately after the armistice several hundred American officers and men were assigned to the University for various courses and out of this contact with a large group of foreign students grew the idea of developing such work.

Nancy University is reputed for its application of science to industry.

RECRUITING POSTPONED

San Juan, P. R., July 11.—Plans for recruiting laborers here for work in the Hawaiian cane fields have been postponed as a result of articles in the newspapers in opposition to the undertaking. The original plan was for some 1,300 laborers to sail this month.

Royal D. Meade, who has been in charge of the work here, said that while there had been some delay the original plans would be carried out. Several hundred laborers already have agreed to go whenever transportation is available.

CONTINUED DROUGHT HAS HURT N.B. POTATO CROP

Fredericton, N.B., July 11.—In an official summary of the conditions of the potato crop in New Brunswick following an exhaustive survey by G. C. Cunningham, plant pathologist of the federal department of agriculture, says: The continued draught and high temperatures since early spring has greatly reduced the prospects for a large yield of potatoes this season, and unless a heavy rain comes soon the crop will prove a failure in many sections. The province is similar to the condition existing last year when many farms harvested ony 25 per cent. or less of a crop.

DISCOVERS FOSSILIZED BONES OF PREHISTORIC MONSTER

The Pas, Man., July 11.—A discovery of the fossilized remains of a prehistoric monster in the foothills of the Pasqual Hills, near The Pas, reported by Dr. Ells of the Dominion Geographical Department. He found the bones disconnected, but in alignment, measuring forty feet in length. He is not prepared to state what class of animal the remains belong to, but regards the discovery of great importance to science. The doctor brought 80 pounds of bones for shipment.

It's Wonderful Declares Noyes

"Tanlac Is Certainly The Medicine To Make A Man Feel Like Something," He Says

"This is the medicine that built me up so wonderfully nearly three years ago and I think it's the best in the world," said James H. Noyes, of 54 Clyde street, Hamilton, Ont.

"At the time I began taking Tanlac I was in a badly run-down and very weak condition. I had no appetite and my sleep seemed to do me very little good. I felt tired and worn out all the time, just didn't seem to have a particle of energy, and I always had to be taking something for constipation. My entire system seemed to be out of order and I ached and hurt all over.

"I heard so much about Tanlac helping others that I decided to see if it would bring me back to myself. I took three bottles in all, and it put me in shape to where I felt like a brand-new man and I have felt well ever since until a little while back, when I commenced to feel a little run down again. I remembered how Tanlac helped me before, so here I am getting another bottle. It certainly is the medicine to make a fellow feel like something, and I'm always glad to tell others about it."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville at Ostrom's Drug Store.

From the family residence, South John Street, the body was taken to St. Thomas' Church, where by special request a full choral communion service was held, conducted by Rev. N.Y. CAMP MEETING RESORT DEVASTATED BY FIRE

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., July 11.—More than a score of buildings, including 15 cottages occupied by Summer residents, were destroyed by fire which early this morning threatened to burn the entire village of Round Lake, a well-known camp meeting resort. After burning four hours the fire was finally checked. A section two blocks wide and nearly three blocks long was destroyed. The loss has not yet been estimated, but will reach several hundred thousand dollars.

Residents were forced to leave their homes in their night clothing, in many cases, losing all their possessions. Several were slightly burned.

A BELFAST PROCESSION ATTACKED BY GUNMEN

London, July 12.—Violence continued in the north of Ireland early to-day despite the truce which became effective yesterday.

With the dawn of Orangemen's day the sniping was augmented by several instances of mob violence. It was feared that religious antagonism would be responsible for disorders in other parts of Ireland.

A 19-year-old Catholic was shot by a sniper, and several civilians were injured. Gunmen attacked a procession of Orangemen. Police intervened and many rifle and revolver shots were exchanged. Firebugs who had destroyed a score of homes were still busy early to-day.

DUST ON OCEAN MAKES SAILING HAZARDOUS

Washington, July 11.—It was very dusty on the ocean the other day. A carton of dust was received at the Weather Bureau to-day, which was gathered from the decks of the American merchantman Santa Rosalina and sent here in connection with the marine service. The air was so full of dust on the day in question that sailing was hazardous, due to impaired visibility. The Santa Rosalina was in the Yellow Sea and, during a violent dust storm a few days before in Mongolio, fine yellow sand was carried hundreds of miles to sea.

THE SUBSTITUTE

WILL N. HARBEN.

(Copyright, 1903)

"Whar on earth have you been?" Hillyer asked eagerly. "I sent out home fer you an' none o' yore folks knowed a thing about you. The truth is, I got worried. I told George I was afeard you'd gone to"—

"That's whar I went," said Truitt, his glance on George's expectant face, "an' the Lord went with me. I humiliated that skunk, an', as fer as I'm concerned, I'm willin' to drap the matter. Ef I was the man most intersted I'd be satisfied."

"What did you do, Truitt?" George was eying him eagerly, his eyes burning sullenly.

Truitt made a detailed explanation, leaving out nothing. He spoke of it as if it had been an ordinary business arrangement that was finally settled satisfactorily. "But," he ended, "I never felt as mean, somehow, in my life. I'm sorry he wouldn't hit back. I'll be durned ef he didn't jest wiggle an' say 'ouch!' when I twisted his year. George, my boy, you ort not to give his words another thought. What he said to you was jest what a sneakin' coward would say. He's got less sand in his gizzard 'n any man I ever run across. I hope you are satisfied."

"Yes, I'm satisfied," said George simply, and he extended his hand, "and I'm glad there was no bloodshed. Mr. Hillyer told me what he did yesterday in a passion. We'll all have to find some way out of our troubles other than bloodshed."

"God knows I agree with you on that," said Hillyer feelingly, and he turned and walked out of the office.

"But that hain't all I done," said Truitt, leaning against George's desk and looking down sheepishly.

"Not all?" exclaimed Buckley.

"No, I got my foot into some'n' else. Jest after I landed in town I come down here, but you wasn't about. Then, as I had nothin' to do an' remembered that I had promised Major Cranston to come in an' give 'im an estimate on movin' several hundred acres o' tan bark on some o' his mountain land, I went down thar. He's a sick man. They got 'im propped up in a big chair in the settin' room, an' his wife an' daughter are nussin' him like a baby. But he wanted to see me, an' they made me come in. His gal is a beauty, George—but you know that—an' I never seed a body seem as much worried over a sick pusson as she was over her daddy. She loves every hair o' his old, white head. Whenever he'd have a spell o' coughin' she'd actually turn pale an' run fer his medicine. Well, when I got through with him I started off, but she follered me out on the lawn. She wanted to ax me, she said, ef I railly thought her pa looked bad. She said she was afeard the doctor was keepin' back some'n' ur was behind the times an' hadn't diagnosed the case right. I eased 'er all I could, laughin' at her fears tell she sorter got in a good humor, an' then in a roundabout way, 'fore she knowed what was on foot, I led up to my trip to Atlanta, an'"—

"Heavens, Truitt, you didn't tell her that?" George cried.

"Yes; I had to, George," said the old man, his eyes averted. "Some say she's thinkin' o' marryin' that man beca'se her sick daddy wants her to, an' I'd never be satisfied ef I let a woman marry a thing like that, believin' he was honorable an' brave like her daddy an' like somebody else I know. No; I would thank anybody to tell a daughter o' mine sech a thing, an' I felt like it was my duty."

George bit his lip and stifled an exclamation of irritation, but he met the old man's look presently with a steady stare.

"What did she say, Truitt?" he asked finally.

"Say? I hardly know," said Truitt. "Her face got the purtiest color I ever seed, an' while I was talkin' she kept sayin', 'Go on, go on, Mr. Truitt, go on!' an' right in the middle o' some things she'd jest laugh out an' kiver 'er mouth with that white hand o' her'n, but she kept sayin', 'Go on, go on!' an' looked like she jest couldn't wait fer me to git through. An' when I finally got to whar I lifted 'im by one o' his side straps out o' his chair she jest hollered: 'No, you didn't railly, Mr. Truitt. Did you do that to the governor o' Georgia?' I told 'er I certainly did, an' she laughed like she'd bust. She followed me clean to the front gate. You may think she's a purty woman, but I'll bet she never looked as purty to you as she did then. The wind was devilin' her hair, an' her cheeks looked like ripe peaches. Seemed like she'd sorter tuck a likin' to me, fer once or twice she forgot an' put her hand on my arm. Then she said, 'Mr. Truitt, I believe I kin trust you with a secret, an' I want to tell you some'n'.'

"I told 'er I was a graveyard itself when it come to keepin' secrets fer women folks, but she sorter hung fire. Her face got serious, an' she wouldn't look me in the eye like she had been a-doin'. I told 'er not to be afeard o' me, an' she started in ag'in, but stopped. 'No,' says she, 'I believe I won't tell you after all. Men are the very dickens to tell tales.' Then I reminded 'er that I was a old Confederate soldier an' that women an' the'r private matters was sacred to men that had fit for the south an' its honor, an' that sorter fetched 'er. 'Well,' says she, 'you do look like a man a woman could trust, an' ef you'll give me your word that this won't go no furder I'll tell you.'

"'I'll do it,' says I.

"'Will you swear it?' says she.

"'Not only that,' says I, 'but I'll cross my heart.'

"'Well,' says she, 'that's all a woman could ax, an' I'm sorry I have to be so particular, but I'd rather die than have a single soul know what I'm goin' to tell you. I want to tell you to show how much I appreciate what you did on that Atlanta trip.' Then she swallowed once or twice, an', lookin' me in the eye an' p'intin' across the yard, she said: 'Mr. Truitt, I was settin' in that summer house t'other night an' heard Governor Telfare insult George Buckley, an' I'm glad—glad—glad—you done what you done. As Governor Telfare was visitin' my house an' as father's health is so bad I couldn't do more, but I tried my best that night to show preference to Mr. Buckley, but he misunderstood me an' went off mad.'"

"She said that?" George exclaimed, his face aglow, his eyes flashing. "And did she say anything else?"

"Yes, she did, George, an' I got awfully sorry fer 'er. She told me her pa had set his heart on her marryin' Telfare, an' that she was afeard, since her father had heart disease, to run contrary to his wishes. She said she was afeard the disapp'intment ud actually kill 'im. I didn't know what to say. I tried to think o' some'n' comfortin', but couldn't, an' so I jest come off an' left 'er thar at the gate. The Lord does a sight o' things that is beyond our ken, but why he makes women like that un suffer is more'n I kin account fer. I reckon he knows his business, but it conflicts with my notions like rips. Ef I was at the head o' this whirlin' universe I'd not let men like Telfare lord it over better folks; but the Almighty made the skunk, an' the feller may be so perfect, in his way, that he's actually pleasin' to an omnipotent eye. The truth is, Telfare may be stuck up thar to l'arn us contentment. I know I'd ruther be a cornfield nigger an' split rails in the br'ilin' sun 'an to be the sort of a governor that man is an' know it—like he knows it now."

Without another word Truitt turned and left the office. George sat a moment as if dazed by a sudden realization that had come to him from the old soldier's recital. He was recalling Lydia's appearance and manner as she came into the parlor that evening with the flower in her hand.

"God bless her!" he said reverently. "She was right, then, trying to show her contempt for Telfare's conduct, and I was brute enough to misjudge her."

CHAPTER XXV.

"I THINK the Lord had a hand in puttin' me next door to Mrs. Dugan," said Mrs. Hillyer to George that evening after supper. "When my sperits sink way down to zero I go out in the yard an' give 'er a chance to come over an' talk. No; I never go over thar. All I got to do is to let 'er see me, an' she's on me like a duck on a June bug. She'll talk yore head off, but she'll help you out of a tight whenever you give 'er the wink. Me an' her together worked Hortense as fine as split silk t'other day. You know, Jim Kenner's jest about crazy to pay his attentions, an' she holds off an' won't let 'im set in. I made up my mind six months ago that I'd make a match out o' that material, but beyond gittin' Jim to foller me all over creation an' her to fairly lap up all I had to say about 'im that was as nigh as I come to doin' business. It puzzled me right sharp, fer I knowed the gal had marry on her mind, an' I knowed Jim Kenner was jest the thing fer 'er. Finally I drapped on to the difficulty. You know, a steady gal like Hortense Snowden sometimes has a regular horror of a goody goody feller, an' I seed she thought he'd jest escaped bein' a preacher by a hair's breadth an' was not goin' with gals because he was afeard of 'em. I let Mrs. Dugan in on my racket, an' I 'lowed she'd have a fit, she was so tickled. She got her sewin' an' come over, an' we tuck chairs nigh Hortense, an' Mrs. Dugan begun. You'd 'a' thought she was on the courthouse stand swearin' in a murder case, she was so serious. She led up to it as gradual as a man drivin' a school o' fish upstream into a net. I think she give ever'body in Darley a slap or a dab in passin'. Finally she said it was the men that laid low an' that ever'body thought was so steady that was the regular devils on the sly. 'Now, thar's that long, slim shanked Kenner,' said she, flappin' out the sheet she was hemmin'. 'Folks thinks he's so innocent; but, la me, he's the terribliest flirt in seven states. He buys cotton all over the country an' has a gal in every town he hits.'

"'You are off thar,' said I. 'I know better'n that. He's one man that don't care fer women.'

"'Tell that to the maroons,' Mrs. Dugan sneered. Then she reeled off a tale she said Bob Hanks' wife told 'er about a bet Jim Kenner an' a whole passle o' fellers had made, that they was goin' to kiss a certain gal whether or no. She said the gal was kinder saft, anyway, an' they all got a whack at her, but that when Jim Kenner got through with 'er she had the backache an' said he was the wust she'd ever seed. I was a-watchin' Hortense out o' the corner o' my eye. She got fust white an' then red, but she kept 'er ears open. I don't know all Mrs. Dugan didn't say, but the best thing was when she said no ordinary woman could make any impression on a man o' that stamp. I seed Hortense sorter bite 'er lip an' straighten up like she was makin' a resolution. And after Mrs. Dugan had gone home she set around like she was out o' j'int all at once. You know a woman will kinder count on a man's regard, an' feed on it, an' jest drift without lookin' ahead. Ef she's shore o' his admiration she'd a heap o' times ruther have 'im at arm's length than to be cookin' an' scrubbin' fer 'im ur his brats. That's whar Hortense was at. She's knowed a few married men an' had noticed how plumb crazy they was about the'r wives after the honeymoon was over. But nothin' ain't smooth in this world, an' why should married life be an exception? An' then Hortense hates to be called a old maid. Well, to cut my tale off, Hortense jest come out flat that evenin' an' said, 'When

Meeting Lloyd George and De Valera Prepares Way

OUTLOOK FOR LASTING PEACE BRIGHTEST EVER — DE VALERA SAYS ATMOSPHERE OF IRELAND AND ENGLAND RIGHT FOR PEACE—DE VALERA SPEAKS FOR FIRST TIME FOR PUBLICATION SINCE ARRIVAL IN LONDON—MEETING WAS CAREFULLY PLANNED — WAY IS PREPARED FOR FURTHER AND MORE IMPORTANT DISCUSSIONS.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, July 14.—The outlook for a lasting peace in Ireland is brighter than it has ever been in history, declared Eamonn de Valera, Irish Republican leader, as he was about to enter into conference today with Mr. Lloyd George, the British Prime Minister, in an attempt to find a basis for an adjustment of the Irish problem.

When asked what he considered was the prospect of settled peace being brought about by the conference, Mr. De Valera replied: "The outlook is brighter than it ever was in history. I am sure," he added, "that the atmosphere in England and Ireland is right for peace. The only thing that is necessary now is for us to get down to rock-bottom." It was the first time Mr. De Valera had spoken for publication since his arrival in London on Tuesday.

Leaders of the British Government and Sinn Fein met in London today and took the first step in the negotiations which, it was hoped, might lead to a final settlement of the Irish problem. Eamonn de Valera, Irish Republican chief, and Prime Minister Lloyd George had carefully planned for the meeting.

The meeting was simply to prepare the way for further and more important discussions, but the fact that it was held at all was looked upon as an indication of the good will of the participants.

Studying Disease of Elephantaisis

Vancouver, July 13.—In order to study the terrible tropical disease of elephantiasis, an unnamed Candian physician in Samoa has just had himself inoculated by bites of mosquitoes that had fed on men suffering from the malady, Capt. David Ritchie of the Canadian-Australasian freighter Wairuna, told on arrival here of his talk with the plucky Canadian scientist who has dedicated his life to find a cure.

In the tropics the natives of many countries are subject to the terrible elephantiasis. Science has striven for many years to find the remedy, but to no effect.

It has been learned that the germs are carried by mosquitoes, and that inoculation occurs when a mosquito feeds on its victim. The disease-carrying pests are confined to those that have first fed off an elephantiasis sufferer and transmission of germs can only take place on the twenty-first day after the insect has bitten the diseased person. The life of many mosquitoes is not that long, still there are enough whose span of existence permits them to carry the deadly germ.

The doctor told Captain Ritchie that he would be better able to study the progress of the malady if he were suffering from it himself. He could watch every phrase of development and would thus be in better position to find a cure. It takes from nine to ten months to develop. If the scientist can not solve the problem he has set before himself he will eventually suffer the terrible end that comes to all elephantiasis victims.

Jail Governor Resigns Office

MAJOR BASHER SAID TO RESENT INTERFERENCE OF OUTSIDERS

Toronto, July 13.—Governor of Toronto Jail for the last two years, Major G. Hedley Basher has resigned his position. His resignation, which is now in the hands of Sherriff Mowat, is dated to take effect on August 31, and it is understood that Major Basher and his wife will then return to their home in Cornwall, England.

Major Basher gives as the reason for his retirement the poor health of his wife, but rumor has it that the interference of outsiders in the administration of jail matters has influenced this decision to resign from office. The jail staff, he said, had been faithful to him since his accession to the position of governor.

Fired on Lifeboat on Canadian Ship

ECHO OF TORPEDOING BY GERMANS OF LLANDOVERY CASTLE

Leipzig, Germany, July 13.—Two German submarine lieutenants, Ludwig Dittmar and Johann Boldt, were placed on trial here to-day in the Supreme Court, charged with murder in the first degree for firing on lifeboats after the torpedoing of the Canadian hospital ship Llandovery Castle in Summer of 1918. The case differs from the others which have been heard by the Court in connection with charges growing out of violation of civilized warfare, inasmuch as the proceedings are in behalf of the German public prosecutor. Great Britain had only demanded the trial of Commander Patzig, of the submarine which torpedoed the hospital ship, who fled the country, but the prosecutor after examining the evidence, ordered the trial of Dittman and Boldt.

Thirteen British and fifty-two German witnesses, including Admiral von Trotha, former chief of the German Admiralty, will appear. The British Commission which is watching the trial is headed by Sir Ernest Pollock. A larger crowd than any which has attended the war crimes trials was present to-day.

Lt. Dittmar appeared in uniform, while Lt. Boldt was dressed in civilian clothes. Both of them wore iron crosses.

Asked what was his answer to the charge, Dittmar sullenly refused to make reply, finally saying he had pledged his word to Commander Patzig never to speak about the case. Lt. Boldt pleaded not guilty, adding that he was obliged to obey the commander, "whose word was law," referring to the torpedoing of the vessel, but he was silent regarding the charge of firing on the lifeboats.

Second Officer Chapman of the Llandovery Castle gave an impressive account of the sinking of the hospital ship and the subsequent conduct of the submarine. He said he was ordered, under threats of instant death, aboard the submarine, although he pleaded to save his comrades who were left to drown.

Chapman then was released in his lifeboat, but afterwards he was re-ordered alongside the submarine and questioned whether the Llandovery Castle carried ammunition, which he denied. One of the German officers charged the ship had eight U.S. flying officers aboard. To this, Chapman said he replied that they were army service corps officers.

ACROSS CONTINENT BY FOOT IN 122 DAYS

Glace Bay, N.S., July 12.—James M. Doucette, a returned soldier who left Glace Bay on March 12 to walk to Vancouver, has arrived at his destination, according to advice received here. He made the distance from coast to coast in 122 days, or 12 days less than Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dill, who took 134 days to walk from Halifax to Vancouver, a distance shorter by about 170 miles.

Gov't's Compared, South Africa and Canada

Washington, July 13.—It requires about five times as much money each year to administer the Dominion of Canada as is needed to manage the Union of South Africa, according to statistics of the South African budget for 1921-22 contained in a return recently made by the United States consul at Capetown to his government here. The total estimated expenditure of the South African Union for the current fiscal year is 29,543,829 pounds, or $125,561,273.35, placing the pound sterling at $4.25 Canadian money. Estimated public expenditure for Canada for the year 1921-22 is $652,237,212.90.

According to the same authority, the South African government is having considerable difficulty balancing its accounts. During the fiscal year ending March 31, 1921, there was a deficit of 250,000 pounds, while for the current year the estimated revenue is 6,700,000 pounds less than the estimated expenditure. This deficit is to be met with economies in various governmental departments to the extent of 4,057,000 pounds, while new taxation is expected to yield 2,425,000 pounds, leaving a deficit of 224,000 pounds.

Items Compared

Comparison between various South African budget items and corresponding items in the Canadian budget are interesting. In practically every case the Canadian expenditure is higher. Even the Governor-General in the Dominion costs more than the Governor-General of South Africa. The locum tenens at the Government House, Ottawa represents an expenditure of $148,891.66 annually, including salaries and expenses. In the South African budget the sum of $11,376.75 covers the vice-regal cost. In this instance, as in other items, the pound is placed at $4.25 Canadian.

The South African Senate is set down in the estimates as costing $121,490.50. The Upper House in Canada charges the people for its valued legislative efforts $142,590. The House of Assembly at Capetown is set down in the budget as costing $391,603.50. The House of Commons of Canada, according to the estimates tabled during the past session of Parliament, costs $564,777.

Japan Not Prepared To Commit Herself

WANTS TO KNOW MORE ABOUT SCOPE OF THE WASHINGTON CONFERENCE

Tokio, July 12.—The Japanese foreign office to-day stated informally that the favorable attitude of the Japanese government toward the principle of disarmament, already announced several times by Baron Uchida, remains unchanged.

The government, however, is not ready as yet to make a direct statement regarding its position toward the proposed Washington disarmament conference.

The Japanese press, the commercial organizations and the public generally are favorable to Japan entering the conference, but the political leaders are rather indefinite in their answers, wanting to know the scope of the conference before committing themselves.

Says He's Not Dead; Ought to Know

JOHN DONAGHY WRITES THAT HIS BODY NOT FOUND IN GRAND RIVER

Kitchener, July 14.—John Donaghy denies that he was drowned in the Grand River. The body of a man found in the river on Sunday in an advanced state of decomposition was thought by members of the family to be the remains of John Donaghy, who had been missing for some days. He read an account of his demise in the papers and has written home from Stoney Creek, stating that he is much alive. The remains are unidentified.

More Rioting in Belfast

London, July 13.—Rioting occurred in Vere street in Belfast this afternoon says a Central News despatch from Belfast. Two constables were injured and three civilians taken to hospital suffering from gunshot wounds.

Planks in the U.F.A. Platform

Calgary, Alta., July 14.—The platform on which the United Farmers of Alberta are contesting a large number of the rural constituencies of the province in the elections of July 18 includes the following planks:

Proportional representation, and a preferential ballot in single-member constituencies.

Endorsation of the principle of the initiative referendum and recall.

No government to be considered defeated except by a direct vote of want of confidence.

Economy in administration, consistent with efficiency.

Abolition of the patronage system.

Creation of a highway system.

Extended and improved educational facilities.

Maintenance of prohibition of sale of liquor, under such conditions as the people may sanction by referendum.

Return to the province of its natural resources.

Co-operative marketing of farm products to be encouraged, along lines calculated to reduce cost of production and distribution.

This platform is submitted by a special committee of the U.F.A. to the provincial constituencies as a "suggested platform". It is accompanied by a "Declaration of principles" which reads as follows:

"Believing that the present unsettled conditions in Canada politically are due in large measure to dissatisfaction with the party system of government, and

"Believing that present day political institutions fail to measure up to the requirements of present day conditions, in that the present system has failed to develop a sufficiently close connection between the representative and the elector, and that the people desire a greater measure of self-government;

Rights Recognized

"Recognizing the rights of all citizens, believing that it is the duty of every citizen to exercise his rights of citizenship in the most efficient manner and in the best interest of social progress, and believing that individual citizenship can only be made efficient and effective through the vehicle of systematically organized groups.

"We, the United Farmers of Alberta, base our hope of developing a social influence and a progressive force on becoming a stabilized efficient organization. We therefore place primary emphasis on organization.

"Our organization is continuously in authority, and while through it we formulate declarations of principle, or a so-called platform, these are at all times subject to change by the organization.

"We are groups of citizens going in to political action as an organization. Our elected representatives are at all times answerable to the organization. Each elected representative is answerable directly to the organization in the constituency that elected him.

"We aim to develop through the study of social and economic problems an intelligent, responsible citizenship.

"Thus organized citizenship becomes the vehicle not only of intelligent voting but also of intelligent guidance of elected representatives."

PICTURE THEATRES CLOSE

New York, July 14.—A notice that more than one hundred motion picture theatres in greater New York may close on August 1st for an indefinite period has been received by the motion picture theatre attendants union.

Money Prize for First U.S. Crew from German

Paterson, N.J., July 13.—The first United States crew to capture or sink a Japanese warship in event of war between the United States and Japan would receive a prize of 5,000 German marks, by the will of Charles O. H. Fritzsche, former Paterson engineer, made public today. It was received here from Dresden, Germany, where Mr. Fritzsche died on January 1.

The will, made on April 19, 1910, creates a 5,000 mark trust fund, the income of which is to go to buy firewood for the poor of Paterson, unless this country gets into war with Japan. Then the principal is to go for the prize.

Beck Advises The Province To Guarantee Bonds

URGED BY DRURY, THE HYDRO COMMISSION FORMALLY RECOMMENDS IN FAVOR

Toronto, July 13.—The provincial hydro commission has complied with the request of Premier Drury that it recommend for or against the guarantee of the $13,000,000 of Mackenzie power bonds that are held in England. The commission recommends in favor. Without the provincial guarantee the bondholders refused to surrender $8,000,000 of demand notes that they held as security. The Mackenzie purchase deal could not go through unless the demand notes were retired.

The commission, in answer to questions put to it by the premier, further declares that the whole purchase is in the interest of the hydro project and that it is desirable that the bonds of the commission, to the amount of $600,000, should be guaranteed by the province—so that certain betterments may be made to the Metropolitan railway.

The Drury Government is willing to guarantee the $13,000,000 of bonds. Its attitude towards bonds for betterments is not definitely decided. No decision will be reached pending the premier's return from Kenora.

Several hundred thousand dollars of overdue water rentals must be paid by the Mackenzie interests before the deal is finally closed. The only other obstacle is the demand of the county of York that a service be given to Farnham avenue as provided by the Metropolitan franchise. The county is not disposed to be bought off with a lump sum—it wants the service.

HUSBAND RUNS OFF WITH MOTHER-IN-LAW

Detroit, July 12.—Ruth and Wm. A. Westcott were married in 1916. Four years later William ran away with Ruth's mother, according to Ruth, who appeared before the Circuit Judge Richter and obtained a decree of divorce

After their marriage the Westcott's went to live with the bride's parents at 2420 Hancock avenue.

In March, 1920, the husband and mother disappeared. Mrs Westcott stated. Her mother is 19 years older than she. Mrs. Westcott was given the custody of their child.

Fight Bandits on Skyscraper

New York, July 14.—Battling with pistols and clubs on the roof of a 20-storey loft building in West 38th St. near Fifth avenue, policemen early this morning subdued three burglars and hauled up a fourth dangling eight stories below at the end of a rope just in time to prevent him entering a loft in which valuable merchandise was stored.

Detectives of the West 30th street station, to whom the uniformed men turned over their captives, said that three of them had records and that the quartette undoubtedly were the "aeroplane" burglars who have committed silk robberies in the past few months in which they have accumulated plunder worth $150,000.

In every one of the robberies of which they are suspected confederates have swung the most daring member of the band from a roof to the window of a store or loft. In each case ingress has been had by smashing the glass of the window with the swinging rope and crawling in through the sash, thus avoiding the setting off of burglar alarms which would have brought watchmen.

The early morning battle on the lofty roof, with only an occasional cry or groan and the staccato stabbing of pistol flashes through the darkness reached the street, and caused great excitement and brought a knot of curious persons to cheer the policemen as they at last made their way slowly down the first escape with their battered prisoners.

GIRL RECEIVES GRANT

Winnipeg, July 13.—Miss Mollie Weinberg, B.A., is announced as the recipient of a grant of $750 from the Dominion Council of Research. Miss Weinberg will conduct her investigations into the physics of sound, under Professor Frank Allen, head of the physics department of Manitoba University. She is a graduate this year.

Convention of All Nation; May be at Washington

It Was So Specified In President Harding's Invitation to World Powers

THREE NATIONS SEND REPLY

Japan and China in All Probability Will be Represented in Disarmament Conference

Washington, July 13.—Among the outsanding developments today in the forthcoming international conference proposed by President Harding to discuss limitation of armaments and problems of the Pacific and the Far East were the following

Disclosure, following reports that Great Britain may seek to have a preliminary conference in England on Pacific and Far Eastern questions, that efforts to divert any portion of the proposed conference from Washington would not be acceptable to the United States.

Formal acceptances received at the State Department from Great Britain and Italy to attend the proposed conference, and unofficial assurance received that China's acceptance would arrive soon.

Acceptance by France having been received yesterday, Japan alone remains to be heard from.

Reports received in an authoritative quarter that Japan had given word of willingness to join in a disarmament conference, but had not at that time received secretary Hughes' inquiry as to her willingness to couple with disarmament consideration a discussion of Pacific and Far East questions, and that this latter phase of the issue is now being carefully considered by Japanese statesmen.

Reiteration of officials close to the President of their confidence that Japan will join wholeheartedly in the conference on all issues to come before it, and that they could see no logical ground upon which Japan could refuse to co-operate.

Conference at the White House by the President and Secretary Hughes on the subject of the conference wherein they considered the form of the official call for the conference, which it is expected, will soon be issued.

British Suggestion Unwelcome

Officials here were quick to make it clear that the United States would not welcome any suggestion that any part of the proposed conference should be held elsewhere than Washington, as originally proposed by President Harding. They made this known when unofficial reports were received that the statesmen of Great Britain were planning to propose a preliminary discusssion to be held in London of the issues in the Pacific and the Far East.

Formation of New Triple Alliance

Riga, July 13.—Rapid steps toward the formation of a new Baltic triple alliance embracing Latvia, Esthonia and Lithuania, which may later take in Finland, are expected by political leaders here to result from the formation of a new Lettish coalition cabinet headed by Sigmund Meyerovitch as Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs, which latter post he held under the old government.

The new coalition includes almost all the numerous Lettish parties except the most radical left wings.

K. Ulmanis, formerly an instructor at the University of Nebraska, who headed the old regime, is left out, as is also A. Berg, whose prosecutions of the Communists and Socialists elements as Minister of the Interior led to the downfall of the old cabinet. Berg has been succeeded by A. Quesis of the Farmers' Union, which forms part of the Meyerovitch party.

REGULAR SERVICE MAINTAINED

Washington, July 13.—A report received from the U.S. consul at Georgetown, British Guiana says: "Since the arrival of the first vessel of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine (Ltd.) in British Guiana, in September, 1920, a regular freight service has been maintained by the government between the port of Georgetown and Canadian ports via Trinidad and Barbados. During the first quarter of 1921 five Government vessels and four vessels of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Co. called at Georgetown. At present these lines carry practically all of the commerce between the two countries, but it is understood that as soon as the Canadian Government Mercantile Marine inaugurates the subsidized passenger service contemplated by the Canada-West Indies Agreement, the present service of the Royal Mail will be discontinued."

ISLE OF MAN DRY

New Licensing Law Controls Sunday Liquor Sale

London, July 12.—The Isle of Man on Sunday had its first experience of the new licensing law which restricts the sale of liquor on Sunday. The island is a favorite resort of tourists and prohibition was resented by them in various ways. Thousands gathered on the sea front and sang Elgar's and "Land of hope and glory," with equal vigor and irony.

Yukon Cannot Procure Booze

Dawson, Y.T., July 13.—Enforcement of the embargo which the United States has placed on liquor shipments through its territory will render abortive the big vote cast in the Yukon Monday in favor of the importation of liquor for beverage purposes. The chief executive of the Yukon territory, George P. McKenzie, is investigating the possibilities of the case, following the receipt of a message from the agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Skaguay, Alaska, which reads:

"The embargo on all liquors in transit through the United States has again been imposed. Only shipments which arrived on the steamer arriving here July 13 will be allowed to go forward. Future shipments of beverages containing more than one half of one per cent. alcohol will not be accepted unless they are accompanied by a permit from the United States Prohibition Enforcement Board."

Unless this permission can be obtained the Yukon will be cut off from its liquor supply because all transportation routes into the Yukon cross United States territory in Alaska.

The effect of the "wet" vote Monday will be the establishing of government control in the agencies for liquor, but orders will probably be placed outside of the territory as at present. The present law prohibits the sale of liquor within the Yukon, but permits importation by private citizens. Monday's vote does not technically alter the status quo, but it is understood that a majority of the members of the territorial legislature previously agreed on a system of government agencies and control if the latest plebiscite did not favor a bone-dry law.

Slashed Body Found in Niagara River

BELIEVE FOREIGNER MET WITH FOUL PLAY—NIAGARA RIVER CLAIMS SEVEN

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 14.—The Niagara River has taken heavy toll during the past few days. Seven men have lost their lives by drowning. All except one case are believed to be accidental. The body of Donald Gordon McLeod, a local teller, who was drowned at the Old Indian Trail Sunday afternoon, was recovered this morning. Park Policeman Preston riding on an international car, saw the body from the bank, and it was recovered shortly afterward.

The body of an unidentified man, found in the river yesterday, was covered with bruises and knife slashes, and is believed to have met foul play. The others who have been drowned in the past few days are: Andrew Biggar, Niagara Falls, N.Y., yesterday; Constantino Blanco, a Spaniard, at the Whirlpool on Monday; Wm. Smith and John Nugent, drowned at Chippawa when their canoe upset; Iknatius Locowicz, drowned at Tonawanda yesterday.

BLACK AND TANS ARE GIVEN LEAVE

Dublin, July 13.—Large bodies of police auxiliaries, as a consequence of the truce in Ireland, have been granted indefinite leave of absence. The first batch of the auxiliaries has already left for England.

Furs—Real and Spurious

THE increase in the demand for furs during the past several years has been phenomenal, and it will be good news to womankind to learn that as a result of big falls in the prices of many skins there is every prospect of cheaper furs next winter.

It is announced that the Fur Department of the Russian Government holds 13,000,000 furs for export abroad. Large stocks of furs are also held at Leipzig, the German fur centre, and intensive hunting and trapping in Canada has made its effect felt. Big drops have been recorded in prices at the last fur sales in America.

The decline in prices at the recent London fur auctions was sufficient in most cases to justify hopes of lower charges for muffs, coats, necklets, and stoles by the end of the year. On the other hand a few of the rarer kind of skins advanced in price.

Not only, as formerly, are furs being made up into garments designed primarily for warmth during the winter, such as coats, scarfs, muffs, caps, and the like, but in addition are in ever-growing demand as articles of ornamentation at all seasons of the year. Furthermore the hair of many of the furred animals is employed in large quantities each year in the making of felts and similar fabrics.

As a natural result, in the growth of the demand for furs, increasingly greater numbers of the more valuable fur-bearing animals are, year after year, being killed, and at such a rate as to overbalance the natural tendency toward increase. Certain mammals, once abundant, stand, to-day, in alarming proximity to extinction.

This growth in the rarity of certain furs has given rise to the ubiquitous attempts to furnish purchasers with imitations. The attempts have been legion, and considerable success has attended upon many of them. Sealskin, ermine, fox, bear, beaver, sable, chinchilla, otter, and others can be purchased at suspiciously reasonable prices, and seem to be suspiciously abundant. This is because it is now possible so to clip, dye, pull, and otherwise alter furs of certain types, that their original appearance is entirely lost, and that they may be sold under names not their own.

Inferior furs, remodelled, may be sold under the names of furs much superior in wearing quality or in warmth, as for example when remodelled rabbit is sold for ermine or remodelled muskrat is sold to you for your coat collar as seal of some sort or other at ten times its legitimate value, warmth and durability considered. The pelts of animals from warmer latitudes such as the opossum, marmot (woodchuck), raccoon, Manchurian dog, and certain species of monkeys are worked up and altered by skilful dressers into products very much different from their originals.

The names which are given to such remodelled furs are usually the names of animals of colder latitude, which possess furs of quality superior to those of warmer zones in respect to suppleness and durability of skin, durability of the hair, denseness and softness of the under, or fur-hair, and fulness and length of the over or protective hair.

Not only is there this natural difference between furs from animals of warm and cold latitudes, but another, an artificial difference, exists as well. This is the difference produced by the dyeing and processing to which the warm latitude furs are subjected during the alteration process which often renders the individual hairs brittle and the whole fur less durable than it would have been in an unremodelled state.

A comparison, recently set forth in the Scientific American Monthly, of the relative durability of furs with respect to their wearing qualities is very illuminating. For comparison, the fur of the sea-otter is assigned a standard of 100. Of chinchilla the relative durability is given as 15, ermine 25, fox (natural) 40, fox (dyed) 20-25, beaver 90, kolinsky 25, marten (skunk) 70, mink (natural) 70, mink (dyed) 35, mole 7, muskrat 45, nutria 25, opossum 37, rabbit 5, raccoon (natural) 65, raccoon (dyed) 50, sable 60, seal (fur) 80, squirrel (gray) 20-25, and wolverine 100.

There is also given a table of usual misnomers in furs. For instance, the American sable is often sold as Russian sable; goat, (dyed) as bear of various kinds; hare (dyed), as sable or fox, of various kinds; kid, as lamb; woodchuck (marmot, dyed) as mink, sable, marten and skunk; muskrat, as mink and sable; nutria, as beaver and otter; opossum (sheared and dyed) as beaver; rabbit (dyed), as chinchilla; hare (white), as fox; and goat (dyed), as leopard.

The writer, after setting forth the foregoing facts, proceeds to point out the need of some certain criterion by which furs can be indubitably identified, as a species. It may be mentioned in this connection that the remodelling and mis-naming of furs reached such a pitch in England, that several years ago the London Chamber of Commerce forbade the further employment of misleading terms. Such legislation might have a salutary effect in countries other than England. Where scientifically accurate methods of determination of the specific status of furs can be made available it would seem that the standardisation of furs might be, with advantage, brought about.

Town dwellers are usually darker of hair than country people.

TYPHOID FEVER AND THE CHLORINATION OF DRINKING WATER

Washington, July 12.—How a community, by too strenuous protest against an unpleasant but transitory condition, can condemn itself for years to an annual recurrence of disease, is strongly brought out in a report of Dr. R. G. Perkins, of the Cleveland division of health, recently reprinted by the U.S. Public Health Service.

Cleveland, says the report, obtains its water through two cribs placed 4½ miles out in Lake Erie and delivers it through two pumping stations, at one of which it is filtered and at both of which it is chlorinated.

Chlorination was begun in 1911, when the growth of the city and the increasing pollution of the lake water made treatment essential. After numerous experiments the "dosage" of chlorine necessary to make the water safe was determined. This amount was added and the typhoid curve fell with unusual sharpness. Unfortunately, conditions compelled the delivery of the doctored water through the mains in some parts of the city so shortly after it was treated that the taste of chlorine was still apparent.

Much complaint followed, but was dying out, when, early in 1912, a flood in the Cuyahoga River, which enters the lake at Cleveland, carried sewage and trade wastes out into the cribs, through which they reached the city mains. The trade wastes gave to the water an unpleasant taste, which everybody promptly blamed on the chlorination.

The mayor bent beneath the storm of protest. By his order the "dosage" of chlorine was reduced and during the ensuing nine years it has never been high enough, the report says, to fully counteract the ever-present pollution in the raw water.

The typhoid bacillus in drinking water is very difficult to find by laboratory methods, but the finding of sewage pollution is always considered as a warning of its possible presence.

In 1918, in the effort to better conditions, a filtration plant was put into service at the larger pumping station, which handles nearly three-fourths of the city's consumption. Laboratory tests, however, show that sewage pollution is present in the unfiltered water in the city mains nearly half the time and in the filtered water from 8 to 22 per cent. of the time.

Water in Bad Condition

In 1918 and in 1920, when these tests showed the water to be badly polluted the number of cases of typhoid fever in the city that could not be traced to any cause other than the water was double those that occurred in 1919, when the tests showed the water to be much better. From this the report argues that the pollution of the water and the amount of typhoid fever are directly related; and that when the pollution is reduced to a minimum, as the report says that it can be by existing facilities, typhoid fever in the city will be very greatly reduced.

It should be added that the engineer of the water division of the city, a man whose experience the report concedes to be large, finds himself unable to admit that untraced part of the rise of typhoid in Cleveland in the summer is due to water pollution.

HOW TO RID THE ARMS OF OBJECTIONABLE HAIRS

(Aids to Beauty)

A simplified method is here given for the quick removal of hairy or fuzzy growths and rarely is more than one treatment required: Mix a stiff paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every hair has vanished. This simple treatment cannot cause injury, but care should be exercised to get real delatone.

DELIGHTFUL SUMMER RESORT

St. Andrews, N.B., July 14.—While Ontario and Quebec still suffer from the excessive heat and long for the thermometer to drop St. Andrews is cool and restful with a temperature of 70 at noon and 60 at evening. To-day there is a strong invigorating salt breeze from across Passamaquoddy Bay. Enthusiastic yatchmen are taking advantage of the perfect sailing weather and are flying before the spanking breeze. Prominent among the yachts are the "Pakwan" owned by Sir Thomas Tate and the "Cachelol" belonging to Mr. Neil McWharrie. A merry party has gone out in one of the many comfortable motor boats for deep sea fishing. They will go down through little Letete passing and back by big Letete. It is the dearest wish of all to land a rare salt water salmon. A pollock is also an exceptionally lucky catch, but even the haddock and the humble cod maker are sports. When the delights of fishing have palled the party will land on Pendleton's Island and enjoy a chowder made from their own catch, a roaring camp fire will add to the delights and as a finish to a perfect day is the boat ride home across the moon lit bay with the phosphorescent sparkling like a trail of diamonds.

SLEEPS ON EDGE OF ABYSS AND FALLS TO HIS DEATH

Niagara Falls, July 12.—The body of John Widdop, 51 years old, of 1368 Linwood avenue, Niagara Falls, N.Y., was picked up last night in the Niagara Gorge at the head of Linwood avenue. He had rolled from the bank while asleep, according to the statement made by Hugh Johnson of this city.

Johnson says that he, in company with Widdop and another man whose name he did not know, took a nap near the edge of the precipice. When he awakened Widdop was missing, and he decided that he had awakened and departed.

There is a sheer descent of 150 feet to where the body was found on a bed of weeds and brush.

Miss Leitch, British golf champion, may play in Canada.

THE SUPREMACY OF BRITISH GLASSWARE

One direction in which continental manufacture used to be regarded as not only supreme but unassailably so was the production of the beakers, flasks, test-tubes, and other glassware used by chemists in their laboratories. "Jena Glass", for example, was once claimed to be practically perfect, and this claim was so vigorously made and repeated that experimenters all over the world had reached the point of accepting it in a sort of blind faith. There was something like consternation in Great Britain and other countries when the war cut off all the Continental supplies of chemical glass ware. It was thought impossible that any efficient substitute could be produced within many months or even years. Remarkable results were, however, reached when the problem was tackled with British skill and thoroughness. Careful and impartial tests were first made to determine the exact qualities of Continental chemical glassware—its resistance to corrosion by strong chemicals, and so on. Similar tests were made with British glassware and proved that while the much vaunted Jena Glass took a very low place, the first place was held by British glass. This result was attained by the British manufacturers in an astonishingly short space of time, and it represents a greater triumph than the layman can perhaps fully appreciate. In another department of glass manufacture—that of ornamental glass—Great Britain has also made conspicuous progress. Designers have been encouraged to leave the beaten track and produce effects which are as artistic as they are novel. One fascinating type of ware has been based on an adaptation of Egyptian mythological figures and hieroglyphics. The bold free outlines of the Egyptian art lend themselves exceedingly wele to reproduction in crystal glass, and the British designers has produced a series of models which are certain to be treasured by the connoiseur. Thus in both Science and Art British glassware is taking the leading rank.

HARDING OPPOSED TO SOLDIER BONUS

Washington, July 13.—The financial stability of the country would be "greatly impaired" by enactment of soldier bonus legislation at this time, President Harding told the Senate in a special address to-day.

The three vital needs for restoration to normalcy, the President declared are reduction of internal taxation, refunding of the war debt and adjustment of foreign loans.

President Harding made it clear that, although he cannot see the way clear to favor adjusted compensation for all ex-service men for the present the obligation of extending every aid to disabled veterans must be met.

Toronto beat Reading in both games yesterday.

WHEAT PRICES NOT AFFECTED

Regina, Sask. July 13.—Wheat prices in the Canadian west will not be affected by the new American tariff, except insofar as this interference with free shipment to the United States may be exploited by market manipulators, according to an opinion expressed by J. B. Musselman, central secretary for the Saskatchewan Grain Growers Association, in a recent interview.

"So long as the United States requires Western Canadian hard wheat for blending with her own winter wheat, it would seem that her own people will have to pay the import duty on it, besides its competitive world value. The United States millers will be under a handicap in competing with Canadian millers when it is considered that imported wheat is used for blending in making flour for export to Europe, "Mr. Musselman said

The wheat industry, Mr. Musselman believes, will be hard hit by this new tariff. "The effect of this tariff on our meat industry is likely to be very much more detrimental to the farmers of this country, especially as Canada has practically no other market for live cattle." Mr. Musselman, concluding, said: "The thing for Canada to do is to leave no stone unturned in building up export markets for her commodities, and in perfecting financial and marketing arrangements that will leave her producers under no handicap in meeting the competition of the United States in the markets of the world.

WIRELESSED FOR ROSES FOR A HAPPY COUPLE
Love Affair On The Steamer Kingston —The Roses Were Delivered

Kingston, July 12.—"Send three dozen roses to the steamer Kingston" was flashed by wireless from the steamer on Sunday afternoon on her way up the river from Prescott to A.D. Holton, florist, Princess street. There was a lot of meaning in that message, for it told the story of a happy sequel to a love affair on a tourist trip that surmounted everything, including the sweltering heat. Mr. Holton read the message and he also read between the lines as a florist knows how to do, especially when he has had long experience in the language of flowers and he was at Swift's wharf with his finest roses. Here he found that the bride-to-be was Miss Bulger, and the marriage was to be celebrated at Rochester, N.Y. He was not privileged to meet the happy groom or learn his name.

CONDUCTING SOIL SURVEY

In co-operation with the department of agriculture, Professor Roy Hansen and two assistants, of the College of Agriculture, are conducting a soil survey of Saskatchewan as recommended by the Better Farming Commission in its report to the government. Active work is now being carried on in a block of four municipalities in Cypress constituency.

The intention is eventually to have a complete survey of the whole province that will reveal all of the data in regard to soil conditions that are essential to a determination of the most profitable type of farming to be carried out in each district. A second and perhaps other surveying parties will probably be put into the field next year, as it is realized that the immensity of the undertaking will require years to complete. the survey.

When a sufficient number of representatives districts have been covered they will be mapped and the information secured in regard to them will be made public.

FAST CLIPPERS.

One Famous Boat Became Lumber Carrier on the St. Lawrence.

Much testimony has been offered of late to show that the New York clipper ship Dreadnought never made the run credited to her by some writers—nine days seventeen hours from Sandy Hook Lightship to Daunt's Rock, Queenstown, but there is little need of evidence or argument on that question, for few who know much of ships and the sea have ever believed that the famous clipper sailed that fast. While they are at it, however, the sea sharps might as well tell who did make the trans-Atlantic, or New York-Liverpool, record, if Capt. Samuels didn't. Downeasters are inclined to award the great distinction to the clipper, Red Jacket, built at Rockland, Me., in the fifties. The Red Jacket has a well attested record of thirteen days one hour and twenty-five minutes from Sandy Hook Lightship to Liverpool Pier head, and it is not recalled that anything faster has been claimed for a sailing vessel.

It is related that the Collins Line steamer, which left New York a day or two after the Red Jacket, arrived in Liverpool one Sunday afternoon and brought the news that the Yankee clipper was just astern. Those were sporting days in the clipper service, and there was as much interest in the performance of fast ships as there is now in any other time records, big money often being wagered on sailing contests. When the news spread along the Liverpool harbor front the people rushed in thousands to the docks, and every pier was black with spectators awaiting the advent of the new sea racer. Outside the port tugs had offered to tow the clipper, but the ship was going so fast that they couldn't keep the hawsers taut, and so had to give it up. The Red Jacket swept into the Mersey with everything drawing, presenting a spectacle that brought cheers from the assembled multitudes. Then, as tugs came alongside to dock her, the ship's master gave all hands a thrill they least expected—he ignored the tugs, and, throwing the Red Jacket up into the wind, actually backed her alongside the pier while the crew took in sail with a celerity that seemed like magic to the spectators. The Red Jacket was a ship of about 2,500 tons, old measurement; had a very long floor, like a Penobscot river lumberman's batteau, and could carry a tremendous spread, and also point high. She carried as figurehead the image of the Indian chief, Red Jacket, artistically carved from a log of pumpkin pine. She prospered finely in the clipper service, was later sold to English account and sailed in the Australian trade, and at last accounts, after some years of carrying lumber from the St. Lawrence to the United Kingdom, was dismantled and used as a coal hulk at Malta.

In some records the Dreadnought is credited with a run of thirteen days and eight hours from New York to Liverpool, and it is well authenticated that she ran from Honolulu to New Bedford, 13,470 miles, in eighty-two days. She was built at Newburyport, Mass., in 1858 by William Currier and James T. Townsend to the order of Governor E. D. Morgan, Captain Samuels of Brooklyn, her first master, and others. Her fame was as wide as the seas, and she soon acquired the name of a racer—"the wild ship of the Atlantic," sailors used to call her. She carried on her foresail a fiery red cross, by which she was easily identified at sea. She was 200 feet between perpendiculars, 217 feet on deck, 40 feet beam, 26 deep depth of hold; gross tonnage, 1,443; net, 1,227. Strictly speaking, she was only a half clipper, but her unusual beam gave her the ability to stand up under a press of sail that would send a full clipper ploughing under. She was lost on July 4, 1869, while on a voyage from Liverpool to San Francisco, being piled up on Cape Penas, to the northeastward of Tierra del Fuego. At that time she was commanded by Captain Mayhew.

The ship Andrew Jackson of Boston sailed from New York to San Francisco in eighty days and four hours; the Northern Light of Boston home from San Francisco in seventy-six days and eight hours; the North Wind of New York from England to Port Philip head, Australia, 12,500 miles, in seventy-six days; the Young America of New York from Liverpool to San Francisco, 13,800 miles, in ninety-six days; the Euterpe of Rockland, Me., from New York to Calcutta, 12,500 miles, in seventy-eight days; the Richard Busteed of Boston from Sydney, N.S.W., to Calcutta, 5,800 miles, in forty-two days, and the barque Ocean Telegraph of Boston home from Callao, 9,970 miles, in fifty-eight days.

RACE CANNOT SUICIDE

FAMOUS CANADIAN INVENTOR SAYS IT IS IMPOSSIBLE.

Those Who Do Not Want Children Will Leave None to Inherit That Negative Desire, While the Kind of People Who Want Large Families Will Increase.

DR. ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL, the honored inventor of the telephone, maintains the impossibility of race suicide. In an article contributed to the Journal of Heredity (Washington), he calls attention to the fact that childlessness can not be transmitted to one's descendants, for the reason that the childless have no descendants. The practical result of this fact is that any tendency to race suicide dies out in a generation. Fertility stands a better chance of transmission than infertility, even when not absolute. The case, Dr. Bell notes, is an instance of what he calls "negative selection," which he says has always exerted a powerful influence upon population. He writes:

"No inheritable peculiarity associated with lack of offspring can be made to grow and flourish in a community. In spite of all efforts it will languish and promote the growth of its very opposite. History is full of illustrations.

"After the fall of the Roman Empire there was a great religious revival among the nations. The middle ages saw Europe filled with monasteries and nunneries, where enormous numbers of people took vows of celibacy and renounced all home and family ties.

"Instead of helping the church this produced the very opposite effect, and actually paved the way for the reformation. Large masses of the people who were most attached to the church led celibate lives, and left no descendants, whereas the independently minded who were not so devoted to the church were not limited in their reproduction.

"It is now felt that the interests of the race demand that the best should marry and have large families and that any restrictions upon reproduction should apply to the best.

"It is, of course, useless to expect that the worst would take vows of celibacy or keep them; and the realization of this has led to all sorts of impracticable schemes to prevent or resist their reproduction by compusory means.

"The greatest trouble about all these schemes, apart from their impracticability, is that they aim simply to prevent degeneration. They aim to prevent the race from moving backward, but do not help it to move forward. The only hope of producing higher and better types of men and women lies in the multiplication of the better elements of the population.

At the present time, Dr. Bell goes on to say, considerable alarm has been expressed at the apparently growing disinclination of Canadian and American women to bear children, and a cry has been raised against what people call "race suicide." Whatever the cause, it is undoubtedly the fact that in America, the children of the foreign-born are increasing at a greater rate than those of the native-born, and the position is sufficiently grave for serious consideration. He continues:

"The desire to avoid maternity is a characteristic associated with lack of offspring, and can not therefore go on increasing indefinitely in a community. Its natural tendency is to die out through lack of offspring to inherit it, leaving the more fertile part of the community alone to propagate the race.

"Reflection therefore leads to the somewhat startling conclusion that even wholesale abstention from children, so far from lessening the fertility of the community as a whole, will eventually increase it instead. Actual race suicide will not result from such a cause alone, so long as the race is left to itself to work out its own destiny.

"Just consider the case of a race of people in which the women show a disinclination for motherhood surrounded by prolific immigrant races ready to take its place; then, of course, there would be serious danger of the native race being displaced by the immigrants. The immigrants might absorb the native race instead of the native race absorbing the immigrants; but such a result would be due to the presence of the competing races and not due directly to the operation of natural causes within the race itself.

"In order to appreciate this, imagine our native race to be placed upon an island protected by suitable immigration laws from competition with other races. Then it becomes obvious that the sentiment in favor of avoiding the production of offspring must necessarily diminish in process of time, on account of the lack of offspring to inherit it, and that the opposite sentiment of a desire to have children will grow, and ultimately become predominant, because each succeeding generation will be composed exclusively of the descendants of the people who had children. If the desire for offspring is an inheritable characteristic, and it certainly is, then, of course, the next generation will inherit it from their parents to a certain extent; whereas, there will be no descendants at all to inherit the characteristics of those who abstained from offspring."

AN HISTORIC FAMILY.

Link to Canada's Early Days Has Passed Away.

An interesting link in the early history of Canada passed away in Toronto on February 7 in the person of Mr. William Alexander Shirreff of Fitzroy Harbor, Ont. His forefathers had much to do with the early history of Canada. He was the oldest direct male descendant of Sir William Alexander of Menstrie, first Earl of Stirling, and Secretary of State for Scotland, who receiving a grant of land in America, "comprehending Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Gaspe, Cape Breton, Prince Edward Island, Anticosti, etc., dated July 12, 1625, and another grant of fifteen leagues on each side of the River St. Lawrence, dated February 2, 1628, to himself, his heirs and assigns."

The son of the first earl came over and established a colony in Nova Scotia, but was called home to Scotland by the death of his father in 1646.

After the death of the second Earl of Stirling the family took little interest in their possessions in America till near the close of the century, when they again turned their attention to British North America, and Mr. Charles Shirreff, the grandfather of William Alexander Shirreff, the subject of the present sketch, came to Canada to establish his claim to his "American possessions," having received a further grant of land in what is now Ontario. He first settled on one of his grants on Lake Ontario, near what is now the town of Cobourg.

Having received a grant of 5,000 acres in the district of Dalhousie, on the Ottawa river, he sent his son, Alexander, a land surveyor, to survey and settle this claim in 1817. There he afterward moved with his family and there they have since remained, in what is now the township of Fitzroy, in the county of Carleton.

This Mr. Charles Shirreff, grandfather of the late W. A. Shirreff, took a keen interest in the opening up and development of Canada, and was the first to see the necessity of better transportation, and to advocate the building of the Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay Canal. On this project alone he spent much of his time and fortune, having surveys and estimates made at his own expense, and making two trips to the Old Country endeavoring to have this project carried out. These surveys and estimates were the only ones in existence till the survey lately made by the Government of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

When the union of Upper and Lower Canada was proposed, he thought that By-town was the best situation for the new capital, and went over to London to place the matter before the British Parliament and to use his influence to have Ottawa made the capital of the new Canada. He also drove to Toronto from Ottawa in winter to see his friend, Lord Colborne, about the matter. This drive of over three hundred miles he frequently took to interview the powers that were at Toronto in regard to matters pertaining to the opening up of Canada in those days. He also wrote a book on the Colonization of Canada, a copy of which is in the Parliamentary Library in Ottawa.

Mr. Alexander Shirreff, uncle of the late W. A. Shirreff, was commissioned by the Government to survey, map and name the Muskoka country and lakes of that part of Ontario lying between the Ottawa river and Georgian Bay. This report and maps can be seen in the archives at Ottawa.

The late William Alexander Shirreff was born at Fitzroy Harbor, 78 years ago, and lived there practically all his life, on part of the original grant of land which the family still holds. He took a keen interest in the social, educational and political life of the township and country. He was postmaster for 45 years, and served on the School Board for almost as long, and he took a great interest in education matters, not only in his own township, but in the province as well.

Would Cool the Earth.

A succession of such eruptions as that of the Mt. Katmai valcano in Alaska in June, 1912, would plunge the earth into another ice age by reducing the sun's temperature to a low degree on earth, Dr. Robert E. Griggs said before the American Association for Advancement of Science. Dr. Griggs headed the national geographic expedition to Mt. Katmai.

CARE SHOULD BE TAKEN OF EVEN TINIEST CUTS.

At an inquest held recently at Bow, England, on the body of a publican, 59 years of age, says the London Lancet, it was proved that the deceased had cut himself while shaving and had paid no attention to the wound beyond covering it with a piece of paper. Severe erysipelas had followed and the man had died. A verdict of accidental death followed, the coroner, Dr. R. L. Guthrie, observing that it might be a counsel of perfection to advise a man who cut simself with a razor to use an antiseptic immediately.

It is not stated whether the paper used was a piece of the gummed edge of a sheet of postage stamps, but that certainly is regarded by many ignorant people as a convenient kind of "sticking plaster," regard'ess of either the original composition of the adherent or any subsequent impurity acquired. The postage stamp is less dangerous than the cobwebs which were used popularly for the stopping of bleeding before postage stamps were invented, and which are still employed in country districts, where barns and outbuildings make them easily obtainable. The knowledge that a wound of any kind should be kept as clean as possible is no doubt spreading, and deaths from such causes as the above are less common than formerly.

IMPERIAL MIGRATION.

The London Morning Post, in a recent article on the Imperial Conference, or Conference of Premiers, dealt at some length with the problem of migration within the Empire and showed an appreciation of the difficulties as well as the advantages of the movement. It said:

The matter which most nearly concerns the people of this country at the moment is the problem of migration within the Empire. Never has it been more urgent, because never has the industrial situation been more serious. Owing to international as well as domestic causes, the number of unemployed is very large, and it is probable that a considerable proportion of men and women may not be able to obtain work for a long time. No country can permanently support a section of its able-bodied population in enforced idleness. Exactly to what extent Great Britain is over-populated has not been ascertained; but there seems to be no doubt that the surplus amounts to millions. Before the war, even in seasons of commercial prosperity, there was what is called a permanent margin of unemployment; and in most trades employment was insecure. It is the fact that only during the war has there been no unemployment in this country. Every scheme for the relief of unemployment proved a failure; and so long as there is not enough work to go around every such scheme will continue to fail. The population must be adjusted to the means of support available. There is only one means to that end; which, to put it plainly, is to get rid of the surplus population. The Dominions oversea are in exactly the opposite case. They possess vast undeveloped resources, and they need men to develop them. But, broadly speaking, these resources are contained in the land and not in towns. Canada and Australia suffer also from over-populated cities, and they do not welcome the immigrant. The men they require are farmers, open-air laborers, miners; men who are fit for hard work, and have the courage to start life and to build homes in a new country. There is no opportunity for them in the Old Country. It may be said that their emigration would not relieve the towns and cities; but the fact is that there are millions of young men who, if they were given a fair chance, would leave shop and mill and factory and day-labor, and thus make room for the rest. In the case of the miners it is all too likely that some hundreds of thousands will never go down a pit again in this country. Before the war there was a steady emigration of some quarter of a million persons every year; a circumstance which alone proves over-population. During the war when emigration ceased, those who would have gone remained, and it is estimated that there are now nearly a million more people to support in consequence. The matter has, in fact, become so large and so formidable a problem that nothing save the action of the State in conjunction with the Governments of the Dominions can solve it. And until it is solved there can be no real prosperity.

While we perceive the obvious fact that the Dominions, especially Australia and Canada, want population, we also, we trust, recognize their difficulties. They want the right sort of men, and, therefore, we propose that they should themselves exercise the right of selection. If, for instance, the Dominions accepted the principle that a man must be taken from a job (if he has one) to a job, if they, further, advanced the cost of his passage, they would naturally choose their men and women. It seems to us that such a system would solve their main difficulty. We sope that in Canada the plan of inviting settlers to a home built ready for their occupation, with a grant of land, will be revived. In Australia there are vast territories in one of the best climates in the world awaiting the pioneer to build roads and railways to make farms. Nothing can serve Australia's need to fill up empty spaces, which are a temptation to the landless of other nations, except a scheme of immigration conceived upon a scale hitherto unknown. That Australia would get the men she requires is certain. The immediate necessity is the provision of the requisite funds. It may be taken for granted that the emigrants can pay nothing, or very little; but they can repay advances by degrees. If Australia granted the pioneers land upon which to settle, the money required for passage and outfit and advance might be raised by means of a great Imperial reproductive loan. There would be absolute security; the money would be repaid; and there could be no better investment for the Empire.

CHILDREN'S RED WEEK

Philadelphia Inquirer

There is something at once pathetic and amusing in the Children's Red Week now being celebrated in Germany. These youthful Bolshevists take themselves very seriously. They are holding conventions protesting against corporal punishment and demanding the abolition of religion. All this reads like a burlesque upon the actions of their elders. Yet there is none the less an element of danger in it. That the Reds everywhere are deliberately seeking to advance their pernicious doctrines by poisoning the minds of the young cannot be doubted; we have seen examples of it in this country. That many will change their minds as they grow older is probable. But a Children's Red Week is really too monstrous an idea to be tolerated.

WHY FREE TRADE IS OUT OF GEAR

London Daily News

The natural market is under normal conditions the best market. But suppose the conditions are abnormal? Suppose they are so violently altered by circumstances which have nothing to do with economics that the natural market is closed or difficult of attainment? In that case the Free Trade law manifestly ceases to operate. There can be no Free Trade in war; theory and practice alike collapse. This is surely what is rendering all Free Trade controversy at the present moment so sterile. In economics, as in other fields, we have the war still with us; and it is always possible to argue that a policy is a failure if it is tried in conditions for which it was never designed. The underlying assumption of Free Trade is peace; that is in the eyes of most of its supporters one of its strongest recommendations.

THE FARMERS AND POLITICS

L'Evenement

As a matter of fact the farmers are so sure of triumphing at the next Federal election that they are already discussing the formation of their first Cabinet. It would be useless to remind them of the proverb about counting their chickens before they are hatched. So far as they are concerned, their accession to power is an accepted fact. This is yet another proof of the extraordinary strength of the movement that extends with equal force from the Rocky Mountains to the very heart of Ontario. If the farmers succeed in realizing their hopes of winning the provincial election in Alberta they will be masters of the situation in the three provinces on the eve of the Federal elections. This will give them an obvious strategic advantage, for in none of the nine provinces of the Confederation are the Conservatives in a position to lend efficient aid to their Federal friends.

The Poets' Corner

ON AN OLD ROAD

A host of poppies, a flight of swallows
A flurry of rain, and a wind that follows
Shepherds the leaves in the sheltered hollows,
For the forest is shaken and thinned.

Over my head are the firs for rafter;
The crows blow south and my heart goes after;
I kiss my hands to the world with laughter—
Is it Alldenn or Mystical Ind?

Oh, the whirl of the fields in the windy weather
How the barley breaks and blows together!
Oh, glad is the free bird afloat on the heather—
Oh, the whole world is glad of the wind!

ONTARIO CLERGY MUST REGISTER

Toronto, July 14.—After the 1st of October, or thereabouts, no clergyman who is not registered with the provincial authorities, and is the holder of a certificate of registration, will be permitted to solemnize marriage in Ontario. Dr. W. J. S. McCullough, provincial officer of healt', announced today that the legislation to this effect passed last session would be brought into force by proclamation and that in the meantime all religious bodies recognized by law as qualified under the marriage laws should have their ministers registered.

The new regulations are likely to shut out a number of minor religious bodies. Under the old law "ministers and clergymen of every church and denomination duly ordained or appointed according to the rites and ceremonies of the church" had the right to solemnize marriage. This was interpreted to mean the Roman Catholic, Anglican, Presbyterian, Methodist, Congregational and Jewish churches, and later the act was amended to take in the Salvation Army, the Disciples, the Farington Independents, the Brethren and the Society of Friends.

The act does not recognize ministers of such bodies as the Unitarians, Christian Scientists, Latter Day Saints and others, though these churches may now put up a fight for recognition. The act provides a penalty of $500 fine or imprisonment for anyone performing the marriage ceremony without being fully qualified. Marriage by an unregistered person will, of course, be illegal.

FUR-SEALING BACK

Victoria, B.C., July 13.—Fur-sealing has come back, and on the west coast of Vancouver Island alone the Indians this summer will probably capture two thousand fur seals. Pelagic sealing in British Columbia and Alaskan waters at one time was woven around with all the romance of adventure, wealth and international strife. The, through greed and indiscriminate methods of slaughter practised by the sealers and a lack of international understanding upon the question of conservation, the industry fell off, the seals all but disappeared and their capture was made illegal.

Last year the waters of the west coast of Washington produced twelve hundred animals. Officials in charge of the industry and its control claim that the North Pacific herd, which once contained as many as 2,500,000 animals, is bound to increase rapidly. There is every probability that as many as one hundred thousand animals may be taken each year, made up wholly of surplus males selected with reference to their economic value, and Canada may ultimately be expected to receive half a million dollars annually from this fishery.

Mosquitoes And Then Some

Y.O.U.—A party from the city of Belleville who are followers of Isaac Walton journeyed to Crow Lake for a few days' fishing. They certainly were fortunate enough in securing bites, but they were not from the finney tribe, rather mosquitoes. The latter were present in such numbers and caused such suffering and pain, that the party were compelled to return home minus the fish. Better luck next time.

Mysterious Noise Explained

H.E.L.—My attention was called by a neighbor to a rather mysterious noise coming from the chimney in the saw in motion, and which was more pronounced during the night. Being curious we got a looking glass and putting it through the stove-pipe hole, were able to see the cause of the annoyance. It was four young Martins reposing in a nest just above the hole, or about six feet from the top of the chimney. They were carefully removed, nest and all, and put on a tree quite close to the chimney, where they are not so likely to spoil the beauty sleep of the occupants of the (haunted?) room.

Gallant Rescue

C.H.—I saw a resident of Dufferin Avenue, one of our popular young men, make a daring rescue on Wednesday at Fisherman's Point on Lake Ontario. Z.O.—I see the Orangement who celebrated at Port Hope did not lose their appetites at all, even with the intense heat of the day. The following is a list of what they consumed, 16 bags of potatoes, 10 bus. beans, 50 pounds of butter, 400 pounds of ham, 350 loaves of bread, and 1,600 pies, and only a few loaves of bread left over. Over 1,000 visitors were served by the I.O.D.E. of Port Hope. Some work we'll say.

He cannot accept because of his engagements in the Canadian National Regatta, at St. Catherines, Ont., the last of this month and the even more important events at the international regatta at Buffalo, the first week in August.

According to the changes in the High School Act a sixth teacher is necessary on the staff. The request of the teachers for an increase in salaries was considered at a previous meeting and was refused.

CAUSED TWO DEATHS

The Santa Maria, which was giving exhibition flights, hit the boat from which two men were fishing.

A COSTLY NAP

Mr. Thomas Wood and family while returning home to Bailieboro from the Orange celebration at Port Hope had a narrow escape from serious injury. Mr. Wood was driving his McLaughlin six and being tired out after the strenuous day fell asleep just for a moment but long enough for his car to go over the edge of the culvert just north of Kidd's Corners. The front wheel was broken off and the car turned over on its side. None of the party were injured and the only damage to the car was a broken wheel.

VICTIM OF ACCIDENT BURIED

For a time he did relief work as a despatcher on the G.T.R., and was looking forward to a station of his own.

HIGH TEMPERATURE

At the pump house at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the thermometer registered 96, and during the day it showed 97 being the hottest day of the year. Within the past twenty-four hours the lowest point reached by the thermometer was 76. At 8 o'clock this morning it was 86, but a breeze was somewhat refreshing.

CHILD PAINFULLY INJURED

Mary Smith, a young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith of this city was yesterday afternoon painfully injured at Twelve o'clock Point. The child was enjoying a ride on the merry-go-round, when from some cause she fell and was caught in a passage way with the result that before the machine was stopped several of the carriages passed over her. She was severely cut about the leg and her body bruised to a considerable extent. The victim was brought to the city as soon as possible after first aid had been rendered, and taken to the hospital where her injuries were attended to. Mrs. Smith was a witness to the accident and collapsed when she saw it was her daughter that had been injured.

A SUCCESSFUL PICNIC

OFFICERS ELECTED AT CLOSING SESSION OF AGRICULTURAL REPRESENTATIVES

Guelph, Ont., July 13.—Matters of interest to the dairying industry were dealt with at today's conference of the agricultural representatives of Ontario, which is being held at the O. A. C.. The following are the officers elected for the year: Hon. president, A. P. MacVannell, Picton; president, J. C. Steckley; vice-president, G. R. Green; secretary-treasurer, H. Sirett; directors, S. A. Dorrance, J. A. Carroll and G. W. Collins.

At the afternoon session Dr. J. H. Grisdale, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Canada, explained the service the federal department is prepared to render the farmers of Ontario through the agricultural representatives. Dr. Hilton, of Ottawa, spoke on accredited seeds, and Dr. C. D. McGillivray, principal of the Ontario Veterinary College, gave a talk on abortion and tuberculosis in cattle. Milk tests at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair were dealt with by T. H. Lund, of the O.A.C., and the session wound up with a special trip of inspection over the experimental plots in charge of Dr. C. A. Zavitz.

HORSE LOVERS SHOCKED

London, July 13.—Horse lovers throughout the country have been shocked by Colonial Secretary Winston Churchill's announcement in the House of Commons that 30,000 army horses in Mesopotamia are to be killed because it is too expensive to bring them home.

It was explained that they are mainly heavy draft horses for which there is no local use, and that they had to be fed on imported fodder. The nearest possible markets are India or Egypt, but the difficulties and cost of transportation thence are said to be prohibitive.

Shipping men say it costs forty to fifty pounds to bring a horse from the East to England, not counting horsemen's wages.

The War Office's view is that it is better for the horses to be killed humanely and scientifically than to be left in the hands of natives who would not care for them properly, and no one would suggest turning them adrift in the desert.

Village Prey of Bush Fire

LUMBER MILLS IN ASHES WHEN FLAMES SWEEP NORTH ONTARIO SETTLEMENT

Capreol, July 14.—The village of Ruel, a subdivision on the C.N.R. was completely wiped out by forest fires which swept this district before a stiff wind to-day. Two large lumber mills owned by W. H. Bromley of Pembroke were reduced to ashes, including all the lumber and logs piled there, besides 37 carloads of ties, the property of the C.N.R. The loss in dollars and cents as yet has not been estimated.

The fires, which gained headway during the night, were beyond the control of the fire rangers this morning. Early to-day the wind shifted somewhat, thus saving the village of Gogama, which had been in the direct path of the flames. About noon a heavy electrical storm hit the district accompanied by hail and rain. The tempest was of short duration, and had passed in about 20 minutes, during which time the wind reached a velocity of 70 miles an hour, and a quarter of an inch of rain fell. Hailstones of huge size accompanied the storm.

The fire covers a large area, and although rain is falling the flames are moving forward unchecked, and embers are being carried by the wind to great distances.

Terrific Storm Visits The Soo

ORE BRIDGE OF ALGOMA STEEL CO. BLOWN DOWN, ENTAILING HUGE LOSS

Saulte Ste. Marie, Ont., July 14.—In a terrific wind and rain storm which struck the Soo at mid-afternoon No. 1. ore bridge of the Algoma Steel Company was blown down, entailing damage of $300,000. The roof of the beater room of the Spanish River Pulp and Paper Company was also demolished, but the damage is unknown.

Numerous reports are coming in from the district immediately surrounding the city of damage to barns and crops, and it is feared that the benefit derived from the rain will be more than counter-balanced by the damage by hail, which accompanied the storm.

In the city itself awnings by the dozen were demolished, trees blown down and the electric light and power services put out of commission.

UNIQUE MARRIAGE

Moose Jaw, July 13.—A unique wedding ceremony was performed here recently when Miss O'Brien, of Philadelphia, was united in marriage with Charles Barker, of Vancouver, by Rev. Father Egan, of Boston, at the local Isolation hospital where the bride is a scarlet fever patient. The ceremony perforce, was performed through a window of the hospital. Safe behind a germ-proof sheet of glass, the groom and Father Egan took their stand in the hospital grounds, while Miss O'Brien charmingly gowned, made her responses from the interior of the building.

Following the ceremony, the bride returned to her ward to await expiration of her six weeks exile, while the groom left Moose Jaw for his home in Vancouver.

Miss O'Brien was stricken with scarlet fever while travelling to Vancouver with Father Egan, where she was to have been married. She was taken from the train here, and removed to the Isolation hospital.

THE SUBSTITUTE

WILL N. HARBEN.

(Copyright, 1903)

[illegible] Mr. Kenner you may tell 'im he kin come.' An' while you was out home last Thursday night they had the parlor to the'rselves. Me an' Mr. Hillyer set on the front veranda. Jim Kenner hain't no slouch. He kept 'er laughin' all evenin' at his tales, an' when she come out after he'd gone she said he was the most agreeable man she'd ever met. Not a word's been said about marryin' betwixt 'em, but I'll talk to 'er about 'er things inside of a week, now see ef I don't. Seems like lots o' Darley folks is under the weather here lately. Thar's Lawyer Trabue. They say he's awfully sick. George Buckley, I may look light hearted, but I've got a sight to trouble me. I worry about Mr. Hillyer mighty nigh constant."

"I suppose you do," answered Buckley, meeting her glance sympathetically.

"I worry about him beca'se he hain't open with me," she went on. "You know thar's one matter that we never mention betwixt us, an' I jest have to guess at how he feels in his different moods. Now, I'm bothered over the way he's actin' about Trabue's sickness. Why should he git excited over that? But he is. When we fust heard it he didn't seem to pay no more attention to it than if the report had been about any other citizen, but all at once, while he was readin' the Advocate at the lamp, he put the paper down quick an' got up an' went outside. I went to the door an' heard 'im axin' Jake how Trabue was, an' when Jake told 'im he wasn't no better he come back in the house pale an' nervous, an' last night he hardly slept at all. Do you know of any important dealings he's had with Trabue, George?"

"No, I do not, Mrs. Hillyer," George replied. "I can't understand it."

"I sorter thought at fust that it was beca'se him an' Trabue is about the same age, an' it sorter made 'im reflect on the end we all have to come to. You know, George, Mr. Hillyer's great trouble has made 'im more afeard to die than most men—men o' that sort seem to dread the end, like they think some special punishment is in store fer 'em. As fer as I'm concerned, I don't believe Mr. Hillyer 'll be punished at all. He's suffered ten times too much already."

Later that evening Hillyer took George into his confidence as they were smoking on the lawn together.

"George, I'm in a sight o' trouble," he said. "And it's the old thing. You remember I told you Trabue was payin' Mrs. Hambright a pension through me?"

"Yes, I remember that," George said.

"Well, Trabue is mighty low, and if he was to die, George, an explanation would have to be made. She'd have to be told that her allowance wasn't coming from the government, an' maybe she'd upbraid me an' impoverish 'erself to pay all of it back. Oh, George, I'm awfully miserable! I went to talk to Trabue in private, but the doctor won't let a soul see 'im. George," he said, under his breath, "if Mrs. Hambright was to throw up my crime to me at this late day—bowed as she is with age and as nigh as she is to God—I'd never git over it, I tell you—never!" And throwing his half smoked cigar away, Hillyer strode off in the darkness.

A little later, as George stood near the gate, Jim Kenner came up dressed in his best suit, a flower in his buttonhole. "I reckon you think I'm a purty thing goin' to see gals at my time o' life," he said, with a sheepish laugh as he opened the gate.

"I was wondering if I ought not to tell Hortense something about your dark past," George laughed.

"I wish you would blacken my record a little," returned Kenner. "The truth is, Mrs. Hillyer says Hortense doesn't exactly take to the goody goody, preachy sort o' chap, an' to hear me spout you'd think I was a sight wuss'n I railly am. Oh, I've been a few gaits in my time, but I hain't bad! It's a God's fact, though, that a heap o' women ud rather have doubts about a man 'an to know positive that he's a angel in pants. Hortense is that away, an' what I'm workin' on her right now might be called the 'hold-in' plan."

"The 'hold-in' plan?" George echoed wonderingly.

"Yes, the 'hold-in'," answered Kenner. "You see, ef I was to tell her right out that my past record was as black as a stack of black cats she'd not believe it, but when she comes right at me an' accuses me o' all manner o' devilment I simply hold in or change the subject. A man cayn't never make a woman believe he's bad by tellin' her he is, any more'n he kin make 'er believe he's good by the same process. The 'hold-in' racket fills the bill exactly. A woman is sech a mystery herself that she likes what she don't understand. Thar, I see Hortense on the veranda! George, she's a daisy, ef I do say it. She's jest the woman I've always wanted. I joke a lots, but that's the truth, my boy."

"Not a word's been said about marryin' betwixt 'em."

CHAPTER XXVI.

It was the first of May, and the annual reunion of the Confederate veterans was being held in Atlanta. It was the gala week of the year. Every town and city in the south sent its official representatives and its maids of honor. The hotels were crowded and the streets thronged with an incongruous multitude wearing badges of ribbon. Southern generals and their wives and daughters were holding gay receptions. Everybody was welcome; hands were extended to people from the north as well as from the south. Shouts filled the air when the carriage of an ex-Confederate officer passed through the streets. The bands played "Dixie." Men, scarred and maimed, stood on the street corners and in the bars and hotels and told war stories and sang the praises of Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson. All was mirth and good feeling. From the public buildings, the clubs, hotels and carriages floated the American flag. It hung everywhere, but it was never applauded and yet never hissed. It was beautiful to look upon and stood for peace, patriotism and prosperity. The southerners would have admitted this, and yet there was another beauty dearer to their weary memory—a beauty for which they had fought grimly and lost.

Mrs. Cranston, Lydia and Kitty Cosby were visiting the Dunleighs, a Virginia family who lived in one of the best houses in Peachtree street. George Buckley was in the city, but he had gone only to attend to the work of inspecting the books of a broker who handled considerable grain and cotton for the Darley house.

The broker, Mr. Harry Stone, was a young man of high social standing in Atlanta, and he had formed a strong friendship for George and extended the hospitality of the best club in the place to him and offered to introduce him to his friends, but George refrained from accepting. He was too fine a man to feel at ease in general society so early after his father's disgrace, and Stone understood this and did not press those things upon him.

"I see you've got some stunning girls up your way," Stone remarked as George sat at a desk in the corner of the room "checking up" the books. "It's reported down here that our governor runs up that way every chance he gets."

"Yes, they are all right," Buckley answered briefly.

"She's a Miss Cranston, I understand," ran on Stone. "I've heard my grandmother speak about the family in Virginia. She's visiting the Dunleighs, and I guess I'll meet her while she's here. You know her, of course?"

"Yes, we are friends," George said simply.

"I've never seen her," said the broker, "but, judging from her picture, she must be good looking. However, one can't tell about that. The pictures in the newspapers are always bad."

"In the newspapers?" said George, in surprise.

"Why, yes; it's in both the papers today, along with an account of the reception the governor is giving to her and her party at the mansion tonight. It's to be awfully swell. I'm not going. In fact, he and I don't get on. The truth is I belong to a little club of young Americans that tried to snow him under in the last election, but we got left. He had too big a pull with the ring. He used to be civil to me, but he snarls like a possum when we meet now. He can't forget an injury. Did you ever see him?"

"Oh, yes," said George. "He's been up our way often."

"Oh, of course; I'd forgotten. They say he's not been having exactly smooth sailing up at Darley either, but it looks a little like he's making more headway now."

"How is that?" asked Buckley, his blood running cold, his heart sinking.

"Why, the reception, you know. That looks a little like she's giving in, don't you think? But I may be dead wrong. She may want to make that friend of hers, that Miss Cosby, have a good time, and the general run of girls would consider it sheer madness to lose a chance like that. Why, it's to be the chief event of the reunion. Well, he's welcome to his glory; it won't last long; he will never get in again."

"You think not?" said George tensely.

"No; he'll never be able to pay the expense of another campaign. He ruined what little law practice he had when he went into politics, and now he's a bankrupt."

"A bankrupt?" George exclaimed. "Why, I thought he had unlimited means."

"In a pig's valise," laughed Stone. "I am intimate with the cashier of a certain bank in this town and I had it straight that Telfare's got up the last bit of collateral he can raise for money he can't repay. Why, he had to beg the bank for a little raise to give this reception. Do you know, I suspected he was trying to marry for money. May I ask if this Miss Cranston is an heiress?"

"She's an only child," said Buckley, reluctant to continue the conversation further, "and her father is fairly well off."

"Perhaps," said Stone, "he's really daft about her."

VOL. LIV. NO. 151. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, JULY 15, 1921. PRICE TWO CENTS

Cheese Storage Urgently Needed

SPECIAL COMMITTEE TALKS OVER PROPOSALS WITH HON. MANNING DOHERTY

Toronto, July 14.—Legislation to compel cool storing of Canadian cheese for a certain period in order to enable cheese from the Dominion to take its proper place in the export markets, was yesterday suggested to Hon. Manning Doherty in the course of a conference with the members of the Fruit Committee of the Legislature and officials of the Dairy branch of the Department of Agriculture. The Fruit Committee has, of course, been devoting itself primarily to the development of cold storage facilities for the storage of apples, but the possibility of using these cold storage warehouses for cheese, particularly during the Summer months, when they are not needed for apples has turned the members to the problem of advancing the interests of Ontario cheese in the British market.

At the present time Ontario cheese goes forward to the British market often without being kept at all and as a result it depreciates in quality and loses weight. On the other hand, Danish and New Zealand cheese must be kept in cool storage for at least two weeks before it can be sent forward. From time to time efforts have been made in Canada to encourage the cooling and storing of cheese for a period, but while it has been done in some places, the practice has not been followed generally enough to have a recognized value overseas.

At the conference yesterday it was recognized that any legislative action taken would have to come from the Dominion, and steps will be taken to bring the matter before the Federal authorities. There are two ways of cool-storing cheese, one by utilizing cold storage warehouses and the other by additions to cheese factories of insulated rooms where the cheese could be stored and cooled. It was estimated yesterday that such additions would not cost more than about $500.

There was some difference of opinion in the conference as to the advisability of compulsion. It has been practiced in other countries but might be difficult to enforce here. The alternative would be Government action to assist in providing facilities.

The warehouses at Brighton purchased by the Government for its experiment in cold storage of apples is now being fitted with cooling equipment and will be ready for business within another three or four weeks.

Romantic Story Ends in Washington

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

Washington, July 14.—The romantic story of last December when a naval balloon left Rockaway, Long Island, carrying three naval aeronauts who subsequently lived in the wilds of Northern Ontario and reached safety after hardships which so affected them that they started to fight, ended today when the court of enquiry made its report. In this document, made public by Secretary Denby, the court does not censure the three airmen, Lieut. A. Kloor, Lieut. Farrell and Lieut. Hinton, for making the flight, but, instead, says that the journey was authorized by the commanding officer, although crossing the Canadian border was never contemplated. The aeronauts, it will be remembered, lost their way and drifted across the Canadian border.

FIND NEW PASS ACROSS THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS

Prince Rupert, B.C., July 13.—After finding a new pass across the Rocky Mountains, discovering a river which they named the McMurphy, staking oil lands at Fort Norman, and traveling in all 5,000 miles through the wilds of the north, Walter Murphy David McRae, Chas McDonald, and Howard Coiley, all representatives of a Victoria syndicate, arrived here on Saturday and proceeded to Edmonton by way of Vancouver.

Another party of two old-time trappers, Jack McDonald and Nick Groslsky, arrived on the same boat. Speaking of the oil gusher at Fort Norman, they all agree it is a big one.

Lieut.-Governor Lionel Clarke is reported ill at Toronto.

Marmora Yeoman Killed During Electric Storm

STEWART AIRHART STRUCK BY LIGHTNING, ALSO HIS BARN WHICH WAS DESTROYED WITH THE CONTENTS—BODY RESCUED FROM BURNING BUILDING.

At about five o'clock on Thursday afternoon the village of Marmora and vicinity was visited by a severe electrical storm which not only did considerable damage, but resulted in the death of at least one person. The victim was Mr. Stewart Airhart, a farmer residing about one mile north of the village in the township of Marmora.

It appears that the victim, in company with another man, drove into his barn with a load of hay, and he was in the mow when the storm broke. A bolt of lightning struck the barn, setting it on fire, and also struck Mr. Airhart, killing him instantly.

Although the barn was on fire Mr. Airhart's companion succeeded in rescuing the body from the burning building, also a team of horses. The barn, with its contents, was destroyed. Some farm machinery, grain, etc., was burned.

The victim of the distressing affair was a deservedly popular farmer and had a large circle of friends in the locality where he had made his home for a few years. He was a brother of Mr. Airhart, the popular reeve of Marmora village. A wife and child survives. Universal sympathy will be extended to Mrs. Airhart in her sudden bereavement.

The loss sustained in the burning of the barn is partially covered by insurance.

Carpentier Tricked by Irish Stevedore

UNWITTINGLY WAVES SINN FEIN EMBLEM WHILE ENGLISH SAILORS BOOH

New York, July 11.—Georges Carpentier sailed for France today waving a French flag in one hand and a Sinn Fein emblem in the other.

A crowd of British sailors aboard the Menominee, anchored a few feet from La Savoie, on which Carpentier sailed, suddenly stopped cheering for the French champion when Mike Mahoney, stevedore, thrust an Irish flag into Carpentier's hand. The Frenchman, not stopping to see what flag it was, lifted it to the breeze amid the booh's and blaa's of the Britishers.

The scene provoked a verbal battle between the Irish stevedores and the Britishers, the Irishmen yelling "Where's your Joe Beckett now?" and the Britishers singing "God Save the King."

SCHOONER ASHORE IN BAY OF FUNDAY

St. John, N.B., July 11.—The three-masted schooner Emily F. Northam, owned by W. C. Reid, of New York, went ashore on the Wolves, a barren reef off Grand Manan in the Bay of Funday during a dense fog last night. She was refloated today but is half full of water, according to a telephone message from Grand Manan.

A tug has been sent to two her here if possible.

The schooner is of 316 tons register and left here with a cargo of lath for New York on July 5.

Princess Married To Prisoner

Warsaw, June 25.—News of the marriage in Moscow of Count Szechnenyi, a lieutenant in the Hungarian cavalary, who is still being held a prisoner by the Bolsheviki, to Princess Golicyn, a member of one of the oldest Russian families, has just been received here. Count Szechnenyi is a cousin of Count Lazlo Szechnenyi, who married Miss Gladys Vanderbilt of New York.

At the beginning of the war he was a lieutenant in the Hungarian cavalry and was taken prisoner by the Russians on the Galician front in 1915. He is about 27 years old.

Details of the wedding were brought to Warsaw by Doctor Sigmond Janczura, formerly a dentist in Detroit, Mich., who served in the Polish army, was captured by the Bolsheviki and released from the Moscow prison early in June.

Count Szechnenyi was a prison companion of Colonel Merion C. Copper, Jacksonville, Fla., of the Kosciuszko air squadron who escaped from Russia this spring.

The romance having had its inception prior to the world war while the young woman was visiting in Constantinople near where Count Szechnenyi's father has a palace and a vast estate. Princess Golicyn returned to Russia several weeks ago, upon learning that Count Szechnenyi was a prisoner and since has been endeavoring to aid in gaining his freedom and sending him food whenever possible.

Vote on Fordney Bill on July 21st

Washington, July 13.—The House yesterday adopted over almost solid Democratic opposition the special rule governing consideration of the Fordney Tarrif Bill. The vote on the rule was 222 to 160 with four members voting present.

The rule provides for a final House vote on the Fordney Bill July 21 and leaves only the dyes, hides, cotton, oils and asphalt shedules open to amendment from the floor of the House.

Because of the heavy demand for speaking time, Chairman Fordney gave notice that the House would hold night sessions beginning last night. Requests from the Republican side alone, he said, total twenty-five hours. Representative Garret, Democrat, Tennessee, acting Democratic leader, declared that the House voted always its powers in the Ways and Means Committee.

"It is the same sort of a rule under which the Payne-Aldrich Bill was put through," he said, "and ordinary members will have no chance to offer amendments.

Taking Colonists Into The Arctic

STEFANSSON IS ORGANIZING NEW EXPEDITION TO DEVELOP FAR NORTH

Walla Walla, Wash., July 13.—Vilhjalmur Stefansson is organizing a new expedition to the Artic, which will leave Seattle about August 6, according to a statement made privately Tuesday This expedition will be for commercial purposes, and, it is supposed, will take colonists into the Arctic Circle.

Stefansson stated that the North would be populated within the next 30 years, and that the development would be rapid.

Allan Crawford of Toronto and E. L. Knight of McMinnisville, Oregon, members of former expeditions, are in Walla Walla in conference with Stefansson, and it is thought that Knight will head the new expedition.

Prince of Wales Invited To Japan

H.R.H. HAS BEEN RESTING THIS WEEK UNDER DOCTOR'S ORDERS

London, July 13.—The Prince of Wales has received an official invitation from the Japanese Government to visit Japan at the conclusion of his tour of India, which, according to recent announcement, is to begin about the end of October.

The Prince, who recently contracted a cold, has been resting this week, on orders of his medical advisers. This has necessitated the cancellation of several engagements. The exertion of an almost continuous round of official functions in various parts of the country during the past few weeks has proved a tax on the Prince's strength.

HASTINGS-RANEY SUIT TO BE TRIED IN OCTOBER

Hamilton, Ont., July 14.—J. L. Counsell, counsel for David Hastings, the well-known police magistrate, stated to-day that the statement of claim in the action of Mr. Hastings against Hon. W. E. Raney, Attorney-General, had been prepared and that the case would come to trial in October. It might be heard in this city, but Mr. Counsell states it is altogether probable it will be tried in Cayuga.

The suit follows charges made by Hon. Mr. Raney on the police magistrate regarding his administration of justice, especially the Ontario Temperance Act.

Wife May Pick Husbands Pocket

QUITE WITHIN HER RIGHT TO EXTRACT MONEY

Riverhead, N.Y. July 14.—Judge George H. Furman of the County Court of Suffolk has decided that a wife is quite within her rights in going through her husband's pockets while he is asleep. The decision followed an appeal of Mrs. Theresa Marabella, who was sentenced to four months in jail by a Justice of the Peace for removing $10 from her spouse's hip pocket while he peacefully slumbered. She spent the money on a trip to New York and was arrested a few days after in Brooklyn on a warrant sworn out by her husband.

The appeal was financed by a number of other women anxious to have their rights in this regard definitely established. Their lawyer pointed out that under the common law which obtained it was impossible for a wife to steal from her husband.

"No Peace, No Pay" Arrangement

London, July 14.—A novel working arrangement on the "no peace, no pay" principle has ben entered into by the British Government with the Wahabi, a powerful Arabian desert tribe. The Wahabi are nomads and belong to a sect which Colonial Secretary Winston Churchill described in the House of Commons as "bearing the same relation to orthodox Islam as the most militant forms of Calvinism would have borne to Rome in the fiercest times of religious wars."

They are, he said, austere, intolerant, well-armed and bloodthirsty and they regard it as an article of duty as well as of faith to kill all who do not share their opinions. Moreover, they are very dangerous to the holy cities of Mecca and Medina, and the whole institution of the pilgrimage.

The finances of the Shereef of Mecca, who enjoys British protection, have suffered grievously by the interruption of the pilgrimages. Therefore, to assist him and King Hussein of the Hedjaz, who has been in constant warfare with the "Arabian Calvinists," the latter are to receive £60,000 cash annually, so long as they refrain from annoying their neighbors and do not interfere with the candidacy of Hussein's son, the Emir Feisul, for the rulership of the new Mesopotamian state.

Colonel Lawrence of the Colonial Office who has lived among the Wahabi for years, told an interviewer that they were indeed a most violent people. They are, he said, fanatically Mohammedan and would kill their men and women, for smoking even a cigarette. The way they correct their women is to tie them up in bags and beat them unmercifully with palm canes.

Each man has three wives. Should any of them go out of doors, the code allows him to have her put to death. This is because they belive that if any other man looks at her she is contaminated and that if a woman goes outside of her home she is certain to go wrong.

Wearing silk dresses or any costly finery, precious stones or metals, is also a penal offense.

"In no sense are they a decadent people," Colonel Lawrence concluded. "They are virile and as austere as they are bloodthirsty and brave. It should be cheap at £60,000 a year to buy their goodwill and to keep them quiet."

The latter view, however, does not meet with universal acceptation. Many taxpayers would prefer to see the end of all British commitments in Mesopotamia.

Some Progress Made by Mr. Lloyd George and De Valera

LLOYD GEORGE AND DE VALERA HELD ANOTHER MEETING TODAY—DISCUSSION LASTED ABOUT AN HOUR AND A HALF—CIRCUMSTANCES FAVORABLE FOR TODAY'S SESSION — SOME PROGRESS IS ADMITTED BY BOTH LEADERS.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, July 15.—Prime Minister Lloyd George and Eamonn de Valera, Irish Republican leader, this morning resumed the conversation they began yesterday, in which they made an effort to clear away the difficulties attending the holding of a conference which might bring about a settlement of the Irish problem.

At the close of yesterday's conversation, which lasted about three hours, Lloyd George and Mr. De Valera gave evidence that some progress had been made and that today's discussion would be resumed under favorable circumstances.

LONDON, July 15.—Another meeting between Eamonn de Valera and Premier Lloyd George took place today, this discussion of the preliminaries of the hoped-for peace settlement lasting about an hour and a half. At its conclusion it was announced that the conversation would be resumed later, probably next Monday.

Sir Sam Hughes Grows Weaker

Lindsay, July 14.—The condition of Sir Sam Hughes is worse and friends today expressed the opinion that the end is not far off, although it may not occur for a few days. He is scarcely able to speak and is steadily growing weaker. The last transfusion of blood on Friday did not have the desired effect in reviving him. He has had periods of semi-consciousness since Monday last.

On Tuesday, while Lindsay orangemen were on the march to the station they passed the Hughes home. The band struck up "Lass of Derry," Sir Sam's favorite orange hymn, but he was unable to hear the tune to which he had in many years marched with his orange brethren.

Letter Placed In Record

Washington, July 14.—A letter from Premier Lloyd George to President Wilson dated August 8, 1920, and dealing with a proposal for the cancellation of inter-allied debts was placed in the record of the Senate Finance Committee today by treasury officials during the hearings on the administration of the Allied Loan Refunding Bill.

Military Resume Control in Belfast

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

Belfast, July 15.—The military resumed control of North Queen Street area in Belfast this morning and armored cars patrolled the streets. At the City Hall a conference was held attended by officers of police and military and leading townspeople to discuss the situation here, in view of the disorders that had occurred during the week.

Acute trouble developed early last evening in the York Street and North Queen Street district, several civilians being wounded in the fighting in which the police and military were forced to intervene, when reports from last night's rioting were made public this morning. It developed that two persons were killed during the disorders and that between thirty and forty others were wounded.

B.C. Keeps $235000 Worth of Liquor

PRIVY COUNCIL RULES IN FAVOR OF PROVINCE AGAINST WINE COMPANY

Vancouver, July 13.—Word was received here today from London that the British Columbia Government was successful in the appeal to the Privy Council taken by the Canadian Pacific Wine Company against the seizure of its $235,000 stock of wines and liquor under the British Columbia Prohibition Act several months ago. As the defendants have now exhausted every process of law to recover, the possession of the huge stock of liquor.

Two hundred and thirty-five thousand dollars was the value of the goods months ago; today's valuation will be nearer $400,000, due to the vastly increased cost of liquor and the fact that the Liquor Control Board will be selling this special consignment.

English Papers Discuss Conference

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

London, July 15.—A continued discussion of the proposed disarmament conference by newspapers here testifies to the sustained interest in the subject. The question of a preliminary conference to be held in London was given prominence by a number of newspapers here to-day which printed long despatches from Washington which indicated such preliminary meeting would not be favored in the United States. It was argued in some quarters the idea should, therefore, be abandoned. It was made clear, moreover, that the question had not advanced as yet beyond the stage of discussion while the engagements of Dominion Premiers would make it difficult.

Sunlight Treatment For Sunburn

New York, July 13.—On the theory that like cures like, physicians at the Broad Street Hospital, treating the more serious cases of week-end sunburn, are securing excellent results through the use of equivalent sunlight.

According to the Superintendent, Dr. J. A. B. Savage, the properties of sunlight, turned by science from injury to therapy, are reproduced in the rays of the Alpin lamp, which throws off ultra-violet rays that destroy bacteria and heal the injured tissue.

Patients at the hospital are given a brief exposure to this lamp, being blindfolded in cases of burns in the face. The procedure is based on a new conception of burns, which regards them as infected wounds caused by heat. Burns of all kinds are said to be yielding to the sunlight treatment.

Month Dead In Cavan Woods

BURIED IN NAMELESS GRAVE; IS DISINTERRED AND IDENTIFIED

Port Hope, July 15.—Whilst picking berries in Mr. Rupert Winslow's woods, near Millbrok, Miss Bradburn, daughter of Thomas Bradburn of Port Hope found the decomposed body of a man, which was later identified by Sydney McLaren, of Cavan, as that of his brother Thomas, 23 years old, who had been missing for six weeks after abruptly leaving Nicholls Hospital, Peterboro, on June 4th.

The body was decomposed beyond identification at the time and Coroner Dr. Turner, of Millbrook, ordered the interment of the body at Ida, as there were no marks on the body and no suspicion of foul play aroused. Dr. Turner pronounced death at that time due probably to heat exhaustion.

Sydney McLaren, of Cavan, when he heard of the body being found in Winslow's woods, on the chance that it might be his missing brother, had it exhumed yesterday, and by the clothes he identified the remains as his brother. Coroner Dr. Turner held an inquest last night and the coroner's jury brought in a verdict of death due to natural causes, probably to exhaustion. The body was interred in the family plot in St. John's cemetery.

Want Clean Cattle Herds

CAN'T ACCOMMODATE APPLICATIONS FOR TUBERCULAR TESTS OF LIVE STOCK

Guelph, July 13.—The main features of today's conference of the Agricultural Representatives were addresses by Dr. Hilton of the Dominion Department of Agriculture and Dr. C. D. McGilvray, Principal of the Ontario Veterinary College, on animal diseases.

Dr. Hilton dealt with the accredited herd system, inaugurated in the United States in 1917, and adopted here two years later, as a means toward the eradication of tuberculosis in cattle. Under this system an owner places his herd under official supervision, and is obliged to have slaughtered any animals that react to the tuberculin test, the Dominion Government paying $166.66 in compensation for each purebred animal slaughtered. In the United States there are 7,500 accredited herds, including 182,700 cattle, with 13,600 herds, including 280,000 cattle, waiting to be passed upon.

In Canada there are but 17 herds which have as yet been officially accredited as free from tuberculosis, eight of thees being in British Columbia and two in Ontario. Of the accredited herds in Canada, eight are Holstein, six Jerseys and one each of Ayrshires, Shorthorn and Angus. So many breeders have, however, applied to have their herds placed on the accredited list that 121 applicants have had to be temporarily refused.

Dr. Grisdale, Deputy Federal Minister of Agriculture, spoke of the work being done by his department in seeking to assure standard of quality in seeds, feeds and fertilizers, and in cooperation with the Provincial Department of Agriculture in other matters.

In this connection the announcement was made that the Dominion department, which inaugurated the system of herd testing for milk production, proposes to seek the co-operation of provincial departments of agriculture in carrying on that work hereafter. Two of the western services have already taken over the administration of the system, and in Ontario the work is to be carried out under the direction of Dairy Superintendent Putnam after the end of this year.

Hatfield Confident He Will Cash Check

NEEDS ONLY A NICE SUMMER SHOWER FOR HIM TO WIN—TWO TOWERS NEXT YEAR

Medicine Hat, July 14.—Hatfield, the rainmaker, is a happy man. On Tuesday night it rained again, this time .30 inch, bringing his total up to 3.76 inches, and leaving him only .24 inches, a nice summer shower, in order to fulfill his contract to deliver four inches of rain, and get $8,000.

Hatfield has done better the past month. For a while late in May and early in June he was a desperate man as rains went north of him, south of him, and around him without any falling on him. But since June 16 he has produced 2.21 inches of rain, and fulfilment of his contract now will be easy.

"I promised two inches of rain in July, and I am delivering it," he declared today. "In some parts of my district I am doing better than that. At Bos Island, on the western edge, Tuesday evening, two and a quarter inches of rain fell in 45 minutes."

Hatfield is confident that he can do better next year by using two towers and placing them on the western edge of the district, and he will put that proposition up to the united agricultural district of Medicine Hat when he meets the farmers Friday to discuss signing a contract for 1922.

PORT ARTHUR ANTICIPATES A LOCAL BY-ELECTION

Port Arthur, July 13.—A local by-election is anticipated in well-informed circles here, it being understood that Brig.-Gen. D. M. Hogarth, who has represented this riding in the provincial legislature for six sessions past, has placed his resignation in the hands of the Conservative leader. It is thought probable, however, that Howard Ferguson will spare no effort to try and dissuade the local member from vacating his seat.

But government supporters are nevertheless organizing and making all necessary plans for a contest.

GENERAL HOSPITALS AND T. B. PATIENTS

The opening of wards in general hospitals for tuberculosis patients, as recommended by the American Medical Association at its recent annual meeting in Boston, will, it is believed by the U.S. Public Health Service, be of enormous benefit not only to most of the two million known victims of the disease in the United States but also to thousands of others in whom the disease is incipient and easily suppressible, if promptly treated. Tuberculosis in this stage is difficult and often impossible to positive diagnosis, even by an expert; and many persons, even when told by their family doctor that their case is suspicious and that they should take precautionary treatment, fear the stigma of an avowed tuberculosis hospital and put off action until recovery has become long and difficult. In a general hospital the diagnosis will not be made public and the family will not be embarrassed but at the same time all necessary precautions can be taken to avoid danger of infection to others.

The resolution was prepared and recommended by the National Tuberculosis Association in 1916; its approval now by the American Medical Association shows a very marked change in medical sentiment.

In support of the new policy it is argued that in many small cities two hospitals, one general and one tuberculosis, can be run only at a loss, but if combined, would pay operating expenses, especially as the combined hospital would draw many secret tuberculosis cases. Many general hospitals could easily enlarge their facilities by fitting up wards, roofs, porches, and unused open-air spaces and thus provide greatly needed space for tuberculosis patients, both former Army men and civilians.

The routine treatment of tuberculosis patients in all general hospitals, instead of as at present in only about one eighth of those in the country should enable people in moderate circumstances to obtain preliminary treatment in their home towns instead of being forced to go without or go to resorts. Such preliminary treatment would habituate the patient to the regime essential to his cure and to the protection of others and would enable him to go back to his home and get well under home treatment, as he probably would not have done without such training.

Visits to the hospital w allilosGfiT t

Visits to the hospital will also familiarize members of the patients family with sanitary precautions such as the sputum cup, which commonly horrifies them and is soon given up by home patients.

Visits by the family physician to his patient in the hospital would familiarize him with the treatment and enable him to diagnose other cases much earlier. It would also enable him to supervise the later home treatment of both this patient and of others. At present, although tuberculosis is the most common of all serious diseases, its treatment is neglected because general practitioners are in the habit of sending their patients away.

In short the result of opening the general hospitals to tuberculosis patients will it is believed, be very largely preventative and will thus be in line with the medical tendency of the day, which is looking more and more to prevention instead of to cure.

IDEAL WEATHER FAVORS TOURISTS AT ST. ANDREWS

St. Andrews, N.B., July 15.—With the cool sea breeze blowing across the bay it seems almost unbelievable that the cities are sweltering in the heat with Montreal having a temperature ranging from seventy-six to ninety. London at ninety-three, Toronto at eighty-eight and stil rising, Quebec in the eighties. St. Andrews with its maximum temperature of sixty-eight cannot compare. Although this has been one of the hottest days of the season at no time has it been uncomfortable. Late at night the fogs have drifted in from the Atlantic all week and although the early sun has dissipated them their cooling quench has been felt. It has been an ideal day for golf the links have been thronged. Lord Shaugnessy was seen enjoying his quiet game. Dr. Sills of Geneva, that kindly clergyman is again playing his thirty six holes a day. Among the ladies noted for their keen interest in the royal game are the Hon. Marguerite Shaughnessy, Mrs. Harold Beverly Robinson, Mrs. Alex Wilson. At the tea hour the piazza of the charming club house held many little parties admitting the view over the St. Croix River and enjoying the salt breeze.

Lieut.-Gov. Clarke Must Take Holidays

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

Toronto, July 15.—His Honor Lionel H. Clarke, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario must take an indefinite leave of absence owing to illness. It is stated that his honor's illness has been diagnosed as nervous indigestion but its nature has greatly puzzled the medical men and it is expected that X-rays will be taken in an effort to solve the problem. The Lieutenant-Governor is at present at Government House but it is likely he will take an extended holiday as complete rest is required for his recovery.

Thorah's 100th Birthday Here

Beaverton Meeting Place of Reunion of Old Boys and Girls.

Beaverton, July 14.—The township of Thorah, of which Beaverton forms a part, is celebrating this week the hundredth anniversary of the settlement of the township and there is a large gathering of the clans from many parts of the continent.

Old boys and girls, long separated by time and distance from each other, are coming in by all routes. The arrangements for the event are in the hands of an energetic committee, of which Mr. P. McMillan is chairman, Mr. J. F. Givens, secretary-treasurer, with Mr. D. W. Walls, reeve of Beaverton, Mr. John Ross, reeve of Thorah, and Mr. Alex. Hamilton, members of the executive.

HISTORY OF SETTLEMENT

The township of Thorah was fortunate in its pioneer settlers. After the battle of Waterloo and the termination of the war in Spain, many officers retired on half pay and found their way to the eastern shore of Lake Simcoe hewing out for themselves homes in the unbroken forest. Among these may be mentioned Col. and Lieut. Cameron, Capt. Turner, Capt. Osborne and Capt. Gibbs. Another Cameron was Lieut.-Col. of Militia, who once a year trained the yeomanry of the neighborhood in military drill.

ELABORATE PROGRAM.

An elaborate program has been prepared and July 14, 15 and 16 will be days filled with enjoyment. The 48th Highlanders Band from Toronto will furnish music, and there will be sports and games to satisfy every taste. A special train from Toronto Saturday morning will bring many visitors for the final day's amusement. This will include water sports in the morning, horse racing in the afternoon, and a grand street carnival with music and fireworks in the evening.

Workers Declare Notice Received

Says News of Wage Cut is Sufficiently Clear to Be Understood.

Montreal, July 13.—Members of the railway labor organizations, whose officials have been in consultation with the companies this week, today received notice that the average reduction of twelve per cent. in wages would be effective from July 1st.

While railway officials do not admit that any arbitrary ruling has been voiced by the companies, the interpretation put on the conferences of this week by the employes appears to be borne out by the announcement from one company to the effect that no further conferences on the wage issue are likely between it and its employees.

Friday is pay day on all Canadian railways, but the envelopes to be distributed then will not be affected by the reduction. The payment made this week will carry employees only to the end of June, as the roads are always two weeks behind with pay. The next pay, due August 1st, will cover the first two weeks of this month and will be the first to be effected by the reduction, it is said.

A conference between shop employees of all roads and officials of the Canadian Railway Association took place this morning at Windsor station, when a variety of matters affecting wages and working conditions were under discussion.

When maintenance of way men meet the association next week practically all conferences will be completed.

News was received this morning of a cut of six cents per hour in wages paid employees of the American Railway Express. Enquiry locally elicited the information that no reduction in wages is at present under consideration by Canadian companies.

Big Gold StrikeS In Alaska District

PROSPECTORS STAMPEDING TO THE NEWLY-REPORTED DIGGINGS

Anchorage, Alaska, July 15—Strikes of gold quartz apparently bearing more than $100 to the ton, in a district 39 miles south of here, are reported here. Prospectors are stampeding to the area of the discovery.

Men returning from there said a dozen big fissures of quartz heavy in gold had been uncovered within a region twelve by seven miles. The first strike was at Girdwood, on the Government railroad. According to messages received here, the original find was followed by numerous others of equal importance.

Mining men here who have made a preliminary investigation of the discovery predicted it would prove epochal. Some of the strikes, they said; developed in railroad cuts along Turnagain Arm.

Thirteen millions gambled at the races at four meetings in Toronto.

GRAEFUL INDIANS.

How They Gave White Children Some Tasty Sweets.

It would seem that Indians have as tenacious a memory for benefits as they have for injuries. A contributor to Field and Stream gives an especially pleasing reminiscence illustrative of that characteristic of the red man. When he was young, Indians were still plentiful and often camped near his home.

"On one memorable occasion," he writes, "the dignified old chief, whose name was Wakemo, came with his family to eat with us. First they ate all the bread on the plate; next they ate all the potatoes, and so on, seriatim. After the meal the chief held open his blanket and said, 'Potatoes.' My father took a gunny sack and went to the cellar, closely followed by Wakemo, his squaw and us seven children. As my father began to fill the sack, old Wakemo grunted 'No!' and opened his blanket and his squaw began to throw the potatoes on its capacious folds. The blanket held at least two bushels of our best tubers.

"Not a word of thanks did the Indians vouchsafe. But one morning in the next fall we found on our doorstep half of a fine young deer with the symbol of Chief Wakemo on it and the words, 'Me no forget.' And the day they left the country we found a large 'chunk' of venison in the same place, with the same inscription.

"Father took us children to see the camp, and in broken English the small papooses talked to us. When we reached Wakemo's wigwam, he presented us each with a large egg, which we all solemnly accepted with thanks. The eggs were unaccountably heavy, and on opening one we discovered that the contents had been removed and warm maple sugar substituted, making a delicious sweet the like of which I had never seen before and have seen but once since.

"More than fifty years afterwards I went to see an Indian reservation, and as my friends and I were viewing the scenes an Indian boy came up to us and shyly requested me to follow him. He led me to a tent where I found a perfectly strange Indian brave, who silently held out a gun to me and by motions urged me to take it. He was the son of the old Chief Wakemo, and he remembered my coming to the camp when he was a papoose. 'Potatoes,' he said, and then he added, 'My brave father bade me never forgot.'

"When I made it clear to him that I had no use for his gun, he inquired if there was anything he could do for the 'white chief's son.' With a smile I said, 'Eggs,' and to my great astonishment he produced enough maple sugar eggs to supply our whole party."

Real Bolshevik Coming.

Canada is going to have a real dyed-in-the-wool Bolshevik in her midst this summer if Leonid Krassin, the commercial envoy of Russia, at present in London, keeps his promise to come out and discuss with the Canadian Government and manufacturers the possibility of establishing credit with Russia and supplying her with locomotives, agricultural implements, clothing and shoes.

But Krassin does not belong to the long-haired, unwashed variety of Bolshevist. German papers have called him the world's greatest living master of electrification and perhaps the world's most competent organizer in the field of mechanical engineering industries. He was the genius, they say, who with nothing but the wrecks of plants, railroads and bridges in his hands after the revolution and with mobs of untrained workers to depend on, built up for Soviet Russia a system that goes through the motions of industrialism in a lifelike manner. Before the war he worked for the great German scientific firm of Siemen's. He furthered bizarre engineering feats, he planned sensational schemes of electrification, which always won out despite criticism. He has been since the revolution the business man of Bolshevism. Kerensky and Lenine were in turn delighted with him. Nothing daunts him, it is said. He rose naturally to be commissioner of trade and commerce. He has worked out mathematically schemes to pay Russia's war debts and to meet all the claims of the western world. They are as fantastic as some of his plans as an engineer—but many of these succeeded.

Krassin is a Siberian by birth, just 51 years of age. His revolutionary activities began early, for as a youth he was expelled from the Technological Institute of Petrograd for taking part in a students' uprising. His first imprisonment came in 1892 when he was arrested while serving in the army.

To Hasten Growth.

Nitrate of soda supplies nitrogen in a readily available form and because of this is one of the most valuable of the nitrogen supplying fertilizers. In the spring, nitrates in the soil may be very deficient because of their depletion by drainage from the soil, caused by fall and early spring rains. Liberation of nitrogen in the humus cannot take place until the soil warms and the nitrifying bacteria become active; hence the suitability of nitrate of soda for furnishing available nitrogen early.

Our Tobacco Crop.

Tobacco farmers of Canada are preparing for a 80,000,00-pound crop this year, which should have a total value of more than $15,000,000. Ontario last year produced 21,688,500 pounds on 20,114 acres. Quebec, the premier tobacco province, produced 26,400,000 pounds last year, an average of 800 pounds an acre. It was a 50 per cent. increase over the preceding year. The tobacco industry is also flourishing in the Kelowna district of British Columbia.

SPORTING NEWS
Here, There and Everywhere

Oshawa has requested two outside officials for the game with Cobourg and Lindsay and the request has been referred to the Executive Committee by President Kimmel. Oshawa's claim is that both of these games are very important and that home umpires should take no part. Its true that the game in Cobourg is important to Oshawa but not very important to Cobourg. A lot of course depends upon the Lindsay-Oshawa game. The system ever since the league has been in existence has been to appoint an outside official to officiate at the plate while a home man took the job on the bases. The Oshawa management is so anxious now to have two outside men that they have agreed to pay all the expenses of the second official.

It's a funny old race in the Central League this year. Belleville, Lindsay and Peterboro have all broken even in their series with each other, but the queer part of it is that in the case of all three they lost their home games and won on the other fellows grounds. Oshawa has also broken even with Belleville and Peterboro, but in both instances lost away from home and won their home games.

At Peterboro on Wednesday the Port Hope Central Ontario Baseball league team met its ninth defeat and were handed a shut out the score being 11 to 0 in Peterboro's favor. The scoring was all done in the 2nd, 4th and 5th innings.

The only game Port Hope won was against Peterboro some weeks ago and then the Executive Committee was unkind enough to take it away from them. The game has been ordered replayed and the battle will be staged at the Town Park on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock. Port Hope Guide.

When it comes to swatting that old pill you have to take your hat off to the Lindsay team. In their league match at Cobourg Wednesday they hammered the ball to the four corners of the lot and gave the Cobourg fielders a busy afternoon. Every man in the line up could hit and this has been largely responsible for their successful showing in the league this year.

Tanlac Proved Blessing to Her

Toronto Woman Had Suffered For Eight Long Years But Is Now Well and Happy.

"I am now enjoying splendid health for the first time in years and I owe it all to Tanlac," said Mrs. A. Richmond, of 883 Gerrard street, East Toronto.

"For eight years before I got Tanlac I hardly knew what a well day meant. I never felt like eating, and always after meals gas formed on my stomach and nearly suffocated me. At times I suffered so from palpitation I thought my heart was affected. My nerves were so out of order that the ringing of the telephone would make me jump. I often lay awake nearly all night and would get up in the morning feeling so bad I just did not want to move. I tried everything I could think of in seeking health, but in spite of it all I kept getting worse, and I became very gloomy and low-spirited.

"Well, my mother persuaded me to try Tanlac and the medicine has certainly been a blessing to me. Why, I eat three big meals every day now and enjoy every mouthful and have gained considerably in weight. My sleep is sound and restful and I am so much stronger that I can keep busy all day and never feel tired. In fact I feel as well as I ever did in my life, and I just can't fully express my gratitude to Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville at Ostrom's Drug Store.

Ouletfle turned in a clever game striking out eleven men. He has a bunch of speed and his drop ball was a puzzler to all the batters.

Freddy Goyer, the mainstay of the Belleville team, has a great record in his three seasons in the Central League. In 1919 including the two play-off games, he won 9 and lost 3, last year his record was 8 wins and 2 losses, and this year his mark is 7 wins and 3 defeats a total for three seasons of 24 victories and 8 losses.

LAWN BOWLING
Tournament at Peterboro

Two rinks from the Belleville Lawn Bowling club are at Peterboro, taking part in a tournament being held there. Rev. A. S. Kerr and Mr. C. N. Sulman are skipping the rinks. In the first round yesterday both local rinks were successful, Rev. Mr. Kerr's rink winning by a score of 18 to 8 against Mr. Hopper's rink of Cobourg and Mr. Sulman's rink defeated Mr. Maynard's rink of Peterboro 11 to 7. In the second round Rev. Mr. Kerr's rink was victorious, whilst Mr. Sulman was beaten by one shot.

COST OF LIVING DROPS.

Figures Show Slight Improvement In Canada.

Statistics recently compiled by the Department of Labor at Ottawa showed that at the close of May last the cost of necessaries of life in Canada was considerably less than in the previous December, but was still 72 per cent. higher than in December, 1913.

Retail prices of food were 65 per cent. higher than in the last month of 1913, fuel (coal, wood and coal oil), 100 per cent. higher; rents, 40 per cent. higher; clothing, 92 per cent., and certain other items grouped under the head of sundries, 87½ per cent.

The statistics showed how prices which rose first under the impetus of war conditions continued to rise until 1920 and then, with the exception of fuel prices and rents, the price of shelter began to decline. Food prices rose steadily until July, 1920, when they had reached a point 130 per cent. higher than the levels of 1913. Then they began to subside until at the end of May, 1921, they were 65 per cent. higher than in 1913 and slightly less than in December, 1917.

Clothing, too, rose steadily in price until in July, 1920, it was 160 per cent. higher than in 1913. At the end of May last clothing prices were still 92 per cent. higher than at the close of 1913, although there had been spectacular drops in the prices of wool, raw cotton and hides.

Fuel in 1914 and in 1915 was cheaper than in 1913. After 1915, however, it rose rapidly. In 1916 fuel prices were 10 per cent. higher than in 1913; in 1917 they were 34 per cent. higher; in 1919, 66 per cent. higher; in July, 1920, 91 per cent. higher; in December, 1920, 118 per cent. higher; in May, 1921, they had declined, but were still double what they were in 1913.

Rents, too, dropped in 1914 and again in 1915, when they were 16 per cent. lower than in 1913. They then began to rise gradually, but although there has been a good deal of talk of rent profiteering, they were in December, 1920, only 39 per cent. higher than in 1913, and in May last 40 per cent. higher.

The fluctuation in the cost of living as a whole, compared with December, 1913, were as follows:

December, 1914, 2 per cent. higher.
December, 1915, 4 per cent. higher.
December, 1916, 19 per cent. higher.
December, 1917, 48 per cent. higher.
December, 1918, 61 per cent. higher.
December, 1919, 79 per cent. higher.
July, 1920, 101 per cent. higher.
December, 1920, 92 per cent. higher.
May, 1921, 72 per cent. higher.

A Man of Few Words.

W. A. Charlton, who was made a Canadian privy councillor a few days ago and is therefore entitled to be called "honorable", for the rest of his life, is the dean of the House of Commons. He was given this honor just after passing his eightieth birthday. He has been in politics for thirty-five years and is a real link with the past, having been a member of the Ross Cabinet of Ontario as commissioner of crown lands. His federal experience is short compared to that of some of his colleagues, for he only entered the Ottawa field in 1911, when he won the North Norfolk seat on the reciprocity ticket. It shows the changes the war made in politics when ten years later Mr. Charlton is being honored by a Conservative Premier. A man of few speeches, especially since becoming a follower of Union government, Mr. Charlton made one notable utterance when he made the closing speech in the naval debate of 1913. He attacked the subject of war and put forward the subject of peace, from a high Christian standpoint. As it happened, he turned out to be the "voice of one crying in the wilderness," but that did not detract from the calm, moral tone of his viewpoint in a debate that was filled with eagerness and bitter contention.

Mr. Charlton has succeeded the late Sir William Gage as head of the great work of fighting the ravages of tuberculosis.

Pay Less to League.

Canada's contribution to the budget of the League of Nations, which has been considered unduly large in relation to her national revenues, will be about forty per cent. less this year than last. According to a statement made by Sir Herbert Ames, financial director of the League, the committee which has been considering the revision of the basis of contributions by members has reached a conclusion whereby Canada, instead of being considered a first-class power, as a result of the universal postal union rating having been accepted originally by the League as a basis of contributions, will be ranked as a third-class power, and as such will pay only sixty per cent. of her former share. The League budget for 1922, however, totals over twenty-three million gold francs, which is ten per cent. more than for 1921.

One Look Enough.

The politician who was running for re-election called upon a Quaker family and asked the wife, who came to the door, to see her husband.

"Have a seat and my husband will see thee," the Quaker lady responded.

The politician waited for several minutes, but the husband did not show up.

"I thought you said your husband would see me?" he said.

"He has seen thee," responded the Quaker lady, "but he did not like thy looks so he went another way."

CENSUS RETURNS FAVORABLE

Sydney, N.S.W., July 15.—The census returns for the Commonwealth of Australia give a total population of 5,419,702, an increase of 964,697 since 1911.

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Narrow Escape

H.F.—I saw a young lady of this city emerge from the Post Office Thursday afternoon and start across the street. Stepping on something of a slippery nature, she fell and seeing a car coming along she used her grey matter and flattened herself out, the car passing over her without causing injury. She then got up and walked over to her own car none the worse for her escapade.

Regular Sports

R.L.—Going along by Lazier's Dam, or rather just above it, the other evening, I saw a great commotion in the water. I thought I'd investigate and here is what I saw—Several of our well-known and popular young ladies and gentlemen were working hard, it was a regular game of baseball played in the water. Talk about sport. It was great to watch and, judging from the shouts and puffs, etc., it is even better to be playing.

Good Work

M.E.—I see that long grass and hay, which is ripened now, grow in profusion between the sidewalk and road throughout our fair city. During the last week or so I've noticed two elderly men who go about the city with a scythe and cut this disfiguring growth to the ground. Needless to remark a great improvement is the result of this labor.

GREAT LAKES CRUISES

A voyage over Lake Huron and Superior, those great fresh water seas, makes one of the most popular vacation trips. The fleet of the Northern Navigation Company (Grand Trunk route) sailing from Sarnia to Sault Ste Marie, Port Arthur, Fort William and Duluth, offers the maximum in comfort, service and safety. From Toronto special Grand Trunk steamboat trains make direct rail connection with the vessels from Sarnia, Ont. The round trip over the Great Lakes occupies six days, the traveller finds each hour filled with ever changing interests. There is the charm of the daily life on shipboard, the thrilling experience of passing through the locks at Sault Ste. Marie, the day ashore at Canada's twin Cities, Fort William and Port Arthur, and the visit to Duluth, the city built upon the mountain side. For all information apply to Grand Trunk Agents or C. E. Japan Makes Reservations

Tokio, July 15.—Japan's answer to President Harding's proposal for a conference on the limitation of armaments which has been forwarded to Washington, while accepting the suggestion for an armament conference, says the Jiji Shimpo to-day, makes reservations concerning the general Far Eastern concerns until more has been learned as to the scope and nature of the questions to be considered.

Grain Commission Ordered to Appeal

SPECIAL SESSION OF SUPREME COURT MAY BE CALLED.

Winnipeg, Juy 13.—Hon. J. D. Hyndman, Chairman of the Royal Grain Inquiry Commission, stated today that orders had been recived from Ottawa by counsel for the commission to appeal the decision of Mr. Justice Curran, making the injunction against the commission permanent. The appeal will not interfere with the decision of the board not to disband until legal procedure has been concluded he added.

At the present time it is uncertain just when the case will be brought before the Manitoba Court of Appeal, but it was unofficially stated that, although the court is now on vacation until September, a special session would be called to dispose of the case.

The decision to appeal came as a distinct surprise to the grain dealers' counsel, who, however, declared they are prepared to fight the case to a finish.

NO INDUCEMENT

Edmonton, July 13.—Reduced freight rates on coal have not stimulated the shipment of Alberta coal during the slack mid-season months, proving no inducement to Mr. Householder to get his winter supply in early, the reduction being received with no more enthusiasm than a man would receive a gift of a straw hat in winter time.

It is apparent, freight officials state, that people will not store their winter's supply of coal in the summer months. Attractive prices seem to offer little incentive, people everywhere being to the opinion that money in hand at this time is worth more than coal in the basement. Shipment of coal at the present time, they point out, would not only keep the mines mines working toward the limit of their capacity, but would also assist the railways and relieve much of the congestion that is bound to be the outcome of this lack of coal buying.

CONSTANTINOPLE BECOMING A BRITISH CITY.

Constantinople, we are told by an American Government official, who writes in the New York Times, is becoming British, and we infer that once it becomes a British city it will remain so. Before the war the city was rather French, and that language was spoken generally by even the uneducated classes. France controlled 60 per cent. of Turkey's public debt, and 53 per cent. of the foreign capital invested in private enterprises, and also had control of the Ottoman Imperial bank, which held a monopoly of the note-issuing privilege. Comparative figures as to the extent to which British capital has replaced the French are not available, but it is plain to the man in the street that Britain is the real foreign power in Constantinople today. The small shopkeepers, we are told, have seen which way the wind is blowing and are learning the English language. The same accomplishment should prove useful to all classes, for the police are British and give their orders in the English language.

Theoretically, control of Constantinople is inter-allied, but the French have neither the men nor the money to compete with England. The Turkish Government is in sad need of funds, because owing to the situation in Asia Minor and the occupation by the Allies of other large portions of Turkish territory, the national treasury is almost solely dependent upon the custom receipts of Constantinople. Last September the Government officially announced that it was unable to pay its troops or functionaries, and the official says, "The English have taken hold of the job with their usual thoroughness and have settled down to be comfortable, just as they did when the war stabilized on the Western front. The best houses in Constantinople have been commandeered for officers' headquarters. Five o'clock tea is all the rage on the Grand Rue, and tea and whisky and soda are replacing Turkish coffee and douzico. British military police with shining brass buttons and conspicuous arm bands direct traffic at the busy corners, and if a Russian jazz palace remains open after midnight it is a British policeman who closes it up and levies the penalty.

The day of the Turk is over, he says. Signs of final decay are on every hand. Most of the costly royal palaces and great private houses are empty and dilapidated, and the beautiful gardens and grounds are no more. Turkish life and manners have undergone a metamorphosis, partly as a result of the war, though the tendency was apparent before. The harem has vanished. Rarely does a Turk sport more than one wife, except in some instances in Asia Minor, though there is no law to prevent it. The Turkish woman is emerging. The poverty created by the war made it necessary for thousands of Turkish women to seek their own living, and they are now to be found working in banks and stores. More than half of them appear in public with their veils thrown back, though the women cling to their old religious customs, which impose many restrictions on women in public.

In their own homes Turkish women receive Christian men and talk and dine with them. On the street, however, they would not be seen with any man but a Moslem. The Turkish women who are educated are usually highly cultivated, and form charming companions for the British and other allied officers and officials. Their own men folk appear not to value them for their intellectual gifts, and look to members of their own sex to give them this kind of companionship. They continue to treat their women like toys. The Turk at heart is one of the most conservative of human beings, and whatever degree of latitude he may allow his women, or whatever new freedom they may seize, it will be a long time before the Turk regards his wife as is the custom in more civilized countries. Whether the women are satisfied with the relationship is not known, but they are probably compensated by the great improvement in their lot in the past.

Business in Turkey goes on in the old way. Nobody believes what anybody says about anything when it is a matter of sale. On the contrary, he assumes that the other party to the transaction is just as great a liar as he is himself, and almost invariably he is right. No business can be speedily transacted. Every sale is a matter of long haggling, even though the object is as trifling as a tin of sardines. One change noticeable in the streets is the appearance of the motor car. Before the war delivery of articles by vehicles was prohibited and all the cartage was done on the backs of a class of men known as hamals. These men formed a powerful union and their influence contributed to Constantinople's backwardness. Their strength must be prodigious, for two of them will carry a piano any distance and think little of it. Business is further hampered by the fact that the peace treaty has not yet been ratified. Britain seems content to let matters take their course, for experience has taught her that such a course in the end is likely to be favorable to her.

THE GREAT STABILIZER

Washington Post

The good effects which will accrue from a protective tariff under existing world conditions can not be overestimated. Idle capital and labor create a situation which is not pleasant to contemplate and relief from which is highly desirable. It would be folly to entertain the thought that a protective tariff would of itself readjust the world and right the topsy-turvy conditions that have followed in the wake of the war, but that it will assist in doing so can not be doubted.

THE STATE CONTROL OF INDUSTRY

Westminster Gazette

The story of sugar is the story of the sheer impossibility of a Government conducting a big commercial business. The Government went out like a lamb to the shearers, and was shorn accordingly. There is a loss of twenty-four and a half millions sterling upon Government purchases of sugar. The system is to blame, not the individual. Where there is mass buying with only one purchaser in the market, there is no means of ascertaining what is the proper price. That becomes a matter of bargain on which the buyers for the Government are certain to be beaten by the men who have spent their lives in the business.

SLIPPING BACK INTO THE OLD WAYS

New Orleans Times Picayune

Three years ago public opinion here and abroad demanded a world organization for preservation of peace. That opinion reached high tide at the Paris conference and produced a League of Nations—which America, with all her love of peace and peace societies, thus far refuses to join even on her own terms. So far as America is concerned, therefore, we seem to be returning—or rather slipping back—to the old conditions, whereunder there is much talk of peace and great activity of peace societies—but nothing accomplished toward permanent peace that deserves the name of action.

The Poets' Corner

DANDELION DAYS

These are the days when, host on host,
The simple flowers May loves the most,
And man esteems the least, invade
Meadow and wayside, field an glade.

A starry drift amid the grass,
Whose witching glow we lightly pass;
A golden coinage that we shun,
Fresh from the full mint of the sun.

I think, of all flowers bright and gay,
With which spring fills the lap of May,
She surely loves these wildings best,
By the warm way they crowd her breast.

Now brighter gleams the grass, and now
The leaves wax fuller on the bough,
And not a lyric voice is dumb
In field or wood, since they have come.

O flaunt your wild gold, and possess
The earth with your brief loveliness,
For soon your blooms shall wane and glide
Like ghosts upon the vernal tide.

A Slight Difference

Little Robert lived in the country and had never seen a sailor.

The Planer

The song of the saw in the old saw mill
Was a song I loved to hear
As it warbled away with a merry lay
In the days remembered dear.
But when the planer began its tune
Oh, the song was a wonder then,
With its high and low, its allegro—
I can hear its hum again.
I can hear it screeching through knot and blaze
In the planing mill of the old, old days.

Sometimes a dreary and sleepy song
And sometimes a lively tune;
It sang me away to the fairy throng
On the banks of a memoried June.
The boards went in and the boards came out
All smooth and shiny and true—
And the blossoms of life were all about
And the skies were very blue!
My heart was glad and it was today when I passed along the street
And heard the song of a planing mill buzzing, buzzing sweet.

THE YPRES SALIENT.

Blood-stained Ground Will Become Consecrated Spot.

The Ypres Salient, the "Bloody Angle" of the war, where 200,000 brave men fell and lie, will always be consecrated ground for British peoples. The Ypres League which has been founded, with headquarters in Henrietta street, London, under the patronage of the King, is designed to embrace in a brotherhood all who served in the historic spot. In the city of Ypres itself will be kept a register of the dead, and plans are in progress to mark the sites of the great battles, to guide pilgrims to the most memorable fighting places, and to put up some visible memorial on behalf of the League. "There may be a belfry," writes Sir Philip Gibbs, "whose chimes sounding across the Menin road, below Passchendaele, beyond Hooge, will be a spiritual call to the hearts of those who know what happened there." The League certificate of membership will be given to the families of those who fell in the salient, and will be a memorial of honor. Sir Philip Gibbs writes:

"There were other British battlefields where the test came. The fields of the Somme were the fighting grounds and the graveyards of thousands of gallant men. From St. Quentin to La Basse, across the Vimy Ridge, out beyond Arras, there is not a yard of earth that does not belong to the history of British valor, suffering and sacrifice. Each hummock of ground was a landmark in this frightful epic of human strife. But the Ypres Salient is especially the greatest battleground of the British race. All our divisions passed through the furnace there at one time or other. Not one of them escaped that ordeal, and, by general consent, it was the worst place of all."

The Canadian army had its share in the "valor, suffering and sacrifice" almost from the beginning, when it barred the way to Calais and withstood the first attack in which the enemy used the barbarous weapon of gas. Many gallant Canadians are buried there, and those who survive have imperishable memories.

Mixed Marriages.

Who are the parties to mixed marriages? What denominations are most largely represented?

In the last report of the registrar-general for Ontario, it is recorded that:

Of 4,626 Roman Catholic men who contracted marriages in the year, 640 or 13.8 per cent. married outside the Roman Catholic faith.

And of 4,587 Roman Catholic women, 601 or 13.1 per cent., married outside their faith.

The percentage is strikingly close.

Of the 640 Roman Catholic men—

271 or 42½ per cent. married Anglican women.

136 or 21 per cent., married Presbyterian women.

154 or 24 per cent., married Methodist women.

43 or 6½ per cent., married Baptist women.

43 or 6 per cent., married other denominations, including a Jewess.

Of the 601 Roman Catholic women who contracted mixed marriages—

238 or 39½ per cent., married Anglican men.

162 or 27 per cent., married Presbyterian men.

127 or 21 per cent., married Methodist men.

22 or 3½ per cent., married Baptist men.

52 or 9 per cent., married other denominations, including eight men of the Hebrew faith.

But 3,986 marriages between Roman Catholics were contracted in the year.

The total of 13½ per cent. of Roman Catholics married outside their faith. This is a decrease since 1910, when 20½ per cent. contracted mixed marriages.

Measuring Stars.

One of the most remarkable feats of astronomy has just been accomplished by Prof. A. A. Michaelson. By means of an instrument of his own invention, named the interferometer, he has measured a star.

It is now known for the first time that Betelgeuse, a star which is visible to the naked eye throughout most of the winter, has a diameter of no less than 260,000,000 miles.

Compared with Betelgeuse, this earth is a mere billiard ball, for the former's bulk is many million times the larger. The sun, if it were a hollow sphere, would hold a million globes as large as the earth, and yet the volume of the sun is twenty-seven times less than that of Betelgeuse.

It is believed by scientists that as the sun, many millions of years ago, filled the entire solar system, there is a possibility that stars even larger than Betelgeuse may exist. The great astronomer, Russell, once stated that in his opinion there were two great classes of stars—those which were in an early stage of development, and those which have shrunk to the size represented by the sun.

Prof. Michaelson's measurements were made with the aid of the 100-inch Hooker telescope, the largest in the world, at the Mount Wilson Observatory, California. Without going into technical details, it may be stated that the professor's method is based on the phenomenon known as the interference of light.

COURT UPHELD CAT

Boston, July 13.—The Supreme Court has upheld the right of a cat to use its claws and teeth as a means of protection against persons who seek to interfere in a cat and dog fight. Prudence, the court held, in a recent case should prompt a person to leave a strange cat alone under such circumstances. The opinion, prepared by Chief Justice Rugg, sustained a lower court finding for the defendant in a suit brought by a woman to recover damages for injuries received when she sought to protect her pet dog from a cat.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE LIFE

A Dangerous Period Through Which Every Woman Must Pass

Practical Suggestions Given by the Women Whose Letters Follow

Afton, Tenn.—"I want other suffering women to know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. During the Change of Life I was in bed for eight months and had two good doctors treating me but they did me no good. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and in a short time I felt better. I had all kinds of bad spells, but they all left me. Now when I feel weak and nervous I take the Vegetable Compound and it always does me good. I wish all women would try it during the Change of Life for I know it will do them good. If you think it will induce some one to try the Vegetable Compound you may publish this letter."—Mrs. A. Keller, Afton, Tenn.

Mrs. Mary Lister of Adrian, Mich., adds her testimony to the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to carry women safely through the Change of Life. She says:

"It is with pleasure that I write to you thanking you for what your wonderful medicine has done for me. I was passing through the Change of Life and had a displacement and weakness so that I could not stand on my feet and other annoying symptoms. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the first bottle helped me, so I got more, and I am now doing my housework. Your medicine is certainly woman's friend and you may use this testimonial as you choose." Mrs. Mary Lister, 608 Frank Street, Adrian, Mich.

It is said that middle age is the most trying period in a woman's life, and owing to modern methods of living not one woman in a thousand passes through this perfectly natural change without experiencing very annoying symptoms.

Those smothering spells, the dreadful hot flashes that send the blood rushing to the head until it seems as though it would burst, and the faint feeling that follows, as if the heart were going to stop, those sinking or dizzy spells are all symptoms of a nervous condition, and indicate the need for a special medicine.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a root and herb medicine especially adapted to act upon the feminine system. It acts in such a manner as to build up the weakened nervous system and enables a woman to pass this trying period with the least possible annoying symptoms.

Women everywhere should remember that most of the commoner ailments of women are not the surgical ones—they are not caused by serious displacements or growths, although the symptoms may be the same, and that is why so many apparently serious ailments readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it acts as a natural restorative and often prevents serious troubles.

HEROES WHO DIED.

Men Won the V. C. But Did Not Live to Wear It.

A number of those brave Canadians who were honored in death by the posthumous award of the Victoria Cross.

David Richardson, chief of police of Chilliwack, B.C., is the father of a heroic son, Pte. James Richardson, of the 16th Battalion, who piped his battalion "over the top" and so inspired the men that they tore through the barb wire entanglements that blocked them from their objective. After some bombing, Piper Richardson went back to recover his pipes, though warned not to do so. He has never been seen since.

Pte. John B. Croak, of Glace Bay, Nova Scotia, met his death after leading his platoon in a brilliant charge which captured three machine guns and their crews.

Corpl. Harry G. Miner, of Ridgetown, Ont., rushed a Hun machine gun post, killed the whole crew and then turned the gun on the foe. He fell while cleaning out an enemy bombing post.

Lieut. James E. Tait, of Winnipeg, took a rifle and dashed ahead of his company to silence a concealed machine gun. His company then captured twelve machine guns and twenty Germans. He directed his men until he died.

One of the most heroic exploits was that of Corpl. Joseph Kaeble, the only unwounded man in his section when 50 Huns came charging to the Canadian trench. Kaeble jumped over the parapet and holding his Lewis gun at the hip, emptied one magazine after another into the advancing enemy, and although wounded several times by fragments of shells and bombs, he continued to fire and entirely blocked the enemy by his determined stand. Finally, firing all the time, he fell backwards into the trench mortally wounded. While lying on his back in the trench, he fired his last cartridges over the parapet at the retreating Germans, and before losing consciousness, shouted to the wounded about him "Keep it up, boys, do not let them through. We must stop them."

Pte. Jas. P. Robertson, of Medicine Hat, rushed a foe machine gun, killed four of the crew, turned the gun on the rest of the fleeing gunners, kept down the fire of the Hun snipers, and in rescuing the second of two wounded men he was himself killed.

Lieut. R. G. Combe, of Winnipeg, was killed by a Hun sniper after he had led his company in repeated charges and taken 80 prisoners.

Pte. John G. Pattison, of Calgary, bombed an enemy gun post, finally overcoming and bayonetting the gunners.

Sergt. Ellis W. Sifton, of Wallacetown, Ont., alone charged a machine gun nest, killed all the crew and held the post until his own men could advance, but he was killed as they moved up.

Lieut. Samuel L. Honey, son of a Methodist minister, in St. Catharines, single handed cleaned out a machine gun nest which enfiladed his men, taking the gun and ten prisoners.

Pte. Claude J. Nunney, of the 38th Battalion, went from post to post through a heavy enemy barrage and by his cool courage greatly inspired the men of his company. The enemy were repulsed and a critical situation saved. He died of wounds.

Lieut. F. W. Campbell, of Mount Forest, though almost the whole of his detachment had been wiped out, took two machine guns over the parapet, arrived with one gun at the Hun line, held his position there though exposed to very heavy fire, and halted the foe advance.

Sergt. Hugh Cairns, of North Saskatoon, took a Lewis gun and facing the Hun fire rushed a machine gun post, killed the crew of five and captured the gun. Later he led a party that captured 50 of the foe, and again with a battle patrol he came on a party of 60 and forced them to surrender. Finally he was rushed by the Huns and killed.

The Totem Pole.

While the totem poles, which are still to be found in the villages of Indians in many parts of North America, appear to be a form of idol, they are really nothing more than a sign-post, or indication of the name of the families residing there—for the carvings with which they are decorated indicate crudely but effectively the titles by which these families are known.

Just as the inhabitants of Europe overcame the handicap of a growing population by adopting names which signified their occupation or place of residence, the North American Indians took the names of the different animals which they hunted or some other outstanding characteristic of their life. One family, for example, would be known as the "Bears" and then, for the further purpose of differentiation, the individuals would be called "Black Bear," "Growling Bear, "Angry Bear" and the like. The name of the animal itself would be the title of the tribe and the different species would indicate the separate members, carvings on the "totems"—or "family tokens"—showing at a glance which of these resided within a village, though usually only the chiefs attained this honor.

Biggs To Reply To Middlesex Road Criticism

London, Ont., July 15.—It is announced that Hon. F. C. Biggs, Minister of Highways, will address a meeting of farmers' clubs at Ailsa Craig Town Hall on July 21. Some time ago certain of the clubs passed resolutions declaring that unless there is a change in the Department of Highways it will be impossible to elect a Farmer in North Middlesex at the next election.

It appears that many of the farmers especially those of Napperton, are displeased with Mr. Biggs because of the route selected for the Provincial highway between Stratford and Sarnia, and also because of what is termed a waste of money in the dynamiting of culverts along the road which are declared to be practically new. Mr. Biggs now proposes to carry the war to the disgruntled ones, and to this end he has agreed to speak in Ailsa Craig on Wednesday next.

Rev. Mr. Reid to Reply

Rev. L. W. Reid, pastor of Hale Street Methodist Church, to whom Bishop Fallon recently addressed a letter in the Press, in which the minister was referred to as a public liar because he stated to a meeting of Orangemen that the Catholic Church on the Essex border is aiding bootleggers, announced today that "so much evidence is being handed in that I will probably have to make a statement to the Press within a few days." The congregation of Hale street church have passed a resolution declaring the fullest confidence in the pastor.

Resigns From Cabinet

London, July 15.—Dr. Christopher Addison has announced his resignation from the Cabinet because of the government's decision to curtail the housing scheme which he had sponsored, providing for a widespread house-building program with government subsidy. Dr. Addison who held the post of Minister without Portfolio, charged the government with a breach of faith in precipitate abandonement of the plans which he regarded as essential to national restoration.

"PALACE OF DARKENED WINDOWS" IS REPLETE WITH TENSE SITUATIONS

It would inded be a most captious critic who could not find something to praise in the Select Pictures Corporation picture "The Palace of Darkened Windows" which opened a three days engagement at Griffin's last evening. The bizarre Oriental settings, surprisingly massive and realistic, are alone a feast for the eye.

The strange wonder workings of a troupe of Hindoo Fakirs are a show in themselves and the plot of the picture is one that is literally crammed with excitement, mystery and adventure. Beautiful interiors with the typical lavish splendor of the orient form a background for a major part of the action and the scenes representing the zenana or harem of an Indian prince are very interesting.

Claire Anderson is seen as an American girl who assents to visit, unaccompanied, the Palace of a Rajah. Once in, she finds she cannot get out. Then follow a succession of events that will make the average person grip the edge of their seat until the suspense is over. Henry Kolker directed the picture and a star cast of well known players, including Arthur Edmund Carew and Jay Belasco, who are to be seen as the principal characters of Mary Hastings Bradley's story.

"Neighbors" a highly amusing 2-reel comedy featuring Buster Keaton 'The Trail's End' a 2-reel Western drama, Fox News Weekly, and Pathe Review preceded the feature offering.

OTTAWA BUSINESS MAN DISAREARS

Ottawa, July 14.—Simcoe James Montgomery, aged 52, one of Ottawa's best known business men, has disappeared, and the members of his family and friends believe that he was accidentally drowned in Governor's Bay, near Rockcliffe, some time yesterday.

This morning his clothes, neatly folded, were found on the rocks at the edge of Governor's Bay by George Letang, of Gatineau Point. The police have been at work with grappling irons dragging the river to try and locate the body.

Mr. Montgomery was last seen by the members of his family shortly after nine o'clock yesterday morning when he left his residence to go to his office in the Great West life insurance company, where he was last seen later in the morning. No intimation was given by Montgomery that he intended to go swimming in the vicinity of Governor's Bay. The water opposite the rocks inGovernor's Bay is from forty to sixty feet deep close to the shore.

Montgomery's affairs generally are said to be in very good shape and he was in his usual good spirits when he left his home yesterday morning.

For the last three years he has been the special representative of the Great West life insurance company.

MARRIAGE DIFFICULT

It is no easy matter to arrange a marriage by a prisoner in a Bolshevik prison camp. Month after month the Soviet authorities refused to give consent. When it was obtained the ceremony was first performed by a Soviet commissar and afterward a religious marriage was performed in a Greek orthodox church in Moscow. Although the Count had many friends among the prisoner none was allowed to attend the wedding.

Instead of a friend as best man there was a Bolshevik soldier guard The Count, with four armed soldiers at his side, marched through the walled prison gate to the commissar's office where he met his bride attended by several girl friends. The Count wore the same prison garb which he had worn for months.

Immediately after the church service the Count was marched back into prison, his bride accompanying him to the prison gates. The next morning the bride was permitted to visit her husband and, with the Count's prison friends, sat down to a wedding breakfast-a wedding breakfast of black bread and imitation coffee and hot water.

Twenty Hungarian officers, including Count Syechnenyi, are being held by the Bolsheviki as hostages to secure the safety of ten Soviet commissars imprisoned by the Hungarian authorities. The Hungarians were sent to Siberia in 1915 and were on their way out when rearrested by the Bolshevik.

FEEDING AN EMPRESS OF THE SEA

THE EMPRESS OF FRANCE,

When a great liner like the Empress of France comes to port few realize the immensity of her requirements.

Many have seen the activity which goes on just after a vessel has docked and passengers commence disembarking with their baggage. Subsequently large gangs commence discharging the ship's cargo, which is despatched by rail to various destinations, after which the outgoing freight is properly placed in the various holds.

There is considerable activity going on behind the scenes, so to speak, which is not apparent to the casual observer, viz., the preparation of lists of supplies for the homeward voyage by the heads of various departments on board.

First of all, about 4,500 tons of coal are needed, in addition to large quantities of lubricating oils, etc., together with various miscellaneous supplies which come under the head of Deck and Engine Room Stores.

If the average layman were asked whether this vessel or the Chateau Frontenac at Quebec could house the most people, his reply would naturally be in favor of the hotel, but this would not be correct, as the Empress of France can accommodate relatively speaking, about four times as many people as the Chateau.

Owing to the limited time the ship remains in Quebec port it is necessary to make exact calculations as to the time for delivery of her food supplies, so as not to conflict with either coaling or cargo operations.

It takes a large gang of men a whole day in order to handle and stow these supplies.

The ship is equipped with an up-to-date cold storage plant of enormous capacity, where meats, fish, poultry, fruits and vegetables are kept in perfect condition in the required temperatures. Apart from the refrigerator rooms there are large spaces where the cold storage system is unnecessary, but where forced draft ventilation is arranged.

Use Tons of Food.

The meats are first put on board, and when the ship has a full passenger list she takes about 20,000 lbs. of beef, 9,000 lbs. of mutton, 6,000 lbs. of pork, 1,500 lbs. of veal, 1,000 lbs. of lamb, 4½ tons of ham and bacon, two tons of sausages, liver, etc., in addition to sundry other items too numerous to mention, making a grand total of over 25 tons.

The above meats, as well as all other supplies, are specially selected and are the choicest procurable in Canada.

Next comes the fish, as follows: 2,000 lbs. fresh cod, 1,500 lbs. fresh haddock, 200 lbs. dore, 400 lbs. of finnan haddie, 500 lbs. flounders, 1,000 lbs. halibut, 500 lbs. herring, 400 lbs. mackerel, 600 lbs. salmon, 400 lbs. lake trout, 200 lbs. live lobsters. 300 lbs. smelts, 250 lbs. weak fish, 300 lbs. white fish; besides the above a number of other kinds are secured when in season, such as black and striped bass, blue fish, brook trout, and shad; in fact, approximately 10,000 lbs. of fish are required at Quebec, comprising over twenty varieties.

Poultry follows, and generally consists of over 1,000 lbs. milk-fed chickens, 500 lbs. broilers, 1,500 lbs. capons, 1,500 lbs. fowl, 1,000 lbs. geese, 1,000 lbs. turkey, as well as smaller quantities of ducklings, goslings and different kinds of game.

Under the head of dairy produce, 3,000 lbs. of butter are required, 1,000 lbs. of cheese and over 30,000 eggs.

About 15 tons of vegetables are needed, which include 28,000 lbs. of potatoes, 4,000 lbs. of turnips, 2,500 lbs. of carrots, 1,500 lbs. of cabbage, 1,200 lbs. of onions, 1,000 lbs. of beets.

The principal fruits are as follows: 30,000 oranges, 20,000 apples, 3,000 grape fruit, 6,000 lemons, 1,000 lbs. of bananas, besides the smaller kinds of fresh fruit in season.

The grocery list is enormous, and could not be itemized here. Dried fruits run into several thousand pounds, biscuits 1,000 lbs., 13 tons flour, 4 tons sugar, 1 ton oatmeal, 1 ton peas, 500 gallons milk, 500 gallons evaporated milk, 500 pints ice cream and a large quantity of cream.

About 1,500 people took in the celebration. From early morning conveyances of every description carried visitors to the grounds. The train from the north was heavily laden, three coaches packed to the doors. The dining halls and refreshment booths were well patronized. The demand for ice cream and lemonade exceeded the supply. Many speakers were present, including T. H. Thompson, M.P.; W. C. Mikel, K.C.; E. B. Fraeleck and members of the local clergy. All the speakers gave interesting addresses on live topics of the day.

All the outbuildings, with the exception of one machine shed, were destroyed.

HEAT WAVE BROKEN

Temporarily at least, the heat wave is broken. When the rain which came last evening and swept over the city, there was a decided change for the better in the atmosphere. One of the cheering things in connection with the breaking up of the wave, and the coming of the storms of yesterday is the announcement that the rain was general over the most of the province, and that accordingly much has been done in the way of saving the famishing crops and building a little extra body into the products of the orchards. During last night the thermometer dropped to 66 being the coolest evening for three weeks.

Freedom of London to Premier Meighen

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

London, July 15.—(By Gratton O'Leary, Staff Correspondent of Canadian Press)—With all the pomp and circumstance with which tradition surrounds the ceremony, the Freedom of the City of London was presented to Premier Arthur Meighen to-day. At Twelve o'clock in the historic guildhall, Lord Mayor and Sheriffs, resplendent in quaint, almost medieaval uniforms, received the guests, after which a special meeting of the corporation was constituted.

Police Conrt News

Frank O'Brien, Vancouver; Edward Rogers, Bracebridge, and Philip Knight, of Toronto, three tough-looking customers, were taken care of by the police on Thursday afternoon. There were four men at Victoria Park begging money from those taking refuge there from the heat, and as one citizen didn't like the look of them he notified a city official, who in turn notified the police. The "cops" journeyed to the spot and captured the above three, the other fellow getting away.

A horse, which was stricken with old age and other diseases, and the property of a well known citizen, was relieved of its sufferings by a bullet near Lott's Dam on Thursday morning.

Grim Tragedy Enacted at Oshawa

Oshawa, July 14.—Sitting alongside of the roadway, with his home a mass of flames, George Norcliff, a former employee of Fittings, Limited, was found this afternoon by three neighbors, with a cup containing some Paris Green of which he had partaken some. He was rushed to the general hospital. The home was entirely destroyed, while at a late hour this afternoon, no word was could be given as to whether Norcliff could recover. The hospital authorities reported that Dr. Donevan was busily at work on the victim with the stomach pump, in an effort to get rid of the poison.

The first discovery of the grim affair was the house ablaze and the fire department was summoned. The firemen made no effort, however, as the house is beyond the town limits and the flames could not be checked at all. The story of the fire was told by Norcliff, who did not appear to be ill from the Paris Green he had taken, but who admitted setting fire to his home

It was not thought at a late hour this afternoon that Norcliff would recover from the effects of the Paris Green he had taken, although strenuous work was done by Dr. Donevan and others to save the unfortunate man's life.

Chief of Police Friend, who was on the scene of the tragedy early, recovered a note left by Norcliffe to his wife. The note complained that everything had been done to put him out and now they could do what they liked. The writer said he was of sound mind at the time, and asked his wife not to put the children in a home but to take care of them. "Poison and fire will do the work," said the writer, enough to indicate that he must have been of temporarily deranged mind.

(Copyright, 1903)

"That must be it," George replied, and he closed the conversation by going to work.

By nightfall his task was finished, and he could have caught a train for Darley, but he felt a strange, half morbid disinclination to leave. He repaired to his hotel, changed his clothing and went down to the crowded dining room, but the very gayety on every hand irritated him. He had no appetite for what was before him. All around him, at private tables, were gay parties of young people in evening dress. The music of a fine orchestra came in from the rotunda. The air was filled with the perfume of flowers. Never had the burden of his birth felt so heavy, never had he so keenly longed for the unattainable. He was in the lowest dregs of despair; he had begun to pity himself. Everybody else was having a holiday; no holiday could come to him while his own father was bearing the scourge of the law, while the only things he craved were eluding his grasp.

A little warmth came to his cold heart over the thought that Lydia Cranston cared for him, but it was swept away by the icy fear that, despite her regard for him, she was even then striving philosophically to put him out of her life. That striving had begun with the acceptance of the reception in her honor. The next step would be the formal announcement of her engagement to the governor, and then she would begin to look upon Telfare as her future husband. George stifled a groan and rose and left the room. The thought was like the pangs of death. He went out into the streets and walked on and on, going he cared not whither, trying to kill the despair within him. Dark thoughts pursued him, but he threw them aside. He was a soldier fighting black adversity, and he would fight—fight to the end. He had been walking half an hour when he came to the spacious grounds of the Dunleigh home. A carriage stood at the door. It was waiting for her—her! In a short while she would emerge dressed for the reception. Could he not wait there on the street and see her? No, for it was a closed carriage, and she would be shut off from his view. But could he not, without being seen, get nearer the door through which she would have to pass? The grounds were unlighted, and there were many clusters and hedges of shrubbery. The gate of the drive was open. He stole in and found a rustic seat behind a hedge of rosebushes, where he could remain unseen. He had not long to wait. Mrs. Dunleigh and Mrs. Cranston came out and then Miss Cosby and Lydia. The two girls paused for a moment under the great swinging lamp that hung from the ceiling of the veranda. Buckley held his breath as he looked upon her. He had never seen her in complete evening dress before, and her rare beauty was a revelation to him. She seemed to be at once the girl he knew and adored and yet another who was quite a stranger to him.

The coachman was holding the carriage door open for her, and she swept down the steps and the door closed upon her. The hoofs of the mettlesome horses ground into the pebbled drive as they whirled her away. Gone from his sight into that of his despised rival! Buckley sank back on to the bench and clasped his cold hands. He remained there an hour and then slowly retraced his steps down the beautiful street. Soon the illumination at the executive mansion rose before him. The hum of many voices fell on his ear, blended with martial music. The trees on the lawn were hung with Chinese lanterns; from a balcony overhead attendants were setting off costly fireworks. On the very sky Telfare seemed to be recording his triumph over his conquered foe. George walked on past the mansion into the reveling mass of humanity that swarmed about the principal hotels.

CHAPTER XXVII.

BUCKLEY hardly knew where he went, but soon found himself again near the executive mansion. The merriment was at its height. Afraid of meeting some one who would recognize him, he walked on rapidly. He wanted to be in motion. It was the only thing that seemed to deaden the agony in his breast. One moment he would clinch his hands and stifle a groan of pain as he thought of Lydia's social triumph and her nearness to the man he despised and yet dreaded, and he would pause and look up at the sky as if trying to read there a reason for his misery. He was again passing the Dunleigh house and was about to retrace his steps to his hotel when he heard the sound of an approaching carriage. He believed it to be the Dunleighs' and darted into the grounds and back to his former hiding place. He was right.

The approaching vehicle turned in at the gate and was rapidly curving toward the veranda when George noticed that one of the rear wheels was coming off. His heart was in his mouth. He wanted to give the driver warning, but it was too late. The wheel was off. The carriage lurched to one side. There was a chorus of muffled screams from within, and, to make matters worse, the horses took fright and began to rear and plunge. With no thought as to the incongruity of his presence there at such a moment Buckley darted from his place of concealment and ran to the aid of the ladies, who were loudly calling for help and trying to break the heavy plate glass windows. Buckley followed the jolting carriage along the drive and finally succeeded in jerking the door open just as the coachman drew his horses to a stand in the light at the steps. George helped the ladies out.

"Why, it's Mr. Buckley!" exclaimed Mrs. Cranston, in grateful astonishment. It was a most awkward moment. Buckley could only bow, his hat in hand and pale to the lips. Miss Cosby gave him a knowing look as she extended her gloved hand.

"It was good of you," she said.

Mrs. Dunleigh seemed so much excited over what had happened that she took no notice of Buckley nor seemed to remark on the oddity of his sudden appearance at such an opportune moment. The coachman unhitched the horses from the carriage and led them away, leaving George in the center of the cluster of ladies. Kitty Cosby introduced him to Mrs. Dunleigh, but that lady simply bowed and continued her nervous exclamations of horror at the catastrophe. "I thought we were being hurled into eternity"—

"In our reception gowns," laughed Kitty, who was calmness itself. "Pshaw! Mrs. Dunleigh, I knew the old thing would simply drag and bump along till Harrison stopped the horses, but I do believe you and Mrs. Cranston would have crushed the life out of Lydia and myself."

"Well, I'm glad it was no worse," declared Mrs. Dunleigh. "Come on in. You'll all catch your deaths out here in those thin dresses."

Lydia and George ascended the steps last, and she paused with him a moment alone on the veranda. She had not spoken.

"I have simply no explanation to make," he said, eying her contritely.

"Explanation?" she said. "Why should there be one?"

"As soon as their excitement is over," he reminded her, "they will wonder how I happened to be up here in the grounds at this time of night."

"Oh!" She raised her eyes to his in a startled expression.

"But you may know," he went on—"you may know that it was simply because I was dying to catch a glimpse of you. I was half crazed with desperation over it all—all this affair in your honor given by that man—the rumor over the whole state that you are to become his wife. I did not come to Atlanta for this. I came on business. I finished my work at sundown and ought to have gone back home, but my misery chained me here. I won't keep back anything. I passed here earlier in the evening and noticed the carriage waiting for you. I saw that I could hide behind that hedge and see you come out. I did it and drank in your beauty and my deeper despair. Then I came back a few minutes ago and hid again to see you once more. Somehow I felt that my agony would be less keen if I could merely see you last—do you understand?—see you after he had told you good night back there in all his glory. I saw the wheel coming off. I knew what was going to happen. I could have remained hidden and allowed the coachman to let you out and thus have escaped this humiliation in the eyes of your friends. But what does it matter? They know who I am. They know why I had to act like a thief to steal a glimse of the woman who has enslaved me—why I had to do that, when she is the favored guest of the governor of the state and his promised"—

George helped the ladies out.

"Stop!" Lydia cried. "Don't, don't! I can't bear any more. I—I am only a woman, George. I'm only a girl who is being pulled and dragged by others. Father begged me to permit this entertainment, to accept Mrs. Dunleigh's invitation. I refused at first, George; on my honor I did, but father is in a critical condition. The doctor told me not to worry him in the slightest, and he had set his heart on this affair tonight. The poor man loves such things with all his soul, and he thinks Governor Telfare a great man. He actually broke down and cried when I refused; it was pitiful to see his old gray head shaking with sobs over what he considered base ingratitude. Besides, Kitty was included in the invitation. She is my guest, and any natural girl would like to go to such an affair, and mamma urged it. Oh, George, do pity me. Don't—don't think I'm like the rest of the world, for I'm not. I hunger for better things, higher things, but in this case I really don't know what to do."

"Then"—he took a deep breath, as if trying to fortify himself against a coming blow—"then you are engaged to Telfare?"

"No; I am not, George. Don't—don't question me so closely. I am not happy. I"—

"But he looks upon this affair tonight as favorable to his suit. Is that

Children's Quarrel Has Fatal Ending

BOYS FIGHT OVER TOY AND ONE DIES FOLLOWING BLOW IN THE FACE

Toronto, July 15.—Slapped in the face by Melville Burrell, aged 7, of 760 Palmerston avenue, yesterday afternoon, seven-year-old Harvey McGill, 46 Hamilton Street, fell and struck his head on the pavement. He picked himself up and ran into his home, but collapsed in the hallway, and died as his mother lifted him up. The body of the unfortunate child was taken to the Morgue for inquiry purposes, and young Burrell was taken into custody by Detective Winters, of Pape Avenue Station, and after being examined, removed to the Children's Shelter.

The Burrell boy has been staying with his aunt at 39 Hamilton street, his parents being in Muskoka. He, the little McGill boy and Helen Moffatt, a three-year-old girl living at 48 Hamilton street, were playing with a "kiddie car" belonging to the girl, when the two boys started to quarrel about who should play with the toy. The Burrel boy told the police that Harvey McGill had promised him a ride on the car in question, but when the time came for him to have his turn, the other boy refused to fulfill his promise. Burrell took the toy from McGill, who snatched it back, and a quarrel ensued. McGill knocked Burrell down, and Burrell retaliated by striking the McGill boy in the face. McGill fell. Examination of the dead lad showed an abrasion over the eye, caused, it is understood, when the boy struck the pavement.

The dead youngster was an only child, and Mrs. McGill is prostrated because of his death.

Call Conference on Unemployment

Drury Government Seeks to Get Employers and Workers Together.

Toronto, July 15.—Faced with the prospect of having to continue next winter the policy of assisting the municipalities in taking care of the unemployed by "doles," the Drury Government is to make another attempt to get manufacturers and employers generally to co-operate to provide as much work as possible. Representatives of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, the Board of Trade, Labor, U. F. O. and other organizations are to be brought together in conference with the Government on July 20th. It will be remembered that early last winter Premier Drury called a similar conference that produced a great deal of discussion and some argument as to whether manufacturers ought to "cut their loss" or not, but little action that helped to relieve the situation. It is said that some members of the Cabinet are not hopeful of much result from another conference, but they feel that it is up to them to do what they can.

It is expected that about twenty representative men will attend, the policy followed being to invite groups of industries to send representatives rather than individual industries.

Some amusement was expressed yesterday regarding a story that the Government was contemplating appointing a commission to deal with industrial matters and naming two well-known U. F. O. men as probable members of that commission. It was stated yesterday that the two men mentioned were invited to attend the meeting on the 20th as representing the farming interests.

Naval Question Will be Shelved

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

London, July 16.—(By Grattan O'Leary, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)—As a result of the informal discussion of the past few days the naval question will be shelved by the conference of Prime Ministers. This course has been urged by Premier Meighen from the beginning and its adoption has been rendered inevitable by the decision to have the disarmament conference at Washington. It is probable that some form of a resolution will be passed, but it will have no relation to the policy or any contemplated action, and it will commit the respective Dominions to nothing.

EARTH DISTURBANCES IN VIRGINIA TOWN

Bristol, Tenn., July 15.—Severe earth disturbances at Mendota, Virginia, were reported here early today. The reports declared that several acres of ground were heaved up in some places and sunken in others.

Large breaks in the banks of a river skirting the small town occurred, it was stated.

The disturbance is said to have started several days ago. Rumblings were heard near the surface of the earth.

Theories advanced concerning the change in the topography of the land vary. One is that gas pressure is responsible, while another is that subterranean streams are allowing the surface to settle.

Renfrew Man Held in Grip Of Northland

PETER McCALLUM IN EDMONTON WHEN IT WAS ONLY A POLICE POST

S.S. Echo, Slave River, June 17.—This has to do with one Peter McCallum. I first saw Peter in the half-light of midnight, when I reluctantly boarded the Echo after a parting ramble amid the log huts of Fitzgerald. I met him the following morning, over a steaming platterful of boiled eggs. In true Northern fashion, he asked at once my name and purpose, and before breakfast had ended we were friends of some standing. With the little steamer all to ourselves, we mutually decided that an early acquaintanceship was highly desirable.

Peter's name will mean little to our readers, unless, perchance, they be friends of his boyhood in the old county of Renfrew. More than forty years ago this nomad of the North left the environs of Ottawa for Winnipeg. The sprawling town on the banks of the Red River held him only a few months, and the year 1881 saw him off to Edmonton—then a mere police post in an uncharted wild. Mail from Ontario found the wanderer there for over fifteen years, till mad news came from the Yukon, and Edmonton lost its men. Fired with the lust of gold, Peter set off with the rest. He never reached El Dorado—but not in the long time since has his foot turned again toward home.

G.T.R. Conductor Killed at Valleyfield

POPULAR PASSENGER CONDUCTOR KILLED BY HIS OWN TRAIN

Samuel Pugh, one of the best known passenger conductors on the Montreal division of the Grand Trunk, was instantly killed at Valleyfield, Que., Thursday night when run over by his train, the Montreal-Valleyfield local, which he was switching. The late Mr. Pugh was a long-term member of the Grand Trunk train service and before engaging in passenger work was in freight traffic between Brockville and Montreal. Later he was in charge of an Ottawa-Montreal passenger run and last year was for some months conductor of the "Moccasin" train between Brockville and Montreal. Mr. Pugh was a man of wide reading and took a prominent part in the Fifth Sunday Association at Montreal, where his wife and family survive.

Is Trades Unionism In Britain Shattered?

BRIG.-GEN. HUGHES TELLS HOW LITTLE KINGDOM HAS RECOVERED; CANADIAN MEMORIAL

Quebec, July 15.—Trade unionism in Great Britain has been shattered as a result of the stand taken by radical Labor in the coal strike just ended, according to W. R. Parker, LL.B. a prominent Toronto lawyer, who is the author of several valuable legal books, and largely interested in silver mining. Mr. Parker, who has been in England since March, reached Quebec on the Empress of France.

Interviewed on his arrival, he declared that the opinion prevails that now the terrible strike is over, Britain will advance once more and as the sane person is willing to work, there is no fear that the country will stagnate.

Despite a few contrary opinions the general views expressed by distinguished visitors from many lands, is that European and Asiatic reconstruction is progressing rapidly, England in particular being reported as making gigantic strides towards recovery.

Belgium Prosperous

That Belgium and the Belgians were never so prosperous as they are now, is the cheering news brought by Brig.-Gen. H. T. Hughes, C.M.G., D.S.O., of Ottawa, another prominent passenger on the Empress "The people" he said, "have been nothing short of marvellous and they are a great example to the rest of the world. The economy and trade conditions have improved enormously and the reconstruction is almost unbelievable to the stranger's eye. It may truthfully be said that there are no poor people in Belgium to-day.

Gen. Hughes is one of the few Canadian officers still in harness and is chief engineer, Canadian battle exploit memorial committee. He has been in France and Belgium for some time, laying out roads and finding suitable sites for permanent Canadian memorials, having his headquarters at Poperinghe, Flanders. Eight Canadian memorials will be erected in France and Flanders at the following places: St. Julien, Passchendaele, Hill 60, Vimy, Bourlon Wood, of the Drocourt, Quean Line and at Courcelette.

Meet in Ottawa

Brig.-Gen. Hughes stated that a meeting will be held at Ottawa on September 5th at which judges will choose suitable designs for the war memorials by three monument experts, English, French and Canadian. It will, however, be several years before the work is completed. General Hughes is returning overseas some time in October to continue his work.

He was camp engineer at the Valcartier Camp in 1914, and with Sir William Price and Sir Henry Burstall, was one of the first three officers in camp. The General was greeted by Sir David Watson and many old comrades on his arrival.

Mr. P. Ttester, a prominent Hong Kong banker, is returning to the far east after spending several months in England. He will remain in Canada until September, as he wishes to travel extensively here, although he has been in the Dominion several times before.

Meteor Set Fire to Building

Stockbridge, Mass., July 15.—A meteor is believed to have struck a barn at Cherry Hill Farm on Tuesday. It started a fire and destroyed the building and farm machinery of Henry McBurney, with a loss of $10,000. The sky was cloudless, when early in the evening a bolt of fire descended with a terrifying noise. Almost instantly the barn was in flames. There was no thunder. Near the corner of the building where the meteor descended there is a hole in the ground two feet in diameter of unknown depth, and Superintendent Frank Scutt had men digging for it to-day. When found the meteor will be presented to the Berkshire Museum at Pittsfield.

KILLED WHEN SHIP BROKE CRANKSHAFT

Rochester, N.Y., July 15.—Michael McAloney, a member of the crew of the steamer Ontario No. 1 was killed at Charlotte today when a crankshaft on the vessel broke. McAloney was a resident of Montreal.

PROMINENT ONTARIO FINANCIAL MAN DEAD

London, Ont., July 13.—William G. Fitzgerald, aged 47, actuary of the Northern Life Assurance Company, and one of the best known financial men in the Province, died very unexpectedly at his home here last night. He was born in Toronto, and was the eldest son of the late William Fitzgerald, for many years superintendent of insurance at Ottawa. He was educated at the Ottawa Collegiate Institute and Toronto University. He received the degree of Bachelor of Arts from Toronto University in 1898.

After securing the degree he entered the service of the London and Lancashire Life Assurance Company, in Montreal, and later became actuary for the Independent Order of Foresters at Toronto. He became chief actuary for the Northern Life in this city in 1911.

Backus Delivers His First Oration

TIMBER MAGNATE SPEAKS FROM SAME PLATFORM AS PREMIER DRURY

Kenora, Ont., July 15.—An announcement of the most vital importance to Kenora and its tributary territory was made last night by E. W. Backus during the course of the first speech, which he has ever delivered during the many years that he has been operating in this district. Mr. Backus summarily disposed of rumors to the effect that he was growing weary of the long fight with Winnipeg, Keewatin and Ottawa interests, and that he might let his timber and power concessions up here go by default, by stating that he was not only willing but anxious to go ahead with development and that he was just marking time pending the adjustment of the differences with the Dominion Government.

Mr. Backus spoke from the same platform as Premier Drury, Peter Heenan, M.P.P., Kenora, Hon. Harry Mills, Minister of Mines, Dr. H. A. Stevenson, M.P.P., London, and Mayor George A. Toole of Kenora, the occasion being the civic reception to the Premier. Mr. Backus laughingly prefaced his remarks by referring to the hard and shrewd bargains which the provincial government had driven with him and by saying "Mr. Drury and Mr. Heenan succeed in getting me to sign away my birthright and everything else." He had been waiting to do so only because he placed the most implicit trust in the integrity of fair dealing of the provincial government."

In referring to the order from Ottawa that had prohibited any work being done on the eastern channel and which accordingly was tying up the whole development scheme, Mr. Backus stated that the only thing his company asked was the assurance that the Ontario government would stand behind it.

"If Ontario will do so," said he, "we will start work at once and will continue until Ottawa sends the mounted police here to stop us." He said that given moral support by the province the company would rush the work ahead with all expedition, sparing no expense and building up one of the finest development schemes on the continent.

Mr. Backus estimated, however, that the monkey wrench which the Dominion Government had thrown into their plans might delay the completion of the company's construction schedule by eight or ten months. Premier Drury also reviewed the whole Lake of Woods situation and reiterated his firm intention to fight the Meighen legislation for all that he was worth.

Canadian Wool In Great Demand

PRICES NOT UP—MILLS SHOWING MORE ACTIVITY IN MANUFACTURE OF GOODS

Ottawa, July 15.—Canadian mills are showing greater activity in the manufacture of woollen goods, and as a result there is a strong demand for Canadian wool, but without any advance in price, according to the Dominion market reports for the week ending July 11. Sales of domestic wools continue to be made at 19c. to 21c. for medium. Quotations on lower grades are running from 11c. to 13c. for coarse, 15c. to 17c. for low combing and 17c. to 19c. for low medium combing. Western wools are under process of grading and several options have already been taken on certain lots.

Large Wages Stop Building

Tell Arbitrators Cut in Hamilton Construction is Fifty Per Cent.

Hamilton, July 15.—The Arbitration Board which was appointed to deal with the wage dispute between the Building Trades Council and the Contractors' Association, started its duties today. The Contractors' Association consented to leave the bricklayers out of the proceedings and thus the deadlock was broken.

Evidence was offered by representatives of the contractors that there had been a big shrinkage in building operations compared with a year ago, this being put at about 50 per cent. Many contractors were not building because they looked for a decrease in wages. The board was informed that plans for buildings valued at $2,780,000 were held up because of high construction costs and high wages.

MATERIALS CHEAPER.

Further information was that hardware used in building was cheaper by 23 per cent. than a year ago, and that steel was much cheaper. The principal factor in the cost of steel was given as wages. It was stated that during the war wages increased 153 per cent., and were now 121 per cent. above the 1912-1913 level. Evidence as to the cost of living was presented. It was stated that it went from $9.31 in 1914 to $20.10 in 1920, and was back to $15 this year. Wages in the trades concerned in the dispute went up from an average of $18.48 in 1914 to $36 in 1920.

RENTS INCREASING.

When the statement was made that rents were increasing, Judge Snider, the chairman, asked whose fault it was that rents increased. A. Dickeson, carpenters' representative, replied that it was due to fewer houses being built, as he would prove to the board that more houses were being built this year than last.

Details of wages paid in 1914 and 1920 were presented, and when objection was made to their presentation, Judge Snider told the Labor men they would have an opportunity to present figures.

WANT CUT 29 PER CENT.

J. W. Frid stated that the stagnation in the building trade was due to the high wages, as people were holding off in the hope of a reduction. "We do not ask the men to make any sacrifice, as the manufacturers have asked," said Mr. Frid, "but we do ask that the employees take a reduction equal to the reduction in the cost of living, about 29½ per cent."

This closed the case for the contractors, and the tradesmen will be heard next. Judge Snider stated that he hoped after the evidence was taken there would be an agreement without waiting for an award, but that if one were needed it would be made next week.

Troops Called Out

Kobe, Japan, July 15.—Troops were called out to-day after thousands of striking workers in dock yards here had charged a police cordon in an attempt to take possession of the dock yards and carry out a project for their control by workers. A number of strikers were wounded and ringleaders of the movement were arrested.

Redskin To Pay Death Penalty

FELLOW-INDIANS IMPRESSED BY WORKING OF BRITISH JUSTICE

Fort McMurray, Alta., July 14.—Albert Lebeaux, the Slavey Indian for whose trial the special judicial party went North a few weeks ago, has been found guilty of the murder of his wife and child and sentenced to death. Judge Dubuc conducted the trial at Fort Providence, with C. C. McCaul of Ottawa as counsel for the defense.

The case was handled with as much care and legal precision as if it had been in one of the city courts instead of the first jury trial ever held in the Mackenzie Territory. Evidence was submitted in support of the charge that definitely establishes the prisoner's guilt, however, and sentence of death was according passed on him.

The local Indians have been impressed with the fact that British justice reaches far and that Lebeaux was given a fair trial

MILLIONAIRE'S SON WEDS AT THE SOO

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., July 15.—Michael Cudahy, the 37-year-old son of the millionaire Milwaukee packer, and Mrs. Alice Ninto, aged 27, divorcee of Milwaukee, were married today in the Michigan Soo by Judge C. H. Chapman. The couple arrived here last night on the yacht Wondameen, owned by Mr. Robert Uiklein, coming down through the Canadian canal. The couple will spend an extended honeymoon in the Rockies. The romance culminated at Batchewana Bay above the Sault on Lake Superior, where the yacht stopped for a time. The couple decided to marry and returned to the city at high speed to have the ceremony performed.

Century Lease on Big Works Sought By Ford

Makes Offer to United States Government for Nitrate Plant and Power Dams.

Washington, July 14.—A proposal by Henry Ford for the utilization of the Mussel Shoals nitrate plant was transmitted by Secretary of Commerce Hoover to Secretary of War Weeks. The negotiations grew out of representations made to the Department of Commerce by the Mississippi Valley Association, the Tennessee Valley Association and the American Farm Bureau Federation that some use should be made of the improvement. The Government already has expended $80,000,000 on the project. Conferences on the subject have been held by Assistant Secretary of Commerce Huston with Mr. Ford with the approval of Secretary of War Weeks.

MR. FORD'S OFFER.

The principal points in Mr. Ford's offer are:

(1) He will take a one-hundred years' lease upon the Wilson dam and No. 3 dam and electric installation when completed. This work is estimated to cost $28,000,000. After a short preliminary period Mr. Ford proposes to pay interest at the rate of 6 per cent. upon the sum of $28,000,000, and amortize not only this sum, but entire cost of the dams over a period of 100 years.

(2) To purchase all the nitrate plant and equipment, lands, steam plant, etc., for $5,000,000.

(3) To convert and operate the large nitrate plant (No. 2) for the production of fertilizer compounds and as a stand-by for Government explosives in case of war, and to keep it up to date in both parts.

(4) To limit the profits of the fertilizer plant to 8 per cent., an independent board, embodying representatives of the American Farm Bureau Federation and the National Grange and the Farmers' Union to certify to this maximum.

TO MAINTAIN LOCKS.

The completion of these works makes the Tennessee navigable to Chattanooga, and there are undertakings by Mr. Ford for maintaining the locks, etc.

The power developed will ultimately greatly exceed the requirements of the fertilizer plant, and Mr. Ford proposes to use it in his own business. In order to meet the annual payments proposed a very large use of power must be made outside the fertilizer works.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover made the following comment:

"The acceptance of the offer is a matter for decision by Congress, and that body will no doubt be greatly guided by Secretary Weeks' views in the matter. Mr. Ford has made a genuine proposal. It shows courage to agree to pay out $5,000,000, to spend further sums upon large works, and besides take an annual obligation for about $1,500,000 for one hundred years and agree to maintain a nitrate plant in reserve for the Government for that period. Whatever may be the result, Mr. Ford's offer does prove, what the public associates have contended, that the completion of this project has a commercial value."

Lloyd George and De Valera discuss the minimum terms acceptable to the Sinn Fein.

Can't Get Work, Scots Go Home

SAY JOBS EASIER TO FIND IN GLASGOW THAN THEY ARE IN HAMILTON

Hamilton, July 15.—Thoroughly disheartened by their failure to procure employment, and, at the same time, deeply incensed at the transportation agents who inveigled them into leaving the old land by promises that did not materialize, John McIntosh and Harry McKelvey, two brawny young Scotsmen, left for Glasgow tonight, determined that conditions are much better in Scotland than in Canada.

Both intelligent and thrifty fellows they said that they left Scotland less than seven weeks ago. When they embarked each had about eight pounds in cash. Eager to do any kind of work. McIntosh said they both had tramped the streets of Hamilton until they were satisfied there was not a job to be had. With their savings dwindling each day, they decided earlier in the week that their chances of finding work in Glasgow were much better than in Hamilton.

To-day they were advised that they could sail from Montreal this week. They therefore lost no time in boarding a train for that city. "Something should certainly be done to accurately advise men in the Old Land just what conditions are in Canada. We are fortunate in that we have the wherewithal to carry us back home, otherwise, I don't know what we should do," said McKelvey, adding that he formerly worked as a stonecutter in Scotland, while McIntosh was a cooper by trade.

Conference Will Be Resumed on Monday

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

London, July 16—Resumption of the conference between Mr. Lloyd George and Eamonn De Valera, Irish Republican leader, was not planned for today, it having been announced that their next meeting would occur on Monday. The discussions they would have with their advisers during the day, however, might, it was believed, have an important bearing on the future progress of the conversations begun on Thursday and continued yesterday. Mr. De Valera remained at his hotel here and was expected to meet prominent Irish leaders during the day.

The Prime Minister went to his home at Chequers Court for the week-end, but did not look forward to any material relaxation of the strain of the past week. It was said he would confer in private with many prominent members of the British Cabinet and men who had taken a leading part in the conduct of Irish affairs.

THREAT FROM DUBLIN.

Dublin, July 16.—Commenting upon the conference between Eamonn De Valera and Prime Minister Lloyd George, in London, the Irish Bulletin today declared: "If a peaceful settlement should be denied, the Irish people will resume armed resistance to foreign domination. They possess the will, and by endurance hope to bring their fight eventually to success."

WALL OF SILENCE.

London, July 16.—What is happening behind the scenes in the consultations of the Irish parties preliminary to the renewal of the conversations between Eamonn De Valera and Lloyd George on Monday is screened by what Sir James Craig, Ulster Premier, termed this morning as "rigid silence." Sir James used this phrase in explaining to interviewers his belief that everything depended upon the way in which the question is handled. "The slightest indiscretion or misrepresentation," he said, "may easily cause incalculable harm. What will best aid the attainment of peace is for everyone concerned to withhold comment outside of official consultations."

BANDITS SNATCH BAG CONTAINING $25,000

Seattle, Wash., July 14.—Two bandits shortly after 10 o'clock this morning snatched a bag containing $25,000 in currency from a messenger of the Northwest Trust and Safe Deposit Company, and escaped in an automobile, pursued by a taxicab driver who had witnessed the affair. Police throughout the city were notified, and other cars took up the chase.

Easy Washing

You'll hardly believe it—until you try it. Just soak the clothes in the rich, pure, cleansing Rinso suds overnight (or for three hours) and then rinse them thoroughly either in warm or cold water. They will be as clean as though they had been boiled and rubbed.

RINSO—
Not a cake soap, or a chip soap, but new and better—fine granules so rich in soap that they loosen the dirt as the clothes soak.

If you have a washing machine—
Soak the clothes overnight in the usual Rinso way. The cleansing suds loosen every bit of dirt. In the morning operate the machine for a few minutes and the clothes are perfectly clean—even the most soiled spots.

Shall He Have A College Course?

THE question is often debated: — Is it worth while for the young man to spend four years in college? Does the expense of a university training pay?

Statistics show that while only two per cent. of the people of America are educated at college, no less than seventy per cent. of the leaders of the nation in politics, commerce and the church come from that little two per cent. of the people—"the college-trained group".

We all know that a college education is necessary for the adequate training of engineers, chemists, clergymen, actuaries and astronomers, but the evidence is also overwhelming in proving that the college-trained man wins in every other line of business endeavor.

Shall your boy become one of the leaders?

The answer depends very largely on his education.

He cannot get that vital college training without your help and encouragement.

"Are you going to send me to College?"

To make sure that the boy will obtain a college education, take out a policy of insurance on father's life that will mature at the age when the son will be ready to enter college. It is not hard to save the money for the college course in installments spread over ten to fifteen years.

There are Ten Year and Fifteen Year Mutual Life Policies that are ideal for this purpose. Ask the Mutual Life Agent about them.

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Every day something out of the ordinary is seen by somebody. Let us hear about it. Phone 1248, or write The Intelligencer.

The Swimming Pool

M.E.—Crossing the bridge to-day I saw three tiny kiddies trying to master the intricacies of swimming. I think it a shame that the kiddies of this city should be dependant on the Moira River, which at times is not fit for even fish to have a swim. Surely things could be speeded up a little bit to utilize the legacy of $5,000 plus interest of a number of years, which was left by the late Senator H. Corby, and build a decent, respectable swimming pool in the vicinity of Victoria Park, which is central to all. Let's see who is possessed of a good amount of "pep" and energy. Results talk, not promises.

Kooler Kumfort

D.S.—I see that the heated period brought many stiff collar men into the soft collar and comfort class and now high necks, low necks and rubbernecks have abandoned the white-washed fence so irksome in the good old summer-time.

Low Bridge

P.D.Q.—I saw a tall man's head hit a low awning on Front street, then I heard some tall swearing, having for a text "Why the blankety, blank, blank, are such man traps allowed." Some are low enough to catch the tall men and some are not high enough to clear even small men.

TWO AUTOISTS KILLED WHEN TRAIN HITS CAR

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 14.— Robert Gibbs, 29 years old, and Gertrude Spooher, 28, both from Niagara Falls, N.Y., were instantly killed at 11 o'clock last night when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Lehigh Valley freight train at the Grove avenue crossing. The bodies of Gibbs and Miss Spooher were found under the engine.

THE BATTLE OF ARICA

Lima, Peru, July 14.—Ceremonies have just been held here in commemoration of the anniversary of the battle of Arica, between the Peruvians and Chileans. A memorial was presented to President Leguia in which he was asked to grant parliamentary representation to Peruvians from the "unredeemed" provinces of Tacna and Arica. The provinces are now under Chilean administration.

What the D.S.C.R. Are Accomplishing

Ottawa, July 15.—(By Canadian Press)—On June 18 the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment still had 5,858 undischarged hospital cases under its care, of which 5,324 in Canada. Of this number 278 are out-patients. In the British Isles there are now 276 patients, and 253 in the United States. The policy of the Department is to treat all men in Canadian hospitals except where the sickness is temporary, or the difficulty of moving cannot be overcome. Practically none of the Canadian Expeditionary Force remain in France, though where a Canadian soldier on duty over there becomes sick, arrangements are in force with the French military authorities to care for him. Of the patients in Great Britain a large number of these men took their discharge in Canada, and subsequently returned there. Those in the United States are largely men whose homes were there before the war. Approximately 31,000 Canadian and 14,000 Imperials were recruited in the United States after America entered the war. Imperial soldiers on this continent are taken care of by the Department as well as Canadians.

The Department has 1,249 tuberculosis patients on its strength at present, distributed in a number of hospitals. In January, 1920, there were 2,087 such patients. While a proportion have died, the majority of the others have been discharged on the grounds that the disease has apparently been arrested. Measures have been taken to provide interesting work for tubercular patients in hospitals. Those in bed, if well enough, are taught embroidery and to make bags. Carpentry shops have been set up for those who are more vigorous, and labor saving devices installed to obviate the danger of undue exertion. The men are also taught stenography, drawing and painting. The experience was that at first they shunned any kind of effort, but interest grew, and the innovation has succeeded.

Blind Soldiers

The blind soldiers have largely been cared for and passed from the Department to some useful task. The Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Department now only has three training in St. Dunstan's Hostel, London, and some 14 at the Pearson Hall, Toronto. In all, 66 have trained at St. Dunstan's of whom 22 have settled in England. There are 10 masseurs, 6 stenographers, and the residue have learned among other things, boat repairing, carpentry, joinery, poultry keeping, mat and net making. Of the total, 2,238 returned men who are receiving pensions on account of blindness and defective sight as their major disability, 198 had lost sufficient vision to require training of the blind.

These men have verified Sir Arthur Pearson's brave assertion that blindness is not a disability, but only a handicap. The blind masseur is as valuable at his work as the sighted man. The blind stenographer uses the Braille shorthand writer, punching little holes in the note book, which he can afterwards swiftly read by hand. He is as rapid in taking notes as the man with sight, it is claimed, and only a little slower in the transcription on the machine.

Considering also his pension of $75 a month and an allowance of some $300 a year on account of helplessness which is to secure him attendance, the blind returned soldier has thus achieved a notable standard of independence.

Under Captain A. E. Baker, who lost both eyes, the Canadian Institute for the Blind, largely supported by Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Department, has become the centre for the blind Canadian veteran. Club arrangements, including a library, methods of keeping in touch with the blind throughout Canada, and schemes for starting them in business are among the activities.

Fifty-Eight Incurables

The Department has on the strength 58 incurables outside of insanity and tuberculosis. There are 900 psychopathic cases. A large number of the balance are cases or rheumatism, heart disease and a variety of ills, of which some 75 per cent. are for short treatment, who stay in hospital on an average five weeks. In the current week there were 320 admissions to hospital and 258 discharges. If a man breaks down from a war disability, or one aggravated by the war, he is still given free treatment, and accorded pay and allowance during the course.

Nearly 95 per cent. of all amputation cases have now been discharged, and the records of the artificial limbs provided show that the Department, up to May 15, last, provided 2,349 legs 1042 arms, 5,739 orthopedic boots, and 17,386 minor orthopedic appliances. The Toronto factory, where these appliances are now all made, and exclusively by returned soldiers, has extended its service to other government departments, and to workmen's compensation boards.

There is another category of outpatients, known as O.P. 2's. These need periodic massage, dental treatment, medicine or other minor care. A daily average of 1,000 of these returned men are given treatment at the various clinics of the Department, situated in all the principle centres of Canada.

Blind Stenographer Gets Post in London

J. H. RAWLINSON, GRADUATE OF ST. DUNSTAN'S, NOW ON WAY TO ENGLAND

Ottawa, July 14.—A striking example of perseverance against the physical disability of blindness is furnished by James Rawlinson, ex-Canadian soldier blinded in action, who has just left Ottawa on the first part of his journey to London, Eng., where he is to assume the duties of clerk-stenographer in the London office of the Department of Immigration and Colonization.

During the past two and a half years Rawlinson, who was trained at St. Dunstan's School in England, was one of the most efficient and accurate stenographers on the staff of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment in Toronto.

Rawlinson is the author of a book "Through St. Dunstan's to Light," which has been widely read in Canada.

CONDITIONS VERY BAD

Warsaw, July 15.—Conditions in Kiev, in the Ukraine, are reported worse than at any time since the troubles of Russia began.

Word reached Warsaw recently that the population of the city had dwindled to something like 100,000 persons, whereas at the beginning of the war there were approximately 700,000 inhabitants.

Travellers who have crossed the frontier within the last few weeks, most of them under difficult circumstances, assert that the Bolshevik authorities are again in complete control of the city. At intervals during the spring there were times when the insurrectionists held the upper hand.

In many villages in the Ukraine the peasants are reported to have organized and driven the Soviets out and the peasants are reported endeavoring to strengthen their anti-Bolshevik organizations to prevent interference with their farms and villages.

Travellers say, only a few stores are open in Kiev, one of these being a florist's shop.

Try Living on Monday

ONE-MINUTE ESSAYS ON HEALTH BY DR. WM. P. REDICK

For years an office worker found himself facing Monday of each week, half sick. He liked to eat on Sunday and thought that was the reason. Then he saw that others in the office never suffered as he did.

Many are like this man.

Many like him have turned to chiropractic and now are living on Monday as well as other days of the week. While there is no reason why a man should be gluttonous, there is equally, no reason why a stomach should be chronically unable to stand a Sunday dinner, unless there is pressure on the spinal nerves to the stomach which reduces its efficiency.

Chiropractic spinal adjustments remove the cause of disease in the head, throat, lungs, heart, stomach, liver, kidneys and other organs of the body.

Montreal, July 14.—Efforts will be made to bring a picked team of Scottish junior soccer players to Canada next season, according to a local writer. These men, he added, will be asked to settle here and help develop football in Canada.

"In other words this undertaking may in a sense be called colonization work for Canada. Just as Canada brought farmers from Scotland and Ireland, the idea is to bring footballers to Canada. We need them. We have got to work here and we have got to play."

MUSIC AND DRAMA

DOROTHY DALTON AT GRIFFIN'S ON MONDAY

It was fitting that Dorothy Dalton should make her debut as a Paramount star, in a story of such force and repute as Sir J. M. Barrie's "Half an Hour", which will be shown at Griffin's this Monday to Wednesday. of this celebrated author, was first o fthis celebrated author, was first produced on the American stage in 1913 at the Lyceum theatre with Grace George in the role of Lady Lilian, which is enacted on the screen by Miss Dalton.

Miss Dalton is majestic as the high minded aristocrat, Lady Lilian, whose husband's taunts, drive her to seek the company of a young, reckless man from whom she is only saved by his accidental death. The screen adaptation was made by Clara Beranger. Sets of elegance, of antique furnishings and valuable old tapestries and paintings, are used for the greater part of the picture. An automobile accident is one of the exciting features.

A selected program of comedy and varied attractions will be exhibited in addition to the feature offering.

"PALACE OF DARKENED WINDOWS" GOOD MYSTERY PLAY

There are certain books and plays that, in their original form, were very great successes, but upon being transferred to the screen seem to lose much of their charm. On the other hand there are some that gain materially by the visualization of the story. Such a one is "The Palace of Darkened Windows" the Select picture showing at Griffin's To-night.

The story moves along with a gradually increasing tempo and works up into a climax of great dramatic power. The contrast between the Orient and the Occident, from a psychological standpoint, has never been more clearly emphasized than in this motion picture.

A 2-reel Keaton comedy, a 2-reel Western drama, Fox News Weekly, and Pathe Review are being exhibited in addition to the feature offering.

WILL APPEAL GRAIN INQUIRY INJUNCTION

Ottawa, July 13.—Following a consultation with O. M. Biggar, K. C., General Counsel of the Government, the Minister of Justice has directed that an appeal be taken from the Judgment of Justice Curran making permanent the injuction against the grain trade inquiry. Counsel at Winnipeg have also been instructed to move for an early hearing of the case by the Manitoba Appeal Court.

Don't BURN the FOREST
Ontario's Greatest Revenue Producer

OF all Ontario's sources of public revenue as distinct from taxation, her Forests come first. The money received by the Government of Ontario from the sale of forest privileges last year amounted to over $2,700,000. The value of these forest privileges is increasing with the demand for lumber, pulp and other forest products. The maintenance of our chief source of revenue depends, therefore, upon keeping our forests from burning up.

Forest fires mean higher taxes, higher cost of building, higher cost of living generally, as well as dreadful loss of life, loss of homes and devastation of great areas of land.

Save Ontario's Forests
They're Yours

Besides providing direct returns to the people of Ontario in wages and public revenue, affording employment for labor, and opportunity for capital, and supplying us with lumber and other products, the Forests of Ontario are vitally important in many other ways.

Ontario's Forests largely account for her healthful, moderate climate, neither unbearably hot nor unbearably cold, nor subject to hurricanes and furious tempests.

Ontario's Forests regulate the flow of her rivers by conserving the moisture of the rain or snow, preventing damage from spring floods and erosion of the soil from hillsides, such as ruined great areas of land in China and other Eastern countries. In Northern Ontario, the low, rounded hills soon show the bare rock after the forest is burned off.

Ontario's wild game and fur largely depend upon the preservation of her forests. The young of game birds and of insectivorous birds which nest in the forest, are destroyed annually by forest fires.

If a watershed is destroyed by forest fire, few of the game fish in the streams will survive.

Fish and game bring tourists to Ontario's forests and prosperity to Ontario's summer resorts. Forest fires drive tourists and their money away.

Forests are assets of health and strength. Forests are an inspiration to clean, wholesome living. Ontario's forests are a refuge from the grind, dust and strain of cities. Help us save Ontario's forests from destruction by fire.

CHILDREN OF SHELTER ENJOY PICNIC AT TWELVE O'CLOCK POINT

There never was a happier crowd at Twelve O'clock Point than the children from the Shelter, enjoying a picnic. To them it was a long day of pleasure lots of eats and ice cream in abundance, the joy of paddling in the water, the ride on the horses, the sail on the boat were new novelties to many of them. The Inspector wishes to thank the kind friends who so liberally provided these good things and from year to year remember the needs of the children's picnic.

The following donations for the picnic were received—Mrs. Corby, $10.00, Robt. Bogle, $5.00; Mrs. Hallam, $2.00 Mrs. A. C. McFee, 1.00; Mr. W. H. Lattimer, $1.00; Mr. T. S. Carman, $1.00; Messrs. Ed. F. Dickens & Sons, ice cream; Mr. Shorey (The Point) ice cream; Mr. J. Matthews, basket of fruit etc.; Mrs. W. J. Carter, fruit tarts; Mrs. R. H. Ketcheson, chocolates.

Poisoning Follows Domestic Trouble

MOTHER AND THREE DAUGHTERS IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Kingston, July 15.—Suffering from administration of a poison, believed to be strychnine, Mrs. Mary Brigden, 290 Ontario street, is dangerously ill in the Hotel Dieu, while her three daughters, Doris, aged 16, Agnes, aged 14, and Mona, aged 12, are also critically ill. It is not thought that Mrs. Brigden will recover, but the condition of the children is such that it is thought they will recover unless complications set in. While the details of the case are meagre, it is thought the poison was administered by the mother to herself and children.

The poisoning of the mother and three children, which forms one of the most sensational cases ever known in the city, evidently followed domestic trouble. For some time Mr. and Mrs. Brigden have not been living together, and on July 7th, in Toronto, a judge's order was handed out, giving the custody of the two younger children to the father. The children were to have been ready to leave with the father yesterday when Mr. Brigden called at the home of his wife, but they were not, and arrangements were made to have the children ready this morning at ten o'clock.

Editor Dies at Summer Home

WELL KNOWN NEWSPAPER MAN IS SUDDENLY CALLED; WAS NATIVE OF ADDISON

George Frederick McKimm, editor and proprietor of the Smith's Falls Record-News and one of Eastern Ontario's best known newspapermen, died very suddenly Thursday at his summer home, Star Island, Rideau Lake. Mr. McKimm rose as usual in the morning and after breakfast was chatting with his family and guests when he suddenly collapsed and in spite of skilled attendance passed away in a few minutes. He had just a few minutes previously remarked how well he was feeling. He had not been enjoying health for some months, but his condition was not considered at all serious.

The late Mr. McKimm was born at Addison 62 years ago, a son of the late Roobert McKimm, and after attending the Addison school and the Athens high school, was engaged in teaching school in Leeds county and surrounding district. Entering newspaper work as a reporter on the Brockville Times he became editor and proprietor of the Rideau Record, a bi-weekly newspaper at Smith's Falls, which a few years ago absorbed its competitor, the Smith's Falls News. Mr. McKimm continued as editor and proprietor of the Record-News until his death.

RUEL NOT BURNED; MISTAKE IN NAME

Sudbury, July 15.—The report that Ruel, along the C.N.R. west of Capreol, had been completely destroyed is wrong, declares Charles Duval, Chief Fire Inspector for the district. It is evident that someone got the fire at Makwa and Mileago mixed up with Ruel, which is 30 miles east.

Makwa came into being as the headquarters of a construction gang when the railway was put in. It, or what was left of it, was destroyed by fire on Tuesday night. The siding was damaged and some old shacks destroyed. A mill owned by a man named Pichie, and which had been used by a contractor, E. Doe, was destroyed, as were a number of C.N.R. flat cars loaded with ties which were standing on the siding.

Mr Duval says that the rains have put an end to most of the fires burning in this district, and that the few that are still going are well in hand.

Seeking Site For Public Baths

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE COMMITTEE—FAVOR COOPER'S DAM SITE

Active steps have at last been undertaken to supply to Belleville a long-felt want, that is to say, facilities for bathing and swimming within reasonable distance of the centre of population. The "Better and More Beautiful Belleville" committee of the Chamber of Commerce gave lengthy consideration to this problem yesterday afternoon under the chairmanship of Alderman Fisher. Among those in attendance were Mayor Hanna, Ald. G. A. Bennett, Chairman of Parks; Lt.-Col. W. N. Ponton, Rev. Geo. Marshall and Messrs. John Elliott and Beaumont Jarvis.

A lengthy discussion took place as to ways and means to secure advantage of the $5,000 bequest left by the late Senator Corby, the condition attached to that bequest being that the swimming accommodation and bathing station should be established on or about Victoria Park.

The committee adjourned and went down to Victoria Park and carefully looked over the situation, but the plans proposed have not yet reached a definite enough stage to enable them to put a feasible proposition before the committee for the establishment of bathing facilities at this point.

Some consideration was given to a site east of the Government dock, but it was pointed out that this property has been acquired by the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company, and they are about to establish at that point large storage tanks and warehouses, which placed that proposal definitely out of consideration.

The committee then went and looked over the property about Cooper's dam. Here they found a large pool with clean flat rock bottom and of graduated depth, such as would make it safe for children, and at the same time provide deeper water for swimmers. The committee came to the conclusion that if satisfactory arrangements could be made with the property holders on each side of the river, temporary dressing rooms would be provided and walks laid out to give access to the water. Upon the west side of the river is a beautiful little island bounded with elm trees, which would make a very pretty miniature park, if the owner of that island, Mr. Cooper, were agreeable to having it devoted to that purpose. We understand that a representative of the committee will interview Mr. Cooper and see if some satisfactory arrangements of that nature cannot be effected.

Live in Manner of Stone Age

London, July 15.—People who are still living the manner of the Stone Age are found on Rennell Island in the Solomon Group, Melanesia, according to Dr. Northcote Deck, a missionary.

Dr. Deck says there are only about 500 inhabitants, and because of their isolation through lack of ship's anchorage, even their dialect has never been studied.

The natives only had implements and weapons of stone and wood when Dr. Deck first visited the island. They showed great eagerness to barter home-made articles for anything made of iron.

"The men are great fighters and wrestlers. Their throwing spears have points made of human leg and arm bones, and tipped with a bone splinter designed to break off in the wound," says Dr. Deck.

"They seemed to feel keenly the monotony of their insolaton and showed a settle melancholy, both in their faces and the cadence of their voices. Their only sort of music, to which they dance, consists in the tuneless beating of a log."

The teeth of flying foxes which swarm in the caves on the island seem to be the only form of currency known there.

Crowds in England Watch Rain Fall

London, July 14.—After virtually a three months' drought, which scorched grass lands and caused the burning of many acres of furze woods throughout Great Britain, rain fell in various parts of the country and London this afternoon. The unusual sight was watched by crowds in the city and in the west end. After recovering from their surprise, numbers of persons rushed indoors to spread the news, which brought out other eager watchers.

The heavist fall occurred in the south of England and Wales where a steady three-hour down pour came just in time to save some of the crops.

Excellent for Headaches, Indigestion, Constipation, Rheumatism, Pimples, Etc.

You no doubt have been taking all sorts of medicines for your particular ailments, but you only get temporary relief and sometimes no relief at all. The reason for this is due to the fact that none of the things you have taken act upon the liver. The liver is the cause of 99 per cent. of the ailments susceptible to the human system. PLENTY OF READY MONEY

Vienna, June 28.—The astoundi amount of ready money circulati in Austria was illustrated, by the r cently concluded sale of the rare fur shings of Klesheim Palace, one of t residence of the Archduke Ludw Victor. It netted many million crow and the newspapers say the purcha ers were virtually all newly ric Viennese.

Many professional collectors, ar buyers from France, England an America came here for the sale b declared they could not compete wi native bidders who ran prices up in millions as nonchalantly as if bidd ing in hundreds. Dollars, pounds an francs they said were out of the runn ing. Several rare Gobelins brough from 4,000,000 to 1,500,000 crown each.

The Vienna Derby just run wa another illustration of the mone plentitude. About 30,000 person attended and the receipts of the bet ting machines alone was 4,500,00 crowns.

MANY WORDS.
FEW DEEDS

"Mere sensation," says George Santayana, "or mere emotion is an indignity to a mature human being. That which serves no further purpose than to stimulate emotion has about it a certain luxurious taint. We leave it with a blank mind, and a pang bubbles up from the very fountain of pleasure."

Here the gifted essayist touches the very quick of our modern disease. Still, not modern only; everlasting, rather.

For to feel yet not to act upon that feeling, from this have gushed innumerable woes.

Perhaps the most tragic thing about getting drunk is the exalted state of sentiment. The sot is generous, noble, adores his mother, weeps for his poor wife, reeks with wonderful resolves. Yet it all passes with the fumes of his liquor. And the latter state of that man is vastly worse than the first. The glow of his high enthusiasms gone, he is meaner than ever.

No ordinary sinner can be as wicked as the man who goes to church, thrills with religious emotion, and never translates his convictions into deeds.

We are becoming a people of disembodied impulses, incoherent passions, dillettantes in enthusiasms, forever rushing like the four winds of heaven, but forever returning to our empty, sounding "cave of the winds," where we abide to moan or go forth to bluster—vox et preterea nihil—voice and nothing but.

We are dug by sermons, ploughed by theatres, harrowed by movies, hoed and spaded by novels and magazines, yet nothing is allowed to grow. We need most of all the clarifying, health-giving, fructifying influence of the Deed.

For there is no Truth that we know to be true except the Truth that is Done. There is no Feeling that we are sure is sound and not septic except the Feeling that has got itself clothed in an Action.

One ounce of unadvertised self-sacrifice is worth a pound of protestation. One kindness done is worth a dozen kindnesses meant.

To help a lame dog over a stile is better than a hundred heartbreaks over the pages of a novel or before the mimic appeal of the stage.—Dr. Frank Crane.

ADOLESCENT ATTENDANCE ACT.

A great deal has been heard on the most important topic of the Adolescent School Act. It is an innovation in this province, and a most important one at that. In order that the public and particularly those interested in educational matters may know of the action of the Ontario Department of Education relating to the same, the appended circular from the department is published:

"The Adolescent School Attendance Act, by the proclamation of the Lieut.-Governor, made on the 13th day of July, 1920, will come into force and take effect as follows: Section 3 on September 1st, 1921; section 7 on September 1st, 1923, and section 9 on September 1st, 1922.

"The purpose of bringing the Act into force by stages is to make it possible to adjust gradually school accommodations, courses of study, and employments in industries to the conditions set up by the requirements of the Act.

"Section 3 of the Act, which comes into operation on September 1st, 1921, provides for the attendance at school of adolescents between fourteen and sixteen years of age. The Minister announces that in conformity with this section of the Act, pupils are expected to remain in full-time attendance at school until they are sixteen years of age, unless employed on the authority of a home permit or an employment certificate as provided for by the Act, but that it is not his intention to instruct attendance officers to make the Act retroactive by endeavoring to compel young persons between fourteen and sixteen years of age who have been engaged in regular employment to return to school. School authorities, accordingly, will, in the beginning, be charged with providing only for the continued instruction of those who are at present at school and not for the numbers who might be forced to return to school by the strictest interpretation of the Act.

"At the same time, the Minister expects that the Act will be made fully effective to the extent that attendance officers be appointed according to law, and their departments organized to ensure, first, that all young persons between fourteen and sixteen years of age shall be either at school or at work; and, second, that all those who are at work either at home or in gainful employments, shall hold the permits or certificates required by law.

"Section 9, which provides for the establishment and maintenance of part-time courses of instruction for young persons at work, comes into operation on September 1st, 1922. The Minister expects that boards will be prepared to make this section effective on that date.

"Whenever it is desired, the Minister, through the officers of the Department of Education, will be ready to lend assistance to boards in organizing attendance departments and in forming or in carrying out plans for part-time instruction."

THE ISOLATION OF IRELAND

London Daily News

It is undoubtedly a tragedy for England that the brilliant little nation to whose sons she has owed so much should shake off the dust of their feet against her in a passion of execration. It is a tragedy for the whole world that the federal ideal, for which, whatever errors and whatever crimes may have been committed in its name, the league of free nations which make up the British Commonwealth does on the whole stand, should be repudiated as a tryanny. It cannot in the long run be a good thing even for Ireland that she should be driven back upon a self-conscious isolation at a time when the world is moving forward to the realization of larger unities.

THE FOLLY OF IT

Now that Senator France of Maryland has been granted a limited right of entry into and movement about Soviet Russia, what will he get out of the trip except idle notoriety? He must confine his attentions exclusively to commercial questions. He will not be allowed freedom of his hotel, insofar as making inquiries about Russia is concerned. In view of the fact that he has purchased a big food supply in London to cover his tour in the land of the Government which he has praised from afar, it is likely that even with ears filled with the cotton of official orders and eyes covered with the glasses of a very restricted vision, he will not grow as lean and hungry as some other Americans hace in the benighted land.

The Poets' Corner

A BOY IN THE HOUSE

A racket, a rattle, a rollicking shout,
Above and below and round and about
A-whistling, a pounnd, a hammering of nails,
A-building of houses, the shaping of sails,
Entreaties for paper, for scissors, for string,
For every unfinable, bothersome thing
A bang at the door, and a dash up the stairs,
In the interest of burdensome business affairs;
An elephant hunt for a bit of a mouse
Makes it easy to hear there's a boy in the house.

But, oh! if the tops were not scattered about,
And the house never echoed to racket and rout;
If forever the rooms were all tidy and neat
And one need not brush after wee muddy feet,
If no one laughed out with the morning was red,
And with kisses went tumbling all tired to bed,
What a wearisome, workaday world, don't you see,
For all who love wild little laddies 'twould be;
And I'm happy to say, though I shrink like a mouse,
From disorder and din—there's a boy in the house.

The Prince of Wales Appeal for Funds for the Boy Scouts Association is gradually realizing the amount asked by His Royal Highness, viz. £200,000. His Royal Highness now invites the Colonies to support this worthy object, and if each reader contributes to his newspaper the simple sum of one shilling the Prince's desire would immediately be gratified.

Industrial Sky Clearing of Clouds

General Resumption of Work in the Coal Pits — Election Activity.

London, July 14.—The most threatening clouds in the industrial sky have been cleared away, and for the time being there is nothing to prevent progress towards an industrial revival. The last big difficulty was disposed of by the engineers' ballot, which, by a majority of 66,000 accepts the employers' proposed wage cuts.

A general resumption of work in the coal pits has taken place, but the miners are already complaining that some coal owners are not paying the minimum wage. Official figures show that 179,000 tons of coal were raised during the 13 weeks the miners were on strike.

Politically the Laborites are showing great activity in preparation for a general election, when the Labor party expects to run 500 candidates, including women. Mass propaganda conferences are being organized throughout the country.

"I think it my duty to tell you how much your medicine has done for me. I suffered for three years with terrible Eczema. I consulted several doctors and they did not do me any good.

Then, I used one box of 'Sootha-Salva' and two boxes of 'Fruit-a-tives' and my hands are now clear. The pain is gone and there has been no return. I think it is a marvellous cure because no other medicine did me any good and I tried all the remedies I ever heard of, without benefit until I used 'Sootha-Salva' and 'Fruit-a-tives.'

'Fruit-a-tives' cooled the blood and removed the cause of the disease, and 'Sootha-Salva' completed the cure."

The Mattress with a Thousand Little Springs

Why many little springs instead of a few big ones?

Because big springs hit you in spots—while many little springs support your body evenly, caressingly, wherever it touches the mattress.

Few big springs roll, sag, squeak and break your rest.

Many small springs support without resisting—envelope your body with rest as soft as a summer cloud.

In a Marshall Mattress every little spring is encased in its own little cotton sack—it is silent.

The Marshall Mattress is ventilated—it breathes in fresh air.

Marshall Sanitary Mattresses are guaranteed for five years.

Cholera Infantum

Cholera infantum is one of the fatal ailments of childhood. It is a trouble that comes on suddenly, especially during the summer months, and unless prompt action is taken the little one may soon be beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets, are an ideal medicine in warding off this trouble. They regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach and thus prevent all the dreaded summer complaints. Concerning them Mrs. Fred Rose, of South Bay, Ont., says: "I feel Baby's Own Tablets saved the life of our baby when she had cholera infantum and I would not be without them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealer or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Ontario Will Borrow Five Millions

Toronto, July 15.—Faced with the impossibility of getting a term loan at anything like the rates his judgment would advise him to accept, Hon. Peter Smith has decided to resort again to borrowing upon treasury notes to tide the Government along for a month or two in the hope that conditions in the money market will improve. The Treasurer is calling now for tenders upon $5,000,000 of six months' six per cent. treasury notes which will be received up to the 25th of this month. In awarding the issue, Hon. Mr. Smith is going to put into effect an innovation in handling tenders on bond or note issues, for on the 25th all tenders will be publicly opened in the presence of representatives of all the bond houses tendering.

The present $5,000,000 issue will only partially relieve the financial problem of Ontario's Treasurer. A conservative estimate of the money needed to carry the province to the end of the year is $30,000,000, of which $10,000,00 is needed to retire an issue of $10,000,000 of treasury notes that comes due next fall. Originally the Treasurer had figured upon getting a big loan floated in the New York market, but conditions there now are such that borrowing is out of the question. If there was a reasonable certainty that the exchange situation would right itself in a year or two, the present advantage in exchange would make borrowing possible, though not attractive, but at any rate available now would become a decidedly unfavorable one if exchange on interest coupons, payable, of course, in the United States, had, to be figured on for a number of years.

If the money markets show any improvement by fall, Hon. Mr. Smith may try to place a ten or fifteen-year loan, but unless the improvement comes further, treasury note issues will be sold.

Death of Pullman Porter Will Ever Remain a Mystery

N. Z. Jones Killed at Prescott—Fell From Train—No One Saw the Accident.

Prescott, July 16.—In spite of thorough investigation by the coroner's jury, the death of N. Z. Jones, colored, of 1652 Fulton Avenue, Chicago, a Pullman car porter who was picked up in a dying condition on the Grand Trunk tracks here on July 7 following the passage of the International Limited, remains as much a mystery as ever. Apparently no person, not even a fellow-employee on the train, was witness to the accident, and the cause of his death can only be conjectured.

Circumstances related to the jury sitting here yesterday under Dr. C. F. McPherson, coroner, justified, however, the return of a verdict of accidental death by falling from the train by Foreman R. N. Dowsley. Jones, it appears, informed another porter that he would leave his car, the Mount Elbert, to secure some water at the well located just east of the station. He was seen to proceed towards the platform of the car, and those on the train knew nothing more of him until he was missed at Brockville. It was then thought that he had been left behind at Prescott and not until the train reached Gananoque Junction was the news of his death received.

One of Survivors of Hospital Ship

LONDON MAN COULD QUALIFY AS WITNESS AGAINST SUBMARINE OFFICERS

London, Ont., July 14.—Though he was one of six Canadian survivors from the hospital ship Llandovery Castle, sunk by the German submarine officers who are now on trial in Leipzig, Sergt. Arthur Knight, of 22 Wyatt Street, has not been summoned as a witness. Sgt. Knight, before returning to Canada, was summoned before King George to tell his experiences. The sergeant, who was then a member of the C.A.M.C. unit staffing the hospital ship, found himself in the water near the submarine after the explosion. He swam to the German war vessel and attempt to climb aboard, when by order of an officer on deck, two members of the crew picked him up and threw him back into the ocean. Later he was picked up by one of the lifeboats on which the Germans were firing.

A BOYS' WORK ATHLETE

Mr. Hagerman was born in Cobourg and at the age of 15 moved with his parents to San Bardino, California. He entered the collegiate of that place and graduated in 1903. He then entered Occidental College, of Los Angeles, from which place he obtained his degree of B.A., in 1906. He was a great athlete in his college days. He played baseball, football, and took part in track athletics, and it was at the latter he met with the most success. Hagerman specialized at the running broad jump and in 1904 was intercollegiate champion of North America. In this year he was selected a member of the United States team for the Olympic games held in St. Louis in connection with the games of the Y.M.C.A. international meet was held and he was a member of the champion ship relay team.

In 1906 at the intercollegiate games held in Southern California, he made a record of 23 feet 4½ inches that still stands for that district. That year found him selected by the late James E. Sullivan of the A.A.U. of A. as second member of the running broad jump squad for the Olympic games at Athens, but owing to examinations, and it being graduation year, he had to decline that honor. Later in the year he went as a member of N.Y.A.C. to the open world's championships held at Stamford Bridge, London, England, and finished second in the running broad jump to O'Connor, the champion.

In 1906 he was a great debater, and was chosen to represent the state of California at the National Interstate Debating Contest, held in Minneapolis in 1906, and brought the honor to the Golden Gate State. His baseball career was also a bright one, for, while playing first base for Occidental College in 1905 he was offered a contract by a scout of the Philadelphia Athletics. He turned down the offer, preferring to finish his college education and devote his time to work among college students and boys' work in connection with churches and the Y.M.C.A.

After giving some time to service among college students he went to Los Angeles in 1909 and took up work among boys from the age of 16 to 21. in 1910 he was college secretary of the State of California. He returned to Canada in 1911 and was made provincial rural secretary of the Y.M.C.A. and travelled through the province organizing work among the boys. He returned to California in 1912 and did student work at the Leland-Stanford University. When the new Central "Y" in Toronto was completed he was made an offer of a position which he accepted, and has remained in the city.

LOG CABIN CAMPS, ALGONQUIN PARK, ONTARIO

In Nominigan Camp and Camp Mineasing the Grand Trunk has created log cabins camps similar to those of Maine of world-wide fame. There is the large central lodge or meeting place, and in close proximity to it there is a series of log cabins, all built of cedar logs with the bark on, chinked with cement and moss and thoroughly in keeping with the natural beauty of their location. The central lodge and the cabins are simply comfortably furnished and have modern conveniences, with bathrooms and hot and cold water. In the Ojibway language Nominigan Camp means "the camp amid the balsams" and it is a very appropriate description, for the region is rich in this aromatic growth. Nominigan Camp is situated on the easterly shore of Smoke Lake, seven miles by stage from the Highland Inn, one of the largest and most attractive of the Park Lakes. Camp Mineasing in the Ojibway language means "Island Camp" and is situated on Island Lake, 10 miles north of the Highland Inn. Illustrated descriptive literature telling you all about these camps can be had on application to any Grand Trunk Agent or C. E. Harning, District Passenger Agent, Toronto, Ont.

The Cotter's Saturday Night

(Section 2.)

But now the supper crowns their simple board,
The halesome parritch (porridge), chief of Scotia's food:
The soupe their only hawkie (cow) does afford,
That 'yont the hallan (inner wall) snugly chows her cood:
The dame brings forth, in complimental mood,
To grace the lad, her weel-hained kebbuck (well-saved cheese), fell,
And aft he's prest, and aft he ca's it gude:
The frugal wifie, garrulous, will tell,
How 'twas a towmond (twelvemonth) auld, sin' lint was i' the bell (in flower).

The cheerfu' supper done, wi' serious face,
They, round the ingle (fire) form a circle wide:
The sire turns o'er, with patriarchal grace,
The big ha'-bible, ance his father's pride:
His bonnet reverently is laid aside,
His lyart haffets (gray cheeks) wearing thin and bare:
Those strains that once did sweet in Zion glide,
He wales (selects) a portion with judicious care:
And "Let us worship God!" he says with solemn air.

They chant their artless notes in simple guise:
They tune their hearts, by far the noblest aim:
Perhaps Dundee's wild-warbling measures rise,
Or plaintive Martyrs, worthy of the name,
Or noble Elgin beets (adds fuel to) the heavenward flame,
The sweetest far of Scotia's holy lays:
Compared with these, Italian trills are tame;
The tickled ear no heartfelt raptures raise;
Nae unison ha'e they with our Creator's praise.

The priest-like father reads the sacred page—
How Abram was the friend of God on high:
Or, Moses bade eternal warfare wage
With Amalek's ungracious progeny;
Or how the royal bard did groaning lie
Beneath the stroke of Heaven's avenging ire,
Or Job's pathetic plaint, and wailing cry:
Or rapt Isaiah's wild, seraphic fire;
Or other holy seers that tune the sacred lyre.

Perhaps the Christian volume is the theme—
How guiltless blood for guilty man was shed:
How He, who bore in heaven the second name,
Had not on earth whereon to lay his head:
How his first followers and servants sped,
The precepts sage they wrote to many a land:
How he, who lone in Patmos banished,
Saw in the sun a mighty angel stand;
And heard great Bab'lon's doom pronounced by Heaven's command.

Then, kneeling down to Heaven's Eternal King,
The saint, the father, and the husband prays:
Hope "springs exulting on triumphant wing,"
That thus they all shall meet in future days
There ever bask in uncreated rays,
No more to sigh, or shed the bitter tear,
Together hymning their Creator's praise,
In such society, yet still more dear;
While circling time moves round in an eternal sphere.

Compared with this, how poor Religion's pride,
In all the pomp of method, and of art,
When men display to congregations wide,
Devotion's every grace, except the heart!
The Power, incens'd, the pageant will desert;
The pompous strain, the sacerdotal stole:
But, haply, in some cottage far apart,
May hear, well pleased, the language of the soul:
And in His book of life the inmates poor enrol.

Then homeward all take off their several way:
The youngling cottagers retire to rest:
The parent-pair their secret homage pay,
And proffer up to Heaven the warm request,
That He, who stills the raven's clamorous nest,
And decks the lily fair in flowery pride,
Would, in the way his wisdom sees the best,
For them and for their little ones provide:
But, chiefly, in their hearts with grace divine preside.

From scenes like these old Scotia's grandeur springs,
That makes her loved at home, revered abroad:
Princes and lords are but the breath of kings,
"An honest man's the noblest work of God":
And certes, in fair virtue's heavenly road,
The cottage leaves the palace far behind:
What is a lordling's pomp? a cumbrous load,
Disguising oft the wretch of human kind,
Studied in arts of hell, in wickedness refined!

Oh Scotia, my dear, my native soil!
For whom my warmest wish to Heaven is sent!
Long may thy hardy sons of rustic toil
Be blessed with health, and peace, and sweet content!
And oh! may Heaven their simple lives prevent
From luxury's contagion, weak and vile!
Then, howe'er crowns and coronets be rent,
A virtuous populace may rise the while,
And stand a wall of fire around their much-loved isle.

Oh Thou! who poured the patriotic tide
That streamed through Wallace's undaunted heart,
Who dared to nobly stem tyrannic pride,
Or nobly die, the second glorious part,
(The patriot's God, peculiarly thou art,
His friend, inspirer, guardian, and reward!)
Oh, never, never, Scotia's realm desert:
But still the patriot, and the patriot bard,
In bright succession raise, her ornament and guard!

Arthur Stringer a Canadian

FEW Canadian authors are more widely known than John Arthur Stringer. He was born in London, Ont., in the year 1874. His book "Lonely O'Malley" gives a good idea of his boyhood. He received his education at the London Collegiate and was there partially civilized, so he declares. He then went to the University of Toronto, then to the University of Oxford. After leaving Oxford he spent a year and a half in Germany. Mr. Stringer began publishing his poems at the age of sixteen. His first poem was published in Goldwin Smith's paper, "The Week," and a kind and encouraging note from Mr. Smith fired the youthful poet with the ambition to follow the thorny path of literature. His second poem he sold to the Canadian Magazine. While at the University of Toronto he contributed a great deal to the "Varsity" and did sketches for Saturday Night. Mr. Clark of the latter paper was the first to pay him money for his stories.

After returning from Germany Mr. Stringer accepted a position on the Montreal Herald at a dollar per day. After leaving the Herald he accepted an editorial chair with the American Press Association. His first novel, "The Silver Poppy," was written and published, and feeling he needed more time to spend on his writing, he resigned his position and became a free lance. Harvey O'Higgins, Arthur McFarlane and Arthur Stringer then clubbed together and rented the top floor of a tumble-down, old mansion on lower Fifth avenue, New York. Here they wrote to their hearts' content, and tried to scare the fabled wolf from the door. What poet does not have trouble with that savage beast? Mr. Stringer sold his first three stories in a bunch for $25, on the condition he was paid cash, as the three young writers were desperately in need of the money. In the next studio was Ernest Seton Thompson, who appeared very prosperous and famous to the struggling young scribes.

Slowly but surely they made their way, even taking the matrimonial venture. Then, tiring of New York and longing to be with his own people once more, Mr. Stringer left the skyscrapers and came to Canada, purchasing a beautiful farm at Cedar Springs, on Lake Erie, seven miles from lovely Rondeau. Here, at "Shadowy Lawn," was peace and quiet to be found as well as inspiration.

Mr. Stringer is very fond of traveling, and generally spends his winters in globe trotting. One winter he spent in Southern California, where he wrote the life of Mary Pickford for the Motion Picture Magazine. Another winter he spent in lovely Florida, another cruising the Caribbean Sea and visiting South America. One winter was spent in Paris and Rome, and one in Sicily, but he is always glad to come back home to Canada again.

Several novels have been published by this popular author. They are: "The Silver Poppy," "The Wire Tappers," "Phantom Wires," "The Under Groove," "The Gun Runner," "The Shadows," "The Door of Dread," "The Hand of Peril," "The Prairie Wife," "The Prairie Mother." His last book, "The Prairie Child" is appearing serially in the Pictorial Review and will come out in book form in the spring of 1922. In this book we will once more meet charming Cherdie McKail and find out how Peter and Duncan win out.

As a poet Mr. Stringer is as famous as a novelist. His volume, "The Woman in the Rain," runs the entire gamut of human emotions. "Sappho and Leucadia" is imaginative, passionate, and artistic work of surpassing quality. He has published several volumes and, although he is not at present publishing poems in magazines, he has not given up poetry by all means. He is working from time to time on a volume of poems that will be published next year, and on a second volume for 1923.

He is keenly interested in the Canadian Authors' Association and hopes it will have a beneficial influence. He has also had some of his books produced on the motion picture screen. Whether the pictures do Mr. Stringer's work justice I cannot say, never having had the pleasure of seeing them.

He at present resides during the winter in Chatham, and has two charming little boys—Bob and Barney. Bob asked the other day why he should be spanked for telling stories, while his daddy got money for doing the same thing. Mr. Stringer was just getting ready for a four-week trip through the Northwest, ten days canoeing down the Peace river, a few days in the Rockies, and then a detour down the Pacific coast to Vancouver, where he will no doubt find setting for a new novel. He wishes young people never to forget that he wants to be reckoned as a good Canadian, and will always remain so.

A Large Sturgeon.

A sixty-five-pound sturgeon, five feet ten inches long, was recently caught in the Red Deer river at Drumheller, Alberta, by some miners fishing near the Midland mine. Five men in all were required to get it to dry land, gradually playing it into shallow water, when one of the fishermen cut its throat. The fish is thought by old-timers to be the largest caught in the river at Drumheller. Another, presumably of the same size, was seen in the water at the time this fish was caught.

The Healthy Man Has the Best Chance

Is Always Full of Life and Energy—Failures Are Weak and Bloodless

Some men seem to have all the luck. If there are any good things going these men seem to get them. If they are business men they are successful; if they are workmen they get the foreman's job. They have the power of influencing people.

The same is true of women. Some have the charm that makes men seek them out; others are neglected. But this is not luck. It is due to a personal gift—vitality. Men and women of this sort are never weak, puny invalids. They may not be big, but they are full of life and energy. The whole thing is a matter of good blood, good nerves and good health. Everyone would wish to be like this and the qualities that make for vitality and energy are purely a matter of health. By building up the blood and nerves, sleeplessness, want of energy, weakness of the back, headaches and the ineffectual sort of presence which really comes from weakness can be got rid of. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have made many weak, tired men, vigorous, and many pale dejected girls and women, rosy and attractive, by improving their blood and toning up their nerves. If you are weak, low-spirited or unhealthy, try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and note their beneficial effect.

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NEW PHOTOPLAY HOUSE FOR TWEED

Tweed, July 15.—Arrangements have just been completed for the leasing of the Opera House to the Mac-Ray Theatres for every Monday and Friday each week. They have one desire—to give to the populace of the towns and the best Motion Pictures. In exhibiting in the small towns they are touching a field that exhibitors usually gave a wide berth. They felt that the people would not support them in their efforts, that the proposition would not be a paying one. The Rae-Ray Theatres have satisfied themselves that the people will support, and do appreciate high class moral pictures. They have received the support of the communities. They feel they will get the support of the citizens of Tweed.

STEPPED ON COP'S TOE; IS ARRESTED

IN times of adjustment when people consider carefully what they get for every dollar they spend, a product of merit, properly priced, receives just consideration. Also the standing and reputation of a manufacturer is given much thought in times like the present. These are the reasons why the great Studebaker factories are taxed to capacity to meet the present demand for Studebaker cars.

Called by Death

JAMES C. PHILLIPS

The Clare Standard, published at Clare, Mich., in a recent issue had the following reference to the death of a former resident of Hastings County:

A gloom was cast over this city and vicinity when James Canniff Phillips departed from this life Thursday, June 30th, 1921 at the age of 69 years, 7 months, 16 days, Clare losing one of its most active workers.

Mr. Phillips was born in Hungerford, Ontario, November 4, 1851. On September 27, 1877 he was united in marriage to Margaret Louise Brown. Three years after they moved to Michigan and settled on their farm at Lansingville now known as Herrick. They cut the road to their new home, working hard and diligently in all the labors pertaining to pioneer life until the Lord called him to a higher work. So in 1893 he with his companion joined the 6th Michigan Crusade Band continuing in the work for six and a half years. Returning to the farm they remained until four years ago when poor health made it necessary for them to sell and they located in Clare where they have resided until Mr. Phillips was called to his reward. He leaves to mourn their loss four brothers Richard and Daniel of Belleville, Ont.; William of Stoco, Ont.; and Frederick of Clare and a devoted wife. On account of poor health the Ontario brothers were unable to attend the funeral. The services were held from the Methodist church on Saturday afternoon in the presence of a large delegation of friends and neighbors. Interment was made in Cherry Grove cemetery.

"He may, George, but I really don't know what to do."

Buckley was as pale as a corpse. He brushed his brow with a quivering hand.

"God knows I have nothing to offer you," he said in a low tone. "And it was wrong for me to thrust myself on you as I have done tonight. Your friends will laugh at me for my desperation, but I don't care. Goodby. I shall never trouble you again."

"Oh, George"—but he had turned and was walking away in the darkness. She stifled a groan of pain, and then went into the house. She saw her mother and Mrs. Dunleigh in the drawing room under the prismatic chande- Mrs. Cranston. "Almost too independent to be a favorite with men, but women adore her. She's very exacting—wants men to be more perfect than they are. I really think she admires George Buckley, and she won't help me with Lydia a bit."

When Kitty returned to Lydia she found her in bed, the gas burning low, her face to the wall. Kitty disrobed noiselessly and got into bed. She lay still for a moment, then she said suddenly:

"Look here, are you—well, I declare, you are crying!"

There was no response. Kitty was quiet for several minutes, then she rose. "In the excitement of it all," she said, "I forgot to say my prayers. I'd better get it done. Those two women fell into my trap with a dull thud just now. I'll tell you about it in the morning."

Lydia still made no sound nor movement to indicate that she was awake, but Kitty knew she was. Kitty knelt at the bedside for several minutes; then she rose, with a sigh, and got back under the covers. "If it will do you any good," she said, "I'll tell you I've been praying about this thing. I don't believe God pays the least attention to people who pray about wet weather in dry season or dry weather in wet, but somehow I believe he listens when you call his attention to real downright heart suffering. I told him I was at the end of my rope and that he ought to try to help you and George out of the mess you are in. You are both too good and sweet and noble to"— There was a sudden catch in Kitty's voice, and a sob struggled into her throat and shook her from head to foot.

"Now, what's the matter with you?" Lydia suddenly exclaimed, and she turned over and put her arms about her friend. "Don't, don't, Kitty!" Then they cried silently together until they fell asleep.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

THE next morning, after his return from Atlanta, George met Bascom Truitt at the warehouse.

"Brought yore mother in with me," he said. "I left 'er up at the postoffice readin' a letter. She'll be down directly. I missed you at the reunion, but I heard you was on hand. Lord, I missed the sidewalk, they tell me! I met some old friends that kept me full to the neck through the whole business. I couldn't toot my bugle."

"That's one way to celebrate," George said, with a smile, as Truitt was turning away.

A few minutes later Mrs. Buckley came into the office. She wore a checked gingham sunbonnet and it was pulled well down over her face. In her hand she held a letter. By her silence and agitated manner George knew she had received unpleasant news. He placed a chair for her near his desk and resumed his own seat, wondering what could have happened.

"You have a letter from father," he said tentatively.

"Not from him, George, but it's from up thar. It's from the prison doctor." She was silent a moment, then she continued: "Yore pa's bad off, George. The doctor thinks he's had a serious attack. It's that old hurt place in his head that he got when he fell off the wagon fifteen year ago. The doctor cayn't tell how it'll come out, but he says I'd better be up thar. Yore pa keeps axin' fer me. I cayn't refuse 'im, George." The speaker suddenly paused and applied her handkerchief to her eyes.

"Well, you can go, of course," said George.

"Oh, kin I?" she exclaimed. "I was afeard you wouldn't want me to. I'd rather go, George. I sorter hardened my heart agin 'im when he was stout an' well, but now he's sufferin', I want to be with 'im." She broke down and began to cry again.

"There is nothing on earth to hinder you," said her son, who was deeply touched by her emotion, "and if you want me to do so, I'll go, too, mother. He's my father—the only one I ever had, and"—

"One of us will be enough," said Mrs. Buckley. "But, George, I've been studyin' since I got this letter. I never thought of it before, but I never knowed yore pa to do a dishonest act till he had that fall an' hurt his head. I read in the Index t'other day whar a good man had got a lick in the head an' it made a demon out o' him till the doctors operated on him an' cured 'im. Oh, George, it may be that a-way in yore pa's case, an' them twelve men an' the judge jest sent a pore sick man off fer what he couldn't help. It wasn't managed right. Somebody ought to 'a' fetched up that point. He mighty nigh made life unbearable fer us all, but the chain gang wasn't the place fer a man in his condition."

She had pushed back her bonnet and her gray eyes were flashing rebelliously. George was deeply moved.

"That's right, mother," he said admiringly, his fine face aglow, "stick to him. I remember, when I was a very little fellow, that he was kind and gentle with me, and although he treated me pretty badly after I grew up I never could forget that period. Yes, you must go to him and do all you can for his comfort. I'll pay for it."

"Oh, George, George!" the old woman cried, standing up. "It don't seem right fer you to"—

"I want to do it, mother," he said simply and firmly. "You must take the night train, and remember, you are to spare no expense."

"I said I felt relieved to have 'im go off," whimpered Mrs. Buckley, "but after awhile I missed 'im, an' ef I could 'a' had 'im back without the responsibility of what he'd do I'd 'a' been willin'. When me 'n' 'im got married it was so different. George, I'd 'a' picked yore pa out of a thousand men. I was so proud of 'im, an' was the happiest woman alive fer several years ller in close conversation, but she passed on and ascended the stairs to the room assigned to herself and Kitty. The latter was unfastening her hair before a pier glass and came forward, her hands extended.

"Don't let it worry you, dear," she said simply.

Lydia made no reply, sinking, pale and miserable, into a chair and covering her face with her hands.

"I say, don't let it worry you," said Miss Cosby. "But the whole thing makes me fighting mad."

"Mad?" said Lydia, looking up almost hopefully at the unexpected outburst.

"Yes, mad," said Kitty. "Why should that young god of a man be kicked and sneered at by our world, forced to sneak around behind rosebushes merely to see the idol of his dreams step into her carriage, while a half bald, sallow faced creature receives her under palm trees, in the glare of electric lights, in the perfume of costly flowers and amid the plaudits of a squirming, low necked, white shirted mass of hero worshipers—hero worshipers, indeed!—when George Buckley, the kind of hero we know, is left out in the cold?"

"Oh, Kitty, you are a darling!" The color was running into Lydia's wan face. Her eyes were gleaming as they had not gleamed that night. "But papa? What about him? What would you do about him?"

"What would I do about him? I'd make him change his pills. I don't think he has any more heart disease than I have, and mine flops as regular as a clock, except when George Buckley comes near, with those big, dreamy eyes of his. Lydia Cranston, I told your mother I wasn't going to influence you either way, but if George Buckley wanted me like he wants you he could have me at the drop of a hat. God doesn't bring up real men in velvet lined cradles; he simply gives them the chance to bring themselves up. I know where your stand tonight, Lydia. Secure in the joy of George Buckley's love, you are drifting away from it. You are in danger, my girl—in danger of losing the very thing you treasure above all else. You think you can obey your parents and always retain George Buckley's love, but as sure as fate, while you are now all a woman could be in his sight, if you degraded yourself by marrying Telfare he would gradually cease to love you and would transfer his giant heart to some other woman. I'd hate to be second choice; but, as God is my judge, I'd like a chance to make that man thoroughly happy. What do I care about his family? Napoleon said he was the first of his name, and George Buckley may be the first of his."

Lydia looked up sharply and fixed a steady glance on the face of her friend. "You are actually in love with him," she said. "What right?"— She suddenly covered her face.

"Oh, don't be a goose!" Kitty said. "We've got work to do before we go to bed. Your mother and Mrs. Dunleigh are now rolling a delightful morsel of gossip under their tongues. I can hear their mumbling voices. I have an idea. I can't sleep until I have rid their minds of the belief that George Buckley was hiding on the lawn to catch sight of you. That's the sort of thing women love to circulate. Wait. I'll fix 'em, and then we'll go to bed."

Descending the stairs and entering the drawing room a moment later, Kitty overheard Mrs. Cranston saying: "Yes, that accounts for it. He was not invited and was simply jealous and desperate over not seeing her, so he stole into the grounds, and"—

"Oh, my, what an imagination you have, Mrs. Cranston!" Kitty laughed heartily. "But you are away off. Mr. Buckley explained it to Lydia. He was going by here, returning from a stag party down the street. He saw the carriage pass and noticed the wheel coming off. He called out—I thought I heard some one—but could not attract the attention of the driver. He tried to catch up, but could not do so until he was in the grounds, then the wheel came off, and we were flopping about in each other's laps."

"Oh!" Mrs. Cranston exclaimed disappointedly.

"Well, that does seem more reasonable," said Mrs. Dunleigh. "I can hardly imagine lovers, this day and time, doing the other thing. It's rather too stagy—too romantic, don't you think?"

"Well, I really don't know what we are going to do with Lydia," sighed Mrs. Cranston. "She didn't seem to enjoy herself a bit tonight. Just think of it! Why, I could hear whispering all over the rooms, 'Where is she? Is that her? My, ain't she pretty! They say that necklace has been in her family for 200 years. Have you been introduced?' And yet the object of it all sat on a divan half the evening talking to a married Presbyterian minister, who didn't even have on an evening suit."

"Really, I was proud of her," declared Mrs. Dunleigh. "She's just a pure, sweet, unspoiled girl, and everybody knew it by her modest, shrinking That's why she created such

Canada's Reparation Bill Fixed at $300,000,000

CONFERENCE OF EMPIRE PREMIERS ARRANGE DIVISION OF REPARATION MONEY DUE FROM GERMANY—DOUBT EXPRESSED AS TO POSSIBILITY OF GERMANY PAYING ANY SUBSTANTIAL SUM.

LONDON, July 16.—Canada's share of the reparations which Germany is to pay the British Empire has been fixed by the Prime Ministers' conference at $300,000,000. Under the decision of the Supreme Allied Council, the total German reparations bill is placed at 6,500,000,000 pounds, or roughly speaking, thirty billion dollars. Of this gigantic sum the British Empire is allotted 22 per cent., and under the decision reached today, Canada is to receive 4.5 per cent. of the British total. This works out at about $300,000,000, or in other words, it represents about one-eighth of the Canadian national debt.

Whether Germany will be able to pay the whole or any substantial part of this, and if so when, is a different matter. Sir Robert Horne, the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, who took part in the negotiations which resulted in Canada receiving a share as announced, is understood to be hopeful that the Germans are and will be in a position to pay a considerable amount, but on the other hand, a great many financial authorities hold the view that the collection of any substantial sum will be difficult if not impossible.

The division of the British share is made on the basis of casualties, pensions, expenditure and the loss of shipping by the various portions of the Empire.

Four Years For Sinking Hospital Ship

MEN RESPONSIBLE FOR SINKING OF LLANDOVERY CASTLE SENTENCED AT LEIPSIC

Leipsic, Germany, July 16.—Lieut. Dittmar and Lieut. Boldt, charged with murder in the first degree for firing on lifeboats after the Canadian hospital ship Llandovery Castle had been torpedoed in the summer of 1918, were each sentenced today to four years' imprisonment.

The sentence did not, however, carry hard labor with it, as demanded by the public prosecutor. The case of Dittmar and Boldt differed from the others which had been heard by the supreme court here in connection with trials growing out of violations of the rules of civilized warfare, inasmuch as the two lieutenants were brought to trial by the German public prosecutor.

Great Britain only had demanded the trial of Commander Patzig of the submarine which torpedoed the Llandovery Castle, who fled the country. The public prosecutor, however, after an examination of the evidence, ordered that Dittmar and Boldt be placed on trial.

STILL HUNTING

On Every Hill is a Little Still In San Juan

San Juan, P. R., July 16.—There are 10,000 stills in operation in the island, in violation of the Volstead Act and local laws, in the opinion of the prohibition director's staff.

This opinion is substantiated by a recent statement of Antonio R. Barcelo, president of the Senate.

The prohibition director's office holds that so long as light fines and sentences are imposed, rum-making in the island cannot be suppressed.

Toronto Man Found Missing When Ship Docks

ARTHUR IRWIN, AGED 63, AT ONE TIME OWNER OF TORONTO BALL CLUB

Boston, July 16.—Arthur Irwin, an old time ball player, former manager of Cincinnati and New York teams and more recently manager of teams in New England leagues, was reported missing by officers of the Metropolitan Liner when when she docked to-day. Irwin, who had been under treatment for an illness of long standing, was a passenger from New York last night .He could not be found on arrival here. His baggage and some of the clothing he had worn were found in his stateroom.

Irwin was with a party of friends aboard the steamer. Members of the party said to-day he was depressed when he left them before mid-night.

Irwin was 63 years old and a native of Toronto, Ont. He grew up to baseball proficiency on the sand lots in the South Boston district here and in the period from 1873 to 1890 was a crack infielder for local amateur nines teams at Worcester, Providence, Philadelphia and Washington before retiring at a member of the Boston players league club, for which he was shortstop when it won the championship pennant of 1890.

He became manager of the Cincinnati Reds within a year or two and in subsequent years managed the Washington, Philadelphia and New York clubs until he bought the Toronto club of the Eastern League to establish himself in his native city. He held the Toronto franchise from 1895 to 1896, after which he returned to major league management with the Washingtons.

Steps Taken to Revive Petrograd

Reval, Esthonia, June 28—The Russian Soviet Council of Labor and Defense has taken urgent steps to revive Petrograd, which even the Bolsheviki themselves have recently termed a "dying city."

Thousands of workmen, confronted by starvation, and realizing that Moscow was favored over Petrograd in the matter of food distribution, have recently left the city, with the result that scarcely enough man-power was left to operate what few factories could be provided with fuel.

At a session of the All-Russian Centeral Executive committee held in Moscow a few days ago it was decided to give Petrograd preferential privileges in regar to fuel and transport, to place Petrograd in the same situation as Moscow with reference to food supplies, to establish a special district from which food suplies should be drawn solely for the use of Petrograd and to enjoin all of Russia to come to the aid of Petrograd in the matter of food and fuel supply. A special commission, headed by Premier Lenine and including Zinovieff, Governor of Petrograd, was named to carry out the work.

It was declared that only one-sixth of the pre-war number of industrial enterprises were in operation in Petrograd. The population is said to number less than 700,000, a little more than a third of the pre-war figures.

The committee also decided to include Petrograd to a greater extent than had been contemplated, in the general electrification scheme.

Jolly Bunch of Jack Tars Make Port

WAVE CREST, OUT OF TORONTO, HITS HIGH SPOTS ON LAKE ONTARIO, SEEKS SHELTER IN CITY HARBOUR

Thirty-six jolly tars from Toronto invaded Belleville to-day and were immediately given the freedom of the city. This bunch of fresh-water sailors arrived on the Wave Crest, a tidy little schooner of 110 feet length by twenty feet beam, a craft which as a private yacht has sailed many seas and put into many strange ports. Recently the Wave Crest was used as a training ship for Navy League cadets, now it is owned by Mr. Strathdee, of Toronto, and on the present cruise is manned by a boisterous bunch from Central Y.M.C.A., Toronto, boys, big and little, ranging from eighteen to twenty-three years of age with a couple of older heads to leaven the lump.. Capt. J. A. Kneale of Toronto Central Y.M.C.A. is in charge of the party which left Toronto on Saturday, was becalmed outside of Cobourg and after many vicissitudes of high winds and no wind at all, reached Belleville Monday morning and hove to for a few hours as the wind was howling great guns outside the bay and blowing in an unfavorable direction.

The objective of the cruise is the Thousand Islands with Gananoque as headquarters and the bunch is sure having the time of their lives. On Sunday religious services were held on board with sermon by Rev. Mr. Gaetz, of Woodstock, who will be remembered as the spiritual adviser of Norman Garfield, the convicted murderer, recently executed at Woodstock Gaol.

The Wave Crest is well fitted up for comfort with cabins and sleeping bunks and while the cruise is being made under sail the craft is provided with auxiliary gasolene engine for emergency use. A capable navigator is in charge and the bunch just pitch in and do whatever there is to do from taking a reef to helping the chef wash the dishes.

The Wave Crest anchored off the Government Wharf.

Capt. Warrie ,of Owen Sound is at the wheel.

CAMBRIDGE WINS FROM OXFORD IN AIR

Hendon, Eng., July 16.—As a preliminary to the one hundred mile aerial derby set for this afternoon, an inter-university air race took place between representatives of Cambridge and Oxford. The course was three times around a forty-mile circuit touching Hendon, Epping and Hartford. The race was won by Cambridge on points.

Poison Victims Are Recovering

MRS. MARY BRIGDEN AND THREE DAUGHTERS ARE "DOING NICELY"

Kingston, July 18.—Mrs. Mary Brigden and her three daughters, who have been seriously ill of strychnine poisoning in the Hotel Dieu, are reported to be all doing nicely. The daughters are thought to out of danger, and the mother, whose life was at first despaired of, is improving, and has now more than an even chance to recover.

That Mrs. Brigden planned to make away with herself and children is indicated by the fact that, following the order of the court giving her husband, who has not been living with her, the custody of the two younger children, she purchased a quantity of strychnine at a local drug store, on the pretense that her home was infested with rats, and she wished to poison them.

Then, when the husband and Inspector Pollie of the Children's Aid Society went to get the two younger children on Friday morning, the mother is reported to have said that they would never leave the house alive. The explanation that the four are living is that they did not a large dose, and that they were given prompt medical attention.

The father is a Canadian Pacific Railway conductor now living at Trenton and well capable of maintaining his family. He was naturally desirous of having his daughters with him.

PORT OF DISCORD

Fiume Still Causes Trouble in Jugoslavia Politics

Fiume, July 16.—Fiume lingers in the doldrums so far as resumption of the once world-renowned trade of this port is concerned, while the new state of Jugoslavia is pressing forward in an effort to take the trade with America that Fiume held before the war.

Political quarrels in this city and international disputes keep the wharves of Fiume idle but in Jugoslavia a company has been formed to establish a line of steamers to operate from Spalato, Ragusa and Cattaro to New York.

Already small steamers are being operated along the whole Dalmatian coast under the Jugoslav flag but they do not touch at Fiume, formerly the chief port for this trade.

The Italian suggestion of a consortium for the management and amalgamation of the port of Fiume and the port of Baross, has been rejected by the Jugoslavs, who claim complete sovereignity over the port of Baross and with it the town of Sussak, all of which, they contend, is in keeping with the treaty of Rapallo.

An Italian naval commander, Captain Foschini, has been designated by the Italian government to take charge of the city of Fiume in an effort to adjust the differences between the contending groups inside the town.

Get Four Years

Leipsic, Germany, July 16.—Lieut. Dittmar and Lieut. Boldt, charged with murder in the first degree for firing on life-boats after the Canadian hospital ship Llandovery Castle had been torpedoed in the summer of 1918, were each sentenced to four years imprisonment.

Prisoners Revolt Fired Penitentiary

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press Limited

Pittsburg, July 17.—Five riot alarms were turned into the police and fire departments from Western Penetentiary this afternoon. First reports were that the prisoners had revolted and fired buildings, which are located on the Ohio River in lower part of old city of Allegheny. Nine companies immediately responded to alarms and police reserves were hurried to the penetentiary.

Heavy Drinker Saved The City

HISTORIC PAGEANT OF "THE MASTER DRAUGHT" RENEWED

Rothenburg, Bavaria, July 17—Thousands of visitors gathered at Rothenburg this year to attend the historical festival, "The Master Draught", which is given annually in celebration of the preservation of the historic old town from destruction when Tilly captured it in 1631, after the surrender and retirement of Gustavus Adolphus' forces which co-operated with the villagers.

After the Passion Play, which is given every ten years at Oberammergau, the Rothenburg festival is probably the best-known of all the Bavarian folk plays. Nearly all the 7,000 inhabitants of the picturesque walled town participate in the brilliant festival, which continues throughout the most of the day.

The play opens in the valleys surrounding the fortified city. By degrees the actors make their way to the city gates, enter the narrow streets and finally terminate the performance in the city hall, where burgomaster Nusch saved the town from destruction by taking three liters of wine at one draught in response to the challenge of Tilly.

Every day at noon the residents of Rothenburg are reminded of Burgomaster Nusch's feat. When the great town clock in the city hall square sounds 12, doors beside the timepiece open and lifesized figures of Tilly and Nusch appear. The burgomaster lifts a goblet to his lips and when it is emptied the two figures disappear.

Naval Questions Are Shelved by Premiers

DECISION RENDERED INEVITABLE BY HOLDING OF WASHINGTON CONFERENCE

London, July 16.—As the result of the informal discussions of the past few days, the naval question will be shelved by the conference of British prime ministers. This course has been urged by Premier Meighen from the beginning, and its adoption has been rendered inevitable by the decision to have the disarmament conference at Washington. It is probable that some form of resolution will be passed, but it will have no relation to policy, or any contemplated action, and it will commit the respective dominions to nothing.

It is not at all improbable that the question of the time and date for the discussion of othen matters in connection with the proposed constitutional conference will be left in abeyance. The Canadian Press is in a position to state that this is the view held by at least two dominion premiers, both of whom, curiously enough, subscribed to the resolution of 1917 urging the holding of a constitutional conference as soon as possible after the war. The argument they now use is that with the international situation now in a state of flux, the question of devising machinery suitable to the changed status of the empire, with its attendant danger of throwing the whole question into the vortex of domestic politics, can safely be delayed. In a word, their position is to leave well enough alone.

It is known that General Smuts strongly disagrees with this view. In the last general election in South Africa he practically pledged himself to secure certain reforms.

Premier Meighen will sail for Canada on Thursday next. If the Pacific conference is held here—which now seems unlikely—he will return for it. If, on the other hand, it is held in Washington he will attend it there. Today the Canadian Premier goes to Cardiff, Wales, to visit friends, and on Monday he will be in Edinburgh to receive the freedom of the city and an honorary degree from the university.

LABOR MEN TO ATTEND MEETING AT TORONTO

Ottawa, July 16.—President Tom Moore, of the trades and labor congress, of Canada, at the meeting of the allied trades and labor council urged the necessity of labor having a representative at the meeting at Toronto on Tuesday, of the Ontario minimum wage board. The executive committee was authorized to co-operate with the unions concerned, and to lend financial assistance if required, so that labor shall be represented at this meeting.

Allisonville Farmer Takes His Life By Hanging

TEMPORARY ABERRATION GIVEN AS CAUSE OF RASH ACT—MR. McPHEE, THE VICTIM, A MIDDLE AGED MAN, WAS IN COMFORTABLE CIRCUMSTANCES — HANGED IN HIS BARN.

While apparently suffering from temporary aberration Mr. McPhee, a farmer residing at Allisonville, Prince Edward County, on Sunday took his life by hanging. No other motive except as above mentioned can be given for the rash act, as Mr. McPhee was in no way despondent or in financial difficulties. He formerly resided at Gravenhurst and only recently purchased the place where he was residing.

It appears that Mr. McPhee arose as usual about five o'clock Sunday morning, and it is stated that his wife made the remark that it was the Sabbath day and also intimated to her husband that he should be attired in a clean shirt. He replied that it was not necessary for him to put on a clean shirt.

About half an hour later Mrs. McPhee arose and after attending to some household duties she went to the barn where she was horrified to find her husband hanging from a rope which had been fastened above the large doors of the barn. An alarm was sounded and nearby neighbors came and assisted in taking the body down. A physician was summoned but his services weer of no avail as life was extinct when the body was taken down.

Mr. McPhee was a man about 50 years of age and much respected by all who knew him. His untimely death is regretted by a large circle of relatives and friends.

Conference With De Valera Postponed For Day

MAY BE HALTED UNTIL ULSTER PREMIER CONSULTS FURTHER WITH HIS CONSTITUENTS — LLOYD GEORGE RETURNS TO LONDON TO RESUME NEGOTIATIONS FOR SETTLEMENT OF IRISH TROUBLES.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, July 18.—Postponement of the Irish negotiations until tomorrow at least, appeared likely this morning when it was learned that conversations between Lloyd George and Eamonn de Valera, the Irish Republican leader, might be halted until Sir James Craig, Ulster Premier, had been given an opportunity for further consultations with his followers.

Mr. Lloyd George returned early this morning from Chequers Court, his country home, but late this afternoon no decision had been reached as to whether he would be able to meet De Valera today.

PROGRESS WILL BE SLOW.

In view of the secretiveness of all those principally concerned in the Irish negotiations, this morning's editorial comment generally is cautious in referring to the outlook, but some writers venture the belief that any definite outcome is not to be expected for some time yet, and intimate that Sinn Fein leaders are not inclined to hasten the deliberations.

The Daily Mail, to substantiate its belief that the conference now going on between Prime Minister Lloyd George and Eamonn de Valera will be a long-drawn-out affair, hints that Mr. de Valera will have to return to Dublin for a consultation with the Dail Eireann leaders after Lloyd George has given the final expression of the Brit'sh Government's attitude concerning the entire Irish situation.

LONDON, July 18.—General Smuts, South African Premier, who had a prominent part in the early formal negotiations which brought about a truce in Ireland and the peace conference now in progress, reappeared today as a factor in the Irish negotiations.

Mr. Lloyd George had been at his official residence in Downing Street only a short time this forenoon, after his return from the country, when Viscount Fitzalan, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, called at Downing Street and had a long talk with the Prime Minister, during which they were joined by General Smuts, the conference continuing for more than an hour.

General Smuts has not figured previously in conversations which have been going on at Downing street since the truce went into effect. It was learned today that the Prime Minister and General Smuts had a long discussion on the situation at Chequers Court yesterday. It was General Smuts' Dublin trip which is believed to have had much to do with bringing the Irish delegations to London for the peace conference.

Eamonn De Valera, the Irish Republican leader, in response to an invitation from Prime Minister Lloyd George, called at No. 10 Downing Street, the Prime Minister's official residence, at 4.15 o'clock this afternoon to confer with Lloyd George on the Irish question.

ONTARIO WILL FIGHT DOMINION IN COURT

Kenora, July 15.—Accusing Premier Meighen of breach of faith in introducing the Lake of the Woods Bill, Premier E. C. Drury last night expressed uncompromising opposition of the measure. "I see no course open," he said, "but to fight with every means in my power legislation which would rob Ontario of its rights to water-power-control. On this there can be no compromise or yielding. Two methods are open. One is to resort to the law courts, which we intend to do (and I am sure we shall be successful), and the other is to take the opinion of the people on the question.

BOWMANVILLE CLAIMS OLDEST MAGISTRATE

Bowmanville, July 13.—A despatch from St. Thomas in The Globe of yesterday claiming that Police Magistrate Hunt of that city becomes the oldest Magistrate in active service in Ontario with the retirement of Police Magistrate Col. G. T. Denison of Toronto is incorrect. Police Magistrate William M. Horsey of Bowmanville has the honor of being the oldest Magistrate in the Province, being 88 years of age. He has held his present position for 29 years, having been appointed February 14, 1892.

Bull Fighting is Hated [redacted]

By Spain's English Queen,

[illegible] Who Dare Not Oppose It

"IT was blood and flowers on my wedding day; it is blood and flowers to-day!" So mourned Dona Victoria Eugenia of Spain to Antonia Maura in the royal palco in the bull ring of Santander, by the Cantabrian Sea. And as she spoke, the British-born Queen of Spain turned away with a shudder from dreadful sights in the glaring arena below, and buried her face in a big bouquet of roses.

An enormous fighting bull of the [illegible] breed had just caught the matador, Varguta, on his terrible horns and whirled him into the air, as an angry child might a discarded doll.

Queen Victoria's life in Spain has been a weird one ever since King Alfonso brought his British bride to Spain.

The despotic Government of Spain—or rather the political machine which Canovas and Sagasta built between them forty years ago—is resolved to keep the people ignorant and amused. Hence an illiteracy rate which exceeds even Russia's record. In the Malaga and Granada provinces, where the so-called "analfabetismo" reached 80 per cent. Hence the bloody bullfight, which has been so fearful an ordeal for Spain's Queen, who was born and bred in a land where cruelty to animals is a penal offence, and the mark of personal blackguardism besides.

[illegible] QUEEN OF SPAIN.

It seemed too easy a problem for young Princess Ena to solve, when she considered the bullfight and her future share in it before that blood-soaked May-day of her marriage. "I shall simply stay away from the Plaza de Toros," the princess told her royal lover at the Villa Mouriscot in Biarritz, where the young king wooed her, with the Conde del Grove and the Marques de Viana doing duty as male "duenos."

But Alfonso knew his people better than his sweetheart did. "We must attend bullfights," he told his [illegible] consort in the country palace of La Granja, where they passed part of the honeymoon. La Granja was not long ago burned down—another link in the long train of Spanish tragedy!

"To frown upon the national festival of Spain," Don Alfonso pursued, "is to court unpopularity with the masses." Moreover, everything must needs go smoothly if the State Treasurer was to put through that annual grant of 450,000 pesetas for the new foreign queen.

The new Queen of Spain pondered these words. In her heart she abhorred the cruel spectacles and was filled with shame that these brutalizing contests should be the national sport of Spain.

At first she contemplated making an open stand against bullfighting. It seemed to her that those in high places should be the ones to set their faces against it. What better example could the new queen set for her people than to refuse to encourage these debasing spectacles by her presence? She would refuse to attend the bullfights. The royal box should be conspicuous before all the multitude by the absence of the queen.

But those close to her at the Spanish court reasoned with her. They pointed out that she was a foreigner and the people were as yet uncertain as to what would be their attitude toward her. She was told that she did not understand the Spanish people and the Spanish character. Furthermore, she must remember she owed loyalty to her husband and to the Spanish royal dynasty.

These arguments finally overcame the queen's determination to refuse to attend the fights. There seemed to her no escape. She must not only be present and sit in the royal box where all could see her, but she must play her part without sulking.

When the bloodthirsty tormentors of the bull saluted her from the arena she must arise and return their salute with a smile. When the poor horses were caught on the horns of the wretched bull and fell disembowelled in the arena she must not only not turn her face aside, but must join the applause of the multitude. And when the skilled swordsmanship of the matador finally plunged the cruel steel into the heart of the tormented and distracted bull she must arise and lead the applause.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

DOROTHY DALTON IN SIR JAMES BARRIE'S "HALF-AN-HOUR"

Dorothy Dalton, for several years one of the leading stars of Thomas H. Ince, makes her debut as a stellar light of the Famous Lasky Corporation in Sir James M. Barrie's "Half-an-Hour", a Paramount photoplay, which will be shown at Griffin's to-night to Wednesday. Henceforth she is to be starred exclusively in Paramount productions and some of the best stories obtainable have been purchased for her use.

Miss Dalton's rise in pictures has been steady, until to-day she is one of the greatest favorites with motion picture audiences. Persuading her father to send her to dramatic school instead of in pursuit of a legal career as he preferred, she began her stage experience in support of Virginia Harned in stock and later played ingenue roles with Hart Conway and Wright Huntingdon. This was followed by several seasons in vaudeville in her own act. With such a foundation, it is no wonder that her rise was rapid after she became a member of Thomas H. Ince's company. As Lady Lillian in "Half-an-Hour", she is an aristocratic young wife and she unquestionably adds another character achievement to her repertoire. Others in the cast include Charles Richman, Frank Losee and Albert Barrett.

A new chapter of the mystery serial "Velvet Fingers", featuring George Seitz and Marguerite Courtot, a good comedy, and other varied attractions are being exhibited on the same program.

TOBACCO AND HEALTH

Eminent Surgeon Advises Regularity in Smoking

"Smoke the same quantity of tobacco every day" was the advice of Sir James Cantlie, K.B.E., the eminent surgeon, when speaking on "Tobacco and Health" in London recently.

Sir James said that a few days previous to his address he read of a man who when he died was more than 100 years of age and who smoked one ounce of tobacco per day. Probably if that man had cut his allowance down to half an ounce one day and one ounce the next day he would not have lived so long. Smokers should not vary the amount of tobacco day by day.

He had seen men in the rifle competition at Wimbledon shooting whilst they were smoking. Even if they were not actually smoking, they had pipes in their mouths, because they found it steadied their nerves. The man with a pipe between his teeth felt a certain amount of security.

Speaking of the pleasure to be derived from tobacco, Sir James Cantlie said he was sure that it was far more pleasant to be in the company of a smoker than of a man who did not smoke. Life would be much more pleasant if everybody smoked.

DROPS OVER 1,000 MEN

Niagara Falls, July 16.—Because some portions of the work on the Chippawa canal are considerably more advanced than others, over 1,000 men have been let out by Hydro officials. These officials explained that the work is up to schedule and that it is simply a weeding out process that is going on.

The Swimming Pool

J.W.X.—When in Toronto last week I wanted a duck in the cool waters and was advised to go to High Park Mineral Baths, and before the $5,000 Corby Bequest is spent I am sure it would be very wise for a committee to visit these swimming pools. They are patronized by thousands, with two huge cement tanks, diving boards and numerous appliances to assist learners as well as first-class swimmers. One tank is from 5' to 8' deep the other much shallower, for learners and kiddies. A similar arrangement could easily be used in the centre of Victoria park—and I think it would surpass any arrangement that could be made—using the Bay water and keeping it fresh and clean at all times.

Some Rush

F.R.W.—I got off the Grand Trunk train that arrives in Belleville at two-something in the morning, and was faced with a half-dozen taxi drivers shouting Taxi! They were all looking and yelling at me and I began to think I was a rather-important-personage—buo on looking around saw I was the only passenger to alight at Belleville. This has happened twice with the writer and I thought how sensible it would be for the taxi men to form a schedule whereby they could take turns in meeting the night trains.

The Steamer Brockville

H.E.L.—Having heard much of the splendid trip to Presqu'ile via the Steamer Brockville, a party made up of four adults and six children, decided to make the trip. With lunch basket packed, kiddies all het up, the first leg of the journey—home to the wharf—was made in great time, reaching the wharf 15 minutes before the scheduled sailing time, when, to the annoyance of the adults and great disappointment to the kiddies, who were on the verge of tears, we were informed there was no room, and the boat steaming away ten minutes before scheduled time. It seems a pity that a better service could not be made during the summer from a city the size of Belleville, as there must have been a hundred people turned away yesterday. It does not matter so much, perhaps to grown ups, but think of the disappointment to the kiddies.

FORMER KAISER VERY UNPOPULAR

Doorn, July 14.—The former German Emperor is ignoring the repeated demands for payment of his municipal taxes, on the plea that his stay here is involuntary, to which the municipality retorts that it has not the slightest objection to his departure.

The former ruler is daily becoming more unpopular; he cannot show himself in the roads without being hooted and jeered, whereas a few months ago he was regarded with pity or indifference.

Steamer Strikes Rock in St. Lawrence Rapids

STEERING GEAR FAILED TO RESPOND AND VESSEL WAS DRIVEN ON ROCKS OFF BARNHART'S ISLAND—329 PASSENGERS LANDED IN LIFEBOATS GUARDED BY LIFE-LINES THROUGH SWIFT WATER.

Cornwall, Ont., July 17.—The palatial steamer, Rapids King, of the Canada Steamship Lines, Limited, was beached on Saturday at the head of Barnhart's Island in the St. Lawrence River, about ten miles west of Cornwall, as the result of an accident which befell her about 12-45 p.m. on Saturday. The vessel was, however, gotten off the rocks at 6-30 Sunday evening and went down the river under her own steam. All of her 329 tourist passengers were removed from the ship by the middle of the afternoon. They had been detained on board the vessel from the time the vessel ran aground. When the passengers and baggage had been removed it was found that the boat could be worked off the rocks, and she was safely turned around. The steering gear had been repaired during the day.

Steering Gear Failed

The boat had on board about 329 passengers and a crew of 75, making a total of 404 souls, as well as three or four automobiles. Everything went well from the time the steamer left Prescott, until she was between a quarter and a half mile from completing her trip through the Longue Sault Rapids. Then the steering gear went out of commission, refusing to respond to the efforts of the pilot, and the big boat lurched to one side. The turbulent waters of the rapids caught the vessel and twisted her nose upstream at an angle to the north-west and drove her stern fully twenty feet on the rocks at the head of Barnhart's Island. There was naturally some excitement among the passengers, about two hundred and forty of whom were women, but considering the circumstances and the position the boat was left in, everybody behaved remarkably well. Capt. Geo. Batten, who was in command of the Rapids King, is a veteran of the river, and he went about assuring his passengers that they were in no immediate danger, and that as soon as arrangements could be made all would be transferred safely to the mainland and sent on their way. About 1-30 p.m. Capt. Batten and the Purser, W. M. Bourke, of Montreal, had one of the vessel's lifeboats launched in the stream, which is estimated to flow at a speed of nearly 25 miles an hour at that point. The attempt was a hazardous one in such waters, but the Captain desired to reach Cornwall to communicate the facts to the company's offices in Montreal. Attempts to guide the lifeboat were futile, and the occupants had nothing to do but trust to fate to see them through, with the hope that they would land at a point near Cornwall. The boat was allowed to drift and finally did land west of here in safety.

Taking Off The Passengers

Nothing could be done in the way of rescuing the passengers before Sunday morning, by which time a lifeboat and two lines had been arranged between the island and the ill-fated steamer. The lifeboat first left the steamer with four passengers at 8 Sunday, two of whom were George A. Leriche, purchasing agent of the Chicago Joliet Electric Railway Company of Joliet, Illinois, and his wife. The lifeboat was pulled to the island and then hauled back to the steamer again for the next load, the list of passengers being finally increased to eight at a time. The process was slow and rather dangerous, as the lifeboat had to be handled with great care and taken ahead with the swift current to avoid capsizing, and in this connection great credit is due Capt. Batten and the two wheelmen for the careful manner in which they looked after the operation. When the island was reached the passengers were faced with 50 or 60 feet up a steep bank before the level of the island was touched. The tourists were then conveyed across the island in automobiles and ferried to the mainland and landed at Maple Grove. Here they were met by more autos and were brought to Cornwall and taken to the King George Hotel.

Nobody Suffered

On Saturday night the officers of the Rapids King gave up thier staterooms to the women and children, while the male members of the passenger list made themselves as comfortable as possible on the cots in the saloon and on chairs about the decks, so that nobody suffered for a night's rest.

There were plenty of provisions on board the boat and more were sent across the span of water by lines, and the wants of all, as regards meals, were well looked after.

Two-thirds of the passenger list was composed of residents of the United States, who were out to enjoy the St. Lawrence and Saguenay River trips. They came from all parts of the Republic, even from as far away as San Francisco and California.

SEEKING A SITE FOR THE CORBY PUBLIC BATHS.

The late Senator Corby bequeathed five thousand dollars to provide public swimming pools for Belleville. Several years have passed since the death of Hon. Senator Corby, but the bequest has not been taken advantage of and the public swims and bathes, as usual, any old place from Zwick's Island to Lott's Dam, and in all kinds of dress and undress and no dress at all.

The provisions of the Senator Corby bequest for public baths stipulate that they shall be placed in Victoria Park, but every time the question has come up opposition to placing the Corby baths in Victoria Park has developed, it being contended that better and cleaner water could be obtained at Zwick's Island, and there was a proposition to apply to the courts for permission to deviate from the expressed desire of Hon. Senator Corby in his will.

The question has been reopened by a report from a committee of the Chamber of Commerce. This committee also passes up Victoria Park as a site for the Corby swimming pool and recommends a site near Cooper's Dam.

Now it seems to us that all the disadvantages urged against Victoria Park apply to Cooper's dam site, only with greater force, the water being lower there and full of all the dirt and refuse of the Moira.

There may be better places for a public swimming pool than Victoria Park, but none more convenient has been mentioned as yet, and if the children and grown-ups who would patronize such a place have to walk a mile or two or three they would surely need another bath on returning to their homes.

For our part we cannot understand why Victoria Park is not the best place under all the circumstances for the Corby public baths.

A citizen who has given considerable thought to the question suggests that the baths be placed at the outer end of Victoria Park, that they be open, consisting of a channel cut in the end of the park, with three swimming pools separated by gates and screens, the outer basin sloping to nine feet, permitting good swimmers to pass out into the bay if desired; the second basin being three feet in depth, and the inner one fifteen inches; dressing rooms for both sexes to be provided in connection, surmounted by a band stand.

Victoria Park is convenient, and the people's breathing spot, and the placing of the Corby public baths there will enhance the value of the park, besides providing a public necessity.

Hon. Senator Corby was familiar with the surroundings and circumstances and selected Victoria Park as the best place for his benevolence.

Up to date there has been no argument advanced against Victoria Park as a site for public swimming baths that is not more than offset by disadvantages appertaining to other suggested sites.

This matter should be settled, and settled quickly, but care should be taken lest a serious mistake be made.

To place the Corby public baths at Zwick's Island or Cooper's Dam in preference to Victoria Park would be a serious blunder, in the opinion of many Belleville citizens who have given the question serious thought.

Why not carry out the expressed desire of Hon. Senator Corby as it stands?

PORTAL OF PEACE ON PACIFIC HIGHWAY.

Commenting on the Canadian attitude toward disarmament the New York Tribune says today:

"In the Canadian reception of President Harding's disarmament proposals is special warmth, and well there may be. For more than one hundred years, the consequence of what Samuel Hill well calls 'the sacred faith of a scrap of paper,' there has been disarmament on the great lakes and along all the Canadian-United States border. Disarmament, as all Canadians and Americans know, can be made to work.

"Where the new Pacific highway, which is to extend from California's southern extremity to Alaska, passes the Canadian frontier into British Columbia, a peace portal is being built to span the road. Standing unbarred and undoored, it is to attest the great fact that peoples can be neighbors and not enemies. The dedication of the portal is to occur on Sept. 6 next, the anniversary of the battle of the Marne. It would be fitting, if distance did not forbid, for the delegates to the disarmament conference, when it assembles in Washington on Armistice Day, to pass in procession through the gate. Above they would read the inscription on one face, "May these gates never be closed," and on the other, "Open for 100 years." On the sides they will see the words, "Children of a common mother," and "Brethren dwelling together in unity." Yes, there is good reason for Canadians to hope that the disarmament conference will achieve something."

"A Warless World by 1923" is the slogan adopted by the Christian Endeavorers in international convention. Sounds good, but the C. E.'s would have a better chance to make good if they had placed the date farther ahead. Faith and works can move mountains, especially faith, but it takes time to get the works working.

What about the harvesters this year? The West is calling already, and will not call in vain this year, for there should be a great rush to make a grub stake for the winter, when any kind of work may be scarce.

SHACKLETON'S QUEST

London Daily Mail

Sir Ernest's feat in pushing, more than a decade ago, to within 100 miles of the South Pole marked him out as one of our greatest explorers. In his new expedition he intends to examine the Southern Seas, with their remote and rarely visited islands. He will search for the vanished land of New Zealand legend, which is said to lie in this waste of stormy waters, and probe the mysteries of a quarter of the Antartic zone which has strangely enough, been left so far unexplored. For the credit of our country she must lead in adventure and discovery, and this expedition should contribute greatly to her fame and to the furtherance of science, thanks to two public-spirited Englishmen, Mr. Rowett and Mr. Becker. By their assistance it has been possible to organize Sir Ernest's cruise of discovery to:

Dawn land for youth to reap,
Dim lands where Empires sleep,
And all that dolphined deep
Where the ship swings.

WHERE THE SETTLEMENT RESTS

Westminster Gazette

We cannot believe that Sir James Craig or the men of business who are behind Ulster politics will let this scheme be wrecked on Orange bigotry. Nor shall we easily believe that Mr. De Valera and Mr. Griffith are wholly without sense in regard to the Ulster situation. The establishment of the Northern Parliament is a fact which they have to reckon with and handle as statesmen. As a separate Parliament standing alone and isolated in the Six Counties it can only be a stage in Irish evolution; as a Provincial Parliament it will ultimately fit itself into a scheme which will give one Government to all-Ireland on all-Irish matters. To this we must come in the long run, and the question is whether we come to it a little sooner or a little later, through agreement now or through strife and bloodshed hereafter. No one can settle that question but the Irish themselves, and Great Britain will help best to its settlement by standing aside as far as possible and insisting on nothing on her own account except what is essential to the safety of the Empire.

"How could I?" answered Raymond. "You only gave me fifty cents." —Continent.

Mrs. Charmer and Miss Blunt met at the vicarage, as both were paying calls. Tea was served, and as Mrs. Charmer nibbled at her cake she murmured:

"I must say, my dear Mrs. Pastor, this cake is delicious."

The vicar's wife beamed. Then the two ladies left, and as they walked home Miss Blunt burst out:

"Really, Mrs. Charmer, how could you say that appalling home-made cake was delicious?"

"I didn't say it was," cooed Mrs. Charmer with a twinkle. "I only said, 'I must say so.' And one must you know."

ARMY OF HARVESTERS SHOULD TOTAL 40,000.

Ottawa, July 16.—Within another three weeks a little army of some 40,000 men will be speeding out to the farms on the prairies to give a hand in garnering and threshing the western crops. The employment service of Canada regards this number as a reasonable estimate since general expectations are for the best crop since 1915. Notwithstanding local existing conditions of unemployment in the prairie provinces, at least 10,000 more men should be needed in the west than were called for last year. It all depends upon another 14 days of favorable ripening conditions.

All transportation is to Winnipeg, and the employment service there is in telegraphic communication with the smaller centres. There will be no need for waiting in Winnipeg. The men will be able to choose their destination and leave by the next train. As a fair proportion of the men stay for the threshing, they can secure two good months of steady employment. Last year the rates of pay were $5 to $6 a day, but it is possible that the rates this fall will be somewhat lower.

FIELD CROPS GENERALLY PROMISE GOOD YIELD

Ottawa, July 16.—The total acreage sown of wheat throughout the dominion this year shows an increase of 421,726 acres over last year's figures, according to official agricultural statistics issued here today. The total this year is 18,651,100, against $18,232,374 in 1920. Generally speaking, field crops, with the exception of districts affected by the present drought, promise well.

In every province excepting Alberta and British Columbia there was a decrease in the acreage sown to wheat, but those two provinces made up the deficiency.

Alberta's increased wheat acreage amounted to 600,000 acres, and British Columbia's increase was less than 200 acres. All the western provinces show a decrease in oats, but the eastern provinces have an increase, the aggregate for the country indicating a decrease of 550,000 acres, the total acreage for this year being 15,295,000 acres, against 15,849,928 in 1920.

Barley is short some 95,000 acres, every province showing a decrease. Rye is shy in all the provinces excepting Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, the result of all Canada being an increase of 50,000 acres. The acreage in peas this year is 178,200 acres, as compared with 186,348 acres in 1920.

Hay and clover show an increased acreage and nearly 200,000 acres, alfalfa a decrease of 7,000, and potatoes a total falling off of 50,000 acres, all the provinces showing a comparatively small decrease in the last mentioned crop except Alberta, which is numerically stationary.

FLYING BOATS COMING

Permits have been granted by the Canadian Air Board for the passage through Canada of half a dozen aero-marine flying boats which are being taken from New York to Detroit by a company operating an aerial service in the United States. The only waterway by which these machines can be flown from New York to Detroit is via Montreal and Belleville, and in order to fly the boats across Canadian territory the owners must secure permits from the Air Board. The air boats, while they are allowed to fly across Canada, are not allowed to pick up passengers at Canadian points, though this was granted when the Santa Maria was allowed to fly through. Another large flying boat arrived at Alexandria Bay this week en route to Detroit.

During More Than a Decade

FOR OVER TEN YEARS Goodyear Tires have been made in Canada. During all these years only Christmas-New Year week ever silenced the wonderful machines for a seven-day period. More than five hundred weeks of production record the constant demand for a good product, growing better.

Goodyear quality never stands still. It is being improved constantly.

For instance, Goodyear is producing at New Toronto two new clincher tires—each better for its purpose than anything which has gone before.

The new Goodyear All-weather Tread Clincher (30 x 3½ and 31 x 4) is bigger, tougher, handsomer than even the famous All-weather Tread Tire which has been the most widely used tire in the world.

The new "Goodyear Non-Skid" clincher (30 x 3½) gives full Goodyear quality and mileage to the man who does not need the great gripping power of the All-weather Tread—and saves on the first cost.

These tires were developed by the same manufacturing spirit which produced the Goodyear Cord Tire—the highest development in tire construction—extremely long mileage with a bonus of comfort and fuel economy.

Over 4,000 Canadian dealers recommend Goodyear Tires for just the same reasons that a majority of Canadian motorists use them—long mileage and low cost-per-mile.

WHEN THE SUN BLUSHES.

Dull Red Appearance Due to Scientific Fact.

The dull red appearance of the sun when seen through a bank of yellow fog on a winter's morning illustrates an interesting fact of science.

No less than seven different colors—violet, indigo, blue, green, yellow, orange and red—are needed to make up a ray of ordinary sunshine. But these various hues travel on waves of light of different strengths, the velvet being the shortest wave and the red, which is the strongest, traveling twice as far.

In a fog the first six colors are not strong enough to penetrate, and the sun therefore appears crimson because only those rays are sufficiently powerful to pierce the atmosphere.

In the same way the sky is rosy at sunset, because the red rays, being the longest, are visible to the eye after the others have vanished.

If the order of things had been reversed we should have had sunsets of deep violet, and a blue sun would have been a common occurrence in winter.

When any part of the earth becomes heated by the sun's rays the air becomes thinner and rises. As it goes up a current of cooler air takes its place, thus causing the disturbance called wind.

Likewise, damp air — which is lighter than dry air of the same degree of heat—will also rise and cause a disturbance above and below.

It is for this reason that there is usually a breeze from the sea by day and from the land by night, the land being heated faster than the water and the fresh air from the sea coming in to take its place.

At night the process is reversed. The land cools faster than the water and the wind goes out to sea.

Because these processes are continually going on all over the globe the wind frequently gathers strength and attains the proportions of a gale.

What Is Coolest Hat?

However lightly one may be clad there is little comfort in the hot weather if the hat does not have a cooling effect. In this connection the Scientific American describes some interesting tests which have been made to determine the heating or cooling action of various kinds of hats commonly worn.

On a very bright day when the shade temperature was 96.8 deg. F. seven individuals were given hats, each one being of a different type. These were worn outdoors for two hours and at the end of this time the temperature inside the hat was taken.

In the case of a typical soldier's hat, made of cloth and with a hard peak, the reading was very high, being no less than 98. 6 deg. F. In an ordinary cloth cap it was 94.1 deg. Inside the hard round bowler the record was 92.3 deg. Contrary to expectation the silk hat came fourth on the list with a temperature of 89.6 deg. The hard straw hat was not very much cooler with a temperature of 86 deg. Very much more comfortable was the soft felt hat with a reading of only 79.7 deg. It was discovered that where the felt was black, or very dark in color, the air inside was much hotter than in the case of a light shade. The figures given are for a hat of a somewhat pale gray hue. The coolest hat was the soft straw Panama, which gave a temperature of 77.9 degrees.

Powdered Fish as Food.

When shark livers have been pressed for "cod-liver oil," or in other cases where oil is derived by like means from various fishes, there is left over a residue called "cake," which is commonly utilized as fertilizer.

A Japanese, Sadikichi Satow, has developed a process whereby this cake can be made available for human food.

The material is dried in a high vacuum at low temperature and ground to powder. An enzyme (inorganic ferment) is added, to render the albuminous part of it soluble; the latter is then extracted with water, reduced to dryness by evaporation in vacuo and again powdered by grinding.

The albuminous extract thus obtained in powdered form is available for the making of soups or for other culinary uses. It is, of course, very nourishing.

A Small Screw.

The jewel-wheel screw of a watch is so small that it is almost invisible. To the naked eye it resembles dust. With a glass, however, it is seen to be a small screw, with 260 threads to an inch, and with a very fine glass the threads may be seen clearly. These tiny screws are four one-thousandths of an inch in diameter, and the heads are double in size. It is estimated that an ordinary thimble would hold 100,000 of them. The screws are hardened and put in frames, about 100 to the frame, heads up. This is done very rapidly, but entirely by the sense of touch instead of sight, so that a blind man could do it as well as the owner of the sharpest eye. The heads are then polished in an automatic machine, 10,000 at a time.

Stone Cow of Alan.

The famous stone cow of Alan, France, is the centre of a fight between the ministry des Beaux Arts in Paris and the peasants of the village. The ministry has twice sold the cow, which dates back to the fifteenth century, and each time the buyers have attempted to remove it the peasants have fought with pitchforks and clubs to prevent its removal.

LIVING MECHANICAL.

How an Englishman Views Civilization of This Continent.

I have enjoyed nothing more in America than the mechanical civilization, writes W. L. George, the English novelist, in Harper's Magazine. One finds it everywhere. One finds a hint of it in the New York advertisements which offer to do your laundry for 12 cents a pound. (Shorten your shirts and keep down your laundry bill!) There is something fresh about that; there is something fresh in all the American devices. For instance, a shoeblack, after moistening my boots with liquid blacking, dried them with a small electric fan. I don't know that this dried them any quicker or any better than the wind, but I like the mechanical idea. I like, on railway platforms, to see little electric trucks carry the luggage, replacing men who shout and perspire. If this is excess, it is in the right direction—namely, toward the minimization of effort. The United States have done more in this way than all the other countries put together. For instance, the electric iron, price $8 or so, which is fitted to a light plug and enables the housewife to save its cost in a month by doing her own ironing. It also enables the poor girl, who has only one good skirt and two decent blouses, to remain smart. The iron is part of the American home, where I find other wonders—the linen chute, which saves the handling of linen and precipitates it into the linen room; the electric washer, that big drum, in which you can leave your linen to swirl among soapsuds and think no more about it; the electric wringer, which save you the trouble of squeezing the wet linen, and which is so delicate that you can intrust even lace to it.

This civilization is extraordinary, and takes extraordinary forms, such as the electric curling iron; the immersion heater, which enable you to warm your coffee when you have no coffee-pot by dipping a stick of metal direct into the fluid; and even the safety comforter, which you can connect with a plug and lay upon any part of yourself which aches. Everything has been thought of. More people in America are thinking of how to make life easy than anywhere else.

Imported Fruit.

In grocery and retail fruit stores all over Canada there may be seen whole windows full of tempting red apples priced at 60 cents a dozen or five cents an apple, and for this expensive fruit — as dear as oranges and almost as dear as grape fruit, neither of which may be raised in Canada—the merchants will tell you that they find plenty of buyers.

If the housewives buy the imported apple in boxes, which contain anywhere from 125 to 225 apples, they pay from $3 to $4 per box, yet if they are asked to pay $7 or $8 for a barrel of choice Canadian Northern Spies, the barrel containing just three times as much as the ordinary apple box, they are apt to throw up their hands in horror and refuse to buy the home fruit.

The results of this bad practice begin to be abundantly apparent. The latest official figures from Ottawa show that in the eight months of 1920, beginning in April and ending in November, importations of American apples into Canada rose to the value of $1,090,637, so it is amply apparent that in the twelve months just past we have imported at the rate of $1,250,000 worth of this fruit from the United States into a country which is reckoned as one of the biggest apple producing portions of the world.

Maltreated Commissioners.

A large deputation of Bulgarian Bolsheviki which recently visited Odessa was received with anything but brotherly kindness from their Russian brethren. The Red Guards, who in groups occupy all the streets of the city, deprived the majority of them of their boots. Soviet representatives in Odessa ignored them and consequently they were unable to obtain any food. So little did the Odessa Bolsheviki stand on ceremony that the agents of the Extraordinary Commission shot down a deserter on the deck of the ship by which the Bulgarians had traveled, in view of the whole delegation. The Bulgarians have returned to Varna much chastened, and very doubtful as to the good results to be expected from the introduction of Bolshevism into their own country.

A Large Library.

More than 100,000 volumes and almost as many pamphlets, etc., have been collected by the French Government and a building will be erected having five miles of shelving, says the Scientific American. The future historian will probably die in the first mile. The collection of manuscripts, photographs and war records is appalling as to numbers, and there seems to be no limit to the gifts of collectors. Princeton University and the University of California are especially strong on war material.

Perfume.

The center of the world's perfume industry is the town of Grasse, in the French Riviera. Practically every one in the locality is engaged in this picturesque vocation—cultivating the flowers, gathering the blossoms, or extracting the oil from which the scent is made.

For the first time in history, flour milled in China is being sold in the European market. A shipment has reached Holland and sales are being sought in other countries. China formerly was a large importer of American flour.

He Doesn't Feel Like Same Man

Doesn't Hesitate In Saying Tanlac Is The Best Medicine He Ever Saw or Heard Of

"Nothing ever helped me until I got Tanlac; and now I feel just like a brand new man." said William Clegg, 33 Bridge Street, Toronto, Ont.

"At the time I began taking Tanlac I had been gradually going down hill on account of a bad case of indigestion. My stomach got out of order and I could scarcely eat anything and finally had to limit myself to a diet of milk and other light foods. If I ventured to eat anything the least bit heavy my stomach hurt so bad I could hardly stand it. I had terrible pains in my right side and chest, and up in my neck and shoulders at times.

"I was continually taking something for constipation and had such headaches I was nearly blind at times. Often I got so dizzy I could hardly stand up, and as I had fallen off a great deal I was very weak.

"I saw a Tanlac testimonial that impressed me so that I decided to give it a trial. The first bottle helped me so much I got another, and kept on taking it until now I don't feel like the same man. My appetite is so fine I eat like a horse, and although I am eating anything I want nothing ever hurts me. I am free of constipation, all my aches and pains have left me and I just feel fine all the time. I don't hesitate in saying Tanlac is the best medicine I ever saw or heard of."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville at Ostrom's Drug Store.

WHAT TO WEAR

Not a Problem In Near East; Everything Goes

Constantinople, July 16.—What to wear isn't counted among Near East problems. Recently an American, newly arrived, made the round of the local stores for a bathing suit. Finally he found a pair of brief tights. When he complained that he wanted a two-piece suit, the merchant answered: "We can't afford to carry dead stock. Most people are satisfied without that much."

At the American Embassy there is one "High" or top silk hat which is at the common disposition of those civil officials who are obliged to have such an article on rare occasions, such as funerals of local dignitaries. The hat was discarded by a pre-war official.

PETERBORO JOLTED

Port Hope, July 16.—Peterboro's chances of winning the first schedule of games in the Central Ontario League were dashed by the lowly Port Hopers this afternoon. Jake Solomon and his crew swatted Port Hope last Wednesday by a score of 11 to 0, but today in the replay of a game which the local club won early in the season, and which the Peterboro team protested, the Port Hopers, who grace the botto mof the league table, set to in detom of the league table, set to in deto the tune of six to five.

The Petes started like whirlwinds, collecting five safeties in the first two innings, while Port Hope got three men across the plate. From then on it was a pitcher's battle, with Deer, of Port Hope, having the margin. He was ably supported, the Chalk brothers particularly playing wonderful ball. Fred Chalk robbed the Petes of a nice three-bagger by a running catch that had the fans on their toes. The Petes tried two pitchers without avail. Port Hope tied up the score in the fifth inning, and got across the winning run in the sixth.

This is the only game that Port Hope has won this year. They have defeated Peterboro twice, but the first was protested. Of course, Jake may protest this one yet, as he was very much in evidence in calling the umpire, Wilson, of Oshawa. So bad was it at one time that Jake was banished.

Nine Reasons Why Spinal Neglect is a crime

1. The backbone is the foundation of the body.
2. It is composed of 26 joints, 24 of which are movable.
3. From between these joints radiate the nerves of the body.
4. When these joints are in alignment the nerve openings are full sizes and the nerves deliver 100% of their power.
5. A nerve under pressure at the backbone opening causes disease in the part it serves.
6. Chiropractic removes the pressure by an adjustment by hand, and this adjustment opens the way for health (free nerve energy).
7. If chiropractic seems too simple to do all that it can do, remember that every phenomena of growth is caused by as simple a thing as heat.
8. To neglect the backbone invites disease, which is a crime because it is in violation of Nature's laws.
9. Don't be a criminal.

Few Really Have Stomach Trouble

MONDAY HEALTH TALK No. 36
By WM. P. REDICK, D.C. Ph. C.

Few really have stomach trouble due to stomach weakness. The stomach is part of the digestive tract which includes the secretory glands and linings of the alimentary canal, as well as the liver, pancreas, and other intestinal organs. The stomach will appear the seat of trouble when any of these related organs are weakened.

When the trouble is directly due to weakness of the stomach itself, there is pressure on spinal nerves at what is known as "stomach place." The bones of the spine at this point have become misplaced, and the opening between has become narrowed, thus causing the pressure and interference with the normal flow of nerve impulses. When by chiropractic spinal adjustments this pressure is removed, the normal vigor of the stomach returns and disease disappears.

HAD GASTRIC ULCERS
BUT IS NOW WELL

"A reputable local physician pronounced my trouble gastric ulcers. After three months, being unable to get relief I tried chiropractic. All symptoms soon disappeared and an X ray taken after adjustments showed the stomach cleared of ulcers."—William Matthews, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 1269C.

DOWN BY THE SEA

Improvements at St. Andrews By The Sea, But Quaint as Ever

Algonquin Hotel, N.B., July 16.—Summer visitors who come to St. Andrew's each year find many changes this season. Part of Water street has been curbed, a new brick and concrete building for the Bank of Nova Scotia is being erected at the corner of Water and King Streets, the streets and buildings are lighted by electricity, an up to date system of water works is being installed, street signs have been placed at the corners by the Passamaquody Chapter I.O.D.E., so that no longer is it a complicated process to direct the inquiring stranger. The block house, a relic of the war of 1812, is inhabited by a returned soldier, who has put the grounds and fortifications into such a condition that it is like a miniature park, while the Passamaquody Chapter I.O.D.E. has added benches for the comfort of scenery lovers. The Women's Canadian Club have been placing seats around several of the picturesque old trees that shade the streets. Commercially, also, St. Andrew's has progressed since last season. In addition to new shops for fruit, gifts and home-made sweets, there is an extremely modern and hygienic bakery which is already supplying bread to almost the whole of Charlotte county; but with all these improvements St. Andrew's still retains its quaintness, which is its chief charm. Last night there was a thunderstorm and earlier in the day showers. At noon the thermometer stood at sixty four, while Moutreal and Quebec showed temperatures of seventy-six and seventy-five.

VICTORY FOR BIRDS

Passage of Plumage Act Prohibits Importation of Bird Feathers

London, July 16.—Bird lovers have won a victory by the final passing of the Plumage Bill, which prohibits the importation into the United Kingdom of the feathers of any bird except those of the African Ostrich and the Elder Duck.

The bill is mainly designed to prevent cruelty in securing the feathers of such ornamental birds as Ospreys and Birds of Paradise.

The prohibition regarding importation extends to dead bodies of birds with the plumage on them, but does not apply to feathers worn by travelers or introduced in travelers' baggage, provided it can be shown that they are for personal use only.

Strenuous opposition had been offered to the passage of the bill by the trade interested.

DEATH BY ELECTROCUTION

The Napanee Beaver has the following reference to the untimely death of Marshall McQuaig, who was known to many in Belleville where he resided for some time. On Thursday morning the dead body of Marshall McQuaig, an employee of the Campbell House, was found in the cellar of the Campbell House, lying face down. Coroner Cowan was immediately notified and ordered an inquest. Evidence was produced as to the finding of the body and the probability is that Mr. McQuaig went down cellar the previous afternoon to turn off the water tap in order to repair a leak. Burns, evidently from the electric current, were found on the body. The Jury's verdict, which was not unanimous, was to the effect that the deceased came to his death in the Campbell House cellar between the hours of noon on July 6th, and 7.30 a.m. on July 7th, and that the cause of death was electrocution.

HIRING LOCAL MEN

Work is progressing steadily on the new Albert College with excavation well advanced and concrete foundations going in. A pleasing feature of the work in progress is the fact that the Carswell Company, the contractors, are employing Belleville workmen in preference to outsiders.

MOTORISTS CELEBRATION

According to the Toronto Star weekly there will be a demonstration on Tuesday, July 19, "a motorist gala day" celebrating the abolition of tolls on the bridge. Up to Monday morning Mayor Hanna had received no notification of the alleged celebration and other citizens were equally in the dark.

Later Mayor Hanna got in touch with Hon. Mr. Biggs, Provincial Minister of Public Works, that gentleman stated that he would be in Belleville at noon Tuesday. As the celebration had virtually been called off Mayor Hanna got busy at once and it is quite likely that the motorists of Belleville and vicinity will join with the Minister of Public Works and Ontario Motor League officials in formally signifying their approval of taking over of the bridge as a public ultility.

FINED $200 AND COSTS

Herbert Harrison who was arrested here some time ago and taken to Port Hope had his trial on Saturday. With a foreigner named Martin Bulkowiski he was charged with operating a still. Harrison was served with a summons but failed to appear and was later arrested in Belleville. The Magistrate informed the prisoner that had he obeyed the summons he would have helped his case considerably. The Magistrate considered the prisoners equally guilty and imposed a fine of two hundred dollars each. The costs in Bulkowiski's case was $35.60 and in Harrison's $37.50. The fathers of the young men paid the money

SPIRIT OF REVOLT GROWS

London, July 1.—There is a growing spirit of revolt among the more independent members of Parliament against the increasing frequency with which, it is alleged, the government imposes taxation without giving due consideration to the rights of the members of the House of Commons to be consulted in such matters. The distinguished soldier and doughty political fighter, Captain William Wedgewood Benn, has just introduced in the House a bill declaring that no tax should be levied for the use of the crown save by the House of Commons. Captain Wedgwood calls his bill the "Declaration of Rights Act, 1921".

The bill is backed by Sir Donald MacLean, Lord Robert Cecil and Sir Frederick Banbury. Nobody imagines that it has any chance of passing but if it should ever come before the House it will give some of the revolters an opportunity to say what they think about the government's methods of raising money from the taxpayers.

Father Finds Dead Bodies of Two Daughters

Ottawa, July 18.—Three Ottawa girls were drowned yesterday afternoon near the Chats Rapids. No one saw the drowning and there is only conjectures to go on as to how the fatality occurred.

The victims are Miss Alice Roy, aged 24, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Roy, 126 Express avenue, and her two cousins, Yvette Chatillion, aged eight, and Annette Chatillion, aged six, only daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Hector Chatillion of 117 Rochester street.

Mr. Roy is a civil-servant in the Excise Department of the Customs Department.

For some years Mr. and Mrs. Roy have had a summer cottage on an island near Fitzroy Harbor on the Ottawa. They have been staying there for some weeks. Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Chatillion and their family left Ottawa to spend the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Roy. They arrived at the cottage about 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Miss Roy who had been at the cottage for some days, took her two young cousins out to pick flowers. They returned to the cottage about 4 o'clock in the afternoon and presented Mrs. Chatillion with a beautiful bouquet. They left, expressing the intention of picking another bouquet for Mrs. Roy. This was the last anyone saw of them alive.

This morning about 5 o'clock Mr. Chatillion, who was still searching espied the body of his neice, Miss Roy, floating near the shore. A short time later, the bodies of his own two daughters were found by a neighbor. They were floating also near the shore, but about 300 feet farther down stream.

a furore, and why Governor Telfare is such a fool about her. When she declined to go out to supper with him and in such a sweet, natural way suggested that he take you instead, I was afraid he might be offended, but he took it beautifully, and—well, it did look better. She wasn't going to put herself in such a conspicuous position if she could avoid it, and, on the whole, I think she was right."

"Well, I'm going to bed," said Kitty. "You two hens can stay off the roost and cackle all night if you like, but I'm sleepy."

"She's an original creature," said Mrs. Dunleigh, when Kitty had left them. "I wish you'd share her with me."

"She's that way all the time," said after you was born. George, ef he gits well and serves his time out I think me 'n' 'im had better move off somers whar we don't conflict with yore interests. I see my duty clearer now. I'll stick to 'im fer better or worse as long as me or 'im lives."

George Buckley's head sank for an instant, then he looked up and gazed at her tenderly.

"There is nothing, mother, that can keep me from being with you and him. When his time is out we'll all live together. I've made up my mind on that point. He's a convict, and I want things different, but he's my father and you are my mother, and that settles it."

The old woman started away. She had reached the door, but turned back and stood near him. "George," she said huskily, "you are a good boy," and then she slowly walked away.

She came in about the middle of the afternoon ready for her train, and as he was walking with her to the station she surprised him with a confession.

"I don't think I ort to keep back a thing from you, George," she said, "an' I'm goin' to tell you some'n' I did that I don't feel right about."

"What was that, mother?"

"George"—she looked up hesitatingly, as if dreading his displeasure—"I seed Lydia Cranston ag'in. Jest a day or two before she accepted the governor's invite to Atlanta she driv out home in her buggy an' come in to see me. She didn't ax me not to tell you, but I'm sure she wouldn't want you to know. She told me all about her trouble, cryin' like 'er heart ud break. Her pa was in a critical condition an' wanted 'er to go, an' 'er ma was dingdongin' at 'er night an' day. She didn't say right out that she loved you, but her actions said it, an' she knowed I understood. She don't like that man a bit, but her pa wants 'er to marry 'im, an' she's afeard it will kill 'im ef she refuses. George, she axed me right out what I thought she ort to do, an' to save my life I didn't know—I couldn't tell. She told me she loved me, George, that her own mother never'd been good to 'er an' never understood 'er an' that she'd come to me fer advice. I hugged her up in my arms, an' she sobbed like a baby, but we never got no nigher solvin' the riddle. When she went down to the big party the governor give 'er, I thought maybe she'd decided to marry to suit 'er folks."

"She has," Buckley said, swallowing his emotion. "But let's not talk about it. That's all over, mother. She and I live in absolutely different worlds."

"No, you don't, nuther," said Mrs. Buckley. "She's jest a good, natural, lovin' woman that wants to do her duty accordin' to her lights, but thar is a sight agin you both, an' thar's no gittin' round it. A heap o' people blame a sin like yore pa's on a child, an' that family, folks tell me, has never mixed with crime o' any sort."

She broke down and began to cry again.

"It was all my fault," he answered sadly. "I ought not to have visited their house so much. My trial will come, mother, when she is Telfare's wife. I get desperate when I think of that."

"Well, try not to think of it," she said.

Her train was coming, and he went to buy her ticket. He found her a seat and then kissed her goodby.

"Telegraph if you need me," he said. "I'll come on the first train."

CHAPTER XXIX.

THE next morning, when George was alone in the office, a middle aged, hard faced countryman slouched in.

"Is this Hillyer's warehouse?" he asked.

"Yes," said George. "Anything I can do for you?"

"Well, not exactly fer me," said the man, "but old Squire Deck—I reckon you know him, over in Gilmer?"

"I know of him," George responded.

"Well, he sent me to ax ef you uns would let 'im put his will in your safe —that is, ef you got one; the squire didn't know whether you had or not." The man was looking about the room. "I don't see none, I'm shore."

"It's there in the vault," George explained, pointing to the big steel door.

"Oh, it's in thar? Well, I reckon it's good an' strong."

"One of the best in the country," George said, leaving his high stool and opening the outer door.

"One o' them com-combination locks?"

"Yes—that's it. Did you bring the paper with you? We are always glad to accommodate people."

"No; I didn't fetch it. He told me to inquire. I never did like the notion o' them combination locks, as fer's I'm concerned," said the man. "Too many folks has got the password into 'em. Now, a good, stout key that shoves a steel bolt into a good, strong socket is hard to beat."

"I'm the only one about here that knows this combination," Buckley explained politely. "We change it quite often too. Even Mr. Hillyer doesn't keep up with it unless I'm going away."

"Oh, well, I reckon it will be safe enough, an' I'll tell the squire about it when I go back."

The man turned out of the warehouse, crossed the railway tracks and walked on till he was in the woods on the edge of the village. Here he was met by two other men who, glancing about furtively, came out into the open to meet him.

* * * * * * * *

George had considerable work to do that night in the office. The safe was already closed and the front and rear doors of the building were locked and barred. Countrymen often came about the warehouse early in the evening, and, as he wished to be undisturbed, he closed the door to keep them from knowing he was there. He also closed the heavy wooden shutters of the front windows that the light of his lamp might not show through to the street. He worked on unconscious of the passage of time from 8 o'clock until near midnight. Suddenly he detected a sound like the crunching of a grain of wheat under foot, and, looking round, he saw three men standing behind him with leveled revolvers.

"What does this mean?" he asked, his eyes fixed on the rigid face of the man whom he recognized as his visitor of that afternoon. "Is this a trap?"

"That's about the size of it, young man," was the cool reply. "Now, you keep yore seat on that stool an' don't bat yore eye. The fool on my left's got a gun that's powerful easy on trigger, an' it's all he kin do to keep his finger up. Don't shoot 'im, Bill, till I've give 'im a chance."

"What is it you want?" George asked. He was not frightened, but the situation certainly was a grave one, and he felt that he had little, if any, chance for his life.

"We are mountain hoosiers," said the leader of the men, "but we hain't fools by a long shot. We know our business as well as you know yore'n, an' thar's no need tellin' you ef you don't git a move on yoreself an' open that safe you'll never open it ag'in."

"That's it, then?"

"Yes, that's it. This is one time when you've got to knuckle ur git the wust of it."

George glanced toward the front door.

"You needn't be lookin' fer a way out," said the mountaineer, "an' you needn't expect the night watchman to be pacin' along by here. He's dead drunk. I know, kase I furnished the liquor an' seed it take effect."

"So you think you can force me into this thing," said George. "Do you know, I'd rather die right here than let you rob that safe while it is in my care?"

"Oh, come off; you are no fool, Buckley. Open the safe. We are not here to palaver. At least say positive whether you will or not. I'll jest give you sixty seconds by that clock up thar. Boys, ef he don't open the safe in one minute from now pull down on 'im an' don't miss fer all you do. You'd ruther die, had you, Buckley? Well, we'll see if that's so or not. He's a chip off'n the old block, boys. His daddy couldn't keep his hands off'n other folks' things, an' his life wasn't at stake. He'll wilt, all right."

"So that's the reason you thought I'd give in," said George, now quite pale, his lips quivering.

"Well, that's one reason," said the man. "But what's the use o' talkin'? Time is passin'. Jest another half minute, boys. Git ready. He may be fool enough to want to defy us."

Hundreds of thoughts flashed through George Buckley's brain. There was, indeed, a large amount of money in the safe, and thousands of dollars of it belonged to poor people who had brought it to him and Hillyer in absolute faith as to its security. Could he give up their money to save his own life, and—

"Another quarter," said the leader of the men. "I'll count six, and ef he don't move when I say six, pull down together. Listen! That's the 12 o'clock train. Fire jest as it's passin', boys. We won't take no resk on the sound reachin' outside."

George heard the coming train. The rumble of it was felt in the walls of the building. The mountaineer was measuring its approach by counting slowly: "One—two—three—four"—

"Put down your guns," said George Buckley. "No man can expect another to sacrifice his life for a little money. I've done the best I can. Put down your guns."

"That's the talk, young feller. You are no fool. For a minute you tuck this thing so durn cool I thought you was goin' to commit suicide. But keep 'im covered, boys. We don't take no chances on him, nur no other chap."

A mother and three daughters are in hospital at Kingston from poisoning.

Farmers Sweep Alberta Stewart Gov't Defeated

U. F. A. CAPTURE AT LEAST THIRTY-SIX OUT OF SIXTY-ONE SEATS—LIBERAL GOVERNMENT GOES DOWN TO DEFEAT, NOT MORE THAN FIFTEEN LIBERALS BEING ELECTED—THREE CABINET MINISTERS DEFEATED, INCLUDING HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL.

CALGARY, July 19.—The Farmers are in the saddle in Alberta, the second province of Canada to send to its legislature a majority group representing the organized agricultural industry. The United Farmers of Alberta fought a battle with the Liberal Government of Hon. Charles Stewart on the broad issues of alleged iniquities of the old party system of politics, rather than the record or policies of the Stewart administration.

H. W. Wood is the elected head of the United Farmers of Alberta in its existence as a business organization. It does not follow, however, that he will become premier of the province. The name of Herbert Greenfield, Vice-President of the U.F.A., is prominently mentioned for the premiership, with that of George Headley, member-elect for Okotoks.

The latest election summary gives the standing of the parties in Alberta as follows: United Farmers, 38; Liberals, 15; Labor, 4; Independent, 4.

CALGARY, July 18.—The Farmers have swept Alberta. At ten o'clock tonight it was apparent that nominees endorsed officially by the United Farmers of Alberta had been elected to at least 36 out of the 61 seats in the Legislature of the Province.

This demonstration of their strength involved the defeat of the Liberal Government headed by Hon. Charles Stewart. The Liberal group in the next house will number not more than fifteen, and perhaps less.

Labor elected four and these can be added safely to the voting strength of the forthcoming Farmer Administration. Four Independents also made their way to the Legislature, including "Bob" Edwards, Editor of the Calgary Eye-Opener, who ran second in Calgary. No straight Conservative was elected. Gen. J. S. Stewart, the winner in Lethbridge, is described as an Independent Conservative.

Premier Stewart has six colleagues in his Cabinet. Three of them were defeated by U.F.A. candidates, and three elected. Hon. Duncan Marshall went down in Olds, Hon. A. McLean in Taber, and Hon. Geo. Smith in Camrose. Hon. J. R. Boyle, Attorney-General, was elected in Edmonton, but defeated by a Farmer in Sturgeon. Hon. J. L. Cote won his fight in Grouard, and Hon. C. R. Mitchell in Bow Valley.

Miners Still Seek in Vain For Gold

St. John, N.B., July 18.—From Victoria County comes the story of gold-hunters swarming over the country drained by the Wapshe River and panning the sands of the stream in search of the yellow metal. Prospectors are there from all parts of Canada and the United States; the most experienced miners of the continent are seeking to find gold that has been vainly sought for many years.

The Gibertson lode is what they are looking for. The story of that gold has been a favorite in New Brunswick for years and many a legend has centred about the lost lode.

As the tale goes a timber cruiser took a canoe party up the Wapshe sixty years ago to look over the woods on the upper waters. They passed a landing, known as Gibertson's now and some distance further on Gibertson went ashore and ordered the men with him to return to the landing. When he turned up again within two hours he had in his hand a glittering rock which he tossed into the canoe with the remark, "if that's gold, I can load a tow boat with it." The rock was brought to the settlement and for three years it served to keep a door open.

Stranger Starts Story

One day a stranger, a geologist, appeared on the scene and took notice of the door weight. He said it was filled with gold, and it is claimed that he dug enough nuggets out of the rock to make a ring for himself. The story spread through the district like wildfire, but Gibertson refused to tell where he had picked up the rock. Later he became insane and died without revealing the golden secret.

Since that time many expeditions have been formed to search for the vein, but no one has been able to locate it. This season a systematic search is being conducted and borings and pannings are being made extensively. The searchers claim to have made discoveries that indicate the presence in the district of large quantities of gold, but so far the location of the Gibertson lode remains a mystery.

De Valera is Marking Time

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press, Limited

London, July 18.—Eamonn de Valera, Irish Republican Leader, and his colleagues who accompanied him to London for the conference with the Prime Minister Lloyd George, in an effort to lay the basis of a tri-partite conference for the solution of the Irish question, are now marking time in anticipation of the conversation of de Valera and the Prime Minister, Thursday morning. It is reported that by that time Lloyd George will have certain propositions to present to the Irish leader which will have received the approval of the British Cabinet. The spokesman of the Irish delegates to-day characterized their attitude as "still not un-hopeful."

Wage Cuts Range From 5 to 20 P.C. In The Dominion

July Number of the Labor Gazette Contains Latest Industrial Statistics.

Ottawa, July 16.—From five to twenty per cent. wage reductions have taken place in the leading industries throughout Canada since the close of 1920. Statistics compiled for the July number of the Labor Gazette shows the decrease to be fairly universal.

In lumbering, wages had already been cut as much as twenty per cent. between September and January, and the tendency is still downward. In the metal trades, reductions for blacksmiths, boilermakers, and machinists have ranged from seven to twenty per cent.; sheet metal workers, pattern makers and moulders, from 7 to 11 per cent.; agricultural implement makers ten per cent.

SHIPBUILDERS.

In shipbuilding, the cuts have been from five to as high as 17 per cent. In the textiles, the cotton mills have reduced 5 to 12½ per cent. and knitting mills 10 to 20 per cent. Woodworkers' wages have come down from five to twenty per cent., furniture workers ranging from 10 to 15 per cent.

In the pulp and paper industries negotiations are mostly pending, in many cases a thirty per cent. reduction being under consideration; 15 to 20 per cent. reductions have been effected in other cases. In the rubber industry, six to seven, and in a few instances twenty per cent. Chemical industry five to twenty per cent., and boots and shoes have shown some reductions of ten per cent.

MINING.

Metal mining, 14 to 25 per cent., coal mining in Alberta 12½ to 16 per cent.; on Vancouver 66 and 70 cents a day.

In the building trades, where reductions have been effected they have been at the rate of from five to ten cents per hour, higher wages being cut more.

Reductions of 10 per cent. for civic laborers have been under consideration during the past months, and in some cases made effective.

In the manufacture of food and drinks, a few instances of reductions of 10 per cent have been reported recently. The most notable reduction was that of 12½ per cent., which was effective in the meat packing industry in March.

As compared with this five to twenty per cent. reduction in wages the cost of the family budget for a week in June, 1921, according to the Labor Gazette, amounted to $11.16, as compared with $16.92 for the same articles in June, 1920. Wholesale prices have fallen 41 per cent. on an average of 53 leading articles of consumption, as compared with the high point reached in May, 1920.

Rotarians Visit King and Queen

Had Enjoyable Time at Informal Reception in Buckingham Palace.

London, July 18—Interesting details are given of the reception by the King and Queen at Buckingham Palace of a party of Rotarians headed by their president, Dr. Crawford McCullough, of Fort William, Ont.

Their Majesties were attended by the principal members of the household suite. The Rotarians stood in a row and the King and Queen passed along the line in order that Mr. McCullough might introduce the visitors individually. No speech, either by or to the Rotarians, was made, the whole event being entirely informal, but their Majesties entered into friendly chats with members of the party, asking them about the towns from which they came, and talking of the general aims of the Rotarians.

Their Majesties had quite a long talk with President McCullough, and appeared to be very much interested in all he had to tell them, not only about his part of Canada, but also about the movement generally, particularly the statistical side, which appeared to astonish the King and Queen very much. Although they knew that the movement was very widespread, they had previously been unaware of the full extent of its ramifications.

At the close of the informal ceremony their Majesties shook hands with the visitors, and remarked upon the pleasure they had had in receiving them, expressing the hope that they would continue to do so to the end of their visit, and that they would have a safe return home at its conclusion.

SIR SAM STILL IMPROVES

Lindsay, July 19.—The condition of Sir Sam Hughes has shown steady improvement for the past two or three days, and he was much better last evening.

Kapuskasing To Be Model Town of Ontario

Premier Drury and Party at Kapuskasing—Population Now is 600.

Kapuskasing, July 18.—The townsite of Kapuskasing will, it is expected, be ready for building upon some time early in October. When the site was inspected today by Premier Drury, the Mayor, Council and officials of the Spruce Falls Pulp and Paper Company, it was still a great expanse of gorgeous purple fireweed and of charred tree stumps, but the surveyors had been over the land and staked out the streets, parks and boulevards of what it is hoped will be the province's model town. With a view to reducing the fire risk Mr. Drury decided today that not merely the thoroughfares should be stumped, but also the whole of the townsite.

Work upon the adjacent plant of the Spruce Falls Company is at present at a standstill owing to the highly unsettled condition of the pulp market and to the fact that the other seven plants of this organization are only operating at forty per cent. of capacity at present. S. A. Mundy, vice-president, pointed out, however, that during the past year his company had expended over $1,000,000 in the development here while $2,500,000 more is required to complete the work. The plant, when completed, will be able to handle 20,000,000 board feet of lumber a year. The company is also contemplating the erection of a paper mill to convert the pulp into newsprint, and it also is considering the building of a power plant with a development of about 100,000 horsepower. When the work is in full swing 250 men will be employed in the pulp mill while 500 men will get work in the bush during four or five months of the year.

If the paper mill is built there will be work for 300 more men.

Although only five out of the sixty-seven settlers of the soldier's town have stuck it out at Kapuskasing, there are nevertheless about 600 people living here at present. The plans for the proposed town provide for a population of 3000, and it is expected that from the outset there will be sufficient here to bear the burden of taxation despite the fact that the mill buildings are not within the corporation limits.

Rotary Invests in Bright Bit of Humanity

"Service above self." "He profits most who serves best," are the foundation stones of Rotary, expressed in a word, service. A little crippled boy is now being treated by specialists in Toronto and is looking forward with joy in anticipation of the possibility, that in a short time he may be able to walk without crutches. His parents are also happy in the assurance that their boy will at least be a great deal better and are deeply grateful to Belleville Rotary Club for the kindly interest manifested in their crippled son resulting in a visit to Toronto specialists' and treatment at the Hospital for Sick Children. Reports at the regular weekly meeting of Rotary, Monday indicated that the little lad was doing well and the prospects were excellent for at least a great improvement in his condition.

May Change Name of Masonic Body

At 66th Annua' Communication a Membership of 85,000 Will be Recorded.

The 66th annual communication of the Grand (Masonic) Lodge of Canada in the Province of Ontario will be held this week in the city of Ottawa, on Wednesday and Thursday, July 20 and 21.

The only question of importance that will be discussed this year affecting the interest of Masonry will be that of the change of name—whether it will hereafter be called the Grand Lodge of Ontario or the Grand Lodge of Canada in the Province of Ontario.

Most Worshipful Brother F. W. Harcourt, K.C., who has been grandmaster for the last two years, will relinquish that position on Thursday of this week to the new grand master, Right Worshipful Brother Lt.-Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C., of Belleville.

Toronto may claim credit for the education of Col. Ponton, although he is a native of Belleville, for he attended Upper Canada College, and was graduated from the University of Toronto in 1877, with distinction in the modern language department. The next year he obtained his M.A.. In 1881 he was admitted to the Bar, and in 1903 was elevated to the rank of King's Counsel.

Most Worshipful Brother E. T. Malone, K.C., of Toronto, who has been treasurer for many years, will be re-elected to that position. Right Worshipful Brother W. M. Logan, of Hamilton, Grand Secretary, will also be re-elected.

The other offices will be keenly contested, some of the candidates being Toronto brethren. In the position of deputy grand master there will be a lively contest, involving the Right Worshipful Brother J. A. Rowland, Toronto; A. J. Young, North Bay; W. J. Drope, Grimsby, and Geo. May of Ottawa.

The district deputy grand masters will be elected on Wednesday night. The candidates for the Toronto district are as follows: for Toronto East, No. 11a, W. E. Nugent, Geo. L. Gardiner and W. B. Johnson; for Toronto Centre, No. 11b, John H. Dunlop, Thornhill; for Toronto West, No. 11, R. B. Dargavel and F. G. I. Whetter.

During the past year there has been distributed in benevolence by the Grand Lodge $71,340, and the subordinate lodges have also contributed a considerable amount, which would probably raise the total to more than $100,000.. This has been distributed among 500 applicants.

The membership last year was reported at 80,920, and this year it is expected that it will come up to fully 85,000.

Any Liquor in Transit is Liable to Seizure

ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT CLAMPED THE LID DOWN TIGHT WHEN THE FATED HOUR OF MIDNIGHT STRUCK—CASES OF INDIVIDUALS WHO CAN GIVE GOOD REASON FOR DELAY IN SHIPMENTS WILL BE CONSIDERED.

There will be no hours of grace to prolong King Alcohol's legal life. Official pronouncement from the Department of the Attorney-General last night was that there would be no special arrangement or concession by which liquor in transit after midnight would be permitted to escape the law's vigilance.

On the other hand, the department will listen to reason. The stern pronouncement issued from the department yesterday: "Liquor that has not been delivered by midnight tonight will be in the same position a week from tomorrow that it is tomorrow," is tempered with, "If individuals come to us and say they have liquor in transit because of such and such happening, their case will be considered on its merits."

WHERE TO MAKE APPEALS.

In short, the Attorney-General's Department declines to officially extend, even temporarily, the hours during which liquor may be legally delivered. Liquor in transit after midnight last night will be so illegally. But individuals whose shipments were unexpectedly delayed or who believe they have exceptional circumstances to lay before the authorities may present their facts for special consideration by the License Commission.

THE CURTAIN FALLS.

The curtain falls. At 12 o'clock last night the edict prohibiting the importation of intoxicating liquor into Ontario for beverage purposes became effective. Today the Ontario Temperance Act and the Doherty amendments to the Canada Temperance Act impose heavy penalties on any person who attempts to bring liquor into the province. The situation now is similar to what it was before the first of January, 1920, except that the dispensing of liquor in the Province of Quebec is under Government control, and the opportunities for clandestine shipment are that much less.

About 300, men are affected.

Brutal Murder of a Young Man

HIS CAR STOPPED BY FENCE ACROSS ROAD, HE IS HIT ON THE HEAD

Ottawa, July 18.—Thomas Eugene Farrell, aged 26, son of William Farrell, J.P., and Mrs. Farrell, of Farrellton, Quebec, was brutally murdered last night at Wills Hills, three-quarters of a mile from his home. The murderer or murderers are still at large. The district is about 30 miles from Ottawa.

Coroner T. B. Davies, who was called to the scene to-day, and who investigated the circumstances of Farrell's death, tells the following story:

"Farrell left home Sunday evening to take his fiancee, Miss M. Wills of Wills Hill, for a drive in his motor car. He arrived at her home shortly before 8 o'clock and the two drove down the Gatineau Valley as far as Little Cove, where they turned for home. Farrel and Miss Wills reached the latter's home about 10-15 p.m. and he then started for his own home in Farrellton, some distance away. This was the last seen of him until early this morning, when his brother, James, a member of the Civil Service in Ottawa, started over the road between the Farrel home and that of Miss Wills to make enquiries regarding his brother's absence.

Body Found in Ditch

About one-quarter of a mile from the Wills' home he found the body of his brother lying in a pool of blood in a ditch beside the road. He had been hit on the right side of the head, evidently with some heavy instrument, and death must have been practically instantaneous.

Acros the road a seven-strand wire fence was stretched, completely blocking it.

Farrell's car was undamaged. He had evidently seen the obstruction across the road and applied his emergency brakes. The lights were also burning. Dr. Davies believes that Farrell, when he saw the obstruction on the road, stopped his car and got out to investigate. At this moment someone crept up from behind and hit him a terrible blow on the right side of the head.

Fence a Special Trap

It is evident that the fence across the road was specially set up to trap Farrell. He and Miss Wills had passed over the same road some 20 minutes before, and there was no wire fence then. Moreover, it is clear that no one else passed on the road from 10-30 Sunday night till James Farrell, the brother, found the body this morning, as the barricade was still undisturbed.

Dr. Davies makes it clear that there is no possibility of Farrel being killed by being thrown from the car. "He was killed by a blow from a club, and the man who did it was tall and very powerful," he stated.

Norway House Honors its Fallen Heroes

IMPOSING OBELISK UNVEILED AT HISTORIC MISSION POST

Norway House, July 4—The public memorial erected at Norway House to honor the memory of men from that district who fell in action during the great war was unveiled at 2 p.m. on Sunday, June 26.

The memorial takes the form of a short stone obelisk set high on a rock at the historic Mission Point. It has a long range of visibility and can be seen at every point of the compass by voyageurs traversing these northern waters.

Rev. G. F. Denyes, who has been active in the arrangements for the memorial was unable to secure the services of Lieut.-Governor Sir James Aikins for the occasion and, therefore the honor of unveiling the stone devolved upon Mr. Thos. Campbell, an old-timer, and the father of one of the men whose names are engraved on the memorial.

The whole Reserve except those who were away on the sturgeon fisheries, gathered for the ceremony. The service was very dignified and simple, a few short hymns, a short address by Rev. Mr. Denyes, followed by the ceremony of unveiling and the National Anthem.

The memorial stone was secured from, and inscribed by Mr. Geo. McCullough and Sons, of Kingston.

Rev. Mr. Denyes referred to is a son of Mr. H. K. Denyes, M.P.P. for East Hastings.

TEMPORARILY APPOINTED

Rev. Mr. Young, Brighton, has been appointed rector of Ameliasburgh parish temporarily, by Bishop Bidwell and entered upon his parochial duties on July 3rd. He is very popular with all classes of people who heartily welcome him to this parish

SEAPLANES EQUIPPED WITH CARRIER PIGEONS

Ottawa, July 16.—Carrier pigeons are being trained for use in connection with air board seaplanes which are not equipped with wireless apparatus, so that in the event of one of these planes making a forced landing out of reach of telegraph or telephone communication, the pilot will be able to send a message back to his station. At the Vancouver station of the board, where two seaplanes are being operated on geodetic survey and forest patrol work, eight carrier pigeons have been added to the equipment.

HOME-SEEKERS ORGANIZE

Vienna, July 18.—The many thousands of seekers for homes in Vienna have organized to get them. Complaining that the goverment bureau created for this purpose is impotent, the members of the society have appointed agents to find vacant premises and all residental property not containing the maximum number of occupants and threaten to use force to secure lodgings. They have published a list of such places and demand they be handed over. Among them is the home of a baroness having ten rooms in which she lives alone. Many similar instances are cited.

Tarred and Feathered Anglican Minister

OUTRAGE ON BRITISH SUBJECT IN SOUTHERN STATE BY WHITECAPS—REV. PHILIP IRWIN SHAMEFULLY TREATTREATED—ACCUSED OF PREACHING RACE EQUALITY TO NEGROES—OTHER OUTRAGES.

DALLAS, Texas, July 18.—Five instances of individuals being tarred and feathered or whipped by masked men in widely separated sections of the South on Saturday and Sunday nights had been reported today. Those included the first woman victim of a score or more similar attacks in recent months. The methods in all cases were so similar as to suggest the existence of a secret society intended to mete out swift justice, similar to the operations of the Ku Klux Klan in reconstruction days.

Besides Richard Johnson, 68 years old, who was whipped near Warrensburg, Mo., it was disclosed today the other victims were Mrs. Beulah Johnson, at liberty under bond on a bigamy charge, who was taken from a hotel porch in Tenaha, Texas, by masked men in automobiles, removed to the country, divested of her clothes and tar and feathers applied, afterwards her bonds were withdrawn and she was placed in jail; the Rev. Philip S. Irwin, white, Archdeacon of the English Episcopal Church, whipped and tarred and feathered near Miami, Fla., and warned that he would be lynched if he did not stop preaching social equality to negroes among whom he has charge of mission work of his church in south Florida; R. F. Scott, of Deweyville, Texas, who was tarred and feathered near Beaumont, Texas, while motoring with two women and a man named McKnight, who was reported to have been whipped near Timpson, Texas.

In most of the white capping cases reported, the assailants wore white uniforms, masks and headgear which Scott described as "conical shaped headpieces."

MINISTER ATTACKED.

MIAMI, Fla., July 18.—Eight masked men waylaid Rev. Philip S. Irwin, white, Archdeacon of the English Episcopal Church, and head of the work of that church among South Florida negroes, at the close of his evening services here last night, carried him into the woods and whipped him, and then applied a coat of tar and feathers to his body. He was then taken in a sack and taken in an automobile to a spot near the business centre of the city and dumped out on the street.

Archdeacon Irwin, who is a British subject, declared after he had been taken to police headquarters that the men who seized him "told me I had been preaching social equality to the negroes and had advocated intermarriage of the races, and that as this was the South this doctrine was not tolerated and any person who preached it is threatened with death."

"They told me," he added, "that unless I left Miami within forty-eight hours they would lynch me. They tied me to either a tree or a log after stripping me and applied a strap to my naked body about forty times. The men then poured tar over and and then applied feathers to the tar."

INCREASED RAILROAD RATES NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR BUSINESS STAGNATION

A denial of the frequently-met allegation that increased railway rates are responsible for the present business depression was made by William Sproul, President of the Southern Pacific Railway Company, at the convention of the National Association of Credit Men at San Francisco last week. Mr. Sproul, after alluding to the so-called "freight blockade" that occurred in 1917, said:—

"Just as it was lightly alleged then that the railroads had broken down, so now it is readily alleged that the increase in railroad rates is responsible for the stagnation of business. Because transportation is so important a factor in business it would be a serious charge, if it were true, that the railroad rates had produced the present stagnation in business. But it is not true.

"On the contrary, the railroad rates were not raised in time to enable the railroads to move the commerce of the country in its active period when the business of the country at large could easily absorb the increase. The fact is that the rates were raised and business declined at about the same time, but one had nothing to do with the other as a related matter.

"In proof of the suggestion, let me call your attention to the water rates. The rates by water have been on the decline. Yet private owners are laying up their ships. The United States Shipping Board's ships are laid up by the score because business is stagnant. The cause is found in the sheer inability of business to get back on a peace basis. That is the reason business has halted.

"Yet the call of the day is that railroads reduce their rates because business is bad. This call for reduction comes from all sources and on all important commodities and from all sections of the country. I venture the opinion that if all the railroads of this country were, by some edict, to reduce their rates one-half on every kind of traffic everywhere, there would be no appreciable increase in the volume of business moved, but the railroads would be prostrate in one common disaster that would shake the nation and call credits into question."

"LADY LENA" CHAMPION

Halifax, N.S., July 18.—"Lady Lena," a barred Plymouth Rock hen, registered at the Dominion Experimental Farm at Kentville, N.S., as No. 63, laid one hundred and four eggs in one hundred and four days, and is, the Halifax Morning Chronicle asserts, the champion of the world. "Lady Lena" was hatched in 1919 and began her egg-laying career in November of the same year. She did not begin her record non-stop lay until February 13, 1920, however. On that day she laid her habitual egg and on every day thereafter until May 23, she repeated. During 1920 she paid for her board with 246 eggs.

Lady Lena's record was made in the trap nest under Government supervision. Professor C. H. Blair, Superintendent of the farm where Lena makes her home, vouches for it.

REFRIGERATOR CARS FOR DURHAM APPLES

Port Hope, July 17.—Among apple growers in this district there is already considerable anxiety being shown to secure space in the new pre-cooling station being erected by the Provincial Department of Agriculture at Brighton. It is necessary that apples should reach a cooler within 36 hours after being picked, and the distance between this district and Brighton is too great for this to be done by ordinary transport, J. W. Bragg, M.P.P., and W. T. R. Preston, interviewed D. B. Hanna President of the National Railways, today, and arranged that refrigerator cars properly cooled shall be available in this county, wherein apples may be loaded and transported without unnecessary delay.

Gov't Report on Crop Conditions

Following is a summary of reports made by Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

The intense heat and accompanying drouth was broken on Friday when generous rains visited the greater part of the Province, being very heavy in some localities. A brief but very powerful wind storm accompanied the rain and did some injury to orchards, and to corn and other field crops; although the total damage is not nearly soserious a s was feared at the time.

Pastures, which were becoming browned, have been appreciably improved by the week-end showers. Much of the hay has been cut, and the yield is likely to vary all the way from a third of a crop to a full one.

The unusual heat has been hastening the growth of grain. The general impression is that too many fields will be prematurely ripened, and as a result some of the cereal crops are likely to be light in the head and short in the straw, although many excellent fields are promising. The harvest season is regarded as being from a week to ten days forward.

A good deal of fall wheat has been cut. Wentworth states that the Hessian Fly has been so bad in places that some fields had to be plowed up.

Kent reports the first cutting of barley.

Corn and sugar beets are doing well in the Lake Erie counties.

Lincoln reports that the thrip is reducing some fields of onions in that county to about half a crop.

Norfolk says: "Scag has appeared to an alarming extent in the best cared for orchards. Orchardists are becoming skeptical as to value of dust to control dust. Would estimate 25 per cent. to 50 per cent. of apples scabby in well dusted orchards."

Live stock have been affected by the light pastures during the past week or two. In some instances beef cattle have had to be fed to keep up weight, and dairy cows have fallen off more or less in milk. The heel fly and other insects have been greatly tormenting cattle during the past few weeks.

Lambton says that trial shipment of 71 head of beef cattle to Liverpool is being made, to be sold on the market.

Cheese is improving in price, board sales during the week being around 22 cents a pound.

Grey states that farmers have been so discouraged with sheep raising that they are getting rid of their flocks at any price—practically giving them away.

All classes of swine are scarce, and young pigs are in particularly strong demand.

Haldimand says that a large acreage of summer fallowing is being prepared for fall wheat.

Lambton says that the immigrants who have come to that county during the year have given good satisfaction on the whole. About 125 have been placed, and not more than ten farmers have found fault with the help supplied them. The representative goes on to say: "We have placed six men recently, four of them being Danes. We were successful in placing them near two of their former countrymen, making a colony of six in the neighborhood. One man and his wife and seven children were placed on a farm this week. They are very pleased with their surroundings and conditions but preferred to work on a farm where more cows were kept."

AN IDEAL VACATION

When the breathless days and glaring heat of summer make life in the city a burden, Algonquin Park, Ontario, is a place of refuge and enchantment. Here the tired business man—and his wife and daughter, too—can get out into the big open spaces, brush away the mental cobwebs, and feel the red blood course through the veins once more. The Government Reserve is on the very ridge of the "Highlands of Ontario" its altitude above sea level averaging 1,700 feet, while some of the elevations in the Park are 2,000 feet above the sea. A handsome publication telling you all about it, with list of hotels, rates, etc., will be sent free on application to any Canadian National - Grand Trunk Agent, or to C. E. Horning, D.P.A. Toronto, Ont.

Always a Cool Breeze Here

Algonquin Hotel, N.B., July 18—Today the thermometer stands at sixty-eight, a delightful breeze blows from the southwest. It seems almost unbelievable that the cities are still suffering from the heat, showing temperatures at London, 85; Ottawa, 88; Montreal, 88; Quebec, 82; Toronto, 89.

Today has been especially good for motoring, the showers of yesterday having put the roads into excellent condition. There is practically no dust and foliage and fields look fresh and green. This week the tide serves so that the tourist may drive across the bar to Minister's Island and enjoy the beauties of Cove Haven, the estate of Miss Adelia Van Horne. The well filled flower beds are a delight in their harmonious arrangement, while the view across Passamaquody Bay cannot be surpassed. Another very charming drive is through the estate of Mrs. Robert Loring. A long avenue winds through the heart of the woods, passes over a rustic bridge at the duck ponds and sweeps to the summit of a hill from which there is a superb view. Another favorite drive is around Edwards Corner, with a pause at St. Stephen road to look over the St. Croix River to Dockel Island or Orvill's Head. For those who do not car for long drives there is always the race course around Indian Point, where in even the hottest day in the season it is cool.

EASIEST WAY TO REMOVE UGLY HAIRY GROWTHS

(Beauty Culture)

Here is a method for removing hair from arms, neck or face that is unfailing and is quite inexpensive: Mix a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water and spread on hairy surface. After 2 or 3 minutes, rub it off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. No harm or inconvenience results from this treatment, but be careful to get genuine delatone and mix fresh.

Polish Chess Wizard Was Checkmated

Harold Evans Jennings, son of Mr. Burt Jennings, stationer, Front street, has distinguished himself as a chess expert and has the distinction of defeating the Polish boy wizard who recently toured the United States, taking on twenty chess players at a time and playing them simultaneously and almost invariably winning. Harold Jennings is a student at the University of Rochester and on account of his proficiency at chess was chosen to participate with a number of other Rochester chess experts against the Polish wonder. Harold was the only one of the bunch to win his game and his chess stock, high at any time, went up several notches higher. In the class magazine his exploits are described as follows:

"Here is the world's champion chesseter, having not only defeated all the local stars but even the greatest sharks of the world including the Boy Wizard, Resczysewsky, or something like that. All his spare moments which are not occupied in Carnegie delving into the interiors of mysterious dynamos, are spent in the "Y" rooms keeping his chessing eye in training."

DOROTHY DALTON AT GRIFFIN'S IN SIR JAMES M. BARRIE'S "HALF-AN-HOUR"

A popular stage play by Sir James M. Barrie, "Half-an-Hour", serves as Dorothy Dalton's latest screen starring vehicle. The picture was well received last evening at Griffin's, where it opened a three-night's engagement.

The heroine of the story is Lady Lillian, practically sold by her impoverished father when she becomes the wife of Garson, a wealthy American. He loves her, but her attitude toward him finally leads him to treat her cruelly and she becomes involved in a secret affair with Hugh Paton, an Englishman of her station in life. She is about to run away with him and is at his apartment for that purpose when she learns that he is unfaithful. At the same time news comes of his death in a motor accident. Dramatic events ensue, at the end of which Lady Lillian and her American husband are reconciled.

Miss Dalton is ideally qualified to portray the aristocratic young wife and gives a spirited and appealing performance. Her supporting cast includes Charles Richman, Albert Barrett, and Frank Losee. It is a Paramount picture.

Dies From Insect Bite

London, July 17.—Wilfrid Glenn, aged 26, son of Peter Gleenn, died today from the effects of being bitten by an insect while on his vacation three days ago. He was brought home in a serious condition from septic poisoning.

COMPLAIN OF SEA DOGS

Chatham, N.B., July 19.—Fishermen along the Miramachi River are complaining bitterly this season of the presence of sea dogs in large numbers in the river waters. In the early part of the year the port and shores of St. John were infested with the animals—they established a maternity home in the St. John River above the falls and many pups were born, but the pest has declined recently. In the northern waters of the province, it has, on the other hand, increased to alarming proportions.

The "dogs" like salmon in preference to all other fish. Recently a fisherman visiting his weir in the morning secured only half a dozen good fish, while there were over twenty heads in the trap. As the fish are worth a couple of dollars each, the loss in this particular case was quite appreciable. Similar losses incurred by Miramachi fishermen amount in the aggregate to a considerable sum and it is likely that an appeal will be made to the Government to take some action to prevent the depredations of the seals. It has been suggested that they can best be got rid of by dynamiting the grounds where they are in the habit of sunning themselves. If they are shot in the water they sink at once, and the whole carcass, which is poor in skin, but rich in oils, is lost.

U.S. Congress removes duty on oil.

SKELETONS ARRIVE

Halifax, July 18.—Thirty-three Eskimo skeletons arrived in Halifax from the far north recently for examination and measurement on behalf of the Canadian Government by Dr. John Cameron, Professor of Anatomy at Dalhousie University. The skeletons have been brought from the land of snows by the Canadian Arctic Exploration party which has spent five years in Canada's frigid zone studying the customs, languages and characteristics of the Eskimo race. They were found in the region north of the Mackenzie river.

Dr. Cameron estimates that upwards of three years will be required to complete the study of the skeletons and make the thousands of measurements necessary. The greater part of the work will be devoted to the skulls and the peculiarities of their formation. When completed the information obtained from the examinations will be included in a book to be published by Dr. Cameron. The book will be a standard work of reference on the physical characteristics of the Eskimo race.

A special study of the teeth of the skeletons will be made by Dr. S. G. Ritchie of Halifax.

Three Women Had Corns and this is what they did

One simply pared them and kept them. She never knew an hour without corns.

One used a harsh, unscientific treatment. It was inefficient and it often caused soreness.

The third applied Blue-jay, liquid or plaster. It was done in a moment and it stopped the pain. In a little while the whole corn loosened and came out.

Millions of people now use Blue-jay. It is ending at least 20 million corns yearly. Those folks never keep corns—never suffer corn aches.

Why don't you join them? Learn the right way to treat corns.

Blue-jay is a scientist's invention. It is made by a world-famed laboratory.

It comes in the form you like best—either liquid or plaster. Cease out-of-date methods and try this.

CANADA WELL REPRESENTED AT CONFERENCE OF PREMIERS.

Great interest has been taken in the conference of Prime Ministers of the Empire at London which has developed a power and importance far exceeding anything expected of the meeting of Empire Premiers. Two figures stand out prominently among all the Premiers as Empire leaders, big men and strong men, men of light and leading—Hon. Arthur Meighen, Premier of Canada, and Hon. Jan Christian Smuts, Premier of South Africa.

Canadians can well be proud that Canada is so well represented at this momentous conference in London.

What the Conference of Empire Premiers has accomplished may be summed up in brief as follows:

1. It paved the way for and made possible the great disarmament conference of the world powers.

2. Its deliberations resulted in the decision that the Anglo-Japanese alliance must be brought into harmony with the covenant of the League of Nations, which means that the military clause of the treaty must be eliminated, and it prompted the idea of a conference on Pacific problems, which, if it be successful, will make the Anglo-Japanese alliance unnecessary.

3. It created the atmosphere favorable for the step toward the settlement of the Irish question and produced a General Smuts to rescue the negotiations from failure, at an extremely critical juncture.

4. It enabled the statesmen of the dominions to arrive at full knowledge and comprehension of the underlying principles of the British foreign policy, and of the effect which the application of such principles produced upon the international situation.

5. It settled the important question of the distribution of the German reparations among the various portions of the empire in a way satisfactory to all.

6. It reaffirmed and defined certain basic principles of the empire's constitutional development and cleared up misconceptions and misunderstandings regarding a number of questions, such as, for example, the decision to appoint a Canadian minister at Washington.

7. It discussed and passed useful resolutions upon such important problems as overseas settlement, development of aerial transportation, improved wireless cable communication and shipping.

SWORDS FOR PRUNING HOOKS, A BEAUTIFUL DREAM.

Disarmament is a beautiful dream, highly desirable, but for the present rather visionary. The greatest hope for world-wide peace is an Anglo-Saxon alliance with all the English-speaking nations bound together in unbreakable bonds of friendship, love and truth, with a common object, the good and welfare of the world, the elimination of selfishness, greed and graft from national affairs and the practical enforcement of peace on earth and good will to men—even if it has to be fought for at first.

Disarmament is fine, theoretically, but it is within the recent memory of man that oceans of blood and eons of sorrow and suffering resulted from misplaced confidence in the honesty and integrity of a mighty nation—unpreparedness and disarmament.

Lest we forget the scrap of paper and some other things it may be wise to keep our powder dry for a while,—at least until "the blonde beast" and all that it signifies and influences in various countries can be shorn of its claws and securely caged.

Disarmament, certainly,—but not yet!

The first good night's sleep after the ordeal of the torrid spell can not be said to have been an eye-opener, but it sure was a welcome nightcap. Those of us who tried to sleep outside, inside, topside, on the floor, on the sofa, or any old place during the hot spell, certainly appreciate a return to normalcy, as President Harding would say.

Down Montreal way the Kiwanis Club has made a big hit with community singing in Fletcher's Field. Song sheets are distributed among the throng which gathers and, led by the Kiwanis singers, a great volume of melody and good fellowship is developed. Why not try this get together idea in Belleville with Victoria Park as the arena? A community sing led by the songsters of the Rotary and Lions clubs and assisted by the Band might very well provide an enjoyable get together evening once a week during the summer.

That the profiteers are not all dead yet was manifested during the hot spell when the price of lemons was boosted to one dollar a dozen in the face of an unprecedented demand, but an ample supply. And word comes from California that growers are destroying their lemon trees on account of the low price resulting from European competition. This shows that the Almighty Dollar has not been stripped of its selfish garments nor purified and sanctified by the blood and fire of war, and one man's necessity is still utilized as another man's opportunity. The profiteer surely handed us a lemon of the gold brick variety.

Just now Stromboli is having a peculiarly frightful fit. The people have fled to the sea, begging for boats to take them away. The Italian Government will see to it that they are rescued. But when the eruption is over they will doubtless return and resume their routine activities. Men must live. And they must live where the earth is productive. As long as volcanic material makes a fertile soil men will huddle confidingly up to the very feet of the great destroyers. The allurement is more powerful than the fear of sudden death.

THE ABUSE OF SLANG

Egyptian Mail

We are for ever employing words that spoil our language. There is a world of difference between the woolly-jargon which conveys no precise image to the mind and a careful choice of epithets which are lively, exact, and full of meaning. There is a middle way between nerveless pedantry and the common, flabby, inaccurate expressions which are allowed to usurp the office of reasonable speech. Slang is forceful, descriptive and altogether right. Jargon is none of these things, and should be ruthlessly deleted from our vocabulary. Let us say what we mean and mean what we say.

PRACTICAL JOKES AND CRIME

Adelaide Chronicle

The idiot who drives a woman into hysterics by a lying story or sets a child shrieking by experiments on its fears, or resorts to the practical jocularity which brings pain to a timid schoolboy or loss to an unoffending householder, comes at last to feel something of the tyrant's exultation in suffering, and something, too, of the tyrant's love of power. And so, like the Roman Emperor, the jester passes into the criminal. Parents and teachers do their duty but imperfectly who do not make their charges see all this and expose and denounce, and, where possible, punish, before it hardens into character, the disposition to find sport in the pain or mortification of others.

SPES IN HUMANITATE

The way is dark; I cry amid the gloom
For guiding light;
A wanderer, none knows whence or what his doom,
I brave the night.
Fair scenes afar, as in a dream I see.
Then seem to wake, and Faith deserteth me.

In wondering awe I bend the knee before
The viewless Might;
And all my heart in mute appeal I pour,
While straining the sight
Peers o'er the waste, yet Him I cannot find
Whom seeks my soul: I grope as grope the blind.

But 'mid confusing phantom-lights I strive
To go aright.
A still, small voice leads on and love doth give
An inward might
And spite of sense there lives a silent trust
That day will dawn, that Man is more than dust.

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Every day something out of the ordinary is seen by somebody. Let us hear about it. Phone 1248, or write The Intelligencer.

Chained or Trained

D.A.—I saw some people homeward bound on Dufferin Avenue, after enjoying the movies, frightened by two big dogs which jumped out of the darkness at them. Fortunately no harm was done beyond the scare but the canines should be better trained or chained. A word to the wise should be sufficient.

Four Spoons

M.M.—Spooning by the roadside on a dark street by two couples in an automobile with all the lights out was observed one evening recently in the suburbs. Taking a long chance I calls it.

Hard on the Bird

V.B.—I saw a cat stalking a little bird among the vines covering the Baptist church. The bird was either too badly frightened to fly away or unable to do so through youth or infirmity and sought refuge on a window sill. One jump and the cat had birdie in his mouth. A shout from me failed to prevent the casualty and kitty made off with his prize. My sympathy was only tempered by remembering a statement made by a bird expert that only for the efforts of the natural enemies of birds, including cats, the natural rate of increase would become so numerous as to be a menace and a nuisance. However, it seemed hard on the bird.

Get Down to Cases

B.B.—I see that there is a proposition to place the Corby swimming pool at Cooper's dam. Why not have specialists in this sort of thing report on the various sites proposed with the advantages and disadvantages of each and estimated cost. As far as I can see Victoria Park is as good as any site mentioned thus far.

Was He "Tickelled"

M.E.—A large crowd journeyed to Presqu'ile on Sunday via the Steamer Brockville. A well-known Belleville business man, with his wife were among those making the trip. The gentleman went below while his wife remained on deck. The wife saw a straw hat go sailing out into the water, and she laughed heartily with the crowd, but, alas! when hubby came back he was minus his hat, and then—well, wifey tumbled that she'd been having a laugh at the expense of her hubby, and her face surely straightened out. Everyone was tickelled when a head-covering was brought forward for the man.

What did you see?

Called by Death

W. B. CROMBIE

William P. Crombie, who died at his home, 182 Northcliffe boulevard, Toronto, was for some fifty years an active evangelist.

He was born in Picton, Ont., 82 years ago, the son of the late Marcus Crombie, once head of the old Toronto Grammar School.

Mr. Crombie resigned as Manager of the Bank of Montreal at Port Hope in order to follow a evangelical career about fifty years ago. His activity in his life-work continued up to five years ago, when advancing age necessitated a greater degree of rest.

He attended Beulah Chapel, Charles street east, from whence the funeral will be held Wednesday at 2 p.m. Surviving him are two brothers, R. J. B. Crombie of 51 Jarvis street, and D. B. Crombie, late of St Catharines, and now of Toronto.

Millions of People are Suffering

Indigestion, Headaches, Constipation, Sallow-Complexions, Kidney Pains, Rheumatism are all caused from a poisoned system, due to the Liver. Doctors recommend that you take one Tanated Calomel tablet before each meal, or two at bedtime, and in a few days your pains will disappear, your complexion will become clear and you will feel keen, bright, vigorous and life once more will be worth living. The wonderful success of this new drug (Tanated Calomel) is due to the fact that it is the only drug known that acts upon the Liver. No salts or seidlitz are necessary to remove it from the system, as it is selfieliminating. You, no doubt, have taken all sorts of medicine for your particular ailment, but you never get permanent relief, because the medicines you have been taking do not act upon the Liver. Doctors now say that 99 per cent. of all ailments are due to the inactivity of the Liver. A poisoned system soon decays, and that is why I would recommend that you go to McKeown's Front street, and get a box.

Quality maintains economy. No matter how much you pay "per gallon" for other lubricating oils, you get more lubrication "per dollar" when you buy Imperial Polarine Motor Oils.

Your Smallest Expense

THE cost of properly lubricating your car with Imperial Polarine Motor Oils is your smallest operating expense and, yet, the exclusive use of Imperial Polarine Motor Oils will just about cut in half your greatest expense, depreciation, as well as most of your other operating expenses.

Poor lubricants are not cheap at any price. The very best lubricant you can buy for your car is really the only one you can afford to use. Good lubricants give you the most lubrication for your dollar.

Imperial Polarine Motor Oils are recognized everywhere as standards of uniform high quality. There is a grade scientifically formulated to meet the lubrication needs of every moving part in every motor vehicle. For economy sake, standardize on Imperial Polarine Motor Oils.

See our Chart of Recommendations for the correct grade of Imperial Polarine Motor Oils for your car, at your dealers. Or write to 56 Church Street, Toronto, for our interesting book, "Automotive Lubrication."

GOLF INTEREST RENEWED

Washington, July 18.—International interest in golf, which was at fever heat during the recent British championships on English and Scottish links, will be renewed to-morrow when several prominent professionals entered from Great Britain and all of the leading American "pros" as well as a few of our best amateur players begin the qualifying round in this year's open championship tournament on the links of the Columbia Country Club, Chevy Chase, Md. Last year this event was decided over the course of the Inverness Club, Toledo, O., and Edward Ray, representing the Oxhey Club of England, was the winner with a score of 295 for 72 holes. There were 162 entries last year but this record mark will not be touched so far as entrants go in numbers for the 1921 title as the field may not exceed 220 players.

John Sopher, acrobat, falls off tight rope at St. Catherines, is seriously injured.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

The First Belleville Troop is still carrying on in spite of the hot weather, which doesn't bother a scout very much. Following boys have won proficiency badges; Burress Jordan passed first class tests and holds the required badges to make him a King's Scout the highest title in Boy Scout work. Elmer LaBarr passed first class tests. Wayne Wilbur passed second class tests and also won the pathfinder badge. Following boys passed the tests for artists' badge. Clarence Rigby, Perry Fleming, Jack Crozier, Frank Follwell, Burress Jordan, passed ambulance tests. The badges will be presented soon. The scoutmaster received the war service Roll of Honor which will be unveiled soon by some prominent citizen of Belleville.

A few of the patrol leaders are lagging a bit in their leadership. Come on, boys, spruce up.

Bing Hayes, the A.S.M. of the troop, says that he smells a banquet not far off; also, he prophesies a long journey for the troop.

AQUATIC FEAT BY CHILD

An unusual aquatic feat for a child of her age was accomplished by Miss Isobel Whittaker, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Wittaker, Cornwall on Friday last. She had been in swimming at St. Lawrence Park for a half of an hour when she thought she would like to swim across the river to Cornwall Island. She struck out, followed by her father in a boat, and was still in good form when the island was reached, and would have come back to the park had her father allowed her, but he insisted on her returning with him in the boat. It is a good half a mile from the park to the island, and a swift current flows between the two points. So far as is known this is the first time this feat has been accomplished by one so young.

NEW STATION AT LYN

Ground was broken last week for the erection of the new Grand Trunk station at Lyn, a frame structure to be located within the angle formed by the Grand Trunk and Canadian National. The station will be similar in design to that being built at Marysville and will have accommodation on the upper floor for the agent and his family. The Canadian National Telegraphs are preparing to connect the wires at Lyn station in order that all may be in readiness for the operation of C.N.R. trains into the Union station at an early date.

BUSH FIRE

One of the worst bush fires in the Kingston district in many years, occurred at Glenburnie, when an area of about fifty acres was swept by fire.

The fire started on Thursday last, and the situation became so serious Sunday afternoon that a call was sent to Kingston for help. Fire Chief James Armstrong went to the scene with four of his men and the Chatham fire engine and 1,500 feet of hose, and with the farmers of the neighborhood did gallant work in extinguishing the blaze and saving thousands of dollars, as had the fire reached some of the farm buildings the loss would have been a far more serious one.—Kingston Whig

FARMERS' PICNIC

DATE OF APPEAL FIXED

At the June session of the County Council the equalization of the county as presented by a special meeting was adopted. The representatives of Thurlaw Township strenuously objected to the report declaring that an appeal would be entered. This has been done and Thursday September 8th is the date fixed for the hearing of the appeal. Judge Deroche will be presiding official.

WELCOME RAIN

The heavy rain of Monday night and Tuesday morning will be very much appreciated in the farming sections and do a lot of good.

MOTOR BOAT UNSAFE

Halifax, July 18.—Having found passage to Newfoundland in a five-ton motor boat too hazardous, Earle Hopkins with his wife and child are taking it in the orthodox manner by train and big boat.

When Hopkins decided to move to Newfoundland he sold some of his stock of dry goods and packed the rest of the things he had in his store on Cornwallis street into his motorboat. With his family and an engineer he sailed for Newfoundland from Halifax Harbor and got as far as Lawrenceton, some miles down the coast. Here the engine stalled and the whole expedition nearly came to wreck and ruin on the rocks. Unable to attract attention from the shore by ordinary means, Hopkins finally hit on the expedient of sending out S.O.S. messages in corked bottles, which floated to land. Somebody picked up one of the wandering bottles and assistance arrived in the nick of time as the motor.

BUDGET ESTIMATES REDUCED

Belgrade, July 17.—The War Department of the new kingdom of Jugoslavia will cost 2,000,000,000 dinars, one-half the government's total budget, in the next fiscal year, despite vigorous efforts by the Minister of Finance to reduce expenses. This is a reduction of 500,000,000 dinars from the estimates askd for by the War Ministry.

The total budget estimates were 6,000,000,000 dinars but this has been reduced to 4,000,000,000. The nominal exchange value of a dinar is about 19 cents but at the present rate it is worth about three cents.

X-RAY LABORATORIES NOT DANGEROUS

Paris, July 16.—X-ray laboratories have been found to constitute but slight if any danger to persons in adjacent rooms. A report to the Academy of Medicine held that modern appliances and conditions generally existing in X-ray rooms sufficiently protect all but the operatorss

The report was prepared by a commission after recent reports to the Academy that X-rays were a serious menace to people in buildings housing laboratories. It was contended the rays would penetrate walls with force enough left to cause serious injury. This contention was found by the commission to be ill-founded.

STILL WORKING AT WRECK

The Donnelly Salvage and Wrecking Company's fleet is still engaged at the stranded steamer City of Hamilton, which went ashore last week near Iroquois, and it may be some days before the work of floating that craft is completed.

Indications are that the Stewart Government is defeated, Farmers expected to have 30 to 35 seats in next legislature.

OLD TRAIN RUNS AFTER 76 YEARS

New York, July 18.—New York's first passenger train, the Dewitt Clinton, made its second run in 76 years yesterday on the New York Central tracks opposite Riverside Park, from 96th street to 116th street. The old engine pulled three coaches filled with passengers costumed after the 1831 period, when the Dewitt Clinton was put into commission.

By strenuous stoking with cordwood on the part of James Stark, fireman, the old train attained a speed of nearly 15 miles an hour on one stretch of the run. The engine was piloted by Charles Starr.

After the run yesterday the train was mounted again on its flat cars to be taken to Chicago for the Progress Pageant, to be held from July 30 to August 14.

WELLAND FARMERS TO RUN MAN IN FEDERAL FIELD

Brigeburg, July 14—The United Farmers of the county of Welland will run a candidate in the Dominion elections. This announcement was made today by leaders of the U.F.O. The U.F.O. Committee for the county is now arranging for a convention when a candidate will be selected. This means that there will be three candidates in the field in the next Federal elections, both the Conservative and Liberals having recently announced that candidates will be selected. The U.F.O. leaders are making arrangements to have T. A. Crerar, J. J. Morrison and Premier Drury attend the annual U.F.O. outing of the county, to be held when suitable dates to the various leaders can be selected.

TYROL REVOKES SCHEME

Innsbruck, Australia, June 25.—The campaign of the hotel keepers and the cancellation of engaged quarters by summer visitors have proved too much for the Tyrol government and it has revoked its "stranger's money" scheme.

This compelled all non-residents to buy the new money and pay in it for all things at a rate of exchange that would make them pay nearly ten times more than the natives. A high head tax on visitors is substituted.

Summer visitors had cancelled rooms by the hundred causing the hotel and inn keepers to hold mass meetings of protest against the scheme.

NO MORE LIQUOR

A number of our citizens are sitting at home to-day and their mind is running in this line—"No more whiskey, no more gin. Won't you tell me when you're coming back again." The different express companies say their consignments were all delivered and none were left over, although a few have been enquiring about liquor orders not received. They say the world has gone dry, and other things, for sport. But still the farmer has his rye and the sailor has his port.

"You needn't be afraid," said George, with a cold, hard smile. "You fellows are simply too much for me. They say every man has his price; I reckon you'll give me part of the money. I want to leave the country. They will all say I was concerned in it—because of my father. Is that understood—I'm to get part?"

"Yes, that's understood," said the leader eagerly. "Boys, we'll have to divide with 'im—he's the right sort."

The train rattled by. George left his stool and went to the safe. With a hand that gleamed like that of a dead man's in the lamplight, he twirled the combination bolt back and forth; then he suddenly turned to them, passing his hand wearily over his brow.

"Look here," he said, "I'll have to confess that you've rattled me. I changed the lock today, and the letters of the combination have slipped my mind."

"Ah!" snarled the man addressed. "You can't come that on us. Boys, he's tryin' to gain time. He thinks we cayn't git in the safe. Sock it to the"—

"Hold on!" George held up his hand, still smiling mechanically. "Don't fly off the handle. I can figure out the combination in a few minutes if you'll only take those blasted guns off me and stand back. I'm not made of stone. How can a man get his mind on a thing like that while you are pointing revolvers at him. Leave me alone a minute. I'm with you, but give me a minute to collect myself—to think it out."

The leader laughed. "Boys," he said, "he's scared a sight wuss 'n he looks. That's a compliment to us. Stand outside the office. I'll stay with 'im, but ef you hear the slightest noise run in."

The two men did as ordered, and George sank into a chair at Hillyer's desk. He drew a blank sheet of paper to him and dipped a pen.

"Now git to work," said the leader, approaching and looking over his shoulder.

George glared up at him. "Not unless you keep away from me. Get back," he demanded sharply, "or I'll throw it up."

"Well, you needn't be so tetchy," and the burglar retreated to the door, where he stood leaning against the wall. George had gained his point. Under the pretense of trying to recall the combination he had gained time for something he had in view. He was going to write a note to Hillyer and cautiously slip it into the old man's daybook on the desk. This is what he hastily penned and addressed to Hillyer:

> Three unknown men have me covered with revolvers to force me to open safe. They think I am now studying out combination. Escape impossible. I know you would rather have me give in, but I can't. The world believes the son of a thief will steal, and it would say I was a party to the crime. I'm tired of the struggle anyway. I never would have committed suicide, but am not averse to this chance to prove I despise dishonesty. Do this one thing for me: Tell L. C. I died hoping it would show that I am an honest man. I don't believe these men can possibly get into the safe, and by refusing them the combination I can save your money and the money deposited by many poor people who need it. Tell her the only horror I have in facing this thing tonight is in leaving her to become that man's wife. God knows he cannot take care of her or make her happy. I discovered in Atlanta that he is a bankrupt. Tell her that—

"Say, are you goin' to take all night?" cried the man at the door.

George deftly slid the unfinished letter into the book on the desk and drew another sheet of paper to him. This sheet he held before his eyes as if studying it as he turned to the speaker.

"I say, are you goin' to set thar all night?" repeated the burglar testily.

George tore the sheet into small bits and threw them on the floor. "I've been thinking it over," he said. "You've got the upper hand of me, but"—he stood up and leaned on the back of his chair, grasping it firmly. "I'm going to refuse."

"Refuse?"

"Yes, I'm going to refuse." George's fingers closed on the posts of the chair like prongs of steel, and, swinging it upward, he sprang toward the man on guard. But he was not quick enough. With a grunt of alarm the burglar fired directly at his breast. George had seen his peril and tried to dodge, but the shot struck him in the forehead, and he reeled, tottered against the wall and fell. The others rushed in and would have fired again at the prostrate form, but their leader stopped them with a motion. Kneeling, he put his hand in the vicinity of Buckley's heart.

The shot struck him in the forehead.

"That will do," he said grimly. "He's done for. Now, git yore tools and set to work. We can't afford to miss on this job now."

"I reckon not," said the man called Bill, and he hurried out into the darkness of the warehouse. While he was creeping about over the rough, grain strewn floor with massive, crunching tread the remaining two stood facing each other, their faces paling under the growing realization of what had been done.

"He fetched it on hisse'f," said the man with the smoking revolver. "He didn't intend to give up the combination. He was playin' us to gain time an' done it well. I'll say that fer 'im."

He stepped to the office door and called out, "What in thunder are you doin' back thar?"

A smothered oath was all that came to him and the jangling clatter of a pair of iron floor scales, against which the searcher for the tools had stumbled. Suddenly rapid footsteps sounded on the sidewalk near the front door, and a hand was laid on the latch.

"George! George Buckley! What's the matter in there? Killing rats, old man?" It was Bob Hanks' voice.

It was the signal for flight. The man who had gone for the tools could be heard unbarring the door in the rear. The two in the office tiptoed out into the warehouse, and then, seeing the door open, panic seized them, and they ran for their lives. Bob Hanks heard them, and, having had no reply to his question, he suspected foul play and darted at once round the warehouse toward the back end. He was just in time to see three figures running at the top of their speed down the railway. He pulled his revolver and fired an ineffectual shot after them. With the weapon in his hand he entered the open door and groped toward the light in the office, calling loudly for Buckley. Reaching the office, he found George stretched upon the floor. Turning him over, he saw the wound in his head and hastily felt his heart.

"My Lord, they've killed 'im!" he gasped. Hastening to the front door, he opened it and ran out. In the half moonlight down the street he saw a man standing motionless.

"What's the matter over thar?" the man called out. "Shootin' at somebody, Mr. Buckley?"

"Buckley's been shot!" Bob answered. "Run for a doctor, quick!"

"My God!" the man exclaimed. "I'll be as quick as I can. Dr. Jobe's at home."

When the physician came ten minutes later Bob met him at the door. "I thought he was dead just now," he said, "but he's still breathing."

"Hold the lamp for me," said the doctor as he bent over the wounded man, and as Bob obeyed he quickly made an examination of the wound. The firm pressure of his fingers seemed to revive Buckley somewhat, for he groaned and began to struggle.

"Is this all the wound he has?" Dr. Jobe asked.

"I think so," said Hanks. "I heard only one shot."

"Are you sure of that?"

"Yes, I am. I was on the far corner of the vacant lot going home. I'm pretty sure only one was fired."

The doctor made another examination.

"Is it bad?" asked Bob anxiously.

"Can't tell yet," said the doctor, "but I think he has a good chance to pull through. He's badly stunned, but I don't think there's any fracture of the skull. We must move him up to Hillyer's. This is no place to nurse a man as bad off as he is."

CHAPTER XXX.

THE next morning half the village dropped in to see where George Buckley had fallen. No one was able to say exactly how the thing had happened. The doctor, while reporting that George was practically out of danger, had forbidden any one to question the young man, and all sorts of speculations and rumors were in the air. It was not until late in the afternoon that even Hillyer had a full explanation, for it was not till then that he ran across the letter George had written. Several old men were in the office at the time. Hanks was there, and Bascom Truitt, wiping his eyes and vowing revenge on the miscreants who had so cowardly attacked a brave man.

Major Cranston, well wrapped in rugs and braced by pillows, had come down in a carriage with his negro manservant and sat with the rest, pale of face and weak looking, yet relieved to discover that some valuable papers he had left in Hillyer's keeping were intact. He had heard that the safe had been opened, and then he had heard that report contradicted and could only rest satisfied by coming himself, weak as he was. Hillyer had been strangely silent all the afternoon, but when he came upon George's letter he rose and began to talk in a voice that sank deep and shook with uncontrollable emotion.

"I've jest found the key to it," he said, the letter in his hand, "an' I'll bet you all will think well o' that pore wounded boy when you know what I do. Last night three armed men slipped up on 'im right here in this office. I reckon, from what I gather, that they told 'im his daddy was a convict, an' folks in general didn't expect 'im to be honest nohow, an' that ef he didn't open the safe they'd kill 'im an' bore in it the'rselves. He wasn't tempted one minute, but he wanted to leave a line to me before he died." Hillyer choked up and was silent for a moment. The group bent toward him, with working features and eyes distended. "So he told 'em all right, the jig was up, but they'd have to give 'im time to work out the combination.

VOL. LIV. NO. 155. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, JULY 20, 1921. PRICE TWO CENTS

Good Road Policy of Ontario Government

OUTLINED BY HON. MR. BIGGS, MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS, AT BANQUET TENDERED HIM BY BELLEVILLE CITIZENS—GOOD FOUNDATIONS BEING LAID FOR PERMANENT ROADS—BAY BRIDGE TO BE REPAIRED AND IMPROVED.

Rejoicing in the fact that the barriers between Belleville and Prince Edward County had been removed for ever in the opening of the Bay Bridge free of tolls as the result of its purchase from private owners by the Ontario Government, the County of Prince Edward and the City of Belleville, this auspicious event was formally marked by a banquet to Hon. F. C. Biggs, Minister of Public Works, at the Hotel Quinte Tuesday evening, tendered by the City Council and Chamber of Commerce. That the Bay Bridge is free to-day is largely due to the interest taken and determined efforts of Hon. Mr. Biggs, who took hold of the movement with such vigor that it just had to go, and for good measure he threw in a provincial highway from Picton to Belleville. Tuesday the Minister of Public Works came to Belleville to inspect the bridge as well as the provincial highway work in this vicinity, and incidentally to look up a likely site for the new government million-dollar cement plant. The occasion was seized by Mayor Hanna the City Council and the Chamber of Commerce to express appreciation to Hon. Mr. Biggs for his efforts in behalf of a free bridge and the banquet resulted.

There were over fifty in attendance and the event was one of the liveliest and most enjoyable held in Belleville for many a day. Mayor Charlie Hanna made an ideal chairman and kept things going in machine-gun style, all go and no stops until the National Anthem. Community singing was a feature of the gathering, everybody taking part with a will under direction of Sandy Burrows assisted by Tim Little at the piano. Sandy's original parodies certainly made a big hit.

The toast to the guest of honor, Hon. Mr. Biggs, was proposed by W. C. Mikel, K.C., in a witty speech, lamenting in passing that cabinet ministers are now made out of farmers instead of lawyers. In replying, the Minister of Public Works said that the lawyers were now kept in opposition on account of their ability to pick things to pieces and bring out essential points—their mission now in the legislature being to criticize and keep the farmers straight.

Be Patient

Hon. Mr. Biggs, upon rising to speak was given a hearty reception and his address was very interesting, briefly sketching the government road policy which was to make good roads, safe roads and roads to give the maximum of service, building for permanency, with attention first to drainage, good foundations, culverts and bridges. The roads now are seventy-five per cent. complete, said the minister, all they require is the additional twenty-five per cent. in the necessary permanent top which would come in due time. All that he asked of the people was that they be patient, the roads would be finished in good time and in good style.

Why Should Belleville Pay?

Hon. Mr. Biggs said the question had been asked "why should Belleville pay for the Provincial highway?" It was said that Oshawa would not have to contribute. The minister explained that Oshawa was not separated from the county and contributed about twenty thousand dollars a year for county purposes including roads. The

Father and Son Drown at Lindsay

Lindsay, Ont., July 19.—Leigh R. Knight, one of Lindsay's foremost young barristers, and his 11 year-old son, Jack, were drowned in Lake Kushog, five miles from Haliburton. No particulars are to hand, but it is stated that Mr. Knight went into the water to rescue his son.

Mr. Knight motored to Kushog Lake on Sunday morning to be with his wife and son. He was a president of the Board of Trade, a past master of a masonic lodge, and a member of other fraternal organizations.

Warfare In Ulster Despite the Truce

Belfast, July 16.—Warfare between Orangemen and Sinn Feiners continued in Ulster to-day despite the truce.

One man was killed here and five seriously wounded before dawn in street fighting. Sharp-shooters fired from windows and roofs. Military patrols searched houses for these snipers.

Deaths since Sunday total 20, and there are scores of wounded in hospitals. A number of groceries and saloons were in flames this morning, due to work of incendiary gangs, and others were completely demolished by wrecking crews that broke into them.

Russia Is Facing Great Catastrophe

20,000,000 PERSONS ON VERGE OF STARVATION THROUGH TERRIBLE DROUGHT

Berlin, July 20.—Twenty million persons are on the verge of starvation on drought-stricken sections of Russia, subsisting mainly on moss, grass and bark of trees, according to the Vossische Zeitung, which quotes information from "reliable Russian sources."

Refugee are reported to be pouring into Moscow and Petrograd by thousands to be fleeing hopelessly in every direction. The parched earth, it is asserted, is opening up great crevices, and wells and rivers are drying up. Foliage is asserted to have withered on the trees and a number of villages are reported on fire.

All cattle in the stricken districts have been slaughtered to provide food, but it is believed impossible to avert catastrophe unless food is received from outside sources.

Veterans of War For Disarmament

G. W. V. A. Suggests That Their Views Be Placed Before the Washington Conference.

Ottawa, July 20.—The views of the 7,000,000 ex-soldiers and sailors of the British Empire on the question of universal disarmament will be placed before the proposed Washington conference, if a suggestion from the Dominion command of the Great War Veterans' Association is acted upon.

The proposal is that Field Marshal Earl Haig, president of the British Empire Service League, should clearly place before the British representatives to the Washington conference that the ex-service men generally are in favor of disarmament consistent with the provisions for the defence of the Empire in case of emergency.

The suggestion that the views of the veterans should be presented to the British representatives to the Washington conference was first put forward by David Loughman, editor of the Veteran, and resulted in the following message being despatched to Earl Haig:

"The Great War Veterans of Canada suggest that you, sir, as president of the British Empire Service League, express on behalf of the seven million ex-service men of the Empire their heartfelt sympathy and support toward the inauguration of international disarmament proposals as suggested by President Harding of the United States.

"The peace which was bequeathed to humanity by the self-sacrifice of hundreds of thousands of our comrades must be sanctified and safeguarded as a lasting tribute to their memory and to the peace ideals for which they gave their lives. To this end, the component parts of the British Empire Service League, as represented in the Motherland and the Dominions beyond the seas, should voice their approval, through you, sir, of this first step towards honorable peace on earth and goodwill among men."

Aircraft Doing Effective Forest Protection Work

HAVE PRESENTED DESTRUCTION OF VAST AMOUNT OF TIMBER WEALTH

Ottawa, July 19.—The value of aircraft as a means of forest fire patrol has been well demonstrated during the recent hot, dry spell, according to reports from the various operating stations now reaching the Air Board offices here. In several instances the destruction by fire of thousands of dollars' worth of valuable forest products has been averted by the use of aircraft, both in protective patrol work and in carrying fire fighters to the scene of outbreaks in much less time than would have been necessary by other means of travel.

Forest fire patrols are maintained by the Air Board at Sioux Lookout, Ont., Victoria Beach, Man., and High River, Alta., and at each of these stations valuable work has been accomplished. At Sioux Lookout airplanes were responsible for fire fighters reaching a blaze in the forest at least two days sooner than they could have done by travelling over the ground, and an added advantage was gained from the fact that the aerial patrol was able to cover much more territory and locate the fire almost at its inception.

When an outbreak betwen Cliff and Cedar Lakes, in the district of Kenora, was reported by the airmen, authorization was secured for fire rangers to be flown to the fire. This authorization was granted from Toronto, and two men, with fire-fighting equipment, were on the ground, 75 miles away, in three and a half hours. It was found, however, that the fire was getting beyond their control, so more rangers were brought from Kenora. In a report to the chief provincial forester of Ontario, R. N. Johnston, in charge of Kenora district, stated that the use of aircraft had been mainly responsible for the successful fight against fires this summer. The rangers were given constant reports on the conditions and spread of fires wherever they occurred. At Victoria Beach, Man., the F-3 machine, which was used last year on the eastern leg of the trans-Canada flight, has been fitted up for forest patrol after being flown from Winnipeg at the opening of the season. Major Basil Hobbs, who is in charge of the station there, will make fire and protection patrols over the forests of northern Manitoba during the season.

At High River, Alta., two flights daily are made north and south from the station. The machines there are equipped with wireless apparatus, and immediately an outbreak of fire is noticed the location and spread is flashed back to the operating station from which the rangers are notified by telephone wherever they may be. The patrols at High River average 300 miles daily, and practically the entire forest reserve is constantly under view. By means of this forest protective work, it is claimed that a great amount of valuable timber is being saved, since fires can be fought at their inception instead of being allowed to gain headway.

City of Hamilton On The Rocks Near Iroquois

Brockville, July 20.—The steamer City of Hamilton was still aground yesterday off Point Iroquois, where she struck in the swift water while bound from Montreal to Toronto with a cargo of automobiles, patent medicine and sugar during the past week. Owing to the current the salvage operations are being carried on with considerable difficulty. Lighters had to be hauled to the spot with cables from the shore. Gerald FitzGerald of the FitzGerald Marine Surveying Service of Ogdensburg, is representing the underwriters at salvage operations. Two hundred tons of the cargo had been lightered off yesterday and it is believed that the vessel can now be pulled into deep water without difficulty.

Capt. Donnelly of the Wrecking Company, Capt. McMasters and Messrs. Duthie and Hazlett of the Canada Steamship Lines, owners of the City of Hamilton, who have been at the scene of the wreck the past few days, proceeded from the scene of the place where the steamer Rapids King was beached Saturday afternoon and the operations on the City of Hamilton were suspended pending their return.

WEST OPTIMISTIC

Winnipeg, July 20.—In Manitoba during the past week the rain fall has been slightly scattered, but the general opinion is that the crop is in good condition and considerably advanced on last season. Hail has done some damage in the Carberry district and to a limited extent between Winnipeg and Emerson, also around Treherne. Barley harvest is now general in this province, and ample feed for stock and an extraordinary good crop are expected.

Conditions in Saskatchewan are not much changed from last week. While there has not been sufficient rain the moisture has helped to stop deterioration. No rust is reported in Saskatchewan and the grasshopper menace is passed. Wheat is seventy five per cent. headed out and harvesting will commence in the eastern part of the province early in August. Hail in the vicinity of Saunnavon and in the Regina part did damage varying in extent from 10 per cent. to total loss. Other parts of the province have also had hail damages running from 10 per cent. to 50 per cent.

The weather in Alberta has modified from the previous week but not much rain, and that mostly in northern districts. No rust damage is reported, but some hail. The hail was generally followed by good rain, thus lessening the damage.

Reports from the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia districts say the crops are making excellent progress.

Devalera May Meet Craig in Belfast

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press, Limited

London, July 20.—The probability of a meeting in Belfast between Eamonn de Valera and Sir James Craig, Ulster Premier, is foreshadowed in some political quarters, and several newspapers this morning. General J. C. Smuts, Premier of South Africa, who re-entered negotiations yesterday, doubtless is largely responsible for the amicable meeting between the two Irish leaders, but the moderating influence of General J. C. Smuts, coupled with the Belfast despatches to the effect that Sir James does not regard peace parleys as interrupted, have gone a long way toward re-establishing confidence.

Mr. De Valera is now reported as willing to go to Belfast and meet Sir James after he has discussed with his Dublin followers certain proposals which, it is understood, Premier Lloyd George will submit to him Thursday.

Seeking Site For Gov't Cement Plant

HIGHWAY ENGINEERS FIGURE A BIG SAVING IN COST OF ROADS BY PROVINCE-OWNED CEMENT WORKS

Toronto, July 18.—Within the next week or two the Provincial Government will have before it for final consideration all of Hon. F. C. Biggs' plans and cost for a Provincial cement plant. The sum of $1,000,000 was passed last session by the Legislature for expenditure on a cement plant, but the Minister of Public Highways has not yet fully decided whether there is an economic saving to be effected by its construction. Departmental engineers have calculated that the Province could save $1 per barrel on the cement it uses if it had its own plant.

Since the Legislature sat, however, Hon. Mr. Biggs has been going right ahead getting estimates and quotations on suitable land and building sites and strategical points throughout Ontario. He said he had obtained four or five options on suitable properties—options on a time basis sufficiently extended to enable the Province to purchase and turn out cement for at least next fall's road-building operations. The machinery cost is the biggest item in the cost of the venture, which is now under contemplation by the Government.

According to Hon. Mr. Biggs, he has received no public protest from either citizens or private cement companies over his proposal to effect a saving in road-building expenditure by making his own cement.

Convicts Battle Guards as Fire Rages Furiously

HUNDREDS OF SHOTS FOLLOW RIOT IN PENNSYLVANIA PRISON

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 19.—Late this afternoon it was believed that six persons were wounded and ten factory buildings burned during the rioting at Western penitentiary to-day.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 19.—While the flames crackled in the prison buildings and dense clouds of smoke rolled over the scene, 1,000 convicts, including 30 women, fought desperately with guards in Western Pennsylvania penitentiary to-day. Guards fired point blank into mobs of prisoners who came at them armed with pieces of furniture and other weapons. Scores were reported wounded. Six frame structures within the walls were destroyed by fire.

The riot was started in the prison dining room by 200 convicts just transferred here from the Eastern penitentiary. It was reported they demanded rations of cigarette for the men and face powder for the women.

Several prisoners rushed at the guards. They ripped furniture to bits and used table legs and chairs as bludgeons. Others grabbed knives, forks and tinplates from the tables. The air was filled with flying missiles.

Whole "Pen." Involved

The fighting spread from the dining room until the whole penitentiary was involved. Guards on the walls ran up and down, threatening with their rifles the convicts milling around in the yards.

Other guards armed with rifles and revolvers, opened fire on the convicts as they rushed them again and again in an effort to capture the gates and effect a general jail delivery.

The fires were started one after the other in rapid succession, and soon the air was heavy with smoke, in the midst of which the hand-to-hand fighting raged on.

Hundreds of prisoners, clad in their gray and black striped garments, pawed frantically like caged animals.

Residents in the vicinity of the prison said hundreds of shots were heard being fired behind the prison walls.

Under personal direction of Mayor E. V. Babcock and other officials order was being restored and the prisoners were being locked in their cells

Six buildings of the institution were partially destroyed by fire.

The damaged buildings included the weaving shop, shoe repairing shop broom shop, tailor shop, dining and instruction rooms.

RESTRICTIONS EXTREME

Vienna, July 19.—Frontier restrictions were carried to an extreme when they prevented an Austrian fire brigade from crossing the Italian border to fight a blaze. Some buildings on the Italian side of the Brenner Pass railway station caught fire and the Austrian town's firemen turned out. Italian gendarmes demanded their vises, and having none, they were forced to watch the warehouses burn.

Canadian Flier Injured and Passenger Killed

Detroit, July 19.—Plunging from a height of 500 feet, an airplane piloted by Lieut. Cyril Reginald Hoare, a former Canadian aviator, and with one passenger, crashed to the ground at Schaefer Road and the Pere Marquette tracks on the east side of the city, this evening. Ira Shubel, aged 30, an auto worker, the passenger who was in the machine, was almost instantly killed, and Lieut. Hoare was seriously injured.

It is believed the planes of the engine developed trouble, which caused the machine to go into a nose-dive, in which position it struck the ground. It was Hoare's first trip on the plane—a new one.

GETS PILLS IN DARK; HAS NIGHT OF AGONY

Montreal, July 19.—Because he neglected to use a light when searching the family medicine chest last evening for pills, Egar Normandin, 275 Ontario street, swallowed pellets containing mercury, and is now after a night of agony, lying in the Notre Dame Hospital in a critical condition.

Minister of Public Works Inspects Bay Bridge

HON. F. C. BIGGS TAKEN OVER PORTIONS OF PROVINCIAL HIGHWAYS SYSTEM IN HASTINGS AND PRINCE EDWARD COUNTIES—REPAIRS TO BAY BRIDGE NECESSARY—SITE FOR CEMENT PLANT—FOXBORO ROAD INSPECTED.

At the conclusion of the luncheon tendered to Hon. F. C. Biggs, Minister of Public Works for the Province of Ontario, at the Chamber of Commerce apartment on Tuesday noon, the minister was conveyed by auto to the bay bridge and taken a few miles over the proposed provincial highway through Prince Edward County.

The party consisted of the Minister, Mayor Hanna, Aldermen Bennett, Ostrom and French, Messrs. H. K. Denyes, M.P.P. for East Hastings, H. F. Ketcheson, J. Bone, J. O. Herity, L. E. Allen, J. G. Moffatt, W. S. Cook, W. Cook, W. B. Deacon, A. G. Vermilyea, W. Ketcheson, Lill and Snyder, also press representatives. At the Prince Edward shore the party was met by Hon. Nelson Parliament, Speaker of the Legislature and M.P.P. for Prince Edward County, in addition to some residents of the county.

PROVINCIAL HIGHWAY.

At the request of the Hon. Mr. Biggs a number journeyed in cars from the Prince Edward end of the bridge to the top of Union Hill in Ameliasburg township, a distance of about eight miles. This road is to be the provincial highway leading from the bridge to Picton. Even after the heavy rain the night previous the road was in very good condition, excepting on the top of Union Hill. Here a considerable quantity of good sized stones have been deposited, making travelling by no means smooth. This portion of the road, as stated by the Minister, would need to be gravelled for a considerable distance. There are portions of the road which need to be widened, and this will no doubt be attended to in time. Hon. Mr. Biggs was favorably impressed with the greater portion of the road over which he was driven. Upon the return trip the Minister walked across the whole length of the bridge and was seen to be observing its condition. While the piers and superstructure appear to be all right, it is apparent that it will not be long before the flooring will have to be replaced, and the guard planking along the west side is badly in need of repairs. There are several places where the flooring is nearly worn through. Two workmen were engaged at the time in placing a plank here and there where absolutely necessary. It was expected that Hon. Mr. Biggs would make a few remarks, but he was content to inspect the structure without speaking.

This gathering was inspired by Mr. L. E. Allen, C.E., of this city and it was intended to be a formal opening of the bay bridge by the Motor League of Ontario, with the assistance of the members of the Motor League of Belleville. Mr. Frank Goforth, of Toronto, president of the Ontario Motor League, signified his intention of being present at the function, but he did not arrive here. Mr. Allen received a telegram from him stating his absence was due to missing a train at Toronto.

CEMENT PLANT SITE.

When the city was reached on the return trip Hon. Mr. Biggs was taken over the Provincial Highway as far as Shannonville, where he was shown some properties upon which an option has been secured, which is considered a suitable site for the erection of the proposed government cement plant. An unlimited quantity of material for the manufacture of cement can be obtained at this point. The Minister, however, would not express an opinion either favorable or adverse to the proposition. He was also taken over that portion of the Madoc road from the northern city limits to Foxboro. This piece of road has, through the efforts of Mr. H. K. Denyes, M.P.P., been assumed as part of the provincial highway system, and at present a number of men are at work rebuilding it. It is being widened in places, and no doubt when the work is completed it will be a credit to the government and much appreciated by the travelling public. It is without doubt one of the most heavily travelled roads in the county and one of the leading arteries to the city.

HUNG HIMSELF THROUGH DISAPPOINTMENT

Forcing his employer's safe and finding only about $20 worth of crowns, Rudolph Twrdik hanged himself at Vienna, leaving a note that the disappointment after so hard a job was more than he could stand.

Practical Joke Causes Old Man's Death

Lille, France, July 18.—A party of young men returning from target practice at the rifle ranges of Cost-Capelle in Belgium met an old farmhand from a nearby dairy and decided to have a little fun with him. They installed a mock court martial in a field still riddled with shell holes, and sentenced the old man to death for failure to have a litre of wine with him.

Tying him to the post in the fence one of the youths commanded fire. The old man fell mortally wounded with a bullet through the head. One of the practical jokers had forgotten to remove the ball cartridge from his rifle.

Peasants in Power in Bulgaria

SOFIA, Bulgaria, July 19.—The peasants are now firmly established in power in Bulgaria and legislative bodies, both state and provincial, in which their representatives are in the majority, are engaged in transferring the burden of taxation to the shoulders of the despised city folk.

The district council of Roustchouk has evolved the following taxes which it styles "American":

Carrying a parasol, 50 levas yearly (nominally worth 19 cents); skirts more than 11 inches above the ground or wearing silk stockings, 500 levas; wearing gloves between April 15 and September 15 without a doctor's certificate, 200 levas; wearing jewellery, 300 levas; keeping pet dogs, 500 levas; use of walking canes by persons under 50 years of age in good health, 100 levas; wearing shoes with tops exceeding 11 inches in height, 200 levas; fur tippets or muffs, 500 levas; and using baby carriage in cities, 200 levas.

Keep St. Lawrence For Canada Alone

CANON SCOTT CONSIDERS CANALIZATION STEP TOWARD ANNEXATION WITH U. S.

Quebec, July 19.—Completion of the project to canalize the St Lawrence above Montreal and open the Great Lakes to large ocean-going vessels would be the first step in the annexation of Canada by her colossal neighbor, the United States according to Rev Canon Scott, of this city, a former chaplain with the Canadian forces in France.

"Internationalizing the St. Lawrence would be equivalent to moving the United States boundry line north to the St. Lawrence, and Canada might find herself in a hopless national position at any time," said Canon Scott.

"The St. Lawrence is a great Canadian asset; it is also an Imperial asset and must be wholly under control. At some future time, the Empire might be at war with a foreign power with which the United States were at peace and it might be necessary for us to close the river by mines or in other ways. It is the very spinal marrow of Canada, and on its shores and the shores of its tributaries lie the cities or villages of a large part of Quebec and Ontario.

"The internationalizating of the St. Lawrence would cut us off both really and sentimentally from the lower provinces. The thing is unthinkable Would the Americans consent to the internationalizating of the Panama Canal or the Mississippi? Our great river must be ours and ours alone.

PLAGUE OF LOCUSTS

Riga, Letvia, July 20.—A plague of locusts is adding to the famine in Russia, according to a despatch received here from Moscow. A swarm of the insects has greatly damaged crops in the Kuban and Black Sea governments, where special staffs have been organized and part of the army mobilized to destroy the pests.

In Turkestan heavy rains heve destroyed the irrigation works, interrupting rail communication. The Government has appealed to Moscow for aid.

Rasputin's Rival Returns To Vex Russia

Riga, Latvia, July 20.—The monk Liliodor (Heliodorus), former preceptor and afterward antagonist of the notorious Rasputin, is again attracting attention in Russia by announcing his purpose to start a revolution in the Orthodox Russian Church. Heliodorus fled from Russia after his break with Rasputin in the early part of the war but returned after the Bolsheviki gained control. He was unfrocked by the church.

His reappearance in public in Russia was almost simultaneous with a revival of fervor in the orthodox church, which the Bolsheviki are now trying to combat. In an address at the Tsaritsin (of which he was formerly abbot) he recently declared:

"I consecrate myself to the fight for the people's cause and to start a campaign against the popes (priests) which is to make a revolution within the church."

Every Sunday and on many religious feast days in Russia the churches now are crowded. Communists, themselves, are attending the services and this has brought down on their heads a warning from the government "not to set so bad an example for the peasants." On that subject, the Moscow Pravda says that some of the Communists even have used Soviet official automobiles to take their families to church services, weddings and christenings. The newspaper printed the following warning from the party heads:

"The Soviet power has no intention to compel anyone by forcible means to leave off the services of professional darkness, but the Communist party as a whole has a right and is bound to demand from its responsible members that they not only should not take part in religious ceremonies and services but should try by example and explanation to others to overcome all religious superstition. Every member of the party directly and openly should recognize and strengthen by the example of his own conduct the truth that religion and scientific Communism are absolutely incompatible."

Japan Facing Crisis Over Disarmament

EMPIRE IS DIVIDED REGARDING EFFECTS OF CONFERENCE —SOME ARE SUSPICIOUS

Tokio, July 19.—Japan to-day seems an empire divided on the great issues created by the summons of President Harding to a conference on disarmament and Far Eastern problems. On one side, largely in the ranks of the bureaucrats, there is fear that the proposed conference will be dominated by the Anglo-Saxons and may result in strangling Japan's political and economic development in Asia.

On the other side is a powerful Liberal group, which demands that Japan enter into the deliberations fearlessly, submitting her wants resolutely, combatting for them with confidence and not opposing just claims. Haggling and bickering, they insist, will ruin the cause of Japan.

Both camps agree that Japan is facing a crisis, requiring tact and largeness of vision. Many members of the Privy Council, according to the well-informed Chugai Shogyo Shimpo, are pessimistic about the conference; they contend that the proposal to discuss problems and policies of the Far East indicates co-operation between the United States and Great Britain in an atempt to settle international questions favorably for themselves, an indication of which was to be seen in the attitude of the English toward the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

The invitation to China to join in the conference, it is further urged, is additional evidence in support of the theory of a secret purpose on the part of the Anglo-Saxon nations in calling the conference. They argue that China doubtless will strive, with the support of Great Britain and the United States, for a settlement of questions in her favor, resulting in injury to Japanese interests in China. The councillors are quoted as saying:

Names Conditions

"Japan should make participation conditional on the settlement of all questions between Japan and the United States, including opening the economic door of territories in the Pacific to Orientals."

The leaders of the Kensei-Kai, or opposition party, believing that the Washington conference is more important to Japan than that at Versailles, are convinced that Japan should determine her policy irrespective of party considerations, and therefore announce their preparedness to support the Government. There is some talk of a coalition ministry to further the cause of a united Japan, acording to the Nichi Nichi.

It adds that the Kensei-Kai is represented as seeing in the conference a design to control Japan's activity in the Far East so as to facilitate United States movements without risking a conflict with Japan.

The Chawakes, an important group of peers, have held a meeting to consider the proposal and have approved Japan's answer. Other parties of peers are arranging meetings for the same purpose.

Exploration of Baffins Land

East Booth Bay, Me., July 18.—The schooner Bowdoin, which left Wiscasset yesterday on the first leg of a voyage to Baffin Land with Dr. Donald B. MacMillan's exploring party, anchored in the harbor here last night. She will leave early to-morrow for Sydney, N.S. Dr. MacMillan is spending the week-end at his home in Freeport.

The explorer and six adventurous followers sailed down Sheepscot River yesterday from Wiscasset amid the cheers of 2,000 friends and admirers, including Governor Baxter, who was a classmate of Dr. MacMillan at Bowdoin College.

Still a Mystery

An attempt to map Baffin Land, the vast Arctic island southwest of Greenland, whose 1,500 miles of unexplored western coastline is as much a mystery to-day as when the English navigator, William Baffin, announced its discovery in 1616, is the main objective of the Donald B. MacMillan expedition.

The tiny 115-ton schooner Bowdoin, which carries the party north was built at East Boothbay, Me.

She was named for MacMillan's alma mater, has auxiliary power and embodies all the essentials for resisting terrific ice packs. The crew consists of six men. The vessel is of the Gloucester fisherman knockabout type, sheathed with iron-wood, 87 feet long, with a draught of 9½ feet. Crude oil engines capable of developing 60-horsepower are included in her equipment, as well as 2,000 gallons of fuel oil and 500 gallons of kerosene. The Bowdoin also carries stores and provisions sufficient to last her crew two years.

Reach Destination August 15

The head of the expedition was Peary's chief lieutenant on the latter's successful dash to the North Pole in 1909. He has made eight voyages into the Arctic regions. According to MacMillan's plans, he intends to reach Baffin Land about August 15 and establish a camp south of the entrance to the dangerous Fury and Hecla Straits, where the ships of Captains Parry and Lyon, seekers of the Northwest passage, were blocked a century ago. The location is 160 miles north of the Arctic Circle and 700 miles south of Etah, Greenland. It is not far from the point where MacMillan's Crocker Land expedition passed the four winters of 1913-14-15-16. On that occasion the expedition was once reported lost and two relief expeditions were sent out for it but MacMillan finally returned. He announced that Crocker Land was not "land", as believed possible by Peary, but an ice mirage.

During the winter of 1921-22 attempts will be made to explore the coast of Baffin Land and the following summer an effort will be made to penetrate the interior where, according to Eskimo tales, there exists one of the richest and most alluring fields of research in the frozen north. The island is said to have great mineral deposits and to possess high mountains and beautiful lakes which have never been seen by white men.

Breeding Ground for Fowl

The region is believed to be an immense breeding ground for water fowl, whose nesting habits will be the subject of study, while the program of the scientists of the expedition also calls for field work in zoology, botany, geology, meteorology and terrestrial magnetism. Special observations will be taken of the magnetic pole which was located first by James Ross in 1830 on the further side of the Boothia peninsula, not far from MacMillan's proposed winter camp.

An attempt will also be made to circumnavigate Baffin Land. In the event of a serious mishap to the Bowdoin, the party plans to retreat by dog sledge to Fort Churchill, a trading post at the foot of Hudson Bay, and thence return to civilization by way of northwestern Canada.

MacMillan was born in Provincetown, Mass., Nov. 10, 1874, the son of a Cape Cod sea captain. He was graduated from Bowdoin College in 1898 and took up postgraduate work at Harvard in 1910-12. Before becoming an explorer he was a teacher and public school principal. In addition to accompanying Peary on his last famous trip North, he was a member of the Cabot Labrador expedition in 1910 and as previously referred to, the leader of the Crocker Land Expedition three years later. In 1911 and 1912 he made ethnological studies of the Eskimos of Labrador. He is unmarried.

Ontario Woman Gains Twenty Pounds

Wife's Recovery Convinced Reader That Tanlac Is The Grandest Medicine On Earth

'Surely Tanlac is the grandest medicine in the world, for my wife has gained twenty pounds in weight by taking it and is so well and strong she hardly seems like the same person," said Robert Reader, of 19 North Cote St., Hamilton, Ont., well-known employee of Cope & Son.

"My wife's health began to fail about four years ago, and at the time she began taking Tanlac she was so weak and run down she could hardly walk across the room. She had no appetite at all and would often go for days at a time without any food, only occasionally drinking a cup of tea. She went down in weight from one hundred and fifty pounds to one hundred and thirty-eight, and her nerves became so badly unstrung she scarcely got any sleep. She complained of terrible pains in her head, and it seemed that she was so bad off she would never be well any more.

"But somebody down here at the store told me about Tanlac, so I took her some of the medicine and in just two weeks her appetite had come back so she could eat a pretty good meal. Well, she improved right along and now she seems to be in the best of health, never complains of any of her troubles any more and is so strong and well she is doing all her housework. In fact she says she has not an ache or pain of any kind, and we're both glad to say a good word for Tanlac any time we have the chance."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville at Ostrom's Drug Store.

EVE THEIR CHOICE

Rome, July 1.—Most Italian women if they have their choice to be anything they wish in their sex, would rather be Eve, according to results of a vote recently taken by one of the Roman papers.

An argument advanced for being Eve was that she, of all women, had no competition. Her husband was never away from home and when there were no other women on whom he might cast an alluring glance.

Those that did not chose to be Eve, chose for the most part to be Mary Magdalen, because, after being allowed to enjoy all the sins of the world, she was forgiven and afterward became a saint, thereby enjoying al the pleasures of heaven.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

FAMOUS PLAYS PICTURIZED

Dorothy Dalton's new Paramount photoplay, "Half-an-Hour" which will be shown at Griffin's to-night for the last time, is based on Sir James M. Barrie's famous play of the same name which was produced with immense success several years ago. This is the second of Sir James' great plays which have been picturized by Paramount and others will follow. Miss Dalton has an excellent role in the picture and she is finely supported Charles Richman being her leading man.

Johnny in a 2-reel Torchy comedy, a Beautiful Burton Holmes Travelogue, and George Seitz and Marguerite Courtot in a new chapter of the popular mystery play "Velvet Fingers" are also being exhibited on the same program.

"THE HOPE" STIRS PROMISE OF NEW CINEMA THRILLS

One of the most spectacular productions of the season is promised in "The Hope" at Griffin's to-morrow to Saturday, with a matinee Saturday. "The Hope' is a Metro screen version of the famous old melodrama by Cecil Raleigh and Henry Hamilton, and it is reputed to have preserved all the thrills of the stage play with a lot more added in a way possible only to motion pictures.

Announcements lay special stress upon scenes which show an entire street in Italy being toppled into the ground in an earthquake. A skirmish supposed to take place in the Khyber Pass between Afghanistan troops and British infantry provide the picture with moments of the most intense excitement. An all-star cast headed by Jack Mulhall, Frank Elliott, Marguerite de La Motte and Ruth Stonehouse, will be seen in the production. Mr. Mulhall's role is that of the handsome and daring hero, Harold, Earl of Ingestre. It is the role that was created in London by Frank Elliott, one of the "Royal Players". Mr. Elliott is now in the screen version, but this time, instead of the valiant Harold, he is the wicked Captain Hector Grant.

Larry Semon in a highly amusing 2-reel comedy "The Suitor", Fox News Weekly and other worth while attractions will also be presented.

KENTUCKY GIRL WRITES LETTER

How She Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sunnyside, Ky.—"I suffered for more than two years with my back and nervousness, and was not able to help my mother do the housework. I took treatment from two doctors and they did not do me any good. Mother saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the paper and I took about ten bottles. It has done me a great deal of good. I weigh 138 pounds and am in good health. I will gladly recommend Vegetable Compound to anyone who suffers with the troubles which I had, and you are welcome to publish my testimonial."—VELMER HENDRICK, Route 1, Sunnyside, Ky.

To many American girls life is often a heavy drag in consequence of illness, and every mother should heed the first manifestations, such as cramps, backaches, headaches and nervousness as Mrs. Hendrick did for her daughter, and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. For over forty years this old fashioned root and herb medicine has been relieving women of just such troubles.

CATTLE HAVE "SWEET TOOTH"

Washington, July 1.—While Congress would never dare even to suggest the idea of taking candy away from children, nevertheless the hard-hearted members of the Ways and Means Committee had no compunction about depriving cattle of their treacle. They have put a prohibitive tariff on the black-strap molasses, which is the sweet stuff cattle love, and which, acting on steers very much as it does on human beings, makes them fat.

Representative Edward J. King of Illionois has essayed the role of dauntless champion of the "sweet tooth" of men's quadruped servants and if he fails to get on the free list this special brand of molasses to put beef on ribs, he will make his plea to the Senate to allow American cattle to continue having syrup on their morning cereal.

RURAL SCHOOLS.

In addition to the above 111 candidates from the rural schools were examined at Belleville and 25 at Frankford.

To Miss Mary White of Plainfield is due the honor of being the highest in the inspectorate outside the city.

There is no prize offered to the rural pupils corresponding with those in the city. Perhaps some public spirited citizen who is interested in the rural schools would like to donate one.

FRENCH TENNIS CHAMP.

Andre Gobert, who held the French Tennis championship for several years until defeated by Jean Samazejulh of Bordeaux last May, served during the war as an aviator and was recuperating at Vichy from shock received in a fall of over 1,000 feet altitude in 1917 when some of the neutrals enjoying the cure organized a tennis tourament. Gobert entered under the name Dubais. Not being in the best of shape he had a hectic time in reaching the semi-finals where he had to meet a youthful Dane who was going great guns Gobert lost the first set six to two and was in a fair way of losing the second when some one in the crowd recognized the French champion and commenced shouting encouragement to him calling him by his own name. The Dane realizing that he was playing against the champion of France, seemed bewildered, making fault after fault, missing easy returns, netting. Gobert won the next three sets.

OLYMPIC INFORMATION

Geneva, July 17.—Arrangements for subsequent Olympic games are expected to be greatly simplified as a result of the creation of an Olympic "Information Bureau" at the recent meeting of the Athletic Congress in Geneva. The bureau, to be reorganized every four years, will be composed of athletic officials of the country in which the following games are to be held.

An executive committee, appointed on the recommendation of Baron Pierre de Coubertin, president of the Olympic International Committee, will start work on October 1. Godefroy de Blonay, Switzerland; J. S. Edstrom, Sweden; Marquis de Polignac France and Dr. Jarkowsky, Czechoslovakia, were nominated for the body.

Another committee, composed of Paul Rousseau, France; Franz Reichel, France and Allan Muhr, an American resident in Paris, under the direction of County Clary, will harmonize the decisions of the Paris Congress in 1914 with the complementary decisions taken at Lausanne this year.

The Olympic Alpine Advisory Committee, at its recent session, voted to present an Olympic prize for the most remarkable Alpine achievement between Olympiads. The award will be made on the basis of the sporting and scientific character of the feat and its usefulness to the world.

May Echo Sylvia's Great Effect Upon Holstein World

Avondale Farm Strain Seen All Over the Continent.

Brockville, July 20.—The extent of the impression stamped upon Holstein-Friesian breeding circles by A. C. Hardy's wonderful cow, May Echo Sylvia, the only cow that has produced 1,000 lbs. of milk in seven days, and that has made four 850-lb. records and five 750-lb. records, is evident by the prominence which animals possessing her blood receive in Holstein-Friesian advertising.

In the current issue of the Holstein-Friesian World over seven pages of advertising are devoted to descendants of the queen of the Avondale herd, each advertisement bearing a label "May Echo Sylvia breeding" and enumerating her records.

A two-page advertisement published jointly by Mr. Hardy, by E. A. Stuart, of the Carnation Stock Farms, and by John A. Bell, jr., of the Bell farms, extolling the breeding, points out that "from the coast of California to the capes of Massachusetts—from the Dominion of Canada to the Southern Tier of the United States—the blood of May Echo Sylvia has during the past few months and during a time when there seems to have been somewhat of a depression in Holstein prices, been prominently represented in public sale rings.

"In these sales, animals in one way or another affected by the influence of May Echo Sylvia have averaged to far outsell those of any other strain, selling for an average of from $400 to $600 above the average of the entire sale."

This issue of the Holstein-Friesian World also contains mention of the death during the official year just closed of several very valuable animals, among them Carnation King Sylvia, the $106,000 bull, a son of May Echo Sylvia. Of this animal the World speaks as follows:

"Carnation King Sylvia, whose death was recently reported, has been one of the best known young bulls of the breed ever since Carnation Stock Farms purchased him of his breeder, A. C. Hardy, of Brockville, Ontario for $106,000, the highest price ever paid for a dairy animal. This record-breaking price was paid at the Milwaukee national sale in June, 1918, when Carnation King Sylvia was just six months old. He is a son of May Echo Sylvia, whose achievements as a milk producer do not need to be chronicled here, as everyone knows she is the only cow in the world to produce over 1,000 lbs. of milk in a week and that she holds the world's milk records for all periods from seven up to 120 days. His sire is a 37-lb. son of Avon Pontiac Echo, who in turn is one of the great sons of May Echo Sylvia, giving Carnation King Sylvia a double cross of this wonder-working cow. Carnation King Sylvia was just a few months over four years old at his death and so his value as a sire can only be estimated. He has been bred to a large number of cows in the Carnation herd and his first daughters will be freshening soon, when they will undoubtedly prove the values of these wonderful lines of breeding."

CROSS OF SACRIFICE

ON VIMY RIDGE.

Many Bay of Quinte veterans of the great war can never forget the battle of Vimy Ridge, nor the efficient preparations made by the Canadians to ensure victory, including that tremendous explosion which blew the top off the mountain, rattled the Huns to their shoelaces, and was distinctly heard in England. The glorious victory of the Canadians at Vimy Ridge was a great tribute to their valor and efficiency, for when all attempts of other units of the Allies had failed to dislodge the enemy the Canadians were given the job, and as usual, went through with it to victory, brilliant and decisive, in one of the greatest and most important battles of the war. It was fitting that this great victory should be marked in an appropriate manner, and that those who fell upon that hill of death should be remembered for ever and their sacrifice noted upon the battle-field itself. In carrying out this worthy object Hon. Arthur Meighen, Premier of Canada, on July 3rd, unveiled the Cross of Sacrifice erected upon the crest of Vimy Ridge to memorialize the valor of those gallant men whose bodies have made the soil of that small hill sacrosahct to all Canadians. Mr. Meighen, in the course of his address on that memorable occasion, said:—

"The great war is past; the war that tried through and through every quality and mystery of human mind and might of human spirit; the war that closed, we hope forever, the long story of the arbitrament of men's differences by force. The last clash and crash of earth's millions is over now. There can be heard only the sporadic conflicts, the moan of prostrate nations, the cries of the bereaved and desolate, the struggling of exhausted peoples to rise and stand and move onward. We live among the ruins and echoes of Armageddon. Its shadow is receding backward into history.

"At this time the proper occupation of the living is, first, to honor the dead; next, to repair the havoc, human and material, that surrounds us, and lastly, to learn aright and apply with courage the lessons of the war.

"Here in the heart of Europe we meet to unveil the memorial to our country's dead. In the earth which has resounded to the drums and the trampings of many contests, they rest in the quiet of God's acre, with the brave of all the world. At death they sheathed their sword of devotion and now from oft stricken fields they hold aloft the cross of sacrifice, mutely beckoning to those who would share their immortality.

Human Heroism Reached Zenith.

"No words can add to their fame, nor, as long as gratitude holds a place in men's hearts can our forgetfulness be suffered to detract from their renown. Just as the war dwarfed by its magnitude all the contests of the past, so the wonder of human resource and the splendor of human heroism has reached a zenith never witnessed before.

"Ours, we thought, were prosaic days when the great causes of earlier times had lost their inspiration, leaving for attainment those things which demand only the petty, passing inconveniences of the hour. And yet the nobility of manhood had but to hear again the summons of duty and honor to make response which shook the world. The danger to the treasury of common things—for common things are, when challenged, most sacred of all—the danger to the treasury of common things ever stirred our fathers to action, and it has not lost its appeal to their sons.

France Free, Canada Better.

"France lives and France is free and Canada is better because she did something worth while to help free France to live. In many hundreds of plots throughout these hills and valleys, all the way from Flanders to Picardy, lie fifty thousand of our dead. Their resting places have been dedicated to their memory for ever by the kindly and grateful heart of France, and will be tended and cared for by us in the measure of love we bear them.

"Around and over all are being planted the maple trees of Canada. In thought, her sons will rest the better under the trees which they knew so well in life. Across the leagues of the Atlantic the heart-strings of our Canadian nation will reach through all time to these graves in France. We shall never let pass away the spirit bequeathed to us by those who fell. Their name liveth for evermore."

LENINE AND HIS METHODS

Kansas City Star

Lenin is struggling against the force he himself conjured up. Such Government as Russia is getting is the result of his success in holding his followers back with one hand and counter-revolutionists with the other. Lenine perceives the necessity of compromise, of relinquishing the extreme pretensions of the Communist revolution in order to get Russia consolidated. He has succeeded at all only because his is one of the greatest intelligences of our time. "He knows when to yield and when to be dogmatic," and by seizing favorable occasions to get concessions from his own party, and using them to placate the forces opposed to him, he carries on. His whole system seems now to be reduced to that.

HAS EXPERIENCE TAUGHT NOTHING

Westminster Gazette

It would be an irretrievable calamity for all three countries if the naval competition which is ended in Europe were now transfered to the Pacific. Not only would the new expenditure be fatal to hopes of economy, but difficult and delicate questions of policy which can only be settled very gradually by mutual forbearance, would be placed forthwith on the dangerous footing of armed rivalry. That this shall not happen must be the resolute determination of all three Governments; and we might well despair of the future if after all their experience in the late war they were stil incapable of the effort needed to prevent the Pacific from becoming the scene of a new naval rivalry.

THE MAN WHO WINS

The man who wins is an average man,
Not built on any peculiar plan;
Not blessed with any peculiar luck;
Just steady and earnest and full of pluck.

When asked a question, he does not "guess."
He knows and answers "No" or "Yes"
When set a task that the rest can't do,
He buckles down till he's put it through.

So he works and waits, till one fine day
There's a better job, with bigger pay,
And the men who shirked whenever they could,
Are bossed by the man whose work made good.

For the man who wins is the man who works
Who neither labor nor trouble shirks,
Who uses his hands, his head, his eyes—
The man who wins is the man who tries.

Germans To Pay War Indemnity

EXPECT TO BE ABLE TO DO SO IF GIVEN TIME, SAYS MAJOR ROLPH

Ottawa, July 19.—The German people are hopeful of being able to pay their war indemnity, and indications are that they will be able to do so if given time, in the opinion of Major H. Spencer Rolph, controller of the clearing office in Canada, which is handling enemy property reparations. Major Rolph has just returned to Ottawa after spending some time in England and in Germany. In regard to conditions in Germany, Major Rolph stated that during two visits which he had made he found every evidences that all factories were running full blast day and night, and German agriculture crop prospects were excellent.

"I never saw more signs of industry in any country," Major Rolph declared. He had spent some time in Berlin, and found that, except for abnormal prices of all commodities, the people appeared to be having a fairly comfortable time. Theatres and cafes were operating "as usual," wines were plentiful, and almost the only visible evidences of war were found in the rationing of sugar and bread. These were the only commodities rationed, and the bread was still of the black, war-time variety.

Jealousy Caused Triple Tragedy

REJECTED LOVER SHOT WIDOW AND SUITOR, THEN SHOT AND HANGED HIMSELF

Hanover, Pa., July 20.—Crazed by jealousy, Samuel Bowman, 39 years old, laid in wait at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Fichelberger, at Krentler's schoolhouse, two miles south of Hanover, and when their daughter, Mrs. Minnie Resh, 27 years old, a widow, and her suitor, Emanuel M. Rohrbaugh, 26 years old, returned home he opened fire with a double-barrelled shotgun, wounding Rohrbaugh so badly that he died seven hours later, and seriously injuring Mrs. Resh. Bowman then fled to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bowman, sr., a half a mile distant, and both shot and hanged himself

Young Rohrbaugh and Mrs. Rech spent the evening at Dubb's Church picnic. They drove up to the Fichelberger home in an automobile and were about to alight when Bowman stepped out from behind a tree and fired without warning at a distance of ten feet. The first shot struck Mrs. Resh in the neck and shoulder. The second shot hit Rohrbaugh in the face and blew off his jaw.

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Every day something out of the ordinary is seen by somebody. Let us hear about it. Phone 1248, or write The Intelligencer.

Only a Ford

A.G.—I notice that a citizen suggests that the night taxi men work in relays at incoming trains, that he was the only passenger to alight from a 2 a.m. train and was met by half a dozen taxi men. Hold on brother, listen to this, I came in on the 4 o'clock train in the morning and there was only one taxi waiting, a little Ford, and I was not the only passenger for down town, either. Of course the bus was there and I must say that the bus men are very accommodating and reasonable in their charges. However, don't discourage the taxi men.

Courtesy Pays

I.C.—I saw a youth delivering samples on East side of George street Tuesday morning, so I waited at the door thinking I would lay the package inside before leaving for the office, however, the very (courteous?) young man stepped one foot off the pavement and deliberately pitched a package in my direction, which landed at my feet in a puddle of water, and with a glowering look as I said brightly "Thank you very much," he passed to the doors beyond.

I did not have time to go back and wash my hands so left the package where it landed. I noticed this lad's companion stepped up and handed a lady a package in a most gentlemanly fashion. "Boys and girls, your acts—whether good or bad—sink deeply into someone's memory". It pays to be courteous even to strangers.

What the People Want

L.R.B.—On taking a walk around the city the other evening, I saw some pretty sights of beautiful lawns and gardens, lovely streets lined with shade trees, but was annoyed to find Corby Park deserted, not a soul except myself there. The same evening in Victoria Park I saw men and boys swimming around the local barges, I also saw women and children trying to bathe in the dirty Moira, which proved to me that the people want a park that is of some use in hot weather.

Is it not time the citizens had a chance of a decent bathing place and pleasure resort by the much-advertised Beautiful Bay.

Belleville Can Do It

M.T.B.—I saw in the Intelligencer a correspondent advises a committee to visit Toronto and see their baths in High Park. I would also say see Sunnyside. What Toronto has done Belleville can do. We have the waterfront and 5,000 dollars for baths. Zwicks Island would make a splendid park and pleasure resort and with a boulevard and drive-way from the city, Belleville would be a great place. We have the Bay of Quinte at our door, a gem of Canada. Why not use it? What folly to suggest Cooper's Dam. Every citizen's cry is "oh for the beautiful Bay on a hot day."

What did you see?

Tell The Intelligencer about it.

GROUP FOR ACTION ABROAD

Paris, July 18.—The "Companions of Intelligence" an organization of prominent literary, scientific and public men and women, formed to further interchange of art and learning among nations, has formed a subsidiary branch called "Group for Action Abroad," to work actively along this line. It is a movement for the development of world-advancement.

Dinners and lectures are given at which leaders in almost all branches of learning from abroad are brought into contact with those sharing their interests. An information bureau is maintained where men of learning, engineers or other specialists may be put in touch with their fellow-workers or aided in research

The East in the West

If we were only visiting the East—my wife and I—we would probably say nothing. First, because there are certain conventions which even we Westerners recall, but more likely because the East would still be showing us that mask of smiling indulgence which it wears for the benefit of the plainsman — and we should never have guessed its real forbearance underneath.

But having been brought here, so to speak, by royal command of an Eastern head office, and having been given the inestimable boon of enduring the most interfering traffic police and the most acquiescent criminal police in the world, we are accepted as Easterners! There is no longer any mask. This enables us to speak, as it were, within the family circle, with the mask hanging on a peg behind the door. Eastern universities feel just a little dismayed at the irreverence with which the Western student addresses himself to some of the age-old problems of metaphysics or natural science, and the breeziness with which he takes off his coat, makes his rough preliminary measurements, and proceeds to deal with that problem as cheerfully as though nobody had ever tried it before and failed! Undoubtedly this is a little crude, and the boy will probably fail and never have so much courage again. But his way, this Western way, will ultimately solve more problems than the way of the head shaker and the doubt-doubter who cherish as holy relics the traditions of other men's failures.

Among bank people here in the East there is an attitude of restrained wonder. Well, well; What will the West do next? Three-quarters admiring—and a little bit afraid!

And in railway circles I know high officers with whom, after a conversation at Saturday lunch, I have been invited back to empty offices to be shown colossal sacred books that showed—there was no doubting it—how poor Billy Langley's head for figures had gone wrong again! How Bill, in public addresses before the Railway Commission, solemnly swore that he had shipped—let me see—1,800 bushels of oats and only made $250 because, forsooth, the railway rates had gobbled up the rest! Well, the railway rates hadn't done this gobbling it seemed. There were the books, and there were the pages, and there were the columns—and there the figures! If Bill's oats had been of the lowest grade, and if they had been shipped on the longest haul at the highest rate and sold for the lowest price in the year he was talking about—why Bill must have got at least $522 for his 1,800 bushels instead of the $250 which he told the world about. And if his oats had been high-priced oats, he would have had nearer $700. But he said, said the railwaymen, that he got only $250 and that the railways had taken the rest.

I could have told these Eastern railway officials even worse examples of election-time arithmetic than this one. There is far more careless addition and subtraction right here in the East. But if they wanted Western cases—there was that farmer mentioned by Bill Langley, who claimed that 6,000 bushels of oats on which he paid 13c a bushel freight rate, would not net him more than 11c after paying for threshing. Well, if his oats had been of the lowest grade, and sold at the lowest price that is 42¾c, he must still have had 18c a bushel with which to pay the thresher. Of course every farmer knows that no thresherman ever got 18c a bushel. The inference in this case was that once more the railways were getting it.

There was also the case of a Mr. Brown, of the United Farmers of Manitoba who says that the cost of a binder laid down at Pilot Mound, Manitoba, is now $48 higher than it was last year, and that the railway rates are to blame for $22 out of the $48. I happen to know from an implement manufacturer that the entire freight costs of a five-foot binder if shipped in carloads from Hamilton, or Toronto to Pilot Mound in the spring of 1920 was $12.16; in April, 1921, $16.40; an actual difference of $4.24. If carried in carloads to Winnipeg and re-shipped as an individual binder from that point to Pilot Mound the total freight cost in 1920 was $19.25, and in 1921, $25.25, a difference of $6. Mr. Brown's estimate of the increase alone was greater than the entire cost.

But could you explain to Eastern railway officials that poor Bill Langley's figures, and poor Mr. Brown's figures must not be mistaken for Western arithmetic! That because Langley was a cabinet minister the Western farmer was not fooled into thinking that two and two make five, simple because Bill sometimes thinks so. Surely the East has seen just such foolish examples of arithmetic in the strain of fighting elections. There is no higher level of native intelligence anywhere in this world than among the people I come from, the kind that had the courage to march up to a new country and say: "Here! I am going to tame you!" and stick to it, although that country might still send all its forces of snow and wind and old-time loneliness to try to drive them back. As proof of the fact Langley was defeated in the Saskatchewan elections—rejected along with his arithmetic.

But leave the railways out of it. Among the small Eastern investors—the kind with whom my business brings me in frequent contact—I find what I might almost call sublime conceit in supposing that they can see through the charlatan and discover the fraud out West twice as quickly as the West itself. "No," quavers one of these very nice people with perhaps $1,000 to invest, "I don't think I care to hold any more western school debentures—or city bonds, or whatever it is—until I see. There is a bit too much demagogery out there! Too many young lawyers strutting around and flirting with parlor Bolshevism. Not just the O. B. U. strike in Winnipeg though that was bad enough—but I read of a case, etc., etc., etc." I wonder how many of the well-informed easterners know the amount of buncombe of that kind is talked among the little investors in the East and in England, timid people to whom the loss of the interest on even one debenture would mean some bill unpaid, some comfort done without?

The West is just as sane as the East. It sees through its own demagogues just as quickly and perhaps a little more quickly than the easterner. The western farmer is the last man in the world to tolerate Bolshevism. If, as I suppose, the basis of this eastern distrust is due to sometimes extravagant attacks on the railways by western orators, the East should remember that one of the surest ways a young lawyer can take for getting into the public eye out West, and winning a good constituency is to quote Scripture and rag the railways. It is always better for a family doctor to tell a lady patient she has XYX-ism of the ABC than to tell her the truth that she is really suffering from run-down nerves, unwise eating, late hours, too much coffee, worry over her children, and acidosis of the temper. She would never recover. So these popular and wise young doctors of state flourish the sword of scriptural quotation and shout "have you troubles good people? Stop worrying. Your public ailments are really very simple. You think you have many, but you really have only one railway rates! "If he explained the whole combination of economic conditions that cause this or that unpleasant symptom he would put the wise men in his audience to sleep, and the rest would be frightened to death. But the West, which is mostly wise, is not fooled even by his promise to bring low the great. It winks and enjoys the fireworks. It knows very well when he quotes Scripture to liken the Winnipeg Board of Trade to Judas Iscariot, that he had to ask a Methodist preacher to look up the quotation, because the leaves of the office Bible, used for swearing affidavits, are pasted together to keep it from falling open and embarrassing some client in the middle of a perfectly good deal. These youngsters get up and talk about the psychology of the farmer—as though any self-respecting farmer would admit having such a thing, and as though these young orators had ever heard the matutinal rooster or sweated behind a binder. The West knows that when this lad gets to Parliament and his party is in power, responsibilities will sober him up. It knows that he knows that nobody understands better than the West the importance of having railways prosperous enough and ambitious enough to carry on as leaders in the development of the whole country.

Of course it is foolish to pretend that demagogery is not dangerous. It is. Fragments of rash speeches, traversing wires and cables, have often frightened shut the pocket-books of people who have never seen a prairie sunrise over the harvest fields. But Westerners are no more given to this vice than anyone else. Free speech is a British heritage and it is up to the intelligent Easterner or old countryman to make enquiries or to suspend judgment before deciding that the West intends to wreck the C. P. R. in order to get rails to build fences.

Victoria's Broom Festival

May 23rd and 24th saw the inauguration for the city of Victoria of what is to be hereafter an annual event, and one of the greatest importance in the civic life of the city—"The Broom Festival." What Portland's Rose Festival is to her, so the Broom Festival will no doubt become to British Columbia's Capital, and Victoria has the advantage of a great deal of free advertising of nature's own device, for on every boat that comes within sight of the city, the passengers crowd to the rails with exclamations of "What is it? "What can it be?" They find, as they draw nearer that the object which attracted their attention is not an immense inverted butter bowl, nor the full moon on a pedestal, but Beacon Hill aflame with the broom—a sight once seen, with its setting of snow capped mountains and deep blue sea, never to be forgotten!

The broom is a low growing bristly bush with scant foliage somewhat resembling sage brush, something to be overlooked on ordinary occasions, but what a transformation when the flowers appear! Branches, foliage, stems, are lost in a mass of golden bloom, the dainty flowers resembling a miniature sweet pea. Victoria at the end of May is a paradise. Not only are the beautiful parks and carefully kept grounds a riot of bloom, but every vacant lot, every old stone wall and wayside is a thing of beauty. The hawthorne, the tulips, the violets, the peonies, the wild hyacinths are out, the fruit trees are just shedding their blossoms, the roses are in bud, but crowning all, and overshadowing all—the broom.

No wonder the city of Victoria, its merchants and civic authorities co-operating, decided that the Broom Festival should come to stay, and the success which attended the affair, the perfect weather, the large number of visitors in the city, and the hearty willing work all around should augur well for the permanency of the Festival as an annual event.

Broom is a wonderful medium of decoration. It lends itself to pillars, arches, and walls as though rooted there. It beckons down the street from each lamp standard with golden fingers that can be seen for blocks; it banks in store windows and on automobiles as though piled there by nature, and it has the added virtue of remaining fresh when flowers of almost any other description would be hanging their heads. The pageant with its gorgeous floats will long be remembered by the onlookers.

Miss Jessie Chapman was chosen Queen of the Carnival Festivities with a total of 19,327 votes.

Events opened on the morning of May 23rd with patriotic services, and in the afternoon at the Willows Park a field meet, under the Public Schools Sports Association. These events were hugely enjoyed by the boys and girls, and by evening the whole city had apparently wakened up to what was going on, for "The Community Sing" under the direction of Mr. Frank Sehl, on the steps of the Parliament Buildings with the crowds spreading out in all directions on the velvet lawns was a tremendous success. When "O Canada" and "Onward Christian Soldiers" broke from thousands of throats, the Festival was an assured success, for "When the people sing with one voice, the heart of the people sings also!"

Victoria Broom Festival—The Queen of the Festival and Suite on the Steps of the Empress Hotel.

What easier transition from singing then to dancing? So away went the crowds at 9.30 p.m. to Yates Street where between Blanchard and Douglas all traffic had been stopped, and the G. W. V. A. band held sway with a will. Such merry street dancing — with flowers for confetti, and the glowing broom throwing back reflections from all directions!

Bright sunshine also greeted the 24th, and punctually at 9.30 a.m. the procession and Pageant was on its way, led by the Queen, and partaken in by city officials, fraternal societies, and business concerns of all kinds, and brought up in the rear by the happiest of happy small boys on marvellously bedecked bicycles. A more thoughtful touch was added to the pageant by the G. W. V. A. float, with its grass covered mound,

One of the Floats Arranged by the St. Andrew's Society.

"In Flanders Field," and its motto "Lest we forget," while the Veterans of France with their two German guns mounted in realistic fashion and an ex-service man in a "tin hat" were especially striking.

An aspect of the crowning of the queen which added greatly to the pomp of the occasion was an arch of cutlasses provided by a bodyguard from H.M.C.S. Aurora and H.M.C.S. Squadron anchored at Esquimalt, the guard being again provided for the Queen and suite when she ascended her right royal throne at Beacon Hill where the procession finished and the sports began. Thousands upon thousands of citizens in holiday array as well as many hundreds of visitors gathered in the golden sunshine on the golden hill, and found Victoria indeed a good place to be.

The Regatta of the Gorge Park was the attraction of the afternoon, the men of the visiting Canadian fleet being of splendid help here, and adding a unique touch to the occasion. The Navy entered a launch made up as the Queen Elizabeth, and another in imitation of a motor car, both being the work of the boys of H.M.C.S. Patriot. The Indian war canoe races were particularly keen and were much enjoyed events, while hundreds of small craft of all descriptions sped over the waters laden with gay folk, the Fifth Regiment band making the musical program an attraction.

The Carnival Ball at the Empress Hotel was the closing event of a truly delightful Festival, the Empress looking her very best in her golden dress, with the British Lion and Union Jack in electric lights over the entrance. The wonderful lighting effects employed in the ball room, the ravishing gowns, and unique decorations all made the ball a memorable one.

Good Road Policy

provincial highway would benefit Belleville more than the rural section, bringing trade to the city and being a convenience, a comfort, and a pleasure to all the citizens. Under the suburban area system the city would have one mile of provincial highway for every half million assessment. Were it not for the suburban area system the cities would pay nothing toward the provincial highway and they will receive the most direct benefit.

One Toll Gate Left

The Minister of Public Works sketched briefly progress on the provincial highways, and stated that only one toll gate was left in the province, and that on a small road near Sarnia, which would be wiped out as soon as the people came to the government and asked for its removal.

Improving the Bridge

Just at the present time the work of his department was at its crest, but Mr. Biggs assured those present that the work of improving and protecting the bridge would be taken up very shortly and the structure put in first-class condition.

If the province were to spend five millions dollars a year for the next five years in developing good roads to the many beautiful summer resorts here, American tourists would pay it all back in money spent here, in the opinion of the Minister of Public Works, creating trade and additional employment. Hon. Mr. Biggs closed his address with eulogistic reference to Belleville and particularly to the Hotel Quinte which, he said, he was proud of and wished there were more like it.

Brief addresses were made by Hon. Nelson Parliament, Speaker of the Legislature, W. H. Ireland, M.P.P., and H. K. Denyes, M.P.P., and Lucius Allen, C.E., and the gathering dispersed all highly pleased at having been present.

Members Have Wonderful Trip

Quebec, July 19.—That it would take some little time before the suggested water facilities between the United States and Canada could materialize, was the opening of Geo. M. Bosworth, chairman of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services, in extending a welcome at Quebec to the members of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence tidewater association who reached here this morning after a six-day trip down Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence River. The trip reached its climax at Quebec.

The purpose of the association is to further the proposed deepening of the St. Lawrence River so as to afford access to ocean-going liners to the Great Lakes and at Quebec contact with ready-made navigation. When the delegation, which comprises several Governors of States, Congressmen and prominent business men of the United States inspected the beautiful C.P.O.S. liner Empress of France, which arrived here yesterday, Mr. Bosworth said that the party had seen enough during their trip to impress them with the necessity for further water communication between the St. Lawrence and the United States. Should these suggested facilities materialize it would certainly work a great change in the relations of the two countries not only in the matter of transportation, but also in electrical developments, which in these days of the high price of coal was of great importance as a supplementary source of power. He hoped that the delegation would make their next trip a longer one across the ocean, when they would find that the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services was the best route.

Senator Ransdell, of Louisiana, after relating, incidentally, that he, personally, had a great interest in the developments of Canada because he was a lineal descendant of the Acadians who, after being dispossessed of their lands in Nova Scotia in 1755, had settled in Louisiana, expressed the thanks of the entire delegation for the courtesies that had been extended to them by the C.P.R. and the Canadian Government during their journey. He trusted that this was the beginning of a much closer relationship between Canada and the United States. As a citizen of the United States, even of far-off Louisiana, "Away down south in Dixie," he said that none of the American members of the party had failed to be inspired by the magnitude of the Welland Canal and by the fact that Canada had carried it through single-handed. The first estimated cost had been fifty millions, but the actual cost was between eighty and ninety millions. Canada had not been staggered by the enormous cost, but he thought that the least their big brothers in the south could do was to pay their share of the balance. It had been said that facilities made commerce, rather than that commerce made facilities. If that were so this effort to bring ocean-going ships into the Great Lakes would provide one of the greatest facilities the world had even seen. He foresaw perhaps even greater advantages for Canada than to the United States because Canada afforded the greatest opportunities, and he trusted that the scheme would not linger on for ages as a dream, as the Panama Canal had, but would come to pass within the next ten years.

After luncheon on the Empress of France an inspection of the ship was made, conducted by Captain Cook and C. E. Benjamin, passenger traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services. The delegates were very much interested in the war record of the ship as shown on a table in the lounge, and which showed that during the war it was the flagship of a patrol between the Shetland Islands and Iceland, and had intercepted fifteen thousand ships, escorted convoys and had steamed nearly 267,000 knots. Moving pictures were taken on the boat deck of the entire party.

During the afternoon the party were the guests of the Governor-General and of the Lieutenant-Governor, Sir Charles Fitzpatrick. The Dominion of Canada was represented by Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, who joined the party at Montreal. Mayor Samson, City Clerk Chouinard and Chief of Police Trudel, of Quebec joined the party this morning, when a visit was paid to the government dry dock and to the Davis shipbuilding yards. Those who reached Quebec this morning included Harry J. Allen, Governor of Kansas; James Harkness, Governor of Vermont; W. H. McMaster, Governor of South Dakota; J. A. D. Preus, Governor of Minnesota; E. J. Sansouci, Governor of Rhode Island; J. P. Goodrich, ex-Governor of Indiana; W. L. Harding, ex-Governor of Iowa; D. N. Lewis, representing Governor Kendall, of Iowa; C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice: Senator Casgrain; Senator I. L. Lenroot, of Wisconsin; Senator W. B. McGinty, of Illinois; Senator J. E. Ransdell, of Louisiana; Senator C. E. Townsend, of Michigan; Congressman Vincent Brennan, of Michigan; Congressman W. W. Chalmers, of Ohio; Congressman A. W. Jeffries, of Nebraska; Congressman S. H. Kunz, Illinois; Congressman O. J. Larson, Minnesota; Congressman W. Williamson, South Dakota: Congressman G. M. Young, North Dakota; Congressman C. J. Thompson, Ohio; Hon. F. A. Johnson, Speaker of New Hampshire House; Gerald Ford, Vice-President Boston & Maine Railway; A. A. Adams, President Springfield, Mass., Chamber of Commerce; W. H. Lee, President New Haven Chamber of Commerce; S. H. Gullard, President Connecticut State Chamber of Commerce; H. A. Carter, President Massachusetts State Chamber of Commerce; H. C. Gardner, President Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Tidewater Association; C. P. Craig, Vice-President and executive director of Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Tidewater Association; C. A. Andrews, President Boston and Associated Industries; W. W. Atwood, President Clark University, Worcester, Mass.; W. P. Bradley, City Commissioner of Detroit; F. P. Keefer, M.P.; Evan Fraser, M.P., and about one hundred and twenty other leading bankers, business men and transportation men from the United States.

RECENT APPOINTMENTS TO GENERAL STAFF OF BANK OF MONTREAL

Mr. W. A. Bog, the second Agent of the Bank of Montreal in New York, has been appointed as Assistant General Manager of the Bank, with headquarters at Montreal. Mr. Bog is a native of Picton, Ont., a son of the late Lt.-Col. Bog, and has had a long career with the Bank of Montreal. Prior to this appointment he had been an Agent of the Bank in New York from 1906 till the begining of the present year, having been promoted to that position after serving for a number of years in the Montreal Branch.

Major S. C. Nosworthy, recently Inspector in the Foreign Department at the Head office of the Bank of Montreal, has been appointed an Agent of the Bank in New York. Before the war Major Nosworthy was in the service of the Bank at Montreal, St. John's, Newfoundland, and London, England, and as Manager of the branch of the Bank in Mexico City. In June, 1915, he joined the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and went overseas with the 42nd Battalion Royal Highlanders of Canada. Later he was promoted to the position of Brigade-Major with the 8th Canadian Infantry Brigade. He served in France until the end of the war, and returned to Canada early in 1919. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Order and the Military Cross. On rejoining the Bank of Montreal he was appointed Inspector of the Foreign Department. He is a native of Ingersoll, Ont.

SERBIA STILL UNFRIENDLY

Belgrade, July 19.—Serbia still maintains an unfriendly attitude toward Bulgaria, despite the efforts of some Bulgarian statesmen to compose the differences between the two countries.

M. Dimitroff, the Bulgarian Minister of the Interior, recently visited Serbia but this does not appear to have effected the improvement in the relations between the two countries that he hoped for. The press was anything but cordial to his mission.

Serbian newspapers reproach the Bulgarians with trying to avoid the fulfilment of their obligations toward Serbia and with persistently encouraging hostile acts by Bulgarian armed bands on the Serbo-Bulgarian frontier.

The agitation fostered by the Macedonian committee on the Albanian frontier aggravates the tension.

MANY ATTEND PICNIC

A number from this city and vicinity were today in attendance at the farmers picnic which was held at Plainfield under the auspices of the County of Hastings U.F.O. organization. A good programme of sports and speeches had been arranged.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

During a very severe electrical storm on Monday at Stoney Lake, lightning struck Mrs. E. L. Curry's cottage. The bolt went through two bedrooms and into the living room, splintering the doors and tearing up the flooring, but fire did not start. Mrs. Curry and her son, Gerald, were in the cottage at the time, but fortunately escaped injury.

PLACED UNDER ARREST

Mrs. Mary Brigden, of Kingston, who, it is alleged, attempted to poison herself and three children, was on Tuesday placed under arrest by the Kingston police on the charge of attempted suicide, and is now in jail. She has recovered almost completely from the effects of the strychnine, which she is alleged to have taken, and will be brought before the Magistrate for a preliminary hearing. On Tuesday morning at ten o'clock the two younger children, Mona and Agnes, were discharged from the Hotel Dieu, virtually completely recovered, and were handed over to the father, who took them to Trenton on the noon train to his home. The eldest daughter, Doris, was also discharged from the hospital, and is now living with her grandfather on Ontario street. Later, when the mother was able to leave the hospital she was arrested by the local police, charged with attempting to commit suicide.

HAS SIX DECORATIONS

Mr and Mrs. G. Phillips 37 Clarence street, Kingston have received the victory medal won by their son Sergt. R. E. Phillips whose home is now in Campbellford, but who at the time is spending a few weeks on Wolfe Island Sergt. Phillips is one of the six brothers of his family who served overseas. He enlisted in the 12th Battery, C.F.A., and won the D.C.M., and M.M. for his excellent work in that unit. This is the sixth decoration that Sergt. Phillips has received. Although gassed while on active service he is now enjoying the best of health.

AEROPLANE DELIVERY

An aeroplane delivering paint for the Brandrom-Henderson Co., arrived in Belleville to-day at noon and after a three-minutes stop started for Picton and Wellington and is to return to Belleville on Friday. The plane was delayed in its flight by engine trouble just outside of Montreal. The plane brought a consignment of paint for the C. M. Hall Hardware Store. Exhibition flights will be made and it is likely a number of our citizens will take the opportunity to see the coming Bigger and Better Belleville from the air.

WON HIGH HONOR

In the recent Entrance Examinations the Governor-General's medal was won by McKenna Farrell, a student of Queen Victoria school who scored 659 marks out of a possible 750. It is interesting to know in this connection that the same medal was won by the boy's uncle, Douglas McKenna, when he tried the Entrance some years ago. Sort of keeping it in the family as it were. Congratulations are due McKenna Farrell for his fine record.

PICNIC DAY

Scholars and officers of the Baptist Sunday school are enjoying an outing at Twelve O'clock Point to-day going up on the steamer Brockville which made two trips. Members of the Eastern Star dancing class motored to Presqu'ile to-day for picnic purposes and the jolly bunch presaged a happy time. Members of the Belleville Lions Club motored to Massassaugua Point this afternoon where they will enjoy a real jungle feed at the hotel and a romp about the landscape and baseball diamond.

KING AROUSED IRE OF NATIVES

Vienna, July 17.—The presumptive King of the Ukraine, Archduke William, son of Stephen Hapsburg, is said by the Abend to have aroused the ire of the natives by his extravagant mode of life at his castle of Rabenstein in Upper Austria.

Some months ago William was selected by the Ukrainians as their king when the time comes they may have one. With his aide, Count Larisch, he is residing on his estate and according to reports living royally. He has selected his new name and will be King Wasyl Wyschywany, while Larisch merely adds the Polish "enko" to his name.

Forest Fires Result of Carelessness

The forest fires in Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia this year have been in the great majority of cases humanly set. Few were caused by malevolence, but the effect on the public purse is not made easier to bear because of that. Of the thousands of dollars of public money expended by these provinces for fire fighting, of the millions of dollars in timber and other property, not to speak of the sacrifice of several lives, the greater part would have been wholy unnecesary if fishermen, campers, and settlers chose to observe common sense precautions with fire in wooded districts.

The Canadian Forestry Association points out that of the series of huge conflagrations in the forests of Eastern Canada this year, practically all commenced without legitimate excuse, in direct defiance to the fire laws and the interests of the public. Lightning has caused a number of this year's forest fires but ninety per cent. of the loss is attributable to such classes as settlers, fishermen and campers. The camp fire which the user fails to extinguish is a formidable enemy and the cigarette and match thrown down on the inflammable "floor" of the forest take an enormous annual toll.

HOW MANY TEASPOONSFUL TO A TON?

The average weekly increase in SALADA Sales during the first six months of this year has been TWENTY TONS. TWENTY TONS of tea would last the average North American consumer 32,000 years. Figure from this how many new customers have been gained for SALADA TEA in six months, for this 20 TONS a week represents the INCREASE ONLY in sales.

Baron Byng To Be Received At Quebec

LUNCHEON AT CHATEAU WILL FOLLOW OFFICIAL CEREMONY IN ASSEMBLY

Ottawa July 20.—The official programme for the reception of Baron Byng at Quebec has been announced. The plans include an official reception of the incoming Governor-General at King's Wharf, Quebec City, by the members of the Dominion Cabinet and other state dignitaries. The party will proceed from the wharf to the Quebec Legislative Assembly, where the cermony of the "swearing in" will be held along strictly official lines and without presentation of addresses of speeches.

Following the official ceremony, Baron Byng will be entertained at luncheon at the Chateau Frontenac by the Cabinet Ministers. In the evening Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, will give an official dinner at Government House.

After this dinner the Governor-General will proceed by train to Ottawa. The minor details of the reception of Baron Byng in Ottawa have not been announced, but provision will be made for presentations by the city fathers, the Great War Veterans' Association, and other societies.

Argentine Declined

Buenos Aires, July 20.—Argentine Republic has declined to mediate between Panama and Costa Rica in the territorial dispute which last March caused open hostilities between the two central American nations and prompted the United States to send several sharp notes to the Isthmus before warfare ceased.

QUEBEC'S HEAVY LOSS IN CROP FAILURE

Quebec, July 20.—That Quebec will lose over $200,000,000 by the partial failure of the 1921 crop was the announcement made by officials of the department of Agriculture of the province.

At least $150,000,000 of the loss can be accounted by the immediate failure of the hay crop and the decrease in cereals, and a loss of $50,000,000 through the fact that in many sections of the province the farmers will be forced to sell their cattle at a very low price.

Hon. J. E. Caron, Minister of Agriculture, admitted this morning that he was very pessimistic in regard to the situation on farms and said that the most his department can do will not meet the requirements.

No news has yet been received from Ottawa regarding a request for a reduction in the freight rates affecting the shipping of cereals which could be used as fodder to replace hay and a second attempt will be made by the local government.

The only hope is the general good crop in the rest of the country but the drought will affect conditions here for two years at least.

According to the forecasts the 1921 crop in the province of Quebec will be worth $180,000,000 as compared with $330,000,000 in 1920, being a record not only in abundance of production but also in the high prices being paid, the latter having increased more than $40,000,000.

The value of the cattle in the province was estimated at $232,000,000 last year, and this year will fall to about $180,000,000.

Marie, dear,
I just hate the world, and everything in it, to-day! I could fairly weep barrels of tears, and say all sorts of awful things. But Jack is a dear, I'll have to admit. He's post-hasting over now to take me out for a paddle.
I'll surely know enough this time to take a parasol with me though, for I certainly made a wreck of my complexion that last canoe trip. However, it only took Campana's Italian Balm a couple of days to bring it back to normal. I don't see how anyone exists without Campana's!
Au revoir, ma petite,
Peggy.

More Allied Forces Needed

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press, Limited

Paris, July 20.—British, Italian and French commissioners in Upper Silesia have sent in a report in which they jointly demand that reinforcements be sent to the Allied troops of occupation, it was announced here this afternoon. This recommendation came almost simultaneously with the receipt of a note by the French Foreign Office from the British Government in which Great Britain insisted there was no necessity for sending more troops into Upper Silesia. The note was in reply to a recent communication in which the French Government notified Great Britain that reinforcements were needed urgently in order to make sure that the troops were not disturbed and to insure respect for the decisions of the Allies under the Treaty of Versailles.

The British note reiterated the demand for early convening of the Allied Supreme Council. In view of the insistence of the British Prime Minister, it is probable that Premier Briand will agree to a meeting of the council in the neighborhood of July 27, probably in Boulogne.

(Copyright, 1903)

They 'lowed he was doin' it, but instead he was writin' a last word to me. He said he was tired o' livin' anyhow, the world was so down on 'im, an' that he'd ruther die 'an take a hand in lettin' a gang o' thieves steal the savin's o' pore folks, an' so he said he was goin' to refuse. He said he hoped it would give the lie to the belief that he was dishonest beca'se his old daddy had gone wrong. Thar was another matter he writ about, but that was private. I want to say, though, that George Buckley wasn't happy; he hain't been happy fer a long time. Thar are men in this world that think they are too good to mix an' mingle with men o' his stamp, but I've got sech a durn contempt fer that sort o' thing that I feel like slappin' the jaws o' folks that do in this day of enlightenment."

"Same here!" said Bascom Truitt.

They were all somehow looking at Major Cranston. Even Hanks had fixed him with a curious stare. The invalid stirred uneasily in his chair. One of his pillows fell to the floor, but the negro man behind him forgot to restore it. Negroes comprehend the most delicate workings of the Anglo-Saxon brain, and this black creature knew that his master had incurred the displeasure of his neighbors. Cranston seemed to feel that he ought to speak, but he did not like the expressions on the faces of Truitt and Hillyer, and their voices had rung with accusing defiance.

"What do you think ought to be done, Mr. Hanks?" he asked.

"I don't know," said Hanks. "I don't know."

"Well," ventured Cranston, interlacing his white, thin fingers, "I see no harm in wiring the governor to offer a reward for the arrest of the men. The editor of the Citizen told me as I came down that he'd publish anything free of charge. If the governor would offer $500, or even three"—

"Governor!" snorted Truitt. "Do you reckon I'd go to that cowardly skunk to help in a matter like this? Ef we hain't able here at home to stand behind a boy that offered his life to save the money o' the widows an' orphans in this county we ort to be whipped."

"Huh!" ejaculated Hanks suddenly. "Five hundred dollars fer the man that shot George Buckley. I'll give $5,000 in cash out o' my own pocket! You tell the editor that fer me, an' tell 'im the quicker he prints it the better it'll suit me. Tell 'im to git out a extra an' handbills an' send 'em on hosses an' trains in all directions. I'll foot the bill." He was standing now, and his glance was bearing down significantly on the major. "I never met a better man than George Buckley. He's wuth more to the community than forty-'leven fluted-bosom ring politicians. Seems to me I heard some fool woman or other say thar was a few people in this town that tried to hold their heads above 'im on account o' his affliction. By gum, them sort ud have to climb a powerful high mountain to look over that boy's head, an' don't you forget it."

"That's the ticket!" said Truitt, following Hanks outside.

"Seems to me," said Cranston, his proud lip quivering as he turned to Hillyer, "that I'm being hit at. I didn't come down here to talk over my—my family matters with anybody."

"We are all worked up in sympathy for George," Hillyer said coldly. "But, knowing what I do about the hearts o' yore daughter an' George Buckley, I feel like tellin' you to go to the deuce with yore notions o' family honor, Major Cranston."

"I have not said I wanted to discuss the matter with you," retorted the major sharply.

"I don't care whether you want to discuss it or not," answered Hillyer. "You are blind as a bat. The man you are trying to make yore gal marry is a dirty, sneaking coward, an'"—

"Why don't you tell him these things?" broke in Cranston angrily.

"He's been told twice to his teeth by friends o' mine an' tuck it like a whipped pup."

"You mean to tell me that Governor Telfare let any man insult him without resenting it?"

"Yes; he was low enough to meet George Buckley on yore own lawn an' order him away as if he had been a dog. The boy cussed 'im fer everything he could think of, all o' which yore brag man took like a egg suckin' dog. After that Bas Truitt went to Atlanta an' told 'im what he thought of 'im in his own house an' then pulled his ears good an' sound an' left 'im. That's the man you are tryin' to link to your lordly name—a man who today, accordin' to reliable information, is a bankrupt an' don't own the shirt on his back—a man who never had any standin' an' only got into office as a dark horse by the skin o' his teeth when the party disagreed between two respectable men. You want the truth; I'm givin' it to you. Yore gal knows what he is an' despises 'im from the bottom of her heart. She loves George Buckley, an' she would marry 'im today if she wasn't afeard you'd drap dead of heart disease. I don't believe yore heart's got that sort o' disease. Dr. Jobe says you eat too much an' that it's nothin' but yore old liver."

Cranston was as white as the pillow behind him.

"Can you prove that Telfare is—is insolvent?" he asked.

"Yes, I can."

"And that he refused to fight under an insult like you say Buckley and Truitt gave him?"

"Yes."

"Well, I'd like to have the proof."

"I'll git it fer you," said Hillyer. "I hain't got no time fer that now. I see Kenner comin' from home. He'll know how the pore boy is."

"He's doin' fine," Kenner declared as he entered a moment later. "The danger is entirely over. It's just good nussin' he needs now. Lord, he had a close shave!"

Hillyer's face melted into tenderness. Reaching out his hand to Cranston, he said impulsively:

"We cayn't afford to quarrel at sech a time, major. I'm so happy over that boy's escape that I cayn't entertain hard feelin'."

"Well, I'm sure I wish him no harm," said the Virginian as he gave his arm to his servant and turned from the room.

"You got that news straight, did you, Jim?" asked the merchant eagerly.

"From Jobe hisse'f. Oh, George 'll pull through!"

"An' thank God fer it," replied Hillyer reverently as he sank into his chair.

"We certainly have had a time of it this week," said Kenner. "Jest think how old Trabue's suffered."

"An' I'm thankful he's doin' so well," said Hillyer. "They told me this mornin' at his house that he was much better."

"Better?" cried Kenner. "Why, he's dead!"

"De-ad? Oh, no, Jim—no, no!"

"Yes, he's gone, Mr. Hillyer. They come a-runnin' fer Jobe about two hours ago, but he didn't git thar in time. They thought he was goin' to make the riffle, but he tuck a bad spell all of a sudden, an' thar wasn't no holdin' 'im back."

Hillyer turned his back to the speaker and leaned his head on his hand. Kenner looked at him curiously for a minute; then he said:

"I 'lowed I'd say, Mr. Hillyer, that I know how to do George's work, an' I'd take it as a favor to keep it up till he's able to come down."

But Hillyer was not listening.

"I say, I 'lowed"— But the merchant was still inattentive, and Kenner left the room, his eyes fixed in a puzzled stare on the old man at the desk.

"I'll swear he's a quar old duck," Kenner mused as he walked toward the compress, his hands in his pockets. "I never know how to take 'im."

CHAPTER XXXI.

THREE days later George was able to sit up in bed and take light nourishment. Mrs. Hillyer proved the best and tenderest of nurses. On the afternoon of the third day she came in and sat beside him.

"I ortn't to bring my worries to a sick man," she said, with a little forced laugh, "but you know Mr. Hillyer mighty nigh as well as I do, George, an' it's his actions that's troublin' me now. Ever since he set up all night with the old men over Trabue's body he's been actin' curious, an' this mornin' he saddled a hoss an' went off to the mountains, sayin' he wouldn't be back till tomorrow. I axed 'im what he was goin' fer, an' he jest said, 'Business,' but it's powerful quar fer 'im to leave the warehouse in Jim Kenner's charge an' you flat o' yore back. I 'lowed at fust that maybe he was after the thieves that shot you, but Mr. Hanks told me that nobody had claimed the reward he'd offered an' that it was believed the men had got clean off out o' reach. No, it wasn't that, an' what Mr. Hillyer did go fer is a mystery to me."

George fancied he had the key to the matter, but he did not feel at liberty to disclose it, so he made no reply. "Poor fellow!" he said to himself. "He has gone to see Mrs. Hambright to confess what he has been doing in regard to her supposed pension."

"Pore boy," Mrs. Hillyer went on sympathetically, "I reckon you've got enough troubles o' yore own without me pushin' mine on you, but you manage never to show yore'n."

"We all have them," said Buckley philosophically. "I try to remember that and put up with mine."

The woman sighed. "An' through all this last affair you hain't mentioned one person that's been on yore mind constant, George. I know you been thinkin' about 'er, fer when you was delirious the other night her name was on yore lips all the time. I set thar at the window, my boy, an' had the hardest cry I ever had in my life. I jest wish she could 'a' come in the room an' overheard all you said, George, you must 'a' been dreamin' that you 'n' her was fetched together, fer I never in all my days heard such tender words. You actually set up once an' put yore feet on the floor, an' held out yore arms an' called to 'er."

"I did have a dream of that kind." Buckley admitted under his breath. He was silent for a moment, and then he went on: "It was the most wonderful thing I ever experienced. It seemed so real. I thought I was lying helpless out in the sunshine and that she came to me across a meadow—an endless meadow covered with fragrant flowers. I thought her hands and arms were full of them and that she came to me laughing, singing, dancing. She seemed to have on the dress that she wore that night in Atlanta, though her hair was down and blown about by the wind. I thought she threw the flowers over me and held out her hands to help me up. And when we stood together, looking toward the setting sun, I—I thought I kissed her and that we stood alone in all the world—just she and I. I seemed to be unable to speak, but she told me that we were never, never to be parted. Then I thought something struck me like a stone in the forehead, and it began to grow dark and she vanished. It was a twinge in my wound that waked me."

"What a purty dream!" said Mrs. Hillyer musingly. "An' it seems to me that this life—or the future one—ought to be like that—be jest what a body would want it, I mean. It looks like a shame fer you to be tantalized that a-way, though, at sech a time. I reckon you heard the Cranstons was back from Atlanta."

"No; I didn't know it," replied Buckley. "When did they come?"

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hunt have returned to their home in Kingston, after spending two weeks with her mother, Mrs. Hicks, Aylmer street, city.

Good Shooting by Canadians at Bisley

SEVENTEEN SURVIVE THE FIRST STEP—CANADA TO ENTER FOR MACKINNON CUP

Bisley Camp, July 21—Forty scorers of 88 shoot-off for the last seventeen places of those eligible to enter the second stage of the King's prize. Only the highest 300 in the first stage are premitted to shoot in the second stage and Canada is sure of 17 representatives in the next stage with the chance that Sgt. Steele of Guelph who scored 88 may also get in as the result of the shoot-off. This is probably a record number of Canadians surviving the first stage. There were twelve men last year when there were five attached men shooting with the Canadian team as compared with only one this year.

The big team match for the Mackinnon Challenge Cup will be shot this afternoon and it is expected that there will be teams entered representing England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales and Canada. The teams are of twelve men each, fifteen shots per man at 900 and 1,000 yards.

What Women of Charlotte Co. Do

Algonquin Hotel, N.B., July 19.—To-day has been a day for homespun suits and sweaters. The thermometer has stood at 64 at noon and 52 at half past two. Nearly every one who indulges in golf has been on the links. Towards evening a breeze has sprung up. A great many people have been visiting the Charlotte County cottage-craft today. Aside from the idea of possessing a homespun bag or pair of slippers, visitors are interested in examining the excellent work produced by the women of Charlotte County with their only outlook that of their own farms. There farmer's wives and daughters have woven into their bags and rugs the homely scenes of every-day life with the beautiful coloring of fields, sky and the distant hill. It is interesting to note that the dyes used for the wools are all made in Charlotte County. The wool comes from Charlotte County sheep. The rugs are braided by Charlotte County women and even men. The homespun is woven on Charlotte County looms. This year there are even blankets woven in St Andrews. It shows what the proper incentive is able to accomplish.

Live Stock Rates Cut by Railway

Ottawa, July 21.—An important reduction on live stock railway rates on all Canadian lines is assured, as the result of a conference held here between representatives of the live stock industry and the railways. A basic 25 per cent. decrease is probable. In view of the sympathetic attitude of the railway companies, it was felt that an order of the Railway Commission would be unnecessary. The railways will submit their offer to the board within one week.

PLURAL MARRIAGE MAY BE LEGALIZED

Paris, July 21.—The Roumanian Parliament is about to be asked to legalize plural wives, according to a despatch from Bucharest.

A semi-official Bucharest newspaper announces that at the next session of the Chamber of Deputies a bill will be introduced making it legal for men to have two wives if they so desire to challenge fate.

The bill, it is claimed, will enter parliament with the support of a number of deputies. The attitude is taken that if the heir to the throne can marry two wives successively, Roumanian citizens should have the same rights and privileges.

The Crown Prince married Zizi Lambrino, eloping with her to Odessa, where the couple were wedded in a church. She refused to be divorced, but the Crown Prince recently married Princess Helena of Greece.

United Farmers Picnic a Huge Success

THOUSANDS ATTEND A GATHERING AT PLAINFIELD—SPEECHES, HORSE RACES AND OTHER SPORTS MAKE A GOOD PROGRAMME—A DAY OF RARE ENJOYMENT TO ALL WHO ATTENDED.

All roads in Hastings County, on Wednesday, apparently led to one place, and that place was the village of Plainfield, in Thurlow township. The young and the aged were there from all parts of the county and the city of Belleville. They came in autos, democrats, buggies, in fact in all kinds of conveyances. The attraction was a county basket picnic given under the auspices of the United Farmers Club and the Plainfield Driving Club. In other words, it was a U.F.O. gathering, and a few thousands were present. The Driving Club grounds are an ideal spot for such a gathering, being provided with a half-mile track and ball diamond, while upon an extended sloping piece of ground there are abundant shade trees. In addition to this, it was an ideal day, and all present were evidently bent on enjoying themselves, which they did to their hearts' content. The committee in charge left nothing undone for the pleasure of their guests. The committee was composed of Messrs. E. S. Maynes, secretary; J. W. Parks, J. Sherman, W. Huskins and B. Collins. Representative residents of the county were present in large numbers, including reeves and deputy reeves of various municipalities. Many partook of dinner upon the grounds, and the various booths were kept busy in providing refreshments, soft drinks and ice cream.

AUSTRALIA SEEKING A MILLION SETTLERS

London, July 21—Ex-Premier Carruthers of New South Wales, Australia, announces that a new colonization scheme is being worked out by important Australian and British interests. The plans of the promoters would involve an investment of £30,000,000. It is expected that the Governments of Britain and Australia will back the new campaign, the slogan of which will be a million farmers and a million new farms for Australia.

Extend Markets For Manufacturers

The growth of east and west trade in Canada has syncronized largely with the growth of the volume and quality of advertising by eastern manufacturers in the western centres.

That national trade, to be really valuable as a factor in building the nation, should be reciprocal as between east and west is an axiom in Canada. McConnel & Ferguson, Limited, a national organization for the development of markets by advertising, are putting this principle into practise by extending the scope of their organization to the Pacific Coast.

After a six weeks' survey of western conditions, Mr. J. E. McConnell, president of the company, recently opened a branch of his company in Vancouver.

Hitherto Winnipeg has been the farthest Western point of any of the national agencies, but Mr. McConnell came to the conclusion that a branch of their organization in Vancouver could assist very materially in extending the markets of eastern manufacturers and, at the same time, aid in developing eastern markets for B. C. products, such as fish, canned goods, fruit, lumber, etc., which British Columbia is in a position to produce in enormous quantities. The east needs the trade of British Columbia, the richest per capita of all the provinces, and British Columbia needs the markets of the east.

Mr. W. H. Carswell, a man of ripe experience both in Eastern and Western Canada, has been placed in charge of the Vancouver office. Mr. Carswell was for many years associated with newspapers in Toronto and Montreal, and has been in the advertising business in Vancouver for thirteen years.

McConnell & Ferguson now have offices in London, Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Militia Strength to be Reduced

PERMANENT FORCE IS TO BE CUT DOWN TEN PER CENT.—ECONOMY IS REASON

Ottawa, July 21.—Canada is reducing the strength of her permanent force by ten per cent., it was officially announced by the militia department today. This step taken on the ground of economy, and effective as soon as possible after July 31, will mean there being a maximum of 3,600 officers and men, as against 4,000 as heretofore. Commanding officers were instructed to select those for discharge who will suffer the least hardships.

The reduction in the Canadian permanent force, taking effect on July 31, or as soon as possible after that date, will effect all units. The Royal Canadian Dragoons will lose 17 men; Strathcona Horse 13; Royal Canadian Artillery 59; R.C.R.'s 31; Royal Canadian Engineers 14; P.P.C.L.I. and 22nd Regiment 20 each; Machine Gun Brigade 15; R.C.A.S.C. 20; R.A.M.C. 2; R.C. Ordnance 80; R.C.A. Veterinary 20; R.S.A.P.C. 8; C.M.S.C. 11; Miscellaneous 50; making 400 in all, or a total reduction of ten per cent.

INTERFERED WITH SWITCH; LAD GIVEN THREE YEARS

St. Hyacinthe, Que., July 20.—For interfering with a switch on the Grand Trunk Railway, George Jubinville, aged 17, was yesterday sentenced to three years' hard labor in the penitentiary.

Precautions First Decisions Later, French View

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

Paris, July 21.—France, it was declared in official circles this morning, will send reinforcements to Upper Silesia, whether Great Britain joins or not in the reinforcement movement suggested by France.

The French move will be made, it was declared, to insure the safety of ten thousand French soldiers already on the ground there. France, it is declared, recognizes that danger threatens from the side of the Poles as well as from the German side, making it doubly necessary, in the French view, to reinforce the Allied troops. Precautions first, decisions afterwards, probably will remain the French view, it is indicated, unless there are unforseen developments.

BRIGHTON'S RATE 40

Brighton, July 20.—Forty mills on the dollar will be Brighton's tax rate for the year of 1921. Increased demands from the School Board, with other uncontrollable expenditure, has raised the rate.

Meighen May Delay Departure to Canada

EXCHANGES WITH WASHINGTON MAY KEEP HIM IN LONDON TILL AUGUST 4.

London, July 21.— As a result of an important communication sent to Washington yesterday, it may be necessary for Premier Meighen to remain in London until August 4, it was learned to-night. The communication was confidential but is believed was connected with the desire of the British government to hold a preliminary conference on Pacific problems in London. Mr. Meighen is anxious to sail on Thursday as reports reaching England indicate the desirability of his returning as soon as possible, but the question of the Pacific is so vitally related to Canada and he has taken such an active part in bringing the conference about that his presence here is essential if the conference is held.

A highly confidential meeting of the premiers, from which even high officials and other ministers were excluded, was held this afternoon. Questions of empire defense in relation to the new situation created by the calling of a disarmament conference were discussed.

SOLOMON'S TEMPLE COST FOUR BILLIONS

London, July 21.—England may count herself lucky the Palestine mandate was not awarded her in Biblical times. According to the Right Rev. T. E. Bird, who lectured at Cambridge University today, Solomon's temple, in terms of modern values, cost $4,000,000,000 to build. The lecturer did not mention the discovery of any building scandal in Jerusalem.

Girl is Dead Friend May Die

Fire Truck Smashed Into Car at Crossing and Girls on Sidewalk Crushed Against Wall of Building

Hamilton, July 21.—Pinned between a Ford car and a wall of the Burrow Stewart and Milne building, John and Cannon streets, when the automobile was struck by a fire truck, Miss Ruth Green, 298 John street North, succumbed to her injuries at the General Hospital, and Miss Isabella McLean, 156 Park Street North, is in a critical condition.

The accident occurred at 5-15, when the fire truck, a motor combination, driven by Edward Nixon, was speeding from Central Fire Station to an alarm turned in from St. Anns' church. The young ladies had just left their employment at Eaton's factory, and were standing on the sidewalk waiting for the reels to pass when the Ford car, in charge of Frank Stewart, darted across the intersection. It was piled into by the fire apparatus, and the two vehicles, locked together swerved into the building of Burrow, Stewart and Milne, crushing the girls between the rear wheels and the wall.

Workmen from the factory rushed to the aid of the young women and phoned for the ambulance. Miss McLean was taken to the office of Dr. Wardell, and a passing physician attended to Miss Green. Both were then removed to the General Hospital, where Miss Green died at 10-15 last night. The driver of the car was not injured, though the Ford was a total wreck. The firemen spilled from the apparatus by the impact were uninjured. The motor combination was badly damaged. An official investigation has been ordered by the Chief Coroner, Dr. Rennie.

Masons to Spend $82,000 in Charity

BOARD PREPARES FOR OPENING SESSION OF GRAND LODGE AT OTTAWA

Ottawa, July 20—Business was transacted at high pressure by the Board of General Purposes of the Grand Lodge, A.F. & A.M., in the Province of Ontario, at the Masonic Temple here to-day in preparation for the sixty-sixth annual communication of the Grand Lodge, which opens in the Collegiate Institute Wednesday morning, when more than 1,000 delegates from all parts of Ontario will be present.

Reports were presented by various committees and passed upon or amended for presentation to the Grand Lodge. There were also some important decisions reached. One of the most interesting acts of the Board of General Purposes was to sanction a grant of $1,000 for the purpose of erecting a monument to the Most Worshipful Brother Mercer Wilson at Simcoe. Mercer Wilson was the first Grand Master of the Grand Lodge, and died 75 years ago. The district where the monument will be erected is known as Wilson district, in Welland county.

Another decision was the allowing of $82,000 as the estimated expenditure for benevolence in Ontario next year. This is the greatest amount set aside for such a purpose since Masonary was founded in the Province. It exceeds by more than $10,000 that used for such purposes last year. In addition to this amount there will be an estimated expenditure of $15,000 by various individual lodges in their local fraternal work. The money is used for the widows and orphans of Masons and incapacitated Masons themselves.

Fourth attempt to blow up buildng at St. Catherines. Bomb placed at corner of fruit house, but little damage done.

Crucial Point in Negotiations Has Been Reached

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

London, July 21.—When Eampnn de Valera returns to Dublin after today's conference with Prime Minister Lloyd George, the prevailing opinion is that he will carry a bulky document in which Ireland will be offered Dominion Home Rule within the British Empire, similar to the Government of South Africa.

It is understood that proposals, which are said to have been supplemented in many respects by suggestions from Premier J. C. Smuts of South Africa, accord a considerable measure of fiscal freedom to Ireland but avoid extending the rights of taxation against England, which the latter might not be able to exercise in return against Ireland.

London, July 21.—Eamonn de Valera arrived at Number 10 Downing street, the official residence of Lloyd George at 11-30 this morning. A large crowd of Sinn Fein sympathizers were on hand to cheer their leader, while a large number recited the Rosary, others waved Sinn Fein flags and sang Irish songs.

It was expected that Lloyd George would, at this conference with the Republican leader, present the Government's proposals for a settlement of the Irish question. These proposals, it was unofficially stated, are of such a nature as to permit no alternative offer. The whole United Kingdom was watching the outcome of to-day's conference with tense interest as it is considered the crucial point of negotiations has been reached.

Fake Gasolene Inventor Given Term in Prison

GASOLINE HE INVENTED WON HIM A FIVE-YEAR TERM IN SING SING

New York, July 21.—Stanislau C. Papp, who organized a million dollar corporation to make a gasoline substitute from vegetables, cornstalks and sugar cane, was sentenced to-day to serve from 2½ to 5 years in Sing Sing. He pleaded guilty to an indictment for grand larceny.

The prosecution told Special Sessions Judge McIntyre that Papp, also known as Professor F. John Chassler, after crediting himself with discovering a substitute for gasoline, organized the Fermogas company last year, with a capital of $1,000,000, and sold much stock.

He even interested the government in his supposed discovery, it was said giving a demonstration to army officers, bankers and capitalists at Ramsey, N.J.

Telling him the trick merely consisted in letting the vegetables soak in water for 24 hours, Papp, it was said, poured his compound into an automobile and ran it. Later, however, it was learned that he had used alcohol instead of water.

Irish Parleys Proceed Slowly

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer

London, July 20—To-morrow's meeting between Eamonn de Valera and Mr. Lloyd George will probably be their last before the return of the South-Ireland delegates to Dublin. Following their return to Ireland, a meeting of the "Irish Republican Parliament" will in all likelihood be convened to give the Republican leader an opportunity to report and take fresh counsel on the new complexions which the Downing street parleys may have placed upon old questions, and to formulate policy talks. It is problematical whether de Valera will then go to Belfast for a meeting with Sir James Craig, Ulster Premier, which was forecast this morning, in some quarters as a probability.

YOUNG FARMER DROWNED

Cornwall, July 20.—Lyle Davis, a well-known farmer, who resided a couple of miles south of Fort Covington, was drowned in the river near his home today while swimming. He had been working in the hayfield from daylight and it was intensely hot. The body was recovered shortliy after the drowning. The deceased leaves his widow, mother, two brothers and four sisters. Mr. Davis was only 31 years of age.

Millions of Dollars waiting to be Invested in Building

CONFERENCE TO BE HELD AT OTTAWA TO BRING ABOUT DECREASE IN PRICE OF CONSTRUCTION, BOTH LABOR AND MATERIALS, IN TORONTO — WITH EVERYTHING ELSE ON THE DECLINE RENTS CONTINUE TO ADVANCE.

Ottawa, July 19.—Eight million dollars' worth of projected building is being held up in Toronto at the present time, according to a statement by Senator G. D. Robertson. The work is not being proceeded with because the present cost of construction would be unjustifiable from the investors' point of view. No fair return could be expected on the outlay, it is said.

On Thursday next, a second conference will be held between representatives of the building trades organizations and contractors, sub-contractors, dealers in builders' supplies, as well as the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the Toronto Board of Trade. The purpose of these conferences is to stimulate local building, and at Thursday's meeting each of the interests represented has agreed to come prepared to say what they are prepared to contribute towards a decrease in the price of construction—both labor and materials.

The public at large, said the minister of labor, is deeply concerned in this matter, in view of the fact that the only item that enters into the ordinary household budget that has not decreased during the past year is rent,—that, notwithstanding the fact that everything else is on the decline, rents have continued to advance. The present situation is that, with millions of dollars waiting to be invested in building, and with thousands of men out of employment, and rents continuing to ascend, the building industry remains stagnant.

The Canada Cement Company authorized the minister to announce to those interested in the industry that if at the meeting on Thursday the manufacturers and dealers in building supplies as well as the labor interests contribute their quota toward a reduction, they are prepared to put into effect on that day a reduction of 25 cents per barrel on cement. This reduction will only apply, however, east of the Great Lakes.

TWO GIRLS TAKE 800-MILE RIDE

Winnipeg, July 21.—Two young ladies arrived at Alhorn, 100 miles north of Winnipeg, yesterday on horseback. They were Misses Margaret Popplewell and Stena Johnson, who had made an 800-mile trip from Okatoks, Alta., across Saskatchewan and western Manitoba, over the Narrows of Lake Manitoba, and are now bound for their homes at Inwood and Lumdar. They left Okatoks about May 1 with two horses and saddles and $14. Arriving here, they still have the horses and saddles and 35 cents each.

First King of Iceland Arrives

REYKJAVIK, ICELAND, July 20.—The first King of Iceland set foot for the first time yesterday on Icelandic soil. The welcome extended by the islanders to Christian X. of Denmark, and also of Iceland, bore a solemnly fervent character, apparently more solemn than was anticipated by the gay, easy-going crowd of Danish visitors who had come over for the occasion.

The Icelanders themselves took their King's visit tremendously seriously, and regarded it as an event of momentous import. The majority of the capital's 18,000 inhabitants spent the day around the public school building, which was made the official residence of the Danish royalties, and rebaptized "The Castle." Raykjavik's 190 automobiles were taxed heavily carrying the important-looking uniformed and decorated dignitaries to and from "The Castle".

Queen Like Tapestry Picture

At a gala dinner, Queen Alexandrine wore the Icelandic national dress, the 70,000 kroner gift of the women of Iceland. With her heavy golden crown, it made the Queen look like a tapestry picture of a viking queen of old Edda times.

Iceland being "dry", the loyal toasts were honored in mineral waters and lemonade.

In commemoration of his visit, King Christian has instituted a new decoration; the order of the Icelandic Falcon.

Both the King and Queen will visit historical Icelandic places on horseback. The King will be mounted on a beautiful white charger 14 hands high; the tallest horse in Iceland.

Many excursions planned have had to be abandoned owing to the swollen state of the rivers.

Prisoners Escaped From Counties Jail

RETURNED TO HIS HOME IN CAMPBELLFORD—AFTER HOT CHASE WITH POLICE PRISONER WAS SHOT

Gordon Stewart who was sentenced to nine months in the County jail at Cobourg for house breaking at Campbellford, escaped from that institution early Tuesday morning. The jailer had left the corridor door open in order that the cook might get to the kitchen to prepare breakfast. Stewart finding this excellent opportunity to gain freedom accepted it and was soon on his way back to Campbellford. Chief Ruse of Cobourg was soon busy on the wires, asking the police to be on the look out. Early Tuesday evening Stewart was located at Campbellford but when confronted by the Campbellford police put up a fight and after breaking free from the constable ran away. A hot chase followed but finally a shot from the officer's revolver took effect in Stewart's leg and brought him to the ground. He was brought back to Cobourg today and is at present confined to the hospital, although his injury is not considered serious. Stewart is twenty-five years of age

HOW ONE BILLION GOLD MARKS DUE BY JUNE 1 WERE MADE UP

Paris, July 21.—The Reparations Commission issued an official statement announcing that the German Government has just paid to it thirty-one million gold marks in European currency on account of the three months' notes given in the latter part of May in settlement of the one billion gold marks due before June 1.

The Commission announces that the one billion marks were to be made up as follows when the pledges were accepted by the Commission in May:

Three months' treasury notes amounting to 839,573,000 marks and currency 160,427,000.

Including the remittance of 31,000,000 marks paid to-day, Germany now has redeemed 114,949,000 marks, making a total of 275,376,000 marks paid on account of the one billion marks. The German Government has informed the Reparations Commission that it is ready to remit immediately forty-one million marks more in European currency, which will bring the total paid in specie and currency to more than 310,000,000 marks.

France Executes Moroccan Gunner

Mayence, July 211.—Mohammed Ben Ahmed, a Moroccan machine gunner of French forces on Rhine, who was convicted by a French court martial of killing and robbing a German merchant, was executed by a firing squad here. He calmly smoked a cigarette until the bullets struck him.

The execution was carried out in the presence of many witnesses and all the Moroccan members of the garrison were marched past the body. The firing squad was composed of six French and six Moroccans.

General Schmidt, the French military governor at Mayence, addressing the correspondents after the execution, said: "We have just witnessed an example of the French sense of justice.

Aerial Transport Opens New Route

London, July 21.—Regions that would have to wait many years before they could be traversed by railways are now quickly mastered by aerial transport. News comes to-day from the Air Ministry that a new air route has been opened up across the desert between Palestine and Mesopotamia. Notification has been received of the arrival at Bagdad of three airplanes of the Royal Air Force which have flown over this route.

The new route is about 580 miles long. It is an extension of the present Cairo-Ramleh route. It starts from Ramleh, where is the main Royal Air Force aerodrome in Palestine, passes through Amman (East of the Jordan) and Kasr Azrak, where landing grounds have been prepared, and proceeds thence in an almost straight line across the Arabian desert to Ramadie on the Euphrates, and then to Bagdad.

The distances between the principal stations are as follows: Ramleh to Amman, 65 miles; Amman to Kasr Azrak, 55 miles; Kasr Azrak to Ramadie, 400 miles; Ramadie to Bagdad, 60 miles.

BURGLAR FOILED; SHOES PINCH HIM

Chicago, July 18.—"You wish a pair of shoes?" queried Fred Sanson of the Newark Shoe Co., as he rubbed his hands and pulled the customary shop smile on a man who had just arrived. tomary shop smile on a man who had just arrived.

"Yes," replied the customer, "I wear a 6 double A, and that's what I want."

"I knew he was married," Clerk Sanson told the Judge to-day, "because his socks were full of holes. I also thought he was a genius or a liar, for the measuring rule showed he required a 9 shoe on a D last.

"After much manoeuvring, I managed to squeeze his feet into a pair of 7 D, and he walked up and down the green carpet, admitting, with obvious agony, that the shoes would do."

"Then, your Honor, he drew a magazine pistol and demanded that we turn over the contents of the cash drawer. Another customer came in and I stepped behind a row of chairs crawled to the street door, and ran, yelling for the police."

The robber, who has been identified as Morris Biddle of Indianapolis, attempted to get away, but the tight shoes were his undoing. They gave him such pain that he was easily overtaken.

Amusements at St. Andrews, N.B.

Algonquin Hotel, N.B., July 20.—During the night there was a severe thunderstorm, several inches of rain fell, this was badly needed for the crop as the outlook has been very bad. To-day has been slightly overcast, while the temperature has been sixty-four and fifty-two, while in Quebec it has been seventy-one, Ottawa seventy-six, Montreal eighty.

Last evening a stock company presented a down-east play in the King Street Theatre, it was well attended both by summer guests and by towns-people. To-night a moonlight excursion is expected from St. Stephens on the steamer "Grand Manan". Moonlight excursions were very popular in the good old days before the war but the one to-night is the first for several years. An upriver band will be in attendance and will give a band concert in the market square. It is likely that it will be quite a quiet affair as Charlotte County is almost dry.

During this week there have been many motor parties from the other side of the line. The excessive heat driving the people to seek relief in the briny breezes of St. Andrews.

ROTARY APPEALS TO ANTIPODEANS

Toronto Rotarians Hear of Extensions In Australia And New Zealand

Toronto, July 16—The progress of the Rotary idea throughout the Empire was reported on at the weekly luncheon of the Toronto Club yesterday, when J. L. Ralsion, K.C., President of the Halifax Club, told the local Rotarians about the trip that he and Mr. Jas. W. Davidson had taken to Australians and New Zealanders ready interests of such extension.

In discussing Rotary they found Australians anu New Zealanders ready to consider any movement which had in it an opportunity for the development of a public spirit, and, while the social features interested them greatly, they wanted to be absolutely convinced that Rotary had in it the potentialities for real service. The fact that leading business and professional men, and those engaged in civic and community activities in cities and towns all over the map of the British Isles, Canada and the United States, and, to a limited extent, in Europe, South America, China Japan, the Philippiness and West Indies, were united under the motto service above self— He who profits most who serves best—seemed to Australians and New Zealanders to point to an effective organization to have offset the propaganda which was constantly being put on to sow dissension between the nations of the world—and particularly the United States and Britain.

Four clubs were inaugurated, one in Melbourne, one in Sydney, Australia, one in Wellington, and one in Auckland, New Zealand

BLUNT SPEAKING

London, July 21.—The reputation which Americans have of blunt speaking even in the face of royalty, is likely to be enhanced by a remark that passed between King George and Mr. Klumph, of Cleveland, O., on the occasion of the Rotarians' reception at Buckingham Palace, the other day.

King George affably said to Mr. Klumph that he, too, would like to become a Rotarian.

"I don't see what is to stop you," said Mr. Klumph.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

BIG SPECTACULAR DRAMA BECOMES SCREEN FEATURE

"The Hope", one of the most successful of spectacular melodramas, has been made into motion pictures. The screen production is announced for exhibition at Griffin's To-night to Saturday, with a matinee Saturday. The all-star cast includes Jack Mulhall, Frank Elliott, Ruth Stonehouse, Marguerite de la Motte, Mayme Kelso, Lillian Langdon, Bobby Mack, Captain Arthur Clayton, J. P. Morse and Herbert Grimwood.

All the thrills that made this type of melodrama famous are promised for the new production. Advance reports also speak with enthusiasm of the series of spectacular scenes, which include an Italian earthquake with a city street getting buried in the ground and a skirmish in the Khyber Pass, India, between British troops and Afghanistan natives that thrill the spectator through their sheer realism.

"The Hope" tells the story of Harold, Earl of Ingestre, whose adventures carry him from his ancestral halls to service with his regiment in India and into Italy on a quest made necessary to clear his honor of the stain put upon it by a fellow officer. Jack Mulhall is to play Harold. The villianous fellow officer, Captain Hector Grant, will be played by Frank Elliott, who headed the cast in the original production of the stage play in London. Marguerite de la Motte is the aristocratic heroine, Lady Brenda and Ruth Stonehouse has an appealing role as Olive.

"The Suitor" a 2-reel Larry Semon comedy, Fox News, and other varied attractions will be presented.

United Farmers Picnic

After luncheon had been partaken of speech-making was the first order of the day's proceedings. Some disappointment was felt at the non-appearance of Hon. F. C. Biggs, Provincial Minister of Public Works, who had been billed to speak, but was compelled to return to Toronto on important departmental business. This was explained to the assemblage by Mr. H. K. Denyes, M.P.P. for East Hastings, who with Hon. Nelson Parliament, Speaker of the Legislature and M.P.P. for Prince Edward County, constituted the list of speakers.

Mr. Denyes, in his address, referred to the pleasure it gave him to be present upon the occasion. As far as he was concerned he was ready, he said, to uphold the Farmers' Government of Ontario, and was prepared to defend its policies. There had been considerable criticism in some newspapers in regard to expenditures: but they were not extravagances. There was a deficit of $800,000 the first year of the Drury Government, but the deficit of the previous government was one million and a half. Some had criticised the expenditure of money for certain furniture for a minister's office, but when the truth was known it was but a slight expenditure for necessary requirements. The U.F.O. Government had not been extravagant, but quite the contrary. Mr. Denyes spoke of the educational policy of the government and the good results being achieved. It had been stated that the government had given a grant to the province of Quebec, which was correct. When the University of Toronto was visited by fire the Quebec government gave a grant to assist in its restoration, and that act was reciprocated when a like disaster befell Quebec. We showed by that act that we were neighbors and desired to be such. That item passed through the House and was not criticised by even the Opposition. Before concluding his remarks Mr. Denyes referred to the Alberta election, which was an indication of what the people thought of the farmers' ability to conduct provincial affairs.

HON. N. PARLIAMENT.

Hon. Nelson Parliament spoke at some length and in a manner that was most convincing to his hearers. In his opening remarks he spoke eulogistically of Mr. Denyes, whom he characterized as a broad-minded man who was ever ready to faithfully serve his constituents. It was a fact that today we were living in serious times and there were grave questions to be settled. In speaking of the employment situation the speaker stated that those who live in the rural municipalities do not realize the seriousness of the situation in many of the urban municipalities. This was a matter that the provincial government was, with other organizations, endeavoring to help. It was incumbent upon us to assist those not so fortunate as we are. In referring generally to public matters Mr. Parliament said that as a rule people do not take the interest in public affairs that they should. It was our business to do so. Upon public questions he said he occupied a peculiar position. It was his duty as Speaker of the Legislature to fairly judge between the Government and Opposition in matters that are considered in the House. He would give no decision that were not above board. He spoke of the Government's plan of rural credits, which had proved of much value where in vogue in other countries outside of our own. If we expect this province to maintain its position in the country we must do more to bring people back to the farms from the cities. He pleaded for unity between all parties. We must be broad enough to promulgate laws that will benefit all. The Farmers' Government has lived up to a good conception of its duties. Good honest criticism makes a good government. In speaking of educational matters the Hon. Speaker stated that money spent on education was money well spent. We have not the kind of public schools that are the best in some respects. Every boy and girl should get an education that will fit them for the battles of the world. In Denmark the boys and girls are educated in the schools in agricultural pursuits. The U.F.O. government of Ontario has increased its grants for schools, which is for the betterment of all who are attending school. The trouble is that the cost of production and distribution is too high. We are trying to provide better highways for more rapid transportation, and this will help to bring the urban and rural citizens together. He hoped the roads will be properly built. This system of road building will have to be carried on by the government, matter what the political complexion of the government may be. The present government is assisting rural municipalities in building good roads. The Mothers' Allowances were spoken of by Mr. Parliament and he commended the Government for this legislation. It was our duty to see that the children are well taken care of. It was an expenditure that was commendable. In concluding his address the speaker drew a glowing picture of Ontario and its possibilities. We should follow the path of duty. Sacrifice and service should be our motto. We are part of a great empire, and after what Canada accomplished during the recent great struggle for humanity we are destined to be the great rock of adamant in the empire. (Applause).

After a selection by the Argyll Light Infantry band of Belleville, the National Anthem was sung and this part of the day's programme was brought to a close.

BASEBALL MATCH.

Much interest was manifested in a baseball match for a trophy. The contending teams represented Plainfield and Read, Tyendinaga township, and the score was 20 to 15 in favor of Read. The diamond was in fair condition for the game, which was witnessed by hundreds of spectators. Mr. D. Forem was the umpire and handled the game in a satisfactory manner. The composition of the teams was as follows:

Plainfield—J. W. Hamilton, 2nd; N. Hall, 1st; F. Hall, 3rd; A. Hudgins, p.; D. Hall, r.f.; H. Dunning, c.f.; B. West, s.s.; F. Hudgins, c.; C. Hall, l.f.

Read—D. Callaghan, 2nd; L. McWilliams, 1st; W. McWilliams, r.f.; J. Callaghan, c.; J. C. McWilliams, l.f.; F. McWilliams, p.; M. Lally, c.f.; F. Powers, s.s.; Leo Callaghan, c.f.

HORSE RACES.

The majority of the spectators were apparently much interested in the two horse races on the programme, and considering the condition of the track the time made was fairly good. There were three horses in the free-for-all and the 2.40 class. Mr. Geo. O. Tice, of this city, was starter, and filled that position in a satisfactory manner. The judges were Messrs. A. Palmer, A. Sheffield and W. Collins; timers, W. Parks and E. S. Maines. The summary is as follows:

LEAVE DISARMING TO GREAT BRITAIN

London, July 21.—The Premiers of the overseas Dominions met together for the first time since President Harding's invitation to a conference at Washington and discussed the question of Dominion representation at such a conference.

So far as disarmament is concerned the Dominions are willing to allow the Imperial Government to decide what should be done, but Australia and New Zealand especially wish to have a voice in any decisions regarding the future of the Pacific.

Canada is not so much concerned, as her policy, it is pointed out, is practically identical with that of the United States.

13 Innings Tie Game

Much interest was manifested in a Central Ontario League game which was played at Lindsay on Wednesday, as the result meant much for some of the teams, as to which was to be the runner-up in the first half of the scheduled games. The competing teams were Oshawa and Lindsay, and if the former had won they would have been the leaders, whereas if Lindsay had won there would have been a three-cornered tie for the position between Belleville, Lindsay and Oshawa. The game yesterday was a tie, and it went thirteen innings, each team having scored six runs. The great pitching of Dainty and Patten for Oshawa and Oulette for Lindsay were features. After the first inning Dainty kept the Greybirds hitless and scoreless till the eighth. In the ninth Dainty was ordered out of the game for talking back to Umpire Kay.

Another feature of the game was the hitting of Bates, Lindsay's new catcher, who had four safeties.

At the end of the thirteenth the game was called on account of darkness.

Lindsay—Bates, c.; McMahon, c.f.; Carew, l.f.; Workman, 2nd; Stark, 3rd; York, r.f.; McDonald, s.s.; Oulette, p.; Starr, l.f.; Chambers, r.f.

Oshawa—Rouden, 2nd; Gifford, s.s.; Dainty, p.; Jacobi, 1st; Dobson, c.f.; Legge, c.f.; Thompson, l.f.; Hall, c.; Patten, p.; Petrie, l.f.

Umpires—Kay and C. Carew.

Oshawa	6	9	3

Last evening at Lindsay a meeting of some of the executive of the league was held, at which it was decided to order Lindsay and Oshawa to replay the game at Lindsay on Saturday afternoon next.

The Oshawa management entered a protest, claiming that on the percentage basis Oshawa were winners of the first half of the schedule. The protest will be considered by a full meeting of the executive, which has been called for at Cobourg tomorrow afternoon.

In the meantime the second schedule of games, as already announced, will have to be dated a week later.

MOTHER'S BLOOD IN VEINS OF CHILD DEFEATS DEATH

Montreal, July 20.—After four-year-old Annie Morrison of St. Patrick's Orphanage, was taken to the Alexandra Hospital, Lachine, suffering with a severe attack of scarlet fever, blood began to ooze from her nose, mouth and ears, and it was thought that the child would die. A blood transfusion was the only hope, and the little girl's mother volunteering to furnish the necessary blood, the operation was successfully performed. Both will soon be dismissed from the hospital.

The auto driven by Melvin Horton, 473 Jeannette avenue, Windsor, was turning on to Pitt street when the rear end of the electric car swept Damby from the side of it. He was taken to the Hotel Dieu.

WHEAT-CUTTING STARTS; RECORD FOR MANITOBA

Winnipeg, July 20.—Wheat-cutting has commenced in the Militia district of Manitoba, the earliest harvest on record, according to old-timers. Marquis and Red Bobs varieties are being cut with fair returns.

A C.P.R. report says that rye-cutting has been begun at Yorkton, Sask. It will be two weeks, however, before harvesting is general.

No more hail or rust damage has been reported. The weather was cooler today, 78 being the highest recorded at Winnipeg. Rain is wanted at many points in the three Provinces.

TAXI-CABS FOR DRESSING ROOMS FOR ZWICK'S ISLAND BATHERS.

Interest revived by the hot weather in the proposed public swimming pools should not be permitted to die out without decisive action being taken. A number of tourists stopping in Belleville during the superheated wave looked about for a place to bathe and had to hire taxis to take them to Zwick's Island, and finding no accommodation for undressing had to disrobe in the taxis. The trip was expensive, and being strangers the bathers marvelled that with so much waterfront Belleville is so lacking in public bathing facilities.

Citizens who have seen swimming pools in many cities can not see any reason why the Corby public swimming pool should not be placed at Victoria Park—no reason not surmountable—and neither Zwick's Island nor Cooper's Dam offer the same advantages. Zwick's Island is too far away for most people, and Cooper's Dam is inconvenient, short of water at times, and liable to contamination.

However, the question of a site should not be made the basis of controversy; the main question is providing public bathing facilities in accordance with the desire and bequest of the late Hon. Senator Corby, and if the five thousand dollars is not sufficient the city is surely wealthy enough to add the remainder required so that civic baths can be provided which will be a credit to the city and a blessing to the children and grownups who have not summer homes, with bathing facilities, on the banks of the bay or lake or river to escape the hot weather.

Why not get designs from landscape artists and architects and have reports on the various available sites from experts.

CANADIAN FOOD STUFFS BARRED FROM U. S. A.

What should Canada do in the face of these prohibition duties?

Both the Liberals and the Farmers advocate the free admission of all food stuffs; that is the main plank in both their platforms.

The Meighen Government say that we should maintain the policy of reasonable and moderate protection; that it would be silly to allow the U. S. to sell to us if they will not buy from us; that it would be the height of nonsense to let the U. S. farmer flood our markets with his products while the Canadian farmer is debarred from sending his products over there.

CRISP COMMENT

War on bobbed hair and "peroxide blondes" was declared in the head office of a large insurance company in Hartford, Connecticut, where many girls are employed, and a nation-wide controversy has started which threatens to spill a million barrels of printers' ink before it subsides, even invading Canada.

That million-dollar cement plant under consideration by the Ontario Government could not be better placed than in Hastings County, and it is no surprise to find Hon. Mr. Biggs, the Minister of Public Works, looking over available sites in this county. The cement industry has assumed large proportions in this county and the proposed government plant would be in good company.

One of the principal factors in the successful issue of the Bay Bridge purchase project was the interest taken by Hon. Mr. Biggs, Minister of Public Works in the Ontario Legislature. Hon. Mr. Biggs personally attended the memorable conference at Picton where an agreement to purchase the bridge was reached and his efforts may be regarded as the decisive factor in the negotiations. Through the efforts of the Minister of Public Works generous financial support was given the purchase project by the government and for good measure the road from Belleville to Picton was designated as part of the provincial highway system, thus placing Picton firmly on the tourist map.

Hon. Arthur Meighen has made such a hit in England by his ability, sagacity and statesmanship, that the staid old English press is ringing with his praises. This has alarmed the political machinists at Ottawa who supply the gas for the King-Lapointe airship, and long articles have been sent out to friendly papers in an effort to belittle the Premier's popularity overseas and give the impression that the English papers are exaggerating the great impression made by Hon. Arthur Meighen on Old Country diplomats. As the Old Country newspapers are not given to exaggerations the anti-Meighen propaganda falls flat.

A secret movement in favor of the secession of Canada from the Empire is the reported discovery of J. Castell Hopkins. We know several people who have this secession bug, and if they have decided to keep their movements secret in future the news is very welcome. They won't go far.

Those accustomed to the good old ways are always insistent in their declaration that the claims of the efficiency experts have been greatly exaggerated. New methods, whatever their virtue, are not always popular. PRAISE FOR MR. CHURCHILL

Manchester Guardian

Mr. Churchill delivered at Manchester one of the frankest speeches which we remember from the lips of a Cabinet Minister. Mr. Churchill is known to be a courageous man, and the degree of courage which the speech required will not have taxed his strength. But that a Cabinet Minister should think clearly and honestly and then put his thoughts into words with an entire absence of regard for the political prejudices of the moment, on which his own party has thriven and indeed came into power, is without recent precedent.

NO TIGER HUNTING WITH TINO

London Daily Mail

The British public has not forgotten "Tino's" treacherous conduct during the Great War. It has not the slightest intention of going tiger-hunting with him and alienating the sympathies of the Moslem subjects of the Empire for his sake. Nor does it quite understand why M. Venizelos should have been called in to advise by the British Cabinet. We entertain all due respect for him, but we know that Greece voted against him at the elections by a crushing majority, so that he is a prophet without honor in his own country. There must be no more crusading in the Near East.

The Poets' Corner

GENERAL SUMMARY

We are very slightly changed
From the semi-apes that ranged
India's prehistoric clay;
Whoso drew the longest bow,
Ran his brother down, you know,
As we run men down to-day.

"Dowb," the first of all his race,
Met the Mammoth face to face,
On the lake or in the cave,
Stole the steadiest canoe,
Ate the quarry others slew,
Died—and took the finest grace.

When they scratched the reindeer-bone,
Some one made the sketch his own,
Filched it from the artist—then,
Even in those early days,
Won a simple Viceroy's praise
Through the toil of other men.

Ere they hewed the Sphinx's visage,
Favoritism governed kissage,
Even as it does in this age.

Who shall doubt the secret hid
Under Cheops' pyramid
Was that the contractor did
Cheops out of several millions?
Or that Joseph's sudden rise
To Comptroller of Supplies
Was a fraud of monstrous size
On King Pharaoh's swart Civilians?

Thus the artless songs I sing
Do not deal with anything
New or never said before.
As it was in the beginning,
Is to-day official sinning,
And shall be forever more.
—Rudyard Kipling.

BOLT HITS BARN

Oshawa, July 20.—The barn of Earl Batty, a well-known farmer, north of Oshawa, was struck by lightning Monday afternoon, and completely destroyed, with contents, which included two valuable thoroughbred Shorthorn calves, 60 tons of hay and 800 bushels of grain, besides implements. Three other small buildings adjoining were burned to the ground. Mr. Batty figured his loss on the contents alone at $1,500. He had $1,500 insurance on buildings and $1,000 on contents. WE GET OUR OWN TEA

CANADIAN VESSEL BRINGS SUPPLY FROM FAR EAST.

"Canadian Pioneer" Was Appropriate Name of First Vessel to Carry Dominion's Ensign Into the Waters of India—Left and Completed Round Trip a Little Over a Month Ago.

TIMES change. In the old days the tea-clippers with their swelling expanse of snowy square rigged sails would go pounding down the sweltering Indian sea, tack around the Cape of Good Hope and then stretch out on the long race up the west coast, piling on every inch of sail in order to be the first into London, Pool or Deptford dock with eagerly awaited cargo of savory ceylon, oolong or orange pekoe.

To-day the white-winged Indiamen are gone from the high seas forever and their place has been usurped by the steel steamers. Even the old trade routes are abandoned and now when Canada wants tea for her supper she despatches one of her own merchantmen to fetch it.

The Canadian Pioneer which docked at St. John on the twenty-third of April was the first Canadian trader to carry the ensign of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine into India waters. The Pioneer is a true missionary of western civilization for when she left Montreal for the benighted east last September, her cargo consisted chiefly of Canadian made automobiles (mostly of the flivver type).

Passing through the Straits of Gibraltar and the Suez Canal, she made her first call along the west coast of India at Karachi—the town whose name has become associated with fever-laden troops trains. From there she passed down the coast to Bombay and thence to Colombo, Madras, Rangoon and Calcutta. After cutting over to Singapore in the Straits Settlements, she made her first call at Batavia in Java before turning back to pick up the cargo of tea and general merchandise which she finally brought into the harbor of St. John after a six month trip.

The Pioneer is the first Canadian vessel to make the round trip to India, but she is merely the forerunner of what promises to be an era of world-wide trade exploitation for Canada. For example, in her travels she met the Canadian Conqueror at Bombay, and the Canadian Investor at Calcutta, while the Canadian Importer recently left Vancouver for Australia whence she will go via the Suez to St. John, N.B., and then through the Panama home to Vancouver, thus circumnavigating the globe.

Out of the sixty-six ocean-going vessels which were included in the program of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, over forty-seven are already in service. These are not being used as tramp vessels to pick up a cargo here and there but they are running on established routes and schedules. Two on the passenger service touch the West Indies every three weeks, calling at Nassau in the Bahamas, Kingston in Jamaica and Belize in British Honduras.

The South American services reaches Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires, Montevideo and Santos. There is a fortnightly service to the Barbados, Trinidad and Demerara and a monthly service to India and Australia. Other routes reach London, Liverpool, Cardiff, Swansea and Glasgow, while it is proposed to institute a service to China and Japan.

While the United States is a world-trader by interest only, Canada is one by necessity, since her geographical position does not allow her to be economically self-sufficient. The Canadian Government Merchant Marine, coupled up with the 20,000 miles of national railway, provides an unsurpassed marketing organization which can reach the uttermost corners of the globe. The advantages of this can be estimated when it is considered to what an extent the prosperity and stability of industry depend upon a broad export market.

The Canadian Government Merchant Marine, born of the war, now promises to be a decisive factor during peace time in placing Canada in the front rank of world-traders.

Cuckoos and Cowbirds.

There are a few birds that lay their eggs in the nests of other birds, the latter being of entirely different species or even families, says the American Forestry Magazine. The nestlings of such species are reared by their foster parents. The cuckoos of the old world have this habit, while with us it is the cowbird which is the guilty one. In either case only a single egg is deposited, and the young cuckoo, as it grows, manages to push the rightful occupants off the nest, being fed by their parents until it is ready to shift for itself.

Poor Liza Ann.

A well-known philanthropist tells how he was serving out viands with a lavish hand at a children's treat in the east end of London.

Try Saturday

S.B.—I see so many people trying to take outings on Sunday that the facilities are overcrowded while on Saturday and other week-days there are very few pleasure seekers. There must be a number of people who can take outings during the week and leave Sunday for those who cannot get away any other day—think it over.

Whatever is, Isn't

H.K.—I see that the Chamber of Commerce has a proposition to dump the five thousand dollars left by Senator Corby for public swimming pools at Cooper's Dam. Heavens to! why not the quarry? What is the big objection to Victoria Park? Why is it that whatever IS in Belleville ISN'T any good—someone always wants something else.

Stationary Hand

Y.O.U.—I see that the western dial of the city clock has been for some days at 7o'clock. The hands have evidently become tired of revolving after many years of service. Whoever is looking after the clock should see that the defect is remedied as residents on the western side of the city are often misled as to the correct time.

Hand Fishing

A.B.—You can believe this or not, as you wish, but I saw a Maskinonge weighing twelve and a half pounds which was captured by two little boys without hook, line or sinker, caught indeed with their bare hands. It happened at Ray Zufelts summer camp and the youthful fishermen were Ray's son and a companion named Champagne. There was a water pen containing young ducks close to the bank and the fish was evidently desirous of varying his diet with a young duck. At any rate he was perfectly still in the water when the boys spied him and with a quick movement flopped him on the bank. This is some fish story but Mr. Zufelt has a photograph to back it up, and is just another illustration that truth is stranger than fiction.

BOLT THROUGH KITCHEN; WINDOW CURTAINS AFIRE

Lindsay, July 20.—In a terrible wind, lightning, thunder and rainstorm which swept over this section of the country the house of D. A. Chalmers, North Ops, was struck and damaged. The bolt passed through the kitchen, but no person was hurt. Curtains on the windows were set on fire.

The roof of Andrew McNabb's barn at Grass Hill was blown off and the barn otherwise damaged.

The house of J. Smith, Grass Hill, was struck by lightning, but very little damage done.

Crops ready for the binder were laid low and corn was levelled in the field.

SHOE AS BANK, A FAILURE

New York, July 21.—Perhaps certain aspects of present-day styles have caused the site of the first national bank to be changed. Mrs. Fannie Cohen reported to the police today that she had hidden gems worth $5,000 in a pair of shoes and that the valuables had disappeared when she took the shoes to a cobbler without remembering that she had been using them for a safe deposit vault. The police told her to search her house.

A heavier offering of cattle than has been received on a Monday for some time was in evidence yesterday. Prices were not as strong as a week ago, but were steady with the easier close which prevailed on Thursday.

Trade in cows and bulls was about steady. As high as $100 was paid for a good springer with the bulk of these moving from $65 to $70.

Choice veals had a strong trade, tops being around $10.50, with the bulk selling from $8 to $9.50. The top for choice lambs was $13. Heavy sheep were again slow, while good sheep sold up to $5.

The hog market was unsettled. Packers did not advance their prices over $11 on the fed and watered basis.

Motorman Finds Grease on Rails.

ST. JOHN, N.B., July 19.—A report that the street car rails on the Indiantown Hill, in the north end of the city, had been found greased Saturday morning, and that it was only with difficulty that the driver, on one of the one-man cars brought his vehicle to a stop, was made to the Public Safety Department by Percy W. Thompson, manager of the New Brunswick Power Co. Mr. Thompson said that when the first car came out and arrived at the top of Indiantown Hill the motorman found that a material resembling crude oil had been placed upon the rails. He applied sand and brought the car to a stop before it got out of control.

The explorer and six adventurous followers sailed down Sheepscot river on Saturday from Wiscasset amid the cheers of 2,000 friends and admirers, including Governor Baxter, who was a classmate of Dr. MacMillan at Bowdoin College.

PLANE SCARES PIGEONS

Mr. William Thompson who resides on Foster Avenue is mourning the loss of some valuable roller and tumbler pigeons. Yesterday an aeroplane passed over his premises flying rather low and it had the effect of frightening the birds which flew away in a westerly direction and have not returned.

A REAL JOY RIDE

It is proposed to give the inmates of the House of Refuge, Home for the Friendless and Children's Shelter, a two-hours' motor drive on Friday afternoon. The Belleville Motor Club is behind this worthy object and the Secretary, T. D. Ruston would like to hear from car owners who will volunteer their cars for the purpose. His telephone is 836. It is estimated that eight-five persons from the various institutions will make the trip and it would be sad if there was a scarcity of cars. This is community service of the highest type and a privilege of service. Cars will meet at Market Square at 2-45 p.m. Friday.

STOLE MINISTER'S CAR

Burglars gained an entrance to Rev. R. S. Tippett's garage at Port Hope on Tuesday night and stole his Overland car. The thieves removed the screws from the lock on the garage door and it is thought that they pushed the car from the garage to the road. In order to reach the road it would be necessary to take the car directly past the house but Mr. Tippett heard no disturbance. On Wednesday the car was recovered having been abandoned on a road outside of Port Hope.

GOOD PRICES FOR FRUIT

COMMITTEE MEETING

A regular fortnightly meeting of the various civic committees will be held this evening. The business to be transacted is chiefly of a routine nature.

LEMONS HIGH

While lemons which are about 20 cents a dozen in off-season, climbed to to 75 cents $1 in the hot spell the growers in California are cutting down their trees because lemons are too cheap. A despatch from California 75 cents and $1 in the hot spell the carries this interesting news:

"In California lemons are so cheap that trees bearing them are being cut down by fruit growers to enable them to plant fruit trees of other kinds. The lemons are being carted away like rubbish, as they cannot be used for fertilizing purposes owing to the acidity of the fluids they contain. The cause of this is the cheap imported lemons from Italy. Thus the Italians are handing a lemon to American fruit growers interests, and there is much dissatisfaction.

CORRECTION

Owing to a mistake in the reports sent in of the results of the Entrance examinations of Queen Mary School, John Anderson should have been Jack Andrews, and the name of Frank Carter was omitted.

DEIGHTFUL MOTOR OUTING

Under the auspices of the Star Dancing Class of this city a motor outing was held on Wednesday afternoon which was participated in by about 150 members and friends. The party was conveyed by autos to Presqu'Ille one of the most beautiful spots on Lake Ontario. Upon arrival at the lake a number took occasion to take a dip which it is needless to state was much enjoyed. A luncheon was prepared, tables being spread on the beautiful lawn of Mrs. Ketcheson's home. After all had done full justice to the good things provided the remainder of the afternoon was given over to sports and other attractions. A programme of events had been arranged and many participated in same. Prizes were given to the successful competitors. It proved to be an afternoon of rare enjoyment. The trip was made by the party without anything occurring to mar the pleasure and all arrived home safely in the evening tired, but jubilant.

DROWNED AT CROWE BAY

On Tuesday morning Clarence Chappell, only son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Chappell, of Campbellford lost his life by drowning. The young man was accustomed to going down to the bay during the exceedingly hot weather and was learning to swim. On Tuesday morning he went down to the bay which is about a mile from the farm, and was apparently taken with cramps for he was drowned only a few yards from the shore. The body was recovered about half-an-hour later, and all efforts as resuscitation proved futile.

RYLAND—BAREHAM

On Monday July 18th., a quiet marriage was solemnized in Christ Church by the Rev. Rural Dean Swayne when Miss Helen E Bareham daughter of the late Rev. A. and Mrs. Bareham was joined in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Wm. Ryland both of this city. The bridal couple left on the noon train for Kingston where they will spend their honeymoon. Mr. and Mrs. Ryland will reside in this city upon their return from their honeymoon.

Social Gathering and Farewell

Tuesday evening was very pleasantly spent when the members of Bridge St. Orchestra met at the home of their president and leader, Mr. W. C. Sills, to bid farewell on the occasion of his removing to Barrie, and to convey to himself and family, in a tangible form appreciation of his services.

During the course of the evening an address was read to Mr. and Mrs. Sills and Marshall and they were presented with an electric lamp. Mr. Sills, though taken by surprise, replied in a most feeling manner. He spoke of the pleasure he had in meeting with the orchestra from time to time, and of the pleasant relations existing between the members and himself. He regretted very much having now to sever his connection with them, and would always look back to his work among them with feelings of the deepest pleasure. He hoped the orchestra would continue to be of service in the community, and wanted to hear of its reaching a state of greater proficiency in the days to come. Though removed and busy with duties elsewhere his interest in its growth would not wane, and he would watch with keen eagerness its development. Its success was dear to him; he had enjoyed the hearty co-operation of the members and was proud to have been the leader of an organization that had been so loyal, and had lent itself so readily to serve in the interests of others.

Refreshments were served and the remainder of the evening spent in music and social intercourse. At a late hour the curtain was drawn on one of the many pleasant scenes in the history of the orchestra.

Women and Children Burned to Death

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press, Limited

Cleveland, July 21.—Two women and two children were burned and suffocated to death in a boarding house fire shortly before noon to-day. The women were—Mrs. Eliza Moseman, aged 70, and her daughter, Miss Tillie Moseman, aged 37, proprietors of the boarding house. The children were Helen Stankovitch, aged three, and Felix Stankovitch said to have been left at the boarding house recently by their father. All four were found dead in a bed, the children in the arms of the women.

Lion Cubs Stir Summer Colony at Massasssga

Belleville Lions invaded Massassaga Point Wednesday afternoon and the cubs sure did have a whale of a time, in fact a ripping, rearing, roaring time. Every cub had a bathing suit and every cub was a swimmer, so the water was full of lions most of the time. Then the baseball diamond, was occupied and the greatest game ever staged. Bobby Gorman made two home runs on one hit, which landed the ball in the Point Anne quarries.

Doc O'Callaghan's marvellous running one-handed catch was the feature of the game and the way the doc reached up to the sky and drew the pill down was a sight to behold.

Russ Wooten and Ray Zufelt as fielders left nothing to be desired, not even grass as they tore up most of the green carpet in the near distance.

The ball players unanimously voted that Ernie Finkle and Doc Trulasch are the two worst umpires in any league, but that did not bother Ernie and Doc any as they successfully defied the lightning bolts of cub indignation levelled at them and calmly gave their decision, good, bad and indifferent, or as Steve License said, ritten, rotton and not otherwise.

Dinner was served at the hotel and the bunch of hungry lions sure voted it a fine spread.

Home was reached before curfew rang, everybody happy, well I should smile.

The outing was so successful that a committee was appointed to arrange another one of the same kind in the near future.

Business Section of NorthBrook Wiped Out

Kaladar, July 21.—The village of Northbrook situated on the Perry road, eight miles north of this station, was visited early this morning by fire, the origin of which is a mystery, and about half of the village was wiped out, including the larger part of the business district. The losses were as follows: Hotel barn and drive-house, $1,200; C. J. Thompson's general store, stock and fittings, $8,000; C. C. Thompson's new Opera Hall, just completed, $3,000; Elijah Thompson's store and stock, $3,000; E. Thompson's residence and furnishings, $1,500.

Mr. E. Thompson is a returned man, who lost his right arm overseas and has five little children left homeless.

When the flames were noticed they had gained much headway and it was miraculous that the little children of Mr. E. Thompson were rescued, as in 10 minutes longer they would have perished in the flames. The insurance in all cases is said to be limited.

"Day before yesterday. They wanted to be here when the New York doctor come. He got here, Mrs. Dugan says, on this mornin's train an' went straight to the house. I axed 'er what he thought ailed the major, but she hadn't heard the last time I seed her. She'll git the news as soon as the family does, you kin bank on that, an' she'll fetch it in to me. She always told me that I was entitled to the fust slice of every pie she picks up. She says Lydia made 'em come home when they did. They was right in the middle of a whole lot o' lunches an' tea parties in the'r honor down thar, an' Mrs. Cranston, it seems, was in fer stayin' over an' gittin' the major's health report by mail, but Lydia said no, siree, it was her daddy, an' she wasn't a-goin' to stay away from 'im a minute at sech a time, even ef he did say they wasn't necessary. So she busted up the picnic, an' is thar with the old white head now. I never seed such devotion, an' that accounts fer the way she's treated you, George."

"Yes, she's a devoted daughter," Buckley agreed, "and he has been very much opposed to—to our friendship."

"Still, I'm puzzled about the way she's doin' right now," said Mrs. Hillyer, with a thoughtful frown. "Ever since you was laid up here I've been lookin' fer some'n' from her. She hain't the woman, I tell you, to be quiet at sech a time. At fust, while she was still in Atlanta, I 'lowed she simply hadn't heard about the shootin', an' when she got back I thought shore she'd write or call to ax about you, but not a word or a line has come, an' I hardly know what to think about it."

"There is one thing which would explain it," said Buckley, and the observant woman saw his tense lips twitching. "She may be engaged to Telfare, an' he may have asked her not to communicate with me. If—if she has promised to marry him, she would respect his wishes. She's that kind of woman."

"George"—Mrs. Hillyer took a deep breath—"do you reckon she has agreed to marry that man?"

"I'm really afraid she has," Buckley answered. "I'm afraid she has given in to the wishes of her people."

There was silence for a moment; then Mrs. Hillyer broke it abruptly as she rose and moved toward the door. "Well," she said almost furiously, "ef she has—ef she has I'd never have the respect fer 'er I once had an' that I still have. The fact is I'm not a-goin' to condemn 'er tell I know she's done it. Thar's some mystery here, an' I'm goin' to find out what it is."

Half an hour later she burst into the room, a huge bunch of white and red roses in her hands. "Them beauties don't grow on but one lawn in this town," she said, with a joyous smile. "They come jest this minute, an' here's a note with 'em. I knowed she'd send some word, George. She ain't the woman to keep quiet when the whole county is braggin' about your bravery an' rejoicin' over your recovery. A natural woman will chip in at a time like this or die."

"I did have a dream of that kind."

George took the note while she was putting the flowers into a big vase on a table near his bed. He opened it, and the glad light in his eyes went out. Turning back to him, Mrs. Hillyer noted the blank look of disappointment on his wan face.

"They are from Miss Cosby," he said faintly as with shaking fingers he restored the tinted sheet of note paper to its envelope. His eyes met the indignant stare of the woman.

"Miss Cosby!" she cried. "An' not a word from the other? It's a shame!"

"It's a sort of compromise," Buckley said bitterly. "I was really not expecting anything. Miss Cosby presents her compliments, admires what I did and is glad I am getting well. She's all right. She's a brick. The other—well, I must forget her, my good friend. I must be a man and forget her."

Tears shone in Mrs. Hillyer's eyes as she bent and stroked his bandaged brow. "George," she said, "they are influencin' 'er—them old folks are. She wouldn't do you this way of 'er own accord, fer she's a good, true girl."

"Perhaps—perhaps that's it," he said wearily and turned his face away.

CHAPTER XXXII.

ON the afternoon of the next day Hillyer returned. Leaving his horse at the door, he went up to George's room. His trousers were bespattered with mud and covered with the white hairs of his shedding horse.

"I've had a trip of it, George," he said, his face glowing, "but I was well repaid. You couldn't guess whar I've been."

"How could I?" said Buckley, with a smile.

"I've got a heap to tell you," the old man ran on, with enthusiasm. He sat down on the edge of the wounded man's bed. "Trabue's death worried the life mighty nigh out o' me tell I tuck a notion all at once that the bite o' the dog couldn't be any wuss'n the bark, an' that I'd better go see that old woman myself an' tell 'er the plain truth. I reckon I prayed a prayer fer every mile o' the way, my boy. I didn't know whar she lived an' had to go by directions to find 'er. I got to the foot o' Bald mountain jest about dark last night, an' a feller that lived on the side o' the road give me directions how to reach her house. I thought they was plain enough, but purty soon it got as dark as pitch, an' I was as bad as a blind man on a blind hoss. One thing the man said, though, was that as soon as I got a mile or two up the road I'd see the light from her kitchen fire. He said it could be seed fer miles—that she never was knowed to shet 'er door this time o' year.

"Well, sir, I got then to prayin' fer a sight o' the light. I begged the Almighty to let it shine out as a sign I was forgiven fer my crime, but it was slow a-comin', an' when it did come I said to myself that a man was a fool to ask the Lord to make a sign out o' some'n' that wasn't any more'n natural, so I wasn't much comforted over that. Howsomever, I did feel a little mite better. It seemed so steady an' bright an' peaceful away up thar among the stars, above them rough rocks an' deep gullies. I started right fer it. The road got so bad I had to git down an' lead my hoss. Sometimes we'd have to step over trees that lay across the way, an' then thar ud be a branch or a creek to ford an' fences to let down an' briers an' rocks an' steep places. But I kept up my heart. Sometimes the light ud be out o' sight completely, an' then ag'in it ud blaze up steady an' strong like a promise writ in fire.

"I got to prayin' more hopeful. Ever' time the light ud flare up out o' the gloom my sperits ud rise, till after awhile I felt as light as a feather. I sung an' shouted an' prayed an' hugged my hoss. It seemed like I was climbin' up to God. The light on the mountain was his presence. Once I fell down a steep bank in the dark, but I wasn't hurt, an' then ag'in I slipped on some rocks while I was crossin' a branch an' got wet to the waist, but when I scrambled out the light was a-shinin' brighter than ever. Finally I crossed a old field an' seed the open door of her house. A dog run out barkin', but I wasn't no more afeard of 'im than the apostles was o' snakes. I walked straight at 'im, called to 'im in a firm, friendly voice, an' patted 'im on the head, an' he licked my hand an' pranced about in front o' me like I was a old acquaintance he was glad to see. Mrs. Hambright was at the fireplace cookin' some'n' t' eat when I got thar, an' she invited me in. I went in an' shook hands an' set down in the chair she give me, an' she put more wood on the fire, fer she seed I was wet.

"'You don't know me, Mrs. Hambright,' says I.

"'No,' says she. 'I don't know you, sir; but that don't make no difference. I take in a lots o' folks that git benighted up here. Nobody would be mean enough to rob ur harm a woman as old as I am.'

"'That's so,' says I. Her head was as white as cotton, an' she was all bent over, but she had the sweetest, most patient face I ever seed. It made me feel easier about tellin' 'er who I was an' what I'd come fer, but I acknowledge I was afeard. Then she proposed to set the table, fer she said she knowed I was famished, but I wouldn't let 'er.

"'No; wait,' says I, 'wait till I've told you who I am, Mrs. Hambright,' says I, an' I couldn't look at 'er then. 'I'm Hiram Hillyer, the man who tuck yore pore boy's life.'

"I seed 'er sorter jump a little, an' then she got as still as a grave rock. I was afeared to look at 'er. All my new found hope seemed to be leakin' out o' me. I bowed my head an' waited fer 'er verdict. God knows I was miserable, but I was prayin'—prayin' fer pardon—prayin' both to her an' God. She was still a long time. I reckon she was studyin' up what to say to me. Then she spoke. 'Did you come away out here jest to see me, Mr. Hillyer?' she axed in a trembly voice, an' I nodded, still afeard to meet her eye. 'I come to make a confession an' implore you to pardon me,' I said.

"'Pardon you?' she said, slowlike an' saft.

"'Squire Trabue's dead,' I told 'er 'He died two days ago.'

"'I heard he was low,' she said, 'an' I was sorry to hear it, fer he was a good man, but is that all you wanted to tell me?'

"'No,' says I, ''twasn't. Mrs. Hambright, the pension he's been payin' you all these years never come from the government. It was from me.'

"'Hiram Hillyer,' says she in her sweet old voice, 'I'vb knowed that fer twenty-five years. Squire Trabue told me an' axed me never to let on to you, fer he'd promised you never to let me know; but, Hiram, ef I've prayed God to bless you fer it once I have ten thousand times. I couldn't 'a' lived without that allowance. It has kept me in comfort an' enabled me to help my neighbors in time o' sufferin'. I've wanted to tell you how grateful I felt, but the squire wouldn't let me an' said you never wanted that old trouble mentioned, an' so I couldn't do it.'

VOL. LIV. NO. 156. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, JULY 22, 1921. PRICE TWO CENTS

Bury in Favor of Shaughnessy Plan

SAYS GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP OF RAILWAYS WILL NOT BE A SUCCESS

Winnipeg, July 22.—Government ownership has not been a success; it can never be made to work successfully so far as the Canadian National Line is concerned, for there is no incentive for men to go ahead. Under private ownership the good man is promoted, and the poor man is laid aside, but under Government control the good man is not promoted and the poor man is never discharged, declared Sir George Bury, former vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, now in the city on a short holiday.

Sir George, who is free from any business or professional affiliations, is strongly in favor of the plan advocated by Baron Shaughnessy some time ago, whereby the whole Government railway system would be brought under the direction of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Speaking of personal ambition, Sir George declared that just as soon as a man is made secure in his position by virtue of a Government job, pust as quickly is his personal ambition killed.

Discussing prohibition, the former Canadian Pacific Railway official said:

"The greatest curse that ever hit this country. Ask any man who has ever had a large number of men in his employ and he will confirm my statement. Prohibition makes lawbreakers of honest men, makes men want to secure liquor who, in the ordinary course of events would leave it alone, and, in my opinion, was designed to disgruntle people, which it has succeeded in doing."

Philip S. Irwin To Leave Miami

BRITISH PASTOR AT FIRST REFUSED, BUT TOOK COUNSEL OF FRIENDS

Miami, Fla., July 21.—Rev. Philip S. Irwin, British subject and pastor of a negro Episcopal church here, announced after a conference to-day with other clergymen, local officers of the American Legion and A. M. Hubbard, British vice-consul, that he would leave the city immediately. Irwin was tarred and feathered on Sunday night and warned to leave this locality, but declared he would not do so.

The case was investigated by the grand jury and by Bishop Cameron Mann, of Florida. The latter exonerated him from blame for alleged preaching of racial equality and unpatriotic utterances, after which Irwin said he would go north. The grand jury has not reported.

"I am leaving Miami of my own volition," Irwin declared though I have been offered the protection of local authorities and the British vice-consul. I believe it would be best for all concerned that I leave, on account of the intense feeling stirred up against me by reports that I had preached social equality and inter-marriage of the white and colored races."

Controversy Over Soldiers' Graves

WERE AFFORDED GRAVESTONES WHETHER THEIR BODIES WERE DISCOVERED OR NOT

Ottawa, July 22.—In regard to the London despatch commenting on the fact that there were gravestones in France and Flanders where no soldiers had been buried, Col. H. G. Osborne, secretary of the imperial war graves commission in Canada, being out of town, no statement was available.

As has been previously pointed out, however, wherever a soldier was definitely known to have been killed, although his body was not found, he was accorded a gravestone in the military cemetery nearest to the fatality. This is also the case where a man was definitely ascertained to have become missing, and death was unquestionable.

CAUSE OF WRECK UNKNOWN

Peterboro', July 20.—An inquest at Stirling into the death of David O'Brien of Peterboro', locomotive engineer, who was killed recently near Madoc Junction, when an engine of a Grand Trunk freight train was derailed and capsized on a hill, failed to determine the cause of the accident.

DROPE, GRIMSBY ELECTED DEPUTY GRAND MASTER

Ottawa, July 21.—After the first ballot for the deputy grand master's chair, of the grand lodge, A. F. & A. M., Abraham Shaw, of Kingston, withdrew.

Geo. S. May, of Ottawa, headed the second ballot, and A. J. Young, of Toronto, dropped out. A third ballot followed, and W. J. Drope, M.A., head of a boys' school and a fruit farmer at Grimsby, was declared deputy grand master.

Rev. A. J. Bruce, of Fort William, won the choice as chaplain on the second.

Port Arthur and Fort William won the 67th communication.

W. N. Ponton, K.C., Belleville, was unopposed as the grand master.

Installation closed the convention.

Ontario Gov't Borrows Ten Million More

DISPOSES OF FURTHER $10,000,000 TREASURY NOTES—NEARLY ALL SOLD

Toronto, July 22.—New York and London are not the only centres to report easier money. The province of Ontario is finding borrowing a fairly easy matter right here at home.

Confirmation was given this morning of the sale of a further $10,000,000 of six per cent. Ontario treasury notes to the Dominion Securities Corporation Syndicate which yesterday purchased a block of $5,000,000 of six months' notes at a price of 99.827. This syndicate includes the Dominion Securities Corporation, Wood, Gundy & Co., A. E. Ames & Co., and Aemilius Jarvis & Company.

The extra $10,000,000 now disposed of is in two blocks, one consisting of $5,000,000 of six months treasury bills, and an equal amount of 12 months' bills. The whole amount is taken on the same cost basis of 6% per cent.

The $15,000,000 is issued in two denominations; half of the amount being in $5,000 bills, and half in $10,000 bills. The provincial treasurer was advised early this morning that the whole had been disposed of, and that the $5,000,000 of 12 months ones was going well. Subscription books for the first $5,000,000 were closed half an hour after they had been opened.

The last previous issue of treasury bills was offered in March and went to the A. E. Ames Company Syndicate for a price of 99.53. It was for a total of $6,000,000 and for a period of six months, running from April 1st to October 1st.

The decision to issue part of the present amount in 12-month notes is due to the provincial treasurer's desire not to have too many short-term maturities falling due all at the same time.

The ease with which these securities have been disposed of to banks and large institutions with temporarily idle funds, is but another indication of the very good demand for short-term offerings, which has been evident of late in the strength of the 1922 Victory loan.

Dublin Now Centre of Interest

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press, Limited.

London, July 22.—The centre of interest in Irish affairs was transferred to Dublin today with the departure of Eamonn de Valera and his Cabinet for the seat of government. The Irish leader is taking the document he received yesterday from the hands of Mr. Lloyd George, setting forth definite proposals by the British Government as a settlement of the Irish problem. It is authoritatively stated that the truce in Ireland will continue for an indefinite period, thus convincing the most skeptical that the factions are still far from discouraged.

ENGISH BUYERS AFTER CANADA'S GRAIN CROP

Ottawa, July 21.—Dr. Magill, secretary of the Winnipeg grain exchange who was here yesterday, is of the opinion that there will be no difficulty in marketing the western wheat crop despite the United States tariff, Dr Magill intimated that English buyers are already in the market for vast quantites of Canadian grain, and that the United States will have to buy large quantites in any event. Indications at present are for a banner crop

Thirty Thousand Men For Harvest

EMPLOYMENT OFFICIAL SAYS 40,000 AN EXAGGERATION

Winnipeg, July 21.—With a view to minimizing to the lowest possible degree the importation of harvest labor to the prairie provinces, a survey is being conducted by the Western Department of the Employment Service of Canada to ascertain the approximate number of men required during the rush period, it was stated last night by R. A. Rigg, superintendent of the western offices of the department in the course of an address.

"One of the greatest problems facing the department is the organization of a thorough information service," said Mr. Rigg, "providing correct data as to the cutting and stacking of grain. The farmers are anxious to obtain assistance at this time. A well organized department along these lines would lessen congestion fifty per cent."

The speaker pointed out that during past years harvest help had been sought from the eastern Provinces. "This year, however," he said, "the department will endeavor to relieve the unemployment situation prevailing at the coast."

Mr. Rigg said the report had been circulated throughout the East that some 40,000 workers will be required to handle the crop this year, and he ventured to say that if this number seeks employment thousands would be disappointed. He estimated that the number needed would not exceed 30,000. He said that the large number that settle in the West after the harvest season is a factor that materially accentuates the local unemployment problem. "We are in hopes that this important help will return to their points of departure, but at present there is no means of compelling them to do so," Mr. Rigg concluded.

First Aid Saves Many Men's Lives

Competitions Now Proceeding for the Chamberlain Trophy.

Montreal, July 20.—Competitions in first aid work are now proceeding at the various terminals of the Grand Trunk Railway System in connection with the Chamberlain trophy. Dr. Charles A. Hodgetts, of the St. John Ambulance Association, Ottawa, is conducting the examinations and there is the keenest rivalry among the teams. The winners of this competition are given pride of place among all the ambulance teams of the railway.

The executive of the Grand Trunk takes a deep interest in encouraging first aid work in the large shops and terminals, and two cases have just been reported to W. D. Robb, Vice-President of the Grand Trunk, illustrating the good results that follow upon first aid instruction. Fireman T. F. Gill was struck by a train near the engine round house at Turcot Yards and seriously injured. Yard Foreman Discio, a first-year ambulance man, at once took charge of the case and called Car Foreman Pearce, who has proved himself highly efficient in attending to cases of emergency. They at once applied the first aid treatment and turned the case over to the Western Hospital. The wife of the injured man, residing at Brockville, was notified within a few minutes of the accident, giving her an opportunity of reaching Montreal at the earliest possible moment.

In the second accident case Fireman Jas. Gunter jumped off his engine at Richmond, Que., and slipping on a cinder, his left hand and arm were severely crushed by the wheels of a car. Foreman Gunter was taken to the first aid room and there attended to by Night Foreman Jones until the arrival of the doctors. The medical men state that the extemporized tourniquet applied by the foreman was so skilfully handled that it controlled the hemorrhage and made it possible for the doctors to amputate the crushed arm at once and save the man's life.

The reports received by the Grand Trunk from the various hospitals show that frequently the practical knowledge of first aid principles possessed by the men in the railway's service has been of the utmost value to the injured, casualty cases reaching the surgeons in much better condition than in non-treated cases and their subsequent progress favorably affected by the speedy relief received at the time of the accident.

Ottawa Murder Mystery not Solved Yet

POLICE RELEASE UNCLE OF GIRL WHOSE FIANCE WAS SLAIN MONDAY

Ottawa, July 22.—Amos Moorehouse of Farrellton, Que., taken into custody in connection with the death of Thos. Eugene Farrell, whose body was found on the roadside near his home at Farrellton, Que., early last Monday morning, was released from custody last night. Moorehouse was brought to Hull following investigations by officers in charge of the case.

Moorehouse is an uncle of Miss M. Wills, fiancee of the murdered man, and was living at the Wills home. Police officials declare that they only detained Moorehouse as a result of statements made by residents of the district.

The statements, according to the officers, had no foundation in fact.

Veteran's Body Found Floating in the Lake

PATHETIC CIRCUMSTANCES IN CONNECTION WITH DEATH OF HIS BETROTHED

Cobourg, July 21.—The body of John Williams, who met his death on the evening of May 18 as he was returning to the steamer Ontario No. 1, where he was employed as second cook, was found floating in the water off shore near the residence of Mrs. Sartoris. Coroner Ferris was notified, but under the circumstances considered that an inquest was unnecessary and gave an order for burial. The Sons of England, of which Mr. Williams was a member, members of the boat's crew, and of the Cobourg Heavy Battery attended the funeral. Rev. Canon F. J. Sowers conducted the service. Mr. Williams was a war veteran and served with the British army during the war. Later he came to Canada, and his betrothed died the day before she was to leave to come to Canada to join him here and be married.

The delegates differ, however, on what might be called the proper costume, although all are opposed to any attempt at standardization, saying it destroys individualism. But all oppose extreme styles.

Last Minute Telegraph Briefs

Gov't. Proposals Not Made Public

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer

London, July 22.—The British Government's proposals to Eamonn de Valera, Irish Republican leader for peace in Ireland probably will not be made public until a definite reply to the Government's terms has been received from Sinn Fein leaders in Dublin, it was stated in official circles here this afternoon. It is expected the Prime Minister will be able to make a comprehensive statement concerning the peace terms in the House of Commons next week it was announced.

South African Plan For Ireland

CABINET SAID TO BE PRACTICALLY UNANIMOUS FOR PREMIER'S OFFER

London, July 22.—When Eamonn de Valera returns to Dublin after today's conference, the prevailing opinion here is that he will carry a bulky document in which Ireland will be offered dominion home rule within the empire, similar to the government of South Africa. It is understood that the proposals, which are said to have been supplemented in many respects by suggestions from Premier Smuts, accord a considerable measure of fiscal freedom to Ireland but avoid extending rights of taxation against England, which the latter might not be able to exercise in return against Ireland.

The Premier presided over a meeting of the Cabinet last night and gave his ministers a detailed history of recent Irish negotiations, as well as his own view of the situation. Following this he submitted the proposals which he planned to give to de Valera today, and according to this morning's newspapers the ministers were almost unanimous in support of the Prime Minister. This reported unanimity increased considerably the anxiety of some of the extreme Conservative Unionists, who are particularly desirous of insuring that the position of Ulster is fully safeguarded in whatever arrangements are made.

Austen Chamberlain will receive a deputation of these Unionists today at the same hour Mr. Lloyd George is in consultation with de Valera, and it is stated that their future attitude will depend upon what they are told at this time, the government suggestion being that if this deputation is dissatisfied there may be many cessions from the coalition.

Gas Bomb Squads For Police Force

PHILADELPHIA EXPERIMENTS WITH NEW MEANS OF CATCHING CROOKS

Philadelphia, July 21.—Five "gas bomb squads" whose duty will be to quell riots and mobs, capture motor bandits and rout criminals who barricade themselves in buildings by the use of gas bombs, will be formed immediately in the Philadelphia police department, it was announced today.

Establishment of this new form of police protection will be the result of tests of a new gas made at the police farm yesterday.

Three different tests were made — one dispersing a mob, another capturing a motor bandit and the third routing a barricaded "criminal."

A "mob" of two hundred policemen was scattered when the bombs exploded in its midst and set the "rioters" to weeping choking and snorting A "bandit" in a speeding automobile was forced to stop when two policemen in a motorcycle tossed a gas bomb into his machine. If he had not stopped he would have lost control of the car.

In the third test two "criminals" who barricaded themselves in vacant houses were captured when the gas bombs were used.

There were no ill effects on the "victims" who inhaled the gas. The bombs are 7½ inches and weigh eight ounces. They explode with a noise similar to a "fizzle" firecracker. When they explode a dense, smoke-like gas is released.

Veterans on Road Had Trying Time

Ottawa, July 21.—Two men reached the Dominion headquarters of the G. W. V. A. to-day after travelling on foot here from Cornwall. The men started about a week ago, and tell a hard luck story about conditions of labor both on the farm and on the township road work somewhere south of Ottawa. One of the men—both of whom have active service records—is married, and he left his home in an effort to get work to keep his family.

The men after travelling a day asked a farmer for work. The afmer said he needed help. He offered them their board, fifty cents pay apiece a day, or three dollars a week, with the privilege of sleeping in the haymow. They tried the work one day, but it was exceedingly heavy, and led to nothing, so they abandoned it.

The next try for work was on some township road work, now pretty much at a standstill because the farmers who usually do this are busy garnering their crops. There they were offered two dollars a day and a tent to sleep in, but they had to board themselves. This they also tried, but found that when they had bought their board there was little money left for their families, not enough, at any rate to keep them. The men then tramped to Ottawa with the hope of getting more remunerative work and have placed themselves in the hands of the G.W.V.A. officials, who are endeavoring to help them.

Robert and Russell Hill, father and brother, respectively, of the two committed, were discharged.

It is alleged that the cattle were poisoned by the two brothers out of revenge for the testimony of Davis which led to their conviction four years ago on a charge of stealing his cattle.

A pathological examination of the stomachs of the dead cows is being made.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"THE HOPE" GIVES MANY THRILLS IN PICTURE VERSION

Spectacular Melodrama With All-Star Cast Stirs Audience at Griffin's Theatre

An earthquake in which the houses are seen tumbling into the rift in an Italian street and an English Derby with swarming crowds of fashionably dressed people and a thrillingly realistic horse race mark the high spots in the spectacular melodrama, "The Hope" which was seen last night at Griffin's Theatre.

"The Hope" is one of the most elaborate productions that has been attempted in some time on the silver-sheet and it exercised a gripping effect on the audience. All the tricks of the business of writing melodrama have been employed by the authors, Cecil Raleigh and Henry Hamilton, to wring the last drop of dramatic appeal out of a situation. And the dramatic situations pile one upon the other with amazing rapidity. The picture moves with a pace that sweeps the spectators along in breathless expectancy. It's melodrama, frank and unashamed. But not naked. As a matter of fact it's clothed with luxurious disregard of expense. The eye is filled with vivid pictures of life in England, India and Italy—extraordinarily beautiful landscapes and magnificent interiors.

An all-star cast has been gathered to play the leading roles. Jack Mulhall as Harold, Lord Ingreste, presents a handsome figure that's likely to make the "matinee girl's" heart go pit-a-pat and he acts with romantic charm and zestful dash. Marguerite de la Motte, whose exceptional beauty and grace have won her many Belleville admirers through her appearance here in two of "Doug" Fairbanks pictures, was never seen to better advantage than in the role of Lady Brenda Carlyson.

"The Suitor" a very funny 2-reel Larry Semon comedy, Fox News Weekly and 'Vode-Vil Movies" were exhibited along with the feature offering.

In the excitement the horse ran away but was soon captured.

Is Glad She Took Friends Advice

TORONTO WOMAN SAYS SHE FEELS LIKE A DIFFERENT PERSON SINCE TAKING TANLAC

"I am certainly glad my good friend got me to try Tanlac. For it has only taken the medicine a little while to make me healthy and strong, "said Mrs. Walter Scott of 58 Charles St. Toronto.

"I underwent a serious operation about eighteen months ago, and although it proved successful, it left me in a badly run-down condition. I simply felt miserable was melancholy and had no energy or strength. My appetite was very poor and I scarcely got any nourishment from the little I did manage to eat, for I couldn't digest my food properly. I had splitting headaches, and became so dizzy I almost fainted at times. I had fearful pains in my right arm and across my shoulders, and my sleep was so restless I felt more tired out mornings than I did on retiring the night before.

"Mrs. Morrow, who lives at the same address I do, got me to try Tanlac, and in almost no time it had me eating everything I wanted without a bit of trouble. My appetite is just fine, I am free from aches and pains and sleep like a child at night. Why I simply feel like a new person and I can't say enough good for Tanlac. It's the best medicine ever made." Tanlac is for sale at Ostrom's Drug Store and leading druggists everywhere.

"20-YEAR-OLD SCOTCH" MADE WITHIN A MONTH

Winnipeg, July 20.—Temperance Act administrators raided a shed on the farm of Leon and Camilla Sys, at Grande Point, 15 miles south of here, yesterday afternoon and closed down two stills running at full capacity, producing 100 gallons of whiskey per day. The distillery specialized in "20-year-old Scotch, but evidence at the hearing in the Provincial Police Court this afternoon showed that the plant had been in operation only one month. The Sys brothers were remanded while the police search for a mysterious stranger, who is alleged to have rented the shed for $50 a month with the liquor supplies to boot.

HINTS ABOUT FALL FASHIONS

There is a decided movement in the direction of long skirts—but women are not yet ready for the long skirt, which will be worn, if at all, on ceremonious occasions only. However, skirts everywhere are a bit longer—decidedly on the downward trend. Cheruit, at the moment, oddly sponsors a skirt which is longer in the back than in the front.

The craze for black in dress is almost amusing. Frocks and wraps alike are made of black crepe de Chine or crepe-marocain—always the dull-surfaced stuffs. Black satin is worn but little, although we hear it is to be smart this winter. The greatest simplicity prevails, a frock being smart according to its simplicity. Thus do really smart women distinguish themselves from the nouveaux riches.

We see an attempt at color here and there at the races—a red hat or a colored frock under a black cloak. But in general the passion for black is so strong that even the embroidered collars and girdles which appeared on some of the models of the early season are now eliminated—the garments being made entirely in black. Gray hose is sometimes permitted.

Sleeves, if any, continue wide—the close sleeve being reserved for the close-fitting corsage. While Paris couturiers abide by a straight and slender silhouette, varied effects are achieved in diverse interpretations of the sleeve. It is unusual to find a tail of dress take upon itself such a prominent place and thus attain a position of foremost importance. Throughtout this mode the Japanese influence predominates.—August Good Housekeeping.

Opening Day of Camp Meeting

LARGE CROWD AT OAK LAKE FOR OPENING DAY OF CAMP MEETING

The opening day, Sunday, July 17th, inst., was all that those interested could expect. The crowd was large and the interest intense.

Evangelist Duetta, well known in our Bay of Quinte Conference, gave a splendid sermon in the forenoon, and he and Mrs. Duetta assisted in the singing.

Gipsy Simon Smith, who is the evangelist in charge this year, proved himself a real attraction by his solos and his fine, quiet, appealing messages as a preacher. The Gypsy shows his lineage by his taking accent and his power of giving the story of the gospel in word pictures. He modernizes and adapts so nicely, all the while standing as a glowing example of what evangelism can do, that none fail to be impressed by the simple Christian truth.

Next Sunday Rev. I. C. Wickware will preach in the morning at eleven o'clock, but Gipsy Smith is the leader of the song services and preaches in the afternoon and evening. He also speaks and sings each week night except Saturday, beginning at eight o'clock.

Wednesday, July 27th, is Sunday School day and Field Day, and a number of the schools are holding their picnic at the lake. The campaign closes Sunday, July 31st this year.

DOINGS AT ALGONQUIN HOTEL, ST. ANDREWS

At the golf club a new local rule came into effect to-day in regard to out-of-bound regulations and in line with the new rule and recommendations of the Canadian Golf Association which met with general favor among the members. Great interest is being shown in golf owing to the senior golfers' meeting to be held here September 9th to 19th.

The Algonquin is filling up rapidly and will keep open this year until the end of September. To-day started out as rather dull but this afternoon was especially fine with brilliant sunshine. The temperature was 70 and 62 while in Ottawa it was 75, Quebec 76, Montreal 78, London 80.

The Chamcook branch of the W. A. held a delightful afternoon tea at the house of Mr. J. D. Grimmer, numbers motored out from St. Andrews to attend while there were several parties from St. Stephens, in addition to the delicious refreshments there was the pleasure of sitting on the spacious verandah and admiring the view over Chamcoock Harbor past Kilmarnock Head to the West Isles.

ALGONQUIN PARK, ONTARIO

Algonquin Park, the popular resort 200 miles north of Toronto, is the mecca this year for a large proportion of the ever-increasing brotherhood of tourists. The Grand Trunk operates three summer hotels in this district and first-class accommodation is offered at reasonable rates. Two thousand feet above the sea level the air is pure. Fishing (black bass, speckled trout and salmon trout) is better this year than for many years past. September is a beautiful month in this district, and if you are unable to get away in July and August make your reservations early for September. Illustrated descriptive literature, telling you all about this territory may be had on application to any Grand Trunk Ticket Agent, or C. E. Horning, D.P.A., Toronto, Ont.

TO DEAL WITH UNEMPLOYMENT

Toronto, July 22.—Representatives of practically every group of industries in the province conferred with Premier Drury and the members of the Cabinet for nearly four hours yesterday, seeking a solution of the problem of unemployment. For some reason that was not made apparent, the Press was excluded. One definite decision resulting from the four hours' exchange of opinions, was that a committee of seven be appointed to go into the problem and, if possible, map out a program that will do something toward meeting the serious situation the province will certainly face in the coming winter.

The committee will be appointed by the Government upon the nomination of the various groups. It will have a representative from each of the following. Returned soldiers, farmers, the building industry, the mercantile interests, the retailers, the manufacturers and labor. This committee the Premier was careful to explain, will not be a commission in any sense. It will have no operating or administrative powers, but will be a sort of investigating and advisory body. It was admitted in the conference yesterday that a trade revival was being delayed by high prices and that lower prices were needed to stimulate public buying, but no one seemed ready to admit that his particular industry was responsible for prices staying up. One of the duties of the committee will be to sift this matter thoroughly and find out where responsibility lies.

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Every day something out of the ordinary is seen by somebody. Let us hear about it. Phone 1248, or write The Intelligencer.

Fences Vanishing

H.P.—I notice that one of our city aldermen has made an improvement to his residence on Catherine street, by the removal of a front fence, which had done duty for a number of years, and long since ceased to be an ornament. Good boy, Billy, welcome to the procession of progressives.

Alas My Poor Brother!

P.H.—Homeward bound from the Farmers' Picnic at Plainfield on Wednesday, a rather unusual sight was witnessed. Hitched to a buggy and being driven upon the highway was an ox, and the animal had evidently been imbued with the spirit of horse-racing for it was travelling along at a fair rate of speed. That it was well-trained was apparant as it responded with alacrity to the reins in the hands of the driver. Better to be a harness ox than a bottle of Bovril—"Alas my poor brother."

Safety First

M.E.—I saw a striking example today of a man who has, by all the signs, taken note of, and absorbed the contents of, some of the bulletins published frequently by the Ontario Safety League. He wore, as well as the national suspenders or braces, a safety pin about five inches in length and of a bronze color. This, it strikes me, proves beyond a doubt that Canadian people are heeding the "Safety First" slogan and also believe in being well supported.

Cow on a String

J.H.—I saw a cow tethered to a telephone pole on Victoria avenue by a long chain. The cow being of an adventurous disposition, chose to browse on the other side of the street and the chain consequently offered a dangerous barrier to passing vehicles. Now the street is not a pasture, but no one would have any objection if bossy was trained to stay on the side of the street it is tethered to.

AMENDMENTS MADE IN U.S. TARIFF BILL

Washington, July 21.—The House finished consideration of contested schedules in the Fordney tariff bill by placing asphalt on the free list and thus, in four of the five paragraphs open to separate votes, over-ruled the action of its ways and means committee in framing the measure. Dye control provisions of the bill as drawn were in the only section of the five not upset by the House.

After disposing of the asphalt amendment, which rejected proposed duties ranging from 50 cents to $3 a ton, the House began consideration of the numerous "perfecting" amendments which the ways and means committee deemed necessary. It raised the proposed duty on dried beans from one and one-fourth to one and three-fourths cents a pound, and increased the duties on shelled almonds from 8c. to 12c. a pound and shelled walnuts from 5c to 7½c. a pound in rapid order.

The business of "perfecting" the bill was then stopped by a long parliamentary fight.

W. McIntyre, a farmer near Strathroy, has his entire harvest in the barn.

Good home made bread is the most palatable, wholesome and nourishing food in the world. It is far more economical than any other staple food. If people would eat less meat and other heavy foods they would feel better and help to keep down the cost of living. Bread made in the home with Royal Yeast Cakes is more nourishing and appetizing than any other. Nothing healthier for children and grown ups.

Scientists have discovered that yeast possesses remarkable curative powers due to its richness in vitamines—that by its use the blood is purified and enriched, and the resistive power of the body to disease greatly enhanced. Soak a cake of Royal Yeast for half an hour in a cup of luke-warm water with one teaspoon sugar. Then stir well and strain once or twice through muslin and drink the liquid. BETTER results will be obtained by allowing it to soak over night and drinking half an hour before breakfast. Repeat as often as desired. Send name and address for free booklet entitled "Royal Yeast for Better Health."

Marked Progress By Masonic Order

NEARLY 1,400 DELEGATES ATTENDING GRAND LODGE IN OTTAWA

Ottawa, July 21.—Marked progress in membership, finances and the practice of the ideals of the grand lodge of the A.F. and A.M. of Canada in Ontario, was revealed to-day when the 66th annual communication of that body was opened in the Collegiate Institute Hall with a total attendance of nearly fourteen hundred delegates from twenty-eight districts and five hundred lodges in Ontario.

That the year just closed has been one of great progress in the Ontario jurisdiction was shown by the splendid annual address of the grand master, R. W. Brother F. W. Harcourt K.C., Toronto. It was the feature of the morning's proceedings which were crowded to the limit from 10 a.m. when Mayor Plant officially welcomed the visiting Masons to Ottawa until 1 p.m. when the last report was received from W. Bro. G. S. May, chairman of audit and finance of the grand lodge.

Then the following presentation of the address to the grand master from the twelve Ottawa lodges, the masters of these lodges lined up before the platform while D.D.G.M., E. Stewart Macphail read the address. The grand master replied.

Grand Master's Address

In the course of his annual address to Grand Lodge the grand master said that the present communication was being held in the city where the first session of the Dominion Parliament was held in 1866, and which resulted in maturing the project of confederation.

As regards craft progress matters had not been standing idle in this jurisdiction and the principles of Masonry had been taught and exemplified in a truly Masonic manner. This year had surpassed the previous one in prosperity, capital had increased to $369,000, and income to $133,000. Expenditure in benevolence was $67,000 as against $51,000 last year. But there was room for improvement in the rules governing the administration of benevolence. Why should help be denied to the widow of a Mason who was not in good standing? Was it the fault of the widow? The report of the fraternal dead tells a sad tale of the loss our Order has sustained during the year, losses which in our limited vision we think irreparable. The name of M. W. Bro. Henry Stearns, P.M.G., P.G., and a grand Mason for over sixty years, will occur to all as an instance of the loss mentioned.

Growth of Order

There are now on the register of this grand lodge 500 lodges with a membership at June, 1921, estimated at 88,000. So far as nunmbers are concerned, it is gratifying to those who wish to see our Order grow rapidly But there was the danger that this abnormal growth might react unfavorably in the future. It was possible that some joined prompted by the excitement of the war and that this excitement having worn off will be followed by indifferance. The task of keeping larger lodges, yearly adding large numbers to their membership, under control would be a difficult one and the warning to guard the portals and build slowly and surely should not be neglected.

During the year 19 lodges have been constituted and consecrated, 18 have been dedicated and warrants have been issued to 19.

The Grand Lodge will not change its name. By a vote of approximately two to one the assembled delegates at the afternoon session here to-day, of the sixth-sixth communication, decided against any change after a two-hour debate on the subject.

The suggestion was that the words "of Canada" be dropped and so make it a Grand Lodge in the Province of Ontario, so as to conform with the grand lodges in other provinces. The motion to make the change was introduced by W.H. Wardrope ,P.G.M Hamilton, and supported by A. T. Freed, P.G.M., Hamilton. It was opposed by Sir John Gibson, P.G.M., Toronto; Col. Ponton, D.G.M., Belleville; W. H. White, P.G.M., Pembroke and others.

ST. MICHAEL'S 6—MADOC 5

On Wednesday afternoon the St. Michael's nine journeyed to Madoc and administered defeat to the Madoc crew. The game was just like a big leaguer, ful lof vim, vigor and vitality from start to the grande finis. The game was saved for St. Mikes by leaguer, full of vim, vigor and vitality handed catch in the tenth, thus robbing Cross of a homer, another shining feature of the game was Hagerman's triple in the second. This hit which was by all means the longest of the day, brought in two runs. The batteries for the day were St. Michael's—Smith and Hagerman; Madoc—Leal and Fritz.

Harold Smith had 9 strike outs to his credit.

K.A.A. WON FROM TRENTON

"Staff" Hammond's fast aggregation from Kingston won from Trenton at that place Wednesday afternoon by 14 to 7, and now are leading the Bay of Quinte League. The game was fast and was featured by many good plays on both sides. A regrettable accident happened when two members of the Trenton team went after a fly ball and collided. One of them, Crothers, in centre field, sustained a badly broken nose, and Heaney had to have a couple of stitches put in his scalp.

Geoghgan and Ada twirled for the Kingston team and Anderson did the pitching for Trenton. The latter secured 11 hits for their seven runs, and Kingston had 18 hits, which netted them 14 runs.

The teams lined up as follows:

Baltimore at Jersey City—rain.

Games today—Buffalo at Toronto; Rochester at Syracuse; Baltimore at Jersey City; Reading at Newark.

In the event of Lindsay winning on Saturday, Belleville and Lindsay will play a sudden death game at Peterborough on Wednesday. The victors will toss a coin with Oshawa and the final game will be played on the home grounds of the team winning the toss the following Saturday.

All the executive members with the exception of Belleville were present at the Oshawa-Lindsay game and were given reserved seats on the vaudeville platform, where they could command a splendid view of the game.

LAWN BOWLING

Two rinks from the Campbellford lawn bowling club came to this city to-day and played two friendly games with rinks from the Belleville club. One game was played this afternoon and the second game will be played this evening.

OSHAWA PAPER SLIGHTLY TWISTED

What the Oshawa Telegram says of Oshawa's standing in the Central Ontario League:

"Oshawa are the winners of the first series in the Central Ontario League, and the second series will start here on Saturday, with Belleville playing the opening game at Alexandra Park.

"This announcement was made here today by Secretary Chester of the Oshawa Baseball Club, following a long distance talk with President Kimmel, of Cobourg, this morning. It was the intention of some of the executive to make Oshawa go to Lindsay on Saturday to play off the tie, but the fact that Oshawa is in the lead and Lindsay third, and the matter of the expense, the league head thought that the laurels had been fairly won by the Oshawa team.

Thus, win or lose the second series, Oshawa will have a chance for championship honors in Ontario amateur baseball.

ABLE TO DO HER WORK

After Long Suffering Mrs. Peasey Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Toronto, Ont.—"I suffered with irregular menstruation, was weak and run down, could not eat and had headaches. The worst symptoms were dragging down pains, so bad I sometimes thought I would go crazy and I seemed to be smothering. I was in this condition for two or three years and could not seem to work. I tried all kinds of medicines and had been treated by physicians but received no benefit. I found one of your booklets and felt inclined to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I received the best results from it and now I keep house and go out to work and am like a new woman. I have recommended your Vegetable Compound to my friends and if these facts will help some poor woman use them as you please."—Mrs. J. F. PEASEY, 387 King St., Toronto, Ontario.

If you are one of these women do not suffer for four or five years as Mrs. Peasey did, but profit by her experience and be restored to health.

"SAFETY FIRST" TACTICS,

On taxation questions the Hon. Mackenzie King is as mild as a suckling dove in Parliament and as bold as a lion on the platform. Speaking at Bedford on Saturday, July 2nd, he said: "The Government have removed the business taxes and removed the luxury tax but have made no taxation of war wealth."

The questions we ask—and they are fair ones—are: Why did he not protest in Parliament against the removal of the luxury tax and the business profits tax; and why did he not move in the same place for taxation on so-called war wealth? Parliament is the place for constructive ideas to be formulated. In that forum they can be fully considered and discussed, but Mr. King prefers to run away from Parliament and bark from a distance at the Government watchdogs.

MOTOR CAR PARTIES IN BATHING SUITS.

The interest taken in the proposal to take advantage of the bequest of five thousand dollars made by the late Hon. Senator Corby for public swimming pools calls attention to the fact that motor cars are being largely used these days to convey bathers of both sexes to favorite beaches on the bay shore. Bathing suits are donned at home and covered by raincoats, and away they go for a plunge. Commenting upon this modern innovation, the Toronto Star has the following:

> Toronto used to smile at the little lake towns where people walk through the streets clad only in bathing suits and slickers. But not now. Toronto, which has always been on the lake, has just discovered that it is a lake town itself. Its own people walk the streets in bathing suits "plus," and sometimes in bathing suits "minus." During the hot spell it has been a common thing to see bathers "hiking" to and from the Sunnyside beaches in the most informal apparel, or motoring from the more distant sections clad with the same scant regard for the conventions. The harbor board's development of the Sunnyside-Humber area has put Toronto "on the map" as a summer resort, and Toronto, with its usual whole-hearted enthusiasm, has proceeded to act the part.
> A few years ago it would have been considered very shocking. In England they had a terrible struggle before they could reconcile themselves even to mixed bathing. But there, as in Canada, the "old order changeth, giving place to new." And the Manchester Guardian has discovered a fresh and dreadful breach in the entrenchments of seaside conventionality. At Cowes the proprietors of bathing vans have announced to the town council their intention of withdrawing from the business. "It looks," says the Guardian, "like the break in the line that will mean the loss of the whole position. We shall bathe as we choose, and not as it profits other people to stipulate."
> To Canadians, the idea of bathing "machines" has never appealed. To be carted to the edge of the waves and deposited privately "in their midst" represents an excess of modesty which does not prevail hereabouts. Yet it was long in England, an established custom, though, as the Guardian explains, "in recent summers and from various holiday places there have been tales of those who defied the convention to the scandal of those who still claimed to be bound by it." And the account goes on to say:
> "Bathing vans represented rather more than merely the most gritty, draughty and generally unpleasant anteroom to the ocean that perverted man could devise. They stood for a vested interest in property as it was once understood—an investment in a convention which would continue to yield its returns as long as thin wood held together and aged horses could drag the combination to the edge of the waves."
> But the doom of the bathing machine has sounded. "Too many people bathe 'brazenly' from the beach: And their is nothing to be made by letting out what nobody will hire, the owners of them might just as well beat their bathing vans into hen coops." There may have been such machines in the Toronto of long ago. Some of the Toronto Railway rolling stock bears a suspicious resemblance to transmogrified bathing vans. But there will be none in the future. What Canadians cannot understand is the long delay in getting rid of the contraptions in England. They will be mourned by few except the cartoonists, who have long found in them a source of amusement for themselves and for their clientele.

CRISP COMMENT

Circulars from wholesale liquor dealers have ceased to burden the mails and the mail carriers are devoutly thankful; also householders who could not afford to lay in a stock sufficient to carry them through a prolonged drought. Many people who like a little "toddy" occasionally philosophically refrained from laying in a supply, figuring out that they might just as well get on the water wagon now as later on, for booze supplies, large or small, have a habit of quickly disappearing. The daily bombardment of liquor circulars was an aggravation to slim purses and the order to cease firing will be welcomed in many quarters with relief.

FREEDOM OR BOND SLAVES

Indianapolis News

The problem is to keep parties from becoming "savage" and "wolfish," and this can be done only by recognizing them for what they are and using them for the accomplishment of good purposes. When parties degenerate into clans or factions, they become a source of terrible danger to the nations, as George Washington long ago pointed out. No man who puts himself in bondage to a political organization can hope to discharge his full duty as a citizen.

THE NATIONS NEED A TONIC

Manchester Guardian

Since the war the most prevalent malady is just this loss of power which we call dullness. Declining nations abound in it, while rising nations are easily roused and absorbed by ordinary experiences. This is not to say that we are necessarily in for a permanent decline. It is only that we have, as doctors, or some of them, say, "lost tone" for a time. But we have somehow got to recover that tone and reachieve the vital miracle of finding every routine day a cheerful little adventure in itself, as it is for any mind at the top of its form.

The Poets' Corner

THE CHANGING VIEW

We used to think it rained because we wanted to have fun,
Out in the blossoms of the lane beneath the glowing sun,
And we were petulant and cross and whimpered all the day—
But now we view the rain that falls in quite a different way.

We used to think the storms were sent to spoil our picnic date,
And keep us penned up in the house or right inside the gate,
And we were angry all the time that things should go that way—
But we have learned to view the storms quite different to-day.

And it is so in all things here that mark our quiet life—
We see the wisdom of the toil and of the pain and strife,
And we have grown a gentler will
 and welcome all He sends.
For now we take another view of Nature's destined ends.

We know for instance, that the rain is sent to fill a need,
And not to spoil our happy day and make our spirits bleed,
And through the larger purpose of
 His will and wish we know,
The blessing of the flying clouds as the sun's bright glow.

"But I heard papa telling the governess yesterday that she was an angel. Will she fly?"

"Yes, my dear, she will fly away the first thing to-morrow."

Quite in His Line

Tramp—"Can you assist me along the road, mum?"

Lady—"Personally I cannot, but I can unchain my dog and I know he will be pleased to do so."

Unromantic Cause

Mr. Staylate—"I have never seen such dreamy eyes as yours.

Miss Frank—"Perhaps you've never stayed so late before."

Perhaps They Forgot

Small Boy (at dock)—"Papa, those are not real sailors, are they?"

Papa (a theatrical manager)—"Why yes, my son. They have just sailed that big ship across the ocean and in about a week they will sail back."

"Well, I suppose they must known something 'bout sailing, but they ain't really and truly sailors, are they?"

"Indeed they are. Why do you think they are not?"

"Why, I've been watching them 'most an hour, an' I haven't seen one of them hitch his trousers an' stand on one leg and say, 'Yo-ho, my hearties!' once."—Pearson's Weekly.

FOOD CRISIS SHOULD BE NEARLY OVER

Riga, July 21.—Moscow papers say that the local food crisis there should now be over, as food shipments have come in both from abroad and from the provinces, and that regular distribution should now proceed. The basis of current distribution of bread is, however, only three pounds for five days to workmen of the "preferred" classes, and only one pound for five days to the "non-preferred" classes. The former are also to get four pounds of herrings.

Reports from Petrograd state that 41,000 tons of foodstuffs, mostly flour, herrings, beans, rice, etc., have either arrived or are en route for the capital. More than 1,000,000 scythes and thousands of other agricultural implements have already arrived there.

TWO RECOMMENDATIONS MADE

At a meeting of the civic committees held last evening the business transacted was not of a heavy nature. Several accounts were passed and the following recommendations were made.

Maims Victim and Makes Off

TRUCK DRIVER COLLIDES WITH BUGGY CONTAINING THREE WOMEN AND BABY

Hamilton, July 21.—Three women and a two-year-old infant were injured on the highway near the high level bridge about ten o'clock, when a heavy auto truck, said to be carrying license number C6480, crashed into the buggy in which they were riding. The driver of the truck did not stop to render aid but, putting on the gas, sped away in the darkness, leaving his four victims maimed and bleeding on the roadway.

Those injured and removed to the hospital were: Mrs. Alice McBride and her two-year-old baby of 310 Barton street east; Mrs. Maude Donnelly and her daughter, Carmel, of East Flamboro.

Mrs. McBride and her baby sustained severe cuts and bruises. Mrs. Donnelly suffered a badly-wrenched back and is believed to have been injured internally. All of them were semi-conscious when aid reached them. Miss Carmel Donnelly escaped with slight injuries.

Police officials notified all nearby points, with the hope of intercepting the driver, who is alleged to have driven off as fast as the engine of the truck would carry him. Police officials believe the truck was carrying liquor.

Eleven Cattle Killed When Hit by Train

On Tuesday afternoon last thirteen head of cattle belonging to Mr. F. Bosley of Bogart, Hungerford Township escaped from a pasture field and wandered onto the C.P.R. tracks. The train from Ottawa, due here at 2.40 ran into the bunch at Bogart crossing and killed eleven of them outright, and maimed the other two so badly that they had to be destroyed. An investigation disclosed the fact the cattle gained their freedom through an opening in the fence, left, it is alleged by three men. These men were driving past Mr. Bosley's ranch when their car met with an accident and was overturned in the ditch. When they finally righted it they had to go into the field to turn around, and in their haste to get away they forgot to put the fence up again. Mr. Bosley estimates the loss at $550.00.

Up in The Air Boys in Paint Caravan

Gee, it was the most wonderful sensation I ever experienced.

I wouldn't have missed it for a million dollars. It's the greatest thing in the world for seeing the sights.

No wonder young men leave home.

The above were the sample expressions of Messrs. Herb. Wilson, McLenaghan Cavanagh and Geo. Graham who enjoyed a flight in the aeroplane which was in the city to-day. The plane is the property of the Brandram Henderson Paint Co., and was making a delivery of paint to local agents.

The original plane which started from Montreal, made a false landing, on account of the storm and this Curtis plane was immediately despatched as the Brandram-Henderson Co., did not want to disappoint their agent, Mr. C. M. Hall. The plane was caught in a storm and was forced to land at Alexandria Bay but after the storm subsided they started again and arrived in Belleville on Friday morning.

The plane was in Picton yesterday and so many wanted to make the flight a lottery was necessary.

Looping-the-loop, spiral nose-diving and other air stunts were the order of the day and were thoroughly enjoyed by all four men and they are fully convinced that if "opportunity" ever presents herself again they will not disappoint her.

As the boys had to make Toronto by 4 o'clock they immediately started leaving behind them a feeling of gratitude among those fortunate enough to enjoy their aerial hospitality.

One of the pilots said that the general public was afraid of the air on account of reading of so many crashes but if they could have the opportunity to make a flight he was convinced that their views would be changed.

TRISCUIT is the shredded wheat cracker, a crisp whole-wheat toast, eaten with butter or soft cheese.

"Then, George, I broke down completely. I couldn't hold in. I set thar an' cried like a child. I told 'er how long an' hard I'd suffered an' how I had tried in all manner o' ways to git forgiveness an' feel right, an' I never seed sech a look on a human face as was on her'n. She actually set down on the bare floor before the fire an' laid 'er thin, bony hands on my knee.

"'Hiram, my boy, my pore boy!' says she. 'Shorely you hain't been all that time thinkin' yore God was that sort of a God. Why, he's all goodness, all glory, all infinite perfection. You've been blamin' yoreself fer some'n' another man done. It was a man you hain't seed in thirty odd year that shot my son in a hasty passion. God don't hold you—the new man—accountable fer that, but he's been holdin' you accountable fer thinkin' so ill of him, fer all yore worry has come from wrongly accusin' yore Holy Maker!'

"Oh. George, she made it as clear to me as daylight. She was right—she was right. God don't hold a new, repentant man accountable fer what his old dead self done. She thought I wasn't convinced, I reckon, fer she got down on her knees an' sent up a prayer that ripped the roof off the house an' showed the glorious way clean to God's throne above the stars.

"'Lord, Lord o' Hosts!' I kin remember every word the old saint said. 'Show this pore, deluded man the truth. Tear away the mist o' doubt an' misunderstandin' that's clouded his conception an' dampened the ardor of his great soul. Give 'im peace right now, this minute. Pity him, Lord, an' don't let 'im cling to his old self. Show him the new soul that dwells in the old shell o' mortality, an' let 'im walk with bare head unburdened in the sunshine o' thy heavenly smile.' An,' George Buckley, when she riz to her feet I did see an' comprehend. I laughed an' sobbed an' shouted. My fear was all gone—all—an' it will never, never return, fer I understand now. She showed me. Jest think o' that—Lynn Hambright's mother was the one appointed to show me the truth—the old woman I was fearin' more than everybody else. She cooked me a good supper, an' after eatin' it I laid down in Lynn's bed—the dead boy's bed, mind you—an' slept as sweet a sleep as I ever slept in my life, the fust fer thirty years. She come to me away in the night, pitapat, pitapat over the puncheon floor, jest like she used to go to Lynn, I reckon, an' spread more cover on me. It reminded me of my dead mother. I retched out an' kissed her hand an' drifted away in sweet dreams. This mornin' when I woke the sun was shinin' in my room, an' I smelt some good meat a-fryin' an' good coffee a-bilin' an' seed that old woman a-movin' about the big, blazin' fire. George, George, God is good! She didn't want to let me continue the allowance, but when she seed how I felt she agreed to do it an' to come straight to me fer it in future. Now I'm goin' down an' tell Marthy all about it. All these years I've been afraid to mention the subject to her, but I can talk about it now to anybody. I wish I could reach the ears o' all the men on the face o' the earth who are afflicted as I have been. Ef they only knowed, as I now know, that God don't hold them accountable fer what the'r old selves done, they wouldn't suffer needlessly."

"She got down on her knees an' sent up a prayer that ripped the roof off.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

THE next morning George's mother returned to Darley and came directly from the station to his room. As she entered he stared at her in surprise, for she was dressed in black, even to her sunbonnet.

"Mother," he asked wonderingly, "what has happened?"

She did not answer for a moment, but sat down near his bed and folded her bonnet in her lap.

"When I heard how you was hurt an' laid up," she said presently, "I writ Mr. Hillyer not to let you know about yore pa. He was a sight wuss when I got to 'im, an' they didn't see no chance fer 'im to live. He's dead, George; yore pore pa's dead an' buried. All his trouble is over. He's in God's charge now."

They were both silent for a moment; then Buckley said comfortingly: "Well, you must not grieve over it too much, mother. After all, it may be better as it is."

"That's so, George," she answered, "but my heart aches fer 'im. He wasn't

40,000 Employees To Be Affected

MAINTENANCE OF WAY AND RAILWAY SHOP LABORERS AGREE TO REDUCTION

Montreal, July 22.—A tentative agreement as to a reduction in wages of maintenance of way employes and railway shop laborers was reached yesterday as the result of negotiations which have been proceeding in a friendly way for the past 10 days between officials of the leading railways and officials of the unions concerned.

It is understood that 40,000 employes on the Canadian Pacific Railway, Grand Trunk and Canadian National Railway and smaller railroads will be affected by this cut in wages which will run from 7½ cents an hour for helpers to signal and interlocking maintainers to 10 cents an hour for carpenters, painters, plumbers, masons and similar workers. The new scale will be effective as from July 16.

This decision affecting one section of railway workers only is likely to be followed up by similar agreements in regard to other employes.

The agreement was signed yesterday on behalf of the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way employes and railway shop laborers by its president, William Dorey, and by Grant Hall, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway and chairman of the Operating Committee of the Railway Association of Canada.

THINK ABOUT YOUR FALL HAT NOW!

New hats for autumn are made of felt in black, brown, or dark green, although bright green is worn also. The cloche is again a favorite, very broad of brim and rounded of crown. The felt brim is bound with ribbon, and a twist of ribbon with perhaps a small bow encircles the base of the crown. Smart is a Maria Guy shape of black velvet with the under side of the brim lined with cyclamen velvet, a fold of cyclamen velvet twisted about the base of the crown. The new shapes are large rather than small—the broad, slightly drooping brims shading the face thoroughly.—August Good Housekeeping.

VOL. LIV. NO. 157. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, JULY 23, 1921. PRICE TWO CENTS

Three Cardinal Points Sinn Fein Must Accept

BRITISH OCCUPATION OF IRISH PORTS AND SPECIAL TIES BETWEEN ULSTER AND THE HOME GOVERNMENT INSISTED UPON BY THE GOVERNMENT.

London, July 22.—Premier Lloyd George's written offer to de Valera was more than Sinn Fein expected in some respects. It was unacceptable, however, because it fails to concede what the Sinn Fein claim are three vital principles, according to information obtained to-day.

The British Cabinet authorized the granting of a broad measure of domestic independence, but the offer fell short of de Valera's demands be-

1.—The financial contribution to the British Exchequer to facilitate the liquidation of the war burdens is retained, though it is less than the $90,000,000 required under the Home Rule Act.

2.—The special ties between Ulster and Westminster are still retained.

3.—The British occupation of Irish ports is insisted upon.

The leading English news association circulated a report that the offer of Lloyd George is final and admits of no revision. This, I am informed, however, is absolutely inaccurate. When de Valera told Lloyd George that the proposals did not furnish a basis for further conference, the British Premier pressed him to remain in London for further parleys.

De Valera, however, preferred to return to Dublin for a new consultation with all the leaders of the Sinn Fein. There will be no full meeting of the Dail Eireann, but the President will confer with Michael Collins, J. J. O'Kelly, Richard Mulcahay, Professor MacNeil and Cahill Brugha, who with Austin Stack, Commandant Barton and Arthur Griffith, represent the whole thinking and acting force of the Sinn Fein.

The countess Markiewicz, now in Mount Joy Jail, will also be present provided her release from prison is granted.

If this secret conference agrees to a resumption of the London parleys the same delegation will return next week.

Road Expenditure in Wentworth and Grenville Counties.

Brampton, July 22.—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson gave the big crowd gathered in the armories here one of the shrewdest heart-to-heart talks on the U.F.O. Government ever heard in this section. There was a goodly crowd, in which was a large proportion of voters from the rural districts. N. J. McKinney, one of Peel's most prominent farmer citizens, occupied the chair. With him on the platform were S. Charters, M.P., and Major T. L. Kennedy, M.P.P., both of whom gave addresses. Miss Constance Boulton addressed the ladies present on their duty as voters, and the need for them to use their influence in securing the best government possible for the province. The Brampton band, assisted by local talent, gave an enjoyable program of music.

In the course of his address, Mr. Ferguson said:

I notice that some things I have recently said with respect to extravagance in road expenditure has aroused the ire of my friend, Mr. Biggs. My statement was that although the Minister of Public Works had spent about seven and a half millions last year on roads, I would like somebody to rise up and tell me where, outside of the County of Wentworth, there are any good roads. Mr. Biggs does not answer my question, but he gives to the press a comparative summary of expenditure from 1918 to 1921 on roads in the County of Wentworth and the united counties of Leeds and Grenville with the obvious purpose of giving the impression that the county which I represent has had more generous treatment than his own county. This statement shows that during the period $582,099.91 was expended in Wentworth county, while $991,685.74 was expended in Leeds and Grenville. It will be observed that he combines the expenditure in the two counties, Leeds and Grenville, although I represent the county of Grenville only.

Taking his statement as he gives it, what is the fact According to Mr. Biggs, there is sixty-four miles of pro-

The Work of League of Nations

Geneva, July 22.—The agenda of the next meeting of the Assembly of the League of Nations to be held here on September 5 is not expected to contain any new subject of particular importance, though the members still have time to submit any subjects they would like to have discussed.

Thus far there is only one item put on the agenda at the request of a member, the Tacna-Arica dispute, which will be listed at the request of Bolivia.

Not many such requests are expected, most of the work that will come before the popular body of the League being the outgrowth of work already begun, such as disarmament, the International Court and the continuation of work that was referred to special commissions such as the fight against the white slave traffic, against opium and for better transit facilities.

As the work in sight stands, the order of business, with such modifications as may be made necessary by subsequent requests of members, will be:

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Organization of the Assembly; reports of special committees appointed at the request of the first Assembly including amendments to the covenant; registration of treaties; the economic blockade and the interior organization of the League; the budget; reports of the provisional technical organizations of the League including the financial committee's report on the scheme to resuscitate Austria; election of eleven judges fo rthe International Court; the reduction of armaments; Bolivia's request for mediation in the Tacna-Arica dispute; election of four non-permanent members of the Council of the League; admission of new members.

Hungary is thus far the only new applicant for membership of the Assembly, but there are in suspense the previously filed applications of Latvia, Lithuania, Ukraine, Azerbaijan, Georgia, Armenia and Lichtenstein.

It is regarded as practically certain in League circles that the Assembly will be called upon to pass on the admission of Germany. No intimation has been received of an intention on the part of Germany to make an application herself, but several delegations it is expected will be ready to propose her, taking as an argument for admission the fact that the present German cabinet has shown its intention to loyally execute the country's obligations.

Germany is expected to have the support of Italy, Austria, Bulgaria, Switzerland, and the Scandinavian countries, as well as that of some of the South American delegations.

State Executives Face Grave Charge

WARRANTS ISSUED FOR ARREST OF GOVERNOR AND LIEUT.-GOVERNOR OF ILLINOIS

Springfield, Ill., July 22.—Warrants were issued for Governor Small, Lieutenant-Governor Sterling and Vernon Curtis, Grant Park, Illinois, banker, following their indictment late today on charges of embezzlement, conspiracy and confidence game through the alleged use of interest on state funds for their personal gain.

Four indictments were returned. They covered charges of fraud by the trio during the terms of Small and Sterling in the state treasurer's office between 1917 and 1921.

THIEVES DECAMP WITH SAFE FROM LIQUOR VENDORS

Ottawa, July 23.—The safe containing $1,025, which was taken from the Hull liquor vendor's store early Wednesday morning is still at large as are the perpetrators of the crime The police say they are doing their level best to find both safe and the thieves, but are not making much headway. Chief of Police Henri's theory is that the safe has been dumped into the river and will never be found.

Age and Youth Participate In Jolly Joy Ride

A jolly motor party in a cavalcade of twenty cars passed along the pleasant roads of Prince Edward Friday afternoon, visited his toric Carrying Place, passed through Trenton, and after a very pleasant afternoon sightseeing and enjoying the cool, breezes from the Bay returned to Belleville. The party included sixty-one old folks from the Home of Refuge, some of whom had never been in a motor car before, and some so crippled that they had to be carried to the cars. There were also twelve children from the Shelter, and age and youth mingled in enjoying to the full what to them was a real joy ride. Capt. T. D. Ruston, secretary of the Belleville Motor Club, was in charge of the outing, and is very grateful for the fine response from owners of automobiles.

Board Recommends Ten-Cent Wage Cut

MEN WILL BE BETTER OFF AS STEADY EMPLOYMENT WILL FOLLOW

Hamilton, Ont., July 22.—Official announcement of the finding of the board of arbitration on building tradesmen's wages was known this afternoon and a decrease of ten cents per hour, is recommended to all men making over 85 cents, while five cents will be the cut to those under this figure. It was announced that the finding would be withheld until Ottawa released the statement, but the members decided not to keep the men in suspense any longer.

The boards' official finding is as follows: "The board found that a quantity of building is in contemplation in the city and is being deferred on account of the high cost of construction It is the opinion of the majority of the board that it is very necessary under existing conditions that the opportunity of employment should now be increased as much as possible therefore the majority of the board with this object in view, recommends for the remainder of this building season as a minimum union rate, the wages in the trades and craft before the board, the following union scale: Carpenters, 75 cents per hour, formerly 85 cents; sheet metal workers, 80 cents per hour, formerly 90 cents; plasterers, 90 cents per hour, formerly, $1 per hour; steam and operating engineers 75 cents; electrical workers, 75 cents per hour, formerly 85 cents; painters, 62 cents per hour formerly 67½ cents; hod carriers and common laborers, 50 cents per hour, formerly 55 cents."

Men Will Agree

This report takes effect immediately and remains in force until the end of the year or for any longer term on which employes and employers agree.

The men are not altogether satisfied with the finding. They do not like to have their pay envelopes made smaller, but they ezpected such action. It is admitted that the contractors had a strong case to present to the board and a cut was looked for. Although there is not a feeling of satisfaction so far as can be learned the men will accept the report and the troubles are settled for the year. It is expected that there will be increased activity in building lines. There has been much work held back for a wage cut and as materials have dropped in price considerably, those in a position to know state that this work will be gone on with and the men, although working for smaller wages, will really be further ahead for steady employment will be provided.

NEWFOUNDLAND PROVIDES FOR RAILROAD OPERATORS

St. John's Nfld., July 22.—After three days of debate the Legislature passed a measure providing for the operation of the Colonial Railroad system for one year ending next June by the Reid Newfoundland Company. The Colony guarantees losses in operation up to one million five hundred thousand dollars under the provisions of the bill, but the company must meet losses above that figure. The bill was passed by a vote of 18 to 14.

Officials of the railroad recently threatened to suspend operations unless Legislative aid was extended, saying it could not meet operating costs.

Likely to Try Out "Booster" on G.T.R. is Railway Report

WILL ENABLE LOCOMOTIVES TO OVERCOME GRADES MORE READILY

According to report in railway circles, the Grand Trunk is about to place in operation on the Montreal division between Brockville and the Metropolis, at least one locomotive equipped with a booster unit to enable it to increase its hauling capacity on grades and to pick up a heavy freight train with greater ease. The first "booster" locomotives in Eastern Canada are said to be giving satisfaction on the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, where they were recently installed after being built at the Canadian Locomotive Works at Kingston. They consist of an extra-power unit attached to the locomotive and capable of being operated from the main unit. There is no doubt that if the Grand Trunk concludes to place some locomotives equipped with the booster in service, they will be subjected to test on the grades between here and Montreal. The equipment has been well tried out on mountain divisions of United States railroads where it has proved successful in hauling heavy trains.

In connection with the proposed testing of booster equipment, it may be pointed out that the Grand Trunk is now hauling longer and heavier trains out of Brockville westward than ever before. The tonnage has been considerably increased in the last few years to conform with the powerful type of locomotives that have been introduced and railwaymen foresee that even heavier trains will be drawn should the booster be adopted.

The Grand Trunk line between Brockville and Montreal has become the testing ground for the various appliances which are being tried out by the railway in its motive power department. The Elvins mechanical stoker is in successful operation, after an exhaustive test on one locomotive, and there is talk of equipping others with it. No person welcomes the mechanical stoker with more open arms than the fireman, who thus finds his duties considerably reduced and rendered less difficult. The Lewis draft appliance is also giving satisfaction, while the feed water heater, after testing between Brockville and Montreal is now in service on the Belleville di-

Where a Woman Was Braver Than The Men

A party of Belleville tourists recently at Fort William and Port Arthur witnessed a thriller which made their hearts beat faster for a time. With other tourists they had motored to the plateau overlooking the famous Kakabeka falls and the automobiles were parked while the tourists took in the scenery. All at once a motor car, evidently left without brakes on, started and moving slowly some distance, collided with another car and then stopped. The car ahead, however, started, and headed right for the falls. Fortunately there were no passengers in the car but there easily might have been. None of the men present stirred a hand to save the car but a lady from the United States ran and jumped upon the running board and tried to stop its progress. Everybody shouted to the venturesome lady to jump from her perilous position but she persisted almost to the brink of the chasm, although she was unable to stop the car which plunged over the bank, and was a total loss. This is just another object lesson on the necessity of being careful in all things.

Leon Biethon, aged 19, hangs himself in cell at St. Johns.

Northbrook village, near Kaladar suffers heavily by fire.

Angus Buchanan, from Community Camp, Moira Lake, Madoc, etc., etc., was in the city today arranging for the next camp, which begins Monday, with the First Belleville Troop of Boy Scouts and Life-Saving Scouts of the S.A., fifty boys in all. The boys will be taken out to Moira Lake by the Rotary gasoline caravan in charge of Rotarian Bob Wray, superintendent of transportation for Community Camp. Last week a bunch of working boys from banks and offices had a high old time at the camp, and the fleet was augmented by Col. Riordan's dingy dinghy, which is some sailor, blow high, blow low. Monday morning the Scouts will leave for two weeks, returning on August 6.

Law Does Not Give Officers Right to Search People

TRAVELLER CAN CARRY "HOOTCH" INTO ONTARIO "ON THE HIP" WITHOUT BEING LEGALLY SUBJECT TO SEARCH UNLESS UNDER ARREST.

Toronto, July 23.—The man who failed to get his stock in before the 19th and faces the long drought with an empty cellar will be interested to know that he can carry liquor into Ontario "on the hip" without being legally subject t ca search by officers of the law. The point has been raised before, but notwithstanding the fact that there was no legal authority for officers to search the person it has been done. Yesterday experts of the Attorney-General's Department gave views on the subject in relation to the operation of the Sandy bill, and their verdict was unanimous that the law did not provide for personal search though an officer who suspects the presence of liquor may search the traveller's grip or suitcase.

Officials of the Department were not alarmed at the possibility of much liquor coming in 'on the hip", it would not pay the blind-pigger to travel to Montreal and back for the odd bottle or two he could carry on his person, and the individuals who are not scared off by the chance of a $200 to $1,000 fine if caught will do little harm with an odd bottle. And there is always the chance that the officer may not know he hasn't a right to search.

"If an officer has good reason to believe a man is carrying liquor, he can arrest him—and find the liquor afterward," said an official. "The officer takes a chance, that's all."

Belated Shipments

Vice-Chairman Dingman of the License Board stated that no special steps had been taken to deal with individuals carrying liquor on the person. They had no right of search and there was little they could do. Mr. Dingman said that little difficulty was being experienced in connection with delayed deliveries of liquor. So far few applications had come in for permission to get delivery; but in all cases where it was evident that the shipment was a bona fide one and the delay not the fault of the individual he was allowed to get his liquor. This, of course, only applied to liquor that was in the Province. Importation was barred under Federal law and the Provincial authorities had no jurisdiction in respect to it.

300,000 Die Daily From Starvation and Disease

MAXIM GORKY APPEALS FOR AID — CROPS HAVE FAILED AND INDUSTRIES CLOSED DOWN, WHILE WORST EPIDEMIC OF TYPHUS AND CHOLERA IS SPREADING SO RAPIDLY AS TO MENACE WHOLE EASETRN HEMISPHERE.

Paris, July 22.—The worst epidemic of tyhus and cholera in history is sweeping westward with terrible speed. Europe to-day awoke of a realization that unless Russia's starving millions are immediately relieved, the whole eastern hemisphere stands in danger of becoming in a few months in the grip of the grim plague

According to an authentic appeal from Maxim Gorky, cabled to Anatole France, Gerhard Hauptmann and Blasco Ibanez, the situation in Russia is beyond belief. He declares that 300,000 Russians are dying daily from starvation and disease.

From one end of Russia to the other crops are complete failures

Wholesale suicides are reported from the Caucasus, while in Moscow and Petrograd others are slaying their babies rather than see them die from hunger.

Transportation is paralyzed and practically all industries are closed down owing to the feebleness of the workers.

According to Vladimir Drabowitch, the famous author now in Paris, 25,000,000 persons in the Vogla district alone are likely to die of famine before the winter is over, the failure of the crops being blamed on the prolonged drought.

Gorky's Appeal

Gorky's appeal reads:

"To all honest men: The plague and the drought are slaying millions in Russia. The breadless and meatless country that was once the home of Tolstoi, Dostoievski, Mendelciff and other great men, is menaced by the greatest disaster of all history.

"Europe and America must bring us immediate aid. Those who during the war disseminated hate and led the people to massacre, should be the first now to hear Russia's cry for help."

In the face of the present situation, even the bitterest opponents of the Soviets are appealing to all nations to co-operate with the Moscow Government in aiding the famine districts.

Freezes Blood in Veins

Paul Millioukoff, the first Premier of free Russia, and leader of the Democratic Constitutionalists, today said:

"The news we are receiving daily from Russia freezes the very blood in our veins. To-day we hear of thousands of persons without shoes, without bread, without water, tramping across the Siberian desert toward Moscow, because they have heard that 'American bread' is being given out there.

"Other thousands are fleeing southeastward toward India, while highroads in all directions are actually littered with corpses.

"We have subdued numerous personal differences in the face of the common danger and are ready to cooperate with the Soviets to the extent of our power."

Vladimir Bourtzeff, world famous anarchist and bitter opponent of Lenine, member of the National Russian Country said:

"Twenty-five million of Russians are condemned to death by hunger, cold and the plague. Only a miracle coming by the way of America and Europe can save even a part of them. Private aid will be useless in the face of enormous need. The conscience of the world must be awakened to its duty."

New Postmaster at Bowmanville

CARL R. KENT, WELL KNOWN IN BELLEVILLE, RECEIVES DESERVED PROMOTION

Official announcement has been made that Carl Bedford Kent has been appointed postmaster of Bowmanville to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Major W. C. King, who died last May. Mr. Kent's appointment had been strongly recommended by the Chamber of Commerce, members of the Town Council, business men, manufacturers, professional men and many other citizens.

The promotion was a most popular and desirous one, as Mr. Kent had been an efficient member of the Bowmanville Post-Office staff for over 35 years. He had served under five postmasters, Asa Wallbridge and Thos McClung, of Newcastle, and James B. Fairbairn, John McMurtry and W. C. King, all deceased with the exception of John McMurtry.

Mr. Kent is the second son of the late Prof. and Mrs. A. B. Kent, is a past master of Jerusalem Lodge No. 31, A.F., and A.M., and a past noble grand of Florence Nighingale Lodge No. 66, I.O.O.F. In his younger days he was one of the best known athletes in this district, and is well known, and has many friends in Belleville

Baggage Examined Before Docking

Montreal, Que., July 22.—To have baggage examined by the customs officials before arrival at the port and checked to its inland destination is one of the most highly appreciated features of service on the Canadian Pacific Empress liners arriving at Quebec by putting customs officials and a staff of baggage checkers on board the Empress ships at Father Point the C.P.R. overcomes the long and sometimes tedious delay otherwise experienced, and by the time that ship docks at Quebec the special trains are in readiness, there to convey passengers to their inland destinations and through this service able to proceed immediately.

Last Minute Telegraph Briefs

Await The Outcome

London, July 23.—With Eamonn de Valera back in Dublin, British circles today apparently had settled down to await the next move in the Irish negotiations, which are expected to come from the southern Irish capital as soon as the leaders of the Republicans have had a chance to study the document which Mr. De Valera received from Mr. Lloyd George yesterday.

Gen. Smuts to Ireland

London, July 23.—General Jan C. Smuts, South African Premier, is expected to leave London for Ireland next week, probably Monday, to place his services at the disposal of both Eamonn de Valera and Sir James Craig, during their critical consideration of the Irish peace proposals made by Mr. Lloyd George. This statement was made today in quarters close to the South African Premier.

German Protection

Paris, July 23.—Premier Briand, following a meeting of the Council of Ministers at Rambouillet yesterday, has despatched a telegram to Berlin requesting that the German Government take all necessary steps to insure the safe conduct through Germany of a new division of troops which, it is said in official circles, will be ordered to Silesia within a few hours.

Letter Rate Increased

Ottawa, July 23.—On and after August 1, 1921, the fee for special delivery of letters in Canadian cities, as provided for in section 14 of the official postal guide, shall be twenty cents for each letter in addition to the ordinary postage charges. The charge at present is ten cents.

Hanged by Mob

Hattiesburg, July 23.—Casey Jones, a white man, recently convicted of the murder of Mrs. J. S. Mosely and sentenced to be hanged on July 18, but whose case was pending an appeal before the State Supreme Court, was taken from the county jail early this morning by a mob and hanged in the courtyard.

SOLD FOUR WIVES

The Pas, Man., July 23.—A report from the north states that an Eskimo trapper, enroute to a trading post to sell his furs, disposed of four of his wives, each for a pound of tea and some tobacco. The purchasers are fellow tribesmen returning from the du Brochette post of the Hudson's Bay Company and heavily laden with supplies. Two of the wives have been involved in similar transactions, the report goes on to say, and one of them has been traded six times, once for a plug of tobacco and once for a slab of bacon. As it is the custom of the Eskimo, the original owner may redeem his wives upon payment of double the purchase price.

NEW SYSTEM TRIED

Calgary, Alta., July 23.—A co-operative marketing scheme for the disposal of this year's Alberta potato crop along a system in use by Michigan and Minnesota growers will likely be tried out this season. J. H. Hare, commissioner of marketing for the department of agriculture, recently returned from a trip to Michigan, Mnnnesota and Ontario points during which he investigated the methods used for handling, grading and shipping of potatoes.

It is proposed to start in a small way, the department of agriculture working through the Edmonton Potato Growers' Association, the first of the kind to organize. The scheme will involve the establishment of a grading station at which all potatoes will be graded for shipment. Inspection will be given at the other end, potatoes going through in such cases subject to rejection. The details of the plan have yet to be worked out.

Rinso

Soak the clothes—the dirt rinses away

RINSO is not a cake soap, not a chip soap, not a washing powder, but fine granules of wonderful cleansing power that soak the dirt out of your clothes. Dirt is so thoroughly dissolved that it floats away in either warm or cold rinsing water. This does away with the boiler and wash board—it makes wash-day work truly easy and simple.

If You Have a Washing Machine—

Soak the clothes overnight in the usual Rinso way. The cleansing suds loosen every bit of dirt. In the morning operate the machine for a few minutes and the clothes are perfectly clean—even the most soiled spots.

MAXWELL

EARTHQUAKE AT END OF FILM PRODUCTION

The destruction of an Italian village street furnished the final scenes for "The Hope," the massive spectacular melodrama which is receiving its final exhibition at Griffin's today and tonight.

"The Hope is an all star production with Jack Mulhall, Ruth Stonehouse Marguerite de la Motte and Frank Elliot heading the cast. The earthquake staged at the sixty-five acre Metro park, in the San Fernando Valley was only one of the big scenes staged for "The Hope," a battle in Khyber pass is another event that makes the famous production a thriller. The play was written by Cecil Raleigh and Henry Hamilton and produced on the stage by Arthur Collins.

Many large and elaborate settings were constructed especially for the picture, among them the ballroom of an East Indian palace, an oriental street (built at the Metro studios), the British army barracks where scenes were taken showing the return of victorious British troops after the battle with Afghanistan natives in Khyber pass.

Larry Semon in a highly amusing 2 reel comedy "The Suitor", Vode-Vile Movies and Fox News Weekly are being exhibited in addition to the above feature offering

Sights and Sounds in California

As Seen by J. J B. Flint.

This city was electrified by the advent of 60,000 Elks, from nearly every state. There were seventeen hundren bandsmen. Philadelphia sent a band of 160 men. There were two parades of Elks, Los Angeles lodge by far the most numerous. The celebration closed by the Elks of this city giving a floral parade in honor of their visitors, 250,000 people witnessed the parade. Every State had a different uniform, each vieing with the other in beauty. Philadelphia had an immense number clad in spotless white. The Zouaves with their red pantalcons, blue jackets, red caps, won the $500 prize for the best drill. They ascended a lofty tower, one mounting on the shoulders of another. Several Corps brought a cannon which they frequently discharged, while marching. The different uniforms with their gold embroideries, presented a splendid appearance.

Philadelphia brought a horse patrol fifty thoroughbred, most beautiful animals. A company of Quakers in long black coats, old-fashioned black hats, long hair reaching their shoulders, accompanied by a band of fifty Quaker women, with drab bonnets and garments. Two large covered autos bore the sign of having crossed the country from shore to shore.

The electoral parade was grand. A large company carried purple and white umbrellas, each containing an electric lamp. An electric cable carried electricity and small tubes ran from the cable to each lamp. An immense float was filled with girls, displaying flowers, each flower having a light. Douglas Fairbanks sent his Wild West troupe, and also sent the actual carriage used by the great Cardinal Richelieu, centuries ago in France. Over fifty of the movie beauties appeared in costumes of great beauty. Tom Mix and Charlie Chaplin sent their electric and other apparatus connected with their studios. Mary Pickford's new electrical device, to be used in "Little Lord Fauntleroy was most interesting. A lion, tiger, camels, an elephant and the celebrated ape "J. E. Martin, (one of the wonders of the movie world) also took part in the procession.

The floral parade which took place on Friday, was given in honor of the visitors by the Elks of this city, I have seen three of the floral exhibitions at Pasadena, but this parade outshone anything I have ever seen. A notable feature was the last public appearance of the thirty horses of the fire brigade, superceded by autos. They were led with the name of each on blue velvet. A splendid float made of flowers enclosed the celebrated horse "Bullets twenty-eight years old, having been in service for the city, twenty-two years. At least forty floats constructed of flowers of every description filled with beautiful girls and lovely children, containing figures of many Elks, Bears, Panthers, of course the city officials, supervisors Chamber of Commerce were all present. A score of ladies on beautiful horses, completed the grandest and most beautiful floral parade I have ever witnessed.

Pale and Nervous School Children

NEED RICH, RED BLOOD TO REGAIN HEALTH AND STRENGTH

Many children start school in excellent health, but after a short time home work, examinations, hurried meals and crowded school rooms cause their blood to become weak, their nerves over-wrought and their color and spirits lost. It is a mistake to let matters drift when boys and girls show symptoms of nervousness or weak blood. They are almost sure to fall victims of St. Vitus dance, or drift into debility that leads to other troubles. Regular meals, out-door exercise and plenty of sleep are necessary to combat the nervous wear of school life. But it is still more important that parents should pay attention to the school child's blood supply. Keep this rich and red by giving Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and the boy or girl will be sturdy and fit for school. The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind is shown by the statement of Mrs. Watson, Grand Falls, N.B., who says: "In the spring of 1919 my daughter Thistle, then 12 years of age, began to show symptoms of nervousness which developed into St. Vitus dance. She seemed to lose control of her limbs and at times every muscle in her body seemed to be twitching and jerking, and the trouble seemed to be growing worse. We finally decided to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and the result was better even than we had hoped for, and she is now enjoying the best of health."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Mark Hydrant Zone

O.B.—I see that the by-law forbidding motor cars to be parked within fifteen feet of a hydrant is being enforced. Not finding any fault with the by-law wouldn't it be a good idea to mark on the pavement with black paint the forbidden zone as many motor car drivers can not judge fifteen feet to a nicety and would feel easier if the zone was plainly marked.

Care for Kiddies

B.B.—Having just returned from an extended trip to a number of enterprising Canadian towns and cities, I must say that while Belleville has no peers in the line of beauty many places are ahead of us in the line of parks and bathing places for the kiddies. Great care is evidenced to see that the children have pleasant places to play and safe places to bathe. Let's get busy with that five thousand dollars left by Senator Corby which is not doing anyone any good lying idle.

Little Sister's Danger

T.M.R.—Well I saw something this evening that caused me to hold my breath. Coming down Station street at a rapid speed were five bicycles carrying two young men on each bicycle, and only for an older sister standing near by to grab little sister she would have been injured badly or perhaps worse. So I think this ought to be a lesson to young men as there is a lot of it done on this street.

The New Bathing Site

X.Y.Z.—I saw three prominent men over at Cooper's Dam looking over the proposed site for the public baths and judged from the look on their faces that they didn't favor the idea. Anyone who has ever swam there will tell the committee that a worse place couldn't be found. In the summer there is no water there and in the spring, when the ice breaks up, and we have our annual flood, the water coming over the dam forms a miniature Niagara, so that if public baths were built, they wouldn't last long. The water lies stagnant in the summer and the smell emitted from the river is impossible. From my viewpoint I consider the park is the best place.

Mystery of Zwick's Island

P.Q.—I see that the public dressing rooms at Zwick's Island provided by last year's city council and which disappeared during the winter are still missing, case of seeing something we didn't see, but this is no joke. It is alleged that these dressing rooms for bathers were purloined by the public works department. Guilty or not guilty, let us hear from Messrs. Treverton and Henderson? Let me say that I think it a disgrace that people have to go as far as Zwick's Island for a plunge especially during the blistering hot weather, and a double disgrace that they have to take an automobile with them to undress in, or play ostrich behind the puny scrubs of trees there. Is there not some councillor with grit enough to fight this thing to a finish and force the utilization of the five thousand dollars left by Hon. Senator Corby to provide public baths?

Screams in The Night

H.H.—Screams coming from a residence on Alexander street last evening suggested murder, or fire or burglars or some other terrible thing, and the neighbors were greatly alarmed. This is what happened, a nice and friendly game of cribbage was going on between the male members of the houses, while the ladies were silently (?) sewing. The ladies going to close the door of the coal shed when something rushed in making a noise like a young gale. Of course the feminines present screamed, while the males said Cooper's Dam or some such inane thing and prepared for combat. However, when lights were turned on it was found that two bats had invaded the house. Their ejection was difficult and a strenuous battle resulted, ending in the death of one of the invaders and the escape of the other. The cribbage game was forgotten and indefinitely postponed.

NAPOLEON'S HONEYMOON.

His Second Wife Did Not Mind Annoying Him.

Piquant extracts from the Honeymoon Diary of Marie Louise, the second wife of Napoleon, is published for the first time in the Strand Magazine." The diary, written when she was only eighteen, deals mainly with the emperor from Compiegné. The party left Compiegne on April 27, 1810. The empress writes:

"The road became every moment a little worse. The sand was so deep that it became necessary to put on twelve or sixteen horses to each carriage, and notwithstanding that, we only went at a foot's pace. The horses are so badly harnessed in this country that there is no means of getting on; instead of bits, cords are put in their mouths, and the traces are so thin that they break every instant.

As the horses of the peasants are employed, each man wants to mount his own steed, and there are sometimes as many postilions as horses. I have counted as many as a dozen. When you wish to make them go faster they bewail the lot of their animals, and if you hurry them too much they unyoke, go away with their horses, and leave you there in the middle of the sand. This happened to several carriages of our suite.

"The hour for dejeuner had long passed; it was nearly two o'clock, and the emperor would never allow me to eat in a carriage, and for a fine reason—he said that a woman ought never to want to eat. The anger that these precious arguments inspired me with, joined to my hunger, gave me so terrible a headache that when we arrived at Breda at four o'clock I thought that I should be obliged to stop on the road. But the emperor, who treated us like grenadiers, forced us to continue our journey after his dejeuner.

"We took dejeuner in a rather wretched chateau which formerly belonged to the Prince of Orange. Breda is a small town, but is rather pretty; it contains from seven to eight thousand inhabitants, and has excellent fortifications.

"After the emperor had received all the authorities we resumed our journey. I was in so bad a humor that the emperor was displeased, but I was indifferent to that, and I let him grumble as he liked without answering him. There is nothing that quiets men so much as this. They are insupportable beings, and if I were ever to come back in another world I would not marry again—most certainty not."

Dante and Beatrice.

Although the love of Dante for Beatrice often is quoted as a type of earthly attachment, both fine and rare, the facts are that both Dante and Beatrice married others, Dante having four children by his wife. Beatrice died when she was twenty-four. In all the poet saw her but three or four times in his life, the first time when she was a child of eight. He never wooed her or dreamed of marrying her. She was to him merely a symbol for everything that was good and beautiful, and this symbolizing began when the two were children and the grave youth was taken to her father's house by his own parents on a visit. That she cared anything for him beyond a careless friendship or the careless regard one has for a seldom-met acquaintance is doubtful. Her full name was Beatrice Portinari, and she died in 1290, Dante taking a wife two years later. In speaking of her Dante said: "I saw her at about the end of my ninth year. Her dress on that day was of a most noble color, a subdued and goodly crimson, girdled and adorned in such sort as best suited with her tender age. At that moment I saw most truly that the spirit of life which hath its dwelling in the secretest chamber of the heart began to tremble so violently that the least pulses of my body began to shake therewith."

The Herring Population.

It is authoritatively estimated that over a thousand million herrings were caught from the ports of Yarmouth and Lowestoft from August to December of last year. But man is not the only creature which uses the herring as food. Whales, porpoises, seals, sharks, dogfish, cod, ling, and seagulls all take their toll from the herring shoals. The younger fish in particular are preyed upon by thousands of enemies, and probably only one in ten survives and joins the commercial shoals, maybe fewer. The herring population assumes a still higher value and approaches from 100,000 to 200,000 millions, and this without taking into account the youngest individuals, those recently hatched. Their numbers are beyond comprehension, for the herring deposits about 60,000 eggs.

Germs In Liquid Foods.

To crush the life out of disease germs, of the kinds that inhabit milk and other liquid foods, takes a pressure of 20,000 to 100,000 pounds to the square inch. An American chemical expert, in discovering this fact, found also how to apply such pressures to liquids. It is found that the maleficent bacteria in milk are wholly destroyed by pressures considerably lower than 100,000 pounds, while the beneficient enzymes are unaffected as the pressure is applied at normal temperatures. For much of this work 30,000 pounds, applied twenty minues, is found adequate.

Facts About the Ostrich.

The ostrich is the biggest bird on earth and has the smallest brain. It weighs as much as an average cow, and that brain weighs but two ounces. Yet it is not stupid. The ostrich lives to be about ninety years old. In twenty-nine years one pair under observation produced 450 chicks — an equivalent of 137,500 pounds of meat.

COOKING OUTDOORS

How can you hold a pot, a pan or a frying pan over an outdoor fire? A very good way to suspend one single pot over a fire is by a triped. That is three stout sticks or poles at different sides of the fire, meeting at the top directly above the fire. These are lashed or wired together and the pot is suspended from top down into the flames. When anything is to be added or taken from the pot it is swung out from the fire. The poles are better green to prevent burning through. Should three not be enough a fourth may be added. This of course makes it more difficult to get the pot out though it is stronger.

Another method is by cutting two crotched sticks driving them into the ground on opposte sides of the fire and placing a horizontal bar across on which posts and pails may be hung. The advantage this device has is that it will hold two or three pots of pails where the triped holds only one. If the ground be rocky the crotches may be supported by loose rocks or good-sized rocks may take place of crotched sticks A third device is by means of a single pole supported by a single crotched stick. The pole hanging well out over the fireholds the pot suspended into the flames, the other end of the pole being held down by rock and sod. This can be improved by having the end of the pole fartherest from the fire tied by a cord which is fixed to a peg driven into the ground. By winding the slack string around the end of the pole it can be fastened higher or lower from the ground and so the pot suspended from the fire end of the pole can be raised or lowered giving a suitable position up or down, without the operator going near the fire himself.

None of these, howere, allows for the frying pan. This must be held flat and cannot readily be suspended. If the camp is stationary one a good device is a series of iron rods bolted together like a series of "X's" (XXX XXX) but loosely so the affair may be extended or closed up giving more or less room for utensils. The ends of iron can be supported on rocks or objects of suitable height with fire between. —Firelighter.

ENGINE INVENTED FOR DIRIGIBLE USE

London, July 22.—According to a report in aviation circles, a steam engine has been devised for dirigibles. It consists of a heavy oil internal combustion steam generator with ordinary double acting steam engines, all of which can be housed within the main part of the airship, instead of in separate gondolas. Capt. W. P. Durtnall, inventor of the new system, claims to be able to effect a reduction of the air resistance and the consequent elimination of outside motor gondolas, at the same time his engines being able to work at an altitude at which heretofore there has been serious interference with the ordinary internal combustion motor.

ATTEMPTS TO KILL BUFFALO OFFICIAL

Buffalo, N.Y., July 22.—In a attempt to assassinate Charles K. Blatchly, State commissioner of claims, in his office in Iriquois building. Leon J. Reynolds, a laborer, whose claim for compensation has been denied by the commissioner, shot and probably fatally wounded one man, and endangered the lives of several persons.

The wounded man was Anthony Andario, a spectator in the court room.

Reynolds, disarmed and subdued by lawyers in the court, was taken to police headquarters. Pending the outcome of Andario's injuries, no charge was placed against him.

When Reynolds was informed by the commissioner that his claim for compensation had been disallowed, he burst into a tirade against the court, and suddenly drew a revolver. Attorney A Sullivan, who stood near him, threw his arms about Reynolds and attempted to wrest the weapon from his hands. Reynolds pressed the trigger several times as he rolled about the floor in Sullivan's embrace, and one of the bullets found a mark in Andario's head.

Other spectators piled on the struggling pair and Reynolds was subdued.

SIR WILLIAM MULOCK BECOMES ADMINISTRATOR

Toronto, July 23.—Chief Justice Sir William Mulock was sworn in yesterday as administrator in the place of the Lieutenant-Governor of the province, who has been granted three months' leave of absence, owing to ill-health. The ceremony took place in the office of Premier Drury, the oath being taken by a representative of the Executive Council at Ottawa. The Premier and several members of the Cabinet were present.

V.C. HERO OF GREAT WAR VISITING IN TORONTO

Toronto, July 23.—Lieut Michael O'Leary, V.C., hero of many battles in France, is at the Walker House. Lieut O'Leary will remain in the city for a few days. He is the modest young Irishman who, unaided, crept across "No Man's Land," drew himself closer to the Hun trenches inch by inch and finally succeeded in making fifty German soldiers submit to his demands, thus making himself one of the outstanding features of the great war.

NETWORK OF HIGHWAYS PLANNED FOR YUKON

Dawson City, Y.T., July 22.—A network of highways which will put the development of the north country to the broad jump is being planned by Yukon and Federal authorities. The junction at an early date of the road system of the Yukon with that of Alaska is almost certain, following a conference last week between Col. Steese, head of the Alaskan road commission, and Commissioner George P. McKenzie, chief executive of the Yukon.

BURIAL PLACES MUST BE KEPT IN PROPER CONDITION.

In practically all parts of Ontario there are cemeteries that do not receive the attention from private and public sources that they should. Too often the dead are forgotten by their own kith and kin. The burial places are neglected and in a number of instances, are left to the ravages of time. This should not be so. The resting places of the dead should be revered. In many of the burying grounds bodies of pioneers rest, and it is but fitting that their resting places should be put in a proper state. The beatitude about burying the dead surely implies a due regard for keeping the cemeteries in a fitting condition. Respect for the memory of the dead is a wholesome agency. It has a soothing influence on the lives of people in this old world of so much turmoil. Therefore a bill passed at the last session of the Ontario Legislature will meet with approval. It is entitled "An Act to Amend the Cemeteries Act." The chief provisions are:

"This Act may be cited as The Cemeteries Amendment Act, 1921.

"The Cemeteries Act is amended by adding thereto the following section:

"The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may designate one or more officers of the provincial board to act as inspectors for the purposes of this Act.

"It shall be the duty of the inspectors and they shall have power:

"To visit and inspect cemeteries and when necessary for that purpose, to enter upon or pass over the lands of the owner or any other person.

"To see that the provisions of this Act are observed by the owners of cemeteries and with the approval of the Provincial Board of Health to enforce their observance by prosecution for the penalties imposed by this Act.

"To call for and collect such statistical and other information as the provincial board may require, with regard to cemeteries and the care and management thereof.

"To see that the affairs of any cemetery company or trust or other body of persons owning a cemetery are conducted with due regard to their contractual obligations to the lot owners and others interested in the cemetery, and for that purpose to have access to the books and accounts of any owner of a cemetery.

"To report to the provincial board from time to time upon the enforcement and administration of this Act.

"To see that every cemetery is properly fenced, kept clear of weeds, and otherwise cared for in a proper manner in accordance with this Act and the regulations.

"To see that the provisions of this Act and the regulations with regard to burials and disinterments and the transportation of dead bodies are duly complied with, and to take proceedings against any person contravening any of such provisions.

"To exercise, when so directed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, the powers which may be conferred upon a commissioner under the Public Inquiries Act for the purpose of investigating and reporting upon the conditions of any cemetery and the conduct of its affairs or those of any corporation or trust or individual being the owner or in control of a cemetery."

PURE AND WHOLESOME FOOD PRODUCTS.

A very apparent effect of the work of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa is the improvement that has taken place in the cleanliness and purity of the people's food. Especially is this true of the work performed by the Live Stock and Health of Animals branches. Better equipment at the stock yards has been brought about as well as improved facilities for transportation on the one hand, and, on the other, rigid inspection at the abattoirs and slaughter-houses insures healthy and wholesome meats for consumption. It is impossible to over-estimate the value of the work that is thus being accomplished. At the canneries also cleanliness and wholesomeness are assured by the regulations that are enforced by inspectors and supervisors under the immediate control of the Health of Animals Branch. Eggs and poultry, under the poultry division of the Live Stock Branch have been advanced in public estimation. In by-gone times householders always had certain suspicions of the eggs supplied at the breakfast table and used in cooking. They usually expected one, two or three and sometimes more, in a dozen to prove unpalatable, and were rarely disappointed. To-day they buy and cook with confidence. The same is true with all other articles of food watched over by this and other departments. By legislation, adulteration has been checked and as nearly as possible suppressed. The capable work not only continues but is constantly being expanded and enlarged in scope.

CRISP COMMENT

Many tariff Liberals are shifting to the Conservative side. Why, they ask, follow the echo, when we can have the authentic voice?

It is said there is an alliance between Lapointe and Crerar to defeat the Government. Surely never were there stranger political bed-fellows. Crerar was a prominent member of the Conscriptionist Government, and an ardent conscriptionist, while Lapoint was among the most rabid and irreconcilable anti-conscriptionists. Crerar is a rabid free trader, whereas Lapointe, following the principles and policies of his great leader—Sir Wilfrid Laurier—is a moderate protectionist.

Lieut. Kloor, one of the balloonatics who went up in a balloon and forgot to come down until they were on the other side of nowhere, has just been notified by his fiancee that she cannot possibly live on his income of two thousand dollars per year and the engagement is consequently cancelled. Poor Kloor, when his name and fame and picture featured the daily newspapers he was the darling of the gods and could have had his pick of a flock of feminine-hero worshippers! Off agin, on agin, gone agin, Finnegan, sadly moralizes Lieut. Kloor.

THE UNDERSTANDING WITH FRANCE

London Chronicle

It would be a great misfortune if this multiplication of issues led to any further postponement of the Upper Silesian decision. A definite inter-Allied agreement and a clear-cut policy enforced in that region by French and British alike are indispensable to European peace. But it may be that harmony about Upper Silesia will be stimulated by the need for harmony elsewhere. Each of the problems, as it arises, may help to remind the Allied statesmen and the nations whom they serve of the central fact underlying them all—the need for continued co-operation between Great Britain and France.

MYSTERIES OF THE SEA

New York Times

The story of missing American ships with hints of piracy, including seizure and spiriting away for the benefit of Soviet Russia, may be thought a strain on credulity. Mr. Balfour said the other day that sometimes it seemed to him that nothing very remarkable had occurred in his lifetime before 1914. Dull and prosaic were the days when Bright and Gladstone and Salisbury, and even the theatrical Disraeli, strutted upon the stage—dull and prosaic compared with the period of 1914-1921. What is to be expected when law is flouted and violence rampant but a flaring up of piracy? After all great wars there has been a recrudescence of it.

AN IMPERIAL TRIBUNAL

London Morning Post

The appearance of a West African chief in state yesterday before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, to claim rights to some land, is a striking reminder that this tribunal is, in its way, the greatest in the world. Appeals come to it from all the overseas Dominions and dependencies of the British Crown, and the systems of law administered are as various as the countries from the litigation comes. India supplies it with fine subtle legal points to settle, and it is a strange contrast to pass from the bustle and stir of Whitehall into the calm atmosphere of the quiet chamber and find some of our keenest lawyers patiently following out some reasoning, say, regarding the law of endowments to be applied to a temple in distant Hindustan. The appelate jurisdiction of the Judicial Committee is indeed one of the most marvellous bonds in the British Empire.

The Poets' Corner

THE GRASSHOPPER AND THE CRICKET

The poetry of earth is never dead:
When all the birds are faint with the hot sun
And hide in cooling trees, a voice will run
From hedge to hedge about the new-mown mead,
That is the grasshopper's—he takes the lead
In summer luxury—he has never done
With his delights; for, when tired out with fun,
He rests at ease beneath some pleasant weed,
The poetry of earth is ceasing never.
On a lone winter evening, when the frost
Has wrought a silence, from the stove there shrills
The cricket's song, in warmth increasing ever,
And seems to one in drowsiness half lost,
The grasshopper's among some grassy hills.

Studebaker LIGHT-SIX

—A motor resulting from three years of the most gruelling tests

ONLY after Studebaker engineers had spent three years in subjecting the LIGHT-SIX motor to the most gruelling tests, were they ready to approve its being offered to the public.

The entire LIGHT-SIX car was designed with a definite purpose, which was to build an automobile of quality construction that would perform all of the functions of a heavier car, but which could be operated at a minimum expense.

In keeping with this aim, LIGHT-SIX engineers conceived and patented the Internal Hot-Spot—an exclusive feature of the Light-Six motor, which is largely responsible for the unusually low fuel consumption of the Studebaker LIGHT-SIX.

They Didn't Put Their Camp Fire Out!

Each year the Forestry Branch gathers complete details of every forest fire.

Out of every 100 fires:

Railways cause	40 fires	Settlers cause	9 fires	Lightning causes	3 fires
Campers cause	11 "	Lumbermen cause	4 "	Miscellaneous	33 "

Out of every one hundred fires, ninety-seven are largely due to men's carelessness or bad judgment, and are, therefore, preventable.

Because of the carelessness of 5,000 people in Ontario's forests in the last four seasons, 1,000 fire rangers are employed each year at a daily cost of $3,500.00 to detect their fires and put them out.

Save Ontario's Forests
They're Yours

Forest fires are mainly the result of carelessness and indifference.

Railways start forty per cent. of Ontario's forest fires, but the number is only one-half of what it was four years ago. If the railway companies had kept the fire protective appliances on their locomotives in the safe condition required by law, Ontario would have been saved 2,000 forest fires and many, many acres of valuable timber since 1917.

Neglected camp fires are the cause of one out of every nine forest fires—tourists, hunters, fishermen, prospectors, picnickers, berry pickers, etc. Ordinary precaution would have saved 550 forest fires from this cause in the last four years and $50,000 each summer in expense.

Settlers clearing land cause forest fires by exercise of poor judgment in setting out fire to burn slash, brush and stumps, or by reason of indifference towards responsibility or [illegible] in straight defiance of the law. Permits [illegible] set out fires are required by settlers in the newer districts of Ontario, and where this rule is neglected prosecution follows. But every year large fires are caused by pure carelessness or indifference on the part of some settlers in older districts where permits are not required.

Careless loggers, river-drivers, dam-watchers, tie-makers, sawmill employees and others engaged in lumbering operations have caused 200 fires in Ontario's forests in the past four years. Fire rangers cannot prevent these fires; they can only to a small extent lessen their terrible consequences. Until lumbermen assume more responsibility and initiative to help prevent this class of fires, little improvement can be looked for.

Everybody Must Help

The duty of prevention of fire rests upon Everybody who steps inside our forests. Don't throw away matches, cigarettes, cigar butts or pipe ashes until you are sure they are out.

Build your camp fires small and on bare soil or rock near the water's edge—never against a tree, log or stump. Before leaving, put your camp fire out with water—or earth—and be sure. Forest fires start from a tiny spark and are soon beyond control. Take the same care of fire in the woods as in your own home. Millions of dollars, and human lives may be at stake.

OSHAWA SHIPPERS PROTEST

Oshawa, Ont., July 22.—Prominent farmers and shippers in the vicinity of Oshawa are voicing a protest over the closing of the C.N.R. depot at North Oshawa, as ordered yesterday by the Dominion Railway Board. It is presumed that North Oshawa will in future be a flag station. At present there are only two trains daily making a stop there, owing to the routing of C.N.R. trains over the Grand Trunk and the order to close up is said to be on account of considerable decrease both in passenger and freight business.

Millions of People are Suffering

Indigestion, Headaches, Constipation, Sallow Complexions, Kidney Pains, Rheumatism are all caused from a poisoned system, due to the Liver. Doctors recommend that you take one Tanated Calomel tablet before each meal, or two at bedtime, and in a few days your pains will disappear, your complexion will become clear and you will feel keen, bright, vigorous and life once more will be worth living. The wonderful success of this new drug (Tanated Calomel) is due to the fact that it is the only drug known that acts upon the Liver. No salts or seidlitz are necessary to remove it from the system, as it is selfeliminating. You, no doubt, have taken all sorts of medicine for your particular ailment, but you never get permanent relief, because the medicines you have been taking do not act upon the Liver. Doctors now say that 99 per cent. of all ailments are due to the inactivity of the Liver. A poisoned system soon decays, and that is why I would recommend that you go to McKeown's Front street, and get a box.

NEW ORGANIZATION FORMED

Saskatoon, Sask., July 23.—For the promotion of the interests of garage men generally an organization known as the Saskatchewan Garage Men's Association, with headquarters here, is now being formed with the ultimate object of the promoters to make it a Dominion-wide association. The organization, it is pointed out, is not being promoted for the advantage of the members against the public or anyone. The plan is to stabilize the business of automobile and car repairs on the whole with the belief that the benefits which accrue to members of the association will also result in great advantage to customers.

It is proposed that each garage man for the present in the province and later on in the whole Dominion shall be a member, but such other men connected with garages in the way of employes or otherwise who wish to join will be permitted to do so.

GREY'S ELEGY

THOUGHTS FOR THE "SHUT-IN"—THOSE WHO ARE UNABLE TO ATTEND CHURCH SERVICES THROUGH ILLNESS OR INFIRMITY.

By Rev. W. H. Wallace, Pastor of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church.

The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The lowing herd wind slowly o'er the lea,
The ploughman homeward plods his weary way,
And leaves the world to darkness and to me.

Now fades the glimmering landscape on the sight,
And all the air a solemn stillness holds,
Save where a beetle wings his droning flight,
And drowsy tinklings lull the distant folds:

Save that from yonder ivy-mantled tower
The moping owl does to the moon complain
Of such as, wandering near her secret bower,
Molest her ancient solitary reign.

Beneath those rugged elms, that yew-tree's shade
Where heaves the turf in many a mouldering heap,
Each in his narrow cell for ever laid,
The rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep.

The breezy call of incense-breathing morn,
The swallow twittering from the straw-built shed,
The cock's shrill clarion, or the echoing horn,
No more shall rouse them from their lowly bed.

For them no more the blazing hearth shall burn
Or busy housewife ply her evening care:
No children run to lisp their sire's return,
Or climb his knees the envied kiss to share.

Oft did the harvest to their sickle" yield,
Their furrow oft the stubborn glebe has broke;
How jocund did they drive their team afield!
How bow'd the woods beneath their sturdy stroke!

Let not ambition mock their useful toil,
Their homely joys, and destiny obscure;
Nor grandeur hear with a disdainful smile
The short and simple annals of the poor.

The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power,
And all that beauty, all that wealth e'er gave Await alike th' inevitable hour:
The paths of glory lead but to the grave.

Nor you, ye proud, impute to these the fault
If memory o'er their tomb no trophies raise,
Where through the long-drawn aisle and fretted vault
The pealing anthem swells the note of praise.

Can storied urn or animated bust
Back to its mansion call the fleeting breath?
Can honour's voice provoke the silent dust,
Or flattery soothe the dull cold ear of death?

Perhaps in this neglected spot is laid
Some heart once pregnant with celestial fire;
Hands that the rod of empire might have sway'd,
Or waked to ecstacy the living lyre:

But knowledge to their eyes her ample page
Rich with the spoils of time, did ne'er unroll;
Chill penury repress'd their noble rage,
And froze the genial current of the soul.

Full many a gem of purest ray serene
The dark unfathom'd caves of ocean bear:
Full many a flower is born to blush unseen,
And waste its sweetness on the desert air.

Some village-Hampden, that with dauntless breast
The little tyrant of his fields withstood,
Some mute inglorious Milton here may rest,
Some Cromwell, guiltless of his country's blood.

BUSH FIRES IN NORTH OF PETERBORO' COUNTY

Smoke At Chemong Lake And Burleigh Falls Obscures Shores

Peterboro', July 20.—Bush fires are burning somewhere in the north of Peterboro' county, presumably in the vicinity of Deer Bay. Difficulty of communication with the bush country to the north of the city has so far made it impossible to ascertain the location of the fires or their extent. A thick haze has hung over the city all day, and at the summer resorts at Chemong Lake and Burleigh Falls the smoke is so thick that it is impossible to see across the lake.

Mr. Biggs Is Hoist In Own Petard

vincial highway in Wentworth, and one hundred and fourteen miles of provincial highway in the combined counties of Leeds and Grenville. There are about forty miles of provincial highway in Grenville county, which would mean in the basis of mileage proportion an expenditure of $319,012.40 in Grenville county; as compared with $582,099.91 spent in Wentworth county, so that my friend Mr. Biggs is hoist on his own petard. Of course, this discrepancy is to some extent accounted for by the fact that there are no stretches of road in Grenville county costing $80,000 per mile.

COMPARISONS INACCURATE

But Mr. Biggs' futile attempt to mislead the public by inaccurate local comparisons will not divert public attention from the general lamentable conditions prevailing throughout the province. The question that is troubling the taxpayers is why it is that with all the enormous expense, with the tremendous amount of plant and machinery of every character lying around the highways of the province, we are not getting any good roads. That is the feature of the situation that is worrying the average citizen. The lack of systematic control and direction, the want of uniformity of method, the centralization of authority depriving local engineers of discretion in even the smallest detail which means delay and expense, the entire absence of efficient administration. These are the matters about which the public complain, and these are the reasons why the "roads that Biggs built," or attempted to build, will go down in history as the most costly and colossal failure as a public undertaking that the province has ever experienced. But this is not the worst feature of the situation. The minister has attempted to allay the storm of protest aroused by his lavish expenditure and wasteful methods by pointing to the federal subsidy that is coming to our relief.

FEDERAL GRANT.

You remember that the Dominion Government voted twenty million dollars to be apportioned amongst the several provinces for the improvement of highways. The portion of this sum available for Ontario is about five and three-quarter millions. To earn this subsidy the province must submit its plan, designate the roads for which it asks assistance, and undertake to comply with the requirements of the Federal Department: then the Dominion Government agrees to pay forty per cent. of the cost of the designated highway.

Already Mr. Biggs has entered into agreements of this character covering five hundred and forty-one miles of provincial highway, which has exhausted about four millions of the Dominion appropriation. On the same basis the balance of Ontario's share will provide subsidy for about two hundred and seventy-one miles more, so that the entire amount available to Ontario from the Dominion will be exhausted on a stretch of 812 miles. But Mr. Biggs' ambitious road program covers eighteen hundred miles of provincial highway. There will, therefore, be a thousand miles of provincial highway for which there will be no Dominion assistance. I would like the Minister of Public Works or the Prime Minister, to tell us who is to bear the forty per cent. extra cost of this thousand miles. Will the province bear it out of the public treasury, or will it be saddled upon the local municipalities? This is a situation that will give grave concern to every taxpayer of the province, and particularly of the counties that will receive no assistance from the Dominion fund. What, for instance, will the counties west of London have to say when they find that not as yet, at any rate, has Mr. Biggs secured for them any Dominion Government aid towards their provincial roads? What will the people who are not to share in the federal grant, but must pay the extra forty per cent. in taxes, have to say of the improvident and unbusinesslike policy of the Minister of Highways?

LACK OF FORESIGHT.

This condition of affairs merely emphasizes the reckless want of foresight with which the Drury Government plunged into its present highway program. Is it surprising that there is such general alarm all over the province over the reckless manner in which this important and costly work is being carried on. Is it to be wondered at that some counties councils have refused to force their taxpayers to pay for this waste and extravagance? The wonder is that more of them have not taken the same stand.

PROTESTS ARE HEARD.

Even the Farmers' Sun and farmers' clubs are voicing their protest, and some of the latter even demanding the political head of the minister.

The hopeless mess in which we find our road program today is the inevitable result of an inexperienced minister hoping to make a great name for himself plunging headlong into enormous expenditures without efficient organization or proper conception of his task. The McDiarmid program of four hundred and fifty miles was too modest for Mr. Biggs. Mr. Biggs must have eighteen hundred miles, and Mr. Biggs must spend and spend freely to carry out such a scheme. He begins by buying eighty automobiles within three months during his first year in office—more than half of them without tender. During this same first year as Minister he bought fifty trucks and one purchase of $100,000 without tender "to help a friend in his home town."

When such methods are followed the public must expect high-priced and low quality roads. The taxpayers who live near and witness the manner in which the work on the roads is being carried on, know we are wasting money and getting no adequate return for the enormous sums we are spending. Can we wonder that there is universal complaint over existing conditions and alarm as to what the outcome will be?

Mr. Ferguson dealt with many other phases of the public situation, pointing out to the large audience the failure of the Government to live up to its premises; its hopeless incapacity in the several departments of administration, and the imminent danger of direct taxation in the near future, unless something was done to put a brake upon the irresponsible tyros who are at the head of affairs in Queen's Park.

Ulster Unconcerned

Belfast, July 23.—Ulster, at the moment, is not concerned with negotiations being carried on by the British Government with Sinn Fein, it is declared in Unionist quarters here. These negotiations, it is generally assumed by the public, deal with fiscal and financial questions. It is conceivable, political circles say, that in certain eventualities Ulster would become involved but that stage of the proceedings has not yet been reached.

Guard Baby's Health in The Summer

The summer months are the most dangerous to children. The complaints of that season, which are cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea and dysentry come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes he is ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly to banish them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during hot weather as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Woodstock, July 23.—John Calder, M.L.A. for North Oxford, died early this morning, following an accident sustained yesterday afternoon while assisting with haying on his farm. He sustained a fracture of the skull, a broken nose and other injuries. He was carried into the house in an unconscious condition. Three doctors were soon on hand but they could do nothing, and Mr. Calder died without regaining consciousness.

John Calder was born in East Missouri about 56 years ago and has lived there all his life. He is survived by his widow and four children.

Hamilton Ferns, Chairman of the Board of Assessors. Of the latter figures, just over $8,000,000 is Protestant, $700,000 Jewish, and the remainder Catholic. Dominion Provincial Government, city and harbor property accounts for $117,433,950. Exemptions under special by-laws and agreements amount to $14,000,000

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

Saskatoon, Sask., July 23.—The prescription hunters are growing less or else doctors in Saskatchewan are becoming very strict for the monthly report of the Saskatchewan Liquor Commission for June shows a falling off in the number of "permits" granted. The average number of prescriptions written during this time was 18, and only seven physicians wrote over 100. Eighty wrote less than 25.

The report also indicates that the supply of liquor on hand is not decreasing as rapidly as was expected owing to the fact that the export business to the United States has not reached the proportions that were considered possible.

Ten seizures were made during June and the number of convictions obtained for offences under the act was thirty with the fines totalling $5,000 compared with $1,965 in May.

Stewart was carried into court in a chair, owing to the wound in his leg.

EXPIRED IN HAY FIELD

Mr. Wm. Watt, a farmer at Highland Grove, North Hastings on Monday last, expired suddenly whilst working in his hay field. Heart trouble was the cause of death. Mrs. Watt predeceased him about three years ago, and a sister only a few weeks ago. A family of nine small children are left to mourn the loss.

DENTIST GOT THE GOLD

To lose a gold wrist watch in eighteen feet of water is not a very pleasant experience, and to recover the timepiece almost immediately was a very agreeable surprise. The incident happened at Twelve O'Clock Point, where a young lady in leaning over the rail of a steamer and gazing pensively into the dark blue depths of the Bay of Quinte, suddenly woke up to the humdrum by a splash and a flash and a wrist without its timepiece. Several volunteers began to dive for the watch, but the depth of the water made it difficult to locate. Arthur Blackburn, a splendid swimmer and diver, located the watch and restored it to the young lady, who was much pleased. Arthur Blackburn is the son of Mr. A. Blackburn, manager of Stroud's, and is a student at the Pennsylvania Dental College at Philadelphia.

Dressed chickens sold from $2.50 to $3 a pair according to size and quality, broilers at $1.25 and $1.50 a pair. Considerable fruit was on sale and disposed of. Red raspberries sold at 18c. per box, two for 35c., cherries 15c. a box and $1.00 for small baskets and $1.75 for large baskets, huckleberries 20c. a quart. THE WOMAN WHO SHOULD MARRY

"The slow progress of the world is all because there is not enough love in it, and there is not enough love in it because the real mothers haven't done all the mothering; and the real mothers haven't done all the mothering because always, in the past, marriage was the only honorable calling for a woman, and all women rushed into it. But life today offers many honorable callings—a calling for every gift. Then let me implore you, you women at the turning of the ways, in the interest of unborn humanity, of more love in the world, of peace on earth, unless the maternal instinct dominates you—unless you crave your own babies, crave a home, feel eager to begin feathering a nest with the softest, gentlest down of pure, high love—unless all this is paramount with you, stay out of marriage. Turn your steps toward science, to the laboratories, but keep your hands off this sacred human problem!

"Perhaps the maternal instinct dominates the majority of women. I do not know; I am no statician. But I do know there are enough who do not have it to botch the job, well-nigh to wreck the world. Then leave maternity—with self-respect and understanding. Leave it, turn from it, find your own high and honorable calling. But you who have the gift, oh, you most sacredly gifted among women, you first violins in God's great orchestra—accept the call of nature, find your mate, and do this greatest of all earthly work. Find in the knowledge that it is God's greatest work your unending staff and stay, your reason for being. The child puts you in the race, into the future; makes you of the long, unending stream. Then go up to God, its hand in yours!"—Anne Shannon Monroe in August Good Housekeeping.

Wonderful Views Near St. AndresW

Algonquin Hotel, N.B., July 22.—To day has been one of the most pleasing days this summer. The sun has been bright but the air has been deliciously cool. It does not seem possible that it can be so warm in the cities but the reports show temperatures of 79 for London, 82 in Ottawa, 90 in Toronto, 85 in Montreal, while in St. Andrews it is only sixty-nine. This has been a delightful day to climb Chamcook mountain after passing through the Avenue at Rossmount, the charming summer home of the Rev. H. P. Ross, the climber follows the winding paths through the woods until after a sharp scramble he emerges on the summit.

The view is superb, there is the glorious sweep over Passamaquoddy Bay, over Deer Island and Campobello across the Bay of Fundy to Grandmanan. If the day is specially clear Nova Scotia may be seen, looking westward there is the Saint Croix River showing distinctly, its cross made where Oak Bay and Waweig River meet. At the foot of the mountain nestle the Chamcook lakes from which the town water supply is derived. On three sides as a background are the blue hills rolling into misty distances.

BODY IS RECOVERED

Handcuffed Man Escaped From Police Officer

A young man named Howard whose home is in Frankford is again in trouble. For some time a warrant for his arrest on a serious charge alleged to have been committed at Marmora has been in the hands of the authorities. This morning Howard was placed under arrest at Marmora and was handcuffed. Whilst being taken to the lockup he made a get away and at last accounts was in a bush near the village. The authorities here were notified of the occurrence, with the result that Provincial County Officer Ward and Detective Truiasch made a hurried trip to Marmora to assist in the recapture of the fugitive.

ONE-MINUTE ESSAYS ON HEALTH BY DR. WM. P. REDICK

Recently B. C. Forbes compiled an array of facts proving conclusively that a man's greatest usefulness begins at age forty, and continues indefinitely beyond that age.

But life insurance statistics indicate that the majority of men die under forty. The reason lies in the uncertainty of health methods. Of all the methods now known, chiropractic, the youngest of them all, is most definite and scientific. It finds and removes the cause of disease. It is lengthening thousands of lives.

Chiropractic spinal adjustments remove the cause of disease in the head, throat, lungs, heart, stomach, liver, kidneys and other organs of the body.

jest like I thought it mought. The doctors up thar said his crim'nal acts all come from that old hurt in his head. After his death they made an examination. They found 'at a splinter o' the skull had been workin' into his brain all them years since his fall off'n the wagon. It finally formed a abscess that killed 'im. Oh, the doctors raised a big fuss about it! They 'old me yore pa had been treated wuss'n a dog. They said what he done in violation o' the law was caused by the hurt in his head an' that he'd never 'a' touched a thing that wasn't his but fer that, an' when I told 'em how honorable all yore pa's folks had always been away back as fur as anybody could trace an' how hard you was strivin' to live the disgrace down they all got together an' writ an' signed a paper—Mr. Hillyer's got it—testifyin' under oath that yore pa wasn't naturally a dishonest man. They say, George—an' Mr. Hillyer says he'll put it through right away—that they are a-goin' to git the legislature to exhonorate yore pa.

"Judge Moore was in the warehouse as I come by, talkin' to Mr. Hillyer, an' he come out an' tuck me by the hand, an' says he, 'Mrs. Buckley, me 'n' them twelve men made a awful mistake. An',' says he, 'ef a case like that had come up in a community whar doctors an' lawyers was up to the latest notch in new discoveries a plea of insanity would 'a' been made an' sustained. But,' says he, 'the twelve jurors will sign a paper with me, an' yore husband's name will be cleared.' Oh, George, it mighty nigh breaks my heart. I 'lowed all them years that yore pa was jest mean an' stubborn an' had old Nick in 'im, while the truth was he couldn't help hisse'f. It's goin' to be in all the newspapers tomorrow. Are you glad to hear it, George?"

"More than anything," was the reply in a low, husky tone.

"I hain't through yet," went on the old woman, wiping her eyes. "They all read Mr. Hillyer's letter to me about how you refused the combination to the safe, preferrin' to die ruther than give in, because you wanted to show the world you was honest, an' how you was shot down an' lay hoverin' betwixt this life an' the next, an' I never seed a set o' men more anxious to be kind to a woman in affliction. They got the idea we was needy, an' started in to collect a lot o' money, but I stopped 'em. I told 'em you wouldn't like that."

"No, I wouldn't," said George; "but I am glad they wanted to do it."

"When I got to yore pa he was too fur gone to know me," went on Mrs. Buckley. "I jest wish he had. I was so sorry fer him when I seed how thin an' wasted he was, with the prints on his pore ankles whar"—

She broke down and began to sob.

George Buckley sat up more erectly. "It's the way God, Providence or whatever it is that rules over all has of managing matters," he said, his eyes flashing rebelliously, "and, for my part, I'm tired trying to do right. What's the use? Why should that poor man fall from his wagon while honestly endeavoring to earn a living for his family, and through that accident end his life in a prison? That's his fate, while such men as Telfare"—

"Don't, don't, George!" The old woman dried her eyes. "It may all seem wrong, but it hain't—it hain't! My faith in my heavenly father is brighter 'an it ever was. I don't know exactly what it 'ud be fer, but I feel like drappin' on my knees an' thankin' 'im at this minute. My heart is full o' sadness of a certain sort, but thar's another feelin' that I can't describe. As I was comin' on in the train I got to imaginin' seein' yore pore pa up in heaven, whar I know he is, an' the fancy struck me that our Saviour helt the highest place up thar, beca'se he suffered the most to help others along, an' then the thought come that maybe up thar with the'r keen, spiritual eyes the angels had seed all the good that's growed out o' yore pa's sufferin', an' was givin' 'im credit fer his life down here. Thar's no tellin' what the good may be. Yore pa's trouble is at the bottom of all Mr. Hillyer's done fer you, all the kindness o' them men at the prison an' the sympathy that's floodin' this town right now, beca'se one man was so wrongly judged. Why, George, it may make the courts more careful in the future, it may make doctors study diseases better, an' it will make some folks ashamed fer—fer ever sneerin' at the brave son o' such a man. George, thar's one heart in this town that's flowin' over with joy—ef the news has reached her"—

"Do you think so, mother?"

"Oh, I know it, George—I know it! I'd give anything to see her face when it's told to 'er. She's led by them folks o' her'n to some extent, but below all that she's jest a good, strong, sufferin' woman."

George made no answer. They were both silent for several minutes, then Mrs. Buckley rose to leave. "I want to go out home," she said. "It will be sad, too, lookin' round the old place whar he used to be. Now he's gone, I don't seem to 'remember anything but the good, sweet things he used to do an' say before his affliction. He's buried up thar, George, but after he's vindicated, we'll bring him down here an' put 'im away whar he belongs."

CHAPTER XXXIV.

THE next morning at breakfast, while Hillyer sat sipping his coffee his wife stood near his chair.

"It's time I played my last card," she was saying. "I tell you thar's some mistake. I don't believe Lydia Cranston would let that pore boy lie upstairs an' suffer without one word from her at sech a time—a time when the whole town an' county is a-talkin' about his manliness an' bravery an' his daddy. That hain't

MEN ARE TIRESOME

Folkestone, July 22.—Every woman knows that men, "though interesting creatures, are tiresome, hard to control and are prone to seek their own way in spite of warnings, according to Mrs. H. A. L. Fisher, wife of the president of the British National Board of Education. She told an audience at the Royal Sanitary Institute Congress that most men become ill entirely through faults of their own and 'sowed seeds of trouble for themselves by eating too much, eating the wrong things, drinking too much, being lazy, keeping late hours or living in hermetically sealed rooms."

Economy Reduced Naval Estimate

Tokio, July 22.—The naval estimates calling for the expenditure of 500,000,000 yen (nominally about $250,000,000) for the fiscal year 1922-23 is smaller than it would have been if Admiral Baron Kato, Minister of Marine, had not insisted upon economy in the cost of maintenance, says the Nichi Nichi.

This estimate is about equal to the naval appropriations made for the current year.

It is hoped, by cutting down the cost of the navy's ordinary expenses, to leave available about 275,000,000 yen for continuing the program of constructing eight battleships and eight cruisers. This would be equal to the amount spent on construction this year.

The Minister of Marine apparently is determined that nothing shall interfere with the progress of the building program. The following principles of economy have been decided upon, according to the Nichi Nichi:

ECONOMY IN PERSONNEL.

First, there shall be economy in personnel. There are too many high ranking officers in the Japanese navy compared with the navies of other powers. Great Britain has 12 admirals and 22 vice-admirals, while Japan has 15 admirals and 26 vice-admirals. Britain has 120,000 men in service and Japan 80,000.

Maintenance costs are to be cut by reducing the number and size of the standing squadrons. Only one such squadron will be left. The Third Squadron will be reduced in size and placed on special duties. The remaining vessels are to be anchored as the fourth fleet, in reserve. The number of men on such vessels will be drastically reduced. Fuel consumption will be cut to the lowest possible figure.

The system of allowing men in service to return home before their term of service has expired will be greatly extended. In this way a considerable amount of food and clothing can be saved.

Obsolete vessels will be disposed of.

By exercising economy along these lines, the navy expects to cut down the ordinary expenditures to 150,000,000 yen. This would leave a margin for special expenses.

GREEK PRESS DEMANDS CAPTURE OF CAPITAL

London, July 23.—The Greeks, in taking Eski-Shehr Tuesday evening, captured Kiazim Kara Bekir, the Turk Nationalist commander in the city, and all his generals and other officers, says the Central News Athens correspondent to-day, quoting despatches from the fighting front

The Greek newspapers of all shades of opinion are demanding that the Greeks march on Constantinople, the correspondent asserts.

New Milestone Passed on Road to Irish Peace

LLOYD GEORGE WILLING TO GRANT FISCAL AUTONOMY TO NATION — WILL CONFER WITH LEADERS OF IRISH GROUPS—GEN. SMUTS ACTIVE, AND WILL RETURN TO IRELAND—OUTLOOK PROMISING.

LONDON, July 25.—The outstanding feature of the Governemnt's Irish peace proposals to Eamoon de Valera is a concession of fiscal autonomy, it is stated on high authority here.

The position of Ulster is amply secured.

General Jan C. Smuts, the South African Premier, is expected to leave for Ireland, probably Monday, to place his services at the disposal of both Eamonn de Valera and Sir James Craig, during their critical consideration of the Irish peace proposals made by Mr. Lloyd George.

This statement was made today in a quarter close to the South African statesman.

A POPULAR DIPLOMATIST.

In circles which are closely observing the developments of the Irish situation, much satisfaction is expressed at the prospect of General Smuts' re-entry into the negotiations in the manner indicated. This is particularly the case in view of the persistent reports that the British Prime Minister's offer submitted to Mr. de Valera Thursday, includes a plan for Dominion Home Rule for Ireland on the lines of the South African constitution. Concerning the workings of this form of government, General Smuts, it is pointed out, will be able to give information of the greatest value.

Perhaps even more important, in the view of many students of the situation, is Gen. Smuts' reputed influence as a mediator, due to his former position as one of the anti-British leaders in the South African war. This, it is held by these observers, has established a common bond between the Southern Irish leaders and General Smuts, which renders his advice more acceptable to them than that of almost any other outsider.

Before Premier Smuts' projected trip to Dublin it is expected Mr. de Valera will have submitted the British Prime Minister's proposals to the "Irish Republican Parliament," or, at least, have canvassed the situation with the Sinn Fein leaders.

Werner to be Released From Pen

Ottawa, July 25.—The government has ordered the release from Maritime penitentiary, Dorchester, N.B., of Werner Horne, the dynamiter, who tried to blow up the international bridge on the C.P.R. between Vanceboro, Maine, and McAdams, N.B., during the war, and who, on October 31, 1919, was sentenced to ten years on a charge of endangering life and property by damaging a railway bridge.

The Werner Horne case will be well remembered as it caused considerable of a sensation during the early war years. Horne was arrested in the United States and had spent the last six years in American and Canadian prisons.

Some time ago the penitentiary surgeons certified that the dynamiter was insane, and it was on their recommendation that the release was granted.

He must, however, be returned to his own country, Germany, immediately on his release, and the warden has been notified that Horne must not be released from penitentiary until arrangements are completed for his immediate deportation.

These arrangements are expected to be completed within a very short time now.

Persons Cross Border at Night

Warsaw, July 25.—Bolshevik soldiers guard the Russian border and only certain persons are given permission to leave the country, yet by bribery and other means, great numbers of persons are crossing into adjacent countries each night.

Polish government officials have estimated that about 50,000 have been entering Poland from Russia every month, despite efforts of the Polish authorities to keep them out. Only a very small percentage of these people carry the proper credentials from the Bolsheviki.

A recent arrival in Warsaw from Russia was Ralph Rimar, formerly an art student in Detroit and Charleston, W. Va., who left America, via Canada, early in January this year, with 700 other Russians. Rimar went to the United States eight years ago from a part of Russia which is now included within the Polish republic where his parents reside.

Rimar says that when he last saw the emigrants whom he had accompanied to Russia all had had enough of the Bolsheviki regime and wished that they were back in the states.

Rimar was in Russia three months, visiting Petrograd, Moscow, Kiev and other cities and towns. Conditions generally, he said, were gradually becoming worse, everywhere. He is eager to return to the United States but, without credentials, is unable to get a passport.

Rimar says he went to Russia, to satisfy his curiosity and for fun—but that he didn't have any pleasure at all, and that his curiosity is thoroughly satisfied. He was arrested five times, went without a square meal for 12 weeks and that if he is ever able to get back to the United States he will stay put there for all time.

Windsor Man Shot by a Burglar

FRANK GERARD, AGED 62, LIES IN DANGEROUS CONDITION AT HOTEL DIEU

Windsor, Ont., July 25.—With a bullet wound in his abdomen, Frank Gerard, aged 62, of 1034½ Wyandotte street, east, is in the Hotel Dieu in a dangerous condition, taken there at midnight, yesterday, half an hour after one of two bandits who raided his home shot him when he refused to give them money.

Gerard was found lying unconscious on a couch at his home by George Lesperance, and his son, Louis, who heard the shots and ran into the house to investigate. Gerard stated that the men had carried him to the couch after shooting him. They did not enter farther than the hallway when they raided the house. Gerard told the police, one of the men demanding money at the point of a gun. Gerard said that he told them that he had no money and tried to push them toward the front door. One of the men levelled his gun and fired a shot. This struck the wall and Gerard screamed. The bandit fired again, taking direct aim. This bullet struck Gerard in the abdomen and he fell in a heap on the floor.

They were fleeing from the house and jumping into an automobile bearing a Michigan license standing in front of the house when Lesperance and his son came along.

Will Release Irish Prisoners For Conference

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press, Limited

London, July 25.—If Mr. De Valera decides to summon the Dail Eireann, full attendance will be possible as the British Government will release members of that body who are still in prison, in accordance with the request of the Republican Leader, already made, says the Daily Mail. It is understood that those detained number between thirty and forty, while about ninety art at liberty.

The question of general amnesty in Ireland has been mooted but according to the Daily Mail, the Government regard this as not feasible for the present. It is proposed, however, the paper adds, soon to remove restriction on travel in Ireland in order to induce British and United States visitors to go there as before the war. Ireland is officially stated to be more peaceful and freer of crime than for many years.

PROSPECTS BRIGHTEN IN UNITED KINGDOM

London, July 23.—An indication of the improving industrial situation in Britain is furnished by the last weekly reports of the labor department of the board of trade, which shows that the number of unemployed was 100'000 less than during the previous week.

With the resumption of work by the miners, whose strike had a widespread effect upon industry and trade, the business outlook is becoming brighter, and it is hoped that the absorption of the unemployed will continue at an accelerated rate. Every effort is being made to regain the export coal trade which was lost during the miners strike.

Not to Arbitrate Wage Reductions

C. N. R.-G. T. R. MANAGEMENT REFUSE TO SUBMIT MATTER TO BOARD

Ottawa, July 25.—The management of the Canadian National and Grand Trunk Railways have refused to submit the question of wage reductions to a Board of Arbitration, according to a statement by A. R. Bosher, Grand President of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employes. Mr. Mosher is in Ottawa presiding over a conference of representatives of employes in the stationary trades. The workers claim that they are entitled to a Board of Arbitration under the Industrial Disputes Act.

Brotherhood officials claim that the failure of the railways to reply to the offer of the employes to conciliate raises a legal point. It is maintained that this action constitutes a lockout and renders the management liable to a fine of $1,000 a day until the matter is adjusted.

Missing Financier May be in Canada

LEFT $500,000 SHORTAGE AND THOUSANDS OF DEPOSITORS ARE RUINED

Detroit, Mich., July 25.—Search is being made in this city and in Windsor for Warren G. Spurgin, missing president of the Michigan Avenue Trust Company, of Chicago, who is alleged to have absconded, leaving a shortage of $500,000 in bank funds. Thousands of depositors are said to have been ruined.

It has been learned that Mrs. Spurgin and her daughter, Vivian, arrived in this city last Thursday in an automobile and took rooms at a private house, saying they "did not care for hotels." They left the following day and since then the trail has been lost. Pinkerton men who arrived to-day say a reward of $10,000 is offered for the apprehension of the missing bank manager.

Irish Peace Proposals Being Considered at Dublin

DE VALERA AND ASSOCIATES IN CONFERENCE—COUNTESS MARKIEVICZ RELEASED FROM PRISON AND TAKES PART IN PEACE PARLEY AS MINISTER OF LABOR IN REPUBLICAN CABINET — WAS SERVING TWO-YEARS SENTENCE.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

DUBLIN, July 25.—The Irish peace proposals made by Premier Lloyd George to Eamonn de Valera last week were taken up by the Republican leader and his Cabinet today. The Cabinet, which began its session during the forenoon, met at the Mansion House. Countess Markievicz, who was released from Mount Joy prison on Sunday, sat with the Cabinet and took part in the discussion over the proposed peace terms. The Countess, who was sentenced last December to two years imprisonment at hard labor on a charge of having conspired to organize seditious societies, was elected a member of the Southern Irish Parliament and Minister of Labor in the Republican Cabinet.

NO STATEMENT READY.

LONDON, July 25.—The statement with regard to the Irish peace negotiations, which it was hoped Mr. Lloyd George would make in the House of Commons today was not forthcoming, the Prime Minister saying in reply to questions that he hoped to be in a position to make a statement shortly. The Prime Minister's inability to make a statement was due to the fact that Eamonn de Valera and his colleagues were still considering them and have not indicated Sinn Fein's attitude toward the proposals.

Ford Engineers Scrap Big Plant $44,000,000

BUT CLAIM NEW TRANSMISSION LINE WILL SAVE HUGE SUM YEARLY

Detroit, July 23.—The first tower for the Ford Motor Company's 23,923,000 volt, 160,000 horse-power electrical transmission line which will take the place of the gigantic $3,000,000 power house at the Ford Highland Park plant was set this morning in the presence of Ford officials.

The new line will be operating in 90 days. It runs 14 miles from Highland Park to the huge new turbo generator plant at the river Rouge plant on the Detroit river.

Plans of Ford's engineers call for dismantling the almost new Highland Park plant and centering the power producing at the Rouge plant where 162,000 horse power will be developed, the new line distributing this for the other plants.

The present Highland Park factory consumes 60,000 horse power, all produced by ten great $200,000 gas steam engines in the power house there. These engines can be superseded by 27,000 horse power steam turbines at the Rouge plant. The ultimate deposit of the gas steam engines will probably be to the Ford branch factories as power equipment.

It is estimated by Ford engineers that even with the junking of the $44,000,000 equipment now at Highland Park, hundreds of thousands of dollars will be saved yearly by the centralization of power production. This saving will be effected by economy in transportation of coal, the Rouge plant having direct docking facilities for lake coal carriers while the Highland Park plant requires rail shipment.

The first line which will be in operation within 90 days according to F. Allison, chief electric engineer in charge of all Ford's power plants, will deliver 20,000 horsepower to Highland Park; this will result in shutting down three of the gas steam engines. Two more lines strung on the same towers will carry the additional power.

Charge Men With Lack of Chivalry

Montreal, July 25.—In a sudden violent gust of wind that broke over the St. Lawrence, the steamer St. Louis, one of the ferry boats making the service between Caughnawaga and Lachine, was blown onto a rock, where she grounded. About 150 passengers were on board at the time and these were taken ashore in two lifeboats carried by the steamer.

According to one of the passengers the men jumped into the lifeboats and left the women and children on board, the captain, it is alleged, saying he was powerless to prevent it. Later the boats returned and took off the rest of the passengers. The ship is not much damaged.

Switzerland Loses Tourists to Others

Geneva, Switzerland, July 25—Switzerland has reached the acute stage of economic stringency resulting from a too favorable rate of exchange. The tourist season, upon which she depends to such a great extent, opened with little prospect of an improvement in the situation.

Tourists who usually visit Switzerland during the summer, are going to French and Italian resorts.

The Swiss, themselves, to a considerable extent, are abandoning their own country to spend their outings in France where Swiss money counts for twice its value at home, or in Italy, where it counts five times the normal value.

The crisis shows not only in the absence of tourist trade but in industrial stagnation, a good many workers being already out of employment.

A few weeks ago it looked as if the delegations to the second Assembly of the League of Nations, September 5, would find difficulty in getting lodgings here, hotel keepers hesitating to reserve apartments for them because it would require them to refuse tourists at the height of the season.

It now appears that the hotels will welcome the League delegations unless there is an unexpectedly radical change in the travel situation.

NERVOUS FAINTING SPELLS

Mrs. Werner tells how they Yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Camden, N. J.—"Before my baby was born I was run down and weak, had pains in my back and stomach, was very nervous and would have fainting spells. I certainly suffered awfully with those nervous fainting spells. I did not know anyone at times and used to scream. A doctor treated me but did not seem to do much good. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt a change and could do my work without pain and was relieved of those nervous spells. Now I have a nice baby girl and had an easy time at birth, thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. WILLIAM C. WERNER, 1216 Van Hook St., Camden, N. J.

When a wife finds her energies are flagging, she is weak, nervous, suffers from backache, the "blues" she should build her system up at once by taking that standard woman's medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as did Mrs. Werner.

If there is anything about your condition you do not understand write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., about your health.

Girl Lays Claim to The Millions of Slave Trader

MISS SUZANNE SHABACH OF MILWAUKEE REVIVES ROMANCE OF LAST CENTURY

Milwaukee, July 23.—Miss Suzanne Shabach, who claims to be heiress to the millions of Stephen Girard, Philadelphia slave trader of the last century, proposes to hang on to her job as telephone operator at the Blatz Hotel here until she gets the money.

"I am not counting my chickens before they are hatched," Miss Shabach told the United Press.

"If I win I will have millions. It will be time enough then to plan on spending the money..

"Of course I like automobiles. No doubt I will buy one. But say, I'm not going to say a word until I get that money."

Frederick Groelle, attorney for Miss Shabach, left today for Philadelphia to lay formal claim to the Girard millions held in trust by the State.

The claim is vested principally in a court judgment granted Dominic Girard in 1853. His death immediately afterward prevented the pressing of the judgment. Girard's heirs, Miss Shabach said, allowed the estate to go unclaimed for three generations.

The estate is worth more than $20,000,000, according to the claimant.

Kingston, July 25.—The steamer City of Hamilton owned by the Canada Steamship Lines, which was stranded near Iroquois last week, was successfully floated by the Donnelly Salvage and Wrecking Company and was brought to the city in tow of the tug Bronson and immediately placed in the Collingwood dry dock. Over 400 tons of package freight was lightered from the stranded steamer by the Donnelly Company and about sixty tons remained in the Hamilton.

An accident to the tug, Mary P. Hall, which happened off Iroquois Point in the St. Lawrence caused her to sink and it is reported she lies in a fairly good position. No one was injured or endangered in the sinking.

Here, There and Everywhere

Expect a Break of Deadlock

Boston, July 25.—Track and field athletes of Harvard and Yale and Oxford and Cambridge, may break a deadlock in their international series when they clash at the Harvard Stadium.

The meet will be the fifth staged between the international rivals. Oxford and Cambridge won the first set of games held at the Queen's Club, Kensington, England, in 1899, five events to four, first places only counting. Harvard and Yale won the second meet, held at the famous Berkeley Oval in New York City, September 25, 1901. The score was six events to three. The Americans were victorious in 1904 when they defeated the English collegians at the Queen's Club, again by a score of six to three. In 1911, when the games were held for the third time at the Queen's Club grounds, Oxford and Cambridge evened the score by winning five to four.

Harvard and Yale teams lead in the number of points scored, 20 to 1, the Englishmen on both victorious occasions barely nosing out the wearers of the Crimson and the Blue, but the individual performances of the Britons in previous meets have surpassed those of the Americans, the records show. Harvard athletes have established series records for two events, the hurdles and the 100-yard dash and Yale only one, the high-jump, while Oxford has made the best marks in three events, the two-mile run, the hammer throw and the broad jump, and Cambridge leads in four events, the 440-yards run; the half mile, one mile and three-mile races. The three mile has been run only once in the series, in 1899, when Rev. H. W. Workman of Cambridge was the victor.

College track men have made fast strides since the last meet of the series in 1911 and new records may be expected to topple when assaulted by stars the calibre of Tom Compbell, Yale half-miler; B. D. G. Rudd, Oxford's great middle distance runner and E. D. Gourdin, Harvard's crack broad jumper.

OSHAWA WON FIRST HALF

Much interest was manifested in the Central Ontario Baseball League game on Saturday between Oshawa and Lindsay. Many admirers of the game in Belleville were anxious to see Lindsay win in order to make a three-cornered tie of the first half of the schedule; but Oshawa won out. A despatch from Oshawa gives the following account of the game:

Oshawa, July 24.—After playing two thirteen innings contests with Lindsay, Oshawa won the championship of the first half of the Central Ontario League schedule at Lindsay yesterday afternoon, by a score of 9 to 5. The first game on Wednesday last was called on account of darkness at the end of the thirteenth with a score of 6 to 6. The game was replayed yesterday and another thirteen innings battle resulted, but Oshawa scored four runs in this frame. Oshawa needed this game for first honors, while Lindsay needed it to create a three-cornered tie for first place.

PORT HOPE 6. COBOURG 5.

Port Hope, July 23.—In the first game of the second series of the Central Ontario League the Port Hope club, who occupied the cellar position in the first series, started off today with a well-deserved win over their lake shore rivals, Cobourg. It was a real battle from start to finish, with Pitcher Deer of Port Hope showing great form. Cobourg opened the run-getting in the third, but the locals evened it up in their half. Cobourg got one in the fourth, but Port Hope opened a swatting bee in the sixth and got three across the plate before the Cobourg pitcher was pulled out. In the seventh they added another tally, and the score read 5 to 2, when it looked as if the home team had won the game. Higginbotham started the fireworks in the eighth, and when the smoke cleared away the game was all tied up. Port Hope got across the winning run in the ninth, the final score being 6 to 5, and thus Port Hope registered their second win of the year. The Port Hope line-up has been considerably changed, and they will make a better showing in the new series.

FAREWELL TO REV. S. A. KEMP

Delightful Social Evening Spent by Members of Epworth League and W. M. S.

On Monday evening, prior to the departure of Rev. S. A. Kemp and family from Foxboro to their new charge at Warkworth, the Epworth League and Women's Missionary Society met together for a social evening. At the close of the program Mr. Kemp was asked by the League president to come to the front, where Miss Gladys Stewart read a short address, assuring Mr. Kemp of the League's appreciation of his tireless efforts in their behalf throughout his pastorate and asking him to accept a set of military brushes from the young people, which were presented to him by Miss Fern Morton.

At this stage of the program Mrs. McFarlane, W.M.S., organizer, of Belleville district, took the chair, and Mrs. Kemp was presented with an address and a bouquet of roses by Mrs. Everett Sills, on behalf of the W.M.S.

Although both Mr. and Mrs. Kemp were taken by surprise they thanked the organization most kindly.

On the afternoon of June 29 the Boy Scout Association of Foxboro held a picnic on the Public School grounds. A full program of sports was run off and splendid prizes were donated to the contestants. Ice cream was sold throughout the afternoon and the entire affair was an unqualified success, except that the boys were saddened by the fact that their Scoutmaster, in the person of Rev. S. A. Kemp, was with them for the last time in his official capacity. The scouts feel keenly Mr. Kemp's going, and, young as they are, realize that his place will be hard to fill. At the close of the sports, tables were laid in the church shed and supper was served to the Boy Scouts and their friends.

Before going to tea, Mr. Kemp and his family were asked to come forward and Mr. Wesley Henderson, in a few well-chosen words expressed to Mr. and Mrs. Kemp the kindly feelings that the Scouts and all who are interested in them and their work, feel toward them. Their efforts have been unceasing. The field day on May 24, which made a gymnasium possible, was due to their combined efforts, and to show in some tangible way that they appreciated their kindness, the boys presented to Mr. Kemp a handsome gasoline reading lamp, to Mrs. Kemp a leather purse, and to each of the boys, who will be missed greatly by their little friends, a water bottle for their scout outfit.

Although affected by the thoughtfulness of his boys, as he designates them, Mr. Kemp thanked them in such a manner that there could be no doubt of the sincerity of his appreciation.

Habit

People form the habit of buying goods by the branded or trade mark name, because of the continuous publicity given to this name or trade mark in daily newspaper advertising.

What daily newspaper advertising has done to sell other goods, it will do to sell your goods—if you advertise judiciously and consistently.

HOPE HAMPTON, TEXAS' MOST LOVELY WOMAN

The endless search for feminine beauty by Motion Picture Producers has brought a new star into the Screen World in the person of Hope Hampton a Young Woman who won a reputation while still in private life as Texas' most beautiful woman. She is now at the head of her own Company and has just completed her initial photoplay as a Star in "A Modern Salome" which is the feature attraction at Griffin's to-night to Wednesday.

Miss Hampton was born in the Lone Star State and later went to the finishing school conducted by Sophie Newcomb in New Orleans. Upon graduation she returned to Dallas where her family occupy a prominent business and social position.

A friend sent her Photo to a Newspaper beauty contest in which she won the first prize and immediately she was asked to enter upon a stage career.

Other quality photoplays will be shown consisting of a Screen Snapshots giving a peep into the professional and private life of famous screen stars, a two-reel comedy "Pleasure Seekers" and the latest chapter of the great mystery play "Velvet Fingers" which will complete an exhibition of quality and quantity photoplays.

TORONTO MAN ELECTED ON GENERAL PURPOSES BOARD

Ottawa, July 23.—In connection with the Masonic Grand Lodge elections here yesterday, of the Toronto men nominated, only one was elected, in an actual contest. He was A. J. Anderson, a candidate for the board of general purposes. The four others sent to the board by ballot were: R. F. Richardson, of Strathroy; Alexander Cowan, of Barrie; J. Fred Reid, of Windsor; and Thos. Shanks of Ottawa, Grand Master Ponton appointed the five: Geo Moore, of Hamilton; George H. Smith and Edward B. Brown, of Toronto; J. B. Way, of the Soo, and George S. May, of Ottawa.

Most Worshipful Brother W. N. Ponton is not only grand master of the blue lodge, but he is acting grand Z. of the chapter, owing to the death of Dr. Griffin, of Hamilton.

This dual role is said to be unique in Masonry.

City Foreman's Troubles Ended

Toronto Man Says He's Brimful Of New Life And Energy Since Taking Tanlac

"What it takes to build a man up and make him feel like living, Tanlac certainly has it," said William Oke, of 216 Margueretta St., Toronto, Ont., well-known city foreman of the Bridge Dept., City of Toronto.

"For nine years I suffered so much pain and nausea from the gas on my stomach that I actually dreaded to eat. These attacks came more by spells and were not of long duration, but while they lasted the pain certainly was terrible. Mornings I was as tired as when I retired the night before and I just felt sluggish and run down nearly all the time.

'But Tanlac helped me from the very start and I actually feel like a different man now. My appetite is ravenous and my digestion was never better. That tired feeling is gone and I am just brimful of new life and energy. Tanlac certainly built me up in fine shape and I am glad of the opportunity to recommend it."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville at Ostrom's Drug Store, and by the leading druggists everywhere.

RECKLESS DRIVING MUST BE CURBED.

The alarming increase in motor car accidents shows that carelessness is on the increase. Reckless drivers not only endanger their own lives and property, but are a menace to motorists who are careful, take no chances, and obey all the regulations. New legislation and increased penalties do not seem to lessen the avoidable accidents causing death and injury to occupants of motor cars, but one of the eastern states seems to have solved the problem by enacting that all motor car drivers must obtain a license, and when an infraction of the motor laws is proved the license is cancelled and that driver prohibited from driving a car again. This act is giving more satisfaction than any yet framed to make the highways safe for sane drivers and the Ontario authorities should give careful consideration to the suggestion that a similar law be enacted here.

Protection of life and property is the first consideration of any government and drastic means must be devised at once to curb the reckless driver who is willing to take all kinds of chances with his own life and seemingly cares little for the lives of others.

NO REAL IMMUNITY FOR HIP POCKET BOTTLES.

The recent announcement that police officers have no right to search people's pockets for liquor has been given such prominence by the metropolitan press as to appear to carry more importance than warranted by the facts. People who have the hip pocket "hooch" habit can not take much comfort from the announcement, for, according to the regulations, officers of the law can search people whom they have reason to suspect are carrying liquor on their persons, and the officers have many sources of information to give them reason to suspect that the law is being violated, and it is not at all likely that they will relax their vigilance in the slightest degree. If a bottle of liquor is found upon a person that justifies the search and the result is a stiff fine at least.

The best and safest plan is to observe the law, for it is very evident that the Ontario authorities are determined to enforce the provisions of the O.T.A. with even greater severity now that importation of liquor and short-circuiting is illegal. Whether the law suits us or not, it is the law of the land and endorsed by a majority of the citizens voting at two referendums, so there should be no other course open to good citizens but to obey the law as it stands.

If the O..TA. is found defective or too drastic after a fair trial, public sentiment will force the required amendments, but in the meantime, as good citizens, all should respect the law and it will not be the part of wisdom for anybody to try and evade it, for there is every indication that the law machinery of the Ontario Government is being keyed up to a stringent enforcement of the O.T.A. without fear or favor, with no favors to anyone, high or low.

DRINK MORE MILK AND LIVE LONGER.

The Farmers' Sun believes in cultivating home industry. In a recent article it advocates the drinking of more milk on the farm. Here is what it says:

"Farmers should set a good example to city people in the matter of milk consumption. As a class farmers do not use enough milk, butter and cheese—the best foods in the world.

"Some time ago a survey was made in connection with the rural schools of Wisconsin in order to learn just how many children drank milk. Out of 1,613 children questioned, it was found that 680 drank tea and coffee regularly, averaging a cup and a half a day; 268 drank no milk at all; 365 drank milk occasionally, while only 980 drank milk regularly, and they averaged about two cups each per day. There were 241 who used no butter at all.

"Conditions in rural Ontario may not be as bad as in rural Wisconsin, but the fact remains that our farm children drink too little milk. There is no food for growing children, or for adults either, and with milk as cheap as it is, children should be given all they can drink. Butter and cheese and ice cream also possess the highest possible food value.

"There is a considerable amount of butter substitutes used in this country. If they would use more milk and milk products it would not only improve their own health and that of their children, but would furnish an example to city people, who, seeing the benefits derived from an increased consumption of milk, would adopt a similar policy and thus create a bigger demand for dairy products. 'Drink more milk' is a good slogan for the rural people to adopt."

CRISP COMMENT

The United States tariff wall mounts higher and higher. Broken bottles and barbed wire guard the top. All right, neighbor, grow ivy on the darned thing for all we care. Made-in-Canada is our policy.

If it be held by the courts that the Canada Grain Act was not within the competence of the Dominion Government to pass, the result will be that national control of the grain trade will be lost. This is a contingency greatly to be feared, but apparently the politicians in control of the Grain Grower groups are prepared to go even that length in their efforts. Obviously if the Provinces only, and not the Dominion, can legislate to regulate the grain trade, there would be no central control and no assurance of uniform laws. An exceedingly big question is thus raised by the legal controversy which may be fraught with grave danger to the interests of the farmer in Western Canada and to the country as a whole.

The tillers of the soil in the province of Quebec sell ninety per cent. of their products to the people of the towns and cities of the province. The prosperity of these town and city people is dependent upon protection to the industries from which they get their livelihood. Remove that protection and you destroy that prosperity. Is it believable, therefore, that the farmers of Quebec will cut off their nose to spite their face?

The tariff bill which has just passed the Congress at Washington, is frankly a tariff for high protection. The title of the bill proclaims it to be for the purpose of encouraging American industries. Honorable Joseph Fordney, the Republican leader who originated the Fordney Emergency Tariff Bill, declares himself in favor of bringing into the United States from the outside nothing that can be produced in that country. The duty upon German dyes is increased 280 per cent, and the tariff commission is empowered to embargo altogether the importation of those dyes which can be produced in the United States.

Premier Meighen blazed the way which President Harding followed in dealing with the vast and intricate question of the safety of the Pacific. At the opening of the Imperial Conference Mr. Meighen was almost alone in advocating a conference between the British Empire, the United States and Japan to bring about better relations and guarantee a permanent peace. He saw in this a way out of the difficulty which confronted the Empire. Naturally, anxious to preserve friendship with Japan without arousing distrust in the United States. His proposal was condemned by the Liberal press of Canada as academic and they will now proceed to praise President Harding instead of Premier Meighen for a statesman-like solution to the greatest problem presented to the Imperial Conference. The propositions laid down by Mr. Meighen in his opening speech at the Imperial Conference are the propositions now laid down by David Lloyd George and enthusiastically acclaimed by the British Parliament.

ANOTHER CRANK BREAKS LOOSE

Hartford Courant

The crank we have always with us. In the general upset from the war, cranks have increased either in number or in activity. One has recently broken loose at Chicago. He is offering $1,000 to anybody who will send him one good reason "why the revolver manufacturing industry should be allowed to exist in America and enjoy the facilities of the mails." Presumably the man is a "pacifist" and, now that the war is over between nations, he would make war impossible between individuals. Of course, his proposed legislation would have no such effect. The revolver saves a hundred times as many lives as are lost by its misuse. Killing, when men or women plan to do it, is not dependent on the revolver. The stiletto, the razor, the pocketknife, the axe, the hatchet, the shotgun, the match, poison and dozens of other means are open to the would-be murderer. On the other hand, the fact that the pistol is supposed to be, or known to be, in a home prevents the incursion of burglars nobody knows how often, for berglars do not publish their plans. Just as a social question the abolition of pistols would make us all less safe than we are to-day.

A BLOW TO HUMAN JUSTICE

London Daily News

It is reported that considerable feeling has been aroused in Germany by the indignant criticisms which have appeared in the British Press on the result of the Leipsic trials. In certain quarters in this country some sympathy has been extended to these German protests. It seems desirable, therefore, to state bluntly and plainly what we conceive to be the ground, and the just ground, of the ordinary Englishman's anger when he reads these sentences. There was a case—in our opinion a strong case—for not trying these criminals at all; for saying that crimes so monstrous committed under circumstances so exceptional were outside the pale of merely human jurisdiction. But the fact that they were brought to trial, wisely or unwisely, implied that the circumstances were not to be held as overriding the crimes; and that these outrages were thought to be legitimate subjects for the application of human law. That being so, the infliction of these nominal sentences in a public proclamation that the law does not regard what these men did a very serious offences. That is a disastrous blow at the credit of human justice. We are told that German law allowed no heavier punishment. So much the worse for German law, and for the lawyers in this or any country who seek to defend it.

The Poets' Corner

THE OLD QUADRILLES

Far, far away in the Ozark Hills,
The young folks dance the Old quadrilles.
Overalls and shirts of blue,
Cowhide boots and jumpers, too,
Their swaying bodies all keeping time
To the fiddler's tune and caller's rime.

"First couple out, and lead to the right,
Follow the girl with the eyes so bright
You all jump up and never come down,
The holler of your foot makes a hole in the ground.
Balance all,
Around the hall."

Laughing Janie, her eyes full of joy,
Shyly watches the fiddler boy,
Playing as he never played before,
For her to dance on the puncheon floor.

"Chase that 'possum, chase that squirrel,
Follow that pretty girl 'round the world,
Chase that rabbit, chase that coon,
Follow your honey 'round the moon."

The lanterns flicker, and morning gray,
Brings another long working day;
There are cows to milk and plows to guide,
Down the old trail-ways, side by side.
The dancers flit, their laughing calls
Echoing through the forest halls.
Over the hills to her mountain home
Pretty Janie follows alone,
Through the glade and down the swale,
Past the church and in the vale,
By the cool swift brook, where willows meet,
Pausing to lave her weary feet.
Over her shoulder her best shoes swing,
Softly, the mocking bird hears her sing:

"Chase that rabbit, chase that coon,
Follow your honey 'round the moon."

The birds are singing of love and joy,
As down the trail the fiddler boy
Leaps the brook and over the rocks,
He follows on, and never stops,
Until he comes to the pasture gate,
Where happiness and Janie wait,
As he gaily speeds along
He hums the caller's careless song:

"Chase that 'possum, chase that squirrel,
Follow that pretty girl 'round the world."

ORIENTALS COMING UP AHEAD

Victoria, B.C., July 22.—That Orientals are getting an increasingly firm grip on British Columbia's produce trade is indicated by figures compiled by the provincial department of agriculture, which have just been made public. More than fifty-five per cent. of the potatoes produced in the province are now grown by Chinese.

Most green-houses around Victoria district are now controlled by Chinese, according to the report. In the Victoria district Chinese have 193,570 square feet under glass and produce large quantities of early tomatoes, lettuce, other produce and flowers. In Vancouver ninety per cent. of the produce supplied to the markets is produced by Chinese.

In the famous Ashcroft and Lillooet districts, Chinese now own 2,500 acres and lease 1,905 acres more, the report shows. Their holdings in these districts are in blocks, running as high as 640 acres. Recently more sales of land have been made direct from the white farmer who finds he cannot make production pay, to the Oriental.

Officials of the department of agriculture are now investigating records to find out just how land is acquired by the Japanese. Two Japanese in one district were interrogated, says the report, and explained that in acquiring land the system was for the Japanese purchaser to make a selection, and when the purchase was approved by the Japanese consul the price was paid by that official. Of the 4,500 acres of small fruit in British Columbia, 2,341 acres are controlled by Japanese.

"THROUGH WITH THEM ALL," SAYS MONAGENARIAN

Chicago, July 23.—Ambrose J. Reid, 91 years of old, granted a decree of divorce from his third wife, asserted today that "women were getting worse with every generation."

"My first wife was pretty good," he said, "my second was just medium and the third no good at all." He asserted he is through with them all.

Health turns the Clock Backward

The Brown Victim of Malarial Fever

MONDAY HEALTH TALK No. 37
By WM. P. REDICK, D.C. Ph. C.

The skin has a dark tinge in malarial fever. It is the disease commonly known as "chills and fever." The victim has a feeling of uneasiness and then a shaking chill. The teeth chatter. The skin is cold, but internally there is fever, which soon becomes manifest. The temperature rises, and the skin now becomes excessively hot.

The cause is interference with nerve impulses to the stomach and kidneys. The stomach becomes heated and digestion is disordered. The bowels are constitpated, and urine is highly colored. Chiropractic spinal adjustments restoring normal action of the stomach, bowels, and kidneys, enables the system to throw off the poisons. The languor, headache and dullness disappear. Adjustments remove the cause. Malarial victims find the annual attack the next year fails to appear.

HAD MALARIAL FEVER ANNUALLY

"Every year for three years I had Malarial fever. I was nervous, constipated, and had a weakness in the knees which caused them to give down without warning. In the last attack of malarial chiropractic broke the fever in ten days. I have had no return of the symptoms since."—Katherine Fisher, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 1080.

HEALTH BEGINS

When your health begins depends on when you telephone 900 for an appointment.

Nine Reasons Why Spinal Neglect is a crime

1. The backbone is the foundation of the body.
2. It is composed of 26 joints, 24 of which are movable.
3. From between these joints radiate the nerves of the body.
4. When these joints are in alignment the nerve openings are full sizes and the nerves deliver 100% of their power.
5. A nerve under pressure at the backbone opening causes disease in the part it serves.
6. Chiropractic removes the pressure by an adjustment by hand, and this adjustment opens the way for health (free nerve energy).
7. If chiropractic seems too simple to do all that it can do, remember that every phenomena of growth is caused by as simple a thing as heat.
8. To neglect the backbone invites disease, which is a crime because it is in violation of Nature's laws.
9. Don't be a criminal.

A jury of architects will decide on the plans and specifications during the Centenary celebration which is to be held next September and work will start immediately.

STILL AT LARGE

The young man Howard of Frankford who was arrested at Marmora village on Saturday and escaped after being handcuffed is still at large. Since his escape a number of County Constables and citizens about Marmora have made a search for the fugitive, but he has thus far eluded them. When he escaped he ran into the large swamp which is located near Marmora. The authorities learned that Howard had succeeded in freeing himself of the handcuffs and that a party answering his description was on Sunday provided with provisions at a farm house situated on the outskirts of the swamp. It is confidently expected that he will be recaptured.

JOY RIDERS AT PORT HOPE

The taking of cars for joy rides has evidently struck Port Hope, as two were last week taken for this purpose and later found abandoned on the road side. On Tuesday night Rev. Mr. Tippett's car was taken and on Friday night Mr. George McCague's car. From the amount of gasoline consumed the latter car was evidently driven about fifty miles, after which it was abandoned on the Cranberry road. The party evidently was out for a good time as peanuts and candy were found scattered all over the seats of the car. No damage was done to the automobile but a number of the tools were stolen.

AUTO DAMAGED BY FIRE

About 10 o'clock Sunday night the fire brigade was called to the rear of the City Hotel, west side of Front St. to extinguish an blaze which had originated in an auto the property of Mr Harold Mitchell, Front of Thurlow, Fortunately the car was saved, but was damaged to some extent, the cushions being burned and the wood scorched. How the blaze started is not known. Mr Mitchell had no insurance upon the car.

Boys Work Secretary was in town attending to details and is wearing a rubber on his right foot instead of a boot. He bruised his foot in his hurry to have a good time and as it has festered he is having a little trouble. The boys were conveyed to Madoc in motor cars furnished by members of the Rotary Club, Bob Wray being master of transportation.

STRUCK BY TRAIN

When approaching Cornwall from the east at 6.30 o'clock Thursday evening, Engineer Charles K. Pettigrew, of Brockville, driving engine No. 25 (The Mocassin) noticed a man walking east on the north side of the westbound track. As the engine approached him he stepped foul of the westbound track apparently in an effort to walk on the cattle guards at the crossing, the first east of Cornwall. Although the bell at the crossing was ringing and Engineer Pettigrew sounded the whistle, the man, who turned out to be James Burns, of Cornwall, was struck by the buffer of the engine and knocked down. When members of the train crew reached hiim, he was found to be suffering from a severe scalp wound and injuries to the right arm. He was put on board the train and at Cornwall was left in charge of a physician, who ordered his removal to a hospital.

TO BE REINSTATED

On reconsideration of their cases, it is understood that the Grand Trunk is arranging to reinstate four employees of the transportation department at Brockville who were removed from duty last autumn because of being incapacitated through injuries received in railway accidents. One of the men has been ordered to report for duty, and the rest, it is said, will undergo a further medical examination at Montreal. The men are employed as switchmen, crossing watchmen and the like. At the time of their withdrawal from service, it was stated that such action was necessary through the provisions of the workmen's compensation law. Several scores of men similarly situated were released at that time on the different Ontario lines, but it is not known whether the reinstatement will apply to these lines generally.

LARGE HAIL STONES

Marmora village and vicinity was on Sunday afternoon visited by a rather severe electric storm, which was accompanied by a heavy wind. Hail stones of considerable size fell during the progress of the storm. A resident of the city who witnessed the storm stated that hail stones as large as walnuts were picked up. Some parties who were on Crowe Lake at the time had a rather exciting time in making a place of shelter.

LOSES TAX CASE

Ottawa, July 23.—The action of the attorney-general against Peter Karson, candy merchant, to recover the 10 per cent. manufacturers' tax on the candies made by him, as well as the sales tax for the same candies when sold across the counter, was dismissed, with costs, by Judge Gunn in a judgment handed down to-day.

Judge Gunn holds that the section governing the 10 per cent. manufacturer's tax is by its wording limited to goods imported or, at all events, goods which have a duty-paid value, and that, as the defendant's goods did not come under this heading, no manufacturer's tax was payable.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

The newest aid to Scouting is the Ladies Auxillary which can be organized in connection with every Troop of Boy Scouts. The 51 S T Toronto Troop has a splendid orgnnization of Ladies behind them, which certainly is a credit to them Now, Ladies of Belleville, the Gentlemen of Belleville don't back up the Boy Scout Movement, now is your chance to line up behind the Boy Scouts and help carry out the Scout program which will make Belleville boys better citizens. It is said by other Scouts in Ontario that the Belleville boys are a fine lot, but they lack public support. Now look at Brockville. The Rotary Club there has taken over the Boy Scout Program in that city and is putting the Brockville Scouts on the map. There are just two men in Belleville who do any work for the Boy Scouts and they are Mr. W. H. Finkle Scoutmaster and Mr. Charles Hayes assistant Scoutmaster, Bing as the boys call him is really the founder of Scouting in Belleville, starting at the bottom and working his way up to assistant Scoutmaster. His position is by no means a pleasant one as he has lost several jobs in the city in trying to help the Boy Scouts of Belleville But he says he is doing his duty. Nearly 200 Belleville boys have been in his troop, most of the boys when they get in High School are forced to leave the troop but remember the Scout training.

P. L. Chas Harris passed exams for 1st Class Scout, Scout Clarence Rigby passed 1st Class tests and is now a Kings Scout, T. L. Bert Wells holds 18 badges and is awarded Grade C. Gold Cord. P. L. Ray Buskard holds 12 badges and is awarded Grade B.

The following badges were passed this week: Rescuers Ray Buskard, Bert Wells. Campers, Ray Buskard. Marksman, Fred Stirland Engineers, Clarence Rigby, Cyclists, Clarence Rigby, Handymans Clarence Rigby. Good work boys.

About 20 Scouts will go under canvas this week at Camp Community in charge of the A.S.M.

like a woman one bit. Not one woman in ten thousand would stay quiet at such a time without some strong reason."

"Well, what are you goin' to do about it?" the merchant asked.

"Do? Why, I've got my case all in hand, as Mr. Trabue would 'a' said. The evidence is all in, an' it will have weight when I sum it up. I'm simply a-goin' to them weevil eaten aristocrats an' have it out with 'em, one way or t'other."

"You say you are?"

"Yes, I am. I know human natur', an' I'm not afeard to risk my judgment. I'm a-goin' to take that letter George writ to you the night he was shot—oh, yes, I am; you needn't raise a kick about that. It is admitted as evidence, an' strong evidence at that. Then I'm a-goin' to tell 'em what me 'n' you have agreed on. That is my trump card. It'll knock out anything they hold; now you see ef it don't. I'm goin' to give them a-talkin' to that they won't forget soon, an' I'll do it right, too, fer I don't expect to tell anything but the truth. Ef Lydia Cranston has engaged 'erself to that stuck up bump on a rotten log, she'll have the satisfaction o' knowin' that thar's one woman in the land that knows whar she's driv 'er ducks."

Hillyer rose, with a smile. "Well, maybe you kin sorter bring 'em to the'r senses, an' I say go it. I lost control o' myself t'other day an' give the old major a piece o' my mind, an' he mought as well git t'other half from you. I wish you luck. Ef you fail, it will be about the fust time you've missed fire since I've knowed you. I reckon it won't kill 'im. Mrs. Dugan says the New York doctor found 'im as sound as a dollar."

About 10 o'clock Mrs. Hillyer went down to Cranstons'. She was attired in her best black silk gown and flowered bonnet, and she walked with a firm, decided tread. She was invited by the maidservant at the door into the sitting room, where Cranston sat before an open window, looking out into the balmy spring sunshine. His wife was near him, and Lydia had just come in with a glass of claret punch and stood stirring it at his side. They all greeted her pleasantly, and Lydia seemed somewhat surprised at the unexpected visit, for it occurred to her quick powers of observation that, while George Buckley lay ill at the Hillyers' and right upon the news of his father's death and public exoneration, a call from Mrs. Hillyer was, to say the least, extraordinary. So Lydia's face became rigidly expectant as she seated herself and endeavored to participate calmly in the platitudes that her mother, with her usual tact, managed to set going.

"I was powerful glad to hear," said Mrs. Hillyer to the major, "that the New York specialist made a favorable report on yore case."

"Yes; he took quite a load of worry off my mind, thank you, madam." The major always addressed ladies as "madam" whom he did not specially like. It was a way he had of leaving the impression that he might or might not remember their names. In the same way he frequently greeted certain men whom he considered beneath him socially with a vague "How do you do, sir?" However, his formality of speech today had little effect on the visitor. If he had called her by her given name, without a prefix, she would not have spoken what was on her mind any sooner.

"Thar's no use beatin' the devil around a bush, folkses," she began lightly. "I've come here this mornin' to do my duty as I see it, an' I hain't a-goin' to waste time. The good book says do unto others as you'd have them do unto you, an' ef I was actin' as wrong as you uns are I'd want folks to tell me of it. I'd want 'em to telegraph ef they couldn't git to me right away."

The Cranstons were all staring fixedly. The warm color was rising in Lydia's face.

"Why, what's wrong, madam?" asked the major in astonishment.

"It's all about yore daughter here an' George Buckley," Mrs. Hillyer blurted out with firmness. "Them two hain't bein' treated right. It may seem like I'm takin' a lots fer granted in includin' her, but she don't look to me like a fool, an' any woman would be a fool to be adored by a man like she is by George Buckley an' not want to treat 'im with common decency."

Lydia started to speak as she drew herself up more erectly, but her father prevented it.

"I trust you will pardon me, madam," he said, "for frankly saying that the subject isn't agreeable to us."

"Oh, yo're excusable," said the caller. "I wouldn't hold that agin you, but it won't hurt you to git down to rock bottom facts. I believe yo're tryin' to keep yore pure hearted daughter from doin' what's right, an' to persuade 'er to do what she'll regret. Thar hain't but one man on the topside o' God's green globe today that she ort to marry, an' that man is George Buckley. An' what have you got agin him now, I'd like to know? After seein' all that pitiful account in the papers of the wrong done his old father, you cayn't shake that in the pore, wounded boy's face. You cayn't say he's a coward, as they say about the lordly governor o' this state. You cayn't say he's a bankrupt an' a spendthrift, like they say about Telfare. Nur you cayn't accuse George Buckley o' resortin' to low political tricks to advance his interests, an'"—

"Madam," the major broke in, raising his thin hand protestingly, "I must beg you"—

"Don't beg me, Major Cranston," hurried on the woman, her eyes flashing, her bosom heaving excitedly, as she leaned forward, her elbows on her knees. "I've come here to talk, an' I will be heard. I want Lydia to hear more than I do you, fer I believe she'll act. She's been blinded, that gal has, or she's a unnatural woman, one or t'other, fer no woman made on the right plan would let things go jest like they are a-goin' an' never cheep a word agin it. Lydia Cranston"—she turned to the staring, wondering girl—"did you hear about a certain letter George Buckley wrote my husband jest before he thought he was goin' to be shot by them robbers?"

"I heard he wrote something, some instructions to Mr. Hillyer," replied the girl in an unsteady voice, "something about what the men had demanded, but that's all father told me. I haven't been out of the house since we got back from Atlanta."

"Well, le' me tell you some'n'," went on Mrs. Hillyer. "Thar hain't a woman today in all America—an' I'm no exception—that knows, actually knows, she's loved enough by a man to be in his last thoughts when he's expectin' every second to meet a horrible death. I've got that letter in my hand. I did intend to read it to you, but I won't, fer it's too sacred. But I'll tell you that the pore boy was bothered by jest one thought in that awful moment, an' that was that the woman he loved an' wanted to care fer was to be left to marry a worthless man. He begged Mr. Hillyer to ax 'er not to do it. Ef George had 'a' died that ud 'a' been his message from the grave. 'I wonder if'—

Lydia Cranston had risen to her feet and stood bending toward the impassioned speaker, her great, beautiful eyes distended.

"Did—did he write that, Mrs. Hillyer?" she cried. "Oh, did he?"

"Not only that," replied Mrs. Hillyer, "but he has laid thar in my house ever since, pinin' fer a word, a message, a line from the woman he loved, but not a thing come. I got to lookin' fer it, too, fer I 'lowed I'd made no mistake in sizin' the woman up, an' t'other day, when a big bunch o' roses come fer 'im with a note, I actually run up to his room with 'em, I was so glad. I knowed whar they growed, an', like a fool, I told 'im they was from the right source. His pore, pale face flushed all over. But when he opened the note it was from somebody else. His lip jest sagged down an' jerked as he tol' me I was mistaken in the pusson that had sent them. My Lord! I was hoppin' mad then! Say, what are you uns, anyway, that you kin hold yoreselves aloof from sech a man at sech a time? Even ef you did intend to balk the marriage you could 'a' treated 'im like a human bein', stricken in upholdin' his honor an' protectin' the rights o' other people."

"Thar hain't but one man that she ort to marry."

"Mrs. Hillyer"—Lydia drew herself up to her full height, her startled eyes bearing down on the caller—"do you mean to say that George Buckley has not had a letter from me since he was wounded?"

"I certainly do, Miss Lydia."

Then the girl turned to Mrs. Cranston, taking a step toward her in her eagerness. "Mother," she said fiercely, "you took my letters away from Jane. I saw you talking to her."

"Why, daughter, I"—

"Did you do it?" the girl demanded sharply. "Did you?"

Mrs. Cranston hesitated and then said falteringly, her eyes on the carpet:

ODD SITUATION

Warsaw, July 23.—Russia's transportation difficulties, because of the general deterioration of the railroads under the Bolshevik regime, according to Moscow reports, have brought about an odd situation. While southern Russia has a surplus of corn and has been endeavoring to export it to Italy, northern Russia has been buying the same kind of grain from foreign countries.

The railroad situation is said to be particularly bad in central Russia and only recently it was reported that the service between Moscow and Kiev had been reduced to an average of one train a week for freight and passengers.

Russia's metal production is reported to have reached but two per cent. of the prewar figures, the coal production about 20 per cent. and the oil production 40 per cent.

CARD OF THANKS

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Every day something out of the ordinary is seen by somebody. Let us hear about it. Phone 1248, or write The Intelligencer.

A Good Spot?

M.M.—I see that it is hard for the committee in charge to decide where to build the swimming pool about which there is so much discussion these days. For my part I don't see why it should not be built just above Lazier's Dam. It seems a most suitable place as already half of the city folks frequent this spot. Take a look around this spot and tell the public what you think about it.

Walk For Cannifton Road

R.S.—I see numerous new walks are being laid throughout the city. I wish some of the members of the Public Works Department would take a walk up the Cannifton Road as far as the track, and then tell their opinion of the lovely walk now in use there.

G.D.—I noticed a large broken branch of a tree hanging over the roadway near the corner of Queen and Ann streets, a menace to vehicle drivers. The branch almost touched the ground and if the authorities have not already done so, it should be removed at once. There are a number of cases of tree surgery needed on various streets and a survey would be beneficial.

Dangerous to Autos

G.B.—Since the sewer was put in on West Bridge and Dundas streets, practically no progress has been made in putting the street into condition. Near the corner of Dundas street is a large hole in the road which is dangerous to autoists. On Sunday a car load of people were going down Dunbar street and when the car struck the hole the jolt threw the driver from his seat and the car crashed into a telephone pole. This hole has been pointed out to the city engineer and others, but nothing has been done toward fixing it up thus far. Immediate attention to this would be appreciated by all motorists who use the street.

Band Concerts

O.S.—While in Kingston on Sunday I happened to hear music, and when I walked in the direction from whence the music was coming, I saw the Kingston Salvation Army band playing before a crowd of two or three thousand people. At night the city regimental band held a concert in Ontario Park and the opening of the Richardson swimming baths was celebrated. There were about four or five thousand bathers celebrating the opening, while in Belleville eveything was practically dead. Everyone who possessed a car loaded it up and left the city. When we get our new bathing beach (if we ever do) probably we will be able to enjoy these swelter ing days in the water near home with out journeying to distant places.

Wedding Bells

NEAL—WALTERS

Holloway street Methodist church was the scene of a very pretty wedding this, Monday, morning at 10-30, when Miss Caroline Walters and Mr. Wm. Edmund Neal both of Montreal, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by the Rev. A. H. Foster. Miss Flossie Green of St. Laurent, Que., assisted as bridesmaid, while Mr. Reginald Neal of this city performed the honors of groomsman to the groom, whose parents reside in this city. Miss Winnifred Pearce presided at the organ. Mr. and Mrs. Neal left on the noon train for Niagara Falls on their honeymoon, upon their return from which they will take up their residence in the city of Montreal, Que.,

Brings the Farm to Town

NOW that he can order it at once by Long Distance from his favorite dealer in village, town, or city, nothing is too good for the farmer. "You advertised a special sale on phonographs in to-day's paper. Ship me one"—he telephones.

Within the same convenient radius of your store are scores of thrifty housewives who would be pleased to have a merchant solicit their trade by Long Distance. Even if a sale does not result, you have advertised your business in a very effective way. They will probably call when they come to town, or order from your advertising. It's human nature.

We know a tire dealer who called up 29 strangers by Long Distance and sold tires to 8 of them. A follow-up letter or personal call later brought nearly all the others to his store.

Don't let your telephone idle. Long Distance can bring suburban prospects within sound of your voice. Turn it into a salesman, and keep it busy. Every other means of communication is substitute for the voice —the voice is YOU.

Serious Accident to Milkman Crushed Under Vehicle

MR. H. SHOEBRIDGE TAKEN TO HOSPITAL WITH INTERNAL INJURIES—WAS STEPPING INTO VEHICLE WHEN HORSE STARTED, THROWING HIM BENEATH WHEELS—NEARBY RESIDENTS RENDERED FIRST AID—INJURIES OF A SERIOUS NATURE.

On Tuesday morning about 5-45 a serious accident occurred at the corner of Moira and Cedar streets. The victim of the accident was Mr. Harold Shoebridge. Mr. Shoebridge is a milk man and was starting out on his route when the accident happened.

From an eye witness of the accident the police were told that as the horse was coming down Moira street the brichen strap broke and as the horse turned to go down Cedar street the rein broke and the left hind wheel buckled under the wagon and Mr. Shoebridge who was just entering the wagon was thrown under the wheel and the wagon containing ten cases of milk pinned him underneath. His cries summoned the people from their beds and help was soon at hand. The wagon was lifted from over him and he was laid out on the grass.

Dr. Blakeslee was immediately summoned and the unfortunate victim was taken to the hospital where he was found to be internally injured, but to what extent is not known at present.

Sanger's Circus Sees Centenary

GRANDSON OF FOUNDER PRESENTED WITH LOVING CUP; MEDAL FOR "TINY"

London, July 26.—The centenary of Lord John Sanger's Circus was celebrated at Aberdeen, when representatives of the city corporation, clergy and other were entertained at dinner by Mr. John Sanger.

A well-known Aberdeen chaplain, the Rev. James Smith, who recalled having first seen Sanger's Circus as a joyous schoolboy 55 years ago, congratulated the Sanger family on having been for a century the providers of one of the most clean and exhilerating public entertainments.

Sir James Taggart said he had been a constant attender for over 0 years of Sanger's Circus. In his native district of Inverurie, the occasion of a visit of the circus was invariably made a public holiday.

Mr. John Sanger said that the show was now patronized by fully a million persons yearly. His grandfather was a manufacturer in Somerset, had fought under Nelson at Trafalgar, and thereafter, receiving a parchment conferring on him the freedom of England, started his now famous show.

At a gala performance later in the evening before a huge audience, Mr. John Sanger was presented by 150 employes with a massive silver loving cup. In returning thanks, Mr. Sanger paid a tribute to the good fellowship which had always obtained among the circus staff: He introduced, amid vociferous applause, the oldest employe, "Tiny, the tank," a massive elephant which has 60 years service to her credit. He stated that during this period the elephant had given 30,000 performances, had walked 180,000 miles, and had eaten 80,000 trusses of hay and 100,000 loaves of bread. While they had not paid her money, they had looked well after her appetite. "Tiny" was decorated by Mr. Sanger with a gold medal and was given half a dozen red-cheeked apples, which she appreciated even more than the decoration. Mr. Sanger said that one hundred years ago his grandfather, through circumstances which he could not explain, made Aberdeen his starting point, and the city which saw the birth of the circus now beheld its centenary.

While the audience sang 'Auld Lang Syne," Mr. Sanger was carried shoulder high around the ring.

One Year in Prison For Motor Fatality

HOW ENGLISH COURTS DEAL WITH RECKLESS AUTOMOBILISTS

London, July 24.—Henry Beecham, 33 years old, of Forest Hill, Hortford Cheshire, brother of Sir Thomas Beecham, the operatic director, was found guilty at the Herts Assizes last week of the man-slaughter of a boy 6 years old, at Baldock, by running over him with a motor car, and was sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment. Justice Rowlatt, passing sentence, said to Mr. Beecham:

"I entirely agree with the jury. It was a wicked and selfish negligence case. I think your career shows that you have been a thoughtless and selfish user of the highway. You caused the death of the poor little child, and maimed two others.

"I don't for one moment think you were not intensely sorry for it afterwards, and did the generous thing by them. You did not try to get away, and were not drunk, but you were selfish and negligent, and it is a growing danger."

Police Want a Dodge Car Council Objects

REFUSE TO PAY FOR DODGE CAR ORDERED BY POLICE COMMISSION

At the City Council meeting, Monday evening, some discussion took place upon the following motion:

Ald. French moved, seconded by Ald. Bennett, that the City Treasurer be authorized not to pay the account for the new car procured for the police department by the Police Commissioners.

Ald. Ostrom asked the council how it stood in this matter? We might consult the solicitor, but he is one of the Police Commissioners. It the commissioners ordered the car, it would appear that the council had to pay for it.

Ald. Bennett—Make it a test case, and see if we have to pay for it.

Ald. Fisher—Our police department is going pretty fast. They have increased the force and also given an extra position.

Ald. Woodley was in favor of fighting the matter and would support the motion.

Mayor Hanna—I have come to the conclusion that the car is a necessity.

Ald. Ballinger—The Commissioners recommendation will, no doubt have to be honored.

The motion was adopted.

GIVE THE TRAIN LOTS OF ROOM.

"Why do you do it?

"When you see a train coming and know you can't possibly make the crossing and you don't intend to attempt it—why don't you immediately slow down and relieve the engineer of the horrid feeling that his train is about to hurl you into eternity?

"You don't realize what a terrible strain you put on the man in the cab when he sees you dashing up towards the crossing ahead of his train, not knowing whether you will try to make it or not.

"There he is in his cab, and knows he can't stop his engine. There you are in your car speeding to the crossing just ahead. You know you are going to stop just at the edge of the track and look up and laugh as the train whizzes past. It's a joke, maybe, to you. To him it is a few seconds of the most intense agony."—Toronto Globe.

Oddfellows Parade Six Hours Long at Toronto

SOME FORTY-THOUSAND-ODD EXPECTED TO DESCEND ON TORONTO

Toronto, July 26.—Toronto is promised the biggest fete week in all her history, September 17 to 23, when Oddfellows from all over Canada and the United States come to town for their annual convention of the Sovereign Grand Lodge. They bulged Boston last year with a small turnout of 30,000, but Toronto is promised the largest attendance in Oddfellow history. William Brooks, Grand Secretary, nonchalantly admits that they expect to have "forty or fifty thousand" here.

Where Mr. Brooks is going to put them is his problem, but what the city is going to do while the "forty or fifty thousand" traverse the town on annual parade is Toronto's problem. If they are crammed tightly in line the parade may pass a given point in six hours—if they walk fast. Gorgeous automobile floats by the score are promised for this procession.

Probably Fifty Bands

There will also be some bands in the procession—probably forty of fifty—according to Mr. Brooks' estimate. The general musical principle upon which the Oddfellows are said to have been working is to hire everything in town that alleges itself to be a band, Toronto can boast only about 25 bands, and, to fill out, the Oddfellows have hired bands in Ottawa, Saulte Ste. Marie, Brockville, Kingston, Belleville, Windsor, London, Hamilton, and elsewhere, to make up an approximate fifty.

According to Mr. Brooks, Oddfellows are coming from as far south as Texas, as far west as California, and from as far north, probably, as the Yukon. Detroit will contribute a modest three or four thousand to the grand aggregate. Michigan State, all told, is expected to send ten or fifteen thousand. Great things are also expected of Chicago and Illinois State. Ontario itself is an Oddfellow hive, it is said, containing more Oddfellows than the rest of the Dominion, and all Ontario Oddfellows are expected to be in Toronto on September 17.

Joseph Oliver to Preside

Grand Sire Joseph Oliver will preside over the business sessions of the Oddfellow delegates at the Parliament Buildings. The Rebekahs will meet in the Oddfellow's Temple on College street, and, for the first time, will march in the parade.

There will be thousands of women, according to calculations, to take part in the big parade on the Wednesday of the week. The general program of the week is being whipped into shape to-day, but there will be banquets, balls, receptions, theatre parties, an athletic competition, and civic and Government receptions spread out over the week.

Not the least interesting to the Oddfellows themselves is the lengthy prize list, out of which will be rewarded merit in Oddfellow proficiency. The most gorgeous float in the parade, the lodge having the largest attendance, the lodge coming the farthest to the convention, and numerous other merits are marked for reward.

Toronto—if she survives—will reap two or three fortunes from the grand Oddfellow trek. Never have the Oddfellows asked anything of their hosts, according to officials, and always, with their huge conventions do they leave behind them some hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The organization itself will spend some sixty or seventy thousand dollars in entertaining outside delegates, and if forty-five thousand in all attend, with hotel bills and general outing expenses, there would be money running well into six figures left in Toronto when the Oddfellows finally depart.

Crime Wave Terrorizes Town of Sudbury

FIVE BURGLARIES COMMITTED DURING WEEK-END—ARMED MEN TERRORIZE TOWN

Sudbury, Ont., July 26.—Sudbury's crime wave reached its height over the week-end when five burglaries were committed within 24 hours.

Mrs. Belinsky, keeper of a Station street rooming house, was robbed of a trunk containing $600 cash in broad daylight yesterday while she was out of the house for a few minutes. Frank Moore, proprietor of a billiard parlor on the main corner in the down-town section, was cleaned out of his stock of cigarettes and cigars as he sat in front of his shop. An automobilist who left his car standing for half an hour in front of his home returned to find that his car had been jacked up, and the two rear tires stolen in his absence. Mrs. Jack Darragh, living in the lake section, awoke to see a man standing at the door of her room. She screamed and he fled, firing a revolver as he went. A youth sleeping in a tent beside the lake awoke to see an armed man enter the tent. The stranger disappeared a moment later.

Hundreds of tramps are passing through Sudbury en route to the west these days and householders have been terrorized by an epidemic of petty thieving. All the depredations are not attributed to these, however, the police believing that local gangsters are taking advantage of the situation.

The police are doing excellent work. A week-end round-up of suspects and vagrants was made and ten appeared in police court today.

Fixed Assessment For Local Industry

SPRINGER LOCK WORKS PROPOSE ERECTING NEW BUILDING

A communication was read at the City Council meeting from Mr. W. C. Springer, stating that it was the intention of the Springer Lock Company to enlarge their premises, and asked that the present fixed assessment of $16,000 be continued. The company did not desire to locate the proposed new branch of their business outside of the city.

Ald. Woodley said we should help industries we have in our midst.

Ald. Bennett—Mr. Springer wants to enlarge the business and the council should do all in its power to retain that industry in this city.

Ald Fisher said the Council should give the fixed assessment asked for.

Ald. Ostrom thought the Council should consider the matter carefully before taking action.

Ald. Fisher moved, seconded by Ald. Ballinger, that the Springer Lock Company's assessment be fixed at $16,000 a year for ten years in consideration of the company enlarging its plant.

Ald. Bennett—"If something is not done the new factory may be located in the west."

The motion of Ald. Fisher prevailed.

Gravel and Stones Imbedded in Face

GEORGE WHELAN VICTIM OF A BLASTING ACCIDENT—INJURIES NOT FATAL

George Whelan of this city who is employed on the Provincial Highway east of this city was on Monday afternoon, the victim of an accident which might have resulted fatally. It appears that blasting operations were in progress and Whelan happened to be in too close proximity, when a blast went off. The result was that he was struck in the face with flying gravel and debris, inflicting cuts which at first gave the impression that he was seriously injured. It was also feared that his eyesight had been injured. After first aid had been administered the victim was brought to the city hospital where his injuries were promptly attended to. Some gravel and small pieces of stone were imbedded in the face and these were removed. Fortunately it was ascertained that his eyesight was not injured, but he appears to be suffering from slight deafness which may pass away. To-day his condition was reported to be most favorable.

Notice of Motion to Close up City Gas Plant

CITY COUNCIL WILL DISCUSS QUESTION OF GOING OUT OF GAS BUSINESS

At the City Council meeting on Monday night the business transacted was chiefly of a routine nature, which was transacted by the Alderman with despatch, owing to a desire to get out of the heated chamber as soon as possible. A recommendation that the three members of the Court of Revision be paid $125 each for their services this year was referred back to the Executive Committee for reconsideration. Ald. Fisher gave notice of a motion to close up the gas plant owing to alleged big deficits each year. This will be considered at the next meeting.

The members present were: Mayor Hanna, Aldermen Woodley, Treverton, French, Bennett, Ballinger, Fisher, Ostrom and Adams.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Reports of committees, communications, etc., were laid upon the table and the Council went into committee of the whole reports, etc., Ald. Ballinger in the chair.

The accounts recommended to be paid by the various committees were passed and the following recommendations were disposed of:—

COURT OF REVISION.

Recommended that the three members of the Court of Revision be paid $125 each for their services this year.

Ald. Bennett thought the amount named was too large, and he moved in amendment that the matter be referred back to the Executive Committee.

After some discussion the amendment of Ald. Bennett prevailed.

Recommended that a plank crossing be placed on West Moira street to connect Evans' garage with the concrete walk on the opposite side of the street. —Adopted.

COUNCIL THANKED.

The ladies of the W. C. A. thanked the Council for the grant of $100 per month for the Home for the Friendless.

Petitions were presented for the construction of sanitary sewers on portions of Great St. James Street, Ashley street and Moodie Street, and granolithic walks on portions of several streets. These were all referred to the proper officials to see if they were properly signed.

The committee rose and reported. The report was received and adopted.

INQUIRIES.

Ald. Treverton—Is the time up for advertising the proposed walk on a portion of Commercial street?

City Clerk—The time is up this week.

Ald. Bennett—Will Burton street sidewalk be fixed. It is in a bad state in places.

Ald. Treverton—It will be attended to.

Ald. Ballinger—The sidewalk on Albion street is in a bad state.

Ald. Treverton—It will be inspected to ascertain what can be done.

Ald. French—The lower bridge rattles considerably when vehicles pass over it. Cannot this be remedied, as it is a nuisance to residents in the vicinity at night.

It was decided that the engineer be instructed to examine the bridge to see if anything can be done.

Ald. Treverton—Some damage has been done to the Coleman street pavement by a traction engine of the Carswell Construction Company passing over it on Sunday morning. Dents were made in the surface which may have to be ironed out.

Ald. Woodley moved, seconded by Ald. Ostrom, that no traction engine be allowed to use the paved street without the sanction of the city engineer, and that a bylaw be passed covering this matter.

Ald. Ostrom—The Sabbath Day was desecrated by the company removing its machinery.

The motion was unanimously adopted.

NOTICE OF MOTION.

Ald. Fisher gave notice that he would, at the next meeting of the Council, move that the gas plant be closed up, owing to the fact that it is running behind about $20,000 a year.

Council adjourned.

Car Was Ditched Man May Die

Hamilton, Ont., July 26.—William Spriggs, Simcoe, was, it is feared fatally injured and Louis Young of Simcoe and William Ottley badly injured this morning when an automobile in which they were riding was ditched on the Guelph road, near Harper's Corners, about 11 miles from Hamilton. The driver of the car, a man named Cooper of Brantford, was the only one of the party to escape uninjured. The men were driving from Brantford to Guelph, and, for some reason not given, their car went into a ditch, where it upset. Dr. Joyce, Freelton, had the injured removed to St. Joseph's Hospital. Mr. Spriggs' spine was fractured and he also sustained internal injuries. Mr. Young, who also was unconscious, was suffering from injuries to his legs and arms. Mr. Ottley's arm was broken.

Cold-Storage Plant Building at Brighton

PAPER, CARDBOARD, ASPHALT AND CONCRETE MAKE IT AIRPROOF

Brighton, July 26.—Work on the new cold-storage plant here is proceeding rapidly and the contractors expect to have the plant ready for occupancy by August 15.

The Armstrong Cork & Insulation Co., Toronto, is doing the insulation work. The Canada Ice Machine Company of Toronto has the contract for the installation of the refrigerating machinery. Mr. Hamilton, a Government official, is here looking after the plant.

When completed the floors, walls and ceilings of the building will be constructed so as to prevent the passage of the air in or out, and so will keep the temperature of the room always the same. The surface of walls, floors and ceilings is first covered with heavy waterproof paper, then cardboard two inches thick is tacked over the paper. Hot asphalt is put on over the cardboard and the last covering is a two-and-a-half thickness of concrete.

The new building is of much interest to district fruit men.

RAILWAYS WILL ISSUE BAGGAGE INSURANCE POLICIES

Canadian National—Grand Trunk System Announce New Facilities For Traevllers

The Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railways are arranging another new feature of service; that is the issue at their various city and larger station ticket offices of insurance policies covering the personal baggage of travellers while journeying by land or sea, also while staying at hotels, etc. The policies will cover fire, theft, pilferage and water damage and will be issued at small cost. The issuance of these policies will, it is believed, be of considerable convenience to travellers, particularly to those proceeding on vacations or on ocean voyages. The passenger may now, without any undue formality, for a small sum, protect his baggage from loss or damage from the time he leaves his home until he returns on the completion of his trip. Personal accident policies have been issued by railway agents in the past but the traveller has hitherto been obliged to make special arrangements when desiring to insure his baggage. The White Star-Dominion Line is co-operating with the Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railways in providing these increased facilities for issuing rail and water baggage insurance policies.

DYNAMITE FISHING GOOD' BUT WASTEFUL

Sudbury, July 26.—"Whenever I want any fish I just toss a stick of dynamite into the river." In this blatant manner a woodsman from up the line was heard describing to a local doctor his manner of fishing, and herein may be the explanation of a report from up the C.N.R. to the effect that the river banks are strewn with dead fish, bass, pickerel and pike.

It is known that the river teems with good fish. It is known that many careless workers have been guilty in the past of such ruthless slaughter. It is said to be a most common practise back in the isolated country, where there is little chance of the miscreants being caught.

CRIPPLES ARE REINSTATED

CANON HEENEY'S CHURCH

The Canadian Churchman in its issue of the 14th inst., has an extended article in regard to St. Luke's Anglican church situated in Winnipeg, the Rector of which is Rev. Canon W. B. Heeney, B. A., B.D., a former Rector of Christ Church, Belleville. In describing St. Luke's church, Rev. Canon Hague states that it is the most beautiful church property in Canada, being located in the heart of a choice residential district, yet only a short distance from the centre of the city. The grounds are extensive and are beautifully laid out with flowers, trees and shrubs. In addition to being Rector of St. Luke's, Rev. Canon Heeney takes great interest in child welfare, and has been President of the Children's Aid Society of Winnipeg for three years, and was instrumental in bringing the institution under direct Government finance and aided in securing a new and delightful property for its occupancy. Rev. Canon Heeney is a man of deep spiritual vision, a scholar and a deep prober after truth. He is a member of the Author's Association of Canada. Four books have come from his pen since he has been in Winnipeg and another is due this autumn. He is a graduate of McGill University and of Montreal College, and a B.D. from St. John's College, Winnipeg. The many friends of the Canon in Belleville will be pleased to learn of the good work he is accomplishing.

The Educational Department raised $80,852. This year $10,000 is being incorporated in their plans to assist returned soldiers who will enter the ministry.

FIRES STILL RAGING IN AMATLAN FIELDS

Mexico City, July 25.—Guarbed by an asbestos shield, fire-fighters were making an attempt today to reach one of the burning oil wells at Amatlan and shut off the valve regulating the flow of oil. If this effort fails, tunnelling will be tried in an attempt to check the flames.

Two hundred men are fighting the fires, and oil men believe the flames will be extinguished within three weeks. All nearby wells have been covered with earth, as a precaution against the conflagration.

THE KEEPING OF POULTRY

If resident in either town or country and you wish to know how best to keep poultry and secure the most satisfactory results, consult a pamphlet treating of the subject prepared by the Dominion Poultry Husbandman, F. C. Elford, and recently issued by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. The pamphlet can be had free on application to the Publications Branch. It tells of how poultry can be made to pay, how the birds should be housed and fed, how they should be treated in winter and summer, how to commence keeping in a small way, the equipment that is desirable, how to choose a breed, how to hatch and rear, and how to gather, keep, or market the eggs. In short all the essentials to success in poultry keeping for home consumption or selling are clearly and explicitly explained. In the term poultry are included turkeys, geese, ducks, guinea fowls and pigeons, the raising and care of which are fully discussed. Numerous illustrations of types of birds, and of methods of housing and feeding contribute to make the pamphlet an invaluable compendium on poultry-keeping and marketing.

Europe is Threatened by Fire and Famine

PROLONGED DROUGHT DESTROYS CROPS——FOREST FIRES SWEEP SCOTLAND AND HOLLAND

London, July 26.—All Europe burned today in a drought which brought with it forest fires, crop shortage and the threat of plagues. Huge fires swept through forests in northern Britain.

Cutting a ten-mile swath, one great fire in Aberdeenshire not only destroyed the woods, but threatened many famous estates.

There is fear that the harvest this year will fall far below the average. Wheat suffered especially. In only a few sections there was light rain, not sufficient to have any effect on the general situation.

Holland also suffered from forest fires, breaking out almost daily in her woods. Conflagrations raged today in the provinces of Drenthe and Limburg. In Amersfoort, hundreds of men were called to fight a fire covering 2,000 acres. All crops were threatened. German scientists were experimenting with dry farming, but with little hope of benefitting the present crop.

Sweden suffered with Germany.

Russia is regarded as a danger spot. Her great fields are blistered. Epidemics of typhus and cholera are breaking out.

Spain's crops wilted in the fields.

Italy was also a victim of forest fires, brought on by the drought. One such fire started near Trieste, when a powder house blew up, scattering the fire into dry underbrush.

No Night Work on The 'Big' Ditch

DAY SHIFTS ONLY ON CHIPPAWA CANAL — SITUATION QUIET

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 26.—Preparations for complete compliance with the Chippawa retrenchment order of the Hydro-electric Commission were materially advanced during the week-end. New schedules have been drawn up for construction work, and a very altered state of affairs will shortly prevail along the "big ditch."

The week-end passed quietly, the great majority of the men discharged leaving by boat and train for other parts of the province.

POLICE PREVENT TROUBLE.

A few who remained in the vicinity, however, came under notice of the provincial police under Inspector Paxton, and some of these were responsible for an extra session of the police court.

In cell accommodation sufficient for about seven, over fifty at one time were locked up. Drunken men were picked up at various points throughout the city all day today and last night. The police brought in several truckloads of men charged with gambling on the Sabbath day. Magistrate Fraser fined each man $5 and costs. There is the largest docket for years to come before the magistrate tomorrow. A great many liquor cases will be heard.

PLAYMATES ENTERTAINED

PORT HOPE AT BELLEVILLE

On Wednesday Port Hope will play their second game in the second half of the Central Ontario League, playing in this city. Their first game was played on Saturday with Cobourg, resulting in a win for them. According to all accounts of this game Port Hope has whipped a pretty speedy nine into first class trim so a great game is anticipated by local fans. Belleville, it is rumored, has also changed the line-up considerably since their last game. A big crowd is expected in spite of numerous other attractions but to a Real fan nothing in the shape of amusement or pastime can supplant the good old game. Everybody cheer and encourage the boys as every game is needed by our nine. Show the Port Hopers as well as others that the G.T.R. is not a two-man team, the name that is now tacked to it by outsiders. We have the goods. Go to it and show 'em how!

SHOEMEN WIN

Baseball fans to a considerable number last evening assembled at the diamond on Coleman Flats to witness a game between the shoe clerks of the city and a team representing the Fire Brigade. By many it was thought the firemen would have no difficulty in extinguishing their opponents, but the shoemen laced out enough runs to win the game, which was called at the end of the sixth innings owing to darkness The score was 6 to 5 in favor of the shoe men. Mr. D. Dorin was the umpire, and Danny was all right. The line-up of the teams was as follows:

MUSIC AND DRAMA

HOPE HAMPTON A TEXAS ORCHID

In Hope Hampton, The Lady Beautiful of the Screen, who is now appearing in her own production of "A Modern Salome" which was shown for the first time last night at Griffin's, Miss Hampton is a new type of Beauty, she is a girl who personifies the delicate and fragile Orchid with the wholesomeness and open air beauty of the prairie flowers of the Lone Star State, where she was born and educated.

The story of which Miss Hampton is the leading lady concerns an artist Virginia Hastings, who is known to her friends as Salome, after her father's death she attempts to make her own way as an illustrator but the struggle is an unequal one and she revolts at the poverty that she is forced to endure, to avoid continuing this life of poverty she marries a wealthy man who can supply her with every comfort and luxury, after she marries she finds that a former fiancee is scheming to obtain large loans from her by threatening to show her Husband her love letters, from this point on in the story many tense situations occur that holds a person and the finish of the story is exceptionally interesting and sends one away with the thought that the author had written a story that could be taken from the happenings read about in the newspapers of today.

The balance of the program contains a comedy with those two inimitable comedians Joe Webber and Lew Fields, in many laughable situations, pertaining to their efforts to run a Police Court of their own, with speeding motorists as their victims. A News Film and Western story, and the serial story "Velvet Fingers" completes an exceptionally well selected program.

Millions of People are Suffering

Indigestion, Headaches, Constipation, Sallow Complexions, Kidney Pains, Rheumatism are all caused from a poisoned system, due to the Liver. Doctors recommend that you take one Tanated Calomel tablet before each meal, or two at bedtime, and in a few days your pains will disappear, your complexion will become clear and you will feel keen, bright, vigorous and life once more will be worth living. The wonderful success of this new drug (Tanated Calomel) is due to the fact that it is the only drug known that acts upon the Liver. No salts or seidlitz are necessary to remove it from the system, as it is selfeliminating. You, no doubt, have taken all sorts of medicine for your particular ailment, but you never get permanent relief, because the medicines you have been taking do not act upon the Liver. Doctors now say that 99 per cent. of all ailments are due to the inactivity of the Liver. A poisoned system soon decays, and that is why I would recommend that you go to McKeown's Front street, and get a box.

RECKLESS MOTOR CAR DRIVING SHOULD BE PENALIZED.

Pick up any Monday newspaper anywhere in North America and see the list of victims of automobile accidents, generally the result of careless and reckless driving ,the dead and injured being, as a rule, the innocent victims of other people's criminal carelessness. All week the grim tragedy continues in minor degree, but the week-end when the cars are more numerous takes the heaviest toll. Newspapers all over the continent are taking up this question vigorously and legislative bodies are taking action to lessen the menace of the highway. One of the most promising legislative acts in this connection is the law passed by an eastern state requiring that drivers of motor cars secure a license subject to cancellation upon conviction of reckless driving. This low has had a wholesome tendency to steady down the reckless drivers who realize that their licenses will be take away if they violate the regulations, and the Ontario authorities would be well advised to give this act close consideration with a view to having a similar act passed here.

Discussing motor car safety the Hamilton Spectator says:

> It has been said that 95 per cent. of motorists are careful, competent, and conscientious drivers, but that the remaining 5 per cent. are sufficiently mischievous to bring the pastime into disrepute. The statement is probably very near the truth. In the vast majority of cases there is no ground for complaint as regards the skill or the conduct of the motor car driver, but in a small percentage of cases there is every reason for condemnation. It is the latter class which we hear most about, unfortunately, and it is with these reckless and incompetent drivers that the public is most concerned.
> One of the most encouraging signs that automobilism in the hands of considerate and public-minded people is to be found in the fact that the severest criticisms of reckless driving come from motorists themselves. We had a letter in the Spectator on Thursday from "Observer" calling for the prosecution of all drivers of motor cars who fail to strictly observe the regulations of the Motor Vehicles Act, which require a speed not exceeding ten miles per hour when approaching a street intersection, as well as the local by-laws which call for a reduction of speed to four miles an hour when turning any street corner in this city. "Our street corners are all safe," says "Observer," "provided our laws are observed, and we must make our drivers safe by punishing every breach of said laws and by-laws. A prosecution should follow every accident occurring at a street intersection."
> In today's issue of the Toronto Globe Mr. W. J. Moody, who is said to have driven an automobile since 1903, writes still more bitterly of his fellow-motorists who show carelessness in the handling of their cars. He refers to the "fool" drivers who race up and down the streets of Toronto "without regard for street cars or for other traffic." "The crossings belong to pedestrians," he says, "and it is the duty of the motorist to look out for them." A driver who gets struck on a level crossing is absolutely unworthy of any sympathy in the majority of cases. "It is up to him to stop, look and listen."
> When we have these candid strictures from the drivers of cars themselves, it is evidence that the majority of them are keenly alive to their responsibilities. The regulations are doubtless adequate, if properly observed. It is to be feared, however, that many drivers do not take the trouble to inform themselves sufficiently of the rules governing the public safety, At all events some of them act as if they were woefully ignorant of their obligations. A motorist's duty does not cease when he has learned to drive his car; he should study also the ethics of the game.

ONE LIGHTED MATCH CARELESSLY THROWN MAY DESTROY ONE THOUSAND TREES WHICH TOOK MANY YEARS TO MATURE.

Now is the camping season, and a word of warning is in season. Put out your camp fires, and see that they are completely out before leaving the locality—a pail of water or two will do the trick; also select a safe place for the camp fire where there is no danger of the flames spreading.

One of Canada's greatest assets is the forest wealth, but every year damage to the extent of millions of dollars is done to the forests by careless campers who start fires in the worst places and fail to see that they are extinguished. Then there is that army of careless criminals who throw cigar and cigarette butts into inflammable places—the worst of the

Let us take thought of our resources and try and measure up to the full standard of citizenship, helping to make Greater Canada all that it should be.

See that all fire is out everywhere, matches, butts, or camp fires, and cease burning up the nation's money in trees that take years to mature.

CRISP COMMENT

It is said that jazz music is going—yes, going too strong in some localities.

If the Weather Man is trying to put over the hottest summer that has been he is certainly making a burning success of the job. Perhaps he is trying to squeeze so much heat out of Old Sol that his prediction of a long cold winter will be assured.

Canada's three hundred million dollar indemnity due from Germany looks good on paper; but when you come to think of it, Germany has a bad habit of scrapping paper.

It may be a warming thought next winter to recall the high altitudes reached by the temperature this summer; but it requires considerable will power to put money into the coal fund when the thermometer flirts with 80, 90 and 100 in the shade of the old apple tree.

THE OLD ORDER CHANGING

Westminster Gazette

London antiquaries may be expected to make loyal protest against the decision of the King to dispense with the ceremony of receiving the City Sword at Temple Bar on his way to open Southwark Bridge. From time immemorial it has been the custom of the city to bar the Royal entrance into the city, for in the days that were earlier the presence of a King at Guild hall sometimes threatened a very considerable "loan". When the King in those days reached Temple Bar the gates were closed in his face; a herald sounded a trumpet, and another herald knocked for admission, which, after some parley, was granted; the gates were thrown open, and the Lord Mayor presented the City Sword to the Monarch, who immediately returned it, and the procession passed through the city boundaries. And now, it seems, the ancient and honorable custom is to be observed no longer. It is a pity!

INTEREST IN CIVIC MATTERS

Salem News

The average American citizen votes at his municipal election at certain regular periods, then thinks no more about public business unless something comes up to kick about. Then he finds fault good and plenty. But he has not of himself made any contribution of wisdom to the solution of local problems. He passed the buck over to the elected officials, and did nothing to help them. In an ideal community the people would all feel that they wanted an active share in public business. They would hold meetings to discuss matters of public interest. After such discussion they would pass resolutions to express their sentiment, and appoint committees to make sure of some definite results. Many of the faults of public administration occur because the public has not made clear what it wanted. Public officials want to do what the people want done, but often they have no means of knowing what the community desires.

The Poets' Corner

IT COULDN'T BE DONE

Somebody said that it couldn't be done
But he with a chuckle replied,
That maybe it couldn't but he'd be the one
Who wouldn't say so till he'd tried;
So he buckled right in with a trace of a grin
On his face; if he worried he hid it
He started to sing as he tackled the thing
That couldn't be done—and he did it.

Somebody scoffed, "Oh, you'll never do that,
At least no one ever has done it."
But, he took off his coat and he took off his hat
And the first thing we knew he'd begun it;
With a lift of his chin and a bit of a grin,
Without any doubting and quibbling.
He started to sing as he tackled the thing
That couldn't be done—and he did it.

There are thousands to tell you it can not be done.
Thehe are thousands to prophesy failure,
There are thousands to point out to you one by one
The dangers that wait to assail you,
But just buckle right in with a bit of a grin,
Then take off your coat and go to it,
Just start in to sing as you tackle the thing
That cannot be done—and you'll do it.

Drop Liquor Into The Ocean to Save Craft

SKIPPER THROWS 1,000 CASES OVERBOARD WHEN SHIP SPRINGS ALEAK

Atlantic City, N.J., July 26.—Federal officers seized the British two-masted schooner Pocomokie, moored in Gardner's Basin in the inlet district here.

Capt. J. A. Roy, the French-Canadian skipper of the craft, took the seizure with the same degree of good-humor which has characterized his conduct since the word was received here several days ago to hold the vessel under surveillance, as she was suspected of having a cargo of liquor aboard.

A search of the vessel was made, but no liquor was found aboard.

Quite Independent

"I am going to sail for Nassau when I get good and ready," said Capt. Roy "I am not going to Quebec, although that is my home city," he said. "I own the vessel, having paid $212,600 for her."

Capt. Roy insists that his vessel sprang a leak during a storm off the coast here, and that as a consequence he threw overboard 1,000 cases of liquor which he had aboard.

While the Federal coast guards were seizing the schooner Federal prohibition officers were combing the city for a trace of Capt. Roy's cargo. They obtained a search warrant from United States Commissioner Steelman early in the day and searched an Atlantic avenue restaurant, but failed to find any liquor.

Scent Big Plot

New York, July 26.—Foreign and domestic capital aggregating millions of dollars is supporting a conspiracy to violate the Volstead Act by bringing cargoes of liquor into various ports of the United States in a fleet of sailing vessels of British and United States registry, it was charged today by Leroy W. Ross, United States District Attorney of Brooklyn.

With the seizure yesterday of a sloop attempting to discharge a contraband cargo on the Connecticut shore and the amplification of the Government's enforcement facilities along the Atlantic coast, Mr. Ross has been placed in virtual charge of prohibitive operations so far as the port of New York is concerned .

Flyers Seek Contraband

Cape May, N. J., July 26.—The presence of two navy seaplanes off the coast here yesterday gave rise to reports that air scouts have been employed in the hunt for smugglers of liquor. The flying boats, which appeared to be of the FL-5 type, cruised about most of the day.

It is reported that navy air scouts have been ordered to comb the Atlantic coast from northern New Jersey to Norfolk for suspicious looking craft. Every cove and inlet is said to be guarded to prevent the landing of contraband liquor.

Coast guards have been ordered to maintain a half-hourly watch of the horizon and inform the Naval Air Station if they raise any mysterious vessels. Delaware River pilot boats also have been requested to maintain a sharp lookout. Rumors that a ship is cruising outside the three-mile limit, awaiting a favorable opportunity to discharge a cargo of contraband liquor on the coast, are scouted by officials.

May Be Same Cargo

New Haven, Conn., July 26.—The seizure of the Jennie T., together with a large quantity of liquor, yesterday as the crew was unloading it at a secluded spot on the coast has given rise to the belief that part of the Pocomokie's cargo was transhipped at sea. The Pocomokie is being held by Federal authorities at Atlantic City.

CANADIAN GRAVES ARE WELL TENDED

Toronto, July 25.—"The people of Canada may set their minds at rest concerning the bodies of their dead in France," was the reassuring message which Colonel Macmillan, of the territorial staff of the Salvation Army brought to the city yesterday, in reply to the distressing item cabled to Canada, after publication in the London Express, of the empty Canadian soldier graves.

Col. Macmillan has just returned from the International Social Congress of the Salvation Army in London, where he was delegated by General Bramwell Booth to make a tour of inspection of the cemeteries and graves of Britain's soldiers in France and Flanders.

"The cemeteries of the Canadians are in splendid condition," he assured. "They are tended with the greatest care and with a spirit of devotion and kindliness that is amazing. Parties of British troops are about everywhere exhuming bodies from their solitary graves and bringing them to the common resting places."

STRIVE TO KEEP OUR BACON TRADE

Ottawa, July 25.—The value of bacon exports from Canada during 1920 was $34,000,000. A widespread effort is being maintained by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, in co-operation with the Provincial Departments, to increase this trade, and incidentally to maintain the quality of Canadian bacon which years ago procured for it a steady market in Great Britain. Aggressive foreign competition for Britain's requirements is making such an effort of prime importance in Canada, according to an emphatic statement appearing in the Agricultural Gazette.

The effort to increase the trade and maintain the quality of the bacon will be practically carried through boy's and girl's pig clubs and similar organizations. The Gazette notes that Great Britain annually requires 500,000,000 pounds of imported bacon.

CHAIN OF FLOATING BAR-ROOMS ON ATLANTIC

Washington, July 25.—Extensive plans for dotting the Atlantic coast with floating bars reached officials of the United States shipping board to-day.

A New York syndicate of liquor vendors are considering the purchase of wooden vessels offered for sale by the shipping board, the report stated, and if they are successful, the ships will be loaded with liquor, and anchored outside the three-mile limit. These plans call for a chain of floating saloons reaching from Bath, Me., to Tampa, Fla.

Chairman Lasker of the shipping board admitted that a report of the alleged plans had reached him, but refused to say whether purchase offers from liquor men would be accepted. The board is anxious to sell the ships.

"A great idea," he said of the plan the eastern shore with floating drink palaces. They wouldn't cost as much as a city shop and no rent or no taxes to pay. Motor boat lines could ply to and fro between the anchored ships and nearby city.

Prohibition Commissioner Haynes said if the ships are purchased by liquor vendors and are placed under foreign registry the government could not touch them.

Women Who Should Not Be Mothers

"I would divert from motherhood the woman whose soul is bent on polishing mahogany—I would relieve her of children and send here where she might polish mahogany all her days.

"I would divert from motherhood that woman so obsessed with a book that her child's voice, coming up to her out of the wilderness of his young ignorance, is forever an unwelcome interruption. I would free her of the child and send her to a world of books.

"I would divert from motherhood that woman so obsorbed in flowers that the face of her child appearing before her is only a signal for an order—another package of seed, a trowel, more fertilizer; whose eyes are so filled with flower-faces that they never take in the little human face hungrily asking for love . . . . I would free her of child-faces forever and send her to work among flower-faces only.

"I would divert from motherhood that woman with an antipathy to the intimate ways, who never expresses her love in endearing terms, or touches, or tender smiles. I would divert these walled-in, self-contained women from motherhood and send them to work in laboratories where matter has no feeling, and feeling is not needed to penetrate the mysteries of matter.

"I would divert all stiff, cold, purely career-minded purely housekeeping-minded, purely student-minded, purely pleasure-minded, purely go-minded women—I would divert all women who lack the passion for human service—for love implies human service—I would, in brief, divert every woman in whom the maternal instinct is not the dominating instinct. And I would take chances on any loss to the race by reason of this diversion being more than made up by the coming into existence of a crop of universally loved—expressively loved—babies and homes and households." —Anne Shannon Monroe in August Good Housekeeping.

BURGLAR'S ASSISTANT

Young Man Was Paid $10 a Night For His Work

New York July 25.—A young man giving the name of Gerald Claire and Colorado as his home offered the unusual plea today that he was not really a burglar but had been employed as a burglar's assistant at $10 a night. Claire was picked up early this morning by a "rookie" policeman attached to the Oak street station and charged with being one of two men who had held up James Stanton, clerk in a Schulte cigar store at Broadway and Twenty-ninth street about 10 o'clock Thursday night, with a loss of $145.

The holdup suspect said, the police related, that he had come here from Colorado four days ago. He had been a waiter out there. Claire said that he only received $10 each for the two robberies. The other man supplied the pistol, he said. After the robbery his "employer" led him to Bryant Park, took the pistol, paid him off and made him an appointment for the next night. He had only $8 when arrested end in this way—then decide

Learn now the right way to end corns.

Apply Blue-jay—the liquid or the plaster—to one corn. Mark how the pain stops. Watch the corn, in a little while, loosen and come out.

Stop paring corns—it is dangerous. Put aside the old, harsh treatments. Try this new way once.

Blue-jay is the scientific method. A famous chemist invented it. This great surgical dressing house makes it.

Countless people use it. Blue-jay is ending not less than 20 million corns a year.

A touch applies it. The action is gentle, the results are sure and final.

Fairness to yourself requires that you try it if you ever suffer corns.

HONEYMOON DIRIGIBLES POPULAR IN FRANCE

Paris, July 25.—"Dirigibles made for two," are likely to result in a wave of popularity for fair honeymoons. Andre Schelcher, a French aeronaut, has invented an airship with a capacity of 1,000 cubic metres, weighing 1,600 kilos, capable of taking two passengers and baggage only, at a speed of fifty miles per hour. Five hundred couples have already made experimental ascents, and the makers are overwhelmed with orders. The "honeymoon dirigible" costs only $5,000—no more than a high-class touring car.

City and Country

WARM WEATHER

The reading of the thermometer at the city pump house from 10 a.m., yesterday until 10 o'clock this morning showed the maximum to be 87 and the minimum 67.

STILL AT LARGE

No trace has yet been found of the young man Howard, who on Saturday escaped from custody at Marmora, after being handcuffed. The authorities have every confidence that he will be recaptured in the near future.

CHILD RUN OVER

Little Grace Carter, a little girl who lives on Boswell street of this city was run over by a horse and buggy on Monday afternoon. She sustained no serious injuries.

CONDITION FAVORABLE

Word received from the City Hospital at 2 o'clock this afternoon conveyed the fact that Mr. Shoebridge who was seriously injured this, Tuesday morning, is doing very well under the circumstances, no change in his condition being noticeable.

MUSICAL SESSION

Monday's Rotary luncheon at the Quinte was unique in being a musical session. There were no speeches and the ninety minutes were almost entirely occupied by vocal selections. Sandy the singer came late but made up for lost time by putting "O' Canada" in the soup course, Old Macdonald's Farm in the entrees and Take Me Back to Old Virginia in the meat course, while the Little Prairie Flower and the National Anthem featured the dessert. Stewart Robertson's solo was a corker and inspired other bashful soloists to contribute, notably Jimmie Bone and Vince Doyle, while Vene Hyman and Charlie Payne were almost persuaded to sing a duet. It was a very enjoyable session. Fred Burrows, of Toronto, son of "Burrows of Belleville", was a guest and made a short address. A request from headquarters to start a "Back to School" campaign in which Rotarians would urge boys to continue their studies instead of going to work, was read, but Rotarians Ackorman and McCreary, (School Trustees) expressed doubt that there would be room in Belleville schools this fall for all the boys who were anxious to return to school. Aldermen Ostrom and Fisher were asked for suggestions but considered silence more golden than speech at the present juncture.

On Monday Kathleen was taken suddenly ill and despite every medical attention she passed away within a few hours. Ptomaine poisoning inducing meningitis is given as the cause of death. Greenfield May be New Premier of Alberta

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press Limited

Calgary, July 26.—It is practically certain that Greenfield will be the new Premier of Alberta H. W. Wood, President of the United Farmers of Alberta, at a secret session of the U.F.A., members elect, this morning refused to accept the premiership.

Mr. Greenfield is Vice-President of the United Farmers of Alberta and has been associated closely with the political work of that organization. He was not a candidate at the recent election, but the death of C. P. Baker, farmer member-elect for Potoka, has left a vacancy where undoubtedly he could secure election. Mr. Greenfield is a farmer at Westlock.

DEATH NOTICE

BUTLER—In Belleville, July 26th, 1921, Kathleen Eleanor Pearce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Butler, aged 4 years 11 months.

The funeral will take place from her parents' home, 279 William street, on Wednesday, July 27th at 8-30 a.m. to St. Michael's church thence to St. James' Cemetery. 26-1td

A KIDDY'S SAND TABLE

We desired a sand table for our youngster to use on the porch in inclement weather. The sand tables for sale in the stores were both expensive and clumsy, so I bought a second hand kitchen table for a reasonable price, and my husband did the rest. He nailed the table drawer shut and cut out of the table top the surface above the drawer. This made an excellent cavity for the sand. Around the edge and set back a few inches, he nailed a strip of wood as a guard-rail for the sand. Then he sawed off the table legs to make the table the proper height for the baby. With the pieces of sawed off legs and a few planks, he made a bench to fit the table. Then he painted both sand table and bench, and the outfit delighted the youngster. —August Good Housekeeping.

"Emma," her mother said, "did you peel your apple, as I told you too, before eating it?"

"Yes, mamma," said little Emma.

"And what did you do with the peeling?"

"Why," said little Emma, "I ate it, of course."

Mauretania Mass of Ruins

PRIDE OF ATLANTIC RAVAGED BY FIRE AT SOUTHAMPTON, ENGLAND

Southampton, July 26.—The Mauretania, queen of the steamships of the Cunard Line, and full-sister ship to the ill-fated Lusitania, is in danger of complete destruction from a fire which started from a cigarette spark at 2 o'clock this afternoon. It is midnight as this story is telephoned to London, and, though the firemen claim they are controlling the outbreak, the magnificent Atlantic greyhound is still a fierce cauldron.

Three decks have been completely destroyed half the length of the liner from the bow aft.

Eight hundred men of the crew and the firemen are still battling the blaze.

The Mauretania, which came into her berth here on the run from New York on Friday, was being refurnished for her next trip across the Atlantic. An employe of an upholstery contractor was cleaning the carpet in a first-class state-room on E deck. He was using petrol and he was smoking. An ash from his cigarette dropped in to the petrol and started the costly blaze.

The man ran to Chief Steward Sayers, wro rang the fire-gong and sounded bugles warning the members of the ers, who rang the fire gong and soundsteamship and connected the hose to the hydrants.

Annual Session of Orangemen

GRAND BLACK CHAPTER OPENS 45TH MEETING AT TORONTO

Toronto, July 26.—The forty-fifth annual session of the Grand Black Chapter of British America, which opened at Victoria Hall yesterday, was attended by about 207 delegates and nearly 50 visitors.

Very Worshipful Knight William Stringer, County Master, read the address of welcome to the officers on behalf of the York County Chapter.

Grand Master W. H. G. Armstrong of Saskatoon, in the course of his address, said the growth of the order in the past year had occasioned the institution of 21 new preceptories. Speaking of conditions in Ireland, from which he had recently returned, he said, "it is fervently hoped that in any settlement arrived at the rights and liberties of the loyalists who in the darkest hours have remained true to the Empire and to British institutions will be adequately safeguarded."

The report of the Grand Treasurer, W. H. Wilson, showed a favorable financial balance of $6,974.

J. S. Williams, who has occupied the post of Grand Registrar, had the chapter's appreciation of his services embodied in a resolution.

Mayor Church was present last evening as a visitor and addressed the delegates.

Letters of sympathy will be sent to Sir Sam Hughes and Thomas Gilday, of Montreal, both of whom are ill.

There are several prominent Orangemen from Newfoundland as well as from the Dominion among those present. Those from Newfoundland are Rev. R. H. Mercer, Past Chaplain of the Provincial Grand Black Chapter of Newfoundland, and Rev. G. Lionel Mercer, Deputy Grand Master of the Provincial Grand Lodge of the same place.

Today the Ladies' Orange Association will meet. On Thursday the location of the next convention is to be decided. Ottawa and Kingston are both mentioned as possible meeting places.

HUGE STEER STARTS ON SHOW CIRCUIT

Wingham, July 25.—Sir Douglas Haig, the huge steer which weighs 3,570 pounds has "gone on the stage." Sir Douglas has been taken from the quiet pastures on his farm home in Ashfield township and started on tour in a show for his new owners Messrs. Martin and Bland, who purchased him for $5,000 from Chas. Stewart. Sir Douglas has been playing to large houses at the Wingham rink, and will be taken this week to Walkerton to show the returned old boys how big "they grow 'em" in Huron county.

From there he will be taken to all the Ontario fairs, including the National Exhibition at Toronto and the Western London. If he proves a success he will be taken to Chicago, and may even go "abroad to Europe" if his new owners can get him a passport to the British embargo.

Sir Douglas is no freak animal. He is well bred, almost pure bred. He is just big, and is not out of proportion at any stage. Hundreds of Bruce and Huron people have seen him during the past year in his pasture. Hereafter it may be necessary to pay to see him. Sir Douglas wasn't brought up much different from any other calf. Like Topsy he simply "growed," only he "growed" bigger than the rest.

"You were so unduly wrought up and excited by—by the report of the shooting that really I—I"—

"Mother," Lydia interrupted her, "you have gone too far. You had no right under heaven to act as you did. It was a crime, considering his condition and—my feelings. Mrs. Hillyer, is Hortense at home?"

"Yes, she's thar, Miss Lydia."

"Well, I'm going to explain to George, and I'm going now," Lydia said. "He shan't wait one minute longer to know how I feel and how I've felt all along. You have done everything on earth to make me untrue to my better self, mother, and at last resorted to actual dishonesty. I'll never marry the man you want me to—never!" With that the girl turned quickly from the room.

CHAPTER XXXV.

MRS. CRANSTON followed Lydia into the sitting room, where she was putting on her hat before a mirror.

"You will not compromise yourself by going there, dear?" Mrs. Cranston said excitedly.

"You may call it that if you like," retorted the girl, turning as she was thrusting a hatpin into place behind her head. "I am going to explain why he has not heard from me."

"Oh, daughter, don't, don't! Think of your family, of me, of your father."

"I'll think of you when I have more time," replied the girl. "I'm going straight to George Buckley now. Mother, I respect him. I honor him more than any man alive. I—love him. Yes, I love him with all my heart and soul, and I'm simply furious at the way you have treated us."

"You don't mean that you would actually marry him, Lydia Cranston!"

"Well, you just let him give me the chance and see if I won't. I'd rather live on bread and water with him than with the richest man the sun ever shone on. There, are you satisfied? You and father have been treating me like a child, with no regard for my feelings, but now that you have dared to interfere through me with George Buckley's rights as an American citizen, intercepting his letters when he lay at death's door, treating him as if he were a dog—well, you have simply forced me to do my duty."

"Lydia, daughter"— But the girl had turned into the hall and was walking rapidly across the lawn toward the gate.

She went directly to Hillyer's house. Hortense was in the yard gathering flowers and greeted her with a surprised smile as she came toward her across the grass.

"Hortense," said Lydia tensely, "I want to see George. May I?"

"Why, yes, of course," said Hortense, "I have just left him. I came after these flowers for his room. Go right up; it's the first door on the left at the head of the stairs. Oh, Lydia, I'm so glad you came; it is very good of you; it will make him so happy. Ever since he was hurt he has"—

"Oh, I know, but it wasn't my fault; that's what I want to explain."

The door of George's room was open. His face was turned from Lydia as she entered the room and he did not look toward her, thinking it was Hortense returning with the flowers. It was not till she stood over him, her burning glance of sympathy on him, that he looked up; then he flushed and started to sit erect.

"Don't, don't, George!" she cried, and she laid her hand softly on his brow and gently pushed him back on his pillow.

"It's kind of you to come," he said. "I really was not—not expecting—that is"—

"No; I know you were not looking for me, George, and I wonder what you have thought of me. I've come to explain and beg you to forgive me. I am not quite as bad as I seem. George, I did not know of the shooting till we returned from Atlanta. I heard the danger was over, but I at once wrote you a letter. I have just discovered that mother intercepted it. Not hearing from you, I wrote another. It also was intercepted, but, not knowing that, I took your silence to mean that you wished all to be over between us."

Buckley was staring at her fixedly.

"What did you write?" he asked.

She was silent; the warm color was mounting into her fine face; her eyes were downcast.

"Don't you want me to know now what the letters contained?" he questioned gently.

"I—I don't see how I can tell you, George, unless"— She paused.

"Unless," he prompted, the fire of hope almost aflame in his eyes—"unless?"

"You see," she said, "I don't know how you feel about me right now, and when I wrote it was under the—memory of what you said that night in Atlanta."

"I could never change, Lydia. I love you with all my life and soul. I am famishing for one little word of hope from you. Did your letters"—

"I told you frankly in the first one, George, that I loved you, that I was tired of the way I was being treated at home and that if you wanted me I'd come to you in spite of all the world and consider myself the luckiest woman alive to be your wife, but when you did not answer I hoped there was some mistake, so I wrote another note telling you I had received no reply and that if I did not get one I'd take it that you wished everything over between us. Oh, George, I have been very unhappy! I never realized how much I loved you till I knew you were lying here wounded, and I"— She covered her face with her hands and began to sob softly. He reached out and drew her hands down and held them, while he feasted his eyes on hers.

"God bless you, little woman!" he said. "It seems like a dream. I can't realize that you are here telling me you—you really care for me and are willing to be my wife. Oh, darling, I'm afraid I'll awake. It can't—can't be true!"

"I've loved you for a long time," she said gently, returning the pressure of his hands, "but I did not realize it till that night in the summer house, when I overheard Governor Telfare insult you as he did. You seemed a king among men when you spoke to him as you did, and what you said about your respect for me and the sacrifices you'd make rather than help link his life to mine—oh, George, then I saw the difference between you and him; he seemed a dwarf in soul and body contrasted to you. Afterward, in the parlor, I tried to show you how I felt, but you misunderstood. I did not blame you. I could not have expected you to act otherwise after his disgraceful conduct. I threw that in his teeth, too, the other night in Atlanta. I shall always be glad I did it. It was little, but it was all I could do for you."

"You told him you overheard it?" said George.

"Yes; it was this way: He was begging and imploring me to give him a final answer. I had not openly refused him. I was afraid he would write to father and that father might be affected by it, to his injury. But the morning we left Atlanta Governor Telfare came to see me and began again to urge me to marry him. I flatly refused. He then dared to speak disrespectfully of you, and I told him just what a coward he was and how I knew it. I told him also that I knew about Mr. Truitt's pulling his ears. I told him everything I could think of and sent him away with a flush of shame on his face. It may not have been exactly ladylike, but I lost control of myself. I couldn't bear to hear him speaking lightly of you."

"God bless you, dear!" George said, and he drew her head down and kissed her on the lips. "God bless you!"

* * * * * * *

When Mrs. Hillyer returned home she found them together. Lydia sat on the edge of the bed holding his hand. On their faces lay expressions that recalled the brightest period of the older woman's youth.

"I see you didn't waste time," she said gently as she kissed Lydia on the brow.

"No; we understand each other now, Mrs. Hillyer," replied the girl. "They will never give their consent, but I'm going to stick to George anyway."

"Consent?" laughed Mrs. Hillyer. "Why, bless yore sole, child, yore folks will receive George Buckley with open arms. After you left I exploded a reg'lar boomerang in the'r midst. What you reckon I told 'em? I told 'em that me an' Mr. Hillyer had willed all we got on earth to George Buckley an' that he'd be about the well offest young man in north Georgia at our deaths, an' yore father"—

"What are you talking about?" George exclaimed, in astonishment.

"Talkin' about the legal documents me 'n' my old man signed yesterday," responded Mrs. Hillyer, with a chuckle. "We hain't got no childern of our own, an' why shouldn't we want to know what's to become of our effects after we are gone? We both love you like a son, an' we are a-goin' now to take Mrs. Lydia Buckley into our hearts, too, thank the Lord!"

"Well, that's news to me," George said. "And I don't feel worthy of it, either."

"Worthy or not, that's not fer you to judge," said Mrs. Hillyer; "but it certainly has made the road smooth fer you with the Cranstons. Why, I never seed the like. The old major sprung up when I told 'im about the will an' stood quiverin' from head to foot:

"'Why, Mrs. Hillyer'—he quit sayin' madam—'why, I never knowed the young man had any expectations at all, I 'lowed he was jest, you know, a sort o' bookkeeper with a small intrust in the business. Ef I'd 'a' knowed he was a man o' means I never would 'a' raised so much fuss over it.' Well, to make a long story short, he give in as graceful as a'body could wish—blamed ef the old feller didn't actually chuckle when I sorter skimmed over some o' Mr. Hillyer's investments in railroad stock an' the like. The world's the same all over. Most aristocrats believe in aristocracy only when it's got a cash basis. Lydia, yore pa actually feels relieved. He's had a big job, weak as he is, tryin' to marry you to a wind bag, an' now that yo're goin' to do a sight better of yore own accord he's powerful well satisfied. Most folks come around to what they have to meet, an' when they are made to come around to what they railly want they do it with a whiz an' a slide. So, young man, you've won yore fight, an' you deserve to be congratulated."

"Well, I can't take credit for it," George laughed. "It seems to me that the whole town and half the county have been helping me out."

Leaving the lovers together, Mrs. Hillyer went downstairs.

"I thought at fust," she mused, "that I'd not let Mrs. Dugan in on this, but I mought as well. That's about all the pleasure the lone woman gits out o' life, an' she's entitled to this morsel. Yes, I'll run over an' tell 'er. The truth is, I'm dyin' to tell somebody, an' it ud be a relief to see 'er roll 'er eyes an' gasp. Thar she is now, makin' a break fer the fence. She seed me with my silk on an' knows some'n's in the wind. Hold on, Mrs. Dugan," raising her voice, "don't break yore neck—I'm a-comin'—I'm a-comin', as fast as I kin!"

Weed Menace

M.O.—On North Albert street there is a vacant lot where the weed crop is large and luxuriant and a menace to every garden roundabout. I understand that there is a provincial act covering noxious weeds, in addition to civic legislation and the exasperated citizens of this locality would like to see the owner notified by the authorities to cut and destroy these weeds at once.

Are They Spoofing?

S.Q.—I notice that suggestions for the swimming pool are moving farther and farther away, and now include Lazier's dam and the quarry. These suggestions will be all right to file for future reference when the Bigger and Broader and Better Belleville is a reality, but just now—quit yer kidding.

Motor Fire Truck

H.O.—Sunday night the motor truck which is being used temporarily at No. 1 fire hall, made good time in reaching the City Hotel in rear of which an automobile was on fire. It clearly demonstrated that motor vehicles are really a necessity in case of a fire. At the present time the City Council have to procure at least three horses, and the price paid for same will go a considerable way towards the purchase of a motor truck.

Perfectly Ridiculous

R.—While enjoying a stroll in Victoria Park Sunday afternoon I saw several young men and boys, and also a few elderly gentlemen, busily engaged in a very interesting and refreshing game of Poker, directly in front of the "Band Stand" while at the same time some more lover of sport were enjoying the very popular game of crapp-shooting, right up on the platform where they were under direct observation of any person passing by, (some nerve I calls it) and the loud language used by the players was anything but favorable to the great number of young ladies who were out there trying to enjoy the cool breeze. Those Mississippi Marble Rollers also occupied several benches which were placed there for resting upon, and not for the purpose of gambling on. It seems a shame that our park which is enjoyed by so many tired people try-to keep cool during the hot summer months should be turned into a regular Monte Carlo. Cut it out boys, if you are so particularly fond of rolling the bones and shuffling the spotted tickets, why not beat it over to an Island or some of the marshes, then hop right to it as fast as you like, but it isn't fair to corrall the only park which offers our citizens an opportunity to spend a few quiet hours.

FEDERAL ROAD GRANT TO LAST THREE YEARS

Ottawa July 26.—Contracts between the Ontario Goverment and the Federal Highways Department have been entered into to the extent of $3,3000,000. Contracts are by no means completed, it was stated at the highways branch of the Department of Railways and Canals, in reference to a report that Ontario's share of the $20,000,000 highways grant was almost exhausted.

At the present rate of progress, the amount of $5,800,000 having been alloted to Ontario on a 60-40 per cent. basis, the Federal appropriation toward highway building should last for two or three years yet in Ontario.

"If the Ontario Government choose to build pavements, that would have nothing to do with us," said one official of the Railways Department. "The Federal grant only covers 40 per cent. of the actual cost of necessary construction under approved highway plans.

Turning Out 6,000 Tons of Peat Daily

GOVERNMENT PLANT AT ALFRED, ONT., BEING ENLARGED

Operations at the Government peat plant at Alfred, Ont., where the Peat Committee has one plant in regular operation and another larger plant in course of construction, are progressing favorably.

Since early last month No. 2 plant has been running steadily, and had produced about 1500 tons by the middle of June. Notwithstanding delays due to weather and other causes it has been turning out peat fuel almost up to its full rated capacity of 60 tons a day. This plant is being run by a regular crew of seven men, so that its efficiency when operated on strictly commercial lines can be determined.

Last fall sales of peat fuel manufactured at Alfred and amounting in value to nearly $20,000 were made in Ottawa, Montreal and other places. Arrangements have been completed for handling this year's production which is expected to be about 6,000 tons. Peat dug in the early part of May is now ready for use and shipments will be commenced within a few days.

The first shipments have arrived for a new conveyor for handling the peat from No. 1 excavator. This machine, which has a capacity about 1200 tons daily, was severely handicapped last season owing to defective arrangements for spreading the peat on the drying field, a difficulty which the new conveyor is expected to overcome.

Among recent visitors to the bog have been Hon. H. Mills, T. F. Sutherland, Chief Mining Inspector for Ontario, and C. Camsell, Dominion Deputy Minister of Mines.

The Peat Committee which is carrying on the investigations at Alfred is composed of four members; two representing the Ontario Government, viz., A. A. Cole, of Cobalt, Ont., chairman, and R. C. Harris of Toronto; the other two, Robert A. Ross of Montreal, who is also a member of the Lignite Utilization Board, and B. F. Haanel, of the Department of Mines, Ottawa, representing the Dominion Government.

F. Clement, of Canandagua, N.Y., was drowned in the Grand River.

Rob Hamilton Jewelry Store

BANDITS SUCCEED IN GETTING AWAY WITH $600 WORTH OF GOODS

Hamilton, July 27.—Another daring hold-up and robbery occurred last night about 9 o'clock when the jewelry store of William Cox, 104 Barton street east, was entered and watches and rings valued at $600 taken by the thieves.

The proprietor was struck unconscious by the robbers, who were both young men, then bound and gagged and left in a little room at the rear of the store.

After regaining his senses, Mr. Cox rolled along the floor to the front door and kicked upon it until the attention of passers by was attracted. The police were hurriedly summoned and an investigation was made.

The two young men entered the store and asked Mr. Cox if they could look at some watches. The jeweler was about to close the store for the night at the time, but he placed a number of watches on the show case for their inspection. At a given signal they both dashed around the counter and before he could call for help or make any resistance Mr. Cox was felled by a blow from one of the marauders. He was then bound and gagged and the thieves made their escape.

Edward O'Connor, 78 Barton street east, was arrested in connection with the robbery, charged with assault and robbery.

Autoists Given Stern Warning From Coroner

SAYS STREETS GETTING TO BE NO LONGER SAFE FOR PEDESTRIANS

Toronto, July 26.—Three deaths of children from automobile accidents occurred in the city yesterday, one child was instantly killed and two others died in hospital from the effects of accidents occurring some days ago.

Toronto's rapidly mounting death roll from automobiles led to the issue yesterday of a stern warning to drivers from Chief Coroner Graham when opening the inquest into the death of the street railway employe killed yesterday morning on McCaul street.

"The public is much worked up about these auto cases. There have been four deaths in the past 16 hours. It is getting to a pass where our streets are no longer safe, and nothing is being done. We are determined that this must stop," Chief Coroner George W. Graham told the pury which was empannelled to inquire into the death of Joseph Burton, the street railway employe who was run down and killed while working at College street east of McCaul early yesterday morning.

Assuming Serious Proportions

Bruce Card, alleged to have driven the car which ran down Burton, is under arrest and has been formally charged with manslaughter in the Police Court. The preliminary hearing of the inquest took place at the Morgue yesterday afternoon and was adjourned for a week.

In addressing the jury Chief Coroner Graham laid stress on the many auto fatalities in which no blame had been attached to the driver or to any one else, and commented that these accidents were rapidly assuming very serious proportions.

Question of Safeguards

"In this case the workman was protected by red and white lanterns. If you do not consider this sufficient evidence, then you must find this in your verdict. If you consider that this is reasonable protection, then you must bring in a verdict upon the facts as you find them in regard to any person," said the Coroner.

Find Bodies of Mountain Climbers in Crevice

Calgary, July 27.—Mrs. Stone, wife of Dr. W. E. Stone, President of Purdue University, Lafayette, who disappeared with her husband from the walking tour camp at the base of Mount Assiniboine on July 15, has been found alive at the foot of a 17-foot crevice, according to word received here last night. Dr. Stone's body was also found.

The couple left on July 15 for a four-day trip. Since then no word had been received from them.

CANADIAN APPLE CROP BETTER THAN LAST YEAR

Ottawa, July 27.—The apple crop throughout the Dominion, though seriosuly affected by recent drought, is still likely to average better than last year.

The best reports, according to the Department of Agriculture, come from New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, where there is a heavy set for all varieties. Baldwins and Kings promise well in Nova Scotia, but in other varieties there has been a heavy drop.

Quebec anticipates a crop somewhat larger than that of last year. In Ontario apples have suffered greatly from the dry weather, and a heavy crop to some 80 per cent. of that of 1920. British Columbia expects a crop about 10 per cent. better than last year's. A fair to good crop of peaches is expected in British Columbia.

NEW YORK GIRL AND BROTHER ON A LONG-DISTANCE HIKE

They expect to complete their long walk by the end of August.

Declares Backus is Under Control

HON. W. E. RANEY TAKES UP CUDGEL ON BEHALF OF GOVERNMENT

Toronto, July 27.—Although Premier Drury was on hand, it was Hon. W. E. Raney rather than his chief who took up the Drury Government's burden of replying to Hon. G. H. Ferguson's recent attacks upon the Government's surrender to Backus and its relation to the Lake-of-the-Woods control problem. Yesterday the Attorney General handed out a statement which said in part—

According to The Mail and Empire report, Mr. Howard Ferguson told his audience at Lake Simcoe on Wednesday last that the Drury Government had sold 18,000,000 cords of pulp wood to Backus at one-third of a cent a cord.

Now, Mr. Ferguson knows and The Mail and Empire also knows perfectly well, that under his agreement, Mr. Backus has to pay 80c. per cord for the spruce and 40c. per cord for the poplar, plus a bonus of $50,000. And they also know that these prices may at any time be increased at the option of the Government subject only to the increase being general to all operators.

The late Government had offered the same pulp wood at 40c. per cord for spruce and 20c. for poplar, without finding any purchaser. Mr. Ferguson did not think it worth while to mention that fact. Mr. Ferguson accuses the Government of giving Backus control of the English River and Lake-of-the-Woods water levels. Instead of doing this, the Government obtained from Mr. Backus control of the Lake-of-the-Woods water levels. That control, as Mr. Ferguson rightly says, is by the Norman Dam, which is owned by Mr. Backus. By the terms of the agreement, Mr. Backus made over to the Province the regulation forever of the Norman Dam, thus solving one of the chief difficulties of the Lake-of-the-Woods control

Black Chapter Elects Officers

L. E. STANLEY OF OTTAWA IS CHOSEN AS GRAND MASTER

Toronto, July 27.—The Grand Black Chapter of British North America brought its 46th annual session to a close last night with the election of officers for the forthcoming year. This morning the delegates will be entertained by the city to a trip around the harbor front on the Harbor Commissioner's yacht, Bethalma. In the afternoon the delegates will attend the opening of the annual convention of the Grand Orange Lodge of British America, which is to take place at two o'clock in the Victoria Hall, Queen and Berti Streets.

During the afternoon session a resolution was passed expressing syspathy for the Protestant and Unionist minorities in the south and west of Ireland and calling upon the Imperial Government to take immediate steps to safeguard their lives and property from the ruthless tyranny of the Sinn Fein. The resolution was the subject of a lengthy discussion in which practically every delegate took part. Many speakers bitterly denounced the Sinn Fein for the reign of terror in which Protestants were the principal sufferers.

Another resolution was endorsed by the chapter expressing admiration for Sir James Craig, Premier of Ulster, and his colleagues and their work as public men. The resolution concluded: "The Grand Chapter prays the Divine blessing may rest upon Sir James Craig, Premier of Ulster, and the Ulster Parliament, and enable them to stand fast for God and the truth and to work for the preservation of their religion and liberties and the best interests of the Empire."

Still another resolution was passed recommending that a committee be appointed to consider the advisability of the Orange Order erecting a factory to manufacture their own regalia.

One amendment adopted in the constitution was that the Grand Master of the Grand Orange Lodge becomes a member of the Grand Black Chapter by virtue of his office.

The report of the petitions and appeals committee recommended that certificates be sent to all past masters of preceptories; that the County Chapter of East Middlesex be extended to take in West Middlesex; that the jurisdiction of Ontario East be extended to take in four isolated preceptories in Quebec. All were endorsed. The committee of suspensions and expulsions reported that during the year there had been but few suspensions and no expulsions.

The session was presented with a photograph of Imperial Grand Master W. H. Lyons of Ireland. John Easton of Winnipeg, Past Grand Master, was presented with a jewel on his retirement from office, by W. D. McPherson of Toronto.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Grand Master, L. E. Stanley of Ottawa; Deputy Grand Master, G. B. McCready, Winnipeg; Associate Deputy Grand Master, L. H. Reid, Toronto; Grand Chaplain, Rural Dean W. H. Saunders, Montreal; Grand Registrar, J. S. Williams, Toronto (for 39th consecutive time); Deputy Grand Registrar, J. W. Belleville G.W.V.A. Condemns Interference With Justice

PROVINCIAL SECRETARY CENSURED FOR ACTION IN McFADDEN CASE—NO FAVORS TO BE ASKED FOR RETURNED SOLDIERS WHO VIOLATE LAW — NEW TENDERS TO BE ASKED FOR MEMORIAL HOME.

A special meeting of the Belleville Branch, Great War Veterans' Association was held in the association rooms last evening. A number of the members were in attendance. The object of this meeting was to finally discuss the G.W.V.A. Memorial. A number of comrades discussed the advantages of the Memorial Home, and the present need of same, as there are so many unemployed returned soldiers and members of the G.W.V.A. in Belleville, that if the home was started, it would employ a number of these men for some time. After the home was discussed for considerable time, the following motion was passed.

Moved and seconded that this association call for new tenders for G.W.V.A. Memorial Home and that same be proceeded with at once.—Motion carried unanimously.

Decoration Day

The question of the second annual Decoration Day at the cemeteries was brought up and a day decided upon, and a committee appointed to look after same, the committee being as follows: Comrades R. D. Ponton, L. G. Madden, C. A. W. Thompson and S. Mayhew. The Decoration Day will be held on Sunday, August 14th. It is the intention of the committee to have an overseas chaplain in attendance for the memorial service. The names of ex-soldiers who are buried in the two Belleville cemeteries are requsted by the secretary of the local branch. An official announcement of the Decoration Day will be made through the press later.

The following motion was passed by this special meeting re the G.W.V.A. officials acting on behalf of criminals.

Moved by Comrade R. D. Ponton, seconded by Comrade George Irving: That this branch of the G.W.V.A. protests against the Great War Veterans' Association, Provincial Command, Dominion Command, or any of its officials, in their official capacity, on behalf of the association, lending itself or assisting to reprieve a criminal, (whether such criminal is a returned soldier or not), after conviction in a Canadian Court of Justice, unless with the approval of the individual branches of the association, or unless evidence is in their possession sufficient to prove innocence, and this branch condemns the action of the Provincial Secretary for Ontario, who is reported by the press as, acting in his official capacity, in interfering in any way in the McFadden case. This branch of the association believes that our first duty is to uphold the laws of the country and respect the sanctity of life and we have every confidence in the administration of justice in Canada and in His Majesty's representatives to decide all such cases fairly and for the good of the social life of Canada.—Motion carried unanimously.

The Building Committee intend putting a clause, when calling for tenders for the new Memorial Home, that no foreign labor will be considered.

Railway Heads to Discuss Wages with Brotherhood

CONFERENCE ON PROPOSED REDUCTIONS WILL BE HELD IN MONTREAL THURSDAY

Montreal, July 26.—Chief executives of the four big brotherhoods of railway employees in the United States and Canada, together with Canadian vice-presidents of the same bodies, have asked Canadian railways for a conference on wage reductions now effective in Canada. Although a despatch from Cleveland yesterday announced that the conference would be held in Montreal with the Canadian Railway Association tomorrow the formal request for it was only communicated to the offices of the railway association of Canada this morning and in consequence it is announced that the conference cannot take place until Thursday. The purpose of the conference is not known to the railways, except that in a general way it attaches to wage reductions.

Possibility of Four Legislatures

London, July 27.—The possibility that four legislatures may be established in Ireland, one each in the provinces of Ulster, Munster, Connaught and Leinster, under a central national parliament, is hinted at this morning by the Sketch, which says: "It need not be assumed, as it is done in so many quarters, that under unification there would be only two governing authorities under a federal Irish parliament. It has almost been overlooked that there are four great provinces in Ireland, each with historical individuality."

PARRY SOUND CHIEF MYSTERIOUSLY MISSING

Parry Sound, July 27.—Thomas Spencer, chief of the police force of Parry Sound, having failed to return from a vacation, the town council has dismissed him from office and approved A. Griffith to act temporarily. It is alleged that chief has been entrusted with the commission to buy "hootch," while he was attending the police convention in Montreal, but neither the chief, the money nor the booze had put in an appearance when Ontario became bone dry.

Motor Car Victims of One Day in Toronto

MAJORITY OF VICTIMS WERE CHILDREN

Toronto, July 26—Backing up his motor car in response to a call from friends at 162 Robert Street, last night, Myer Gorman, 220 Claremont Street, ran over two little girls, Ray Cohen, aged 4, and Cecile Cohen, aged 6, of 107 Robert Street, killing Ray almost instantly, and seriously injuring her sister. Cecile is in the Hospital for Sick Children with two broken arms and chest injuries, and the body of the other child is in the Morgue, awaiting inquest, which will be opened to-day. Gorman, who fainted after he had conveyed the injured children to the hospital, was compelled to go to bed on his arrival home. It was decided to await the result of the inquest before proceeding further against him.

Six-Year-Old Victim

Roy Cornell, aged six, of 232 Morley Avenue, who was struck by a motor car on Morley Avenue, died in the Hospital for Sick Children yesterday of a fractured skull. The body was removed to the morgue, where an inquest will be held.

Skull Fractured

Mrs. P. J. Carey, 68 Dunn Avenue, sustained a fractured skull when the auto in which she was riding, owned by her husband and driven by Mrs. Vera Doty, 7 Willow Avenue, was struck by an unidentified motor truck at the corner of Duncan and Richmond Streets yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Carey was thrown against the steel framework of the car by the impact, sustaining the injuries mentioned. The driver of the truck, the police say, did not stop to ascertain what damage he had done to the other vehicle and passengers. Mrs. Carey was removed to her home in a motor car. Her condition is serious.

Husband Tells of Big Change

"The Way Tanlac Restored My Wife Is Nothing Short Of Wonderful," He Says

"What Tanlac has done for my wife is nothing short of wonderful, and I'm glad to recommend it to others," said Earl George Bradley, well-known electric operator on the Dominion Power and Transmission Co., residing at Ancaster, Ont., while at the Parke & Parke Drug Store in Hamilton, the other day.

"Nearly a year ago my wife suffered a severe attack of influenza which developed into pneumonia, and after this she gained strength very slowly. Her appetite was so poor and her stomach was so disordered she could scarcely eat anything, and she complained of feeling tired and worn out all the time. She couldn't sleep nights and mornings seemed more tired than on going to bed. In this awful condition she could hardly stay up, to say nothing of doing her housework."

"But Tanlac soon brought about a great change in her condition. She has taken four bottles now and her appetite is good, and she has gained so much in weight and strength she says she hardly feels like the same person. She sleeps well, too, and Tanlac has done her a world of good in every way, and she is still gaining in weight and strength."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville at Ostrom's Drug Store and by the leading druggists everywhere.

THAT RIOT AT PICTON

Herb Maracle didn't report for work yesterday morning, being a little strained from doing his share in helping Deseronto score 100 points in the riot at the last of the ball game. Herb says that about 25 of the Picton bullies piled upon him, but quick reinforcements routed the attackers. Josh Maracle, the good centre fielder for Deseronto, is said to have picked one of the Picton rioters and threw him over his head like he was throwing a ball from centre to the plate.—Deseronto correspondence to Kingston Standard.

Peterborough is greatly peeved over their defeat at Port Hope and can blame no persons but the Port Hope crowd and th. umpire. How about blaming the playing of the Peterborough team for a change? As we see it, base umpires are no worse in Port Hope than in Peterborough or Oshawa. Oshawa well remembers their game in Peterborough when Umpire Phalen called a raw one on Walter Fair at second base. And needless to say, Lindsay well recollects the raw deal the Greybirds got at Oshawa.—Lindsay Warder.

THE STREET OF MANY FAKIRS

Berlin, July 26.—"The street of Many Fakirs"—the section of the Friedrichstrasse between Unter den Linden and Koch street—may soon lose the right to its exotic title, won by virtue of the varied and questionable commerce which thrives upon its sidewalks and crossings, for an agitation has been started to "clean it up."

Every article from jumping jacks to fine Oriental rugs may be purchased from the vendors who infest the street, eternally crying their wares.

The chief complaint against the character of the street, however, is that thieves use it continually as a clearing-place, to market their "hauls." Not infrequently a ragged man will offer most expensive imported fabrics for suiting, in odd bolt lots, at ridiculous figures. Much of this stuff, the police feel certain has been stolen, but it is difficult to fix the crime on the street vendor.

Victims of the various drug habits find their chief source of supply on this street.

New Rink For Kingston This Year

Kingston, July 26.—Kingston is going to have a new hockey rink this winter, to be known as "The Jock Harty Rink." This, in brief, is the welcome announcement made by the Athletic Board of Control of Queen's University. The rink has been talked of for several years and was beginning to seem as far off as the new hotel until to-day's good news. No one in the city who has attended a hockey match in the last ten years has to be told how badly the rink is needed; few people have to be reminded how great a benefit it will be to the city. To telephone on the afternoon of a match and be sure of a good seat is a change from standing in line for hours, three days before the game and, unless you are lucky, on the night of the match as well.

The Board of Control had a happy inspiration when they named the new rink. Lovers of hockey, not only in Kingston, but throughout the Dominion, will be gratified at the Board's action is commemorating the late Dr. J. Harty in "The Jock Harty Rink." No one in the history of Queen's did so much as player and coach for the game of hockey as the great player, whose name will live in the magnificent new rink.

The present rink will be removed and the curling rink moved forward to the site of the present skating rink. The new structure will [illegible] at right angles and the main entrance will be on Arch street.

OUR FIRST LAW COURT

WAS ESTABLISHED IN CANADA 200 YEARS AGO.

Annapolis Saw the First Administration of British Justice In What Is Now Our Dominion—Some of the Sentences May Seem Severe to Us But There Was No Capital Punishment.

TWO hundred years ago last April the first Court of Judicature to administer the common law of England within what is now the Dominion of Canada was established in his majesty' garrison at Annapolis Royal, Nova Scotia. The procedure of that first court and the methods of punishment employed by the court are told in an interesting article in the first issue of the Dalhousie Review, which has just been published at Halifax. Mr. Justice Chisholm of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, the writer of the article, points out that from the time of Governor Phillips to the time when Governor Cornwallis received his commission and entered upon the discharge of his duties the laws of Virginia were applied and were made "the rule and pattern" for the Government of Nova Scotia.

The article reads in part: "The court established by Governor Phillips and his Council was invested with the powers ordinarily exercised by an English common law court. It had jurisdiction in both civil and criminal matters, and a perusal of the original minutes of his Majesty's Council at Annapolis Royal will disclose the varied character of the causes which came before our first court for adjudication. It was a common law court; that is to say, it administered the common low—that collection of principles which constitutes the basis of the administration of justice in England, as distinguished from the maxims of the Roman code generally known as the civil law.

"The establishment of a court in Nova Scotia two centuries ago to administer the great system of jurisprudence to which we owe in so large a measure the development and security of our most important rights and interests was no small event. It is eminently proper that the Bench and Bar of Canada should suitably celebrate its bi-centenary.

"It had a small beginning in that old fort. The members of the court were not trained lawyers, and there is nothing to show that a regularly admitted or certificated lawyer ever pleaded before it. Disputes between individuals were dealt with on due notice to all the parties interested, and after proper hearing were disposed of in accordance with the usual forms of law. The proceedings normally began with the setting forth by the complainant of his complaint in a petition, letter or other writing addressed to the Council. Upon receipt of this all parties were summoned to appear before the Council, that they might be examined and heard. The case was then reserved, and within a very short time a decision was given.

"On the 24th of July, 1732, the storekeeper of the Board of Ordnance reported to the Council that William Haw had sold liquor without license to artificers employed on the King's work, making them so drunk that they neglected their business, to the prejudice of the service. It was also charged against him that he spoke very disrespectfully of the Governor, with cursings and threatenings to shoot him. He was asked what he had to say in his own defence, and he answered that he was drunk, and remembered nothing of the matter. The board were of opinion that he should be severely punished, and it was voted that on the following day, between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock, 'he be whip'd at the Cart's Tail; and receive ten lashes with a cat of nine tails on his bare back at the ffort gate. Ten at Mr. Blondin's in the Cape, ten more on his return from Mr. Blondin's at the ffort gate, and in the lower town vizit, ten lashes opposite to his own house, ten more between Mr. Douglass' and Dr. Watt's houses, being in all fifty; and that before he is released out of prison he should find two good suretys to be bound in fifty pounds each, and himself in one hundred pounds for his good behaviour for a year and a day.'

"On September 22, 1726, Robert Nichols, the Governor's servant, was sentenced for an assault on the Governor as follows:

" 'The punishment, therefore, inflicted on thee is to sit upon a gallowes three days, half an hour each day, with a rope about thy neck and a paper upon your breast whereon shall be writt in capitall letters "Audacious Villain," and afterwards thou art to be whipt at a cart's tail from the prison up to the uppermost house of the Cape and from thence back again to the prison receiving each hundred paces five stripes upon your bare back with a catt of nine tails and then thou art to be turned over for a soldier.'

"In 1734 Mary Davis sent a petition to the council setting forth that Jean Picot, wife of Lewis Thebauld, had scandalously reported of her that she had murdered two children. Witnesses were examined, and the report was found to be groundless. The court directed that Jean Picot should be ducked on the following Saturday at high water. Then, at the request of Mary Davis that the sentence be reversed and that said Picot should ask her pardon on Sunday at the church door, it was ordered accordingly.

"In no case was capital punishment inflicted by the court at Annapolis. In fact, Governor Armstrong was of opinion that the court was not empowered to try capital crimes or to inflict condign punishment upon those guilty of them."

WAY TO MAKE THUMB FOUND IN FRANCE

Paris, July 25—Surgeons have found a method of remedying the loss of a thumb. They take one of the patient's big toes and graft it on the hand. The operation is in two parts, because when a toe it entirely severed grafting is not always successful. Half of a toe is now severed and grafted and after a fortnight the rest of the toe is cut off and grafted upon the first half.

Reports from Dublin were regarded in London as encourging.

CURBING MOTOR MADNESS BY REVOCATION OF LICENSE.

Paved streets in the cities and towns and better highways in the country has resulted in vastly improved traffic conditions for pleasure and business motoring, but it has also produced a species of motor madness which is taking a heavy toll of lives, causing injuries and destroying valuable property. The lure of good roads produces in the minds of some motorists a reckless desire to speed up their cars to the limit. While only a small proportion of motorists may yield to motor madness, the proportion is large enough to cause endless trouble, sorrow and suffering for pedestrians unfortunate enough to be mowed down by the juggernauts, as well as careful motorists who fail to get out of the way in time. The remedy seems to have been evolved in Massachusetts, where no one can drive a car without a license, and where reckless driving results in cancellation of the license to drive a motor car. Commenting upon the Massachusetts Motor Car Act, the Rochester Democrat-Chronicle says:

> Massachusetts has found a way to stem the rising tide of automobile killings.
> Deaths this year from motor cars have been reduced to one-third the number recorded for the same period of observation last year, and there are 45,000 more cars.
> The device used against automobile killers is the simple and universally practicable one of the revocation of the license.
> State Registrar of Motor Vehicles for the Bay State has been revoking licenses right and left in recent weeks, and the result is plain to be read in the falling off of serious smash-ups due to speeding and reckless driving.
> The causes of such recovation are interesting to read. One that occurs frequently is the simple statement "not a proper person to operate." Just what the Registrar counts as unfitting a driver to hold a license is not stated, but the indication is that the general character of the holder of the license enters into the account.
> Another cause of revocation is drunkenness; while still another that occurs frequently is that the Registrar is "unable to find that the accident occurred without serious fault on the part of the driver."
> It has been demonstrated that fines and even prison sentences do not deter the reckless and vicious motorist. Massachusetts has taken the only sure and certain way to keep undesirable citizens from operating motor cars, and that is to take their licenses from them. Other states might try this way. It seems to work in our sister state.

COUNCIL AND SCHOOL BOARD NOT FAR APART ON COLEMAN WARD SCHOOL QUESTION.

When construction will begin on the new Coleman Ward School is still undecided on account of the deadlock which exists between the City Council and the Board of Education. The City Council refuses to pass the money bylaw authorizing the issue of bonds to finance the new school building, and although the Board of Education has awarded the contract for construction the work can not begin. It seems that the easiest way to settle the question would be to call for new tenders, especially since the successful tenderers for the Coleman Ward School have secured the preliminary contract for the new Albert College buildings. This places them in a more favorable position, with all their plant here, and no doubt they would be glad to submit new figures for the Coleman Ward School.

The more building which can be started this season in Belleville the less likelihood for unemployment and hard times this winter.

If it is possible to make a start on the War Veterans' Memorial Home building and the Coleman Ward School this season the problem of unemployment here will be negligible, as the new Albert College construction will provide work for an increasing number of men as the work progresses.

The City Council's position is that new tenders should be called for, believing that a considerable sum can be saved on account of lower prices of material and lower wages. Enough time has been lost now for new tenders to have been received twice over and the contract re-awarded—Why not call for new tenders at once and get the work under way this fall?

In the United States one out of every eleven inhabitants possesses an automobile, making a total of 9,211,205 motor vehicles in that country. Uncle Sam should be careful not to permit the whole auto fleet getting together on one road at one time, for the cars would never get untangled in this generation.

Toronto civic officials have the exclusive use of sixty-eight motor cars, while New York civic officials have to be satisfied with a fleet of twenty-five taxi-cabs. Toronto's finance commissioner is the latest official of that city to apply for a personal motor car at the expense of the city, and the Telegram registers vigorous objection, pointing out that the civic motor fleet will cost the Toronto ratepayers $275,000 this year. Of course this includes the fire department, but the accounts are so kept that the upkeep of the City Hall fleet of sixty-eight motor cars is so merged in the general expense that it is not distinctly noticeable. Looks as if one of Toronto's greatest civic leaks consisted of an abnormal leakage of gasoline.

A London tailor was lately advertising his readiness to give away several thousand roubles with every suit of clothes that he sold. By the way, I suppose, of encouraging him the Bolshevist authorities have just issued a statement of the number of roubles available. Since the Red Government have been in power they have printed one billion one hundred and sixty-seven thousand millions of them. Substantially more than a million tons of gold would be required to redeem them all at par.

EATING IN ENGLISH
Philadelphia Public Ledger

Many of our doughboys in France, confronted with the inscrutabilities of a menu printed in French, resorted to the cackling of barnyard fowl to order eggs, mooed for milk and possibly neighed for horsemeat. But one of the ineffable joys of coming back to God's own country, they said, would be to call "ham and" by its good old Yankee monicker, to get sinkers and coffee without hunting through the pages of a pocket dictionary and order apple pie of mother's make in mother's language. Nothing ministers to nostralgia like having to taste all food with a foreign tongue.

Silesia will continue as a potential firebrand as long as its boundaries remain undetermined. And until they are permanently redrawn both the Germans and the Poles are bound to continue in a state of feverish suspense. Notwithstanding the fact that the plebiscite was held months ago, the upreme Council, the supreme arbiter in the matter, has chosen again and again to postpone its decision. Week after week has passed, and month after month. Instead of announcing its decision at the earliest practicable moment after the holding of the plebiscite, it has acted as though the plebiscite has never occurred, and according to the latest information, the Supreme Council, chiefly, it is said, at the instance of Premier Briand, has postponed its next meeting until September. Judging from its procedure in the past, it is conjectural whether from even the September meeting will come a final decision.

RED GERANIUMS
(By Martha Haskell Clark)

Life did not bring me silken gowns,
Nor jewels for my hair,
Nor sight of gabled, foreign towns,
In distant countries fair,
But I can glimpse, beyond my pane,
a green and friendly hill,
And red geraniums aflame upon my window-sill.

The brambled cares of everyday,
The tiny, humdrum things,
May bind my feet when they would stray,
But still my heart has wings
While red geraniums are bloomed against my window-glass,
And low above my green-sweet hill
the gipsy wind-clouds pass.

And if my dreaming ne'er comes true,
The brightest and the best,
But leave me lone my journey through
I'll set my heart at rest,
And thank Thee, God, for home-sweet things, a green and friendly hill,
And red geraniums aflame upon my window-sil.

"Maybe his wife was telling him how to hang the picture."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Obliging Salesman

The woman shopper looked and looked, but seemed to be unable to find anything to satisfy her. The obliging clerk pulled down box after box in an attempt to make a sale. Finally the woman picked up her gloves and parasol and observed:

"I don't think I'll buy anything today. I'm sorry to have troubled you, but the fact is I was just looking for a friend."

"Oh, that's all right. It was no trouble at all, I assure you," the clerk answered. "In fact, if you think your friend might be in any of the few remaining boxes, I'll open them, too!"—Harper's Magazine.

"No; worse than that, mother!"—and the young wife sobbed afresh.

"Tell me at once!" indignantly demanded her mother.

"He—he just yawned."

On Tuesday evening a masquerade was held at the West Belleville Playgrounds and a large crowd of masqueraders and onlookers were in attendance. Dancing was the order of the evening, and Miss V. Wrightmeyer, the supervisor, is to be commended on her splendid work. The Irish jig by Lillian Marsh and Dorothy Gibson caused much merriment among the little folks and brought back the memories of days gone by to the older ones. A solo dance by Dorothy Croft was a feature of the evening not to be forgotten. Everett Stevens was the violinist for the evening and ably assisted in the tripping of the light fantastic. The ice cream booth in charge of Mrs. Carter was largely patronized. The winners for the best costumes were Vincent Hughes, who took the role of an Indian, and Elsie Mossman, as a fairy. Messrs. McElrath and Symons were the judges.

TORONTO, AS PICTURED BY MONTREAL JUDGE

Montreal, July 27.—"Anyone who has a preference for Toronto must be crazy. If I had you examined by an alienist, he would pronounce you insane," said Recorder Semple to-day to John Davis, who was charged with being drunk. Davis had told the Recorder that he would rather be back in Toronto than where he was.

"What do you mean by insulting Montreal like that?" continued Mr. Semple in his fiercest manner. "Toronto people come to this city and say: 'Look at these Montrealers, how they lie about the streets intoxicated," while all the time it is their own citizens whom they see." Recorder Semple went on to say that he hoped his statement would be published in every newspaper in Canada, and particularly in Toronto papers, for so many Toronto people came here and misbehaved themselves.

"You are doubly guilty," concluded Recorder Semple, "by lying drunk on the street, and in coming from Toronto. Costs or five days."

ON HUSBAND'S TRAIL

Brockville, Ont., July 27.—Mrs. Gordon Sloan, of Oshawa, was in town to-day consulting with the police regarding the disappearance of her husband, who, while she was visiting in Toronto, sold the househould furniture and left for parts unknown. The woman traced her husband to Delta, about 25 miles from here, where relatives of his reside, and while there she learned that he had gone to Montreal.

Marie dearest,
Ouch! — I just looked up rather suddenly, and hurt my poor old sunburned neck. But oh, its such fun diving off the end of that pier! I was most terribly scared the first time, but now I could do it forever!!
— But water and sun, and then some more water and sun, don't exactly get on with one's 'pink and white' complexion, — as I found out to my sorrow. — But Campana's Italian Balm came to my rescue again!! All you need to do is rub on a bit of the lotion, and your skin is soothed, smoothed and whitened.
Lots of love,
Peggy.

START TO PAVE HIGHWAY THROUGH WHITBY TOWN

Whitby, July 27.—Work will commence to-morrow morning on the portion of the Kingston Highway, through the middle of Whitby for which the town is responsible. The Town Council to-night gave the Warren Paving Company's contract its final vote and the company's men will begin at once. Part of their equipment will be brought from Toronto and some from road work at Bowmanville. The strip for which the town pays, is about three-quarters of a mile in length and will cost about $80,000.

There is a well-defined rumor current here that the Highways Department will this season complete the highways as far as Whitby. The contract has been let for the three miles west from Pickering to Dunbarton. This leaves only 10 miles between Whitby and the end of the paved road at West Hill.

Irish settlement not likely before Christmas, Chamberlain told British House of Commons yesterday.

FINE REMITTED

An Order-in-Council has been passed remitting the fine of $200 imposed on Lee Heong, a chinaman, of Brighton, recently convicted of a breach of the Ontario Temperance Act. The order was passed following the reports of the Commissioner of Police and the Board of License Commissioners for Ontario. It was clearly a technical breach of the Act and the Chinaman acted on the advice of the police magistrate of Brighton. While the liquor has not yet been returned to Lee Heong, there is no doubt it will as soon as he provides a proper place in which to receive the same.

Couple Missing in Mountains

Banff, Alta., July 26.—Dr. Stone, President of Purdue University, Lafayette, and his wife, are reported missing from the walking tour camp at Mount Assiniboine, and are believed to have met with some serious accident. Dr. and Mrs. Stone are both enthusiastic Alpinists and experienced mountain climbers, and were attending the walking tour in order to be in fit condition for the big Alpine Club meet at Lake O'Hara this week.

The missing couple left the Mount Assiniboine Club a week ago last Sunday, July 17, to traverse the surrounding country, and took enough food with them for about four days' outing. Nothing has been heard from them since. After four days the parties at the camp became alarmed and set out in search for the missing couple.

On Sunday the toilet articles belonging to Dr. and Mrs. Stone were found at the base of Mount Eanon, the unscaled peak close to Mount Assiniboine. Food was also found by search parties, and last week the remains of a fire were found in a crevice.

SEVERE LOSS BY FIRE

Fire caused by lightning, early on Tuesday morning completely destroyed the barns on the farm of William Barrie, Otonabee township, Peterboro county. Most of this year's crops and 10 calves were lost in the fire. The damage is estimated at $10,000, of which $6,000 is covered by insurance. Efforts by neighbors to save the contents of the buildings and check the fire were fruitless. The distance separating the house from the outbuildings prevented the fire from spreading to the house. This was Mr. Barrie's first year on the farm.

Figures Show Better Times For Railways

STILL OPERATING WITH DEFICITS, BUT SMALLER THAN IN 1920

Ottawa, July 27.—Canadian steam railways in 1920 experienced one of the most unfavorable years in their history, states the preliminary report on railway statistics for the year ended December 31, 1920, issued by the transportation branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics

The rate of operating expenses to the operating revenue of Canadian roads was 97.17 per cent. in 1920 as against 92.2 per cent for 1919, and compared with an average of 71 per cent. for the period 1900 to 1917, inclusive, the range for these 18 years being from 64.7 per cent. to 74.4 per cent. According to the United States Bureau of Railway Economics, the operating ratio of the American railways for 1920 was 93.59, and for 1919 85.25.

The prospects for 1921, says the report, are somewhat brighter.

March Shows Revenue

The monthly operating reports for January, February and March show a slight improvement over the same months of 1920, although they show an operating deficit for the first two months and a net operating revenue of only $1,194,118 for March.

Of the 56 railways operating, 31 paid operating expenses, and 25 had a deficit. Of these 31 roads, after paying taxes, interest, rents, etc., 19 had a corporate income of $36,581,137. The corporate loss of the other 17 roads amounted to $79,669,825. Of this amount the Canadian Northern System corporate loss was $40,501,705; Canadian Government lines, $9,432,354; Grand Trunk, $4,519,808, and Grand Trunk Pacific, $17,456,359. The corporate loss of the Canadian Government lines, says the report, does not include interest on funded and unfunded debt; the figure for the Canadian Northern System, however, includes interest.

Only Seven Had Dividends

Only seven roads, says the report declared dividends. These were as follows: Southern, $450,000; Canadian Pacific, $29,227,276; Hereford (M.C.) $32,000; Massawippey Valley (B. & M E.), $24,000; Napierville, Junction, $36.000; Quebec Central, $169,080; Thousand Islands, $4,200.

Over 96 per cent. of the increase in operating expenses was in salaries and wages, which increased about 25 per cent., or from $233,323,074 to $290,431,221, and about 14 per cent. was in the cost of fuel, which increased from $52,563,331 to $66,983,301. The number of employees increased 16 per cent., while the fuel consumption increased 970,842 tons or 10 per cent.

Passenger Traffic Lower

The revenue freight carried one mile increased 18 per cent., but the passenger traffic fell off 137 013,216 passenger miles, or 3.7 per cent. This decrease was caused, not by fewer people travelling, but by a shorter average passenger journey, which was reduced from 76.3 miles to 68.6 miles.

Miles of road operated in Canada during 1920 were 39,196, against 39,058 in 1919. The total capital of all roads in 1920 was $2,038,222,267, against $2,036,165,606 the previous year.

Wedding Bells

TOWNER—FOSTER

A very quiet wedding took place on Wednesday, July 27th at the home of Dr. Yeomans, when his neice Laurel Gertrude, only daughter of Mr. W. E. Foster, K.C., Shoreham, Cobourg, was united in marriage with Mr. Bob G. Towner, of Byron Centre, Michigan. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Kerr, of St. Andrew's church. Miss Strethel Walton played the wedding march, and during the signing of the register sang "Until".

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a navy blue embroidered jersey suit, with small black ostrich-trimmed hat, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and baby's breath. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Mary Yeomans, who wore a dress of pale grey embroidered Canton crepe with bouquet of pink delphinium and baby's breath. The groom was assisted by Mr. John Herlihy of Boston, Mass. The honeymoon will be spent at Torch Lake in Northern Michigan.

AIRPLANE DELIVERY

Returning from an extensive delivery trip to Western points, the Philip Morris Airplane will pass over Belleville on Thursday. Those of our readers who are interested in the expansion of aerial delivery will have an unique opportunity of seeing what was the first plane used in Canada for the carrying of cigarettes from factory to depot, winging its homeward way enroute for the Montreal airdrome on the Philip Morris Cigarettes. More than usual interest is attached to this event on account of the practice of the pilot to throw down packages of cigarettes for dwellers in the different towns passed over. In order to do this the plane will drop to a low level, and circling the town, will unload a quantity of paper streamers each bearing a package of Philip Morris cigarettes. This method of delivery is almost identical with that used during the war. After passing over Belleville, the airplane will take a route covering Kingston, Brockville, Prescott, Morrisburg, Cornwall and then direct to Montreal. Dwellers on this line of route should watch for the passing of the plane and be alert to get their gift packets of Philip Morris cigarettes as they come fluttering down from the clouds.

CAUGHT IN A HYDRANT, BOY FREED BY FIREMEN

New York, July 27.—The Dutch boy who plugged a hole in the dyke with his hand and saved all Holland is a prototype of five-year-old Davey McCluskey of Harlem. Davey's arm got stuck in a fire hydrant for half an hour before six firemen took the hydrant apart and freed him.

Davey and some chums found the cap of the hydrant loose and unscrewed it. Davey shoved his arm in up to the shoulder. When he tried to withdraw it he could not because of the suction. He did not even whimper while being rescued and the firemen shook hands with him and called him a 'game little kid."

WILL ASK GOVERNMENTS TO HURRY PUBLIC WORKS

The Dominion Board of the G. A. U. V. will request the Federal, Provincial and Municipal Governments to expedite operations on public works, "in order to prevent an unemployment situation unparalleled in the history of Canada next winter." The board will also urge that preference be given in the matter of employment to ex-service men on these works.

GAS FROM OAK LOGS IS THE LATEST

London, July 25.—Gas made from old oak logs is now being supplied successfully to the inhabitants of Steyning in Sussex. Other towns are rapidly following suit. It is claimed that this wood gas has practically the same heating and lighting properties as coal gas and its use means a saving of more than half a dollar per 1,000 cubic feet to the consumer.

The Steyning gas works being threatened with closure owing to the prohibitive price of coal, about $25 a ton, the carbonization of wood was resorted to as an experiment, with the result that wood gas has been definitely adopted as an illuminant until the price of coal comes down.

At Birmingham, old road paving blocks have been converted into wood gas with equally satisfactory results.

Every day something out of the ordinary is seen by somebody. Let us hear about it. Phone 1248, or write The Intelligencer.

Park Vandals

O.A.—Saturday morning I was passing through Corby Park and one of the park employes drew my attention to the flower bed facing the William street entrance which had been totally stripped of flowers. Not only had the flowers been stolen but the stalks had been broken close to the ground. The earth covering the flower bed was marked with many small footprints, bare feet and booted feet, indicating that small children were responsible. Parents should teach their children to respect property not their own and particularly flowers in public parks.

Lack of System

M.E.—On occasions, too numerous to mention, I have noticed in some ice cream parlors that several patrons wear frowns and long faces. The reason apparently is, lack of system in serving among the waitresses. The early bird, in this case, instead of receiving the ice cream, is left to amuse himself, for twenty or thirty minutes, by studying and memorizing the menu or any other means he may devise. I, myself, have been among those in first and served last. It is anything but pleasant and soon discourages a person from patronizing an establishment where the service is as stated.

Red Noses Disappearing

H.O.—Lately I have seen a number of hoboes in and about the city. There seems nothing peculiar about that fact owing to the scarcity of work throughout the province at present, but what struck me as rather odd was the fact that only about one of a dozen of these hoboes now possess the red nose which in past years was such a familiar sight t ous. They seem to think that Nobody Knows How Dry I Am" is now the National Anthem, judging by the frequency with which they whistle it, this and the fact that their noses are a natural color seem to fit together, one explains the other.

TURKS ASK ALLIES TO STOP THE WAR

London, July 27.—Turkey has asked the Allies to intervene to stop the war in Asia Minor, according to the Daily Express.

Greek advances in Aisa Minor have been continuous. The Turks lately have been obliged to transfer their seat of government, and the Turkish Nationalist Assembly to Sivas, according to Constantinople despatches to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

TRUCK GOES THROUGH BRIDGE INTO CREEK

Grimsby, July 26.—Two men were very seriously injured and four others bruised and battered when the big five-ton truck of M. Ofield Sons, rose growers, went through the steel bridge on Elm street. The truck dropped at least 15 feet before it rested on the rock bottom of the Forty Mile Creek.

BABY'S BODY DISCOVERED UNDER PEW IN CHURCH

Montreal, July 26.—The body of a baby, apparently less than a year old, was found tucked away under a pew in the St. Louis de France Church this afternoon. The child had apparently been dead for a day or two. It is believed the baby died a natural death and that its parents, too poor to bury it, left it in the church.

LEAP FROM BRIDGE

Ottawa, July 27.—A man whose body has not yet been recovered committed suicide by jumping off the Interprovincial Bridge near the Hull wharf early this morning Two residents of Hull saw the man climb onto the rail, but were unable to prevent him from jumping.

GREAT INTEREST MANIFEST IN GOLF

Algonquin Hotel, N.B., July 27.—St. Andrews is almost filled with tourists. The heat in the United States and in Canadian Cities has driven many to Fithe sea shore. This has been considered a warm day for St. Andrews with a temperature of 62 and 70 but what is that compared to 84 in Montreal, 83 in Ottawa, 87 in Toronto and in Quebec 78. The links are crowded every day by enthusiastic golfers. Yesterday saw the beginning of the play for the Passanoquoddy cup. Ladies' handicap presented by Mr. F. H. Markey, of Montreal. This competition will not be finished until Friday. This match is played on the eighteen hole course. Great progress is being made with the installation of the water works. It is now almost certain that the work will be finished by September, although it has not been pleasant having the street torn up, but not one has grumbled for the resulting benefit will be so great.

Western Crop Outlook Best For Six Years

Generally Speaking, Grain Will Yield Well in Three Provinces.

Saskatoon, July 26.—Crop reports covering Northern and Central Saskatchewan received by B. T. Chappel, General Superintendent Canadian National Railways, indicate that a bumper crop is probable in the northern part of the district. In the northeast section the crop is suffering from too much rain. South of the Goose Lake line to the South Saskatchewan river rain is badly needed. The grain is ripening fast in the hot weather, and a light yield is indicated, while to the north of the line a good crop is probable. Grasshoppers have done little damage. Considerable hail damage is reported from the Goose Lake district.

SOUTH ALBERTA NEEDS RAIN

Lethbridge, July 25.—Rain fell during the week-end at MacLeod and at some points south of Lethbridge, but only showers were recorded. All grains need a good soaking rain. Rye cutting is well under way.

Winnipeg, July 25.—The Canadian Pacific Railway weekly crop report issued today says:

"A week of abnormally hot weather, with only light showers over scattered areas, has resulted in lowering the anticipated yield, although one good rainfall would still benefit. But while it must be admitted that the intensely hot weather of the past month has reduced expectations, it had not impaired the prospect for a better average crop than any since 1915.

RUST NOT EXTENSIVE.

"The campaign against grasshoppers has been successful, and the loss from this cause is minimized. Hail over scattered areas has caused some damage, but not so severe as the previous week. Rust has affected some crops, but not extensively. Live stock is all doing well.

"Most of Saskatchewan would welcome rain, as it would prevent shrinkage in the expected yield, especially on light soils.

"Along the Edmonton, Dunvegan & British Columbia Railway there has been liberal rain and the crops show every indication of a heavy yield."

BEST SINCE 1915.

Delegates who arrived in Toronto yesterday from the West to attend the meeting of the Canadian Council of Agriculture are very optimistic, on the whole, in regard to the crop situation in the West. Indeed, they state that it will probably be the best crop since 1915, which, of course, was a record year. While there are districts in the West which have been affected by dry weather, the outlook, they say, is infinitely better than last year. The harvesting of rye is being carried on in many parts of Saskatchewan and Manitoba and in southern Alberta at the present time, with an odd field of wheat being cut in the more southerly districts of all three provinces.

TEN DAYS EARLIER.

The crop is 10 days earlier than last year. In Manitoba it is very early. Taking the provinces as a whole, Manitoba probably shows a better uniform condition than either of the other two. The yield per acre, however, in Manitoba, may not prove as high as in Saskatchewan, where prospects are for a 50 per cent. larger yield than in 1920, provided favorable weather continues for another ten days. If such conditions prevails, Saskatchewan will be guaranteed the best yield it has had since 1915.

FISHING CHIEF PASTIME OF MEN

Algonquin Hotel, N. B., July 26—All day the motor boats have been chug chugging down the harbour and out into the bay for it is glorious fishing weather. The sky has been overcast nearly all day with the sun peeping through now and then. Everyone knows that the fish bite better on a day like this and every available motor has been engaged. Almost as early as sunrise they started out and only at sunset will they all be in.

The chief catch this year is cod, haddock seem rather scarce though once in a while some one lands a big one. Some polleck also are caught but not as many as in former years. While the men are fishing the women have been playing bridge or puzzling out the fascinating stitches for the new sweaters. It is hard to believe that with the thermometer here about seventy and sixty-two in the cities it is soaring to eighty-four in Montreal, eighty-two in Quebec, eighty-one in Ottawa, eighty-one in Toronto and seventy-two in London.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

HOPE HAMPTON WINS PRAISE

One of the many interesting episodes in a "Modern Salome" in which Hope Hampton makes her screen appearance at Griffin's for the last time tonight represents the Court of King Herod of Ancient times, it is the incident where the famous Salome does her famous dance of enchantment at the end of which the monarch offers her whatever she desires as a gift and she asks for the head of John the Baptist, the story nararted in the Scriptures, inspired the dramatic poem by Oscar Wilde, Recollections of the Way. This famous dance has been performed by different artistes is woven into the plot of the picture, through an hallucination suffered by the Heroine in which she imagines herself to be the famous Salome of old.

The picture contains many exciting moments and holds the spectators' attention from start to the finish of the film, mention might be made of the large expenditure of money that was made for costumes and the large cast that is supporting Miss Hampton also the wonderful sets of scenery that was used which cost a fair-sized fortune.

A good educational film, entitled "Frozen Thunder" giving a glimpse of the Glaciers of far away Chile.

Joe Webber and Lew Fields famous for their Comedy work on the stage for the past forty years, also add to the program in a skit showing what they would do to speeding motorists if they had a court of their own.

Screen Snapshots offers a lot of inside informtion about the movie stars past and present, which is always interesting, "Velvet Fingers" as usual full of action and also a screen magazine round out a program of variety and quality that is bound to please the most exacting movie patron.

Splitting Hairs May Delay The Irish Settlement

THIRTY-SIX SINN FEINERS MAY STAY IN JAIL BECAUSE LEADERS DO NOT WISH TO RECOGNIZE BRITAIN'S RIGHT TO IMPRISON THEM BY ASKING RELEASE—WILL BE RELEASED FOR MEETING.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, July 28.—It has been stated frequently that the British Government is willing to release thirty-six members of the Da'l Eireann who are in prison or in internment camps, if De Valera will but make the request.

It is said on the other hand, however, that Sinn Fein leaders are reluctant to ask for their liberation lest it appear that they recognize Great Britain's right to imprison representatives of the Irish Republic.

How this difficulty, if it exists at all, will be circumvented, is not apparent at the moment, but the view is taken that certainly before very long the Dailities will be released to participate in the Irish Parliament meeting which, it is believed in many quarters, already has been arranged for.

Stays Five Days on Rocky Ledge Until Rescued

MRS. STONE TELLS HOW HER HUSBAND FELL TO HIS DEATH

Calgary, July 28.—The first details of a statement by Mrs. Stone, wife of Dr. W. E. Stone, President of Purdue University at Lafayette, Ind., whose dead body is lying in the Rocky Mountains in an inaccessible spot, reached here from Banff.

Mrs. Stone was found alive last Monday, after she and her husband had been missing for several days after attempting to climb Mount Eon.

According to the report, Mrs. Stone is not much the worse for her terrible experience.

Plunged Over Her Head

In her statement she said that she and Dr. Stone were climbing Mount Eon, when Dr. Stone, in attempting to make a short-cut, started up Rock Chimney, a steep peak, with Mrs. Stone following him. They were not roped together, she said. About half-way up, the rock on which Dr. Stone was standing gave way, and he plunged to his death on the cliff below.

Mrs. Stone said she attempted to go down to him, and became marooned on a narrow ledge of rock about half-way down from which she was unable to move. She remained there for five days without food, and the only water she had was from a small stream which trickled down the mountain-side at noon when the snows above melted.

These were the facts gleaned from Mrs. Stone by the search party which discovered her, and which is seeking the body of her husband.

When discovered Mrs. Stone was in a weakened condition and exhausted.

Cannot Find Body

The searching party, up to last night reported that they had not been able to find the body of Dr. Stone, which, contrary to previous reports, is not at the bottom of a crevice, but is somewhere near the foot of Rock Chimney. Mrs. Stone has described the place minutely, but as yet the search has not been successful.

The details forwarded here of the tragedy by members of the search party, which were given by Mrs. Stone herself, are contradictory to the fragmentary morsels of information available earlier in the day, from which a rough story of the mountaineers' disastrous climb was constructed. Previous information was to the effect that Dr. Stone died endeavoring to rescue his wife, who, according to the early reports, fell on a ledge 17 feet below. He was supposed to have slipped to his death while trying to carry his wife to safety.

SILVER THREADS AMONG THE GOLD

New York, July 8.—Gertrude L. Danks, daughter of the composer of the song "Silver Threads Among the Gold", was described to-day as being unable to buy herself a pair of shoes because her brother, Albert V. Danks, failed to share with her the rich royalties which the song yielded.

As executor of his father's estate, the brother received $50,000 in royalties during recent years, but persistently ignored a court order for an accounting to his sister, her lawyer told Surrogate Coplan.

The surrogate took under consideration a request that he hold Danks in contempt for failure to let his sister know how much money was coming in from their father's song hit.

Toronto Girl Drowned With Rescue Near

Toronto, July 28.—Miss Reta Glass, 19 Myrtle Avenue, Hamilton, was drowned under tragic circumstances eight miles off shore from Port Dalhousie last night. After drifting on the lake for seven hours in a frail canoe, she and her companion, Murray Tait, of Toronto, were finally sighted by the wheelsman of the Dalhousie City. A line thrown to the luckless girl while she was yet in the canoe, slipped through her hands, the canoe upset, and she was sucked under the boat.

Murray Tait, living at 617 Gerrard street east, who was saved from the stormy waters, said last night they had gone out in a canoe from Grimsby and had been caught by a storm, which swept them away from the shore and for eighteen miles east. Tait apparently lost control of the frail craft.

Police Arrest Seven Armed Men at Ottawa

LARGE TOURING CAR AND ROADSTER ARE ALSO CAPTURED—TAKEN TO PERTH

Ottawa, July 27.—Ottawa police at six o'clock this morning arrested seven heavily armed men, and two automobiles, one of these a large touring car, the other a roadster. These men are accused of raiding Harry's Chinese restaurant at Perth, at one o'clock this morning. The men were brought into Ottawa station and placed in custody until taken away by the Chief of Police of Perth, John R. Griffiths. All the seven men were manacled together. All are Italians from Montreal. One of the automobiles lies in the ditch at the scene of the capture. It was overturned when the large party attempted to make a short turn immediately before their capture.

Dead Body of Infant Child Found in Trunk

Shortly before noon to-day a gruesome discovery was made of the dead body of an infant which had been wrapped up and placed in a trunk. The trunk in question was in a residence in the Eastern part of the city. A police officer was detailed to investigate the affair and an inquest was opened at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Tickell & Son's Morgue. Dr. Boyce, coroner, presided over the inquiry.

Masonic Picnic Largely Attended

FINE PROGRAME OF SPORTS CARRIED OUT—IDEAL PLACE FOR PICNICS

Members of Eureka Lodge A. F. and A. M. No. 283, of this city, with their families, to the number of about 300, on Wednesday afternoon held a basket picnic at Mr. Herman's picnic grounds, near Rednersville, Prince Edward County. The grounds are admirably situated for such an event and Mr. Herman and his assistants did everything in their power for the comfort of their guests. The party went to the grounds by motor boats, cars, and other conveyances. Some twelve members of the Argyle Light Infantry band, who are also members of Eureka Lodge, were present with their instruments, and furnished an excellent programme of music, which was much appreciated. Wor. Bro. L. E. Walmsley, W.M. of the Lodge, presented the prizes to the successful competitors. Lt.-Col. Ponton, K.C., of this city, Grand Master of the Masonic fraternity, was present, also Wor. A pull between Messrs. H. E. Fairfield and G. Spafford was won by the former.

New Plan For Reconstruction of Monetary Systems

BBuenos Aires, July 28.—Reconstruction of the monetary systems of those countries whose currency has depreciated, on the plan followed by Argentina in 1899, is recommended by Carlos A. Tornquist, international banker, who was Argentine delegate to the Brussels financial conference last year.

Adoption of this plan, he told members of the American Club at a luncheon here had fixed a permanent value for Argentina's then fluctuating paper currency and quickly enabled the country to emerge from monetary chaos into economic stability and prosperity. Many of the leading men in Germany he said, were already in favor of adopting a monetary reform patterned after Argentina's.

Explaining the mechanism of the plan, of which his father was the author, Senor Tornquist said under the Conversion Law of 1899 by which it was carried into effect, a value of 44 cents gold was fixed for the paper peso and the national financial institution which the law created, was authorized to deliver one paper peso in exchange for that sum in gold and vice versa. The value, he said, was fixed very much below par, because the depreciation of the paper money had become a permanent one and because values had become adjusted to the depreciation, "that is to say, that, apart from the fluctuations liable to be produced by abnormal causes, the real value of the paper peso measured in gold was 44 cents."

The public immediately responded to the law, having confidence in the plan, with the result that the value of the paper peso became more and more stable and it ceased to fluctuate even when the country had obtained only a modest stock of gold. This stock has constantly increased, from barely $3,000 in 1902, $90,000,000 in 1905, to $470,000,000 in the present day. Uncovered circulation of 293,000,000 paper pesos was assimilated and placed on a parity with the emissions subsequently made on gold basis. To-day, he said, Argentina had a paper circulation of about 1,350,000,000 pesos backed by a metallic guarantee, which, according to the rate established by the law, amounts to 80 per cent.

"I believe," he continued, "that the existence of such a high proportion of yellow metal gives me the right to affirm that Argentine money is to-day among the soundest in the whole world."

The result had been that from the time of the sanction of the law, foreign capital had flowed into the country on a large scale, production multiplied, commerce attained extraordinary proportions, immigration increased, "until Argentine production to-day is one of the essential factors in the world's markets in providing foodstuffs for mankind and raw materials for manufacturers."

Senor Tornquist advocated as the first remedy for the European economic disorder, adherence to the recommendations of the Brussels Conference for strictest economy, suppression of subsidies and economic barriers, the reduction of armament expenditures and suppression of unproductive works and even certain productive.

"If they will follow these sound recommendations from the conference of Brussels," he continued, "it is my opinion that many countries will in a relatively short space of time, be able to place themselves in a normal economic condition, under which their production and consumption will be maintained in a proportion permitting the liquidation of the obligations contracted by reason of the war. Then, in my opinion, will be the time for these nations to begin to think of readjusting their monetary systems.

"It does not appear to me possible to effect this reconstruction of monetary systems by means of disinflation for this would be a slow process and would not do away with the fluctuations in the value of money, and, worse still, it would impose completely unnecessary sacrifices upon industry, commerce, and production.

"On the other hand, I consider the Argentine example perfectly feasible for many countries. Our conversion law, its origin, its results, its economic effects, I consider a subject of great importance and great practical possibilities for many countries, and I think the sooner, and the more, your country does in this direction, in view of its enormous moral and material influence in all present world problems the better it will be."

Dominion Premiers Reach Agreement

INFORMAL CONSULTATIONS SOLUTION OF PRELIMINARY TO WASHINGTON CONFERENCE

London, July 27.—The Dominion Premiers yesterday reached an agreement among themselves on matters affecting the Pacific conference, concerning which they perviously had differed, says the Daily Mail. It is expected that an official statement will be issued Wednesday.

The Daily Mail adds that the Premiers have been working for days past on the task how to effect a compromise between the objections of the United States to a preliminary conference in London and their own inability to attend a Washington conference before next year. The newspaper says it understands a solution was found.

"This solution," the Daily Mail continues, "will lie in informal consultatons being held between the representatives of the Pacific Powers, which will enable Australia and New Zealand to put their views on record."

The London Times, dealing with the same subject, mentions a rumor that informal consultations may be held in Canada. It says there are obvious arguments in favor of such a suggestion, as Arthur Meighen, Premier of Canada, soon will be going home, and Premier Hughes of Australia and Premier Massey of New Zealand possibly will return to their homes by way of Canada. The Times adds that the approval of the United States is essential before such an idea could be adopted and that it is too early to say whether approval would be forthcoming.

Have Patience Says Chancellor on Irish Question

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

London, July 28.—Speculations and predictions regarding the Irish situation have taken many peculiar turns as a result of developments featuring negotiations during the past twenty-four hours, of these developments, perhaps the most talked of, is a speech made in the House of Lords yesterday by Lord Birkenhead, Lord High Chancellor, in which he invited the Parliament and country to have patience with the trouble Eamonn de Valera, Irish Republican Leader, and his colleagues may be haying in Dublin to reach decision on British proposals.

Dynamite Bombs Spread Terror in Lisbon

Lisbon, July 28.—The festivities of St. John's Eve were interrupted by the explosion of three dynamite bombs of enormous dimensions, placed by unknown hands in different parts of the city, outside three printing offices of which the printers are on strike.

The first explosion was so terrific that although Lisbonites are becoming accustomed to bombs, real panic was produced among the merrymakers in the streets of the Bairro Alto who, leaving their open air balls and bonfires, fled into the lower part of the town. Although there were no victims the force of the explosion brought down the ceilings of the houses near which it burst. A dense and suffocating smoke filled the whole street and many people fainted.

Another bomb did less damage in the Rua dos Corrieiros, and the third, which was of the same powerful type as the first, burst near an open air ball seriously wounding three persons. Some arrests were made of workmen but no real clue has as yet been discovered.

Another case of attempt against the life of a judge of the Tribunal of Public Safety was also made about the same time, two shots being fired at him in the street without wounding him.

Freight Rates Reduced

Ottawa, July 28.—Reduction in rates on livestock arranged as the result of a conference between shippers, representatives of railways and the Railway Commission were announced to-day in a letter from the Carriers to the Commission. They will come into effect as soon as the new tariffs are filed with the Commission.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 28.—A New York Central passenger train leaving Chicago at 11.15 last night, was derailed at New Carlisle, Ind., at one o'clock this morning when it struck a heavy truck driven by Zachary Calim, of Indiana Harbor, Ind. The engine and all the coaches were derailed. The engineer and fireman are believed to be fatally injured. All the passengers in a dozen coaches were considerably bruised.

Judge Decides No Divine Right Within Illinois

RULES GOV. SMALL, ACCUSED OF EMBEZZLEMENT, AMENABLE TO ARREST

Springfield, Ill., July 27.—Governor Len Small is subject to arrest and prosecution on warrants taken out following his indictment by the Sangamon County Grand Jury for alleged embezzlement of $500,000 interest on State funds while State Treasurer, Circuit Judge E. S. Smith ruled today

The Sheriff, while holding that the warrants should be served upon the Governor, states that the Chief Executive should be permitted "a reasonable time" to make his appearance, "voluntarily presenting himself before the court." The Judge also held that it was "beyond the scope of the Governor to call State troops to shield him from arrest" and scoffed at the claim of "sovereign power.

Six Week's Grace

Judge Smith, after reading his decision, adjourned court until September 6, giving Sheriff Mester six weeks in which to serve the warrants on the Governor, or for the Governor, or for the Governor to surrender voluntarily and give bond.

West Indies Insist Upon Staying in Empire

Plymouth, Eng., July 28.—The people of the West Indies are wholly opposed to any suggestion that the islands should be ceded to the United States as part payment of Great Britain's war debt, according to Sir Gilbert Parter, who has just returned from the islands.

Sir Gilbert, who has been successively governor of the Bahamas, Barbados and Trinidad and whose wife is the daughter of the late Francis Parker of Boston, Mass., admitted that the interests of the West Indies are largely American, "but if I know anything of the temperament of the people of Barbados, they would resist a cession to the bitter end." he said.

Sir Gilbert added that since the opening of the Panama Canal, Barbados has become one of the great health resorts of the world, where visitors from both North and South America congregate.

Girl of Ten Saved Baby of Three From Drowning

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

St. John, N.B., July 28.—Without a moments hesitation, little Margaret Matthews, ten year old daughter of Professor and Mrs. W. D. Matthews of New York, when Sally Morton, aged three, fell into the Kennebecasis River at Gondola Point, Summer colony, plunged in after her and after a struggle with the swiftly running stream landed her safely on the beach. Margaret jumped in without removing her clothes or shoes and held up the drowning child by gripping her garments in her teeth.

Kinburn won the Detroit Handicap at Kenilworth.

British Premier In Controversy With Clergy

London, July 28.—Prime Minister Lloyd George has aroused the ire of leading churchmen by telling them that they ought to keep out of politics

The occasion was the General Assembly of Welsh Calvistic Methodists at Portmadoc, Wales, when the Premier delivered an address, in the course of which he complained of public utterances by highly placed divines at church conferences and elsewhere on questions of the day such as Ireland and the industrial unrest, which, he asserted, "they were not in the least competent to discuss." He stigmatized their observations as "interference in the task of government, which, if followed, are replete with mischief both to the church and to the state."

This indictment has aroused a storm of protest and rebuke, among Mr. Lloyd George's former colleagues in the Free Churches, and resolutions have been passed at various evangelical council meetings strongly dissenting from the Prime Minister's attitude.

Dr. John Churchill, the veteran Baptist leader, asserts that the Premier's doctrine is contrary to his own, which is that "the churches should take such action to secure the application of the principles of the Gospel of Christ to the political conditions of the world."

More outspoken is the Rev. H. J. Taylor, a Primitive Methodist leader, who says: "The Premier declares that the business of the church and his ministers is to mind their own job. Their job is to demand that the Premier should practise religion in the law of the land."

From the pulpit of St. Paul's Covent Garden, the Bishop of Chelmsford flatly told the Premier that he wouldn't accept his rulings.

"If he had said the church must not interfere in party politics, we might be agreed; but that is very different to politics", the bishop said. "The government touches human life at every point, and the church cannot agree to refrain from expressing her opinion upon that which touches all her members.

"We are going to make continuous war upon all that poisons the atmosphere", continued the bishop, "we intend to have our politics impregnated with the right spirit—that of Christianity."

TORONTO DOCTORS ENDORSE CURES BY SUGGESTION

Toronto, July 28.—Local medical opinion finds nothing strange in the endorsation by the British Medical Association of mental suggestion, psychoanalysis and cures by the mind, although it is stated that this is the first time that recognition of such treatment has been accorded by the British medical authority.

Dr. Goldwin Howland, well-known consulting neurologist, said that mental treatment of human ills is certainly an established fact. "It is necessary to go very carefully," said Dr. Howland, "because it will not fit every case. But with a system of complete records of a case, and efficient observation, very remarkable results can sometimes be obtained."

Dr. Howland agreed that the prominence of shell shock and other mental disorders during the war had had a good deal to do with the development and recognition of mental treatment, but added that it had been used quite extensively even before 1914. He expressed entire approval of the step taken by the British Medical Association.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

SCREEN'S BEST LIKED GIRL AT GRIFFIN'S

Commencing this evening Gladys Walton, acknowledged by all to be the screen's best liked girl, will appear in a humorous picture entitled "Rich Girl, Poor Girl." In the story Miss Walton plays a double role, first as Nora O'Shane, ragged, dirty of face, desperately poor, but vibrant of heart. The second part is that of Beatrice Vanderfleet, fastidiously gowned, rich and seeking adventure.

The two parts give Miss Walton a great opportunity to thrill her audience and she avails herself to the fullest. As Nora O'Shane she conveyed the impression of being wistfully sweet. As Beatrice Vanderfleet she registered the spirit of the role by being haughty and overbearing.

How the two girls, one from the slums and the other from the dwelling-place of the rich, exchange identities gives the story a snappy start that prepares the spectator for the thrills of the home stretch.

The author has given the story an unusual twist in every incident, which holds the interest throughout the run of the story.

Additional films are shown consisting of a two-reel comedy with a rather humorous title, "Back from the Front," a pictorial, showing Antwerp and the surrounding country, and the usual good Fox News, showing the world's happenings on film.

France is Determined

Paris, July 28.—France informed the British Government late yesterday that the question of sending reinforcements to Upper Silesia must be disposed of satisfactorily before the French representatives can attend the meeting of the Allied Supreme Council on August 4, at which it is planned to discuss the entire Silesian question.

Ocean liners were held up off New York by immigration laws.

Independence on a Fruit Farm

Gathering Raspberries.

In the heart of the small-fruit country on the north side of the Fraser River in British Columbia, where every landowner has his commercial patch of raspberries, small or large, one of the best examples of what a perfectly developed, well-run fruit farm on a small acreage can be, is the Maple Crest Farm at Hatzic belonging to Mr. A. E. Dann.

Mr. Dann is an Old Country gardener and was brought up on his father's fruit farm of 200 acres in Kent; as the conditions for fruit-growing are much the same in British Columbia as in England, his experience is his greatest asset out here. He believes that there is far more profit in the careful and thorough cultivation of the small patch than in the big patch carelessly looked after.

The soil in this district is naturally rich, well-drained and therefore particularly well-adapted for small fruit but Mr. Dann uses farm-yard manure when possible and plenty of chemical fertilizers as well.

He has an acre in strawberries, the "Magoon" variety, which are best suited to the district, and in a good year realizes $1,200 on these; half of this must be allowed for expenses of picking, packing, crating, cartage, etc., so that he clears a profit of $600.

He has over an acre of gooseberries, mostly grown from cuttings which he struck himself, "Pearl" which are the earliest, "Oregon Champion," the main crop and "Jocelyn," the late ones. There are 1,100 bushes in full bearing which average a gross return of $1 per bush, more than half of which is clear profit.

Gooseberries, of course, are far cheaper to grow than strawberries because like all bush fruit they last for a long term of years without needing renewal.

Mr. Dann has over an acre of raspberries, "Cuthberts" and an unknown variety much grown in the district that surpasses even the "Cuthberts" for earliness and heavy yields. Three tons to the acre is an average crop or 300 crates for which the lowest price is $4 per crate, so it will be seen that the profits work out much the same as for straws, and rasps.

There is an acre of loganberries and though these do not bring in such good prices as rasps, the crop lasts much longer and pickers can pick double the amount in a day, so the profits work out the same. Logan growers are very anxious to see a plant for bottling logan-juice started in the Province and we hope this will come ere long.

Over an acre of "Thornless" blackberries are grown as these are considered better than "Snyder" which are too seedy or "Evergreen" which are too late. They do not bring in such good prices as the other fruits but the crop is heavier, lasts longer and the expenses are less, so that a good $600 is cleared on these also.

There are about one and a quarter acres of red and black currants, some of the red currant bushes reaching the prodigious size of 9 ft. in diameter and producing over 25 lbs. of fruit. These bring in a gross return of $700-$800 per acre.

Mr. Dann has also fifty Boussock pear trees which invariably yield a good crop and are a variety particularly free from disease. This district has learnt the imperative necessity of co-operation in handling their fruit. The area of production has assumed such vast proportions in the last few years that unless the produce had been handled on business lines nothing short of disaster could have occurred, both for the individual and for this industry in the Province.

Cold storage facilities are absolutely necessary and the expense of this can only be met by every grower joining the exchange in his district. Last year the Hatzic Fruit and Mercantile Exchange shipped six carloads of rasps to Winnipeg and not one crate was spoilt.

A traveller from the East told Mr. Dann that he saw several crates of rasps from the Hatzic district last summer in Fort William and they were all in perfect shape.

This year the Exchange expects to ship over 500 cars of fruit and the strawberry yield alone is expected to total from 800-1000 tons. There are about 2,800 acres in British Columbia under small fruit and the value of last year's crop was approximately a million dollars.—H. G. W.

Belleville Trims Port Hope 10-4

BELLEVILLE 10—PORT HOPE 4

It was not a very large crowd that witnessed the Wednesday afternoon game between the Grand Trunks and the Port Hope nine, but a large crowd was not expected, as Port Hope is supposed to be the weakest team in the Central Ontario League, but nevertheless a good brand of ball was played by each team and with our own Joe Kelliher in the box the game was won. The features of the game were the two home runs, one by Harry Mills, who made the circuit under great difficulty on account of a turned ankle, and the other by Moise, the Port Hope short stop. With all the team giving Joe their best support and swatting the old pill all over the lot, the game was a cinch, but Port Hope is no team to monkey with, as they are liable to go crazy at any moment. Deer, the Port Hope twirler is no slouch and to all appearances the team has improved in its fielding and batting 50 per cent. The game was called at 3 o'clock by umpire Wilson, and Joe took the mound.

First Innings

NOTES

With Joe and Freddy Goyer pitching we ought to walk through the second half of the schedule.

• • •

The battery for Wednesday's game was a surprise to many of the fans. Joe Kelliher was in the pitcher's box and "Peany" Mills behind the bat. Joe pitched a splendid game, proving himself a safe substitute.

• • •

The locals seemed to have tightened up considerably, the errors being slight.

• • •

Errors were repeated time and again by the Port Hope team. Belleville certainly made good use of the opportunities presented by all errors, the score proves that fact.

• • •

Deer pitching for Port Hope is one lovely twirler. He has speed and a fine delivery. No wind up is necessary for him, he just pops 'em over. Support is what he lacks.

• • •

Williams being on the sick list, Soup Goyer played 2nd, and did well in that position.

• • •

"Crumbie" Smith played in place of Symons in the field, and several good plays were credited to him.

• • •

Chalk, the centre-fielder for Port Hope made two sensational catches, which, if bungled, would have meant runs for the locals. A good hand was accorded him by the fans. True sports.

• • •

W. Mills failed to make any homers yesterday, however, he did his bit, which was quite sufficient.

• • •

Allan Meagher on 3rd played a pretty fair game, Casey played well, too, his specialty seems to be stealing bases. How about it?

• • •

Harry Mills, although his foot seemto hurt a good deal, played for the entire game, Weir running for him in one instance and adding another one to the good score already tallied.

• • •

Many close decision were handed down by Jack Fahay, base umpire, but both sides seemed satisfied and all was well.

• • •

Ross was strong at the bat yesterday and made several peachy hits. Hard luck overtook him when he made a safe three-bagger, but he attempted to make home on it and the ball beat him by a second and—No Run.

• • •

The crowd was very small but those present did their bit in the cheering line. Keep it up boys, it all helps.

• • •

It seemed rather odd to see Bellewill win a game without Freddy in the box, but he was right there in case of need.

• • •

A number of fence-tickets must have been sold yesterday as the rail birds were right there.

• • •

Weir made a lucky catch in the last innings, catching the ball in his bare hand, but he held it and everybody cheered, then grabbed their hats for the game was over.

• • •

Well, boys, we go to Cobourg Saturday and they say they have a good new pitcher so work hard, fellows, and bring home the pewter cup.

Canada lost every game to the Australian Davis Cup team.

Ku Klux Klan Revived in Texas

SUMMARY JUSTICE ADMINISTERED TO PERSONS OF ILL-REPUTE

Austin, Tex., July 28.—The Ku Klux Klan has been re-established in Texas in full vigor of the terrorism that made it so terribly feared in reconstruction days following the civil war. Events of the last few weeks show that such an organization is in wide-spread operation in this State, although no one outside its pale can say who belongs to it. It moves secretly.

Whippings, usually followed by a coat of tar and feathers, seems to be the officially prescribed punishment for the evil doers who fall under the ban of the Ku Klux Klan. These have been performed by the score since the first appearance of the masked and uniformed men at Dallas on the night of April 1. Not a day passes that not one or more reports of affairs of this kind are made.

For the most part the victims are men of bad repute, perhaps they are wife beaters, bigamists, gamblers and offenders against the moral law. Advance warnings are sometimes given, but not always. Many more white men have been whipped, tarred and feathered than negroes. No discrimination as to race, color or nationality is shown.

At Goose Creek two oil field workers, B. L. Bloomworth and Clan Jones were seized, given a drumhead trial by a band of masked men, found guilty of being undesirable citizens, tarred and feathered, carried to Houston in an automobile and turned loose

K. Cummings of Waco was taken by masked men into the country and tarred and feathered.

At Fort Worth Benny Pinto was seized by masked men, taken into the country and tarred and feathered and then brought back to town and dropped into the street.

In the same city a man was given similar treatment because he had ill-treated his wife.

At Goose Creek Will Stewart, a jitney driver, fell into the hands of the hands of the Ku Klux Klan and was treated to a coat of tar and feathers.

At Belton a negro named Jim Collins who has been charged before the Grand Jury with making an insulting remark to a white woman, was whipped and tarred and feathered by masked men, brought back to town and told to walk the streets until midnight and then leave town. He wore a placard on his back, "Whipped by the Ku Klux Klan."

Ed. Engers, who operated an oil filling station at Dallas, was seized by masked men, whipped for alleged cruelty to his wife, handed a five dollar bill by his tormentors and told to leave town.

Dr. Paul, a physician of Beaumont, was taken into the country and tarred and feathered. He was told to leave town, but has remained.

In Houston, a lawyer was tarred and feathered by masked men and ordered to leave town.

W. H. Coopinggarner, former cashier of a bank at Bay City, was seized by a band of masked men and tarred and feathered.

At Lufkin, Wherwood Vinson and Ben Wiley received similar treatment at the hands of masked and ghostly uniformed men.

J. W. Knight, a plumber of Timpson, was tarred and feathered and ordered to leave town. He did not leave, and five days later he received another and heavier coat.

R. F. Scott, a former service man who was in the battle of Chateau Thierry, was driving along a country road near his home at Deweyville, when he was overhauled by masked men in automobiles. He was whipped and tarred and feathered, and then taken to Beaumont, where he was dumped out into the street.

Harry Adams was seized by masked men at Glidden and beaten, but before the tar and feathers was applied the discovery was made that he was the wrong man and he was given his liberty with apologies.

Andrew Johnson, a negro bellboy in a Dallas hotel, was taken into the country by masked men and the letters "K. K. K." were branded upon his forehead.

Earl H Peters of Tyler was in Chandler on insurance business when he was assaulted by masked men who claimed to be Knights of the Klan and robbed of $250.

The only woman who has so far received the attention of the Klan was Mrs. Beulah Johnson, who was employed in a hotel in Teneha. Masked men grabbed her as she was sitting on the porch of the hotel, conveyed her in an automobile into the country, where they stripped the upper part of her body of clothing, tarred and feathered her, and then cut off her hair. It was alleged that she is a bigamist.

In Dallas and many of the other cities and towns of the State there have been parades of masked men who claim to belong to the Ku Klux Klan. More than four hundred men were in the parade in Dallas. Many public warnings to law violators and moral lepers have been posted in public places over the State. These warnings are signed by the Ku Klux Klan.

REMOVE EMBARGO FROM CANADIAN CATTLE

Among the matters of importance which came before the Canadian Council of Agriculture, which opened its regular meeting at Foresters' Hall yesterday, was the question of the cattle embargo placed by the British Government against Canadian stock. Owing to changed conditions in Canada, and the tariff situation in the United States, it has been found that the cattle market is too limited to meet the financial aims of the stockmen, so the Council decided to adopt the one course which was open to them, and that was to protest against the attitude of the British officials. Protest will be made along two lines. First, because the embargo is based upon the assumption that Canadian cattle are not free from disease, and secondly because a wider market is required. It has been generally agreed that Canadian cattle are not diseased, and for the reason it is felt that the reflection should no longer be cast upon Canadian stock. The attitude of the Council is that if the British authorities must place an embargo against the Canadian stock, they should do it in some other way than by suggesting that the shipments are not suitable for the British markets.

The Men "Who"-

—are the men who do something,
—the men who act,
—the pioneers who open up new lands,
—the manufacturer who scraps the old machine and strides forward,
—those spirits of progress who root up old-established habits for methods that are new and better,
—the men who count.
—For its very life, a nation depends upon its men "who."

Nearly 20 years ago, Gillette introduced his original safety razor. Beards disappeared. Daily shaving became the habit of a nation He was a pioneer. And with him were the men who discarded their strops and hones, abandoned their age-old methods and adopted the new razor.

Gillette, to-day, is the pioneer of the New Improved Gillette Safety Razor—the first shaving instrument of precision ever known, and with him in the vanguard of progress are many of those same men who were amongst the earliest users of the old-type Gillette. The new razor awakens in them the spirit of the pioneer. They stride forward to the realization of their goal—the final word in shaving comfort.

CLIMBING MT. EVEREST

CANADIAN TAKES PART IN IMPORTANT EXPEDITION.

Hindus Regarded the Himalayas as Being Unconquerable, Like the Gods, But Mountain Climbers Hope to Scale Highest Peak In the World During Coming Year —Capt. O. Wheeler In Party.

CANADA will have a representative with the expedition this summer to scale Mount Everest, the highest peak in the world. Mankind still is lured by the glamor of the unattained and difficult, and great satisfaction will be felt by all patriotic Canadians over the announcement that a Canadian soldier, a veteran of the Great War, will have an important post in the great venture.

Capt. Oliver Wheeler, D.S.O., it is officially gazetted, has been loaned by the Indian army to take charge of the topographical work of the British expedition. Behind this announcement, unmentioned, is the fine career of this officer as an Alpine climber in the splendid ranges of his native land. Capt. Wheeler is a son of A. O. Wheeler, director of the Alpine Club of Canada and formerly of the Dominion Topographical Survey. Born in Canada and educated at the Royal Military College, Kingston, Capt. Wheeler literally followed in his father's footsteps as a topographer and mountain climber. Serving with the Indian troops in France and Mesopotamia, he reached the temporary rank of major and was awarded the D.S.O., later returning to duty in India, where opportunity now comes to take part in one of the final achievements of exploration and world conquest.

The expedition of the Royal Geographical Society and the Alpine Club of England is now assembling at Darjeeling in northern Bengal. Crossing the Himalaya range into Tibet to Kampa Dzong, its members will proceed via the Tingri Maiden plateau to the north of the Everest group and thence make the attempt to climb the world's highest peak by its northern slope.

On this plan it will be possible to establish a base quite near to Everest. Above 20,000 feet it will be impossible to take yaks, the wild oxen of Tibet, and from there on the expedition will have to depend upon men. Materials for the expert white climbers will be borne on the backs of natives.

The height to be attained is 29,142 feet, according to estimates, or a fraction less than five and one-half miles above sea level. There has been considerable speculation among mountaineers of the Alpine Club of Canada as to what speed the expedition can make after an altitude of 23,000 feet has been attained. The records of the Abruzzi expedition on a similar venture show that, if identical conditions are met, the best progress that can be expected from an altitude of 23,000 feet to 23,450 feet is 396 feet per hour; from 23,450 to 24,250 feet just 273 feet per hour, and above 24,250 feet, 100 per hour.

The British expedition has been given complete equipment and the widest choice of personnel. Its organizer is Brig.-Gen. C. G. Bruce, Royal Engineers, who has been a student of the Himalayas since 1893, when he took part in a political mission which was sent to Chitral, a northwest frontier province of India. Off and on he has been climbing the Himalayas for a quarter of a century ever with his restless eye upon the baffling peak of Mount Everest, which, at a distance of 107 miles, is visible from Tiger Hill at Darjeeling. He has been given a free hand.

Col. Howard Burry is chief of the expedition, and Harold Raeburn, explorer, and author of Mountain leaders. Other British members of the expedition are Dr. A. M. Kelas, G. L. Mallory, G. H. Bullock, A. F. Wollaston and Major Morshead. The Alpine Club of England will have direction of the mountain-climbing, while the Royal Geographical Society will supervise the scientific work. In other words, the climbers are to get the scientists there. Fortunately, most of the members of the actual scaling party are both scientist and climbers.

Aside from some of the mountains of the northern polar region, the Himalayas represent the last stand of altitude against the pedestrian. Himalayas is a Sanskrit word meaning snow-abode, and it is only snow, and loose snow at that, which can stop the British expedition.

When Canada is sweltering in the heat of early summer, word may come of the most desperate daylight gymnastics hour after hour in distant Asia; of men who will spend their nights under light tents in the swandown depth of sleeping bags, hugging thermos bottles and food rations in small packages and conserving all their vitality for a new struggle upward at each break of dawn.

Up to 20,000 feet the going is physically far easier than covering the same distance in a linear direction at the sea level. Because of the constant freshening of the air the overcoming the pitch of the ascent is not felt. But anything above 20,000 feet is bound to be serious, at Mount Everest a case of back packing with native porters. And then the speed will slow up to a few hundred feet per hour.

The Canadian, Wheeler, will make his maps or go down in the attempt. And that is why Canada will be watching, taking a greater interest than ever before in a mountain-climbing expedition. In the glory of the achievement Canada will share.

Westmorland is the most thinly populated county in England.

CHILDREN'S LIVES SACRIFICED BY IMPURE MILK.

Investigation has proved that the high rate of mortality among children is largely due to impure milk, and as this is the principal food of children in the early stages of their development too much attention can not be paid by health authorities and parents to the milk supply of communities, and every precaution should be taken to prevent the sale and consumption of impure milk. In this connection the following cable despatch from London, England, will be of interest as showing the widespread attention given to improving milk supplies:

A paper by Nathan Strauss of New York, dealing with the improvement of infant health conditions through the use of pasteurized milk, was read by Dr. S. G. H. Moore, health officer of Huddersfield, at the Conference on Infant Welfare held here under the patronage of the King and Queen.

Mr. Strauss' paper stated that it was his original purpose, when the milk campaign was inaugurated in 1892, to check the ravages from summer complaint which attacked infants in their second summer. At that time, Mr. Strauss asserted, a large percentage of children succumbed from intestinal trouble in their second summer when the change was made from mothers' milk to "the infected milk of the cow."

"Of 1,347,089 deaths in the United States in 1914, 278,520 were of babies under two years and 65,298 of these deaths were from intestinal disorders, mainly infectious diseases due to germs conveyed in milk," Mr. Strauss' paper stated.

"As the germ theory became the subject of extensive scientific research it became evident that germs caused other diseases, in addition to tuberculosis and intestinal poison.

"Typhoid, scarlet fever, diphtheria, septic sore throat and measles, all these diseases were found to be caused by germs in milk.

"There are records of numerous epidemics where it was officially established that the milk supply had been the carrier of the germs. The most striking of all was my experience during the infantile paralysis epidemic which scourged New-York during the summer of 1916. Of 2,100 children who were entirely fed on pasteurized milk prepared at my laboratory, not a single case of the disease developed. When this fact became known I was besieged by frantic mothers for information."

Mr. Strauss advised these inquirers to use pasteurized milk or to boil it if they were unable to obtain milk so treated. He told of the establishment of his milk depots in various parts of New York City, where trained attendants advised the mothers in the care of infants. The extent to which his pioneer work had been followed was shown in the paper by the fact that 100 infant milk depots had been established in New York, 25 in Philadelphia, 20 in Chicago, and 12 in St. Louis. Altogether in the United States, Mr. Strauss said, 297 such stations are distributed in 36 cities.

By this means milk at 1 cents a glass "free from any possible infection," was brought within the reach of children. In some summers 1,500,000 glasses were dispensed through these stations.

To enable people who desired to pasteurize milk for their own use he devised a pasteurizer that could be used in the homes and sold them at cost or gave them to those who could not afford to pay. He presented a complete pasteurizing plant to the City of Philadelphia and quoted figures showing the reduction of infant mortality which ensued.

Mr. Strauss told of the opposition which he asserted arose from the selfishness and ignorance of dairymen and milk dealers and said it was an incessant fight to compel them to pasteurize their milk.

All his social work, whether in propaganda for pasteurization or in his Health Department in Jerusalem was open to all. The milk was provided without distinction of race, religion or color.

Concluding, he stated: "I have the satisfaction of world-wide recognition of the importance of putting an end to the criminal and unnecessary waste of child life through milk poisoning.

"Pasteurization must become a world-wide movement—a movement that will prevent disease—that will keep the babies in health—that will gladden the hearts of mothers, that will make this world healthier, happier, better."

CRISP COMMENT

When we read of cooling showers and hail stones as big as doughnuts in other places it is to wonder why Belleville is skipped by these showers of blessing.

Seems as if the ancient question "Is it hot enough for you?" was rather superfluous just now.

No trouble getting a crowd for a picnic these days, but it's no picnic trying to sleep in a top flat these nights.

Big Bill Ireland, the genial representative of West Hastings in the Legislature, spoke at the recent Biggs Bay Bridge Banquet and urged a closer co-operation and friendly understanding between citizens of Belleville and Trenton for the good of both. He thought the Chambers of Commerce of both places should get together oftener and work for a common goal, the progress and prosperity of both places. Petty rivalries of bygone days should be forgotten in the upbuilding of a greater Canada, and incidentally a greater Belleville and Trenton.

Motor trucks, hose wagons, hook and ladder truck and all the accessories of a first-class fire fighting plant responded to an alarm Sunday night when an automobile was found blazing away in a hotel yard. Tons of water conquered the fire, and when the mourners gathered about the remains they were astonished to see the owner of the car crank the critter, jump into the charred body and ramble right along as if nothing had happened. "You just got to hand it to Henry," said an onlooker, and that about expressed the idea in the minds of those who witnessed the miracle.

THEY NEVER LEARN
Cleveland Plain Dealer

There is properly about as much politics in some of the questions discussed by Congress as there is in the movement of the tides. They are economic and financial, perhaps moral issues. They ought to have no more effect on the 1922 elections than sun spots or harbor conditions in Monrovia. But the politicians' code demands politics where none exist. The administration must be lambasted or suggesting a postponement of some issues. We must fight the issues over again at the polls and after the ballots are counted know as little about it as we did before. Why will politicians never learn?

BELGIUM'S HERO KING
London Morning Post

London this week has the privilege and pleasure of welcoming their Majesties the King and Queen of the Belgians. The invasion of Belgium is the key to the meaning of the Great War—the key to the material and spiritual forces unchained on those fateful days of August, 1914, and working themselves out after infinite suffering to the victories of 1918, to the Armistice of Compiegne and the Peace of Versailles. In the arbitrament of the great issue, Belgium played a glorious part, and the defiance and heroism of Belgium were inspired and guided by a heroic King and Queen. King Albert, indeed, is an honor and testimony to the noble and enduring institution of Kingship.

The Poets' Corner

"THE REFORMER"

Before the monstrous wrong he sets him down—
One man against a stone-walled city of sin.
For centuries those walls have been abuilding;
Smooth porphyry, they slope and coldly glass,
The flying storm, the wheeling sun. No chink,
No crevice lets the thinnest arrow in.
He fights alone, and from the cloudy ramparts
A thousand evil faces gibe and jeer him.
Let him lie down and die! What is the right,
And where is justice in a world like this?
But, by and by, earth shakes herself, impatient;
And down, in one great roar or ruin, crash
Watch-tower and citadel and battlement,
When the red dust has cleared, the lonely soldier
Stands with strange thoughts beneath the friendly stars.

A CLEVER YOUNG WOMAN.

Lloyd George's Secretary is Foremost Member of Profession.

Because Miss Frances Louise Stevenson is without doubt the foremost woman in her profession, I went to No. 10 Downing street, the official residence of the Prime Minister, to glean points from her experience which might be of value to thousands of girls.

At her desk near a wide window sat Miss Stevenson. She rose to shake hands, and I saw that she was astonishingly young and astonishingly good-looking. It might be expected that some one who had held so big a position through the strain of war might show traces of overwork in her face and threads of grey in her hair. But here was a young woman with fresh, clear English complexion and with soft hair the color of a gold watch. If this sounds too good to be true, let me add that Miss Stevenson has a pair of keen and very purposeful blue-grey eyes, accustomed to taking the measure of people.

My second impression went much deeper than mere appearances. I discovered that my hostess was remarkably unassuming. Here she was, at the very heart of the British Empire, within a stone's throw of the Admiralty, of the Foreign Office, of Parliament, knowing many of their inner mysteries, and yet she was assuring me that her work was not so difficult or complicated as it might seem, for, as she said, "I began in a very humble way and grew as the work grew."

When Miss Stevenson finished college she secretly longed to strike out from the beaten path of teaching which opened before her as her predestined calling. She thought of secretarial work. However, she wanted to begin earning her living at once; so into teaching she went. As a student at the Clapham high school she had formed a schoolgirl friendship with Lloyd George's elder daughters, and afterward the youngest, Miss Megan, became her pupil. Mr. Lloyd George was then Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Miss Stevenson used sometimes to visit the family at No. 11 Downing street, the residence of the Chancellor. The latter, after he had had time to observe her and judge her abilities offered her a place as his secretary.

In May, 1915, the Ministry of Munitions was created and Lloyd George was placed at its head. The task before him was enormous, and at the start his entire staff consisted only of Miss Stevenson, Mr. J. T. Davis, and one other person.

When they opened their office, a table and two chairs comprised their whole equipment, and porters arrived to take away even this modest outfit before permanent furniture could be secured. That very day Miss Stevenson received word that her brother had been killed at the front.

To-day, working under her in Downing street, she has about a dozen stenographers. In addition to having charge of the Prime Minister's very heavy correspondence, she sees the countless people who wish to present ideas, grievances, and "causes" to Mr. Lloyd George. She was careful to make it clear that she is not his only secretary. Besides herself there are two men, while a third man devotes himself to the Prime Minister's problems in British politics.

The first step toward being a good secretary, according to Miss Stevenson, is to be a good stenographer. Without a good education she believes a stenographer cannot progress, for ability to put marks on paper must be accompanied by intelligence and a thorough knowledge of English. She makes it a rule in her office never to engage a stenographer who has not had at least a high school course.

As to speed, she regards it as vital in some branches of stenography, but intelligence she emphasizes as requisite in them all. She added that Mr. Lloyd George is not a rapid or a difficult dictator; but I couldn't help doubting whether the average stenographer, if confronted with the famous Welshman, would agree with her.

It was characteristic of her to refuse to draw a line of distinction between the sexes. To her impartial view ability is ability and faults are faults, regardless of whether their possessors are male or female.

If one were to ask her the foolish question, "Could a woman ever be prime minister?" she would reply, simply. "If she had brains and experience enough she could; if she hadn't, she couldn't."

Over-conscientiousness comes second on Miss Stevenson's list of pitfalls to be avoided. Women, she believes, don't know when to stop working. Instead of realising that they have reached the limit of endurance as men generally do, they spur themselves beyond, calling on their reserve energy to see them through. In the long run this leads to shattered nerves and is to no one's advantage.

A Witty Dean.

A witty dean was staying at the house of a friend in London whose small daughter was just beginning to try her hand at writing essays.

During his visit she began an attempt on "Man," and had got as far as "Man was made, and for some time he lived in innocence, and he——"

At this point she was called from the room, and in her absence the dean entered. Taking up the child's pen, he continued writing where she had left off:

"—at an early stage of his existence met Eve, and she——!"

NO HAY FEVER HERE

Thousands of people suffer annually from this most distressing ailment, Hoy Fever, known also as "Autumn Catarrh", "Hay Asthma" and "Rose Catarrh". This complaint usually continues until frosty weather, and is aggravated by dust, riding in street cars, and by the pollen of hay or flowers. But within a few hour's journey are regions rich in beautiful scenery, there health and pleasure go hand-in-hand and where perfect immunity from hay fever is assured. Among these regions none offer surer relief to the hay fever sufferer than the Lake of Bays districts of the "Highlands of Ontario". What You Get in McClary's
Electric Range

TWO exclusive features vital to the efficiency, durability and comfort of an electric range—

1. McClary's Protected Element,
2. McClary's Seamless, Jointless Oven.

McClary's Protected Element—made of tough, wear-resisting porcelain, completely and absolutely protects the delicate, high resistance wire coils from dirt, grease or water—prolongs the life of the Element—found in no other electric range.

McClary's Seamless, Jointless Oven — cooks like a fireless cooker.

The vapors cannot escape into the lining to decay and then to taint food. The heat is securely held inside the oven, under complete control of plainly marked switch buttons.

Interior of oven coated with nickel,—round corners, removable racks and hinged elements for easy cleaning.

Independent warming oven, with its own heating Element, because not enough heat escapes from the main oven to warm it.

Signal lights to show when the current is on.

Extra plug for small appliances.

Fuses easily accessible in the cupboard under the main cooking top.

Electric cooking is the latest contribution of science to the housewife's comfort, and McClary's Electric Range is the highest development of that contribution.

RATHER HIGH TAX RATE

At a meeting of the Deseronto town Council Tuesday evening the rate for the year was struck at 50 mills. Large demands for more money by the schools, higher rates for the pumping station and street lights—such are some of the extenuating circumstances under which an advance of two mills over last year is imperative.

An elaborate feast was enjoyed and all the interesting details of the ancient ceremony carried out.

FARMER LOSES HEAVILY

Fir, caused by lightning, early Tuesday morning completely destroyed the barns on the farm of William Barrie, Otonabee township. Most of his year's crops and 10 calves were lost in the fire. The damage is estimated at $10,000, of which $6,000 is covered by insurance. Efforts by neighbors to save the contents of the buildings and check the fire were fruitless. The distance separating the house from the outbuildings prevented the fire from spreading to the houses. This was Mr. Barrie's first year on the farm.

G.T.R. INSPECTION

Sir Joseph Flavelle, chairman of the board of management; Howard G. Kelley, president of the board, and other leading officials of the Grand Trunk Railway are expected to carry out an inspection of the railroad's facilities at points on the Montreal-Toronto line in the near future. Under the auspices of the parishioners of the St. Andrews and John street Presbyterian churches of the city a picnic was held at 12 O'clock Point on Wednesday afternoon. A fair crowd was in attendance and dancing, races and other games, to amuse the little people and some of the big folks were enjoyed during the day. A moonlight excursion to the Point was well patronized and judging by the many happy expressions on the faces of those in attendance all were perfectly content with the day which passed off without any accidents to mar the pleasure of the participants.

THE TORTURES OF RHEUMATISM

Happily Stopped When He Began To Take "Fruit-a-tives"

3 Ottawa St., Hull, P. Q.

"For a year, I suffered with Rheumatism, being forced to stay in bed for five months. I tried all kinds of medicine without relief and thought I would never be able to walk again.

One day while lying in bed, I read about "Fruit-a-tives" the great fruit medicine; and it seemed just what I needed, so I decided to try it.

The first box helped me, and I took the tablets regularly until every trace of the Rheumatism left me."

Wireless Chain to Gird The British Empire

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press Limited

London, July 28.—There seems to be some authority for stating that the Empire Premiers' Conference has approved of plans for an imperial wireless chain at a total cost to the British Government of two million pounds. Matters down for discussion at the premiers' conference are understood to be nearly cleaned up and it is thought the agenda of business will likely be concluded this week

West Enjoys Cool Showers

RAIN FROM FOOT OF ROCKIES TO WINNIPEG, NORTH TO PRINCE ALBERT

Winnipeg, July 27.—During the past 36 hours rain has fallen at many points in the west. There have been showers right through from the foot of the Rockies to Winnipeg, and extending as far north as Battleford and Prince Albert. The highest temperature reported was 80 at Melfort and Kamsack, Sask., with as low a maximum as 67 at Moose Jaw. These conditions are good for ripening, and if the cool weather continues the best can be hoped for from the crop in the three provinces.

"If a line be drawn from Calgary, Alberta, to Emerson, Man.," said a Grain Exchange official today, "it will be found that, with one or two reservations, practically all the territory north of it is good, and all south of it is poor."

Harvesting of barley and rye is going on at many points. A few fields of wheat have been cut around Brandon.

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Every day something out of the ordinary is seen by somebody. Let us hear about it. Phone 1248, or write The Intelligencer.

Belleville Fair

P.D.Q.—I see that the days are slipping by and Fair Days again approaching, but I don't see any apparent activity tending to make Belleville Fair this year, the biggest and best in the province or even better than usual. Time to get busy, What!

Poor Connection

I.C.—No reference was made at the City Council meeting to the Corby baths, Dundas street neglected cemetery or other suggested improvements. Wireless communication between the Chamber of Commerce and the City Council seems to have struck a ground somewhere.

Shaking Up Visitors

X.—I see that Station street is being combed and brushed so that the bumps will be visible to the naked eye. When street paving operations are resumed this street should be the first to receive attention, for it has to stand th eheaviest traffic and is a bad advertisement for Belleville to strangers coming in by train who are so well shaken and dust sprinkled that they get sore at the city at once.

Belleville First

P.—I see that the Belleville G.W.V.A. in calling for tenders for the construction of the new Memorial Home for Veterans, have inserted a clause insisting upon local labor being given the preference. This sets a good example which might well be followed by other Belleville organizations as well as individuals having control of building operations. Belleville First, is a good motto.

Expanding Power

Q.—I see that the City Council has granted permission for a contractor to do a piece of work on Sunday, and was somewhat nonplussed at this evidence of such a powerful pull with the Lord's Day Alliance. Wonder if the Council would give me permission to go fishing next Sunday. I am going anyway but would feel easier with a permit in case some rural gumshoe artist held me up just when the beauties were biting nicely. However, the Council shouldn't work this Sunday business too far for the Alliance might get peevish and ring a Raney day in on them.

RECEIVED TELEGRAM

Mayor Hanna is in receipt of the following telegram to-day from Vancouver: July 27 "Mayor and citizens of Belleville, Ont., A resolution was passed by 300 Old Boys and Girls from Belleville and Bay of Quinte District here assembled in beautiful Stanley Park, Vancouver on this, their first annual picnic, expressing greetings and good wishes to the folks at home. Signed, Walter Dobbs, Chairman Publicity Committee."

TROPHY PRESENTED.

Belleville Camp No. 162, Woodmen of the World, held a regular meeting on Tuesday evening in the True Blues' Hall which was well attended. After the usual routine business was disposed of a very pleasing event took place, namely the presentation of a very beautiful silk flag and a complete set of officer's jewels which had been won by the local camp in competition with other districts throughout Ontario in a three months membership campaign, the local camp having enrolled forty-eight new members, making a total membership of 71 since instituting in Belleville on March 4th last. Organizer Sov. Jas. A. Fegg, of Kingston, who conducted the campaign, also won the first prize given to the organizer securing the highest number of points. In presenting the flag and jewels to the camp Sov. Fegg congratulated the officers and Sovs. present on their victory and thanked them for the kind assistance they had given him during the campaign. Con. Com. Mayor Chas. Hanna responded with a few well chosen words and said it was the intention of the camp to put on another campaign in the fall and hoped it would be possible to have Sov. Fegg conduct it.

AGAIN IN THE TOILS

Edward Howard the Frankford youth who on Saturday last caused somewhat of a sensation at Marmora village when he escaped from the custody of the county constable after being handcuffed and whilst being taken to the lockup, has been recaptured. At the present time he is behind the bars at the county jail here. He was recaptured last night and credit is due to county constables Taurence, Vanhervoort and Ferguson of Frankford. Since his escape on Saturday Howard has travelled over considerable territory. The warrant for his arrest charges him with a serious offence alleged to have been committed some time ago near Marmora.

McGRAW IS ARRESTED BY PITTSBURG POLICE

Pittsburg, Pa, July 27.—John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Gaints, was arrested this afternoon on a capias issued by Judge Marshall Brown, in the Common Pleas Court. The capias was issued in the suit filed by George Duffy, a well-known resident, in which he asks $20,000 damages for personal injuries, which he alleged he suffered as a result of an attack made upon him by McGraw while the team was here early last month. A deputy sheriff called upon McGraw at the hotel at noon, and the capias was served upon him. He was not taken into custody, but arranged to secure $3,000 bond, fixed by the court.

The bond was furnished late this afternoon. It was required to insure McGraw's appearance in court when the case is called some time in the fall.

"McGraw might be able to get away with his assaults on innocent persons in New York, but he can't get away with them here," declared Roby P. Marshall, one of the leading members of the bar, who represents Duffy.

ROBBER OF HIS MONEY AFTER BEING RESCUED?

Toronto, July 28.—Murray Tait, the companion of Miss Rita Glass of Hamilton, who was drowned at the moment of rescue off Port Dalhousie, was taken to the wireless room on board the Dalhousie City immediately after his rescue, and placed between woollen blankets. One of the passengers appeared at the door, and volunteered to take his clothes down to the boiler room to dry them. When the boat neared Toronto someone had to go down to get the clothes, which were hanging near the fire. Upon putting his clothes on Mr. Tait found that all his money and valuables had been removed from his pockets.

Japan has agreed to accept the invitation to the Pacific conference.

A DIP IN THE BRINY AT ST. ANDREWS

Algonquin Hotel, N.B., July 27.—Who could resist a dip in the briny deep today when the water was 75 above. Katys Cove was like one vast swimming pool. Its water so sunwarmed that the bather might stay in for hours without no ill effects. No place in town was more popular After the strenuous morning on the links the golfers appreciated the bracing influence of the sea water. This afternoon there has been a stiff south west breeze. All the yachts are cruising around Passamaquody Bay. Much interest is being manifested in a beautiful new yacht that came into port last night "The Kraven" owned by captain Jeffery's of Philadelphia. Reports show that the cities still suffer from the excessive heat the temperatures are for Montreal 87, Toronto, Ottawa 79, and London 90. Even though St. Andrews is supposed to be having its warmest weather the thermometer will show only seventy-four at its higiest. The nights are cool. One may even enjoy open fires here. There is no difficulty in sleeping, for the salt laden breezes are a perfect soporific.

GASOLINE IN DETROIT DROPS TO 19.9 CENTS A GALLON

Detroit, Mich., July 27.—As a result of a price war, as bitter as it has been brief, gasoline to Detroit consumers has dropped one cent a gallon, and according to heads of large refining companies the 19.9 cent. rate is likely to continue indefinitely. Last Monday the Indiana Refining Company placed eleven new trucks in service and announced to retailers that it would accede to the demand of a two per cent. margin of profit. Other companies put the rate in effect the following day, the price to the retailer being 18.9 cents and to consumer 20.9 cents.

Announcement was made yesterday by the local Standard Oil representatives that effective to-day the consumer must receive his gasoline for 19.9 cents while the rate to the retailer must continue at 18.9 cents. Garage men say they are tired of price dictation by the Standard Oil Co.

HOLD-UP DISARMED BY SOLDIER'S BUTTON

Vancouver, B.C., July 28.—An empty sleeve and a returned soldier's button disarmed a hold-up man here late Saturday night. C. Brick, late of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, was halted at the point of a gun and asked for money. Then he heard the highwayman apologizing for the sake of the empty sleeve. "I hate to do this," said the gunman, "but I have a family to support." And he walked away."

Born in Canada 103 Years Ago

Mrs. James Lennox Had The Unusual Experience of Living During the Reign of Six Sovereigns

Wiarton, Ont., July 28.—At the home of her son, Mr. Isaac Lennox, the death occurred Tuesday morning of Mrs. James Lennox, in her 103rd year. This estimable lady, who had passed the century mark, was one of the first settlers in this district and had the unusual experience of living during the reign of six sovereigns. Until very recently she was more active and vigorous than many people but half her age and with the exception of her vision none of her faculties were impaired to any appreciable extent. Her memory was excellent and her reminiscences of life in the early days when this district was a vast wilderness but sparsely populated, were extremely interesting. Mrs. Lennox was born near Perth, Ont., March 9th, 1819, and was of Irish parentage. When but five years of age, she, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. Hewitt, moved from that locality to Guelph. In those days western Ontario was practically uninhabited and was largely a grand virgin forest. In making this journey her family came to Hamilton by boat and then travelled along the Governor's Road to Guelph. There were but five houses then on the site of the present city. After her marriage to James Lennox she moved to Mount Forest, where she lived for a short time, later coming to Wiarton in the autumn of 1866, almost fifty-six years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Lennox had twelve children, of whom but five are living, namely Isaac Lennox, Wiarton, with whom his mother resided; James M. and John R. Lennox, both of British Columbia; Mrs. Phoebe Moshier and Miss Rebecca Lennox, both of Denver, Col. She had thirty-one grandchildren, twenty-six great grandchildren, and four great great grandchildren. Her husband predeceased her some 20 years ago.

Miliukoff Says Volga Area Now a Vast Cemetery

DECLARES 25,000,000 PERSONS STARVING—WILL DIE UNLESS QUICKLY RELIEVED

Paris, July 28.—Famine is depopulating Russia by thousands daily, according to Paul Millukoff, leader of the Russian constitutionalist Democrats here.

Millukoff told the United Press today that private information showed one portion of Russia, larger than France and Germany combined, was being converted into a huge cemetery.

In that one section, lying along the Volga, 25,000,000 persons are starving, he declared. Only quick action by relief commissions can prevent the mortality totals from reaching staggering figures, he said.

Millukoff pictured thousands, weakened by hunger, lying in filthy huts, awaiting death.

Most of the animals have been killed and used for food, he asserted. Fields have been combed for the last grain. A merciless sun is beating down, taking away even the hope of fair crops this fall. The vast Russian steppes, once swarming with Asiatic invaders, are again covered with moving hordes, he said, but these are Russians emigrating in the hope of finding food.

Wagons and carts, some covered by dingy canopies of sacking to protect the starving ones within, creak along hot and dusty roads in caravans, the plodding figures which lead the bony horses being led on by the mirage of food.

Conflicting reports travel like lightning through the weary bands. Word comes that food is being distributed in India and long lines swing off toward the southeast. Another rumor comes that great supplies of food now are available in Moscow and the stumbling drivers turn their rickety animals to the north and west. Hundreds daily cross the frontiers into countries scarcely able to care for their own people.

Death is an hourly occurrence in those caravans of misery. Those who fall are buried by the roadside. Even the mothers, worn by fatigue and hunger, look on with apathy as their children are laid in shallow graves.

Millukoff's reports said that only one-fifth of the usual wheat acreage was planted this year, and most of that was ruined by the great drouth.

Death of Infant Being Investigated

CORONERS JURY EMPANELLED IN THE CASE—POST MORTEM CONDUCTED BY TWO PHYSICIANS

Before Coroner Dr. Boyce an inquest was opened on Thursday afternoon at Tickell & Son's undertaking establishment upon the body of a female infant which was found in a trunk in a city residence. The jurymen empanelled were Messrs H. A. Morgan, D. V. Sinclair, Wm. Leslie, C. Ashley, E. T. Cherry, C. C. Walker, A. G. Vermilyea S. Burrows and Dr. O'Callaghan. Mr. Burrows was selected foreman. After being sworn in the jury viewed the remains as it lay in the tin trunk where it was found. As Dr. Boyce stated it was the body of a newly born and perfectly formed child. A post mortem would be made to ascertain if the little one had lived or was still born. It was from appearance a case of concealment of birth. The only evidence taken was that of Sergt. Detective Truiasch as to the police taking charge of the body and the trunk after the discovery had been made; also the summoning of the jurymen all of whom were qualified to act.

An adjournment of the inquiry was made until Monday evening the 8th of August.

Later Drs. Wallbridge and Tennent conducted a post mortem upon the body and their report will be presented at the adjourned enquiry.

Higher Harvest Wages Demanded

OFFER OF FIVE DOLLARS A DAY NOT ATTRACTING WINNIPEG LABOR

Winnipeg, July 29—Five dollars and everything found offered by farmers for harvesting in Manitoba is not moving many from the crowds hanging around the local employment offices. Most of them are foreigners and they are holding out for seven nd eight with a guarantee of thirty days' work.

This amount farmers are refusing to pay and few require help for that length of time. With wheat cutting under way in many localities some farmers are forced to submit to these extortions for the arrival of the annual harvest excursionists from Ontario and Quebec. Sixty dollars a month for steady employment is the ruling figures on Manitoba farms.

The intense heat of the last week of June and of the week which ended yesterday has contributed more than any other cause to the lowering of the splendid crop prospects that prevailed throughout the West in the early part of the season, the Grain Trade News will say to-day. Nevertheless, in the view of the News, there is promise that the crop of three Provinces will exceed that of any year since 1915.

The review says that rye cutting is practically completed and threshing well advanced, and the crop promises well. Wheat cutting has commenced in the south and is expected to become general in Manitoba within a few days.

Rains which were general over the greater part of the West this week, came at a most opportune time, it is said.

Bolshevik Terrorists Not Born Criminals

Budapest, July 28. — Hungarian phrenologists who have made a careful study of the skulls of 30 notorious red terrorists sentenced and hanged after the fall of Communism in this country, have just reported that "Bolshevik terrorists" though exhibiting signs of abnormality seem not to belong to the type of born degenerate criminals."

All the thirty were members of Bela Kun's fearful bodyguard called the "Lenine boys." All were found guilty of numerous murders and robberies and examined in their lifetime by the same doctors when under trial.

"The skulls," runs the report, "are prognathic, characterized by an exceptionally low forehead, deep eye-caves, big mouth, sharp protruding jaws, deficient dentition. When compared with the skulls of notorious common murderers preserved in the museum of the police they show the signs of degeneracy in a much less degree.

"The only exception is Joseph Cserny, the leader of the group, whose skull is easily first among the worst and most deformed specimens of human degeneration. When examined during his trial the savage look of his small evasive eyes startled even the professional doctors of crime. Small wonder that the Bolshevik dictator of Hungary, Bela Kun, felt afraid of the man and never met the chief of his devoted bodyguard without previously slipping a revolver into his pocket.

"The medical board holds the view that the Bolshevik terrorists, [illegible] undoubtedly degenerate ind[illegible] would under ordinary circumstances never have committed murder. But their resistance to crime was much weaker than that of the civilized type and when the solid body of law and morality was shaking with revolutionary fever their half-slumbering ferocious instincts roused up and they killed with the savage passion of the neolithic man."

ARMED MEN AT ST. THOMAS MAKE RAID FOR LIQUOR

St. Thomas, Ont., July 28.—Four armed masked men, traveling in a high powered car, broke into the home of Fred Hill, west of this city, last night, and after binding Mr. Hill's hands behind his back and locking him and his mother in a room, searched the house from cellar to garret, departing with ten dollars in money. The county police who are investigating the case believe that the robbers got into the wrong house by mistake and were after a large quantity of liquor said to have been purchased by a man in that district. Mr Hill described the intruders as young men and strangers.

Man Found Dead Bottle by His Side

IT IS BELIEVED TO HAVE CONTAINED WOOD ALCOHOL

Hamilton, July 28.—With a bottle, thought to have contained a quantity of wood alcohol, by his side, the body of a man, who is believed to be John Wallace, an old resident of the Bethel Mission, address unknown, was found about 7.30 tonight almost hidden under some bushes near the corner of South John street and Rockwood place, just south of St. Joseph's Hospital.

The remains were taken to the Morgue, where Dr. McIlwraith performed a post mortem examination and decided to hold an inquest. Dr. Deadman will make an examination of the contents of the man's stomach.

The man, who appeared to be about 56 years of age, was seen sitting on the grass near the corner about 11.45 this morning. Later in the afternoon he was seen vomiting, and although he was evidently very ill, no one reported the matter to the police until his dead body was discovered accidentally early tonight by Fred C. Abbot. Constable Joe Duffy was called to the scene and removed the body in the ambulance to the Morgue.

The bottle found near the body was nearly empty, but contained a little of what is thought to be either wood alcohol or methylated spirits.

Asks Burnaby to Step Out

LIBERAL CHIEF OPENS TOUR OF ONTARIO AT AURORA MEETING

Aurora, Ont., July 28.—R. W. E. Burnaby, Farmer leader in Ontario, struck a body blow at the "forces of progress' when he had the temerity to step into North York as an opponent of the new Liberal chief, Hon. Wm. Mackenzie King—but there is still time for repentance. Mr. Burnaby's retirement from the field will be graciously accepted by Mr. King, and no doubt in some other riding the "forces of progress" will regard his appearance as a signal to haul down the party flag. The future hope of Liberalism didn't say all this at the North York picnic here, but he said enough to serve as a gentle hint for the U.F.O. president, and, failing that, to advertise to the world in general and Liberal farmers in particular that it was not Mr. King who was the aggressor, but Mr. Burnaby. But that was not all. Just to show how far he was willing to go. Mr. King told the crowd that he was quite ready to let the dispute as to priority in North York be settled by mutual friends and abide by the result. Could anything be fairer, especially when Mr. King was only in the field a year or two ahead of the U.F.O. head?

"Don't be surprised if the Premier gets one more supporter in North York," was the way Mr. King put it. "If there is one thing that the Meighen Government wants it is that there shall be two candidates in this riding, so that their supporter can slip in between the two.

"I am prepared," he continued, "to leave the question to Mr. Burnaby's friends and my friends to decide between us as to which of us has the prior claim to this constituency on the grounds on which he received the nomination, and to abide by the result. I have no desire to complicate the issue, but having come in, having been nominated by my friends here before I heard of Mr. Burnaby, I don't propose to get out simply because he gets in."

USE FIFTY STREETS AS PLAYGROUNDS.

Detroit, July 28. — Fifty streets, each one block long, will be playgrounds every afternoon except Sunday, from 2 to 5 p.m., as a result of the action of the Council Tuesday night.

The streets will be turned over to the children of the neighborhoods, it being the belief in the Department of Recreation that city playground facilities are inadequate. Police will be in charge for diverting traffic. Supervision will be provided for children in their play.

The streets selected are in neighborhoods where there is little space to play.

Editor Puzzled by U.S. Prohibition

LORD NORTHCLIFFE ASKS WHEN, WHERE AND WHAT IT PROHIBITS?

Washington, July 29.—Lord Northcliffe, famous English publisher, still is dazed by the wonders of American prohibition.

In an interview with the United Press he flicked aside discussion of the Washington disarmament conference, funding the allied debt, and other questions of international importance, and addressed himself to the task of finding out what prohibition prohibits.

Northcliffe was informally attired in a dark blue dressing gown.

"What is your mission here?" he was asked. The Northcliffe brow wrinkled as in deep thought.

"What is this prohibition? When and what does it prohibit," he queried in deep perplexity.

This is Northcliffe's first visit to the United States since the country went constitutionally dry. He had expected to find a Sahara. While not passionately attached to liquor in any form, he does like a little wine with his meals.

LIQUOR EVERYWHERE.

"Now while we were dining in New York we ordered some wine and got it," he narrated. "All kinds of drinks were on tap. I paid no attention to it until later it suddenly came to me that the United States is dry; that is, I remembered the reports that drink was prohibited in the United States.

"So I started looking for prohibition. So far I haven't found it. Everywhere I go I'm offered a drink. Everybody I talk with seems to have it or knows where to get it.

"My cab driver in New York—he makes about $50 a week—told me he had no trouble getting his whiskey. I've met other men of moderate means and they had their whiskey.

"No matter where I go, I see it—and smell it. It's beyond me. So far I have been unable to see where and what prohibition prohibts."

Irish Conference to Consider British Terms

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

Dublin, July 29.—It seems certain that the summoning of the Irish Republican Parliament to consider the British terms will be one of the very next steps to be taken in connection with the peace negotiations.

Although the calling of the Dail Eirann for this purpose is not likely to occur immediately, no date having yet been fixed, the apparent fact that such a session has been decided upon encourages the hope here that the negotiations will be fruitful. No application has as yet been made for the release of those members who are still in prison, but the freeing of these men is declared to be certain once the date of the meeting is fixed. Of thirty-six members now in confinement the majority have neither been tried nor have had charges preferred against them. Some, however, have been convicted, and the military view is understood to be that no man lawfully sentenced by court martial should be released. Against this, it is pointed out that most of the prisoners convicted were indisputably political offenders, while the release of the Countess Markievicz and Robert Barton creates a precedent for the release of even duly sentenced prisoners.

Thrown From Buggy Died From Injury

Kingston, July 29.—Mrs. Joseph N. Edgar, Pittsburgh township met a tragic death near her home when a buggy in which she was driving struck a hole in the road. Mrs. Edgar was thrown from the vehicle and alighted on her head. She was picked up unconscious, and died shortly afterward.

Complete Fabrication

London, July 29.—Mr. Lloyd George in the House of Commons to-day read a statement authorized by King George declaring words attributed to the King concerning the Government's Irish policy in a reported interview in the United States by Lord Northcliffe who controls the London times are "a complete fabrication."

Ocean Liner Passengers May Have to Wait

MAY KEEP PASSENGERS AT SEA TILL AFTER AUG. 1 TO AVOID NEW IMMIGRATION LAW

New York, July 28—About a thousand passengers, many of them American citizens, on vessels due here within the next few days, may be held outside New York harbor until August 1st, according to reports in shipping circles here to-day.

Practically, all July quotas under the new immigration law have been exhausted, according to the shipping men, and in order to escape the expense of deporting aliens from countries which have exceeded their nuta tries which have exceeded their quota outside the three mile limit until the first of August.

A wireless was sent to the captain of the Greek Line steamer Megald Hellac to-day ordering him to drop anchor outside the harbor until August 1.

There are 959 passengers on board this ship, 130 of whom are American citizens.

Rumors were current in shipping circles that the Cunard liner Calabria, due here from Gibraltar July 29, will be held outside the harbor until August 1 or will be instructed to reduce its speed.

Young Taxi Driver is Brutally Slain

BODY FOUND NEAR DETROIT STRIPPED AND HIDEOUSLY MUTILATED

Detroit, July 28.—Oscar Abraham, 21, a taxi driver, was beaten and strangled to death in Pumpkin Hook Road, between Seven and Eight Mile roads, some time between sundown on Wednesday and eight o'clock today.

His body, nude, battered and cut almost beyond recognition, was identified this afternoon by his brother, in the county Morgue.

The body was found in a cornfield, 20 yards from the road, by the sons of a farmer who owns the field.

The motive for the crime probably was not robbery, deputy sheriffs who are investigating the case declared. When the body was found, a diamond ring was upon one finger.

Police Confiscate a Whiskey "Still"

EXPERT DISTILLER ARRESTED IN PREMISES USED

Toronto, July 28.— Probably the most complete "still" for the manufacture of illicit whiskey ever brought to light in Toronto was discovered early yesterday morning, when Inspector Mackie, Sergeant Roe, Sergeant Parrish, and Police Constables Trinnell, LaRose and Tait, of Court Street division, descended upon 44 Colborne St., took into custody William L. Stewart, aged 45, of Kew Beach avenue, and seized a variety of distilling appliances and several tubs of whisky and rum mash. Stewart is charged with violating the Inland Revenue Act.

It was due to LaRose that Stewart was apprehended. The constable had noticed several suspicious circumstances, such as persons visiting the place, and had reported the matter to Inspector Mackie, who subsequently arranged and led the raid. The plant was on the second floor of the building, and the gas was burning beneath the still when the raiders entered. Close by were three barrels of mash in process of fermentation, also one barrel of glucose, used for the manufacture of rum. Testers, coloring material, and every appliance for properly completing distillation were there. Several jars of alcohol and manufactured liquor were discovered on the floor and confiscated.

Stewart stated that he had rented the place on July 15 and had not quite finished his first batch of liquor. He followed the trade of distiller in Scotland, and holds two gold medals for whisky manufacture.

The confiscated articles were removed to Court Street station, and will be used as evidence against Stewart when he appears for trial.

REDS NOT WANTED ON THE HIGH SEAS

London, July 28.—Travellers on the Australian Ormonde arriving at Plymouth yesterday report that several foreigners who during the journey refused to sing the National Anthem, narrowly escaped being thrown into the sea. The ship's officers were obliged to keep them in seclusion for several days. Prior to the National Anthem incident the foreigners had caused a lot of trouble by preaching bolshevik doctrines.

Passion Play Inspires New Life

Oberammergau, July 28.—Since the decision was made to give the delayed Passion Play in 1922 Oberammergau has taken on new life. Carpenters, painters and masons, many of them wearing long hair and beards which mark them as participants in previous dramatizations of the passion of Jesus Christ, are restoring the open-air theatre and villas which had no attention during the war period.

Busy housewives are preparing their homes for the reception of visitors who will fill the little village next summer. Scene-painters are rebuilding and restoring the representations of parts of the Holy Land where Jesus lived and died and rose again from the tomb.

Needlewomen are fashioning robes for the apostles and scores of other biblical figures who participate in the play. Although the cast will not be elected by the directors of the play until October, young women who have distinguished themselves in other religious plays given by the Oberammergau folk are fashioning simple robes suitable for the role of Mary in the hope that they will be chosen to enact the part of Jesus' mother, the highest honor which can come to an Oberammergau woman.

GREAT AUDITORIUM.

The great auditorium which shelters spectators of the Passion Play is a wooden structure supported by steel trusses. It has seats for 4,000 persons, arranged after the plan of a modern opera house. When the play is offered one end of the auditorium is removed entirely, and the stage stands at some distance from the end of the building in such a position that the mountains furnish a background for the setting. The audience is entirely sheltered in the case of rain and the main part of the stage has a glass roof.

Even among the children of Oberammergau the reverence for the Passion Play is very marked and in imitation of their elders they are constantly acting in the hope of being chosen for important roles in the production given every ten years.

A good character is insisted upon as the basic requirement for participation in the play, the danger of being debarred from a part in the historic spectacle is held constantly over the village children and is a far better corrective influence than the bogeys invented for most children.

Boston Bathers Chased Ashore by Stingarees

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

Boston, July 29.—More than 150 bathers were treated at the hospital and thousands were driven from the Nantasket and adjoining beaches yesterday when a school of red jellyfish drifted inshore and several stung all who came in contact with their tentacles. This species of red jellyfish is commonly called "stingaree" and somtimes "Australian stingaree" because it is commonly found in Australian waters. The feelers exude a poisonous substance which infects the skin and causes swelling and pain.

OVER 11,000 CASES

Moscow, July 28.—The Soviet Government announces the famine in the Volga Region started last month and grew steadily worse. The official figures of the Commissar of Health show 13,476 cholera cases since the beginning of the year, of which 11,234 occurred in the month of June alone. The Vossische Zeitung says there are five hundred cholera cases in Moscow.

Gov't Report Crop Conditions

Following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Heavy rains early in the week in most parts of the province revived pastures to a wonderful extent, and by the week end a marked improvement was observable in the milk flow. The root crops were also greatly benefitted by the showers.

Harvesting operations are being rushed, and were never more varied. Middlesex puts it thus: "Oats are now being cut, three or four weeks earlier than last year, and it is rather unusual to have hay, wheat and small grains harvested at the same time." A number of farmers are also threshing.

Haldimand says that fall wheat is threshing very well both as regards yield and quality.

Hay is selling in Kent at $20 a ton

The second cutting of alfalfa is now being made, and is giving fair satisfaction. Halton, however, says that farmers who kept the first crop for seed report that many pods matured very poorly on account of the hot weather.

Peas have been badly scorched by the hot weather, and are not doing very well.

Corn is making tremendous growth with timely rains and continued hot weather. It has reached the tasselling stage in most parts of the province.

Essex reports that the early tomatoes are at the height of their season

Lennox and Addington states that a large acreage of millet and buckwheat has been sown during the week.

In most counties the marketing of cattle has been thrust aside by the work of harvesting, although many good beef animals are ready for buyers. Perth, however, states that a number of finished cattle are changing hands, one load going to Great Britain.

Lambton says: "The first trial shipment of livestock to the British market left this county last Monday. Mr John Zavitz and Fred Dolbear contributed 74 head. The success or failure of this shipment will greatly influence the method of disposing of the balance of heavy cattle in the county."

Middlesex also refers to the export of cattle as follows: "Some cattle are being shipped to England and will likely net about 11.5 cents. These cost about 14c. per pound last fall, and from 2½ to 3 cents to winter, or their total cost is around 17 cents, and they lose to the owner about five cents."

Lennox and Addington reports condensory prices for milk at $1.30 a cwt. for 3.3 per cent. milk.

Hogs are scarce, and are selling at from $11 to $12.75 a cwt.

Recent rains have made the land easier to plow, and many hay fields are being prepared for fall wheat. Owing to the early harvest it is likely that an increased acreage of fall plowing will be done.

Grenville is of the opinion that there will be a shortage of good seed grain in Eastern Ontario, and urges farmers who have good seed from last year to hold it.

Wellington says that summer fallowing will be more practised this year, as thistles and other weeds have been making great headway during the last two years.

Demands Release of U.S. Prisoners

WITHOUT SUCH RELEASE NO ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE WILL BE GIVEN TO RUSSIA, IT IS HINTED

Washington, July 28.—The United States has demanded the immediate release of American prisoners in Russia, it was announced at the State Department to-day. Without such release, Russia can expect no economic assistance from this country, she has been informed.

The demand is taken as Government endorsement of the recent communication of Herbert Hoover, as chairman of the United States Relief Administration to Russian authorities. The proposition for release of the Americans, of whom there are seven or eight, is thus made a diplomatic, as well as an economic issue.

The communication was sent to United States Consul Albrecht at Reval, for transmission to the Russian authorities. The fact does not in any way involve recognition of the Soviet Government, it was stated officially. A communication on the subject of trade was sent through the same channels on March. 25, it was pointed out.

What answer Russia will make is problematic. It is not improbable that she will take the ground that the demand is based on the unhuman policy of forcing the settlement of a diplomatic question by the misfortune of a famine-stricken people. Government officials here, however, have anticipated such a reply by the recent statement that this Government "feels deeply for the Russian people." The United States, they say, is traditionally philanthropic but should "first point out that the nations which it favors should come in with clean hands."

The attitude of Russia, as stated by officials here, is that the prisoners are for the most part, accused of "espionage," and that their release would be a military blunder not to be expected by the United States while Russia is beset by so many enemies.

Moving Pictures Used in Surgery

Show Even More Faithful and More Complete View Than Can be Seen by Surgeon's Eyes

Berlin, July 28.—A cinematographic achievement which undoubtedly has proved epoch-making, has just been demonstrated in Berlin's great charity hospital in the presence of prominent physicians and journalists.

The films showed every stage of half a dozen operations, including an operation for fracture of the patella, one for the extirpation of the breast, and an operation on the stomach and abdominal cavity as performed by men like Professor Bier, Professor of Fraekel, et al.

The process is the invention of Doctor Alexander von Rothe, chief physician of the Wilmersdorf Hospital, who long has been working with the assistance of the Ministry of Education and the Cinematographic-Technical Association to find a method of filming operations which should show every motion without disturbing the surgeon or employing illumination likely to counteract the asepsis.

The lens of the apparatus is contained in an atmospheric case which is suspended directly over the field of operation and the film ribbon, which often is 600 meters long, passes through a tube from the reel in an adjoining room.

The pictures secured show an operation precisely as seen by the operating surgeon's eye. Even the threads of the closing stitches are observable.

Indeed the films give even a more faithful and more complete picture of every movement than can be seen by those around the operating table.

The possibilities of the films for teaching and for making it possible for surgeons in the various countries to study each other's technique cannot be exaggerated, in the view of leading medical men here.

WRECKS A TRAIN FOR AMUSEMENT

Scranton, Pa., July 28.—Joseph Arre, a 14-year-old boy, confessed to the police that he caused the wreck of the Lackawanna Limited at Glenburn last Friday, which resulted in two men being killed and 30 persons injured.

Detective Michael Spellman and Peter Michaels of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad took the boy into custody late this afternoon after trainmen had reported to railroad officials that they found obstructions on tracks just ahead of their trains. If the obstructions had not been discovered it is likely that another passenger train would have been ditched, with fatal results.

"Yes, I put the bolt and nut on the track last Friday and wrecked the train, but I didn't mean to cause any danger," said the little farmer boy in an unconcerned tone.

"I just wanted to see the bolts and nuts flattened by the engine," young Arre continued.

Early Days on Murray Canal

RECOLLECTIONS OF CONSTRUCTION DAYS ON BIG DITCH

Sitting on the hurricane deck of the steamer Brockville and dreamily watching the green fields bordering the Murray Canal slip pleasantly by, a little group of Belleville folks privileged to see the beautiful scenery from the vantage point of the lee of the wheel house were joined by the Master of the vessel, Capt. Rathbun, who was persuaded to tell a few of his reminiscenses of the days when the site of the Murray Canal was pasture land and swamp. Capt. Rathbun then a lad on his father's farm near Deseronto, came up to visit a cousin and take part in the festivities attending the turning of the first sod for the canal. There was an old-fashioned picnic and speeches galore, but he does not remember what the speakers had to say. However, he remembers the large crowd present and the general feasting and rejoicing. He was offered a job on the canal construction which he accepted and hurried back to Deseronto to finish his fall plowing. This accomplished he hitched up his team and drove back to the scene of construction and worked with his team until nearly Christmas

Bay of Quinte people who are enjoying the regular week-end trips to Presqu'ile on the steamer Brockville will be interested in the following brief account of the Murray Canal, inception, construction and completion:

The project of constructing this canal was first entertained in 1796 and land secured for the purpose, subsequently this land was disposed of to settlers. In 1825 the Commissioners of Internal Navigation advised the construction of the Murray Canal "in order to avoid the dangerous navigation off Long Point." In 1864 the subject was revived and a survey authorized. In 1881 a completed survey was submitted to the Minister of Railways and Canals specifying the Presqu'ile terminal.

The canal is situated in the County of Northumberland, beginning fifteen miles west of Belleville and consists of an artificial strait connecting the Bay of Quinte waters with Lake Ontario. The canal begins at Twelve O'clock Point crosses the isthmus of Murray and leads out into Presqu'ile harbor to the deep water of the lake abreast of Presqu'ile Lighthouse, a distance of nine and one half miles. The canal proper is fully six miles in length and is located on a perfectly straight line. It comprises four and a quarter miles of through-cut across the isthmus with entrances at each end, flanked with concrete docks. The width of the canal is eighty feet at bottom. In Presqu'ile harbor a channel was formed through the "Calf Pasture" and "Salt Point" shoals.

A contract was entered into with J. D. Silcox & Co., on the 24th of August, 1882, to be completed 1st July, 1885, but the canal was not actually completed until the 12th of August, 1890, although vessels commenced to use it on the 14th of April, 1890.

The original contract price was $1,140,625, but this amount was considerably exceeded on account of changes in the original plans.

For a long time the canal was used by Lake vessels to a considerable extent, but of late the traffic has been light. There are several bridges crossing the canal with swings operated by officials in charge. No tolls are charged vessels passing through.

NEW INDUSTRY AT SUDBURY HAS COMMENCED OPERATIONS

Sudbury, Ont., July 29.—Today Sudbury's newest and largest industry came into being when the Canadian creosoting plant on the Copper Cliff road commenced operations. The largest of its kind in Canada, the plant covers 160 acres, and will treat ties and bridge timbers for the C. P. R. It will give employment to a maximum of 300 men. At the present time about 200 hands are on the payroll, while the C.P.R., acting independently from the company, have over 200 men at work unloading and piling ties. The minimum number employed by the company will be approximately 100.

WIT OF FAMOUS PREACHERS.

Leaders of the Reformation Made Their Jests.

The witty sayings of famous men are apt to be more characteristic than their serious statements. Truth is truth, however told, but wit is a lambent flame of idiomatic personality playing around fact, or demolishing falsity. Some preachers have been witty men and some have not, but the oratorical temperament usually has a quick answer to any problem.

Luther's wit was as rough and ready as himself and his time. One of his lieutenants came to him with a troublous tale of a minister who wore a cassock while preaching. Said Luther: "He can wear three cassocks if it will help him to be a better preacher."

Quaintly solemn was the wit of Latimer when, as a court chaplain, he preached before Henry VIII. He began: "Latimer, Latimer, take care what you say; the great King Henry VIII. is here." After a pause he added: "Latimer, Latimer, take care what you say, for the King of Kings is here."

Whitefield, the father of Methodism, had that faculty of getting down to realities which has been characteristic of other preachers of that simple faith. On being asked if a certain man was a Christian, Whitefield replied: "How should I know? I have never lived with him."

Whitefield was once visiting a brother in the church who was excessively fond of his prayers, and showed it by making rather tiresomely long ones. Whitefield arose quietly during the prayer and seated himself, and explained with serenity to his host a little later: "You prayed me into a good frame of mind, and then you prayed me out again."

Occupied with founding a new church, Whitefield had little time for theological subtleties, and once said that he expected when he reached heaven to find Charles I., Oliver Cromwell, and Archbishop Laud all singing hallelujahs together.

The reply of Dr. South to Queen Anne when she objected to the length of his sermon has passed into a religious proverb. He said: "I would have made it shorter if I had had more time."

Warmth and Fog.

Sir Napier Shaw, the retired director of the Meteorological Office in England, communicates the results of an investigation in regard to fog and its dispersal. Somebody who attended a football match last autumn noticed that as the game proceeded the fog dispersed, and suggested to Sir Napier an investigation of the possibility of dispersing fog by artificial heating. Sir Napier calculates that to clear an area 400 yards square, on which the fog might be 300 to 400 feet thick, and moving with the breeze, it would be desirable to use electrical heating as most efficient, though costly in coal, and that 400 to 500 tons of coal per hour might be needed. Sir Napier humorously adds, "Having made the calculation, let me say that if it were possible to operate in this way, I think we should have found more evidence for it than has hitherto come to light. A football crowd would be a good way of trying the experiment. Arrange for a 50,000 crowd to surround a football field on the occasion of the next fog; there are always 50,000 people who have an hour or two to spare for an easy job of that kind. Has anybody ever known a ring of sightseers dissipate a fog by their mere presence? I wonder if 8,000 people are as good as a ton of coal; they certainly ought to be."

London's New Reservoir.

The area of water surface of the Littleton Reservoir of the Metropolitan Water Board will be approximately 700 acres, and its capacity about 6,500,000,000 gallons. The whole of the water will be pumped into the reservoir from the River Thames, and the reservoir, like those already constructed in the Thames Valley, will be formed of an earthen embankment with a puddle core tied into the surface of the London clay. The intake from the River Thames near Penton Hook will be controlled by roller sluices. Three Venturi meters, each have a throat of four feet 10 inches in diameter, with a maximum capacity of 100,000,000 gallons per days, will be installed at the commencement of the intake channel. At the inlet to the reservoir, pumps will be installed capable of lifting a maximum of 300,000,000 gallons per day through three steel pipes, six feet in diameter, laid over the embankment.

Brahms Sung by Heathens.

Relating his experiences while in Uganda, Rev. B. C. S. Everett, a Minor Canon at St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle, says he visited native schools where coal black children, whose parents not long ago were heathens of the most barbarous type, sang to his astonishment songs from Menhelssohn and Brahms in a manner to give the children of many English schools a lead. The greatest punishment to inflict upon a native child is to tell it that it will be excluded from attendance at school; they are immensely keen on learning. Mr. Everett received from one of the principal native public men a six-bowled sacred pipe, which is now one of his most cherished possessions. "So far," he says, "I have never smoked it, for I do not think my constitution will stand the strain of smoking from six bowls at once."

Oriental Goldfish.

Goldfish, as bred in Japan and China, assume strange shapes. The Celestial has eyes on top of its head, the Telescope has grotesque protruding eyes, and the Tumbler cannot maintain its equilibrium in the water owing to its curious shape.

Powerful electro-magnets are frequently used to remove steel splinters from the eyes of workmen.

Much of the village of St. Tites des Caps, Que., was destroyed by fire, the waterworks reservoir being empty.

Lenin defended his change of policy in Russia.

OCEAN BOOTLEGGER DOES BIG BUSINESS

Atlantic City, N.J., July 28.—The identity of the alleged mysterious "rum-running" ship lying off the coast has been disclosed.

According to reliable information reaching here today, the name of the vessel is the Marshall, 100 tons net, hailing from Nassau. Her skipper is Eric Anderson, a youthful mariner of Swedish ancestry, but believed to be a British subject. She carries a crew of six men, all of whom are Britishers. Four are Canadians, a negro cook and the skipper.

According to the information received, the Marshall has been doing a land-office business in Bahama Island liquor. She hovers from 18 to 20 miles off Atlantic City in the daytime, but at night comes much closer.

She never ventures within the three-mile limit. She came up from Nassau several weeks ago with a cargo of the finest Scotch whiskey and Gordon gin to be obtained anywhere. In all she had 2,000 cases aboard and went to Montauk Point, where she got rid of 1,600 cases in the ten days she lay off there.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

An hour's conversation between Lord Hardinge and Premier Briand ensued, after which the Premier joined his colleagues in a cabinet meeting in progress at the Palace of Elyse.

BASEBALL

Port Hope's Wail

The Port Hope Guide, in referring to the game here on Wednesday, when the G.T.R. team defeated Port Hope by a score of 10 to 4, says:

"Had the Rev. Ramsay officiated as base umpire at the Belleville-Port Hope game in Belleville yesterday the locals would no doubt have pulled out a victory. An unfair decision in the last of the eighth innings gave Belleville a decided advantage and was responsible for five runs in that innings. Mills was leading off third base when Ware whipped the ball down to catch him. Fair had Mills off the bag easily four feet, but Mills jumped in to the third baseman knocked the ball from his hand and his Umps declared him safe. Fair was so badly used up that he was obliged to retire and before the team settled down to play again five Belleville players crossed the plate. Up to this time the score was 5 to 4 in favor of Belleville. Port Hope played snappy ball all through and if they continue the good work they will make it interesting for all the teams on the Central League.

LAWN BOWLING

Two rinks from the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club went to Deseronto this afternoon to play a friendly game with two rinks of the latter place. Rev. D. C. Ramsay and Mr. A. R. Symons will skip the Belleville rinks.

BELLEVILLE AT COBOURG

Off they go, "They" meaning the G.T.R. team which journeys to Cobourg to-morrow to play their second game in the second half of the C.O.L. schedule. A good crowd of rooters is assured to cheer and help the boys along on the road to victory. It is not known yet whether Goyer or Kelleher will pitch this game, but it will likely be Goyer. Cobourg has as yet not been a dangerous team but it is just this kind of a team that sometimes spring the biggest surprise, so "Watch your step boys!"

We can hardly afford to lose a game so the result will be eagerly awaited by the fans who are forced to remain in the city but who will really be with the boys in mind if nothing more. Good Luck boys and here's hoping for one great victory.

ST. MIKES MEET TWEED HERE

On Saturday at the Agricultural Park, St. Michael's will play Tweed. At present St. Mikes lead the Trent Valley League. The game promises to be most interesting as both teams have been playing first class ball. The spectators will likely not be many on account of the Central League game at Cobourg but we should not neglect this infant team which will no doubt in later years form a team equal if not better than the present day G. T. R.'s.

CUNNING OF THE GRIZZLY.

Hunter Tells of an Adventure With a Bear.

The cunning of an old bear that Mr. Enos A. Mills tells about in his book, "The Grizzly," shows what a wily antagonist you will have against you if you ever try to match wits with old Ephraim.

"After passing an hour or more without seeing the bear," says Mr. Mills, who was following a grizzly to study his behaviour, "I climbed a cliff, hoping to get a glimpse of him on some ridge ahead. I could see his line of tracks crossing a low ridge beyond, and felt that he might still be an hour or so in the lead. But in descending the cliff I chanced to look back along my trail. Just at that moment the bear came out of the woods behind me. He was trailing me.

"I do not know how he discovered that I was following him. He may have seen me or scented me. At any rate, instead of coming directly back and thus exposing himself, he had very nearly carried out his well-planned surprise when I discovered him. I found out afterwards that, leaving his trail far ahead of me, he had turned and walked back in his own footprints for a distance. After tramping this stretch a number of times he had leaped into scrubby timber and made off on the side where his tracks did not show.

"After discovering him on my trail I went slowly along as if unaware of his presence. He followed within three hundred feet of me. When I stopped he stopped. He occasionally watched me from behind bushes, a tree, or a boulder.

"I concluded to turn the tables on him. After crossing a ridge where I was for the moment out of his sight, I turned to the right and ran for nearly a mile. Then, circling back into our old trail behind the bear, I traveled serenely along, imagining that he was far ahead. I was suddenly startled to see his shadow move from behind a boulder near the trail, only three hundred feet ahead of me. At the place where I had left the trail to circle behind him he had stopped, and apparently guessed my movements, for, turning in his tracks, he had come a short distance back on the trail, and lain down behind the boulder to wait for me.

"I went on a few steps after discovering him, and he moved to keep out of sight. I edged toward a tall spruce, which I planned to climb if he charged. Pausing by the spruce, I could see his silver-grey fur as he peered at me from behind the boulder. I concluded finally that it was best not to follow him farther. Going a short distance down among the trees, I built a rousing fire. Between it and the cliff I spent the night, satisfied that I had had adventure enough for one outing."

Alaskan Volcanic Fires.

At the recent meeting of the American Society for the Advancement of Science, Dr. Robert F. Griggs described a fiery flood which occurred in Alaska, in the "Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes." Here he found traces of the flood of fire which, issuing from a fissure in the earth, swept a roaring torrent of molten sand through the fertile valley, devastating all in its path for a distance of more than fifteen miles. From thousands of fissures live steam, heated gas, and smoke issued. One could do one's cooking in any of the smaller holes. And that was the only salvation of the expedition, for all fuel had been destroyed by the flood of fire. It is only a few steps from the steaming fissures to a cave in the side of a glacier in order to have the most perfect refrigeration in the world. The explorers' tents were steam-heated, as it were, and the bathing conditions were of the best, for a stream from the glacier fed a crystal pure lake. In the middle of this lake a steam jet bubbled, and it was possible to get any desired temperature.

Whale With Hind Legs.

The first whale with hind legs has been caught in British Columbia. This was described at a recent lecture held at the American Museum of Natural History. The legs project some four feet from the body near the tail, and are about six inches broad, the bones being covered with a thick layer of blubber which may or may not have contained muscle. The whale, a female fifty feet in length, was unfortunately not preserved at the Victoria whaling station, where it was brought in, and one of the legs was broken off by those making the capture.

For Company's Sake.

Smith had been offered a really good job in Australia. So he threw up his clerkship in London and made arrangements to leave for the land of kangaroos.

While passing through Liverpool on his way to the docks, he was suddenly and quite unexpectedly hailed by a friend from Manchester, who inquired:

'Halloa, old man. Where are you off to?"

"Australia," was Smith's blunt reply.

"Right-oh!" said his friend. "I'll walk part of the way with you!"

Abraham's Wells.

Abraham's Wells, Beersheba, Palestine, are now equipped with modern pumping machinery and are supplying water to the town. From time immemorial wells at Beersheba have supplied the Bedouins with water for their flocks. The original "Well of the Oath" as dug by Abraham is described in the book of Genesis.

Hyacinth.

Hyacinth, according to a Grecian fable, the son of a Spartan king, was beloved by Apollo and Zephyr, and as he preferred the Sun-god, Zephyr drove Apollo's quoit at his head and killed him. His blood became the flower.

He who hits the pipe must pay the piper.

OSHAWA HERE ON WEDNESDAY

On Wednesday next, the Oshawa nine will don their war paint and feathers, it being the occasion of their first game here in the second half of the schedule. Maybe the Goyer-Mills and supporting combination won't polish up! Everybody wants to squeeze the pennies and be ready in the bleachers, grandstand, along the base line, or any vantage point to witness this battle. A battle royal it certainly will be as Oshawa has a splendid team with Dainty or Patton to pitch, and an airtight combination, both in outfield and infield.

It's an undeniable fact that our team has the goods. Goods of the very best kind, if they will only play the game, play with the winning of the game their sole objective for the day.

Mills and Goyer are safe, Frank Goyer has the goods if he'll deliver, Weir is good as are H. Mills, who it is hoped will be able to play, Williams Casey, Meagher, Ross, Kelleher, Smith and Symons.

There will be one wonderful turnout. Whistles, horns 'n everything.

CECIL KIDD INJURED

Cecil Kidd, a six-year-old lad, was admitted to the Kingston General Hospital on Monday evening suffering from internal injuries as a result of an accident near Gananoque. The boy was crushed between the wheel of a wagon and some object. The boy is a son of W. Kidd, residing on the Gananoque road, near that place.

The preliminary Pacific Conference may be held in Canada.

JUGGLING WITH DEATH FOR "EASY MONEY"

Now that importation of liquor into Ontario is prohibited there will no doubt be efforts made to conduct an illicit traffic. Moonshine stills are being frequently discovered, indicating that people are willing to take a chance to make "easy money." As long as people can be found foolish enough to chance their health and lives on the product peddled by bootleggers there will be bootleggers to make and sell the stuff. There have been many examples of injury and death caused by drinking the poisonous stuff peddled as liquor, and officers of the law have found that deadly concoctions, beautifully labelled, were being peddled and bought by foolish people. Unfortunates imbibing a few drinks of these deadly liquids have been picked up unconscious and remain in a dazed condition for several days, if they recover at all.

Death and blindness and permanent injury to health follows in the wake of the bootlegger, who is a criminal of the deepest dye, caring nothing for the lives or health of his patrons if he can only get their money. No penalties are too severe for the wood alcohol bootlegger, who is a potential murderer of the worst stripe.

AFTER GRAND FLEET

Disarmament talk seems to be largely a game of mental reservation and desire to see the other chap's hand. This is how the St. Louis Globe-Democrat views it:

"As the country understands it, there is to be no stopping of the naval program that will leave the United States inferior to other nations in essential units of the fleet. It would obviously be impossible to expect this country to halt its navy lacking in well-rounded equipment. But there is a great opportunity to hold down future programs, so there shall be no wasteful race in competitive armaments that will simply burden the nations involved and will not alter their relative naval strength. It is probably too much to expect that France, still under the guns of an enemy that so often has proved formidable in the past, should consent to reduce her army. The limitation of naval armaments in the future is the most promising field for agreement. There is no promise of a millennium in which there shall be no wars in the conference called by President Harding. But any forward step will be an achievement in practical idealism of great importance to the world."

MRS. NELLIE McCLUNG.

Among the striking personalities entering upon public life, as the outcome of the recent provincial election in Alberta, is Mrs. Nellie McClung, long known as a pleasing writer. Her first book, "Sowing Seeds in Danny," was written in an original, breezy style which won attention, and was followed by "The Second Chance," which caught the public. As a forceful public speaker and lecturer, a vigorous temperance advocate and an active Methodist, Mrs. McClung has been a person to be reckoned with in the West. Her platform activities have favored the Liberal party and now she enters the Legislature as a supporter of that party. Her campaign was opened on the same platform with Premier Stewart, and whatever may be his future, Mrs. McClung takes her seat in Parliament as a Liberal. In the early days of the West a Canadian Irish family named Mooney migrated to the country beyond Winnipeg, and Nellie was one of the little girl members of that Owen Sound, Ont., family. In due time the little girl became a teacher, then a contributor to the Boston Youths' Companion, and Canadian periodical literature, and the writer of books. Incidentally the writer became Mrs. McClung and the mother of four charming children. An attractive, resourceful person, a fluent and pleasing speaker, Mrs. McClung will be welcomed to the public life of Canada.

Prisoner who walked out of the Campbellford jail when some negligent officer left the place unlocked and unguarded should be severely reprimanded. No prisoner with any consideration for the amenities would think of taking such a mean advantage of his guardian. It is not explained whether the custodians of the bastille were attending a U.F.O. picnic or a baseball match, but no doubt there was an urgent reason for their absence. The least the prisoner could have done under the circumstances was to guard the place until the authorized representatives of the law returned. As he was shot in the leg by a zealous constable, this may possibly be regarded as a sufficient penalty for the first offence.—Toronto Telegram.

Have patience! says Hon. Mr. Biggs, road-builder-extraordinary, and all will be well. Mr. Biggs is engaged upon a road-building project embracing eighteen hundred miles of highway, involving many million dollars expenditure. These roads are being constructed without permanent surface covering and the experiment is being watched with misgiving. Hon. Mr. Biggs says he is building good foundations, well drained, and ready for permanent surface covering which will come later. The Biggs roads will either be an outstanding triumph or a colossal failure, and many there be who hae their doots as to the permanency of the roads that Biggs built.

A SORRY ESCAPE

Vancouver Province

One point established on the authority of the German court is that the sinking of the hospital ship and slaughter of victims in the boats was in itself a capital crime. The officers escaped conviction for murder because the judge held that the crime was, not premeditated. The court seems to have decided that this butchery was not a wanton murder, but an act of panic, induced by fear that the victims might escape and give evidence. The submarine officers have no reason to be proud of this verdict. Even the German court agrees that the submarine warfare against hospital ships was criminal brutality and the officers only escape sentence for murder by the conviction of manslaughter tempered with cowardice. They are allowed to live but are sentenced to everlasting and universal contempt.

THE HIP IS SAFE

Hamilton Herald

It is officially stated that officers whose duty it is to enforce the prohibition law have no legal right to hold up travellers entering Ontario and search their pockets for hidden flasks. But it is stated that the officers are authorized to search a traveller's baggage in their hunt for the forbidden thing.

And so the minions of the law may not manhaul a traveller and go through his pockets. That is something. It is a concession to personal liberty and the right of citizens to be unmolested so long as they behave themselves.

And suppose a traveller does carry a flask in his hip pocket? Many very good men—and women too—have long been accustomed to take a little spirits with them when they travel, for mechanical use in cases of emergency. What harm is there in that? Even if the "medicine" is carried in a suitcase, if there be only a small quantity of it, it should not be liable to seizure nor should the traveller be treated as a lawbreaker.

With time, perhaps, the enforcement of the prohibitory law will be tempered more and more with common sense and humane consideration.

DIVINITY

The golden sun of the morning,
When it lights up the gardens first,
Drying the dews of the evening
And causing the blossoms to burst,
Fills up the soul with contentment,
For Heaven is near the sod—
This wondrous glory of Nature
Is the soul of the Living God.

In the noontide rush of manhood,
Where each one vies against all,
Where the struggle for bread is keenest,
Where some of the bravest fall,
There comes in that "human maelstrom,"
A beacon within the fog—
The light of the inner Conscience,
The spirit in man, of God.

The deepening gloom of the evening,
As it covers this restless land,
Bringing repose to the weary,
And staying the tired hand,
Is the advent of quieting Nature,
The end of the path we've trod—
For night, and the comfort of darkness,
Are part of a restful God.

A Laugh or Two

Off The Menu

Two gentlemen who had come into a restaurant one day were scarcely at the table when the waiter rushed up and asked:

"What shall I bring you gentlemen?"

"Oh, dear," said one of the gentlemen, impatiently, "give us a little respite!"

"All right!" said the waiter, and disappeared.

They had been looking over the bill of fare about five minutes, and were waiting rather anxiously for the waiter to return and take their order when he came up suddenly, as if in breathless haste.

"Sorry, gentlemen," said he, "but the respite is off."—Spare Moments.

"Eh, but, sir, ye'll be verra sorry if ye dinna get this hint frae me."

"Oh, well, here's a shilling; now what is it?"

"Minister, I'll tell ye, though it's too cheap for a shilling. If ye're ever pit in the town gaol, try and get the second cell on the left han' side. It's the maist comfortable cell, for I've tried them all!"—Spare Moments.

Orange Order Shows Progress

GAINS REPORTED DURING THE PAST YEAR

Toronto, July 28.—An urgent warning to keep a close watch "upon those who represent the Irish rebel movemen in this Dominion" was contained in the address of Grand Master H. C. Hocken at the opening of the 91st annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of British America yesterday. The Grand Master claimed credit for the work of Orangeism in counteracting the agitation and exposing the character of the Self-Determination League.

He described the judgment of the Privy Council on the Tremblay-Despatie marriage case as the "out-standing event of the past year," and continued to point out the 'full service that has been rendered by the action of this GrandLodge in standing behind the appeal and providing the money necessary to carry on."

Progress By Branches

The work carried on by the Insurance Department, the True Blue and Orange Orphanage, the progress of the Masters' Conference and the Sentinel were referred to by Mr. Hocken.

Stating that the Grand Lodge was entering on a new era, that the methods of the past had been found unequal to maintaining the organization with the efficiency needed for progress, he said: "It is better for us to have one hundred thousand live, active members than two hundred thousand without definite purpose or interest."

Speaking on conditions in Ireland he declared, "If the negotiations now proceeding fail it will not be the fault of Ulster. All Northern Ireland asks is security within the Empire to work out the new institutions so recently imposed upon that part of the country." High tribute to Sir Sam Hughes was expressed by the speaker.

Growth of Organization

Forty-seven Primary Lodges, two District Lodges, seven Scarlet Chapters, nine Orange Young Briton Lodges, and eighty lodges of the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association added during the year is the progress reported by the Grand Secretary William Lee. Joseph E. Thompson, Grand Treasurer, read his report which showed a favorable financial condition.

Yesterday there were over 300 delegates in attendance.

The following standing committees were struck off: Correspondence, Finance, Credentials, Petitions and Appeals, Suspensions and Expulsions, Insurance Constitutional Laws. These will report at tomorrow's session.

Mayor Church tendered the visitors a civic welcome which was replied to ex-Mayor E. T. Essery, K.C., London.

At the afternoon session reports were heard from the following staff organizers: Rev. E. Norris, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island; Rev. J. A. MacFarlane, Quebec, and N.B., Captain M. J. O'Brien, Ontario East; Major J. I. Hartt, Ontario West; R. T. Henderson, Manitoba; W. H. G. Armstrong, Saskatchewan; Robert White, Alberta; W. T. Jago, British Columbia.

Did Work Twice For Him, He Says

LETRIS ENTHUSIASTIC IN HIS PRAISES OF TANLAC—GLAD TO RECOMMEND IT

"Well, I don't know what it is, but there's something about Tanlac that certainly does the work," said A. Letris, of 184 Queen St., North.RA RA T ris, of 184 Queen Street North, Hamilton, Ontario. Mr. Letris is a well-known printer, and has been with the Grimes Printing Company for nine years.

"Yes, sir, I can recommend Tanlac, for it has straightened me out twice, and I believe it will help anyone else who tries it. Two years ago I took the medicine and it fixed me up in fine shape and I felt good until a little while back when I commenced to feel run down. I got to where I just had to drive myself at my work and as my appetite was gone, I seemed to go down hill all the time instead of getting better.

"Well, I got me some Tanlac, and it wasn't long until my appetite had a new start. I have just finished my second bottle now and I can eat anything at any time without its hurting me. That tired feeling is gone, and I feel full of energy all the time. Tanlac is all that is claimed for it, and it certainly is the medicine for me."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville at Ostrom's Drug Store.

ANOTHER DAILY PAPER GOES OUT OF BUSINESS

Ingersoll, July 28.—The Ingersoll Daily Chronicle, which came into existence three months ago, has ceased publication. An assignment has been made by the publisher, N. A. Willoughby. Insufficient support from sources where it had been promised is the reason assigned by Mr. Willoughby for the failure of his project.

Toronto Motorist Slept at Wheel And Was Injured

TORONTO VOCALIST AND COMPANION IN AUTO BOTH SERIOUSLY HURT

Toronto, July 28.—Bert Caldwell of 392b Roncesvalles avenue, well known in Toronto as a vocalist, was badly injured near Oakville at 7 o'clock yesterday morning when his car struck an electric light pole beside the Toronto-Hamilton highway. He is now in the Toronto General Hospital suffering from a dislocation of the right knee, a laceration of the left knee and other bruises. Harold Reeves of 390 Roncesvalles avenue, is more seriously injured. He had a bad fracture of the left arm and other minor injuries.

The accident occurred in front of Major Wm. Eaton's farm, about a mile and a half east of Oakville. The car, a Ford Sedan, was badly smashed by the force of the collision with the pole, which, although close to 10 inches thick, was broken off by the impact.

Letters to the Editor

SAVED $120,000

To the Editor of The Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—The clipping appended is from yesterday's Toronto Globe, and will serve to show that the ratepayers of our city who signed the petition which was presented to the Council praying that the construction of the Coleman Ward School be deferred until 1922 manifested good judgment in that procedure, also that the Council in refusing to pass the bylaw connected therewith acted in the best interest of the city from an economical point of view; and the School Board should now be pleased that the Council took the course they did.

A. ROBINSON.

The clipping follows:

Hamilton, July 27.—The Technical Committee of the Board of Education has awarded to the W. E. Wood Company, Windsor, the contract to build a wing for the Technical School, which will cost $700,000. Adam Clark & Co. and the Electric Supply Co. were the only Hamilton firms to get any part of the work, but it was stipulated that, as far as possible, Hamilton and Canadian goods must be used. J. J. Hunt, chairman of the committee, figures that the city saved about $120,000 by deferring the letting of the contract for several weeks.

Literary Notes

AUGUST ROD AND GUN

Lovers of the out-of-doors will be pleased ti know that a specially interesting number of Rod and Gun in Canada is just out. The August issue contains a particularly appealing article entitled, "Mississauga-Canada's Best Canoe Trip" by Douglas Hains. This is a story that everyone will enjoy. The stories by F. V. Williams, Bonnycastle Dale and Harry M. Moore, well-known contributors, will be received with undoubted favor. The thrilling experiences outlined in the several articles following will be of great interest and value to the amateur sportsman. The sportsman's departments, fishing, guns, conservation and kennel contain many important points that the typical sportsman will appreciate. Rod And Gun In Canada, is published monthly at Woodstock, Ontario, by W. J. Taylor, Limited.

NEW VARIETIES OF FRUITS A SUCCESSS

Ottawa, July 29.—Efforts of the Department of Agriculture to improve the varieties of fruits and vegetables grown in Canada are meeting with considerable encouragement, officials of the department state. While special consideration is being paid by the Horticultural division of the Experimental Farm System to the cultivation of the apple as the most exportable fruit, much attention is devoted to plums and other fruits.

There is a great part of Canada where the European or domestic plums do not succeed, whereas the native plum is found in very cold districts. The Horticultural division is striving to find improved forms of the native species, and some excellent early types have been developed at the central and other farms.

Breeding new types, not only of plums, but of strawberries, raspberries, gooseberries and grapes is one of the important lines of work undertaken, and it has been found that the Portie, originated in the division, is one of the best canning, most productive and handsomest of strawberries.

What is a Recommendation Worth?

That depends very much upon who gives it. For instance, we recommend Ames Holden "Auto-Shoes" as the cheapest mileage you can buy.

And we know a lot about tires. We have to in our business.

Hence our recommendation should carry some weight, apart from the fact that we are benefiting to some extent by your custom.

We know that if you buy once, you will buy again—because you will find that our recommendation saves you money on mileage.

We will give you a guarantee with Ames Holden "Auto-Shoes" too—a guarantee that protects you against any defect in material or workmanship which may arise at any time in the life of the tire. ST. ANDREWS STILL KEEPS COOL

Algonquin Hotel, N.B., July 28.—Great interest has been manifested in the exhibition of the work of Canadian artists at the Casino. Mrs. Godenrath, wife of Captain Perry Godenrath, of Ottawa, is in charge of the exhibition. The artists represented are Dorothy Stevens, whose collection consists of etchings and dry paints, mostly French studies; Herbert Raine, area etchings of Montreal; Clarence A. Gagnon, R.C.A., etchings of Italian and French scenes; Fred E. Haines, aquatines; Walter J. Phillips, color paints from wood of Manitoba scenes; Will W. Alexander, etchings in color; John Cotten, aquatines, paints and etchings; Gyrth Russell, dry paints and etchings; Major Ernest Fosbery, A.R.C.A., etchings and dry paints.

The ladies of the Methodist church held their annual sale of fancy articles and afternoon tea today. There was an excellent display of hand work.

Today has been very warm for St. Andrews. The thermometer at the Algonquin Hotel showed a maximum of seventy-four. All day a breeze has been blowing from over the bay, and this has kept the heat from becoming uncomfortable. At six o'clock there was a slight shower which laid the dust and freshened the air. Tonight it is deliciously cool. Temperature reports still show eighty-five for Montreal, 76 for Quebec, 85 for London, and 74 for Toronto.

TAKE OFF YOUR COAT

Rome, July 28.—A take-off-your-coat experiment for the hot summer months has succeeded in very high aristocratic circles in Rome. The "coatless" campaign was carried so far that in one of the smartest balls given by select society, the men appeared in white flannel trousers and shirts.

Drastic Cuts in Navy

THERE appears to be some misapprehension as to the present strength of the British navy. It will therefore be opportune to give a brief review of the British naval policy during the past two years. Twenty-four hours after the armistice had been signed orders were issued for the cancelling of every naval contract which had not reached a certain degree of completion. At that date the only capital ships under construction were four battle-cruisers, viz., Hood, Anson, Howe and Rodney. As the first-named had been launched it was decided to complete her, but the remaining three were scrapped, and with them went a considerable number of light cruisers, scores of destroyers and submarines, and hundreds of patrol vessels, auxiliaries, and minor craft. Those that survived this drastic "comb-out" were vessels on which so much money had already been spent that it would have been false economy to dismantle them; but they are completing at such a leisurely rate that one of them, the cruiser Effingham, which was laid down at Portsmouth as long ago as 1917, has not yet been launched. On March 1, 1921, the British naval construction program stood as follows: Battleships or battle-cruisers building or projected, none; light cruisers building or completing, 8; destroyers, 7; submarines, 4. The only other vessel in hand is the aircraft carrier Hermes. The fact that no capital ships of any description are now building is unprecedented in British naval history for the past two centuries; as a matter of fact, the historians say that to find a parallel to the present stagnation in British dockyards it would be necessary to go back at least as far as the seventeenth century.

Simultaneously with the cancellation of uncompleted ships, steps were taken to cut down the naval establishment by selling off all redundant material and reducing the commissioned fleets to a minimum, a dual process which has been going on steadily since November, 1918, and still continues. Vessels scrapped to date include four dreadnought battleships, two battle-cruisers, 20 light cruisers, 200 destroyers, 30 submarines, to say nothing of the whole fleet of predreadnought battleships and armored cruisers which have been stricken off the navy list and sold to the shipbreakers (as junk). In the opinion of many authorities this process has been carried too far.

By April, 1919, the Admiralty had worked out a scheme of post-war fleet distribution which, in their judgment, was the minimum necessary to safeguard British interests at home and abroad and to render possible the carrying on of progressive tactical and sea training. Their proposals embraced the maintenance, in full commission, of an Atlantic fleet, consisting of ten battleships (Queen Elizabeth and Royal Sovereign classes), four battle-cruisers, one light cruiser squadron, three destroyer flotillas, and four submarine flotillas, together with a home fleet, manned on the nucleus crew system, of six battleships, one light cruiser squadron, and two destroyer flotillas. In addition a "flying squadron" of aircraft carriers was to be attached to the Atlantic fleet. For the Mediterranean a fleet of six battleships, six light cruisers and a destroyer and submarine flotilla was proposed; while to the other foreign stations were allocated light cruiser squadrons and, in the case of China, a flotilla of submarines. It was soon recognised, however, that this program, modest as it was by comparison with that of pre-war days, would have to be modified in deference to the urgent need of economy.

The home fleet was the first to go. After being in commission only six months it was reduced on October 1, 1919, to a reserve basis, and a month later was abolished altogether. Shortly afterward the "flying squadron" of aircraft carriers was disbanded, all but one of its ships being paid off. On the other hand, a light cruiser squadron and a destroyer flotilla originally embodied in the home fleet were transferred to the Atlantic fleet, which therefore has two light cruiser squadrons and four destroyer flotillas. In February, 1921, the battleship Royal Sovereign was paid off, its withdrawal leaving the Atlantic fleet with only nine battleships in full commission. During the whole of last year the battle-cruiser squadron consisted of only the Hood and the Tiger, the Renown being absent in Australia with the Prince of Wales and the Repulse undergoing a large refit. The Repulse has now been recommissioned, but the Renown has been placed in reserve, so that the present strength of the squadron is limited to three ships.

The reserve fleet makes a most imposing showing—on paper. Every naval port is congested with ships, nominally "in reserve," but actually with skeleton crews on board. Ships which scarcely more than two years ago were the pride of the Grand Fleet now swing idly at their moorings, all but deserted. Beatty's famous flagship, the Lion, now has only three wardroom officers on board, and others hardly less celebrated are in charge of "care and maintenance parties," which means a handful of men just sufficient to keep the machinery from rusting. At Sheerness, Portsmouth and Devonport one may see long lines of destroyers, some launched as recently at 1918, apparently untended, and waiting passively for the word that will send them to the shipbreaker.—Hector C. Bywater in Scientific American.

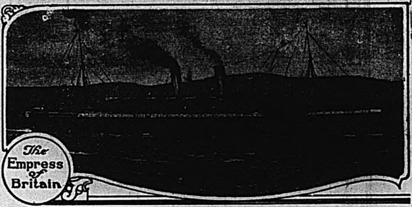
Montreal as an Immigration Centre



The Empress of Britain, one of the big Immigrant Liners of the Atlantic on the St. Lawrence Route. On her last voyage she brought 800 settlers to Canada, most of them bound for the West.

Montreal is one of Canada's chief immigration centres.

While the chief ports of disembarkation are Halifax and St. John in winter and Quebec in summer, a large proportion of the total arrivals reaches Montreal on their way west or for redistribution, while many stay off at that city in order to settle in Quebec province.

Evidences of its being a busy immigration centre are seen at the wharves as well as the railway stations. Come with me to the Canadian Pacific Ocean Service dock. The Melita has just come in at an hour when the city has hardly awakened. Soon after the big leviathan ties up at the wharf—and remember that she sailed up a river for eight hundred miles from the open sea—all is bustle and excitement, for the docking of a transatlantic vessel is always an imposing sight. Gang planks are lowered, donkey engines sing their noisy song as they hoist the endless number of trunks from the deep holds, and the passengers land once again on solid mother earth.

Among the hundreds of passengers are scores who may be regarded as newcomers and as prospective settlers in a new land, the third-class passengers having left the ship at Quebec. And among the Montreal arrivals are many who belong to the class of household workers, for whom Canadian homes are waiting. As they have been helped while on board by a C. P. R. matron, so on land there are immigration officials, of both sexes; and port chaplains of the churches, priests and sisters from the Roman Catholic Church, Y. W. C. A. secretaries, Jewish missioners and many another ready to render help. The service these voluntary workers gives is of the highest value and is greatly appreciated.

With baggage and luggage arranged alphabetically in the long freight shed, it is an easy matter to identify and check the mountains of trunks and bags as they are piled high in the transport wagons for the railway station.

Next let us go to the Windsor Street Station of the Canadian Pacific Railway. It is always a busy centre, but after the arrival of several ocean boats it is doubly thronged, and yet such is the excellent system in vogue that there is no confusion. No one can go astray in finding the right train. The workers one finds at the docks are here also, for they know no union hours. Twenty at a stretch is not unusual under pressure for there is a myriad service to be given, and given quickly.

Before we see off the trainloads of immigrants it will be worth while visiting the wonderful facilities offered these newcomers in this one station and by a railway company. Under the Concourse, there are large rooms, well equipped for the use of the immigrant who may need to remain in the city for a few days. The foreigners are in one room, and the English-speaking ones in another; those who are passing through Canada on their way to the United States have special provision made for them, while yet another huge apartment is devoted to the Chinese in bond.

Montreal does a great deal for the new arrivals. A sample is Dorchester House, a fine home for immigrant girls where they are guided in every way and assisted in finding suitable employment. Hundreds take advantage of this excellent institution, which is maintained co-operatively by several Protestant denominations, also working in harmony with the nearby Y. W. C. A.

There is also the Dominion Immigration Hall, adjoining the Windsor Street Station, a four-story building where immigrant arrivals can be kept for a short time free of charge, where delinquents are treated as in a court, where hospital service of a first aid nature is given, and where a goodly number can be accommodated in dormitories and cots.

This is something of what Montreal is doing for the new Canadian in which the Government, the Railways, the Churches and other organizations are sharing, and it is to the credit of Canada's commercial metropolis that, amid the life and commerce of a great centre, it has time and thought for the immigrant.

Mr. Charles W. DeCarle, of Brockville, was a visitor in Belleville today returning from attending meetings of the Granite and Marble Dealers Association at Toronto and Niagara Falls Mr. DeCarle is very much interested in Belleville inasmuch as he attended the business college conducted here by Beatty and Robinson in 1875. He is a marble cutted by profession and his morning visited Christ Church where he inspected a marble baptismal font, his own handiwork in 1882 and still in use in that church. While the visitor noticed a number of improvements in Belleville there are still enough old landmarks to bring back memories of his stay here in 1875 while attending business college.

Police Court News

On Thursday night about 1 o'clock, John Markee and James Blankley were arrested and charged with vagrancy. In their possession they had about 100 packages of cigarettes which they were trying to sell. Albert Dishaw, another vagrant was apprehended about 1-30 Friday morning. The prisoners were remanded for trial.

Further evidence in the case of Lewis Reeves was carried on Thursday afternoon before Magistrate Masson, and Reeves was found guilty of having liquor in a place other than his residence, contrary to section 41 of the O.T.A. He was fined $500 and costs or four months' hard labor in the county jail. The charge of passing a worthless check against Reeves was not proceeded with, the accused swearing that he had informed Reynolds to whom he gave the check, that there was not funds enough to meet the check and Reynolds agreed not to present it. He did present it, however, and prosecution followed. It is alleged that the check was given in payment for three bottles of whiskey from a man who is now serving a term in the county gaol for an infraction of the O.T.A.

BULLET OF SUICIDE NEARLY SLEW NIECE

Beaverton, July 28.—Thomas Little, aged 40, of Detroit, arrived in Beaverton about 2 o'clock this morning on a visit to his sister, wife of Robert Fogal. Shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon he carried a 38-55 calibre rifle from the kitchen to the cellar and committed suicide.

The bullet passed through this head, came up through the main floor of the dining-room and passed between Mrs. Fogal and her twelve-year-old daughter, who had a miraculous escape.

WOMEN OF ALL CANADA VOTE NEXT ELECTION

Ottawa, July 29.—In the next Federal general election women throughout all the provinces will be entitled to vote on the same basis or qualifications as men, and in the administration of oaths persons who object to kissing the book do not need to do so.

In 1917 a limited number of women were permitted to vote. Since 1917 elections have been held in all the provinces and except in the province of Quebec women voted on an equality with men. They also voted the Scott Act or other temperance enactments. These processes have familiarized the women in the exercise of the franchise

A considerable number did not desire, and some do not yet desire, to present themselves because of the solemnity that surrounds the taking of an oath. They appear to feel that on the rush of election day the solemnity is belittled. This is only a fear, and besides not many are asked to swear or affirm. The formalities through which an oath is administered are in accordance with the procedure in each province in this regard, and the "Kissing of the Book" is almost in the dead past. This is pointed out in a resume of some features of the elections Act by Alexander Smith, a well-known authority on political law, who says that the Canada Evidence Act and the Elections Act also provides that persons anywhere in Canada who have conscientious grounds to being sworn may affirm, so many persons who object to "Kissing the Book" may affirm instead of swear, but the affirmation is subject to all the legal effect of an oath.

In Ontario the law as amended in 1916 distinctly provides that "The Book" is to be held in the hand only when the oath is administered.

CARD OF THANKS

We hereby wish to express our heartfelt gratitude to the neighbors and friends for their many kindnesses during the illness and passing away of our loved one "Lily May". The many beautiful floral tributes were also much appreciated.

Pine Stumps Worth Millions.

Norway pine stumps obstructing agricultural development in northern Minnesota potentially are worth about $300,000,000, according to the state auditor.

"Distillation of pine stumps is a problem of recent development," he said. "It is done to secure various ingredients of great commercial value. Experiments have proven pine stumps on cut-over northern Minnesota lands are exceptionally rich in rosins and adapted to the manufacture of turpentine, pine tar, pine creosote, pine oil and similar products. A company is being formed to establish a plant in the northern part of the state."

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Every day something out of the ordinary is seen by somebody. Let us hear about it. Phone 1248, or write The Intelligencer.

Bumping The Bumps.

R.C.—I saw Mayor Hanna and Ald. Treverton bumping the bumps on Station street in a Dodge car, (no, not the new police car), yes, and the Mayor took him all over the bumps and here's hoping it has the desired effect on the Chairman of Public Works

Sensational Dive

T.—It is not generally known that Herman Osborne, the well-known local tonsorial artist is a high and lofty diver, and a bunch of his friends were very much surprised to see him climb twenty feet on the Bay front and do a sensational plunge in five feet of water. Yes, Herman lived to tell the tale, but it was a close shave at that.

What I Saw

I—On Wednesday afternoon the city steam roller was proceeding over a granolithic crossing leading from the Upper Bridge to the South side of Moira Street, when one of the large wheels broke through the crossing and dropped about two feet. Heavy jacks had to be secured to raise the wheel. The trouble was caused, it is alleged, by the crossing not being properly filled in when excavation was made for a sewer on Moira street.

Badly Trained Boys

B.B.—Strange things can been seen every day in this unsettled, higgedly-piggedly old world for those who have eyes to see. On a recent visit to Penetang my indignation was aroused by an incident which occurred on one of the streets there. A well-dressed youth came swinging along the street acting as if all the world was a nut and he was the cracker. As he was passing a girl aged about fifteen he deliberately drew back his arm and slapped her full in the face with his hand. The girl was walking along minding her own business and paying not the slightest attention to the youth approaching. The blow inflicted a painful injury but the boorishness of the act suggested the thought that the boy's training had been sadly misdirected.

No Time To Sleep

R.E.—I saw a car coming down West Bridge street hill Thursday evening about 7-45 and suddenly crash into a tree, thereby tearing off considerable bark. When I went to investigate the trouble, I found the driver had dozed off to sleep. He said he had been out berry picking and had not had any sleep for two or three nights. Poor excuse to endanger the lives of countless pedestrians, not to mention himself or other autoists.

Tobacco Store Entered and Goods Stolen

PAPPAS POOLROOM AND TOBACCO STORE BURGLARIZED

Some time Thursday night an entrance was effected into Mr. Pappas poolroom and shoe shining establishment located on the east side of Front street. An entrance to the premises was effected from the rear. From the cash register of the shoe shining department $25 in money was taken and some cigars, cigarettes etc. extracted from the show cases. The affair was reported to the police with the result that three young men, Carl Vann, Harry Greaves and Frank Godfrey were later placed under arrest charged with shop breaking. The money and articles stolen were recovered. Sergt. Detective Truiasch and Sergt. Boyd were responsible for the arrest of the accused. The trio will appear before the Magistrate on Saturday morning.

DURHAM VACANCY

Ottawa, July 28.—To nominate a candidate for election to the House of Commons as member for Durham, a convention of the National Liberal and Conservative party will be held at Orono on Friday afternoon. The constituency is unrepresented in the Commons in consequence of the resignation of Hon. N. W. Rowell, president of the Privy Council in Sir Robert Borden's Union Government. Mr. Rowell retired from the cabinet in July, 1920, and resigned his seat in parliament in June last. Friday's meeting will name the candidate who will contest the riding on behalf of the Government at the election to be held to fill the vacancy. The convention will be addressed by Dr. J. W. Edwards, M.P., of Frontenac, and others.

TEMPERATURE TO-DAY

Temperature for the last twenty-four hours was, maximum 83, minimum 65.

Hatfield to Get His Eight Thousand

MAY BE OFFERED CONTRACT FOR NEXT SEASON FOR MORE RAIN

Medicine Hat, July 28.—"Rain-maker" Charles M. Hatfield has won his bet with the Medicine Hat United Agricultural Association, and he will be paid $8,000 for rain which has fallen in the district during the past three months. Hatfield was to receive $8,000 if four inches of rain fell between May 1 and July 1. Up to Saturday last four and one-quarter inches had been recorded, and so Hatfield draws the maximum payment, which will be made him at the end of the month. The Association will hold a meeting on August 1 to determine whether or not the contract shall be renewed for another year.

Despite the outcome of the unusual contract which was made with the "Rain-maker," all are not convinced that Hatfield is entitled to take the responsibility for the precipitation. It is pointed out that the rainfall did not come at the time it was most needed, and, further, that whenever the rain did come it was general throughout the West.

Representatives of various districts in Alberta have been endeavoring to secure Hatfield's services for next season. Hatfield has stated that his present site is about sixteen miles northeast of Medicine Hat and is unsuitable for his purposes on account of the prevailing northwest winds, and that if he is operating here next year he will set up his plant 40 or 50 miles northwest of this city.

Bank Robber Arrested

Windsor, Ont., July 29.—Sam Bodnersky 27, a Russian blacksmith, has been arrested, charged with complicity in daylight hold-up of the Merchants Bank at Petite Cote, July 20, when twenty thousand dollars in cash was taken. Three thousand in the Merchants Bank and other bills found underneath a picture in the wall of Bodnersky's house. Other arrests expected to-day.

DRANK LIQUOR IN AUTO, WOMAN IS FINED $100

Toronto, July 28.—Sarah Hussey, charged a second time this week with being drunk, was sent to the Mercer for six months by Magistrate Jones to-day.

Pleading guilty to a charge of drinking liquor in an unlawful place and not guilty to owning the liquor, Mrs. Evelyn Lee of 141 Seaton street was fined $100 and costs. Mrs. Lee, who was apprehended with three men and another woman at 12.15 last night in a taxi on Sherbourne street, threw a bottle on the boulevard just as the officer came up. The party, she alleged, was returning from a gathering at her home. The other woman Mrs. Lawson, a visitor from the States, had obtained the liquor from a friend Magistrate Jones was of the opinion that the other members of the party should bear part of the expense. "They won't your worship," said Assistant Crown Attorney McFadden. He pointed out the iniquity of people going out in a motor car in the middle of the night with a bottle of liquor.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL, AN EXCELLENT PICTURE

If one can judge from the many favorable comments that were made last night at Griffin's after the performance, Gladys Walton must have made a good impression, known as the screen's best-liked girl, she lived up to the title last night when a large sized audience followed her every movement from the start of Rich Girl, Poor Girl to the end.

J. G. Hawks the author of many notable photoplays and stage productions has given that heart interest which seems to hold one from beginning to end, as he always has in the past to his photoplays, in this story. Miss Walton plays the part of Nora McShane tempestously Irish, she has lived the most of her sixteen years in Fish Alley, the unsavory thoroughfare which ran between a row of tumble down tenements and the backs of the stone garages in which the ultra rich kept their cars. On a magnificent estate a stone's throw from Nora's shack dwelt Beatrice Vanderfleet the only one to whom the great Vanderfleet could leave his Wall Street gleanings. The two girls are of the same age and bore to one another a remarkable likeness.

It was not unnatural that when Nora sliped through the fence to steal a flower from the Vanderfleet gardens Beatrice should save her from the blows of a brutal groom and conceive a plot which required the whole police force to unravel. It would be hard to find a story that has so many unusual twists to it that Rich Girl, Poor Girl has, and the interest of the onlooker is held at all times while the story is on the screen.

Added to this fine picture is a two-reel comedy in two parts called "Back from the Front", "Artistic Antwerp", a pictorial giving a large number of excellent views of Antwerp so often mentioned during the war, also a good Canadian Pictorial, showing many familiar scenes and faces in our own country. A Fox News film fills out a well-balanced photoplay program that pleased an exceptionally large audience that turned out despite the very torrid weather that prevailed outside, Griffin's lived up to the title "As Cool as a Cave".

Board of Education Pass Estimates for Year

AMOUNT REQUIRED FROM CITY COUNCIL LESS THAN LAST YEAR—MONEY DRAWN FROM REST FUND TO ASSIST IN EXPENDITURE—SCHOOL BUILDINGS TO RECEIVE A COAT OF PAINT.

Despite the fact that the salaries of school teachers of this city were increased this year by the Board of Education and other expenditures increased, the Board of Education are asking a smaller sum from the City Council than asked for last year. This was made possible by taking $9,000 from the sinking or rest fund which the Board had on hand. At the meeting of the Board, held last night, the estimates for the year were passed. They showed that $84,830 was required for High and Public School purposes. Some other business of a routine nature was transacted.

The members present were Messrs. A. McGie, chairman; J. A. Borbridge, J. Elliott, Thos. Marshall, W. R. McCreary, Harry Pringle, W. B. Riggs, D. V. Sinclair, Geo. T. Woodley, Dr. Marshall, J. A. Higgs, Col. Ponton.

The minutes of the last regular meeting and a special meeting were read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Mr. James Secretary of the High School referring to the pleasure given by the fact that any differences which might have arisen between members of the staff and the Board had been amicably settled, and expressing the hope that the school would go on and prosper.

From Principal MacLaurin of the High School relative to procuring certain text books, also for the Board to make a larger grant towards the night school this winter as there was liable to be a larger attendance than usual.

Some applications were read from persons desiring to be placed on the teaching staff when vacancies occur.—Ordered to be filed.

BYLAW.

A bylaw was introduced re estimates and the requisition upon the City Council for the amount required by the Board for the ensuing year.

THE ESTIMATES.

Mr. John Elliott, chairman of the Finance Committee, presented the estimates for the year, as follows:

Comparison of estimates of Belleville Board of Education for the years 1920-1921.

High School, 1920	$31,065
High School, 1921	30,141
Reduction in 1921	$ 924
Public School, 1920	$61,238
Public School, 1921	54,689
Reduction in 1921	$ 6,549

Total estimate for High and Public Schools:

1920	$92,303
1921	84,830
Reduction in 1921	$ 7,473

Comparison of Teachers' Salaries for the years 1920-1921:

High School, 1921	$32,500
High School, 1920	30,650
Increase, 1921	$ 1,850
Public School, 1921	$41,400
Public School, 1920	$39,650
Increase, 1921	$ 1,750
Total teachers' salaries, 1921	$73,800
Increase over 1920	3,600

Mr. Elliott said that in spite of the fact that teachers' salaries had been increased, the Board were asking from the City Council over $7,000 less than the amount asked for last year. The total amount asked for last year was $92,000.

In answer to an enquiry from Mr. McCreary it was ascertained that $9,000 had been taken out of a rest fund, thereby lessening the amount required from the City Council.

Col. Ponton said it was a fact that the Board of Education of the city was expending on the High School alone $31,000, as against $51,000 for four public schools. We are dealing liberally with out staff of teachers, as have other Boards.

The Board went into Committee of the Whole on reports, etc., Dr. Marshall in the chair.

It was recommended that certain books be procured for the High School.

A recommendation from the Printing and Supplies Committee that some new seats be procured was adopted.

The Finance Committee's report recommending the payment of accounts was passed.

England Free From Strikes Again Normal

London, July 30.—Settlement of the coal strike, after more than three months' idleness, the return of cotton operatives to work and the last minute agreement in the engineering industry have completely transformed the business, industrial and economic aspect of Great Britain, says the American Chamber of Commerce in its official monthly summary of trade.

Wage reductions have now been effected in practically all important industries including coal, cotton, woolen, road transportation, tramways, gas works, engineers and railwaymen. The cost of living, meanwhile, continues to fall according to official figures. During June the index figure fell from 128 to 119, a decline of nine points.

The bank rate has been suddenly reduced to 6 per cent. This is believed to be due to action of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York which reduced its discount rate to six per cent The policies of the Bank of England and the Federal Reserve Bank have run on parallel lines for some time.

Gov't Will Give Grant

The British Government will give a grant of $5,000,000 to foster cotton growing in the British Empire. This will replace the former promise of $250,000 a year for five years. The grant will come out of the profit made in marketing Egyptian cotton during the war.

September 30 has been fixed as the commencing date for the new Anti-Dumping Bill. Discussions in committee point to the fact that a tax of 66 2-3 per cent. may be imposed by the act and that under the depreciated exchange section, a duty of 500 per cent. will be necessary in some cases

The effects of the coal stoppage and general trade depression are reflected in the revenue returns for the quarter ending June 30, which show a deficit of 67 millions sterling, revenue being less by 111 millions as compared with the same period last year.

The production of pig iron during May was only 13,600 tons and steel 5,700 tons. In May 1920, figures were 739,000 tons and 846,000 tons respectively. The low output was due to the coal strike.

Gasoline Should Cost 25P.C. Less

EVEN ALLOWING FOR EXCHANGE, FREIGHT, TAX AND DIFFERENT SIZE OF GALLON

Montreal, July 29.—At a meeting of the Automobile Club of Canada, the price of gasoline was discussed at length. It was pointed out that in Montreal and Toronto gasoline costs 90 per cent. more than it does in Detroit and other American cities From inquiries made by the club it was disclosed that in Detroit gasoline sells for 20 cents a gallon for some brands, and 21 cents for others. In Montreal the retail price for one grade is 37 cents and 41 cents for another. Calculations were then made to show the local price should be about 25 per cent. less than it is, even after making allowances for loss on exchange, freight, Government taxes, and the difference between the American and the Canadian gallon.

IMPERIAL LIMITED DERAILED AND FIREMAN WAS KILLED

North Bay, July 29.—The fireman was killed and the engineer had a narrow escape from death when the C.P.R. eastbound Imperial Limited ran into a washout near Schreiber on Tuesday, according to passengers who travelled through here in the delayed train to-day.

The locomotive toppled over into the water and two dead head tourist cars followed, while two baggage cars left the tracks and turned over. The remainder of the train stayed on the rails. Traffic was held up until five o'clock yesterday afternoon. The dead man lived in Schreiber.

Flee From Fire In Motor Boats

NEW HAVEN, N.S., WIPED OUT BY FOREST FIRES—RESIDENTS ESCAPE

Sydney, N.S., July 29.—Sweeping down the coast under the impetus of a fresh southwesterly breeze, a gigantic forest fire this evening wiped out New Haven, a hamlet of 500 people and for several hours menaced the village of Neil's Harbor, about 60 miles north of Sydney. Latest information indicates that New Haven is a mass of flames, but that the fire is dying down at Neil's Harbor.

Escaped By The Sea

Some four hundred people, reported in early advices to have been trapped between the burning forest and the sea, and to be suffering intensely from smoke, have all escaped in motor boats or aboard the revenue cutter Gribb, which with other vessels started to their rescue immediately upon receipt of the news of the fire.

New Haven is a hamlet made up of fishermen and their families.

Another Village Threatened

Oxford, N.S., July 29.—Forest fires cutting a swath six miles in length and one mile wide threatened the town of Oxford today. Thundershowers this afternoon helped to check the sweep of the comflagation, and gave some relief to scores of men who were fighting for the preservation of the town and cut timber along the railway sidings. At Oxford and Oxford Junction tonight men are on guard over seven million feet of lumber piled for shipment.

Million-dollar Loss

Fredericton, N.B., July 29.—A forest fire, today destroyed several houses at Nelson, on the Miramichi River, and $1,000,000 worth of sawn lumber at the Fraser Company's Limited, mill. For a time the whole plant was threatened.

D.S.O's Brave Try to Save Life

BUT HANDS, DISABLED IN WAR, FAILED TO AID DROWNING MAN

Ottawa, July 28.—S. L. Milliday, a visitor to the Capital from St. John, N.B., lost his life while bathing in Britannia Bay around 6 oclock last night, despitte a gallant effort to save him made by Major E. J. Ashton, D.S.O., commissioner of the Soldiers' Settlement Board, who only abandoned the attempt when he became so physically exhausted that his own life was seriously in jeopardy. The body has not yet been recovered.

Major Ashton was bathing some distance inshore, with his two young children, when he noticed that three persons seemed to be in difficulties some distance out from the pier, and after bidding his children to make for the shore, he, being a strong swimmer, set out for them to render assistance, if necessary. As he swam toward them he saw that two, who turned out to be McIntyre and his sister, had got out of danger, but Milliday, in his struggling to reach safety, had been buffeted by the waves until he had drifted in front of the pier where the water was deep.

He succeeded in reaching the man, but became so exhausted in his struggles to rescue the man that he had to abandon the attempt, and only reached safety himself by lying on his back and allowing himself to drift inshore, where he had to be assisted to land.

Major Ashton, who earned the D.S.O. while overseas for conspicuous bravery, has both of his hands disabled, and with this handicap, added to the heavy wind and sea, was forced to give up.

Parry Sound Docks and Houses Burned

..Parry Sound, Ont., July 29.—A serious fire here completely destroyed two wharf houses and a coal shack, as well as considerable portion of the town dock. Fire was first discovered at about 1.30 p.m., and had evidently been started from a spark from the Conger Lumber Company's saw mill. The fire spread with great rapidity. Cinders were carried great distances and the old dam at Water-mill Falls caught fire and gave the firemen a second fire to cope with.

The Parry Sound Lumber Company's wharf house and Scott's Boat Livery were saved after a fight which lasted until 10.30 last night, as well as two large soft coal dumps, owned by the Wm. Beamy Company.

The warehouses were owned by the town and the dock is Dominion Government property, under lease to the Wm. Beamy Company.

The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Verdict Returned Against Motorist

WITNESS CLAIMS HE SHOUTED WARNING TO DRIVER OF AUTO

Toronto, July 29.—That Joseph Burton, who was killed at the corner of College and McCaul streets early on the morning of July 25, came to his death as the result of being struck by a motor car driven by Bruce Card, and that Card was criminally negligent, was the verdict rendered by the jury at the Morgue yesterday afternoon at the close of the inquest into Burton's death. Chief Coroner Graham presided. A rider was also added, recommending that the civic authorities suitably reward J. Dodds, who was the means of capturing Card on the morning of the fatality.

Testimony given by witnesses showed that Card, at the time of the accident, was going at from fifty to fifty-five miles an hour east on College St. Burton, who was employed by the T. S. R. as a trackman, was working on the south rail of the south track, when Card's car, passing the red and white warning lanterns placed on the road, struck him.

Auto Bandits Rob Farmer Near Kingston

VICTIM WAS RELIEVED OF $57 BY THREE MEN WHO HAD AUTOS AND GUNS

Kingston, July 29.—A hold-up which took place on Saturday night last about three miles west of Collin's Bay by which a man named Eammes, who resides near Collin's Bay was relieved of $57, has just been reported to the police by the victim. Officer Hornbeck started on the case to-day, following a couple of clues which may turn out to be important.

According to Eammes' story he was driving along the road in a buggy on Saturday night last when an auto passed him and then turned quickly across the road in front of him. Three men got out of the auto and one of them covered him with a revolver while the others soon searched his pockets, taking therefrom the money he had with him. The men then left him after warning him not to spread the alarm. They hastily made away in their auto. Mr. Eammes has a good description of at least two of the men, and he believes that they will soon be landed.

Tolmie Proved Canada's Case

SHOWED BRITISH COMMISSION THERE WAS NO TAINT IN CATTLE

Ottawa, July 29.—"I think we have shown them in a most conclusive manner that there never has been, and is not likely to be for many years, any disease among Canadian cattle," was how Hon. S. F. Tolmie, Federal Minister of Agriculture, expressed himself to the Canadian Press to-night on his return from England, whither he went at the instance of the Canadian Government to testify before the British Commission, which recently heard evidence in regard to the question of removing the embargo on Canadian cattle going into England.

"It is impossible to make any statement at the present time as to the probable outcome of the work of the Lord. Finlay. Commission," was. all was all that Dr. Tolmie could say when asked if he thought his mission to the Old Country would be successful.

Dr. Tolmie said he had made it perfectly clear that the British embargo against Canadian cattle had been instituted on an entirely false claim. The embargo was placed on the assumption that pleuro-pneumonia existed among Canadian cattle some thirty-seven years ago. After most thorough investigation this charge had been completely exploded. Irested with the British authorities as a matter of honor to take away this aspersion made against Canadian cattle. If the British authorities wanted to exclude Canadian cattle, all well and good; that was entirely their own business. But, if such a course was to be adopted, let it be made plain that it was not because of any taint of disease.

The Minister said one of the strongest points emphasized before the British Commission was the fact that Canada could export her cattle to the United States, France, Belgium and Germany, but that its natural market the Mother Country was practically closed to her.

Say Turk Morale is Not Depressed

LONDON STATES TURKS WITHDREW SKILLFULLY, SUFFERING SLIGHT LOSSES

London, July 29.—The report that the Turks have approached the Allies through the Central Turkish Government with the purpose of obtaining a cessation of the hostilities between them and the Greeks is unfounded, according to information received in official circles here.

This information substantiates the fact that there have been Greek victories in Asia Minor, but it minimizes the moral effect they have had upon the Turks.

It is said that the Turkish withdrawal was executed skillfully and with but small losses in men and supplies.

A despatch from Constantinople to the Exchange Telegraph Company of London on Wednesday said Mustapha Kemal Pasha, head of the Turkish National Government had sent a telegram to Constantinople asking that the central government intervene with the Allies in an effort to obtain a cessation of hostilities.

A despatch from Constantinople dated last Saturday said the Nationalist Prime Minister had told the National Assembly that although the Turks had been obliged to yield some ground in the face of the Greek advance the Greeks had suffered terrible losses. He warned the assembly against panic, saying every precaution had been taken for a successful continuation of the struggle, which he declared was entering the decisive stage.

Other common defects were: Hypertrophied tonsils, 26.3 per cent.; defective nasal breathing 23.1 per cent. and malnutrition, 19.2 per cent.

Complete Fabrication Says King George

ROYAL DENIAL OF STATEMENT IN UNITED STATES NEWSPAPER UNPRECEDENTED AND CAUSES SENSATION IN ENGLAND — GIVEN GREAT PROMINENCE IN ENGLISH PRESS—SOVEREIGN'S STATEMENT READ IN COMMONS.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, July 30.—The sensational and unprecedented incident of the British sovereign repudiating to Parliament through the Prime Minister statements attributed to him in a newspaper interview is given the greatest prominence in the entire British press this morning. Political circles have been able to talk of little else since Lloyd George appeared in the House of Commons yesterday and read a statement authorized by King George, in which the King declared that the words attributed to him concerning the Government's Irish policy in a reported interview in the United States by Lord Northcliffe, owner of the London Times were a "complete fabrication."

Report Premiers Reach Agreement on Naval Policy

EACH DOMINION RESPONSIBLE FOR OWN COASTAL DEFENCE, RUMORED POLICY

London, July 29.—It is understood that the Imperial Conference has decided to re-affirm the 1917 policy providing that each Dominion shall provide its own navy and that they will be responsible for the protection of coastal trade in wartime and assist in the working of the convoy system with the provision of suitable vessels. The need of providing oil storage at all important naval bases is also being considered.

South Africa, hitherto unenthusiastic, has agreed to the policy especially so far as it applies to local defences.

Important developments are planned for a dockyard at Simmonstown capable of effecting quick repairs. Harbor improvements will provide a safe anchorage for South Atlantic vessels. Oil tanks will be erected capable of providing the navy with wartime requirements.

Lone Bandit Held Up Hamilton Bank

Hamilton, July 29.—Visited this afternoon at closing time by a bandit for whom the police of Hamilton and district are now searching, the Bank of Hamilton branch at Locke and Merkimer streets was robbed to-day of $4,400. The man, who was not masked, held the manager and two clerks at the point of his revolver, while he completely ransacked the place. He stuffed a stack of bills into his pocket which the teller was counting just before he closed his wicket and then the daring burglar asked for bonds. When informed there were no bonds in the bank, he demanded the three officials to stand still, and he searched every drawer in the vault, and looked through the cages of the bank. The police are of the opinion that the bandit knew the place, and had cleverly arranged all his pains.

Rush to Anchorage

Anchorage, Alaska, July 30.—A reported discovery of what is said to be a high grade of seepage oil near Anchorage, with the indication that the field extends for fifty miles north along the Government railroad, has sent a flood of stampeders into the district to stake claims.

J. K. Kelso, of Toronto, has been appointed provincial officer under the Adoptions Act.

King Named In Northcliffe Controversy

PREMIER SPEAKS BLUNTLY IN COMMONS—NORTHCLIFFE IS "STIRRING UP MISCHIEF"

London, July 29.—The King to-day was drawn into the Lloyd George-Lord Northcliffe feud.

The premier, carrying his fight on Northcliffe into the House of Commons, read a message from the King repudiating the accuracy of a statement said to have been made by Lord Northcliffe in America.

In this statement, as cabled here, Northcliffe was represented as saying that the King told Lloyd George there must be no more killings in Ireland.

"I hope," Lloyd George told the Commons, "that the King's statement may do something to sterilize the effect of the criminal malignity which for personal ends is endeavoring to stir up mischief between the allies, misunderstanding between the British Empire and the United States and frustrate the hope of peace in Ireland."

His Majesty's message characterized Lord Northcliffe's statement as "a complete fabrication."

"The statement," Lloyd George said "appeared in certain Irish and English papers, attributing words of the greatest concern to his Majesty, relating to the Irish policy.

"It is quite impossible always to deal with calumnio[illegible]ements, but there were of the [illegible] categorical character, calculated [illegible] the present moment to prejudice seriously the Irish settlement."

Controversy An Old One

London, July 29.—The controversy between Premier Lloyd George and Lord Northcliffe dates back to demobilization troubles following the armistice.

The climax was reached recently when Northcliffe's London Times denounced Lloyd George and Lord Curzon, secretary for foreign affairs, as being incompetent to attend the disarmament conference here. Curzon retaliated with a ban on the Northcliffe press, withholding official news from it.

During the war Northcliffe was a firm supported of Lloyd George.

Northcliffe Denies

Washington, July 29.—Lord Northcliffe to-day denied having authorized the story quoting him as stating that the King had asked Lloyd George, British Premier, to stop shooting down the people of Ireland.

"I know nothing about it," said Northcliffe, "I never said that the King had said any such thing to Lloyd George, nor have I given out anything with even a remote suggestion of the idea."

Viscount Northcliffe has cabled the following denial to Lord Stamfordham, the King's private secretary:

"Please convey to His Majesty with my humble duty my denial of ever having ascribed to His Majesty the words or any such words as were stated by the prime minister. I gave no such interview."

ROBBER BAND STOLE HUNDREDS OF CARS

New York, July 27.—Two members of a gang of six men and women, alleged to have stolen several hundred automobiles during the past year, were arrested today. One of the men, it was said, made a signed confession.

Information concerning a man and woman said to be the brains of the gang was placed before the police by Biagis Rosate, who made the confession. Further arrests are expected.

Sourdoughs Talk of Gold Days

Vancouver, B.C., July 30.—Whenever old "sourdoughs" of the Yukon foregather to talk of the old boom days when they lived in the colorful atmosphere of lively mining camps, the romance of the building of the federal government telegraph line from Ashcroft, B. C., to Forty-Mile, Y. T., just above Dawson, on the Alaskan boundary, is always prominently featured. In their minds, the development of northern British Columbia and the Yukon Territory is closely linked with the maintenance of this quick avenue of communication with the outside world.

In the face of the enormous difficulties, the nineteen hundred and one miles of wire was strung through a virtual wilderness in less than three years. All materials for construction and provisions for the workers had to be carried in by dog teams in winter and pack trains in summer.

The first venture in telegraph construction by the government was in 1899, at the time of the great Dawson gold rush, when six hundred miles of wire was strung from Bennett, B.C., to Dawson. Messages from "outside" were mailed to Skagway, Alaska, carried from there a distance of about two hundred miles through the White Pass to Bennett, where they were placed on the wire.

In the fall of 1900 gold was discovered at Atlin, B.C., and the telegraph line was extended from Bennett to that point. From that time until the last gap between Forty-Mile and Ashcroft was closed on September 28, 1901, the work was steadily pushed forward, one gang working from Ashcroft north and another from Atlin south. At about the time of the two crews met another extension to the line in the North—from Dawson to Forty-Mile—had been completed, thus connecting with the United States Alaskan land lines, and bringing in a great deal of additional revenue, as the United States cables to Alaska were not laid until nearly three years later and in the meantime all messages to America's northerly possession had to go over the Canadian circuit.

Work Direct

While for a time it was found feasible to work direct from Ashcroft to Dawson, the rapid increase in business in recent years has made it necessary to cut the wire and relay from Hazelton, B.C. In case of severe wire trouble, other relays can be established without delay.

The lure of the North has strongly gripped most of the telegraph operators, who prefer life in a lonely cabin in the wilderness to the bright lights of the big cities. Many enlisted during the war, but lost no time in getting back to the North when demobilized.

There are two operators in each cabin, one of whom is a combination operator and lineman, who is held responsible for the repair of any breaks in the wire in his district. They cook their own meals, provisions being sent in once a year by pack train. Moose and other wild game is plentiful, so there is no lack of fresh meat. Most of the men augment their incomes by trapping, making an average of two thousand dollars extra yearly.

Of the one hundred telegraphers employed between Forty-Mile and Ashcroft, a large percentage have been in the service since 1899, when the line was built. Each man is allowed three months' holidays every three years.

It having been found that the wire can be used for telephone service the government has installed telephone exchanges at many points, and surrounding ranchers are thus brought into closer touch with each other. This feature of the service is being gradually extended and it is expected that before long even the most sparsely settled region will enjoy the advantages of telephonic communication.

GOOD OMEN FOR TURKS

Constantinople, July 29.—The occultation of Venus with the crescent moon, which was seen here at full moon on July 2 was hailed by the Turks as a good omen in their campaign against the Greeks, for the crescent moon, with a star between the horns, has been used by the Ottoman Turks as their military and religious emblem since the 13th century.

The crescent itself has played a conspicuous part in the history of that part of the world for over 2,000 years. It was made the badge of Byzantium in 339 B.C. when the sudden appearance of a crescent moon revealed the approach of a Macedonian army.

Slams Doors In Northcliffes Face

English Publisher Confirms Reports That Invitation Sent Him to be Guest of Ambassador was Suddenly Cancelled

Washington, July 29.—By orders from London an invitation to Lord Northcliffe to be a guest of the British Embassy during his stay in Washington and to attend a dinner there last night has been recalled.

Lord Northcliffe confirmed reports that the invitations had been recalled. The Embassy previously had denied them.

Pressed for a statement on this surprising development, the following was issued by Lord Northcliffe:

"Lord Northcliffe authorized to-night the statement that he could only say he had been invited while in Washington to stop at the British Embassy with his entire staff and to attend a dinner there to-night. For some reason, of which he is not aware both invitations were withdrawn. Knowing the methods in India of Lord Curzon, the British Foreign Secretary, Lord Northcliffe can only feel sure Lord Curzon has adopted these methods here.

"In India, while Viceroy, he cut off the news supply of criticizing newspapers and socially boycotted their writers. On the present occasion Lord Curzon is not dealing with Indian natives or small Indian news papers. Lord Northcliffe regrets he can not visit his friend, Sir Auckland Geddes, on whom he called and paid his respects to-day after being with President Harding."

Lord Northcliffe was notified of the cancellation of the dinner and of the invitation to stay at the British Embassy early this afternon. He was handed a message delivered by an Embassy attache stating that the invitations had been cancelled "on instructions from London." It is understood that neither the name of Lloyd George nor Lord Curzon was mentioned in the communication from the Embassy.

Board of Education Passes Estimates

The School Management Committee recommended that additional room be arranged for in Queen Alexandra School for extra pupils who reside on the east side of the river Moira.

It transpired that every teacher in High and Public Schools with the exception of one in each had signed their agreements for re-engagement.

The School Management Committee was empowered to engage teachers if there were any vacancies.

Mr. McCreary asked if anything had been done for the accommodation at the schools in September of the increased attendance.

Mr. Elliott—The matter has been looked into and arranged for.

Col. Ponton—If there is an overflow at the High School the building now used as a gymnasium could, with little expense, be utilized as a class room.

The requisition for the estimates for the year was passed through its various stages and numbered.

A motion made by Mr. McCreary that the members be furnished with a copy of the estimates for 1920-1921 was adopted.

PAINTING SCHOOLS.

Mr. McGie stated that the three public schools should be painted as they had not been painted since their erection.

The matter was left with the chairman of the Board and the chairman of the Sites, Building and Repairs committee, with power to act.

The committee rose and reported. The report was adopted.

Mr. McGie said an Attendance Officer should be engaged.

The matter was left with the School Management Committee.

INCREASE OF SALARY.

Miss Merry addressed the Board relative to the salary which the Board had given her, namely $1,800. She asked that her salary be $2,000 per annum.

Mr. Sinclair spoke in favor of the request being granted in this case, as Miss Merry was a competent teacher and had done good work in the school.

A motion prevailed that Miss Merry's salary be fixed at $2,000 per annum.

The Board adjourned.

Millions of People are Suffering

Indigestion, Headaches, Constipation, Sallow Complexions, Kidney Pains, Rheumatism are all caused from a poisoned system, due to the Liver. Doctors recommend that you take one Tanated Calomel tablet before each meal, or two at bedtime, and in a few days your pains will disappear, your complexion will become clear and you will feel keen, bright, vigorous and life once more will be worth living. The wonderful success of this new drug (Tanated Calomel) is due to the fact that it is the only drug known that acts upon the Liver. No salts or seidlitz are necessary to remove it from the system, as it is selfeliminating. You, no doubt, have taken all sorts of medicine for your particular ailment, but you never get permanent relief, because the medicines you have been taking do not act upon the Liver. Doctors now say that 99 per cent. of all ailments are due to the inactivity of the Liver. A poisoned system soon decays, and that is why I would recommend that you go to McKeown's Front street, and get a box.

COLLECTION OF TAXES UPON INSTALMENT PLAN

The suggestion has been made that the assessment and tax collecting departments of Belleville be so re-arranged that the taxes can be paid in instalments instead of all at one time, as at present. Many communities use the instalment system of tax-collection and prefer it to the former system of one payment. In this connection the following suggestions made by W. C. Mikel, K.C., are worthy of consideration;

By S. 50 of the Assessment Act the assessor begins his assessment not later than February 15th and must complete it by April 30th. This system has two important defects: First, if a house to house assessment is needed it must be done in the coldest and stormiest season, which rather encourages the making of assessments in the assessor's office. Second, the collection of taxes under this system cannot be started much before November, necessitating the borrowing of money by the city for ten months and compelling the taxpayer to dig up his money when his heaviest burdens of the year have to be met, namely, fuel and winter clothing.

The Council can, under S. 56, have the assessment made the fall before, namely, between May 1st and September 30th, so that when the new Council takes office in January the members know exactly the amount of the assessment upon which the rate is to be struck, and can proceed to strike the rate almost at once.

The collection of taxes under the latter system could be commenced by June. This would enable the Council to divide the taxes into five or six instalments, making it very much easier for the taxpayer, as well as enabling the city to use the tax money instead of borrowing from the bank. As our tax bills will be heavier from now on, anything that will soften the blow might well be put in operation.

WHAT ONE LITTLE CIGARETTE DID TO A MIGHTY STEAMSHIP.

The man who drops a lighted cigarette or cigar end without stopping to extinguish its fire any place where there is a possibility of its doing damage is guilty of deliberate carelessness. It is believed that the dropping of a cigarette butt on a rug caused the fire which has done damage to the extent of several thousand dollars to the great steamship Mauretania. If such was the cause, the person who dropped the cigarette was not ignorant of the fact that he dropped it. He either threw it away or it fell from his grip. In either case he knew where it went. It would have been the work of a second to have extinguished its fire.

The majority of people are careful to avoid causing fires in such manner. Those who are careless are in the minority. Their fault is due to selfishness. They refuse to exert themselves to eliminate the chance of fire, trusting to luck that all will be well.

The community at large is entitled to as much protection as possible from that kind of carelessness. At a recent session of Parliament a law was passed providing severe penalties for those responsible for preventable fires, but it is not often invoked.—Ottawa Journal.

Toronto Globe seems to think that overseas newspapers waxed over-enthusiastic as to the ability and good sense of Canada's Premier, Right Honorable Arthur Meighen. No danger of the Globe giving the Premier any too much credit, but having challenged his fitness and right to the premiership, the Globe has not as yet found anyone better qualified for the position. Its silence as to the leadership of Mackenzie King and Hartley Dewart is so dense it is clammy.

Alabama has a medical man who is less sensitive on the question of advertising than the profession generally. He appears also to have a genius for picturesque condensation. A sign on his door announces, "Doctor of all diseases of the skin and contents!" For the nearest approach to the Alabama case the Orillia Packet editor's memory goes back to the Coldwater of twenty or twenty-five years ago, when one Dr. Butler displayed on the side of his house a sign in letters measuring three feet deep, and whose professional card announced, "Skin and all other diseases a specialty!"

While bear-baiting and such-like sports are forbidden by the Criminal Code, there is manifest in certain quarters an appetite for another cruel pastime. Farmers' clubs are asking Hon. F. C. Biggs to get upon a platform and publicly defend his "Good Roads." The only thing that prevents a carnival of this sort of inhumanity is the extreme difficulty of getting hold of Mr. Biggs. The intended victim is elusive. He displays the same enthusiasm for the fray that might be expected from a Spanish bull if he were invited to enter an arena full of toreadors. But whereas the bull is dragged into the unequal contest, the Minister of Highways is able to plead an urgent engagement elsewhere. Until Mr. Biggs runs out of excuses there will be no need to start a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Biggs.—Toronto Telegram.

THE RIFT WITHIN THE LUTE

Vancouver World

The Toronto Globe sees in the attacks of Mr. George Halcrow, labor leader in the Ontario Legislature, signs of a growing breach in the Farmer-Labor Alliance. Among the issues which have evoked Mr. Halcrow's criticisms is the indisposition of the Drury administration to take steps to lessen unemployment in the industrial centres. The Globe sees little hope that the government, as at present constituted, will change its policy on this question. It says:

> "Mr. Drury and his Farmer colleagues believe sincerely that there is a serious lack of balance between town and country, and that a larger proportion of the population should be engaged in agricultural production and a smaller number in the industries located in the large centres. They believe also that the high wages paid in the populous centres — wages necessary to enable the town population to live decently—stand in the way of progress in the country and prevent men from accepting the lower scale of wages offered to the farm worker."

As the Globe points out, the maintenance of a close alliance between a farmer administration holding the views enunciated and the representatives of organized labor in the cities is plainly difficult. It thinks, however, that while the labor members will not vote the government out on a want-of-confidence motion they will not refrain from criticism because it includes two labor men as ministers.

"MIZPAH"

Go thou thy way and I go mine;
  Apart, yet not afar;
Only a thin veil hangs between
  The Pathways where we are;
And "God keep watch 'tween thee and me,"
  This is my prayer.
He looks thy way—He looketh mine,
  And keeps us near.

I know not where thy road may lie,
  Or which way mine may be;
If mine will lead through parching sands
  And thine beside the sea;
Yet "God keeps watch 'tween thee and me."
  So never fear;
He holds thy hand. He claspeth mine
  And keeps us near.

Should wealth and fame perchance be thine,
  And my lot lowly be,
Or you be sad or sorrowful
  And glory be for me;
Yet "God keeps watch 'tween thee and me,"
  Both be in His care.
One arm 'round thee and one 'round me,
  Will keep us near.

I sigh sometimes to see thy face,
  But since this cannot be,
I leave thee to the care of Him,
  Who cares for thee and me,
I'll keep thee both beneath my wings
  This comfort dear,
One wing o'er thee and one o'er me,
  So we are near."

COAL MINE IN ALTA.

Edmonton, Alta., July 3.—The development of Alberta's coal resources will be taken up soon by a powerful syndicate of British financiers, the Edmonton Board of Trade has been advised by J Handley Yates, who has just returned from England, where he lectured before the Royal Colonial Institute on "Canadian Natural Rescources," and pleaded for their development. At the head of this group of influential capitalists recently formed with this purpose in view is Lord Morrison, former prime minister of Newfoundland.

It is proposed to acquire a coal mine in his province, and to install a system for subjecting the lignite to a low temperature process, whereby the by-products will be secured and the residue transformed into priquettes. By this means, the syndicate aims to demonstrate in a practical way how profitable the process advocated by Herbert Alexander, claimed to be one of the greatest living experts on briquette making, is.

"Forget-Me-Not"

IT has been well said that a life insurance policy is the most beautiful forget-me-not that ever bloomed.

Especially true is this in the case of a Mutual Life monthly income policy. Under this contract the insurance is paid to the beneficiary in monthly instalments which are guaranteed for 20 years. If the beneficiary is then still living, the payments will continue until her death.

In any case, 240 monthly payments are absolutely guaranteed.

Who could fail to remember the donor and keep green the memory of the husband, father or friend who left this proof of his solicitude for those dear to him?

Have the Mutual Life Agent explain this policy to you.

GRAY'S ELEGY

THOUGHTS FOR THE "SHUT-IN"—THOSE WHO ARE UNABLE TO ATTEND CHURCH SERVICES THROUGH ILLNESS OR INFIRMITY.

By Rev. W. H. Wallace, Pastor of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church.

(Concluded)

Th' applause of listening senates to command,
The threats of pain and ruin to despise,
To scatter plenty o'er a smiling land,
And read their history in a nation's eyes

Their lot forbad: nor circumscribed alone
Their growing virtues, but their crimes confined:
Forbad to wade thro' slaughter to a throne,
And shut the gates of mercy on mankind;

The struggling pangs of conscious truth to hide,
To quench the blushes of ingenuous shame,
Or heap the shrine of luxury and pride
With incense kindled at the Muse's flame.

Far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife
Their sober wishes never learn'd to stray;
Along the cool sequester'd vale of life
They kept the noisless tenour of their way.

Yet e'en these bones from insult to protect
Some frail memorial still erected nigh,
With uncouth rhymes and shapeless sculpture deck'd,
Implores the passing tribute of a sigh

Their name, their years, spelt by th' unletter'd Muse,
The place of fame and elegy supply;
And many a holy text around she strews,
That teach the rustic moralist to die

For who, to dumb forgetfulness a prey
This pleasing anxious being e'er resign'd,
Left the warm precincts of the cheerful day,
Nor cast one longing, lingering look behind?

On some fond breast the parting soul relies,
Some pious drops the closing eye requires;
E'en from the tomb the voice of nature cries,
E'en in our ashes live their wonted fires.

For thee, who, mindful of th' unhonour'd dead,
Dost in these lines their artless tale relate;
If chance, by lonely contemplation led
Some kindred spirit shall enquire thy fate,—

Haply some hoary-headed swain may say,
'Oft have we seen him at the peep of dawn
Brushing with hasty steps the dews away,
To meet the sun upon the upland lawn;

'There at the foot of yonder nodding beech
That wreathes its old fantastic roots so high,
His listless length at noon-tide would he stretch,
And pore upon the brook that babbles by.

'Hard by yon wood, now smiling as in scorn,
Muttering his wayward fancies he would rove;
Now drooping, woeful-wan, like one forlorn,
Or crazed with care, or cross'd in hopeless love.

'One morn I miss'd him on the custom'd hill,
Along the heath, and near his favourite tree;
Another came; nor yet beside the rill,
Nor up the lawn, nor at the wood was he;

'The next with dirges due in sad array
Slow through the church-way path we saw him borne,—
Approach and read (for thou canst read) the lay
Graved on the stone beneath yon aged thorn.'

The Epitaph.

Here rests his head upon the lap of earth
A youth, to fortune and to fame unknown;
Fair science frown'd not on his humble birth
And melancholy marked him for her own.

Large was his bounty, and his soul sincere;
Heaven did a recompense as largely send;
He gave to misery (all he had) a tear.
He gain'd from Heaven ('twas all he wish'd) a friend.

No farther seek his merits to disclose
Or draw his frailties from their dread abode,
(There they alike in trembling hope repose,)
The bosom of his Father and his God.

Police Court News

SLAPPED HIS FACE.

Angelina Pidgeon, an Italian woman residing in Thurlow just north of the city, found yesterday in Police Magistrate Masson's court that it costs $15 besides the costs of her lawyer to slap a man. Isaac Hodgson owns two parcels of land adjoining land owned by Pidgeons. Mrs. Pidgeon thought the pasture on Hodgson's six-acre lot looked good for her cow and horse, but Hodgson objected. An altercation took place which resulted in Mrs. Angelina Pidgeon giving Hodgson a slap in the face. The magistrate thought that $15 was about enough for a slap in the township of Thurlow. W. C Mikel, K.C., prosecuted for Mr. Hodgson, and F. E. O'Flynn acted for Mrs. Angelina Pidgeon.

NEIGHBORS QUARREL.

Jane Elizabeth Way and Lily Clark had an altercation on the 7th of July about the relative merits of their children, and the weather being very warm, bad language followed. Police Magistrate Masson yesterday accepted the evidence of Simon Polmater, the Mayor of Stoney Lonesome and picked Lily Clark as the offending party, and as the honors were somewhat even the magistrate thought $14.75 would be enough for her to pay in addition to the costs of her lawyer and would act as a deterrent to similar conduct in the future. W. C. Mikel, K.C., acted for the prosecutor; R. D. Ponton represented the defence.

DEAD HORSE OBJECTIONABLE

Daniel Stapley was yesterday arraigned before the Police Magistrate for "that he did on the 27th of July A.D. 1921 unlawfully commit a common nuisance by depositing the dead carcass of a horse on premises of the Grand Trunk Railway in the Township of Thurlow adjoining the travelled highway, which act endangers the lives, safety or health of the public, contrary to section 222 of the Criminal Code." The Crown was not ready to go on, and the hearing was adjourned for a week. Mr. Mikel, acting for Stapley, urged that he was an old and respected citizen of Belleville, as was his father before him, and had never been guilty of an offence and should be admitted out on bail. Chief Kidd accepted that view and the magistrate admitted the accused out on bail on a recognizance of $200 for accused and $200 for his son.

Orders for the arrest of three British Generals were issued at Dublin.

Studebaker LIGHT-SIX

Economical—
because of its Exclusive Internal Hot Spot and Light Weight—

The Studebaker LIGHT-SIX might well be called the "Economy Six," for every day in the hands of hundreds of owners it is averaging between 21 and 26 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Such low fuel consumption is due chiefly to its Internal Hot-Spot, an exclusive feature of the LIGHT-SIX motor, designed by Studebaker engineers.

The light, evenly-balanced weight of the LIGHT-SIX chassis further contributes to its low operating expense —not only with respect to fuel, but tires as well.

See the LIGHT-SIX, analyze its fine quality of construction and you will agree that it represents the maximum of automobile values.

Ancient Relics Of The Hurons Add To History

CELEBRATION AT PENETANG WILL SEE HURONS AND IROQUOIS BURY THE HATCHET

Penetanguishene, July 28.—A medal which has been recovered in the course of the investigations being made on the sites of the old Indian towns of Huronia bears the date 1669 and an inscription showing it to have come originally from Mont St. Michel, the picturesque mountain monastery fortress off the coast of Normandy, opposite St. Malo, the birthplace of Jacques Cartier.

The medal will be one of the principal additions to the historical treasures telling the early history of Huronia, and of the intrepid colonists and missionaries who came to that country from Quebec. Many of these are brought to light by the efforts of the party of archaeologists from the Smithsonian Institute and the Penetang Historical Society, and will be on exhibition during the tercentenary celebrations of next week.

CONNECTED WITH LA SALLE

Local historians connect the medal with La Salle. He built a boat called the Griffon at Niagara, and, with Huron Indians and one M. de Monty, toured the Great Lakes, discovering Green Bay, Mich. The Hurons induced him to visit their old home land, Huronia, which he did, and then packed the Griffon full of furs and sent it back to his Niagara encampment.

The boat was never heard of again. Whether it was lost in a gale or annihilated by the enemy Iroquois was not known.

La Salle and De Monty went south into Illinois, and discovered the Mississippi and the Gulf of Mexico. La Salle was murdered in the woods, De Monty returning with the news of his death. The Griffon medal just found here is thought to have belonged to one of La Salle's sailors.

BIG FIND OF HURON RELICS

A sensational discovery of relics of Huron warriors who inhabited this part of the country centuries ago before the invasion of their hereditary enemies, the Iroquois, was made here several days ago at Ihonitiria by a group of workers of the Penetanguishene Historical Society.

The members of this party happened upon the location of the ossuary Indian bone pit accidentally, and subsequent events have proved it to be the richest find, from an archaeological point of view, for many years. The event is a fitting forerunner of the Tercentenary celebration.

Ihonitiria was the ancient capital of the Huron race, and has been buried in the wilderness since 1630. It was about this period that the unfortunate Hurons were forced to migrate to what is now the province of Quebec because of the depredations of the Iroquois.

SHED LIGHT ON PAST.

Indian bones comprising almost fifteen bodies in all have been removed to the local Historical Society Museum, and will be exhibited in the near future.

Rev. Father Athol Murray, President of the Penetanguishene Historical Society, stated that the recent discovery has caused a profound sensation among the archaeologists of North America and that several eminent men in this line of endeavor were expected to visit Huronia in the near future, when work upon another mine of ancient lore near Orillia would be commenced. It is expected that these revelations will shed a new and brighter light on the dim history of the Red man who roamed the forests of our country centuries ago.

A strange coincidence lies in the fact that while these silent witnesses of the great strife that prevailed between the Iroquois and the Hurons of days gone by are being unearthed the descendants of these same warriors are planning to execute a treaty of peace which will close the centuries-old wound and bring the two great nations together again.

The ceremony will take place on the second day of the tercentenary celebrations and official representatives of both parties will attend. The Hurons will in all probability send their Supreme Chief to represent them, although the celebration committee have not as yet received the names of the delegates.

WILL REPRESENT IROQUOIS

The six nations have no Supreme Chief as is the case with the Hurons, but are governed by a federation, and according to notifications received today three of the most influential chiefs of this Council will be present at the ceremony.

The names are as follows: Chief Andrew Staats Deyonhegwen, meaning double life; Chief William Smith Shoskoharone, meaning great wooddrift, and ex-Chief Hilton M. Hill Dagaronyonte, meaning flying sky.

The Government of the Province of Quebec has notified the Tercentenary Committee than Hon. Mr. Canon, Minister of Agriculture, and Hon. Mr. Delage, General Superintendent of Education, will be included in the party representing the eastern province.

PARDON ARRIVED

HOUR TOO LATE

Detroit, Mich., July 29.—Only an hour before his attorney received word that Governor Groesbeck had pardoned him, Horisto Ponchoff, 36 years old, died at the County Hospital at Eloise to-day Ponchoff was sentenced to from 5 to 15 years in the House of Correction for forgery in November, 1920. It was explained at the trial he forged a check to obtain money to join his family in Bulgaria.

After three months he developed tuberculosis. All this time his attorney had been endeavoring to obtain a pardon.

Forest Fires Kill Jobs

HERE are instances of carelessness such as the Fire Rangers of Ontario are meeting all the time. Each is an actual case, as officially reported in detail to the Forestry Branch. Until each individual realizes personal responsibility and co-operates to prevent forest fires, Government Fire Rangers can hope merely to lessen the tragic consequences of such human carelessness and bad judgment.

Save Ontario's Forests
They're Yours

Lumbermen's Fires

May 25th, 1920—A careless river driver, by leaving his smudge fire or throwing a cigarette into slash, burned over two townships, including 7,000,000 feet of pine, a $5,000 mill, camp buildings and equipment worth $7,000, sawn lumber worth $7,500, and killed several million young spruce and jack pine trees.

May 25, 1920—Fire in a rubbish heap behind a lumber company's boarding house got away and, despite prompt action, burned over 1,600 acres, including 2,000,000 feet of white pine, and a set of new camps worth $1,000.

June 1, 1920—Two old men left to attend to the stop logs in a dam, let fire get away from either their smudge or camp fire, and burned over 9,000 acres, including 6,000,000 feet of pine, one mill, four camps, large quantities of supplies, and equipment to a total value of $40,000.

May 4th, 1921—Lumbermen burning slash around their camps, lost control of their fire and 15,000 acres were burned before they regained it.

Railway Fires

June 5th, 1920—Engine No. 1368 started a forest fire which ran over 15,000 acres, burning one saw mill, three sets of lumber camps, stables, houses, and outfits, 5,000 cut logs and 1,400 piles, besides standing timber.

May 25th, 1920—Engine No. 2509 set a fire which burned over 12,000 acres of timber worth $20,000 on the stump, camps and logs worth $5,750, and cost $1,000 to fight.

June 2, 1920—A section crew left a pile of burning ties to go away to their regular work. The fire spread over 1,200 acres.

Fires Set Out Under Permit

June 10th, 1921—Parties burning slash under permit, lost control through bad judgment, and 1,050 acres were burned and forty buildings, including saw mill, were wiped out.

May 27th, 1920—A squatter, burning debris near his shack, fired 7,000 acres, 1,000 of which were virgin timber, and wiped out four sets of logging camps.

Neglected Camp Fires

July 4th, 1920—Tourists left camp fire on shore of Deer Lake. After six days' fight, rangers put fire out, but 550 acres of young pine were dead.

May 31st, 1920—A neglected camp fire, despite efforts of Chief Fire Ranger and 42 men, burned 1,200 acres of young pine.

May 7th, 1921—Indians left camp fire, which burned over 7,000 acres and took one week of fighting to control.

Be careful of fire in the forests. Be careful to put your camp fire out—dead out. Don't throw away lighted matches, cigarettes or cigar ends. Watch out, lest your fire gets away from you.

BATTLE ROYAL ON WEDNESDAY

Excitement is prevalent throughout the city owing to the approaching game on Wednesday between our local G.T.R.'S and Oshawa. It is a certainty that neither team will loss for want of effort.

"Popular "Freddy" will pitch while our old reliable "Bill" Mills will be behind the mask. Better support is now being given these two trusties let's hope for a continuation of same.

The batting order has been changed a bit so there should be great work in that section. An open space to lam the old pill through is what every batter eagerly searches for and we sure hope they find 'em on Wednesday.

Our nine seemed to prove on last Wednesday that the team consists of more than two men. Live up to it and we'll proudly exhibit that lovely cup once more.

Support does a whole lot in the way of nerving the home team. Altogether Wednesday and let 'em have your best.

MANAGER GLEASON ON WITNESS STAND

Chicago, July 29.—The defence in the baseball trial rested its case tonight. The action was taken after five Chicago White Sox players, forced by the law to abandon their team in the east and journey 900 miles to testify, had made statements from the witness stand which tended to disprove some of the most important points in the State's evidence against their former team-mates, charged with conspiring to throw the 1919 world series to Cincinnati.

Eddie Collins, Ray Schalk, Dick Kerr, Roy Wilkinson and Manager William Gleason, of the White Sox, testified at a night session of court that the seven former players on trial were at Redland Field, Cincinnati, practising from 10 to 12 a.m., the day before the first 1919 world series game. Bill Burns had testified that it was on this day and at these hours that he completed the alleged deal with the defendants whereby they were to throw games in order desired for $100,000, receiving $20,000 after each game thrown.

Tomorrow the State will begin its rebuttal testimony, with indications that Judge Friend may order a night session in order to get the case to the jury the first part of next week.

The testimony of the players who are said to have been double-crossed by the men for whom they were testifying, was brief, each man being asked the same questions by the defence attorneys, who had subpoenaed them, thus forcing them to take part in the trial whether they wished to or not.

GLEASON'S EVIDENCE.

Manager Gleason said he left Chicago with his team Monday night, two days before the first game.

"We reached Cincinnati about 8 a. m.," said Gleason, "and went to the Sifton Hotel. A little before 10 the men went to Redland Field for practice. We got back to the hotel a little before noon." Gleason said he thought Feisch, Risberg, Gandil, Williams, Jackson and Cicotte, the other player-defendants, were there.

Schalk said he believed all the defendants were at practice, as he had not missed any of them.

Eddie Collins, Ray Wilkinson and Dick Kerr were sure all were present, and Collins said he and Weaver left the park together and went to the races together that afternoon.

The closing of the defence case was announced without warning, and with a score of witnesses waiting to testify.

The State tonight refused to say what witnesses it would put on tomorrow in rebuttal, admitting that it had been surprised by the defence move. Whether the defence will carry out its plan of putting on the defendants during rebuttal was not known.

This afternoon the defence presented hotel records to show that "Chick" Gandil was not living at the Warner Hotel during the 1919 world series.

Summer Heat Hard on Baby

No season of the year is so dangerous to the life of little ones as is the summer. The excessive heat throws the little stomach out of order so quickly that unless prompt aid is at hand the baby may be beyond all human help before the mother realizes he is ill. Summer is the season when diarrhoea, cholera infantum, dysentry and colic are most prevalent. Any one of these troubles may prove deadly if not properly treated. During the summer the mothers' best friend is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach and keep baby healthy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Woman's Right To Good Health

MOST TROUBLES AFFLICTING WOMEN ARE DUE TO POOR BLOOD

To every woman belongs the right to enjoy a healthy active life; yet nine out of ten suffer from some form of bloodlessness. That is why one sees on every side pale, thin cheeks, dull eyes and drooping figures—sure signs of headaches, weak backs, aching limbs and uncertain health. All weak women should win the right to be well by refreshing their weary bodies with the new, rich, red blood that promptly transforms them into healthy attractive women. This new, red blood is supplied by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which reaches every organ and every nerve in the body. Through the use of these pills thousands of women have found benefit when suffering from anaemia, indigestion, general weakness and those ailments from which women alone suffer. Among the many women who tell of the good Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done them is Mrs. L. Hicks, Round Hill, N.S., who says: "I became very much run down in health; my blood seemed weak and watery, my strength failed, and I was so easily tired that my work was a burden. I had often read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to try them, and I can truly say that after using three boxes I found myself gaining, and under a further use of the pills all my old-time energy and vitality was restored. Out of my own experience I can strongly recommend this medicine."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LIGHTNING STRUCK BED

To Keep Healthful Lungs Be Watchful

Lung membranes are delicate and they serve a purpose so important that any one who finds himself with a cough, with any trouble that affects the breathing, or a growing weakness that seems due to deficient lung action, it is time to grab the chiropractic opportunity by the forelock.

The lung membranes are under control of spinal nerves. The cause of lung weakness is deficient nerve supply. Joints of the backbone become out of alignment from some disturbance or accident or habit, and the nerve openings between these joints become narrowed. The hard bone bears down upon the soft spinal nerve tissue, and the ordinary stimulus of nerve impulse is weakened. The lungs lose tone and health. Chiropractic spinal adjustments remove nerve pressure and Nature, given a chance, restores health.

THEY SAID HE HAD T. B.

"After three doctors said I had TB and I had made application to enter the state sanitarium, I was urged to try chiropratic. I had lost thirty pounds and was living on a glass of milk a day. Under adjustments I was on the road to recovery in a few weeks. To-day I am sixty pounds heavier. Chiropractic saved my life."—L. Research Bureau statement No. 1244B.

Dr. A. I. Willinsky, the well known consulting specialist and surgeon, of Toronto, upon his arrival at 12 O'clock Point, for rest, found a call awaiting him, which necessitated his immediate return to the city to perform an operation for acute appendicitis. Accompanied by his brother-in-law, Mr. M. J. Kamman, manager of the Whirlwind Store and piloted by his brother, Mr. Bernard Willinsky, a young dental student of Toronto, they jumped in their high-powered Marmon car and tore along the highways at terriffic speed, making the trip from 12 O'clock Point to Toronto in two hours and twenty-five minutes. Frequently they were hitting the road at seventy-five miles an hour. This time was made in spite of frequent rainstorms, which they encountered on the road. The operation was successfully performed and the trio made the return trip at night in three hours and thirty-five minutes, arriving at the Point at 11 p.m.—Trenton Advo-

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Every day something out of the ordinary is seen by somebody. Let us hear about it. Phone 1248, or write The Intelligencer.

Take a Taxi

H.—One of our citizens met his doctor down town at the close of his business day and remarked: "I am on my way home, doctor, and feel all in and worn out; what ought I to take?" "A taxi," said the medico. The prescription was not liquid enough to be appreciated.

Liquid Lightning

J.S.—A Belleville citizen recently returned from New York City, says whisky of a kind can be obtained there for a price, and brought back this story:

Customer in bar: "Whisky." Bartender takes money, serves him and then says: Get out," "What! I ain't started anythin'," said the man. "You will in a minute," says the barkeep.

Gas Plant

P.S.—The proposal to scrap the gas plant should not be hastily dealt with. During the past year owing to exceptional circumstances much capital expenditure has been financed from current account, this does not mean a loss on operation. Many citizens depend upon the gas for cooking purposes and do not see how they could do without it even if the service is not always what they think it should be. If it is necessary to raise the rates to make the gas busines pay no doubt the consumers will cheerfully submit rather than do without the gas. In any event too much money has been spent upon improvements of the plant to talk of scrapping it now without careful investigation.

A Little Surprise

A neighboring farmer wore his old suit until everybody was tired of it, and his estimable wife was ashamed of him. But one day when selling produce in town he determined to buy a new suit, and a happy thought struck him. He would surprise Elisa. So he bundled a new suit into the waggon and hurried toward home, and at a wayside bridge he stood up in the waggon and "peeled off" the despised old suit and threw it into the creek. Then he reached for his new clothes.

They were gone—had jolted out of the waggon.

The night was dark and cold and his teeth chattered as he scurried home. And he sure did surprise Elisa.

Some Shock

After an absence of four years a certain man came back to Belleville, his old home town, and the first four people he met didn't remember him and the next three didn't know he had been away.

30,000 FARM LABORERS

It is estimated that to harvest this year's crops in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, it will require approximately 30,000 men.

The Canadian Pacific has arranged and is advertising usual special fare of $15.00 to Winnipeg and will run special trains from Toronto August 8th, 10th, 17th and 22nd.

See any Canadian Pacific Agent for full details.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

BARNUM'S SAYING STANDS

The truth of P. T. Barnum's famous statement about "Suckers" is demonstrated in pictures by Shakespeare Clancy the role portrayed by Douglas McLean in his new picture "The Jailbird which will be shown at Griffin's Monday to Wednesday.

Clancy puts over a Wallingford on the citizens of Dodson, a typical Kansas small town, but only after he has tried to get along with them and failed because of their prejudice against a modern young man with progressive ideas. Clancy's deal takes a most unexpected turn which greatly multiplies his fortune and gains for him the respect tand admiration of the whole town as well as the girl who will rid him of all tendencies to put over crooked deals in the future.

"The „Jailbird" gives the rising young star every opportunity for increasing his already excellent reputation as one of the screen's foremost juveniles.

There will also be additional carefully selected photoplays of variety and merit shown with the above starting on Monday, Civic Holiday, afternoon.
